ASSOCIATED MENNONITE BIBLICAL SEMINARY
3 9304 01035494 3

GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

Historical Library

Class No. M 051 Date Received Jan. 1948
Book No. M52 Donor M.H.A.
V. 55 1940
Accession No. 389 Fund Hist.

This book should be returned at the end of 2 weeks; otherwise a fine of 2 cents a day is charged for each additional day.

TheMennonite

3145 Benham Avenue
Suite 4
Elkhart, IN 46517
Phone: 800-790-2498

AnnaG@TheMennonite.org www.TheMennonite.org

Nov. 12, 2014

Colleen McFarland,
Director of Archives and Records Management
Mennonite Church USA
1700 S Main St
Goshen, IN 46526

Dear Colleen,
We are pleased to know that Mennonite Church USA has received a grant to digitize the print files of Gospel Herald and The Mennonite.

You have our full permission to digitize all issues of The Mennonite and make them available for free, with full-text access.

Best wishes in this important endeavor.

Sincerely,

Anna Groff

Interim Editor
The Mennonite

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial 4.0 International License.
The Anabaptist Mennonite Digital Collaborative, coordinated by staff at Mennonite Church USA, Goshen College, and Anabaptist Mennonite Biblical Seminary, is working with Internet Archive to provide digital copies of this title. Please seek permission from the copyright owner if your use of this item is not permitted under the license.

Digitized by the Internet Archive
in 2015

https://archive.org/details/mennonite194055thie

REV. G. A. LI[illegible]EID
1[illegible]01 EAST [illegible]WAY
NEWTON, KANSAS

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, JAN. 2, 1940 NUMBER 1

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

Questioning

I asked the New Year, "What am I to do
The whole year through?"
The answer came:—"Be true."

I asked again, "And what am I to say
To those who pass my way?"
"The kindest words," he said,
"That you can say."

"What thoughts am I to think, day long, year long?"
And clearly as a quick-struck gong
The answer: — "Think no wrong."

"And what roads take across the earth's worn sod
Where many feet have trod?"
Swift came the answer: "Those that lead to God."

—Grace Noll Crowell.

The Message of the New Year

I asked the New Year for some message sweet,
Some rule of life with which to guide my feet;
I asked, and paused: he answered soft and low,
"God's will to know."

"Will knowledge then suffice, New Year?" I cried;
And, ere the question into silence died,
The answer came, "Nay, but remember, too,
God's will to do."

Once more I asked, "Is there no more to tell?"
And once again the answer sweetly fell,
"Yes! this thing, all other things above:
God's will to love."

—Author Unknown.

EDITORIAL

NEW YEAR'S THOUGHTS WITH JESUS

We are again entering upon a New Year. No one of us knows what a single day may bring forth much less what shall come to pass within the new year. But as Christians we have no reason to feel uneasy concerning the happenings ahead, for if we are sincere followers of our Savior, God is with us and we need not fear. So let us hold Jesus before us as our example and trustfully go forward. The first act recorded of Jesus is, when at the age of twelve he sat with the doctors in the temple, discussing with them the way of life, forgetting his parents and kin. When his anxiously searching mother reproached him for his forgetfulness, His memorable excuse was, "Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" What a blessed year might we expect, if we were to devote more time to the Lord's business and less to ours.

We are next told that Jesus went home with his parents, was obedient to them, and "increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man," which means that he came to live a full, four-square life, grew up normally physically and intellectually, became a favorite socially and with all spiritually, an obedient child of God. How fortunate if, with God's help, we might succeed in such a course of life during the year before us!—As a young man of thirty we find Jesus in the desert, fasting and praying while sorely tempted by Satan, whose assaults he vanquished completely by resisting them with fitting quotations from God's Word. How often could we, too, overcome the tempter with apt Bible quotations, earnest prayer, and even fasting, if need be. But so few of us have memorized enough precious passages from the Word that we can fittingly combat the evil thrusts. How important that we see to it that our children and youth have their memory stored with many of God's truths!—When Jesus chose his disciples and close associates for three years, it was from among humble, common folks that he selected them, men whose lives would be open to his influence. How different this from the type of friends we are apt to choose, when we look more for popularity and rank than for quality of character, thus exposing ourselves to the danger of being led worldly-wise rather than having opportunity of exerting Christian influence.

In all that He did, Jesus was obedient to the Father and sought his glory, while we are prone to seek our own glory or that of persons whom we honor. In John 8:49-50, He says, "I seek not mine own glory but I glorify my Father." He raised Lazerus from the dead for the glory of God, John 11:40; and in his own death He glorified God, John 21:19. Wouldn't our lives take a different trend in 1940, if we earnestly sought God's glory and obeyed Him in all of our dealings? Jesus teaches us to love God above all else and our neighbors as ourselves. During his earthly life He regarded all those who needed help of any kind as next of kin to Him, and did immeasurably more for them than for himself, "who (constantly) went about doing good." What a blessed change would our beloved America experience if all those who claim to belong to Christ would follow this precept.

Christ taught his disciples (in fact everybody) to be humble. He told them, "Except ye become humble as little children, ye shall not enter the kingdom of heaven." At the last Supper He acted as the servant of them all. "Blessed are the meek, the humble; for they shall inherit the earth." If we will go through life in 1940, humbly, in a servant's rather than a lordly attitude, we will find our path much easier and pleasanter. Through a life of prayer, meditation, and close contact with the Father, Jesus could say that the Father abided in Him and He in the Father. The true, new-born Christian may experience the same grace of living his life in Christ and Christ in Him, every hour, every day of the new year. Our happiness and well-being through the year depend on how close to Jesus we live and how nearly we attain to those qualities which he so beautifully examplified in his earthly life.

We enter upon this new year as poor, weak sinners. But we know that we have a God who is merciful and gracious, and that we have an Advocate with Him who intercedes for us, lovingly, pleadingly. We also know that the wilful impenitence and unbelief at large in the world will draw its own punishments. And if Satan through pagan and unbelieving forces allied with him would harm us, we know hat Jesus' angel will encamp round about us and protect or deliver us. Therefore we may enter upon this new year with trust and confidence in Christ our Lord.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

WORKERS RESIGN

Suffering from sickness that the doctors analyze as coming as a result of living too near the sea-level, has made it necessary for our good workers, Rev. and Mrs. Edmund Miller, leaders of the Alberta Community Church, Portland, Oregon, to resign.

During the short period of labor, they began work here in October 1937, the Lord granted growth and an ever increasing interest in the various phases of church work. During their term of service the Church building could be purchased and it was renovated and also enlarged with basement rooms for Sunday School.

The Millers plan to leave Portland on February 1, 1940. They have received and also accepted a call to serve the Menno Church at Lind, Washington. We pray for them the Lord's continued nearness and also a recovering of full health and strength.

The Church and Home Mission Board are now looking for a new Shepherd for Portland. Will all friends pray that the Lord's choice might be found for the Alberta Community Church, Portland.

Sincerely in Him, A. J. N.

The following are extracts from a letter to the Board of Home Missions by V. E. Nickel, written October 2. It was late reaching us and then was unfortunately overlooked somewhat.—Editor.

Wymark, Saskatchewan

During the month of July we had the privilege of conducting vacation Bible Schools at 10 places, namely: Pella, Blumenhof, Schoenfeld, Wymark, Dunelm, Peel, S. D., Montford, S. D., Rhineland, Swift Current, and Rush Lake. The total number of pupils enrolled was 254. Many young poeple, mostly Bible School students of past years, were willing to help along in this practical Christian work. Both teachers and pupils enjoyed the work and we are confidently trusting the Lord for much fruit and blessing.

The camp for young people, which we conducted in August proved a good beginning for this kind of work. The 52 young people, who attended all testified to having received much spiritual benefit as well as physical refreshing. Two large tents were kindly lent to us by the Dominion Experimental Station near Swift Current. On the closing Sunday, Aug. 6th, we had a picnic for the whole congregation.

Throughout the vacation Bible School and Summer camp we tried to present the crucified Savior to the young people, and urged them to make Him their own by a personal decision. We also had the pleasure of preparing four additional souls (8 had been baptized in spring) for baptism. All in all, during the past year 43 members have been added to our records; 20 of them through baptism.

For the past five weeks our efforts have been expanded in connection with preparations for the Bible School, which is soon to open, the Lord willing.

We covet the prayers of all God's children on our behalf. We feel our weakness and the enormity of the task. We also believe the times demand vigorous action and earnest gospel appeals. We also realize our Lord's faithfulness who says, He will be mighty in the weak. To Him be the praise and glory, Amen.

Yours in His glad service, V. E. Nickel.

M
051
M52
1940
Vol 55

Week of Prayer

January 8 - 14, 1940

General Theme: The Acknowledgment of the Lordship of Jesus Christ over the Whole of Life.

Monday, January 8. For the Acknowledgment of of the Lordship of Christ over the Individual. (Texts: John 10:3; Rev. 2:17; 2 Cor. 8:5; Col. 3:23, 24; 1 Cor. 11:3.)

Thank God: 1. For the solemn and perilous trust of life.—2. For the thought and love and care of God over each of us individually by night and day.—3. For work and responsibility and for opportunity that widens from year to year.—4. For human affections and all that they have brought to us.—5. For the real Presence of Christ with us in the whole sacrament of life.—6. For those who have been with us and are with us still though now unseen.—7. For books and, above all, The Book.—8. For our creation, preservation and all the blessings of this life; but above all for God's inestimable love in the redemption of the world by our Lord Jesus Christ, for the means of grace and for the hope of glory.

Ask Forgiveness: 1. For our lack of faith, for our coldness of heart.—2. For our sloth and negligence, especially of prayer and unselfish service and Bible study.—3. For our impatience and haste and noisiness.—4. For our waste of time and strength and money on inferior things.—5. For our habits of self indulgence which consume what could be better used.—6. For our want of faith in God's possibilities for us and for society.

Pray: 1. For purity of thought and of desire, bringing both into full captivity to the obedience of Christ. (2 Cor. 10:5).—2. For our full acceptance of Christ's claim of complete Lordship.—3. For power to discern and to do God's whole will in our lives.—4. For grace to be more quiet and gentle of spirit, more at peace within.—5. That God may have His own holy and perfect way with us; and that Christ may form Himself within us. That we may grow up into Him in all things.—6. For a clear understanding of the problems of our day, and of the part which each one of us is to take actively in their solution.

Tuesday, January 9. For the Acknowledgment of the Lordship of Christ in the Home. (Texts: John 12:3; Luke 8:39; Luke 8:41; Rom. 14:5—; 1 Cor. 16:19; Acts 16:31, 33.)

Thank God: 1. For the Christian home, the greatest and best institution of human society.—2. For the rest, the re-creating power, the stabilization of home.—3. For Christ's love of the Church as the norm of family love in the home.—4. For the discipline of home life with its divinely ordered tensions.—5. For the indivisibility of family love and relationships.—6. That Heaven is made realizable to us as our "Father's House."

Ask Forgiveness: 1. For all the indulgence of temper or taste which disrupt the home atmosphere of peace and love.—2. For the absorption of parents in interests which sacrifice the children.—3. For the decline of family worship and Bible reading and the neglect of grace at meals.—4. For all complicity in the growth of the forces which destroy home life.—5. For all preference of outside amusements and relationships to the rights and intimacies of family life in the home.—6. For divorce in Christian homes and for all the laxities that imperil the family.

Pray: 1. For a "church in the house" in every home.—2. For a return of family prayer and religious teaching in the home.—3. For a rich realization in every family of Christ-like love between husband and wife and a God-like fatherhood of parent and child.—4. For a full recognition of equal rights of man and woman.—5. For a new generation that it may be better than the last.

Wednesday, January 10. For the Acknowledgment of the Lordship of Christ in the Church. (Texts: 1 Cor. 12:12, 13; Eph. 1:22; Eph. 4:15; Col. 1:18.

Thank God: 1. That He established the Church of Christ.—2. That her walls before Him stand.—3. That the gates of hell shall not prevail against her.—4. That she is the witness of God's faithfulness.—5. That in her there is brotherhood and peace.

Ask Forgiveness: 1. For the timidity and inadequacy of the Church's proclamation of her message.—2. For her divisons, so far as they mar and do not support her testimony; and so far as they weaken and do not strengthen her performance of her task.—3. For the imperfection of her obedience to her Head.—4. For any exaltation of that which is secondary above that which is fundamental.—5. For any calling "Lord, Lord" and doing not the things which Christ says.—6. For strife and contention.—7. For all professions of faith and loyalty which are not validated by Christian charity and love.

Pray: 1. That our Lord's Prayer may be fulfilled: "That they may all be one, even as Thou Father art in me and I in Thee, that they also may be in us; that the world may believe that Thou didst send me."—2. For the World Christian Council now in the process of formation.—3. That the Church may be possessed by a new missionary devotion, surpassing anything known in her past history, to her primary task of evangelizing the world.—4. That an adequate ministry may be raised up of men who will follow the Lord Christ whithersoever He goeth.—5. That the un-utilized forces of Christian womanhood may be released and employed.—6. That the Spirit of Worship, of Reverence and of Prayer may be deepened.—7. That the Church may believe with a deeper and more achieving faith in the fellowship of souls, in the purposes of Christ, in the resources of God.—8. That she may plumb afresh the depths of the Gospel and of Christ, the same yesterday, today and forever, of His mind, His love, His power.—9. That she may fear nothing except disobedience to the will of God.

Thursday, January 11. For the Acknowledgment of the Lordship of Christ over the School. (Texts: Matt. 23:8; Matt. 28:19, 20; Acts 5:42; 1 Tim. 2:7; Heb. 5:12; Eph. 4:11, 12.)

Thank God: 1. For light and truth.—2. For men and women teachers who in the past have loved God and truth above all things.—3. For those teachers who today are teaching the truth by word and life.—4. For the school which, next to the home, has been the Church's greatest instrument of good; an indispensable institution of society.—5. For the increasing recognition of the futility and peril of education divorced from religion.—6. For the Sunday School in its work of re-enforcing home religious training or of providing a substitute where such training is lacking.—7. For the University Christian Mission now visiting many college campuses.

389

Ask Forgiveness: 1. For our national neglect of religion in education.—2. For the secularism, religious indifference and even opposition of many teachers.—3. For any fear of truth or of free inquiry or of discovery of new knowledge.—4. For the partial surrender of the educational responsibility of Christian forces.

Pray: 1. For the efforts which are made to provide religious training for pupils in public schools. —2. For all faculties of universities, whether state or private, that they may be filled with Christian scholars and teachers.—3. For the effective maintenance of Chapel services and Bible teaching in all institutions connected with the Church.—4. For the inculcation and the achievement of ideals of purity, truth, loyalty, and unselfish service in all schools.—5. For the voluntary Christian and missionary organizations and movements among students that they may be perpetuated in full power or be succeeded by organizations and movements of still greater effectiveness.

Friday, January 12. For the Acknowledgment of the Lordship of Christ over our Secular Life: (Texts: 1 Cor. 10:31; Neh. 3:1; Mark 13:34; Luke 19:13; James 4:15; Exod. 36:2; Acts 10:15.)

Thank God: 1. That it is our privilege and duty to live to God always and everywhere, on common occasions and in small things.— 2. That God's will takes in and covers everything in life that is right and good.—3. That God may be served as surely in the kitchen or the nursery as in the pulpit.—4. For all the fidelities to so-called secular duties which alone make possible the harmonious and cooperative life of man.—5. For honesty of workmanship, for honor in diplomacy, for faithfulness in trusteeship, for all the veracity on which human confidence and progress depend.—6. For man's unwearied study of God's laws and secrets in nature and his ever increasing discovery of God's ways and will.

Ask Forgiveness: 1. For our appropriation of God's gifts and our forgetfulness of the giver.—2. For our misuse of the resources and forces which have been given to us, and their debasement to the ends of war and strife.—3. For the selfish accumulation of wealth and the denial, by word or deed, of our trusteeship.—4. For our exclusion of God from our political and economic life.—6. For the omission of God from our thoughts.—7. For all forms of gambling, dishonesty, wastefulness, and toleration of crime.

Pray: 1. That the whole of life may be brought under the conscious and acknowledged Lordship of Christ.—2. That all that is unclean may be banished from the radio, the moving picture, and the stage, from the newspaper and the magazine and from books.—3. That laws and law-makers may be able to meet and to endure the judgment of God.—4. That the principle of thrift and frugality and economy may not be lost.—5. That cooperation may take the place of conflict as the principle of economic relationships.—6. That the speed of life in doing good may be increased and its speed in pleasure-seeking reduced.—7. That this present world may be subjected to the powers of the world to come.

Saturday, January 13. For the Acknowledgment of the Lordship of Christ in the Community. (Texts: Mark 1:14, 15; 1 Cor. 12:25-27; Psalm 133:1; Gal. 6:2.)

Thank God 1. That no man can live or die alone, that we are set in family and community relationships from which there is no escape.—2. That, thanks to the Gospel and the influence of the Bible, there are so many communities where people live together in neighborly brotherliness and charity.—4. For the new and clearer realization of the functions and possibilities of the community which has come in our time.—5. That the unity of man in the community is stronger than any of the hostile forces and cannot be destroyed by them.

Ask Forgiveness: 1. For all race prejudice and injustice and inequality.—2. For all interpretation of the relations of capital and labor, of employer and employee, in terms of conflict instead of in terms of cooperation.—3. For all unfairness in provision of schools, playgrounds, hospitals, utilities and social benefits.—4. For tolerance of the influences which injure childhood and degrade the community.

Pray: 1. For the abolition of the saloon, and the brothel, of drunkenness and immorality, of vice and crime, and for wisdom and courage and faith for all the agencies working against evil.—2. For confidence and understanding and cooperation among all classes in the community.—3. For inter-racial cooperation and appreciation.—4. That community life may naturally and spontaneously take up unemployment without expedients that weaken society and are economically harmful.—5. That community life may embody the principles of the Kingdom of God, especially the righteousness and kindness of God.—6. That it may be safe for children to play in the streets.

Sunday, January 14. For the Acknowledgment of the Lordship of Christ over the Nations. (Texts: Matt. 28:19; Matt. 25:32; 1 Tim. 6:15; Isa. 42:4; Rev. 21:24; Rev. 11:15.)

Thank: 1. That the world is now so knit together that national wrong and injustice can no longer be done secretly.—2. That the good of each is the good of all, that if one member suffers every member suffers with it.—3. That no member of the body of mankind can say to any other, "I have no need of thee," or "Thou hast no claim on me."—4. That "every family in Heaven and on earth is named" from the Father (Eph. 3:15) and that "He hath made of one every nation of men." Acts 17:26). —5. That war is a suicidal madness.—6. That the doctrine that might is right is a lie.—7. That truth will not always be on the scaffold and wrong on the throne.—8. That God's will is righteousness and peace and love.

Ask Forgiveness: 1. For "frantic boast and foolish word."—2. For the false idea that there is one moral law for individuals and another for nations.—3. For all hatred and misrepresentation.—4. For race prejudice and injustice.—5. For the thought that America can exploit the rest of the world for her gain and stand aloof from the rest of the world in its trouble and need.—6. For false nationalism, false patriotism, and for all self-consideration alone in politics and in trade.— 7. For our efforts to reap the benefits and escape the responsibilities of world organization.—8. For our blinded idea that we can separate ourselves from humanity.—9. For our folly in allowing wars which were in our power peacefully to prevent.

Pray: 1. That the nations may return to their treaty obligation to renounce war as an instrument of national policy.

2. That every nation may conceive its mission and its power in terms of trusteeship and world brotherhood.—3. That all prejudice, or pride or privilege of race, or the fear of any race against other races may end.—4. That Japan may cease her aggression in China.—5. That the war in Europe may not extend, that it may soon reach a just end, and that there may be war no more.—6. That humanity may realize that it is one body with many members.—7. That the Church may give herself afresh to the foreign mission enterprise.—8. That each nation may conceive itself to be one member of the Body of Humanity, and that this Body may be provided with the instrumentalities required by its common necessities and essential to its common well-being.—9. That the Kingdom of this world may be the Kingdom of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

Institute for Ministers and Church Workers

Bethel College Chapel, January 15-19, 1940

PROGRAM

10:15-11:05 Bible Hour
Daily - Monday to Friday
Studies in the Book of Amos, Dr. H. S. Gehman

11:10-12:00 Our Children and Their Needs
Monday - The Unfolding Personality of the Child, Dr. P. E. Schellenberg
Tuesday - The Physical Life of the Child, Dr. John W. Hertzler
Wednesday - The Child in the Home, Rev. J. M. Regier
Thursday - The Child in the Public School, Prin. E. P. Robertson
Friday - The Child in the Church, Rev. David Wedel

Noon

1:20-2:10 Ministerial Conference, Dr. W. A. Elliott
Monday - Search the Scriptures: Practical Methods and Plans
Tuesday - Public Worship and Its Improvement
Wednesday - Sermon Making and Sermon Delivery
Thursday - The Rural Church: Its Importance and Its Needs
Friday - Church Efficiency: Its Organization and Work in the Parish

1:20-2:10 The Women's Hour.-.Arranged by the Women's Missionary Societies
Monday - China, Mrs. Sam Goering
Tuesday, India, Mrs. P. J. Wiens, Mrs. P. W. Penner
Wednesday - American Indians, Mrs. G. A. Linscheid
Thursday - Home Missions, Vivienne Musselman
Friday - Our Challenge, Mrs. Gerhard Friesen, chairman
(Everyone is invited to participate in this part of the program)

2:15-3:05 Bible Hour, Dr. Henry S. Gehman
Daily, Monday to Friday - Studies in the Psalms

3:10-4:00 The Church and Its Mission in the Time of War
Monday - The Biblical Basis of Our Peace Testimony, Rev. J. N. Smucker
Tuesday - The Historic Peace Position of the Church, Rev. C. E. Krehbiel
Wednesday - The Church Today and War, Dr. H. A. Fast
Thursday - Wartime Propaganda, Dr. E. L. Harshbarger
Friday - Missions in a Time of War, Dr. P. H. Richert

7:30 The Evening Hour
Worship Service
Evening Addresses, Dr. W. A. Elliott
Monday - In Quest of God
Tuesday - A Divine Imperative
Wednesday - The Voice of the Church in a War-Torn World
Thursday - Wealth in Terms of Worth
Friday - A Re-Assuring Religion

Bluffton College Peace Conference

An intercollegiate peace conference was held on the Bluffton College campus December 1 and 2. Faculty and student representatives were present from Manchester, Earlham, Goshen, and Wilmington colleges. These colleges are maintained by the Friends, Church of the Brethern, and Mennonite Churches, who have in common their philosophy of Christian pacifism. Speakers at the conference included Dr. C. Ray Keim of Manchester College, Dean Harold Bender of Goshen College, Dr. Willis Hall of Wilmington College, Dr. C. Henry Smith of Bluffton College, Prof. Arthur Funston of Earlham College, Robert Balderston of Chicago, and John Nevin Sayer, chairman of the International Fellowship of Reconciliation.

The conference centered around two main themes, first, the ways in which a Christian pacifist can contribute to the welfare of his country and humanity during war or peace time, and second, ways in which the college peace groups can do more effective work for peace within their own colleges.

There were thirty-five representatives present from the four colleges which participated with Bluffton in this conference. Those present felt that a similar conference should be held in one of the colleges next year. A continuation committee consisting of C. Ray Keim of Manchester, Dean H. R. Pyle of Earlham, Lloyd L. Ramseyer of Bluffton was appointed to promote cooperation between these colleges in peace work and to make whatever plans seem feasible by next year for a similar meeting.—Lloyd L. Ramseyer.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

January 7, 1940

THE CHRISTIAN'S CONFESSION OF FAITH

Matt. 16:13-24

Introduction

The lessons for the next three months, taken from Matthew's Gospel, pertain chiefly to the closing days of Jesus' earthly life. These last scenes in His life were the climax of all. Rising high scenes in His life its significance and value to all humanity are His passion, His death on the cross and His triumphant arising from the tomb. The writers of all four Gospels describe these last scenes with much care and detail.

In our today's lesson we should give ample consideration to the very important matter of our confession of Christ. Many of the unsaved do not read God's Word and do not go to His house and these must be won to Christ through the words and lives of Christians. If these fail to confess Christ adequately before men, the inevitable result will be the loss of many who might have been saved.

Peter's Confession, vs. 13-16

Jesus had been praying in seclusion (L. 9:18-23.) Now the time had come to tell His disciples of His approaching death. He asked the question of verse 13 to help them to a distinct understanding of His Deity. The answer (v14) expressed the various opinions current among the people. Jesus followed this with the directly personal question (v15). It is far more important for each one of us, whom we believe and say Jesus is, than what others say about Him. Jesus wished them to express their conviction about Him in a word of mouth confession.

Peter, as usual, spoke for the group of disciples (v16) being quicker than the others to express the truth in words. This confession had been made before this (J. 1:49, Matt. 14:33) but now it was made with a fuller conception of its true meaning. The confession here made contains the fundamental truth of the Gospel. Belief in it is necessary for obtaining eternal life (J. 20:31).

Christ Honors Peter, vs. 17-20

Jesus was greatly pleased with Peter's confession and is as highly pleased with us when we confess Him as readily (Matt. 10:30-33). This confession made the weak Simon—Petros—a piece of a rock. The revelation of the great truth embodied in the confession had been made to him by the Father (v17). God reveals the truth to any one who wishes to know and wills to do the truth (J. 7:17). Jesus declared that upon the rock (petra) the confession of Petros (piece of rock) He would build His church (v18). Jesus Himself is the chief corner stone of the Church and all the powers of hell shall not prevail against the Church built upon the faith in Christ as the Son of the living God. Jesus gave to Peter a symbol of authority, "the keys of the kingdom of heaven", i.e. power to reveal the open door by his teaching and preaching (v19). He used the keys on Pentecost to open the door to the Jews and later (A. 10) in the home of Cornelius, to open the door to the Gentiles. God also would endorse the decisions of Peter in forbidding or allowing, binding or loosing things on earth.

Cost of True Discipleship, vs. 21-24

Jesus declares the things which must befall Him in Jerusalem. Peter speaks again (v22), this time with a flesh-given protest against the cross. Jesus sees the Tempter, Satan, in his words which reveal his human view of the setting up of the kingdom (v23). Discipleship requires a denial of self, making self entirely subservient to the will of Christ. It means taking up one's cross, going on in the path of duty and meet all that lies there. It means following Jesus, having the mind of Christ. He who truly confesses Christ, gives to Him the place in his heart and life which He truly deserves. Such a confession will be seen of men. To confess Christ before men is a primary obligation of every Christian.

CORRESPONDENCE

MENNONITE CHURCH, SUMMERFIELD, ILL.,

12-19-39

Through the guidance and help of the Heavenly Father, we have had a year manifold in both material and spiritual blessing. Because of the abundance of summer rainfall, the farm crops have produced exceptionally well. Surplus moisture during wheat harvest, however, resulted in a slightly lower grain quality than usual.

From September 17 to 24, a special series of Bible Lectures were delivered to attentive and appreciative audiences by Dr. J. E. Hartzler, of the Hartford Theological Seminary. Dr. Hartzler spoke on the theme, "The Church in a Changing World". — Rev. John Thiessen, furloughed missionary from India, reported on different phases of Indian work in an illustrated lecture on the evening of October 11.

Mrs. Donald Bechtel Baer, who has been quite ill in the Highland hospital, has recovered sufficiently to be able to attend church services again.—The Young People's Society, after successfully sponsoring the drama, "In the Vanguard" last fall, presented the comedy, "Here Comes Charlie" on the evening of November 30. The play, under the supervision of the Misses Eleanor Camp and Lucille Ruth, was given in the Community Hall.—The "Bible Club", a woman's organization of the church, which seeks as its goal, the better understanding of the Scriptures, celebrated its sixth anniversary with a Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Dan. Hirstein.

A recent subsidy of the Rural Electrification Commission to Clinton County is resulting in the construction of several miles of power line. Consequently, most of the Mennonite families south and east of Summerfield, who previously had no access to electricity, will now have ample opportunity to get such service.

On the afternoon of December 11, Miss Barbara Gruebler, daughter of Mrs. Susan Gruebler of Trenton, was married to Mr. Konrad Stoffel of Highland. The couple are making their home at Highland, where Mr. Stoffel is employed. Rev. Elmer Basinger officiated at the ceremony.—Correspondent.

HEBRON CHURCH, BUHLER, KANSAS

November 5.—Two classes of young men began the study of "Principles of Christian Peace." Rev. van der Smissen teaches this class. A few weeks later another class of men began the study of "Principles of Christian Peace." This class is taught by P. T. Franz. The classes are interesting and instructive.

November 12.—Rev. Felix Schrag of Bethel College preached a very fine sermon. Sam Barkman of the College sang several songs, which were enjoyed by every one.

November 18 the Ladies Sewing Society had their annual sale. About $430 were received. At noon every one enjoyed a bounteous dinner. On November 20 we had our annual Sunday School election. Plans and problems of the Sunday School were discussed. Mr. P. T. Franz, Inman, was elected Superintendent.

November 26 Elda Koehn from the Garden Church and Wilbur Siemens of the Hebron Church were married in the Hebron Church. Rev. Dirks performed the ceremony and Rev. van der Smissen preached the wedding sermon, using for his text "We are workers together with God." A delicious lunch was served in the church basement to relatives and friends.

Dec. 3. Communion services and footwashing were observed by the church members. Mrs. A. M. Lohrentz had charge of the Junior services. In the evening Rev. Dyck of Burrton showed Retreat pictures at our C. E. meeting. After the meeting the people, both young and old, gathered in the basement for a social time. Bible games were played and refreshments served.

Dec. 10. Mr. and Mrs. David Dick celebrated their silver wedding anniversary with a church service. Lunch was served in the basement to relatives and friends. We wish them many more happy years of married life.—Correspondent.

* * *

EDEN CHURCH, MOUNDRIDGE, KS., 12-26-39

Another year has drawn to a close. In spite of many disappointments and heartaches in our church we must confess that on the whole the Lord has been good to us.

Death was a seemingly unwelcome guest in several of our homes. Mrs. Jonas P. Flickner was found by her husband one morning in August to have passed quietly away. Death crept in without warning to take this beloved wife, mother, daughter and friend. Though married only a few months, young Alvin Goering, son of Mr. John B. Goering, passed away. Verlin Regier, two-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Regier, departed after being sick only one day. Yet on the whole we must say that the Lord has been good to us. Rev. Walter Gering has been serving us with sincerity and force to lead us closer to Jesus Christ, our Savior. The Lord has sustained the Rev. Gerings mightily. Our united prayer is that God be with them so that together we may grow in grace and in power.

Our church has been growing. A building committee was appointed. It has postponed the matter of building by adding a loud speaking system through which the church services may be followed in the basement of our building. A class of twenty-four was accepted into the church membership with a baptismal service in the month of July. Another class of twenty-one is now taking catechetical instruction — The women's missionary society is a growing unit. At present there are about eighty members. It meets once a month.—Hobart Goering has piloted our senior C. E. group during the past year. The last C. E. program of the year was given this forenoon in the form of a second-Christmas day church service to which the entire church was invited. Our C. E. is happily supporting the work and projects of the Western District C. E. Convention. Lillie Krehbiel, one of our members, won the mission oratory contest of the convention. Our C. E. recently was host to a peace rally sponsored by the young people. Doctor Harshbarger spoke to an audience that represented many C. E's. of the district.—Milton Goering and Peter W. Goering as senior and junior S. S. superintendents respectively have been in charge of our S. S. Milton Goering has been re-elected and Robert Stucky has been chosen to be chairman of the Juniors. Thirty new teachers were elected to assist in the work with the latter group.

Dr. E. G. Kaufman gave a mission talk on the night of Dec. 24 after our annual Christmas program given by the junior S. S. He stressed that missions is the supreme activity of the Church and it is our duty to save souls for Christ even in this dark hour when the price may be that we give our life to that end.

On Dec. 25, 7:30 p. m. our combined choirs sang the cantata, "Night of Holy Memories" by Ira Wilson.

Rev. C. J. Goering, elder emeritus, retains a fairly good health in spite of his retirement from the farm. —Grandmother Mrs. Anna Goering, the most aged in our congregation, at her approaching 85th birthday, is very active and attends church regularly. She was beshowered with Christmas greetings from her many relatives and friends.—Mr. and Mrs. Peter H. Wedel are both happy. They too enjoy another yuletide with their children, grand-children, and great grand-children after having lived together for fifty-five years.—We are grateful for the blessings of long lives for through contact with them we realize what our fathers have suffered to make opportunities of free worship, thank God, possible. Another reason why I do not hesitate to mention the older people is because we ought to give them credit or "flowers" while they are yet with us.

In this community we are grateful for the material blessings which we have. People traveling through tell us that we live in a garden spot. It is hard to tell how long God's protecting hand will remain over us. At any rate it is for us to sing Him praises for these material blessings and also for the spiritual gift in Christ through whom we are united with the rest of the brethren.

Brother Richard Schrag, McPherson, Kansas, has been elected English correspondent for our church.

Sincerely yours, William Juhnke.

* * *

MENNONITE CHURCH, BUHLER, KS., 12-18-39

Our church is fortunate to have its own minister again in Brother J. F. Schmidt. He brings us the message two Sundays in English and the third in German. Every Sunday night he has a meeting with the young people. Both the Senior and Junior Christian Endeavorers have programs every three weeks. Brother Curt Reimer has been elected Sunday School superintendent. At present we have a standing men's choir and ladies' choir. Our sewing societies had their annual mission sale in November. A little over $300 was raised.

In the war-stricken lands Christmas will this year not be a time of joy and peace. In many homes there will be sadness and suffering. Many a mother's heart will be bleeding, because her husband or son will not come home this festival nor any other. We who still have the privilege of celebrating Christmas in the usual Christian way in home and church, let us praise God.

I listened in on a children's program. The radio announcer asked a boy whose birthday it was today. The boy replied, "I don't know, it's not mine." After repeated asking another boy shouted, "I know, it's Santa Claus'." May we as Christian parents find time to tell our children the beautiful story of Christ's birth and life and death, and as they grow older teach them to accept Jesus as their personal Savior. May we rather neglect the perishable things than the souls of our children.

Another year has passed. Some of us may have gone through trials and sad experiences. It is the Christian's great privilege to lay all matters into the faithful hands of God. When we look ahead to the new year, may we banish all anxiety and speak with Paul, "In nothing be anxious; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." Phil. 4:6.—Mrs. N. D. Esau, Corr.

* * *

GRACE MENNONITE CHURCH, DALLAS, ORE.

Greetings to all the Readers: Christmas is so very near again. We are having two programs this year. Sunday night, the 17th, the Seniors and Choir are giving a program, and Christmas evening the children have theirs. Saturday evening, Dec. 16, Brother and Sister Abr. M. Toews have invited the congregation and friends to attend their Silver Wedding Anniversary which will be held in the church.

Our Ladies' Aid Society held its annual sale on Nov. 29. They received $258.00 for the beautiful things they had made. One-tenth goes to Missions and the biggest part of the balance goes as part payment of the furnace, which has been installed in the church. It is very comfortable since we have it.

We had the pleasure of having Rev. J. J. Esau, the blind evangelist with us Monday evening. We had a fairly good attendance. Mrs. Leisy has been on the sick list for the past two weeks, but I am happy to say that she is much better at this time.—The yearly meeting was well attended and met with much approval this year.

Glory to God in the Highest and on Earth Peace and Goodwill toward Men.—Mrs. Leonard Schmidt, Corr.

* * *

EDEN MENNONITE CHURCH, INOLA, OKLA.

Greetings with the words of our Lord as found in John 17:20-22. May these few notes also tend to unite us more firmly in the Lord Jesus Christ, whose coming in this world has again been brought vividly before our minds during the Christmas season.

At present we are enjoying spring weather. It seems to be out of the ordinary warm. We are greatly in need of rain for stock water. The wheat and barley would also be greatly benefited by more subsoil moisture.

Our Sunday School had a volunteer program at Christmas instead of a program set up by an oppointed program committee. These programs seem to go over in a big way.

Last spring we had Rev. J. C. Kaufman here for a series of meetings. But before their close, Bro. Kaufman was suddenly called home to the sick-bed of Mrs. Kaufman. So he kindly arranged to finish his work with us this fall. He was with us at Thanksgiving time, making it a real occasion for thanksgiving, for the Eden congregation. In the morning we had Bible hour, the first few chapters of First John were ably discussed.

During the course of the year one death has occurred in our midst. The one called home was Mrs. A. Enns, who passed away June 22, at the age of 62. A number of cases of illness have occurred. Mr. H. G. Kroeker and their daughter Welma spent some time in a Pryor hospital. Mrs. Adolf Schmidt some time received treatment for cancer in an institution in Arkansas. The writer of this also spent ten days in a Pryor hospital. May all afflictions tend to draw us nearer to our Lord and remind us of the fact that we have no resting place here.

May the Lord grant His richest blessings for a coming year.—John J. Voth, Corr.

—Small Churches in the North Visited.—Missionary W. C. Voth recently held a week's meetings for a group of Mennonite people, known as the Bethel Church, Fairfield, Beadle County, So. Dak. On the same trip he also spent five days with the Emmanuel Church at Doland, So. Dak. whose minister is J. A. Friesen. This church belongs to the Northern District Conference.

EDITORIAL
STAFF
Senior Department
R. Weinbrenner
Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers
Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

AFTER CHRISTMAS — WHAT?

Again the time in which we distributed gifts of food, clothing, toys, etc., to the poor has passed by. Now the needy are again going into a cold year of neglect among their Christian neighbors. Yes, it is all too true that to many Christmas and the Christian spirit does come but once a year.

Yet if we, the givers, have truly received the Gift of Christ into our hearts, then a Christmas spirit, which is the Christian spirit, should radiantly glow in our lives throughout the whole year, blessing the needy by whatever gifts we can bestow. We may be unable to give certain kinds of gifts, but others we surely can give freely. A bit of interest, some warm fellowship, some helpful suggestions are often just as much a vital necessity for the needy as some material gift. If we are in a condition similar to that of Peter, let us not forget to say in his spirit, "Silver and gold have I none; but what I have, that give I thee."

If Christians will manifest such Christian love for their fellowmen, then there will be less likelihood of meeting a legless beggar on a main street who denounces all church-goers as hypocrites. Christ gave Himself for us. Are we giving ourselves for anyone?

R. W.

PRAYER SUGGESTIONS FOR THE NEW YEAR

A Christian doctor says, "When I insist to some people that they ought to pray, they ask, 'How shall I pray?' and 'How do you pray?' and then I tell them about the skeleton-framework that I keep before me, with a little litany to fix my mind on the Lord's Prayer, as follows:

Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name.
Abba, Father.
May thy Kingdom come and thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven.
In my life and in the lives of others through me.
Give us this day our daily bread.
Help me to partake of the spiritual food which is so freely offered.
Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors.
Help me to live in right relations with all men.
Lead us not into temptation but deliver us from evil.
Help me always to choose the right path.
For thine is the Kingdom and the Power and the Glory, forever.
Help me to feel the power of the endless life. Amen.

Thanksgiving for benefits received.
For all the men and women and children who have helped me.
For all the avenues and channels opened up for my feet.
For all the promptings and urgings that have sent me in the right way.
For light and guidance.
For the cleansing power of true repentance.
For forgiveness of sins:
Wherein I have harmed myself; or harmed others.
Wherein I was unfair and unkind or mean and jealous.
Failed to serve.
Failed to share.
Failed to live up to the best that is in me.
Failed to let God work his will in my life.
Failed to walk in fellowship with Jesus Christ.
Toward God: for faith, trust, and understanding.
Toward others: for love, duty, and unselfishness.
For myself: self-control, self-respect and self- reliance.
For life as it comes to me day by day: courage, wisdom and energy.
For a realm of righteousness: to which I may belong and into which I may draw others.
Intercessory for those of my kinship and friendship; and for others who need my help.

THIS AND THAT

During the week-end of Dec. 15th to 17th Dr. E. L. Harshbarger lectured and preached at the First and Second Mennonite Churches, Beatrice, Nebraska. On Friday night a highly informative lecture on "The Mennonites in Holland" was given in the First Church. A ten to fifteen minute reel of moving pictures of Holland were also shown. Sunday morning Dr. Harshbarger preached a peace sermon in this church, and on Sunday afternoon he conducted a very helpful peace and war discussion in the Second Church. In the same church that evening Dr. Harshbarger delivered the lecture, "The Christian Faces War."

Young People's Societies, why not avail yourselves of these lectures and the film?

Senior Department

STRIVING TO DO HIS WILL

Senior C. E. Topic for Jan. 14, 1940

Main Topic: What it means to strive to do His will. Gal. 6:7-10.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "More Love to Thee, O Christ", "Have Thine Own Way, Lord", "I'm Pressing on the Upward Way."
2. Reading of main topic and prayer

3. Suitable Bible verses about doing God's will by 10 or 12 members.
4. Offering for some mission project.

II. Leader's Introduction

The second principal declaration in the Christian Endeavor pledge usually is this: "I promise Him that I will strive to do whatever He would have me do." Indeed, this clause is the heart of the pledge. The parts that follow simply make explicit a few of the things that are implied in striving to do His will.

One of the most remarkable facts about Jesus Christ was His unreserved submission to the will of God. The identification of His will with the will of His heavenly Father was so complete that He could say, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." Christ's spirit was probably most deeply revealed in the Gethsemane prayer when He said, "Not my will but thine be done." Being like Christ, on our part, means being utterly surrendered to the will of God. It means doing always that which we know God wants us to do.

III. Suggested topics for short talks:

1. What it means to do His will. Ps. 40:6-10.
2. Christ's obedience. Luke 22:39-43.
3. Cost of doing His will. Acts 5:40-42.
4. His will through prayer. John 14:13-15.
5. Requirement of discipleship. Matt. 16:22-26.
6. A benediction. Heb. 13:20, 21.

IV. For Discussion

When is a course of action God's will for us,

1. It is in line with Biblical teaching
2. It is in harmony with the work of the Christian Church
3. When conscience urges and approves
4. If opportunity offers
5. If a need is calling
6. If it is in line with our talents or abilities

V. For Study

ACCOUNTABLE TO GOD

We need today a new sense of the importance of respect for authority and obedience to the will that is higher than our own. It is undoubtedly true that our American temper has become restive under authority and rebellious of restraint. But we know that a world in which every man has the right to do exactly as he pleases is no world at all. It would be just a disorder of clashing wills.

Jesus Christ stands at the center of the moral and spiritual world today with the right to command it. And the highest welfare of all men everywhere would be found to consist in accepting that will and obeying that command. We must restore to the Christian life the old-fashioned virtue of obedience and begin to accept our orders from Christ as the one who has the supreme authority over our souls.

Let us not fear that there will be any slavishness issuing from such a reverent response to the authority of Jesus. The strength and beauty of this ideal are both involved in the simple words, "The love of Christ constraineth us."

Christ comes to us with something more than the discovery of the forgiving love of the Father. He bears to our souls an imperial commandmnet in the face of which we simply cannot remain negative or neutral. Jesus Christ is the moral and spiritual field marshal of the age. His orders cannot be ignored; his commands cannot be slighted. Every one of us must give an account for the way in which we answer his imperative orders.

VI. Illustration

I had gone that morning to the home of a friend in a spirit of great unrest. My worries threatened to overwhelm me, and the way ahead was blurred and uncertain. As I unfolded my sorry mission, he listened quietly, an understanding look in his eyes. After I had stopped talking, he beckoned me to the window where he was sitting and called my attention to a column of dense smoke that was ascending into the upper air. We watched it drift upward, and finally lose itself above. The air cleared and again the landscape was unobscured. He turned to me and said, "Suppose you lift them up—these things that are blurring the sun's clear shining—and see if they do not dissolve away, and leave the way before you free and open. We do so often forget to put the first things first. 'Seek ye first the kingdom of God,' the Master says, and when we do we always find all the other things falling into their rightful places."

VII. Food for Thought

Spiritual development is increasing participation in God's eternal thought and will.—Susan E. Blow.

The man who wants to walk with God must be willing to walk with him on the level of God-like tasks, not invite him down to small tasks.—Robert E. Speer.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

KEEP YOUR TEMPER

Intermediate C. E. Topic for Jan. 14, 1940

For Daily Reading:

Jan. 8. A soft answer. Prov. 15:1-4, 18.
Jan. 9. Ruling the spirit. Prov. 16:24-33.
Jan. 10. Keep thy tongue from evil. Ps. 34:13-22.
Jan. 11. Saul kept his peace. 1 Sam. 10:17-27.
Jan. 12. Christ's example. 1 Pet. 2:19-25.
Jan. 13. The bond of perfectness. Col. 3:12-15.
Jan. 14. Topic—Keep Your Temper. 1 Cor. 9:25-27; aJs. 3:2-13.

Opening Song, "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind"
Scripture Reading, 1 Cor. 9:25-27; Jas. 3:2-13.
Prayer by Superintendent
Hymn, "Lord, Speak to Me that I may speak"
Leader—

Gracious Spirit, dwell within me;
I myself would gracious be;
And with words that help and heal
Would thy life in mine reveal;
And with actions bold and meek
Would for Christ my Saviour speak.

Hymn, "Gracious Spirit, Dwell Within Me"

Discussion of topic:

1. How does a debater who loses his temper effect the audience?
2. What happens to our ability to think when we become angry?
3. "When everything goes dead wrong
   And fate presses down on my load,
   Am I noble and brave?
   No, I break things and rave—
   It's such a relief to explode."
   Do you agree?
4. Does the losing of one's temper improve or lessen a person's opinion of himself?
5. Can we disagree with someone without becoming angry?

Reading of references:
1. Prov. 15:1-4, 18.
2. Ps. 34:13-22.
3. I Pet. 2:19-25.

Discussion of references read.

Talk by Superintendent—"Instances in the Bible when Jesus showed indignation."

Hymn, "O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee"

Offering

Prayer by Intermediates asking God to help them to control their tempers.

DON'T CRASH THE GATE

Intermediate C. E. Topic for Jan. 21, 1940

For Daily Reading:

Jan. 15. Ambition of James and John. Mark 10:35-41.
Jan. 16. Self-confidence. Mark 14:27-31.
Jan. 17. Counting the cost. Luke 9:57-62.
Jan. 18. Paul's suffering foretold. Acts 9:10-17; 20:22, 23.
Jan. 19. Facing persecution. 2 Tim. 3:10-12.
Jan. 20. Humility enjoined. 1 Pet. 5:5-7.
Jan. 21. Topic—Don't crash the gate. Luke 14:25-33.

Instrumental prelude, "Saviour Again to Thy Dear Name"

Opening Hymn, "I Need Thee Every Hour"

Prayer confessing our need of God and asking him to fill us with the spirit of humility.

Scripture Reading, Luke 14:25-33.

Discussion of Topic

"Character both of the individual and the nation is based on honesty." Let us as we discuss our topic today face ourselves honestly. Let us strive to learn how to put first things first. Have we ever been guilty of little petty meannesses in our attempt to crash the gate? In other words have we ever tried to get something for nothing in unfair ways?

1. In striving for a short cut to popularity have we ever made mean remarks about anyone else? Have we ever had to confess that the things we said were based only on gossip?

2. Is it dishonest to gamble—to get something for nothing?

3. Is it dishonest to live beyond our means—and thus cheat tradesmen?

4. What do you think of the following statement? "It may even cost you a few cents or dollars to 'buy Christian.' "

5. Are we willing to take kind and honest criticism or do we try to crash the gate by our own methods?

6. "Jesus did not call his followers to an easy way of living. He called them to a cross." Read the reference given for Jan. 18.

7. Should Intermediates allow themselves to get into the habit of doing assignments in too great a hurry or of bluffing their way through an examination? It is a bad habit to get into: to think that we have done something when we have just half done it.

9. What great harm is done to one's character by the making of excuses?

10. Do you admire the person who is really honest at all times?

Hymn, "O Jesus, I Have Promised"

Offering

Silent Prayer followed by the Lord's Prayer.

JUNIOR CORNER

"SIR, WE WOULD SEE JESUS" - John 12:21b

Program for January 14, 1940

Seeing Jesus in Loving Service. Acts 10:38, "Jesus . . . who went about doing good . . . ."

I. Worship Service

1. Prelude. Melody of "Tell Me the Story of Jesus"

2. Call to Worship. "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord."

3. Silent Prayer. All heads bowed while the piano plays the refrain of the song very softly.

4. Sing verse 1 and 2 of the song.

5. Responsive Reading:

LEADER: Luke 4:14, 15. And Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee: and there went out a fame of him through all the region round about. And He taught in their synagogues, being glorified of all.

JUNIOR: Luke 4:16, 17. And He came to Nazareth, where He had been brought up: and as His custom was, he went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day, and stood up to read, and there was delivered unto Him the book of the prophet Esaias. And when he had opened the book he found the place where it is written,

LEADER: Luke 4:18, 19. The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because He hath annointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord.

JUNIORS: Luke 4:20. And he closed the book, and he gave it again to the minister, and sat down. And the eyes of all them that were in the synagogue were fastened upon Him.

LEADER: Luke 4:21. And He began to say unto them, This day is this scripture fulfilled in your ears.

JUNIORS: Luke 4:22. And all bore Him witness, and wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of His mouth.

LEADER: Mark 1:22. And they were astonished at His doctrine; for He taught them as one that had authority, and not as the scribes.

JUNIOR: Matthew 9:35. And Jesus went about all the cities and villages teaching in their synagogues and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people.

6. Prayer by the leader.

7. Solo, "O Master Workman of the Race"

II Study Period. Aim: To help our Junior see our Lord Jesus Christ in his loving compassion and great mercy.

1. Introduction:

When Jesus was here on earth He was very, very busy, for he taught the people about the kingdom of Heaven and many things that, knowing them, would make them much happier. He also performed many miracles, helping the sick and poor and sad. "He went about doing good", but He did not only help those who had sick bodies, His greatest concern was to help those who were sinners. Those of you who have begun to read one of the four gospels have already found how eager the people were to see and to hear Jesus, so that they might be helped and be happy.

2. Study "Jesus the teacher." (a) Let some Junior boy select portions of the "Sermon on the Mount" and read them. (b) A Junior girl tell one of Christ's parables.

3. Duet, "Saviour, Teach Me Day by Day", Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 195.

4. An older person discusses, "Christ and Nicodemus."

5. Song in unison, "Ye Must Be Born Again"

6. Study, Jesus the miracle worker.

Three Juniors tell the following: (a) Jesus calms the waves. Matt. 8:18, 23-26; (b) Jesus restores sight to two blind men. Matt. 9:27-30; (c) Jesus raises Jairus daughter from the dead. Matt. 9:18, 19, 23-25.

7. Solo, "Jesus, the Very Thought of Thee" Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 93.

III. Mission Minutes.

1. One Junior may tell about the schools on our foreign mission fields.

2. A second Junior may have a story of the hospital work on our foreign mission fields, to tell.

IV. Closing Moments:

1. Leaders Heart talk.
2. Leader's closing prayer
3. Song in unison, "Jesus Is All the World To Me"

Report of Orphanage Society

The thirty-fourth annual convention of the Orphanage Society of the Eastern District Conference was held Nov. 11, in Flatland Church near Quakertown. The morning session was occupied with business matters. In the afternoon followed a good program consisting of musical numbers and addresses by Mrs. and Dr. John Raker of the Good Shepherd Home of Allentown. At the noon hour coffee was served by the Flatland ladies, after which all drove to the Community Home for Children about half a mile from the church. Everybody was pleased by the evident comfort of the Home and well-being of all the little guests.

The Orphanage Society was organized for the purpose of caring for the needy of Mennonite families and also with the thought of some day establishing an orphanage. For the last 10 years the Orphanage Society has been active as a relief organization. It contributes $30 per year, for care of orphans in India and has stood by the needy whenever such cases were brought to our attention. If there are those who need help in our midst, the pastors should notify some member of our Executive Committee. The case will then be investigated, and if deemed worthy will receive due attention. The President of the Society is Mrs. Clarence Kooker of Richlandtown, Pa.

Our funds are raised by free offerings and Ladies' Aid contributions chiefly. Our membership requirements are as follows: All Mennonites of either sex who are willing to support the work by free-will offerings and otherwise may become members. Holding office, however, is reserved for women members.

A new impetus has been given this cause by our affiliation with the Community Home for Children at Quakertown. The society has pledged $25 for maintenance, and $50 towards the building fund of the Home. They also have placed a homeless boy in the Home and pay $12 per month for his support. The organization is also contributing to the support of a widow belonging to the Mennonite congregation of Germantown, Philadelphia.

Our next Convention will be held in the Upper Milford Mennonite Church on the second Saturday of next November. We would urge all who can to attend these conventions and thereby become acquainted with the project and encourage the ladies in this splendid work they are doing.

Ada M. Landis,
407 Race St., Perkasie, Pa.

IN MEMORIAM

ANDREW A. EWERT, son of Andreas and Anna Bartel Ewert, was born February 5, 1888, near Hillsboro, Kansas. In 1895 the family moved near Cordell, Oklahoma, on a new homestead. At this lonesome place he spent the following 14 years with little opportunity for schooling. At the age of 16 he was baptized upon confession of faith and received into the Harold Church.—In 1909 the family left Oklahoma and moved to Hillsboro, Kansas, to give the children a better opportunity for education. Here Andrew first attended the Preparatory School and later Tabor College. In 1912 he began to teach and remained in this vocation until his death, a total of 23 years, with marked success.

In 1914 he was joined in marriage with Orpha Ratzlaff, who also had taught for several years. This union was blessed with six children, all of whom are still living: Jonathan, Rebekah, Ottila, Esther, Orpha and Andrew, Jr.—In 1917 he was ordained a minister in the Friedenstal Church by elder William Ewert. For 8 years he served this church faithfully in connection with his teaching. In 1925 he accepted a call from the Saron Church at Orienta, Okla., where he moved with his family. For about 6 years he served this church and also taught school. As this double service became too heavy, he laid down the church work and followed only teaching for a livelihood. Since 1934 he made his home in Alva, Okla., where he lived till his death.

On Saturday, Sept. 25, 1937, he left home in the morning as usual to sell school books. On this same day he disappeared, without any trace of his whereabouts for two years, and 2 months, when on Nov. 23, 1939, he was found sitting behind the wheel of his car in a deep lake about 14 miles distant from his home. Investigations indicate that possibly he was unconscious when the car struck the water, and very likely on the same day that he left home. The water was about 18 feet deep. What the future may reveal about this incident, only God knows.

He reached the age of 49 years, 7 months, 20 days, and leaves to mourn his death, his wife, six children, three brothers, one sister, one aunt, one uncle, and many relatives and friends. His remains were buried Nov. 24 at the Alva cemetery. The pastor of the Baptist Church, of which he was a member, officiated. On Nov. 27 a memorial service was also held at the Johannestal Church near Hillsboro. Rev. J. M. Regier preached an appropriate sermon. At the close D. C. Ewert gave a short report of the legal investigations. —He who has served lovingly, has not served in vain.

* * *

MILTON VERNON NAFZIGER, oldest son of Arthur B. and Anna Gering Nafziger, was born at Odessa, Wash., Nov. 1, 1922. Later the family moved to Whitman County, Washington, near Colfax. He attended the public schools of the county, later the Colfax High School, being a senior at the time of his death. He attended services at the Mennonite Church near Colfax where he was baptized upon his confession of faith in Christ and received into the fellowship on May 16, 1937. He was serving his second term as S. S. Secretary and was active in the Christian Endeavor society.

He passed away after a few days illness caused by a ruptured appendix, on Nov. 8, 1939, at the age of 17 years and 7 days. He is survived by his parents, two sisters, Edna and Bernice; three brothers, Marvin, Vincent and Curtis, all at home, also his grandmother, Mrs. Joseph Gering of Odessa, Wash. and a host of other relatives and friends. Funeral services were held Sunday, Nov. 12, at the Onecho Mennonite Church conducted by his pastor, Rev. W. Harley King assisted by Rev. J. J. Esau.

* * *

A TRIBUTE

"The Lord must be preparing me for a greater work or for heaven." These words were constantly going through our mind as we attended the memorial service for our church worker, MISS LAVINA BURKHALTER, Sunday afternoon, Nov. 12, at Immanuel Mennonite Church, Los Angeles. About a week before she passed away she became aware that the Lord was about to make a great change with her and was led to make the above quoted statement. So she was completely yielded to His will and ready for it, whatever it would be.

As the service continued we thought back through the years and recalled many experiences of joys and sorrows that we were privileged to share with this faithful co-worker. She was truly an ambassador for Christ! The host of friends that filled the church to overflowing; the mass of floral tributes; and service of song and sermon—all attested to her faithfulness in service. Yet none spoke so eloquently as the quiet presence in the assembly of a number of those who had found Christ because of her direct testimony, her intercessory prayers, and her untiring efforts in their behalf.

When city mission work was started in Los Angeles by the General Conference it was started strictly as a mission, in a community most suited for such work, and all efforts were in that direction. The work was carried on by trained city mission workers, with the help of a few resident Mennonites. "Church" activities were decidedly secondary. Since moving to the present location the "church" activities predominate, yet the "mission" activities and zeal are not diminished in the least. During both of these periods Miss Burkhalter served as district visitor. Till the very last, as at the very beginning, her work was with the children and women of the district. In the district in which the church is located there are few if any homes that have not had contact with her in some way. Having been placed here by the conference she was well known throughout the conference, and many know of this work here because of her. Her wide knowledge of Mennonites made it possible for her to aid the pastor with the problem of reaching many of the Mennonites who came to this large city to live.

The peculiar nature of the rare illness that laid her low came gradually ,without causing alarm. Quite suddenly it became serious and all that friends and physicians could do proved unavailing. Thursday evening at 8:35, Nov. 9, she quietly passed away to be with the Lord whom she served so well. And now as we came to bid her our last farewell, nothing could be more appropriate than the words chosen by our pastor on which he based his remarks than those in Gen. 24:56: "Hinder me not, seeing the Lord hath prospered my way; send me away that I may go to my master."—A. J. Richert.

» » JOTTINGS « «

—A BLESSED CHRISTMAS AND A PEACEFUL NEW YEAR TO OUR MANY MISSION FRIENDS! "We have seen His star in the east and have come to worship Him." It is a real joy to worship together with dear friends in "the West" again. It has been our privilege to visit a good number of Churches the last few months. We want to thank one and all for the warm welcome we received both in the churches and in the many homes. Your fellowship has been truly appreciated. In these above Christmas and New Year's greetings we include the churches, societies and friends to whom we formerly sent our annual Christmas letters. Since we are not sending out such an annual letter this year will you please accept these greetings in its stead.

Yours for Christ, William C. and Matilda Voth, 1312 N. Main St., Newton, Kans.

—A Greatly Beloved Teacher Passes.—Brother W. J. Janssen who taught a generation of Mountain Lake, Minn. people, died recently at the age of a little over 67 years. After teaching in other communities for a number of years, he accepted a position in Mt. Lake in 1899 and continued his much appreciated service until 1919, when he was struck with paralysis that made him an invalid the rest of his life. He instructed almost every one of the present generation of people in the town and vicinity, and through his fine Christian character and efficient teaching earned the respect and affection of all his pupils.—Mt. Lake Obersver.

—Berne, Indiana.—Beginning with Sunday, Dec. 31, the churches of the Berne community are enjoying a series of union evangelistic meetings, with Dr. M. R. DeHaan of Grand Rapids, Mich. as speaker.—The Berne community has sent three truck loads of food to Detroit, Mich., to be distributed to the needy there, under the direction of Rev. D. C. Stucky, elderly superintendent and founder of the Detroit Rescue Mission. The contributions included 10 quarters of beef, two tons of potatoes, lots of flour and corn meal, 52 chickens, 13 ducks, a large variety of apples and canned goods, besides some clothing and $100 in cash.—Berne Witness.

—Mennonite Church at Aberdeen, Idaho.—A choir of forty voices presented Keyser's Christmas cantata, "Peace on Earth", Sunday evening, Dec. 24, under the direction of Gus Klempel.

—The First Church at Bluffton, Ohio, recently enjoyed the blessings of a series of evangelistic meetings, with Rev. A. C. Schultz, professor of Bible at Bluffton College as speaker.

THE MENNONITE YEAR BOOK

The Mennonite Year Book has been out since December 15 and has been mailed out as speedily as possible, free, to all those subscribers who have paid for The Mennonite until January 1941 or beyond. It is a splendid book of 52 pages, full of interesting information about the General Conference, its boards, organizations, institutions, and churches. Those who get this book will hardly want to miss future issues. Rev. A. S. Bechtel who edited the book the third time deserves much credit and has the hearty "thank you" of the Board of Publication. The Herald Publ. Company of Newton, Kansas, printed the book and did a good job.

—Dr. and Mrs. A. Warkentin are spending a week in Chicago, with their children, daughter Edith and their son and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. John Warkentin. Mrs. John Warkentin is the former Linda Brown, daughter of Missionaries H. J. Brown in China. Dr. John W. is completing his work for the degree of doctor of medicine at Northwestern University.

—St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio.—Groups of men and women of this congregation were busy evenings and parts of days with sandpaper, buckets and mops, brushes and soap cleaning the church. Their Bulletin says, "Now we can worship in a comfortable and clean church again. Even a church building accumulates dirt and needs a periodic cleaning."

—First Menn. Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—"The 7 weeks of campaign have worked out well in our church. We have enjoyed a fine spirit of cooperation and fellowship. We have tripled the attendance for our evening service, and last Sunday we had the joy of receiving 7 new members.—Mothers, you can come to church on Sundays with your babies and worship in peace. We have a nursery with good folks in charge.—The trustees have been able to pay off $1,949.55 of the old debt through the special financial Fellowship Bond Campaign. Only $108.00 more is needed to clear away all our old debts."—Bulletin.

—Dr. and Mrs. Waldo R. Wedel of Washington, D. C. have just visited their parents Dr. and Mrs. P. J. Wedel on the Behel College campus a couple of days. On their return trip they intend to visit Mrs. Wedel's parents in Iowa and attend the American Archeological Society meeting in Chicago. Dr. Wedel is curator at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

—First Church, Allentown, Pa.—Besides groceries for the Mennonite Home at Frederick and the Community Children's Home at Quakertown, the White Christmas program yielded a total of $137.99, a good share of which went to the Homes just mentioned and the rest to other worthy causes.—At the last Council meeting it was revealed that our quarterly contribution to Bluffton College had averaged $61.00 through the year.—And here is something which needs special mention: On Nov. 26 Rev. Nyce preached a sermon on "The Denominational College." (Our churches could stand more sermons along this line.—Editor)

—Mennonite Church, Warroad, Minn., 12-12-39.—We have had lovely weather so far. But this morning it started to snow, and winter will probably set in for good. Our little church has enjoyed a series of evangelistic meetings in October, conducted by Rev. Albert Schultz of Butterfield. His earnest messages were inspirations to us for a deeper, fuller, richer Christian life. At our recent yearly church meeting we have again been able to organize for another year. TO ANY CHURCH HAVING "HYMNS OF PRAISE" OR "EVANGELIUMSLIEDER" BOOKS WHICH THEY DO NOT USE AND WHICH ARE IN FAIR CONDITION, WE WILL SEND POSTAGE. Please write Rev. Arthur F. Ortman and please state the number of copies of each book.

—Mennonite Church, Sugar Creek, Ohio.—Two barrels and two large boxes of used clothing and bedding were shipped to Rev. David Toews, Rosthern, Sask., Canada this week. Many a body will be warmed, and many a heart will be cheered because of our sharing of our abundance. We are the richer because of our sharing in the welfare of others.

— Kansas Receives a Fine Blanket of Snow.—After a long dry spell which caused the winter wheat to come up poorly or prevented it from taking good root, the after Christmas days have brought a good snow which seems to cover the state to a depth of about three inches and up. One of the dailies reported that the dust bowl, which has had practically no moisture in summer and fall, received twelve inches. But that is probably an exaggeration.

FOREIGN MISSION RECEIPTS FOR NOVEMBER, 1939.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Johnson, Montezuma, Kans., $6.00; Mennonite Church, Deer Creek, Okla., $38.66; M. J. Neufeldt, Inman, Kansas, $100.00; Mrs. Louis A. Janzen, Elbing, Kansas, $100.00; Mennonite Ch., Inman, Kans., $45.28; First Mennonite Ch., Nappane, Ind., $200.00; Sister Helena Entz, Newton, Kans., $20.00; P. D. Dirks, Burrton, Kans., $10.00; Virginia Unger, Main Center, Sask., $10.00; Bethel S. S., Mt. Lake, Minn., $60.00; First Mennonite Church, Jarrettown, Pa., $27.08; Mennonite Church, Pulaski, Iowa, $10.25; First Menn. S. S., Mt. Lake, Minn., $50.00; Eden Jr. & Interm. C. E. Soc., Moundridge, Kans., $6.50; Germantown Ch., Philadelphia, Pa., $8.05; Hebron C. E. Soc., Buhler, Kans., $43.87; Abenfeld Ch., Montezuma, Kans., $3.74; Salem C. E. Soc., Freeman, S. Dak., $56.75; Whitewater Ch., Lena, Man., $4.50; Immannuel Married Peoples Class, Los Angeles, Calif., $29.30; Mennonite Church, Herbert, Sask., $38.57; Mennonit Church, Truax, Sask., $9.95; First Mennonite S. S., Allentown, Pa., $60.00; First Mennonite Church, Madrid, Nebr., $69.02; Bethel College Women's Class, North Newton, Kansas, $30.00; Bethel Church, Inman, Kans., $137.62; Bergthal Church., Corn, Okla., $35.84; Mennonite Ch., Lehigh, Kansas, $17.32; West Side S. S., Wichita, Kans., $5.00; First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho, $86.15; First Mennonite S. S., Bluffton, Ohio, $13.91; Emmaus Church, Whitewater, Kans., $679.44; Bethel College Church, North Newton, Kans., $52.69; Garden Township Church, Moundridge, Kans., $28.00; Bethel Ladies Aid, Alsen, N. Dak., $10.14; Rev. Eduard Dirksen, Alsen, N. Dak., $4.86; West Swamp C. E. Soc., Quakertown, Pa., $30.00; Edw. J. B. Waltner, Freeman, S. Dak., $35.00; Christian Church, Moundridge, Kansas, $84.50; West Zion Ch.. Moundridge, Kans., $30.00; First Mennonite Church, Berne, Ind., $217.40; First Menn. S. S. Class No. 53, Berne, Ind., $23.85; Mennonite Church, Richley, Mont., $28.60; Marie J. Regier, Chicago, Ill., $10.00; Bergtal S. S., Didsbury, Alta., $30.00; Menn. Church., Whitewater, Man., $20.00; Bethel S. S., Inman, Kans., $35.33; First Menn. S. S., Newton, Kans., $25.73; Goessel Menn. Ch., Goessel, Kans., $61.10; First Menn. Sr. C. E. Soc., Newton, Kans., $25.00; Sr. Dora Richert, Newton, Kans., $3.00; Hebron Ch., Buhler, Kans., $29.21; Salem Ch., Munich, N. Dak., $55.81; Sychar Ch., Cordell, Okla., $3.05; New Hopedale Ch., Meno, Okla., $27.00; Salem Ch., Freeman, S. Dak., $200.00; Menn. C. E. Soc., Butterfield, Minn., $25.00; Menn. Ch., Ransom, Kans., $6.78; Tabor Ch., Goessel, Kans., $7.31; First Menn. Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., $32.63; Bethel S. S., Enid, Okla., $7.46; Menn. Cr., Pratum, Ore., $24.19; Menn. Ch., Butterfield, Minn.,$62.93;

Menn. Ch., Newport, Wash., $12.55; Sundri Bai Soc., Beatrice, Nebr., $30.00; First Menn. Ch., Halstead, Kans., $35.00; Schimmel. Legacy, Philadelphia, Pa., $277.24; Emmanuel Ch., Meadow Lake, Sask., $19.40; Bethany Ch., Norwich, Kans., $27.55; Eden Ch., Harleysville, Pa., $304.10; First Menn. Ch., Geary, Okla., $8.87; Bethel Ch., Lustre, Mont., $64.45; Johannestal S. S., Hollsboro, Kans., $25.12; Bruderthal S. S., Hillsboro, Kans., $55.15; First Mennonite Church,Mt. Lake, Minn., $21.21; Bethesda Ch., Henderson, Nebr., $61.33; Eicher Emmanuel Ch., Noble, Iowa, $133.00; Elise Wiebe, Upland, Cal., $20.00; Salem-Zion Ch., Freeman, S. Dak.,$75.00; Emmaus Girls S. S., Whitewater Kans., $3.05; No. 60, Hillsboro, Kans., $5.00; Hutterdorf Ch., Freeman, S. Dak., $60.64; Zion Ch., Souderton, Pa., $100.00; L. J. Habegger, Berne, Indiana, $2.00; First Menn. S. S. No. 51, Berne, Ind., $30.00; Goessel Menn. Ch., Goessel, Kans., $49.25; Bethel Ch., Mt. Lake, Minn., $300.00; Salem-Zion Ch., Freeman, S. Dak., $72.13; Fairplay Ch., Peabody, Kans., $42.00; YoungPeople's C. E., Barnes Crossing, Sask., $43.75; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Peters, Swift Current, Sask., $9.00; Eden Ch., Inola, Okla., $15.00; Grace Ch., Enid, Okla., $7.25; Eastern Dist. Conf. Orphanage Soc., Philadelphia, Pa., $30.00; Herald Ch., Clinton, Okla., $19.41; San Marcos Ch., Paso Robles, Cal., $31.18; Garden Township Church, Moundridge, Kans., $26.00; Friends, Whitewater, Ks., $14.50; St. John Sr. C. E., Pandora, Ohio, $25.00; Menn. Ch., Richfield, Pa., $20.00; Bethel Ch., Wolf Point, Mont., $75.95; G. J. Voth, Inola, Okla., $30.00; Elizabeth Richert, Goessel, Kans., $10.00; Sara A. Wiebe, Delft, Minn., $50.00; Group, Fredonia, Kans., $6.20; B. F. Welty Pt. Legacy, Tacoma, Wash., $24.62;

Hoffnungsau C. E. Soc., Inman, Kans., $17.00; Emmanuel Ch., Galva, Kans., $13.78; Tabor Jr. C. E. Soc., Goessel, Kans., $5.00; Gnadenburg Ch., Whitewater, Kans., $17.63; Eden Jr. & Interm. C. E., Moundridge, Kans., $11.37; Bergtal Ch., Pawnee Rock, Kans., $18.35; Menn. Ch., Medford, Okla., $$11.00; Hoffnungsau Ch., Inman, Kans., $23.63; Anna Wiebe, Scudder, Ont., $4.50; Swiss Ch., Whitewater, Kans., $20.01; Hoffnungfeld S. S., Carrot River, Sask., $3.56; Two Sisters, Laird, Sask., $15.00; Peter B. Friesen, Loon Forks, Sask., $15.00; Rebecca Hofer, Freeman, S. Dak., $145.00; Bethesda Ch., Marion, S. Dak., $150.00; Swiss Ch., Alesn, N. Dak., $5.21; Pine Grove Church., Bowmansville, Pa., $30.00; First Menn. Ch., Berne, Ind., $1,654.24; S. S., Juniors, Upland, Cal., $2.00; Bethel Ch., Dolton S. Dak., $8.06; Christian Ch., Moundridge, Kans., $44.25; Christian S. S., Moundridge, Kans., $40.62; Lorraine Ave. Ch., Wichita, Kans., $28.06; Int. & Rent, $103.25; Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Treas. Ex. Com. Miss. Soc. (Sept.), $102.50; Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Treas. Ex. Com. Miss. Soc. (Oct.), $159.00.

Total $8,169.29.

Balance on Hand, Nov. 1, 1939,		$ 471.38
Gifts for General	$6,457.84
Gifts for Spec. Support	782.10
Int. & Rent	103.25
Pension Fund	3.38
Sundries	822.72	8,169.29
		$ 8,640.67
Bills Payable		9,000.00
		$17,640.67
Paid out on Orders,		16,607.25
Balance on Hand, Dec. 1, 1939,		$ 1,033.42

Respectfully submitted,
J. E. Regier, Treasurer.

Scripture Text
CALENDAR
For 1940

Christian Home Calendar
1939
JANUARY
1 2 3 4 5 6 7
8 9 10 11 12 13 14
15 16 17 18 19 20 21
22 23 24 25 26 27 28
29 30 31

The value and beauty of the Scripture Text Calendar for 1940 have never been quite equaled and certainly never surpassed.

WORTH-WHILE FEATURES

1. Front cover picture of surpassing beauty and charm on fancy pebbled stock which gives effect of oil painting.
2. Twelve reproductions of famous pictures, in full colors. May be framed.
3. Three-month-on-a-sheet calendar pads. Very convenient.
4. International Sunday School lesson and inspirational reading assignments for each week.
5. Golden text or memory verse, for each Sunday quoted in full.
6. Carefully selected Scripture verses for each week day of the year.
7. Illuminating story of each picture.
8. Church and national holidays noted.
9. C. E. Topics for 1940.
10. Flowers and Birthstones of the month.
11. Phases of the moon illustrated.
12. The most complete, most beautiful, and most helpful calendar made.

PRICES

Single copy, 30c; 4, $1.00; 12, $3.00; 25, $5.75; 50, $9.00. Postage extra on all quantities above 25 copies.

Prices on larger quantities gladly supplied upon request.

Daily Talks with God for 1940

Daily Talks With God
1
January

WALL STYLE

8½x12¾ inches. Printed in three colors, with beautiful, embossed Biblical picture.

Daily Talks With God
Tuesday
1
January
(New Year's Day)

EASEL STYLE

Size, 6½x8 inches. Printed in colors. Easel cut-out form designed for standing or hanging. Packed firmly in a very attractive gift box.

UNIQUE CALENDARS

both "Wall and Easel" styles, with easily removable sheets that feature a Scripture Passage, Devotional Reading, Prayer and suggested Scripture Reading, for every day in the year.

Prices: Either "Wall" or "Easel" Style, 60c; Per Dozen, $5.76, postage, extra.

NOTE: In spite of war conditions in Germany, we are able to supply the 1940 Neukirchner Abrieskalender for our German customers. Price 60c.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, BERNE, IND.

1001 EAST BROADWAY
NEWTON, KANSAS

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, JAN. 9, 1940 NUMBER 2

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

I Am with You All the Days

"When we walk amid the shadows, and the skies are overcast,
When we linger, half bewildered, 'twixt the future and the past,
We shall always find the Master at the parting of the ways,
We shall hear his gentle whisper, 'I am with you all the days.'
Yesterday, today, forever, he is the same Jesus still,
Guiding, keeping those who love him, shaping all things to his will;
So I follow where he leads me, let him choose my times and ways,
And the promise never fails me, 'I am with you all the days.'"

Plans for the New Year

As Christian people we want to—

1. Be right with the Lord religiously, socially, in home and business life.
2. Plan each day as though it were our last day on earth.
3. Plan each day as though we had many more years to live.
4. Make the most of our opportunities, remembering that the successful life is the life dedicated to the glory of God and the good of fellow men.
5. Spend our time continuously in fellowship with God and, as far as possible, in fellowship with those "of like precious faith."
6. Always do that which is right, and never do that which we know to be wrong.
7. Make the work of the Lord the first consideration in our lives; remembering that this includes a faithful support of our loved ones in our own homes, our own home communities, and our Church.—Gospel Herald.

HOW IT MIGHT BE.—In this world of sin, of confusion, of hatred and war our minds are apt to drift back to two scenes that were altogether different. There is, first, the Paradise, with Adam and Eve living in perfect bliss. How we would like to look in upon that scene! The other scene is that in the Upper Room in Jerusalem where the hundred twenty "all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication," which is later extended to that larger scene after the descent of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost, of which we read in the Word, "And all that believed were together, and had all things in common, and and sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all, as every man had need. And they, continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart, praising God and having favor with all the people . . . "—Acts 2:44-47. This report, this picture of those early Christians fully proves that lives lived in the conscious presence of God and in constant communion with Him and our Christ brings real happiness and brings favor with all the people, good or bad. No wonder, that historians report that even heathen neighbors were heard to remark, "See, how they (these Christians) love one another."

Is it not unutterably strange and sad that the people whom God had chosen to be his own, whom he honored and blessed with his presence, and who could have been genuinely happy in their companionship with Him, constantly drifted away from Him and preferred to live in sin, in spiritual unhappiness. Is it not even more strange, now, when we have the full gospel, with Christ as a sure Savior, that nations who bear his name, should indulge in everything that is bad and contrary to God's will thus turning their back on a happiness that they could enjoy by serving Him. But should we dispair as we look out upon a world in darkness? No, for the day is coming when all will be peace and happiness on earth, with the Prince of Peace returned on this earth. Until then we can at least have little havens of happiness in our Christian homes. We can pray and work that such homes multiply mightily, and shine forth like cities "on a hill that cannot be hid." May the Week of Prayer with countless Christians interceding for an increase in Christian faith and living, do much to restablish Christian homes and to rekindle Christian firesides, and thus foster that real happiness which is found in Jesus Christ and Him alone.—T.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR. If this be a happy new year, a year of usefulness, a year in which we shall live to make this world better, it is because God will direct our pathway. How important then to feel our dependence on Him!—Bishop Matthew Simpson.

THE NEW LIFE

By George W. Tuttle

It is a new life, the life that is hid with Christ. Does not every day become new, fresh and delightful, when you have once said, "I will," to our Lord Jesus Christ, and when he has right of way in heart and life?

Mary B—— was a schoolmate of mine—a merry, laughing girl who was very popular. She had many good traits and her friends were legion. Then I heard that Mary had become a Christian. Boy fashion, I thought: "Well, she appears to be the same Mary; I cannot see any difference."

It was not long, however, before I began to make interesting discoveries in regard to Mary. In our country village lived an older girl, a shut-in. Her parents were poor, her pleasures few and her privations many. I heard that Mary was calling on this girl and bringing her comfort and cheer. Ah, a new Mary, a new life! Never before had it occurred to her to carry cheer to this invalid girl. Now she was thinking of others and doing for others. Never before had the poor, the afflicted, the shut-ins been irresistible magnets for her. Now she went about doing good and her high spirits and merry heart were fine medicine for the sick and afflicted.

My boy heart said, "There is a change, a real change, in Mary!Once she thought of Mary; now her slogan is, Others."

How beautiful are these words: "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ."

Christ takes us just as we are and uses every talent, gift and power with which nature has endowed us. Mary was by nature a cheer-bringer. When Christ came into her heart she took her wares to the right market, where need was calling loudly: "Bring me comfort and cheer, lest I die."

When we begin the new life, hid in Christ, we are to use what we have. His smile and favor bring wondrous increase in our ability and power for doing good and being a true helper, doing good as we have opportunity. Will not Christ take out of the heart the selfishness, the indolence, the envy and the foolish pride? Does he not put into the heart the kindly thought and purpose? Does he not make the trail of service a delightful way until the glad heart sings: "I delight to do thy will, O Lord?"

He would fain give us new peace, new ambitions, a new understanding of himself, and abounding joy in service. Shall we not say:

"O Lord, make us ready to take,
Since thou art so ready to give"?
—George Tuttle in Gospel Banner.

There is no human life so poor and so small as not to hold many a divine possibility.—Martineau.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

"This Do in Remembrance of Me"

by Christena H. Duerksen

It was Sunday morning in the church which we attended while in the hill station of Landour. The church was filled. By far the greter part of the congregation consisted of missionaries: those who were attending the language school and those who had come for a short respite from the heat of the plains. Older school children were also present.

It was communion Sunday. As the missionary, acting minister for the day, began his message he said, "When I first came into the church I thought how different this communion service is from the last one I attended. There the church was the courtyard, the communion table an ordinary village bed. True we had individual communion cups, for each participant received the wine in the hollow of his hand and reverently sipped it. And yet it was not so different. In both places men and women had gathered to commemorate the Lords' death till He come."

Instantly, into my mind, flashed the memory of the first comunionm service I had attended on "this side of the blue hills" that lie between Basna and Mauhadih.

We had been here less than a month. The Christmas holidays were over and Mr. Duerksen was out in the district holding harvest festivals and communion services. He had gone out in the Ford to a distant village some thirty miles away but on this particular day he was to be in a village only about eight miles away.

In the morning Mrs. Dester came over and suggested that we women and the children go to this service, which was to be in a village where she had never been. The road was reported as being "not too bad" for her to drive their car and, of course, we were immediately ready to go along. The children were glad to be going somewhere and we three, Mrs. Dester, Miss Schmidt and I were eager to meet the Christians who had received baptism less than a year previous.

We met Mr. Duerksen at Basna and he left the Ford there because there was room in the other car for him. By two o'clock we were at the village.

To me, the experience was doubly interesting; first, because I was having a chance to get acquainted with a part of our new field and secondly, because it was a new exeperience to have Christian groups in so many villages.

As we neared this village, called Beecheeya, we were met by some of the Christians who showed us the way through the crooked streets to the meeting place. There was no church building but in the courtyard between three small houses a canopy of branches had been made. A layer of straw over this made a welcome shade.

A white cloth over an ordinary string bed made the communion table, another cot was the preacher's seat. As I listened to that service—first the baptismal service for five people and then the communion service—I realized a new difficulty we were facing. Many of these people have always used the Oriya language. Recently the government is insisting that schools must be in Hindi and the language used in our whole mission field is Hindi. But here in this service both languages had to be used in order that everyone receive something out of the service. The native evangelists must know both languages in order to work here.

In spite of the fact that whenever Mr. Duerksen stood up to take part in the service his head bumped against the canopy and bits of straw came fluttering down, we had a blessed communion service. We used the hollow of our hands as individual communion cups. Those whith whom we shared the sacred symbols were of India's so-called outcastes. But the Lord himself drew near. Our hearts echoed an "Amen" when in his prayer the native preacher said, "Father, we thank Thee that Thou hast made it possible for us, who were not even considered worthy to be counted among India's people, to be accounted as Thy children."

There have been many communion services in our district since then and it was my privilege to be present a number of times. But I have not yet been to half the villages where our Christians live. The more than a thousand Christians of this section are scattered in at least fifty-two villages. These villages are anywhere from six to thirty-two miles away from our home base. Many of these villages are only a short distance from either side of the so-called "big road" that runs through our field. These can be reached by motor car but we live five miles from the main road. Some villages are out away in the jungle on roads where even a model T finds it next to impossible to go.

Through a special gift it has been made possible to buy a motor-bike; a bicycle with a small motor attached. This has been a blessing in saving strength that was needed for work other than pedaling a bicycle. It takes very little gasoline. In the hot month of May, Mr. Duerksen was able to travel 250 miles, give communion in twenty-two centers in two weeks. Of course, the motor bike does not give me a chance to go along.

The field is large and there is much to do. There are six palaks, (which means assistant preachers) each of whom is responsible for the spiritual work of a certain section of the field. These men are not yet fully ordained but we look forward to the time when they will be ready for a greater service that such an ordination will bring. The work it not all pleasant but we rely on God's promises and rejoice to go forward.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

BETTER HARVEST — SNOW STORM COMES TOO SOON

Grantham, Alberta, Oct. 28, 1939

Dear Mission Friends:

On account of the support given by the Home Mission Board, I feel the desire to make a report regarding my field of labor.

At this writing we are in the season of Mission and Harvest Home Festivals. For four successive Sundays it was my privilege to attend some of these Festivals and take part, and it is because of this that this report is a bit late.

My last two week trip took me north to Ponoka and east to Sedalia. In all the congregations I discovered a heart felt note of praise and thanksgiving toward our Heavenly Father who provided so well for us. In this region the harvest is better this year than for the several past years. Even in the dry seasons of Chinook and Sedalia they could harvest 15-20 bushels per acre. In some instances the people did not get their threshing or combining finished until an unexpected snow-storm of 10 to 12 inches covered everything.

After the harvest festival at Didsbury, I felt a call to visit the sick people in Ponoka. Four of our people are in the Sanatorium there. Their condition is such that they enjoy visitors, they thanked me for coming and asked that I return soon again.

In Red-Deer we have a boy of 15 years, in the "Training School". With 215 other boys he has been there for more than a year. A short time ago his mother died, and he was homesick. I was privileged to spend an hour with Herbert, and I was able to answer many questions that he raised about his home. It was a precious hour for him and I too received a blessing from the visit. Is it worth while to spend five dollars for such journeys to visit the sick and such persons? . . . "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Matt. 25:44. Itinerant Ministers who travel through Ponoka and Red-Deer, should not forget to call on these sick persons.

In our Church at home, we are very much occupied with renovations. Nov. 5th, we are planning to hold our Harvest Home Festival. The Church is growing constantly, the increase coming as a result of individuals being baptized while others join from other Churches. Our harvest too was encouraging. The health of our people is good, for which we humbly thank God.

Soon the time is here in Alberta when we will have our Annual Bible Study Hours. May the Lord bless these efforts also this year is our prayer.

With kindest greetings, Wm. Martens.

Education

A. S. Rosenberger

INTRODUCTION

With this issue the Board of Education begins again to present to the readers of the Mennonite a weekly article on some phase of Christian Education. I have been designated by the Board to arrange for these articles and will be glad for any suggestions that anyone may have as to material to be presented.

The present plan calls for articles by our Board members, College presidents and faculty members, pastors and others who are in a position to discuss various phases of our problems of Christian Education. There will also be times when we will include articles from other authorities who may be of help in understanding various angles of the educational problem and who may also serve to inspire us in this important task of the church.

In connection with this first message of announcement, I wish to call attention to this verse: "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." 2 Timothy 2:15. May htis always be the spirit of Christian Education.

—A. S. Rosenberger.

"WHY BEHOLDEST THOU THE MOTE?"

A humorist once made this statement: "There are some things in life to which it is always wise to close one's eyes . . . and soap is one of them." Our critical faculties are so keenly developed that often we see only the faults in people and institutions. Any one in a responsible position may make a hundred acceptable decisions and never hear about it but one decision that is susceptible of several interpretations may constantly be held before his eyes. And so with our institutions, we are prone to single out the weaknesses and emphasize them over and over again. A pleasant thought for the New Year might well be that we close our eyes more often to the recognized weaknesses and open them to the good things in our institutions. —J. D. Unruh.

What sculpture is to a block of marble, education is to a human soul.—Addison.

We search the world for truth, we cull
The good, the pure, the beautiful,
From graven stone and written scroll,
From the old flower-fields of the soul,
And, weary seekers for the best
We come back laden from our quest,
To find that all the sages said
Is in the Book our mothers read.
—John Greenleaf Whittier.

Our Intermediate S. S. Quarterly

Our Intermediate Quarterly for this year is arranged in such a way that the children of 9 to 12 years, as well as young people up to 15, will find valuable and inspirational material.

In many of our churches the somewhat artificial organization of the Sunday School into seven divisions proves to be more of a problem than a help. For this reason the Board of Education is endeavoring to group our S. S. classes into three divisions: the Primary, age 3-8; the Intermediate, age 9-15; and the Senior or Adult, age 16 and up.

In accordance with this division the Board plans to issue only three quarterlies, instead of seven. Two of them, the Intermediate and the Senior, are widely in use now; the Primary is a pressing need.

All our Sunday Schools are very vitally interested in our S. S. publications, therefore they also should liberally support the work, not only by using the quarterlies in class, but also by liberal contributions in money. The publication of the quarterlies is connected with certain expenses which must be met by collections. TEN CENTS A YEAR OF EACH S. S. PUPIL WILL MEET THE NEED. Just think of it! Please send your contribution immediately to the treasurer of the Board of Education, Rev. P. R. Shroeder, Freeman, South Dakota.

A. Warkentin, Editor.

IN DARKNESS

A missionary from Africa told of his work among snake worshippers. He had tried hard to show the natives that these poisonous reptiles are only creatures, not Gods; and yet his efforts were in vain for a while. To fight against this superstition more effectively, he got some poison antidote. Soon another person was bitten and the people said she had to die because the gods were punishing her. They assembled about her to watch her die. The missionary administered the antidote, and she lived. Still they clung to their old belief. Another idea proved to be more successful. The school boys were very fond of little prizes, like pencils, because they were rare; so they were offered one of these treasured articles, if they would kill a poisonous snake. A little while later a cry was being heard in the streets. On looking out one could see many people following a boy, who had in his hands a dead snake. They were going to punish him severely for this dreadful deed. He arrived at the missionary's place sooner than they did, and was protected by him. The cherished prize was received.

It did not take long until other boys brought their snakes, and soon the natives could be convinced of their mistake and believed that there is but on God, who is in heaven.—Cheyenne and Arapaho Messenger.

SERMON SKETCH

THE FIRST CHRISTMAS SERVICE
Luke 2:8-20

Sent in by Rev. Homer Leisy, Dallas, Oregon

I. Place: Not in the temple, synagogue, but outdoors. Not under the glowing sun, but under the silent stars on the sleeping Judean hills.

II. Time: Although it was night, yet it was not dark for a great light "The Glory of the Lord shone round about them." Shekinah glory of old. Denoting God's presence, and lighted the place of the assembly.

III. The Congregation: "Shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flocks." A small, but poor and lowly (humble) group. Not gathered for worship, but faithful at their common duty; and thus accounted worthy of the highest privilege and richest blessing.

IV. The Messenger (Preacher): A notable one from a far off land, even the "angel of the Lord." We are not told of his appearance, nor where he stood, but we are told what he said.

V. The Message (Sermon): It was short—only 37 words, but every word was full of meaning. Someone has said a message to be immortal need not necessarily be eternal. (Preachers take note.) His message divides into 3 parts:

The first part: The preacher puts his hearers at ease. "Fear not." Arouses their interest. "Behold I bring you good tidings of Great Joy." Suggests a duty. "Which shall be to ALL people" . . . Publish it.

The second part: This is the heart of the message. "For unto you is born this day in the city of David, a Savior, which is Christ the Lord." The long line of prophecy concerning this event is now fulfilled. The King is born—the Savior is given. "IMMANUEL" (God manifest in the flesh).

This third part: By the way of confirmation and assurance. They need not rely wholly on the preacher's declaration, but they might GO AND SEE for themselves. For the babe was to be found in the city of David, wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

VI. The Choir: The sermon is preached, but the first Christmas service is not ended. "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men." The first note is a high one, struck in heaven "glory to God"; the second note is a low one, but very sweet to the mortal, "on earth, peace, good will toward men." The song, too, is brief, but complete, it reaches up to heaven and touches the heart of God, it reaches down to the earth and reaches the hearts of men, and causes both to throb in a common harmonious chord of Joy.

The Redeemer is come. The Sermon is preached. The Song is sung, the heavenly visitors are gone, but still the service is not yet over. A sermon is not ended till its truths have been received and wrought into life. A song is not ended till its hope has become fruition. As the truths of the sermon and song begin to work in the hearers' hearts, at length there is a stir and, as by one common impulse, they say one to another, "Let US go now even unto Bethlehem and SEE this thing which IS come to pass."

Their faith is rewarded for they "found"; and in turn "told" and "made known" the sayings abroad. Journey begun in FAITH ended in PRAISE, THANKSGIVING, and TESTIMONY.

The first service is ended, but the song and the sermon go on forever, and all that receive it "wonder," "glorify," and "praise" God for all they see and hear and find.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON
A. S. BECHTEL

January 14, 1939

THE PROBLEM OF FORGIVENESS

Matthew 18:21-35

Introduction

The problem of forgiveness is of very practical importance to each one of us. There are some aspects of it not so easy to define as regards theory and practice. We frequently use the word as meaning the giving up of any right we may have to compensation because of an offense against us or some unpaid obligation. This is the meaning in our lesson in verse 27. Christ is endeavoring to have us see an obligation which goes much deeper, which relates to our inward feelings. He requires forgiveness from the heart (v35).

Seeking Selfish Forgiveness, vs. 21-27

Peter's question—an exceedingly practical one—was often discussed by the rabbis and as a rule they taught that three times was ample. We all have to meet this problem, for some will offend repeatedly. Peter's suggestion 'till seven times', far surpassed the rabbis' teaching, and seemed very generous to him. It is considerably higher too than most of us usually go. Jesus, in His reply (v22) gave Peter and us to understand that there is no limit to the Christian's forgiveness. "He lifts the subject out of the legal sphere into the evangelic." Never cease forgiving. The Christian should have a forgiving spirit which will manifest itself when occasion requires. God forgives truly and freely whenever the sinner repents, so should we forgive our fellowmen.

The parable (vs. 23-27) emphasizes this gracious truth of God's forgiveness to the repentent one. We need never hesitate to seek His forgiveness when we come with a confessing and repentent heart. The offending servant evidently handled large amounts of his lord's money and misused much of it. When confronted with the evidence of his immense debt (v24), he prostrated himself before his lord and begged for mercy and his lord out of compassion forgave him his debt. The sum owed was so immense that payment was utterly hopeless. This is a picture of every sinner hopelessly in debt to God and nothing with which to pay (L. 7:42). So God has compassion and forgives our debt of sins.

Refusing Forgiveness to Another, vs. 28-35

The much-forgiven servant was utterly unmerciful toward a fellow-servant who owed to him a very small sum and turned a deaf ear to his plea and promise to pay (vs. 28-30). Many are harboring grudges over some petty offense, expecting much forgiveness from God, but unwilling to forgive others. If we truly accept God's forgiveness, we will show it by freely forgiving others. There is no mercy for those who show no mercy to others (v34). Forgiveness must come from the heart for when we deal with God, mere pretension will not answer.

Nature of Forgiveness

In the parable of our lesson, Jesus seems to presuppose the repentance of the offender as necessary to a full forgiveness (L. 17:3, 4) (vs. 26, 29). Webster defines forgiveness as ceasing to feel resentment toward an offender. Jesus teaches (Matt. 5:44) that holding resentment, desire for vengeance is wrong, sinful. A Christian may feel keenly the injustice, wrong done to him, the wickedness of the offender, and can not have confidence in him until he repents. Yet he can pray for him and from the heart wish to lead him to repentance and to God. Forgiveness is not complete if we keep on brooding over the fact that we have been wronged. We cannot expect God to hear our prayer for forgiveness, so long as we do not have the forgiving spirit in our hearts. "I will forgive, but I can not forget", means nothing more than "I will not forgive." When God forgives the repenting one, the past is dead. The past record is erased. God's forgiveenss is complete.

A NEW STANDARD OF GREATNESS

January 21, 1940

TOPIC: Greatness Through Sacrificial Service

Introduction

Jesus was on His last journey to Jerusalem at the close of the Perean ministry. On the way up from the Jordan valley, He took the disciples apart and for the third time told them about the things to befall Him in Jerusalem. His words were clear and distinct, but the ideas conveyed were so foreign to the disciples' thoughts that they could not grasp their significance.

The Self-Seeking Disciples vs 17-24

When we begin the new life, hid in Christ, we are and purpose of their Master. He is now speaking to them alone—"apart in the way"—and in much detail (vs 17-19), telling them of His coming and atoning death. But they, so much occupied with their selfish ambitions and hopes, gave small heed to what He said. How easily we fail to heed His words while engrossed in our petty thoughts. At this very inopportune moment, two of the best men among the twelve came, with their mother, with the request that they be given preference over the others. This request is a striking commentary upon the complete lack of understanding of the disciples, for it was based upon a conception of the kingdom which was the direct opposite of that which Jesus had been trying to have them understand. He was thinking of sacrifice for others, while they were seeking places of earthly glory and power.

Neither the mother nor the two sons understood the real nature of the request which was that of the typical political job-hunter of today. Jesus addressed His answer to the two disciples (vs 22, 23) for it in reality came from them. He told them plainly that they did not know the full implication of their request. With much self-confidence, they declared themselves equal to anything involved in the cup and the baptism (22). How like these men we are so often in our self-confidence. Doubtless the two did not understand Jesus' prophecy (v23). He teaches clearly that pre-eminence in His kingdom is not a matter of personal favor, but depends upon fitness and even the Father will not grant favors arbitrarily. The ten were as ambitious for the chief places and showed it by their indignation (v24) against James and John.

The Self Renouncing Master vs 24-28

Jesus dealt gently with the selfish disciples. "He called them unto Him"—His way of winning us from a lower to a higher spiritual level. The way of the world is to make a show of authority and use it, but among the disciples it is not to be so. Any one who wishes to be great in Christ's kingdom must be ready to take the place of a servant. Jesus himself gave up the highest glory and gave his life as a ransom for all sinners.

Greatness Through Sacrificial Service

Jesus' standard was new and revolutionary. Formerly greatness was estimated by riches, position and power. Jesus declared that the truly great minister to others instead of exercising a domineering spirit over them. Jesus standard is reasonable. It is based on the intrinsic worth of man. To promote man's welfare and happiness is greater than to rule over him. Jesus did this in an incomparable degree. The glory of Jesus' personality and of His life of self-denial, has made the same kind of life attractive to many. The challenge to do something that involves a worthy sacrifice, has a strong appeal. To the Christian, the merely selfish life, seems unworthy and useless.

He who serves others is greater than he who acquiries honors and possessions for himself.

SOUL ANCHORS.— In all ages there has been a tendency to drift away from the cardinal principles of righteousness. There is nothing new about the fact of the drift. It is as certain as the age-old drift of the Gulf Stream. To be caught in it, however, sooner or later, sweeps the soul to destruction.

It has been pointed out by a keen modern observer, that there is a drifting away in both belief and character. The eternal verities have been abandoned. Many are adrift upon a turbulent stream of doubt and agnosticism. The old moralities are questioned. Former vices are ridiculed. Character is shipwrecked.

Secure soul-anchores are needed today worse than ever before.

A basic belief in God is necessary. A hope in life everlasting that resists all the ridicule of science, and faith in the saving power of Jesus will steady many fearful hearts. The devotional reading of the Bible instead of critical analysis, the rekindling of the family altar, the cultivation of the Home Circle, the strict adherence to the best of family virtues, the revival of the art of friendship, will all prove to be effective anchors for the soul, when the swift torrent of temptation threatens to tear one loose from his moorings for the plunge into spiritual destruction.

A Good Word for the Mennonites

In a recent radio address, via the National Broadcasting Company, upon the topic "Religion in the News," Mr. Wm. Thompson Hanzsche who substituted for Walter W. Van Kirk closed with the following:

Down in the center of the great state of Pennsylvania, around Lancaster, is as lovely and beautiful a farm country as the traveler wants to see—fertile fields, spotless lawns, well-painted houses and barns, white-washed fences. Many of these farmers are Mennonites, whose women wear simple dresses and bonnets, whose apple-cheeked, clear-eyed, bearded men dress in dark, high-buttoned coats. Religiously their descent is Swiss, but they are all of German, that is, "Pennsylvania Dutch" stock, deeply religious, and minding their own business. They have no desire to be citified, ultra-modern, sophisticated, but they believe they can worship God best when they live near the soil. Like the seers of old, their night lights are the stars. Well, the sect has grown in numbers, and again, like the prophets of the Old Testament, they believe that every man should have his own vine and fig tree, so not having enough land for their children to farm, last week the Amish fold overflowed Pennsylvania and bought 1,950 acres of cheap land in Maryland—just 40 miles from Washington. They want to see what can be done with cheap land—but they did not borrow to get it, or demand that it be given them by the government or by the wealthy, not they, they paid considerably more than $25,000 cash for it. They want to see what can be done with cheap land for themselves and the Church. To use a slang expression about our Amish friends: "Brothers, you have got something there." Back to the land and back to God—what a slogan that would make for some of our new-fangled Youth organizations.

—Dr. H. A. Fast, Field Secretary, to Attend Conference on Peace Time Service.—At the request of the General Conference and the Western District Conference Peace Committees the Gen. Conference Executive Committee has consented to release Bro. Fast about five weeks to attend a conference or institute on Peace Time Service to be held at Pendle Hill, Pa., January 9 to February 8, 1940. These Pendle Hill Service Units, sponsored by the Friends, "bring together people from various parts of our country to try to work out procedures for conscientious objectors, gain ideas for organizing local pacifist units, and steady the spirit of the participants for their task of leadership." Members of the Friends Service of Committee, at a meeting held in Newton some time ago, explained the work of these service units to members of the Executive Committee and other brothers and invited us Mennonites to join. Brother Fast's participation in the Pendle Hill training unit will bring us first hand information on this work and may eventually lead us into it.

CORRESPONDENCE

BETHANY BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,
MUNICH, N. DAK. Dec. 1, 1939.

Dear Friends of the Bible: "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of truth." II Tim. 2:15.

Our Bible School has opened its doors the second year. Many of you will remember that this school was in our neighboring town, Alsen, last school term. Since the majority of students were from the Munich community, the request was made to the school board to move the school from Alsen to Munich. We asked the Lord to lead, and He opened the doors in a wonderful way.

During the winter of 1938-39 we as students have experienced the value of having the opportunity of attending a Bible School in our own community. We often look back and recall the many blessings we received in the study of the precious Word of God. Our dear instructor, Rev. J. B. Epp, led us to many a truth which was hidden in the Word of God. May the Lord richly reward him for the sacrifices which he made for us. Even though our school closed in March, we as a group of students went out into the various communities and churches and gave programs in the interest of our Bible School.

During the summer Rev. Epp informed us that he would not be able to resume his duties as instructor due to his health. Now our school board was confronted with the great problem of getting an instructor for the coming school term. But there is One Who knows what is best at all times, and Who can solve all problems no matter how difficult. So this was made a special object of prayer that the Lord might send us a teacher who would whole-heartedly take up this work, and He has wonderfully answered our prayers in giving us a consecrated teacher in Rev. Edwin F. Walter from Freeman, South Dakota, a recent graduate of the Moody Bible Institute. We are very thankful for him and for what he has already sacrificed for us.

The school is now in a suitable building where the teacher and his family live on the second floor, and the school rooms are on the first floor, which is very convenient for him. When the Lord led in this manner, it was decided that the school would be in Munich for this term.

The opening program was given in the Munich Church, on Oct. 29, and on Monday, the 30th, the school opened for the second year of Bible training. Yes, the Lord has wonderfully provided for everything. Praise His Name! There are 22 students this year, 12 of whom are second year students. Rev. Walter has arranged everythnig so that our school is fully accredited from now on. Therefore, a definite name had to be chosen. The school board together with our instructor selected "Bethany Bible Training School" as the name. It was also decided that this school will give a three-year course. The course for this year is as follows: Doctrine—of God, Jesus Christ, and the Holy Spirit.—Synthesis—Genesis to Song of Solomon. — S. S. Administration. — Personal Evangelism I and II.—Child Study.—Analysis of the Book of Revelation.—Bible Story Telling.—Homiletics I.—Bible Reading.—Church History.—General Chorus.—Missions.—Bible Geography.

The students have charge of the devotions every morning, except on Friday when the teacher invites a minister or other Christian worker to lead us. The last half hour of each day we gather for prayer for foreign and home missionary work. Every Thursday evening our school has a fellowship meeting in which everyone interested may take part, outsiders as well as students. Every Wednesday evening a group of us young men students and our instructor go out to the neighboring towns and communities to sing and speak words of comfort and cheer to the aged, bereaved and sick. The Lord has already richly blessed us in this work. Our prayer is that we as a student body may continue to be a blessing to others.

A Student—Alfred T. Eitzen, Corr.

HEREFORD CHURCH, BALLY, PA., 1-1-1940.

Greetings: The Hereford Mennonite Church, Bally, Penn., is still on the map. We conducted a successful Daily Vacation School during the past summer with a record attendance of 86 for a rural church. This was under the leadership of Paul R. Shelly and five additional teachers.

Since Paul Shelly could not go to Scotland for further study as he had planned, he accepted the charge of the First Congregational Church in Aberdeen, Washington, and because of this he was very effectively ordained on Saturday evening, September 30th. Dr. Elmer E. S. Johnson, our pastor, had charge of the services.

The Primary Department of ourc hurch rendered a splendid Christmas program on Sunday morning, December 24th, while the Intermediate Department rendered the pageant "Watchers on the Hills" on Christmas night.

Now the end of the year has been reached and we must not forget our religious and civic obligations as we enter the New Year. With this spirit we can go forward for greater things in our church and community.

—Rev. and Mrs. Jacob Wiebe of Beatrice, Nebr., celebrated their silver wedding on Sunday afternoon, October 31 in an informal way at the Y.W.C.A. rooms. The congregation and friends were cordially invited to participate, and honored the couple through their numerous presence and felicitations.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, NEWTON, KS.

Dear Editor and Readers: A very happy, blessed and successful New Year I wish you all in 1940.

On December 3, our pastor, Rev. J. E. Entz preached on Haggai 2:7. In the evening the Sunbeam-Juniors had Miss Jessie Brown from China for a guest-speaker. The Senior C. E. had a special Advent program.—Tuesday the Bethel S. S. class had a Candle Light service program at the home of Mrs. A. J. Harms. On December 17 at 4:30 p.m. we had a Senior C. E. vesper service. Tuesday the Mission Study Circle had its Christmas Program and birthday celebration.—Sunday, Dec. 24, at 4:00 p.m. the rendition of the Christmas Cantata: "The Coming of the King", by the combined choirs took place. At 7:00 the Young People's C. E. gave an interesting Christmas program.—Monday, Dec. 25, Christmas Day, Rev. J. N. Smucker of the Bethel College Church, brought us the message. In the evening we had our annual S. S. Christmas program. Sunday, Dec. 31, Dr. Warkentin preached a very solemn New Year's Eve sermon, closing with a prayer meeting.—Since this is my last correspondence, I wish you all God's blessing for the future.

Your old correspondent, C. van der Smissen.

A Test of Power

To the meeting of workingmen Gladstone in his old age made the following appeal:

"The true test of a man, the true test of a class, and the true test of a pepople, is POWER. It is a small thing as long as he has not power, as long as temptation is kept out of his way, that he should be tolerably just in his judgments; but it is when power has come into his hands that his trial comes.

"You will have temptation near you; you, the laboring people of this country, when you become supreme to such a degree that there is no other power to balance and counteract the power which you posses. You have approaching you a deep and searching moral trial; you have to preserve the balance of your mind and character, when you have become stronger than the capitalists, than the peerage, stronger than the lauded gentry; stronger than the great mercantile class, when you have become in one sense their political master, you have still before you one achievement to fulfill, one glory to attain and appropriate to yourself—continue to be just.

"I venture to give that warning for the future; it applies to the coming days more than to the days that are past, and I hope that the mass of this meeting will live into those days in increasing prosperity and happiness, and if they do so, I am sure they will remember with kindliness what was at all events a well-meant suggestion." —The Pastor's Helper, Burrton Mennonite Church.

EDITORIAL
STAFF
Senior Department
R. Weinbrenner
Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers
Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

THINKING OF THE LIFE AHEAD

In the light of the life of Jesus, the coming of every New Year should be a challenge and a reminder for us of the quantity or number of years of which our life may partake.

The poet truly speaks with deep insight when he says:

We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths;
In feelings, not in figures on the dial.
We should count time by heart-throbs when they beat
For God, for man, for duty. He most lives
Who thinks most, feels noblest, acts the best.
Life is but a means unto an end—that end
Beginning, mean, and end to all things, God.

It is the quality of life and not the quantity or length of life which determines our nearness to God. Were this not so, then the beginning of every New Year would be a period of sadness for those whose remaining years on this earth are rapidly diminishing.

Were the worth of life to be judged by its length in years, then the life of Jesus upon this earth would have been rather insignificant. A short thirty-three years! A short three years of active ministry to men! But those short three years were so packed full with significant and saving events that eternity shall never exhaust them. O what quality of life and death in that short span of time. We are prone to approach time and life in a quantitative way, but Jesus approached it in a qualitative way.—R. W.

Senior Department

PRAYER AND BIBLE READING

Senior C. E. Topic for Jan. 21, 1940

Main Topic: What it Means to Pray and Read the Bible. Ps. 119:11-16; 1 Jn. 5:13-15.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Take Time to be Holy", "More Holiness Give Me", "Sweet Hour of Prayer"
2. Reading of main topic and prayer
3. Special music
4. Offering

II. Leader's Introduction

The prayers of one who links his petitions with the verses of the Bible acquires a rich variety, and the soul is drawn upward and purified at every step. By such a method the soul first lets God speak through his word and God's word suggests the response which he should, in prayer, make to God.

George Muller, that giant of faith and prayer, declares that that was his method of prayer. He says that for years he found that about half an hour would be consumed by him in trying to get his mind disentangled from earthly affairs and moving in the atmosphere of prayer. Often he was puzzled as to what he ought to pray for, but when he hit upon the method of letting the Bible suggest and shape his praying, he found himself in a new world of devotion.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. One of many answered prayers. Acts 12:5-11.
2. Listening to Jehovah. Ps. 85:7-9.
3. Benefits of God's law. Ps. 19:7-11.
4. Faith and hearing. Rom. 10:13-17.
5. Assurance of answered prayer. Isa. 65:24.

IV. For Discussion

Suppose a person does not feel like praying? How can he awaken the desire for prayer? Suppose that he desires to pray, what shall he pray about? Suppose that he is not in a proper spiritual frame for prayer? How can he get in the proper frame and how can he bring about the other attainments mentioned above?

V. For Study

The Bible comes to our aid. It is the match that will kindle the fire. It is the ladder up which our soul can climb in prayer. It will help to create the best atmosphere for the soul's praying. It will suggest the objects for which we ought to pray. Well does Mr. Spurgeon, in one of his sermons, say, "When the high priest went into the holy place he always lit the golden candlestick before he kindled the incense upon the brazen altar, as if to show that the mind must be illuminated before the affections can properly rise toward their divine object. There must be knowledge of God, before there can be love to God."

In other words, before the incense of our prayers can properly rise to the throne of grace, there must fall upon our pathway the light that comes from the Scriptures.

One of the richest benefits which come from Bible reading is the help which it gives us in praying.

VI. Illustrations

PROVED.—An old man was visited by his minister. He was held fast to his chair by rheumatism, but had his Bible open in front of him. The minister noticed that the word "Proved" was written often along the margin. He looked and found "God is our refuge, a present help in trouble" and on the margin, "Proved." And so it went on through the Book. The dear old man had taken God's Book and had written his own experience on the margin. Against each promise as he had found it come true in his own life he had written "Proved."—S. S. Times.

UNDERSTANDING THE WORD.—Luther says he studied the Bible as he gathered apples; first he shook the whole tree, then climbed the tree and shook each limb, then each branch, then every twig, and looked under each leaf. Let us search the Bible as a whole; shake the whole tree, read it rapidly; then shake every limb, studying book after book; then every branch, giving attention to chapters, when they do not break the sense; then every twig by careful study of the paragraphs and sentences. You will also be rewarded if you look under every leaf and search the meaning of its words.

VII. Food for Thought

If prayer means anything, it means that God can make his wishes known to man. Dr. S. K. Mosiman.

ENDEAVORING FOR CHRIST

Senior C. E. Topic for January 28, 1940

Main Topic: What it Means to Endeavor for Christ

Heb. 6:11, 12

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Just as I Am," "Thy Word is a Lamp to My Feet," "What a Blessedness, What a Peace Divine."
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer
3. Special music, "I am listening"
4. Offering for missionary project.

II. Leader's Introduction

The third important declaration in the Christian Endeavor pledge usually embraces this promise: "I will pray and read the Bible." Sometimes the words, "every day," are included in the clause. Endeavorers thus are committed to the practice of private devotions.

We need strength at the beginning of the day. It is a good practice to spend some time early in the morning in Bible reading, prayer and meditation. It will make your day "different." You will then come to it not only rested and refreshed bodily, but also spiritually. Luther got up at 4 o'clock in the morning if he had a day with lots of work ahead of him, spending an extra amount of time in Bible reading and prayer, that he might be able to do the day's work well.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. Working and salvation, Phil. 2:12-16.
2. The prayer Jesus taught his disciples, Mt. 6:9-13.
3. Enlightened and inspired, Lk. 24:25-32.
4. Endeavoring to be righteous, Titus 2:11-14.

IV. Facts for Study.

America's material needs at this time may be great, but her spiritual needs are greater. We need to draw near to God, so that he may speak to us through his word, and through his Spirit. Bible reading and prayer takes time but it is time well spent.

To create an interest in Bible reading, why not agree to read a certain book of the Bible during a given period of time, and then have a question box at the next Endeavor meeting on this book.

To create an interest in prayer, study the prayer life of Jesus, Paul, John Knox, Moody and others.

To create an interest in endeavoring for Christ study the mission field.

V. For Discussion:

What did Jesus teach about prayer?

What and who did Jess pray for?

What did Jesus aim at in his work?

What are the most important things we need to pray and work for?

Does Bible reading help us in our prayer life?

Does Bible reading help us in working for Christ?

VI. Illustrations

Living up to Family prayers: A mistress asked her new maid whether she had any objections to family prayers, which the servants were expected to attend each morning.

"Not if you live up to them, ma'am," was the girl's quiet reply.

The following is taken from the July, 1933, Teachers New Century Leader, published by David C. Cook Publ. Co.

A Bible reading campaign, begun as an experiment in Fargo, North Dakota, several years ago, has grown to include the entire state, with approximately 15,000 children participating.

The purpose of the campaign was to stimulate the reading of the Bible among children and young people between the ages of nine and twenty, with the hope that they might become more familiar with the Bible narratives, learn something of the great Bible characters, and grasp something of the religious ideas and ideals set forth.

Lists of sixty Bible passages were prepared in printed form by the state council, and placed in the hands of each pupil. The Bible reading was to be done at home, although the Sunday-school teacher was urged to create interest by devoting a few minutes to questions and assignments at the opening of the class period.

Certificates of completion are issued by the North Dakota Council of Christian Education to the pupils making a grade of seventy-five per cent or more in the examination. The questions are sent to the superintendent of each Sunday-school who gives the examination during a class period. Teachers grade the papers and send all those graded seventy-five per cent or more to the county manager for rechecking.

The North Dakota Council recommends that Sunday schools keep an honor roll of those who complete assignments of certain readings on time and that the superintendent ask members of older classes to do the reading for their own personal benefit, even though they are not eligible for certificates. The council points out further that the notes to parents have proved valuable in making contacts with the homes and have resulted, in a number of instances, in the practice of family worship.

Will Bible Reading bring about better Christian living?

VII. Food for Thought.

"I met God in the morning
When my day was at its best
And his presence came like sunrise
Like a glory in my breast.

All day long his presence lingered
All day long He stayed with me
And we sailed in perfect calmness
O'er a very troubled sea.

Other ships were blown and battered,
Other ships were sore distressed;
But the winds that seemed to drive them
Brought to us sweet peace and rest.

Then I thought of other mornings
With a keen remorse of mind
When I too had left the moorings
With the presence left behind.

And I think I know the secret
Learnt from many a troubled way,
You must seek Him in the morning
If you want Him through the day."

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

Program for January 28, 1940

MY PASTOR AND MY CHURCH

For Daily Reading:

Jan. 22. Love for pastors. I Thess. 5:12, 13.
Jan. 23. Obey the leaders. Heb. 13:17.
Jan. 24. Follow their example. Phil. 4:9.
Jan. 25. Lessons from past leaders. Heb. 13:7.
Jan. 26. Giving for the church. Acts 4:34, 35.
Jan. 27. Prayer-meetings. Acts 4:23-31.
Jan. 28. Topic. Eph. 5:27; Rom. 10:13-15; Ps. 111:1-4.

(Beginning Christian Endeavor Week. Denominational Day.)

Advance preparation for the meeting: Be sure your Pastor is invited to this meeting. Plan your meeting as an honor to him. Tell him in advance that you want him to tell the members why he became a minister. Ask your Pastor's wife to tell of the special privileges she enjoys as a minister's wife.

If possible, have a conference officer come and acquaint you with the qualifications of a minister.

Instrumental prelude: "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord."

Opening Hymn "The Church's One Foundation."

Scripture Reading—Eph. 5:27; Rom. 10:13-15; Ps. 111:1-4.

Prayer by Superintendent

Vocal Quartet—"Church in the Wildwood."

The Church

1. Whose church is the church you attend?

II. Should we as young people feel ourselves partially responsible for the success of the church?

III. Can we take an active part in the working of the church if we do not understand the principles and problems of the church?

IV. Are not the young people of the church destined to become the pillars of the future church? Should they then not become vitally interested in the church as early as possible?

V. Are the young people in your church able to work effectively with the older people?

Hymn: "O Master, Let me walk with Thee."

The Pastor

I. Are we doing all we can to help our pastor?

II. Does your pastor feel free to call upon the Intermediates to help him?

III. Name ways by which we can show our loyalty to our pastor.

IV. Read Hebrews 13:17; Heb. 13:7.

Talk by your Pastor

Talk by a conference officer as to qualifications for the ministry.

Song: "I Would Be True."

Offering

Sentence Prayers by many who are present. Ask some to be ready previous to the meeting. This will prove an especial blessing to the pastor.

I venerate the man whose heart is warm,
Whose hands are pure, whose doctrine and whose life
Coincident exhibit proof
That he is honest in the sacred cause.
—Goldsmith.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

"SIR, WE WOULD SEE JESUS" - John 12:21b

Program for January 21, 1940

Seeing Jesus on the Way to the Cross. "He stedfastly set His face to go to Jerusalem." Luke 9:51b.

I. Worship Period.

1. Prelude, "Fairest Lord Jesus"
2. Call to Worship. "O Sing unto the Lord a new song: sing unto the Lord all the earth. Sing unto the Lord, bless his name; shew forth his salvation from day to day."
3. Song in unison, "Jesus is All the World to Me"
4. Sentence Prayers. Everyone taking part.
5. Scripture. A Junior boy reading Mark 10:32-34.
6. Leader's Prayer
7. Read, "O Sacred Head Now Wounded", v 1, 2, 3, Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 111 while the melody is played very softly on the piano. If possible have a violin obligato with this.

II. Study Period. Aim: To help our Juniors see Christ's fearlessness and loving thoughtfulness as He nears the Cross.

1. Leader's Introduction. Jesus came into this world because He loved us and wanted to save us. He was the "Lamb of God" who bore our sins, and so He knew that He would be crucified, but He was willing to die that we might live.
2. Three juniors read Christ's three announcements of His crucifixion. (a) Matthew 16:21; Mark 8:31; Luke 9:22; (b) Matthew 17:22; Mark 9:30; Luke 9:44; (c) Matthew 20:17; Mark 10:32; Luke 18:31-34.
3. Song in unison, "Love Divine, all Love Excelling"
4. Jesus comforted His disciples who were sad, John 14:1-6. By a Junior girl.
5. Jesus prayer for His disciples, John 14:6-19, by a Junior boy.
6. Jesus cleanses the Temple. Mark 11:15-18. By a Junior girl.
7. Memory verse in unison, John 3:16.
8. Boy's chorus, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross"
9. Pastor's talk to the Juniors.
10. Song in unison, "Jesus is All the World to Me"

III. Mission Minutes.

1. Leader brings to Juniors attention, in a few words, the need of those in heathen lands of a loving Saviour. 2. Poem, by a Junior girl.

"Come Over and Help Us"

"Come over and help us," they pleadingly say.
These people who know not our God.
Oh, who then is ready and waiting today
To carry the good news abroad?
Their souls are as dear to the Lord as our own,
His love reaches out unto all,
And we, who His wonderful goodness have known,
Should answer their pitiful call.
We'll hasten to heed their sad pleading today,
Our prayers and our offerings we'll send,
That the boys and the girls of these heathen lands
May learn to know and love Jesus, their Friend.

3. Mission Offering

IV. Closing Moments:

1. A short season of silent prayer, soft piano music.
2. Leader's closing prayer
3. Song, sung very softly twice, "Into My Heart"

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. ANNA SUTER, daughter of John F. and Kathryn (Neuenschwander) Suter, was born on March 23, 1855, and died December 7, 1939, aged 84 years, 8 months, and 14 days. She was the youngest of twelve children and the last surviving member of her family. In 1873 she was baptized by Rev. John Moser on confession of faith in the Lord Jesus Christ as her personal Savior and received into the Swiss Mennonite Church. She lived in harmony with this faith until her departure and so met death with a quiet resignation saying, "As the Lord wills."

She was married to Ulrich Bucher on November 10th, 1873. To this union were born two sons, Noah Bucher and Philip. On February 6th, 1880, her husband died after less than 7 years of married life. On July 29th, 1884, she was married a second time, this time to John A. Suter. To this union were born, one son and two daughters. This husband died on August 18, 1935, thus preceding her in death by more than four years. She was always an interested and active member of the church. At one time she was the appointed "Armenpflegerin" of the church and was always an active member of the Missionary Society of the church.

During the past year she frequently felt the pains of rheumatism. Her death was the indirect result of a fall in which she injured her hip just two months preceding her death. Since that time she was confined to her bed until the Lord released her from her suffering to usher her into her eternal home.

She leaves to mourn her departure the following sons and daughters; Noah Bucher, Lima, Ohio, Hiram Suter, Lima, Ohio, Mrs. Rosa Tillman Geiger, Pandora, Ohio, and Mrs. (Edna) David Schumacher, Pandora, Ohio. Besides these there are 12 grandchildren, 6 great grand-children, a number of nieces and nephews and many friends who mourn her passing. One son, Mr. Philip Bucher preceded her in death about 7 years ago. Funeral services were conducted by the pastor, on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 10th, who used her favorite psalm, Psalm 121, as the basis of message of comfort and inspiration. A ladies' quartette sang two German songs, "Gehe nicht vorbei O Heiland," "Licht nach dem Dunkel," and one English number "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." A Boy's High School quartette sang "The Old Rugged Cross." Interment was made in the adjoining cemetery of the St. John Church.

* * *

MOTHER SARAH SCHMIDT, nee VOTH, was born in the village Alexanderwohl, South Russia, January 4, 1862. At the age of 10 she emigrated with her parents David Voths to the United States of N. A. At Newton, Kansas, they made a temporary home until the farm home in Marion Co. was ready. It took just 100 days to make the change from Russia to this new home in the U. S. A. As there were no public schools in those early days, Rev. Heinrich Banman opened a school in his home, which mother attended. The pioneer life was hard, due to poverty. The help of strong men was much needed and, as she was bodily strong, she had to do work in the field, which she gladly did. Since she was of a quiet nature, she carried the many adverse experiences in life bravely.—She was baptized in 1881 by Elder Jacob Buller and joined the Alexanderwohl Mennonite Church, where she was a member in good standing at the time of her death. On March 9, 1882, she was married to Peter A. Schmidt. To this union were born 9 sons and 4 daughters. Thirty-three grandchildren and five greatgrandchildren survive her.

On July 8, 1938, she suffered a stroke from which she never fully recovered. On Dec. 5, 1939, she became seriously ill with pneumonia. This was too much for her weak constitution, and on Dec. 27, at 10 p.m. she went to be at home with the Lord, at the age of 76 years, 11 months and 22 days.—She was very happy to go to her Redeemer. Some time ago when she was very anxious to have the assurance that Jesus still remembered her, He suddenly stood before her, but when she stretched her hands toward Him He vanished. Now she had full confidence that she was accepted and in this faith she went home.—She leaves to mourn her departure: Mr. and Mrs. Wilhelm P. Schmidt; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel V. Schmidt; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schmidt; Mrs. Agnes and Mrs. P. M. Schroeder; Mrs. Margaret and Mr. Arthur Bergman; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schmidt; Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Schmidt; Mr. and Mrs. John Schmidt; 3 brothers, 2 sisters and many friends. Speakers at the funeral were: Rev. C. C. Wedel, on Rom. 6:23, and Rev. P. H. Unruh, on Heb. 11:4.

* * *

MARCUS A. BEUTLER, son of Jacob and Katie Dahlem Beutler, was born on a farm near Trenton, Ill., on July 9, 1878, and passed away at his home two miles south of Summerfield on December 4, 1939, at the age of 61 years, 4 months, and 25 days.

On October 1, 1893, he was baptized and received into the fellowship of the Mennonite church at Summerfield. On April 26, 1911, he was united in marriage with Katie Schmidt. This union was blessed with four daughters all of whom are still living.

For about two years Brother Beutler was afflicted with pernicious anaemia, but he bore his affliction with patience.—He leaves to mourn his departure his widow, four daughters, a son-in-law and grandchild; five sisters and two brothers, and many other relatives and friends.

The funeral services were held at the Mennonite church at Summerfield on Wednesday afternoon, December 6, conducted by the pastor of the church. Interment was made in the Lebanon cemetery.—Elmer Basinger.

D. GERHARD DYCK, son of Johann and Margareta Dyck was born at Rosengarten, West Prussia, Germany, March 1, 1853. As a youth he learned the hardware business at Elbing, Germany. In 1870 he came to America finding temporary employment in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago.

His mother advised him to "go west" which he said was the best advise ever given him. He then came to Halstead, Kansas, where he started as a painter, then went into partnership with Henry von Riesen in the grocery business which was later changed to the hardware business of Riesen & Dyck. He retired in 1911 leaving his business to his son, Albert G. Dyck.

He was baptized upon his confession of faith, June 7, 1869, and received into the Mennonite church. In 1885, he joined the Halstead Mennonite church by letter, where he remained a member until his death.

He was joined in holy matrimony to Marie Nieman, Oct. 11, 1885. This union was blessed with three children, Marie who died in infancy, Albert and Anna. His wife died January 1, 1930.

Mr. Dyck had been ill only a short time, and was taken to the Halstead hospital last Friday. He passed away Sunday, at the age of 86. He is survived by his two children Albert G. Dyck and Mrs. Anna Dyck Hilke, one sister, Bertha, of Elbing, Germany.

Funeral services were held at the Mennonite Church, Rev. David Wedel officiating. Interment in the family lot at the Halstead cemetery.

A BETTER SONG

These words were written to satisfy my own needs to supplement the words we already have to that old German air, now, "God Save the King" and "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

God help our world today,
Save from the dreaded sway
Of hate and strife.
Dwellers in every land,
Let us the whole world span,
With love that knows no ban,
The love of Christ.

Of every land and creed,
His way of life we plead
To end our plight.
Although our sight be dim,
We still will follow Him,
Through love our world to win
To peace and light.

This is the pledge of my own heart and I know it speaks for thousands of us the world around. If we have known the discipline of replacing fear and hate with Love in our own personal lives, near at hand, we shall be able to keep that Way now.

—Ruth C. Slade, 3978 Drexel Blvd, Chicago.

« « JOTTINGS » »

—St. John Menn. Church, Pandora, Ohio.—A group of seventy-seven young people of our church, and their friends met at the High School Cafeteria for their Annual Fellowship Supper. A good program had been prepared by the several committees and everyone enjoyed the evening. Mr. Elmer W. Baumgartner, of Berne, Indiana, brought a very helpful and challenging message on the subject "GO YE."

—"THROUGH THE BIBLE."—A new and unique method of chapter by chapter Bible Study, arranged by Harlan J. Roper, will be started in the New Year. One lesson covers from one to three chapters and has questions, comments, references and also a blank page for notes. The books cover a period of three months, and cost only 10c.—From Bulletin of Swamp Church, Quakertown.

—Rev. J. N. Smucker of the Bethel College Church preached for the First Menn. Church, Newton, on Christmas Day, using the word "Immanual" (God with us) as a text. He showed how wonderful God is in his omnipotence, how sinful we (us) are and yearn for the power of God to get rid of our sinful nature; how Christ unites God and us through with, i.e. how He bestows upon us the power from God. The sermon did not quite last 20 minutes.—Der Herold.

—Brother Willie Voran of Garden Township church, Kansas, has been appointed by the Ex. Committee of the Western District C. E. as chairman of a committee which is to boost subscriptions for our church papers, speed up action on missions, C. E. standards, follow-up, retreat and Swift Current Project. In this connection chairman Voran says: "Appoint someone or a committee to go to each family in the church with samples of the church papers. Take their subscriptions or renewals. The system works. We used it successfully in our Church."—We say, Amen!—By doing this Bro. Voran has worked up an almost hundred per cent subscription list in his church.—Editor.

—War Prisoners Better Taken Care of.—Under a Geneva treaty of 1929 by a number of nations, special duties were given "protecting powers," such as the United States, to examine prison camps. American representatives who have interviewed Tommies and Poilus in German camps have reported to the State Dept. that prisoners are given food and clothing equal to that furnished troops at base camps.

—Speaking of Christmas, it is the season of gift giving and gift receiving. How strange it would seem if one should refuse a Christmas gift presented to him! God's great Christmas Gift to men is His own Son, Jesus. But this Gift too often finds no room in the hearts of men. How tragic is a Christmas without Christ! Have you received this UNSPEAKABLE GIFT? Have you thanked God for Christ?—E. W.

A PERTINENT QUESTION

Every person in a community wants to see the church kept going. But so many want someone else to do the attending and the work and the paying. Ask yourself this question this morning: If every member of this church gave as much time and money to the work of God as I do, could the church do more or would it have to do even less? It seems to be such an easy thing to take the time and money for a family to see a show on Saturday night; but such a hard thing to take an equal amount of time and money and give it to the church.—Bulletin, Sugar Creek Ch.

—The Quakertown Community Oratorio Society, Pa. rendered Handel's "The Messiah" at the town's high school auditorium on the afternoon of Sunday, Dec. 3 and on Wednesday evening, Dec. 6. The rendition was sponsored by the Quakertown Ministerial Association, of which our Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander is president. About 125 singers participated.

—The Duerksen Automobile Coming.—It is reported that the Alexanderwohl and Goessel churches in Kansas have collected over $700 toward the purchase of a new automobile for Missionary J. R. Duerksen in India, to make his extensive travels easier and pleasanter.

—Bluffton College.—Miss Edna Ramseyer, home economics instructor, has been offered a position with the Friends Service Committee in France doing relief work in a colony of Spanish refugee children.—For the thirty-seventh time the College Choral Society has rendered Handel's "Messiah", during the holidays, this time in the Bluffton high school gymnasium. A thirty peace orchestra and a chorus of 175 singers took part.

—First Church, Reedley, Calif., from Pastor's Meditation in Dec. 24, Bulletin: "Sometimes one wonders whether it is not through suffering that one can really learn to understand the depths of joy which God has had in mind for His children. Knowing how much He has suffered for us makes it easier for us to understand His sympathy which means so much in times of pain and distress. It also helps us to be more sympathetic toward those who lack something, whether that be food, clothing, health, or any of the other unnumbered needs with which humanity is faced all of the time."

—Annual Sunday School Convention at Mt. Lake, Minn. On January 1 the Mennonite Churches in and near Mt. Lake, Minn. again held their annual S. S. meeting. The program for the afternoon was all in German, with the main theme, "Die Notwendigkeit fuer mehr Begeisterung in der Sonntagschule," with subtopics, more enthusiasm on the part of parents, on the part of the pupils, on the part of the teachers. The evening program was in English with a thirty-minute talk by Orlando Hiebert upon the theme, "The Aim of the Sunday School."

—According to a news item in the Bluffton News, Mr. David Kliewer, a graduate of Wheaton College, and son of Rev. P. A. Kliewer, pastor of the Ebenezer Church near Bluffton, Ohio, has enlisted in the air force of the United States Navy. Throughout the country young men, and some women as well, are enlisting feeling that they receive valuable training and serving the country as well. The situation with our Mennonite young people, however, is somewhat different, they have a peace history of 400 years behind them which shows that their forefathers suffered persecution and even death rather than to have anything to do with the military machine. We need to instruct our young people in the Biblical fundamentals of peace and pray with them and for them that they might remain true to the Mennonite faith.—S. J. G.

—The First, Second and Germantown Mennonite churches in Philadelphia celebrated Union Watchnight Service Sunday night, Dec. 31 at the Second Church beginning at 10:00 P.M. A program of hymn singing, spontaneous Bible verses, season of prayer, special music, etc. was found to be enjoyable and spiritually helpful.

W. D. C. HOME MISSION COMMITTEE
Receipts in December

General Conf. H. M. B., J. J. Plenert, $25; Bergtal Ch., C. E. Nickel, $27; Mennoville Ch., Mrs. O. C. Wehmueller, $8.92; Medford Ch., P. W. Friesen, $20.16; Grace Menn. Ch., A. T. Mueller, $24.78; Ebenfeld Ch., Hy Friesen, $3.59; Buhler Menn. Ch., J. B. Regier, $31.98; Pleasant Valley Menn. Ch., David H. Koehn, $10.51; Lehigh Menn. Ch., D. J. Auernheimer, $4.72; First Menn. Ch., of Christian, Moundridge, Kans., John E. Goering, $78; Hebron Ch., C. Plett, $16.54; Garden Twp. Ch., Paul E. Vogt, $26; Emmanuel Menn. Ch., Fred C. Wedel, $27.60; West Zion Menn. Ch., Fred D. Meyer, $27; Ransom Menn. Ch., Elmer Huxman, $120; Saron, Menn. Ch., Christian Endeavor, Mrs. Otto Ratzlaff, $13.77; Sychar Ch., H. S. Ratzlaff, $3.29; Burrton Menn. Ch., J. V. Regier, $2.47; First Menn. Ch., Hutchinson, Kans, J. M. Ediger, $6.01; Second Menn. Ch., Beatrice, Nebr., J. P. Jantzen, $15.43; Eden Ch. Inola, Okla., G. J. Voth, $23.12; Bethel Ch., Perryton, Tex., F. D. Koehn, $13.30; Hoffnungsau Ch., A. B. Reimer, $117.54; Emmaus Ch., Walter A. Claassen, $35.50; German Bible Class, Bethel College Ch., Helen Penner, $10; Ransom Menn. Ch., Elmer Huxman, $11.50; Rev. P. K. Regier's S. S. Class, West Zion Ch., for Wichita, Kans., P. K. Regier, $13.50. Total, $717.23.

Gratefully acknowledged, G. A. Linscheid, Treas.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA.

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHUCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Business Office, Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kans.
Editor .... J. R. Thierstein, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.50 .... Foreign, $2.00

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges, to J. R. THIERSTEIN, or the MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS.

Emergency Relief Fund - June-November 1939

Received for General Fund: Emmaus Menn. Ch., Whitewater, Kans., by W. A. Claassen, $46; First Menn. Ch., Mountain Lake, Minn., by H. T. Nickel, $36.42; Christian Menn. Ch., Moundridge, Kans., by J. B. Stucky, $67; First Menn. Ch., Upland, Calif., by G. E. Schmidt, $11.27; Bergthal Menn. Ch., Pawnee Rock, Kans., by H. C. Schultz, $9.53; Bethel S. S. Inman, Kans., by P. E. Kroeker, $27.94; Emmaus Menn. Ch., Whitewater, Kans., by W. A. Claassen, $19.21; Hoffnungsau Menn. Ch., Inman, Kans., by A. B. Reimer, $21.21; West Swamp Menn. Ch., Quakertown, Pa., by P. J. Boehr, $13; Grace Menn. Ch., Enid, Okla., by Mrs. F. K. Entz, $5; Bergthal Menn. Ch., Pawnee Rock, Kans., by H. C. Schultz, $16.05; Bruderthal Menn. Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., by F. N. Funk, $12.62; Christian Menn. Ch., Moundridge, Kans., by J. B. Stucky, $71; Herold Menn. Ch., Cordell, Okla., by J. A. Harms, $8.55; Bethel College Menn. Ch., N. Newton, Kans., by Helen Penner, $13.27; Bergthal Menn. Ch., Pawnee Rock, Kans., by H. C. Schultz, $12.07.

Bruderthal Menn. Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., by F. N. Funk, $11.60; Hoffnungsau Menn. Ch., Inman, Kans., J. B. Reimer, $16.54; Goessel Menn. Ch., Goessel, Kans., by I. B. Fast, $17.25; Emmaus Menn. Ch., Whitewater, Kans., by W. A. Claassen, $30.75; First Menn. Ch., Aberdeen, Idaho by I. J. Wenger, $24.34; Bethel Menn. Ch., Fortuna, Mo., by S. J. Moser, $6.14; Christian Menn. Ch., Moundridge, Kans., by J. B. Stucky, $71.00; First Menn. Ch., Mt. Lake, Minn., by H. T. Nickel, $34.88; J. H. Krehbiel, Moundridge, Kans., $50; Emmaus Menn. Ch., Whitewater, Kans., by W. A. Claassen, $44.24; Christian Menn. Ch., Moundridge, Kans., by J. B. Stucky, $75; Bergthal Menn. Ch., Pawnee Rock, Kans., by H. C. Schultz, $12.40; Bruderthal Menn. Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., by F. N. Funk, $8.70; Bethel S. S., Inman, Kans., by P. E. Kroeker, $41.37.

First Menn. Ch., Upland, Calif., by G. E. Schmidt, $18.62; First Menn. Ch., Reedley, Calif., by R. H. Ruth, $29.83; West Swamp Menn. Ch., Quakertown, Pa.. Menno Moyer, $11.90; Emmaus Menn. Ch., Whitewater, Kans., by W. A. Claassen, $40.90; Christian Mennn. Ch., Moundridge, Kans., by J. B. Stucky, $74; Zion Menn. Ch., Elbing, Kans., by H. R. Regier, $61.83; MCC Int., $17.50; MCC Int., $10; Menn. S. S., Wisner, Nebr., by Wm. R. Leisy, $10; Bethel Menn. Ch., Fortuna, Mo., by S. J. Moser, $10.57; First Menn. Ch., Mountain Lake, Minn., by H. T. Nickel, $33.47; Goessel Menn. Ch., Goessel, Kans., by I. B. Fast, $10.40; Inman Menn. Ch., Inman, Kans., by C. J. Froese, $13.69; First Menn. Ch., Aberdeen, Idaho, by I. J. Wenger, $38.62; First Menn. Ch., Newton, Kans., by P. Becker, $25.73; Emmaus Menn. Ch., Whitewater, Kans., by W. A. Claassen, $38.25; Burrton, Kans., by J. V. Regier, $2; Bruderthal Menn. Ch., Hillsboro, Kansas, by F. N. Funk, $8.75; Christian Mennonite Church, Moundridge, Kansas by J. B. Stucky, $52; Bergthal Menn. Ch., Pawnee Rock, Kans., by H. C. Schultz, $16.80; Edw. E. Renich (First Menn. Ch.) Newton, Kans., by Th. E. Claassen, $10.40; Refund, $10; Miss Susie P. Ruediger, Pawnee Rock, Kans., $2.50; Buhler Menn. Ch., Buhler, Kans., by J. B. Regier, $31.57; Mrs. Katie Schumacher, St. Louis, Mo., $5.

China Relief: Remittance by P. J. Boehr, Richlandtown, Pa., $44.50; John Roth, Salem, Oregon, $5; E. W. Conference Interm. Society by P. J. Boehr, Richlandtown, Pa., $12; East Swamp Menn. Ch., Quakertown, Pa., by J. Swavely, $7; Grace Menn. Ch., Lansdale, Pa., by H. H., $6; East Swamp Menn. Ch., Quakertown, Pa., by J. Swavely, $5; Mattie A. Krehbiel, Tonnawanda, N. J., by P. J. Boehr, $1; P. J. Waltner, Pretty Prairie, Kans., $10; Mr. and Mrs. Ben. H. Pankratz, Inola, Okla., $10; C. B. Duerksen, Bethesda Home, Goessel, Kans., $2; East Swamp Menn. Ch., Quakertown, Pa., by J. Swavely, $8; P. C. Goering, Moundridge, Kans., $10; Mrs. Jacob J. Schmidt, Canton, Kans., $10; H. D. Schmidt, Cordell, Okla., $2; Maria Goertz, Canton, Kans., $5; Menn. Church, Deer Park, Washington, by P. J. Schroeder, $10; Mr. and Mrs. Alvie Schrag, Odessa, Wash., $25; Tabor Menn. Ch., Newton, Kans., by H. B. Schmidt, $18.26; Foreign Mission Board, Newton, Kans., by Treasurer, $50; Rev. John Horsch, Scottdale, Pa., $5.

Mennonite Ch., Beatrice, Nebr., by J. P. Janzen, $25.66; Miss Louise Regier, Newton, Kans., $10; Lydia and Olive Amstutz, Lima, Ohio, $10; Bergthal Menn. Ch., Pawnee Rock, Kans., by H. C. Schultz, $20; Sister Hillegonda, Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kans., $3; Rev. C. H. van der Smissen, Bethel Home, Newton, Kans., $5; East Swamp Menn. Ch., Quakertown, Pa., by J. Swavely, $10; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Janzen, Medford, Okla., by John Lichti, $2; Mrs. Joe Wedel, Moundridge, Kans., $300; B. B. Wedel, Hillsboro, Kans., $2; C. F. Claassen, Newton, Kans., $15; Mrs. J. M. Wines, c-o Robert King, S. B. A., $3.50; Mary Krehbiel, Donnellson, Iowa, $1; Eden Menn. Ch., Inola, Okla., by G. J. Voth, $19.27; Marie D. Lorenz, N. R., Butterfield, Minn., $10.

Summerfield Menn. Ch., Summerfield, Ill., by Marie Baer, $10; Pulaski Menn. Ch., Pulaski, Ia., by W. F. Unruh, $12.06; Dr. J. R. Thierstein, North Newton, Kans., $20; Bethel College Menn. Ch., North Newton, Kans., by Helen Penner, $87.97; John Rahn, Upland, Calif., $10; Bruderthal Menn. Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., by F. N. Funk, $26.60; Emmaus Menn. Ch., Whitewater, Kansas, by W. A. Claassen, $23.95; Friends, Newton, Kans., R. 2; $5; First Menn. Ch., Newton, Kans., by Th. E. Claassen, $23.71; Elizabeth Richert, Newton, R. 2, Kans., $10.00.

Canadian Transport Debt: Bruderthal Menn. Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., by F. N. Funk, $21.60; John Neufeld, Madrid, Nebr., $10; Sister Hillegonda, Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kans., $3; Mary Krehbiel, Donnellsin, Ia., $1; H. P. Goertz, Canton, Kans., $1; Bergthal Menn. Ch., Pawnee Rock, Kans., $37.12; John Rahn, Upland, Calif., $10.00; Sister Hillegonda, Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kans., $3; P. J. Friesen, Butterfield, Minn., $5.

Spanish Relief: Mennonite Peace Society, Bluffton, Ohio, by L. K., $20.

U. S. A. Relief: Mary U. Schmidt, Hillsboro, Kans., $20; P. U. Schmidt, Goessel, Kans., $5.

Europe Relief: Sicher Menn. Ch., Cordell, Okla., by H. S. Ratzlaff, $10.

Russian Relief: John J. Schmidt, Canton, Kans., $5; Abram Dirks, Buhler, Kans., $5.20.

South American Relief: St. John Menn. Ch., Pandora, Ohio, by Arthur Schumacher, $4.62.

Other Treasury: Miss Susie P. Ruediger, Pawnee Rock, Kans., $2.50.

Total receipts for Gen. Fund, $1419.56; Receipts for Canadian Debt, $91.72; Receipts for Russia, $10.20; Receipts for China, $911.58; Receipts for United States Relief, $25.00; Receipts for South America, $4.62; Receipts for Spanish Relief, $20.00; Receipts for Europe Relief, $10; Receipts for other Treas., $2.50; Total Receipts, $2495.19.

Total Disbursements, $3634.97. P. H. Unruh, Treas.

Scripture Text CALENDAR

For 1940

Christian Home Calendar
JANUARY

The value and beauty of the Scripture Text Calendar for 1940 have never been quite equaled and certainly never surpassed.

WORTH-WHILE FEATURES

1. Front cover picture of surpassing beauty and charm on fancy pebbled stock which gives effect of oil painting.
2. Twelve reproductions of famous pictures, in full colors. May be framed.
3. Three-month-on-a-sheet calendar pads. Very convenient.
4. International Sunday School lesson and inspirational reading assignments for each week.
5. Golden text or memory verse, for each Sunday quoted in full.
6. Carefully selected Scripture verses for each week day of the year.
7. Illuminating story of each picture.
8. Church and national holidays noted.
9. C. E. Topics for 1940.
10. Flowers and Birthstones of the month.
11. Phases of the moon illustrated.
12. The most complete, most beautiful, and most helpful calendar made.

PRICES

Single copy, 30c; 4, $1.00; 12, $3.00; 25, $5.75; 50, $9.00. Postage extra on all quantities above 25 copies.

Prices on larger quantities gladly supplied upon request.

Daily Talks with God for 1940

Daily Talks With God
1

WALL STYLE

8½x12¾ inches. Printed in three colors, with beautiful, embossed Biblical picture.

Daily Talks With God
Tuesday
1
January

EASEL STYLE

Size, 6½x8 inches. Printed in colors. Easel cut-out form designed for standing or hanging. Packed firmly in a very attractive gift box.

UNIQUE CALENDARS

both "Wall and Easel" styles, with easily removable sheets that feature a Scripture Passage, Devotional Reading, Prayer and suggested Scripture Reading, for every day in the year.

Prices: Either "Wall" or "Easel" Style, 60c; Per Dozen, $5.76, postage, extra.

NOTE: In spite of war conditions in Germany, we are able to supply the 1940 Neukirchner Abrieskalender for our German customers. Price 60c.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, BERNE, IND.

1001 EAST BROADWAY
NEWTON, KANSAS

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS JAN. 16, 1940 NUMBER 3

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

History Given at the 60th Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wenger

First Mennonite Church,—Aberdeen, Idaho

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wenger, pioneer residents of Aberdeen, were honored with a short program preceding the regular Church Services at the Mennonite Church in recognition of their 60th Wedding Anniversary, Michael Wenger and Rosina Welty were married on Dec. 23, 1879, near Fortuna, Mo., Honoring them in the distinction the program printed at the end was given.

Front row: Mr. and Mrs. Wenger—Back row: Frank,Sadie and Ira Wenger

While Mr. and Mrs. Wenger (Mrs. Wenger in wheel chair) and family marched to places on the front bench, Miss Margaret Giesbrecht played "What a Friend We have in Jesus."

Michael Wenger and Rosina Welty, known to their friends as Mike Wenger and Rose Welty, were married at the bride's home near Fortuna, Mo., by Rev. Peter S. Lehman on Dec. 23, 1879. The following day the groom took his bride to his mother's home on horseback, the best means of transportation on hand at that time, and according to a custom brought from Virginia, an "Infare" was held at the home of the grooms mother. An "Infare" today would perhaps be called a reception or a home-coming. The groom remembers that it was a cold day because his new wedding gloves were too tight and his fingers got cold.

The groom's family had immigrated to Missouri from Virginia and the bride's family from Ohio, both in the year 1869. The families were both of Mennonite faith, but otherwise it was not thought that they held much in common for the groom's family were Pensylvania Dutch and the bride's were Swiss; but later it was found that several hundred years previous, the families had lived not very far apart in Switzerland. The Wengers' are said to have lived near the present "Wengern Alp" in the neighborhood of the mountain peak "The Jungfrau," while the first Welty of which we have knowledge, Bernhard Welty, lived at Langnau near Bern, Switzerland. Bernhard Welty appears to have been a leader in the early Mennonite Church, the members of which were then known as "Taeufer" or "Anabaptists" and had to suffer a martyr's death for his faith. He was a contemporary of Menno Simons, the founder of the Mennonite Church, and of Martin Luther, the reformer, about the year 1537.

Some of the Wengers' went from Switzerland to the Palatinate or Rhein-Pfalz, now a part of Germany; from which place Christian Wenger emigrated to Pensylvania in the year 1727. His son Joseph Wenger, Michael Wenger's great-grandfather, settled in the Shenandoah valley of Virginia in 1785, and it is there that Michael Wenger was born in 1853, and where as a lad he experienced the troublesome times of the Civil War days.

The armies of both sides to a considerable extent lived off the country. To put a stop to continual threats on Washington by the armies of the Confederates coming down the Shenandoah valley, General Sheridan of the Union side finally destroyed the provisions in the valley. He did this by burning the barns which contained most of the feed. Michael's father begged the soldiers not to burn his barn and offered them all the money he had. His barn was not burned. In later years Michael's children read in their history books that General Sheridan said, "If a crow flies up the Shenandoah he will have to take provisions with him," this truly came to pass, for the country was pillaged extremely. Grandfather Michael Wenger remembers vividly that at the time of the burning of the barns one could read out-of-doors at night by the light of the many fires in the neighborhood.

Peter Welty, Rosina Welty's grandfather, immigrated to America direct from Switzerland in 1824. They made their home in Ohio. After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wenger settled on a quarter of raw prairie land in the home neighborhood of Fortuna, Mo., where they built a home and where their five children were born. In 1898 the family moved to Newton, Kansas; where the children attended school and the parents operated the Bethel College boarding hall for four years and they farmed what is now known as the John Tangeman farm.

About thirty years ago they came to Aberdeen where they again pioneered, this time on raw sagebrush land, and since that time they have made their home here. Many changes have occurred in the sixty years since the wedding in 1879, there have been hard times as well as good times, but on this anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Wenger are thankful to the kind Heavenly Father for the long years of companionship which they have enjoyed, for the continual privilege of attending Sunday School and Church Services, and for the many other blessings that have come to them. The following children were privileged to celebrate the sixtieth Wedding Anniversary of their parents; Sadie, Ira, and Frank, of Aberdeen. Paul Wenger a missionary living in Corba C. P. India, sent a telegram of congratulations to his parents. (Elizabeth Marie died in Missouri at the age of six months.) There are seven grand-children, but only three could be present at the anniversary celebration. Mr. Wenger is the last of his immediate family, but Mrs. Wenger has a brother and a sister living in Indiana; John B. Welty at Berne, and Mrs. Emilie Rohrer at Fort Wayne. It is interesting to note that John B. Welty and wife celebrated their 59th Wedding Anniversary in October, 1939.

ANNIVERSARY PROGRAM

Reading of Psalm 121 and prayer by Rev. P. A. Wedel.

Song by Quartette, "The Lord is my Light and my Salvation" by Miss Agatha Toevs, Mrs. W. P. Dirks, Henry and Edwin Becker.

Ira Wenger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wenger gave a brief life history of his parents.

Message by Rev. Wedel, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us" 1 Samuel 7:12.

Music "Nun Danket all Gott" by three grandchildren, Elma, Ruth, and Lois Wenger.

The honored couple through Rev. Wedel expressed their thanks to all their kind friends who sent good wishes and for all kindnesses shown them.

"He leadeth me" was sung by the Congregation during which the family retired.

Education

A. S. Rosenberger

UNAFFECTED SINCERITY

J. D. Unruh

Those who have read "Ike" Hoover's 42 Years in the White House, will recall the visit of Bryan Untiedt to the White House upon inviation of President Hoover. He was the boy hero of Colorado who had saved his schoolmates from death in a blizzard. "But he was stoical, solid, unconsciously understanding. He was appreciative but not demonstrative. When he was gone, he left a beautiful atmosphere behind him . . . . His innocence was beautiful, so different from anything that had ever been known at the White House before." So "Ike" Hoover described this little visitor who conquered officialdom in the White House.

Such unassuming, unaffected sincerity and simplicity cannot but leave an impression. It becomes all the more beautiful if one is conscious that underneath lie intellectual resources. Blatant intellectuality has never appealed to traditional Mennonite simplicity. But our communities are eagerly awaiting well trained young men and women who exhibit a genuineness of Christian character without display.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE BIBLE LECTURES

The annual Bible Lectures will open on Sunday, February 11th, and will continue through Friday of that week. The speaker this year is to be Dr. Calvert N. Ellis, Professor of Biblical studies at Juniata College, Huntington, Pennsylvania. Juniata is a school supported by the Church of the Brethern. Dr. Ellis received his training at Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton University, Yale, and the University of Zurich. He was Bible teacher at the Middle District conference two summers ago when he was so well received that several pastors were interested in scheduling him for meetings in their own churches, but were unable to make arrangements because of the many demands on the time of Dr. Ellis in his own denomination.

On Wednesday and Thursday of Bible Lecture week, February 14-15, there will be a special ministers' conference. Ministers of all Mennonite churches are invited to take part. Alva J. McClain, president of Grace Theological Seminary at Winona Lake, Ind., is to speak at this conference and lead discussions.

L. L. Ramseyer

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

A COMMUNION SERVICE IN CHINA

By Aganetha Fast

"For as often as ye eat this bread and drink the cup, ye proclaim the Lord's death till He come."
I Cor. 11.26.

We have just returned from a very impressive Communion service. In the forenoon twenty-four people publicly confessed their stand to follow Christ. How we praise the Lord for these precious souls. These services were very impressive and quiet and reverence prevailed throughout the services. But the most touching services were held this afternoon.

Three hundred and thirty-five (335) partook of the Lord's Supper. Words can never express our thoughts, and the deep gratitude of our hearts, while we all gathered together to commemorate the Lord's death and remembered that His great love had brought together these 335 people to worship and reverently bow before Him in this way. Our hearts were filled with a deep joy. How we wished that you could have been with us, you who have had such a deep share in this work through your prayers and your gifts. The services were so devotional and reverent. Such a quiet prevailed throughout the whole services, which is so unusual in a Chinese audience. The order was perfect.

Rev. S. F. Pannabecker was so fittingly assisted in giving out the wine by the Evangelists from the other stations of our field, while the local Evangelists and Church Board assisted in the distribution of the bread and directed the participation in the order of the services. This did much to bind together the whole field into one body answering to our Lord's Prayer in John's Gospel, chapter 17: "That they might be one."

The participants gathered in groups of 20-24 in front of the pulpit until they were served with wine. To each group while they partook of the wine portions of chapter 15 of the Gospel according to John was read. In this way the whole audience was privileged to hear the whole, so memorable chapter. The bread was partaken of seated.

How we rejoice that in God's wonderful providence about twenty delegates of our Chinese conference could be present for this event. It was such a wonderful introduction to this conference, which convenes this coming week, as said thus binding together the whole field into one body, before they enter into the conference sessions. This conference (the Chinese conference) has been hanging in the balance now for about 12 years. The Chinese Church must get on its own feet and lack of self-confidence and courage have hindered thus far, and, as so often is the case also of churches at home, lack of unity and love, and of a real vision of God's work and plan for them. These days we pray much that this might not be lacking this time. The Lord can undertake.

The question of Chinese pastors, too, is becoming a very pressing one, and Churches are seriously considering it. Some have already voted for their choice. Please pray much for this infant beginning. It is a new adventure for all of us. We are holding our breath lest the "infant" succumbs. All of us feel that the time has come for this thing to be born, and become a fact.

This letter will be too late for Christmas, but not the prayers for a Blessed Christmas for you all and a Happy New Year.

Very sincerely yours,
Aganetha Fast

An Appeal for Our Foreign Mission Treasury

"If any man say ought unto you, ye shall say, The Lord hath need of them; and straightway he will send them." Matt. 21:3.

In closing his accounts for the past year, 1939, the treasurer finds that the income is 10,000.00 short of the required budget, which calls for 85,000.00, while the income is only $75,000.00.

So the usual payments at this time can only partly be made, because we do not want to make debts, if at all possible. We have to ask for $10,000.00 now.

We believe the Lord needs this money as he needed that colt and its mother on the day he entered Jerusalem. That was the "King's business," and so is this our mission work.

With thankful hearts we look back upon our experience as a Board that whenever the mission needs are presented to our churches, they feel like the owner of those animals, who had no further objections as soon as he learned that it was the Lord, who needed them. Thank you!

A week ago I received a gift of $339.00 ($50.00 of this for Home Mission) from a mission friend, who evidently gives the tenth for the Lord's work. That the Lord blesses such faithfulness not only in a spiritual way, but also otherwise, is shown by the fact, that his business has not suffered on account of such large gifts, but prospers.—P. H. Richert, Sec.

ANNOUNCEMENT

"Plans are complete for the Annual Fellowship dinner of the Eastern District Young People's Union to be held at Lansdale, January 20th. Speakers are Dr. Hans Evans, Kings College, Belmar N. J. a graduate of the University of Tubingen, Germany and our own Field Secretary, Dr. Henry A. Fast, recently returned from a visit to the Mennonite settlements in South America."—John E. Fretz.

Publication

OUR NEW HYMN BOOK

"Gut Ding will Weile haben"—A good thing requires time for its completion, is a motto for this article. Some of our churches and people are getting restless about the delay with our hymn book. They need the new book, the old ones are worn. Then, too, they want something better, more serviceable and hope that the new book will meet their desire. We understand these and sympathize with them. Some again have the impression that when the Hymn Book Committee had made its selection of hymns and agreed on the plan and purpose of the book, all that needed to be done was to turn the work over to the plate makers and printers to finish the job. But while the work of the Committee is of the utmost importance and fundamental, the task from there on, that is the editing is, in some respects, even more important and requires long and painstaking study and effort, whereas haste is apt to work great damage, as in the case of our Hymn Book now in use. While this subject is unpleasant, this much must be said in explanation:

In 1927 when the group of devout brethren had made their selection of about 550 hymns for the Mennonite Hymn Book, our business management turned the further work over to a person who is on record as editor of the book. This person, doubtless with good intentions, put it in the hands of a prominent eastern firm of song book makers, who by considerable substitution and the elimination of over one hundred hymns of the committee's choice, some of them favorites, gave us a book of only 412 hymns, utterly different from the original plan. There we got our book in the hurry, but with what dire results.

It will interest many to know that among about fifteen plate and songbook makers, with whom the undersigned has corresponded for some months, to ascertain the most competent and most reasonable in price, the firm above referred to was also interviewed. When they had learned the plan and high purpose of our book, they wrote something like this: This new hymn book is going to cost you a lot of money. Better use our book (title) that we could sell you in thousand lots at 80 cents a copy, and we could add a supplement of one hundred of your favorite hymns with just a nominal additional cost. The closing paragraph of the reply given them was this: "No, it is settled, our people want a book of our own choosing, a book with a Mennonite brand, even if it costs more and takes longer to get it."

When the Committee for the revision of the Mennonite Hymn Book had done its work of selecting and planning for the book, last spring, the further task of editing the manuscript was left in the hands of the brethren Prof. W. H. Hohmann and Rev. Lester Hostetler, who privately went on doing some preliminary work on it. Then they spent a good part of last summer at Upland, Calif., working unitedly on the book, their wives and daughters assisting them with the typing and getting the pages lined up; for every page, heading, music and words must be prepared and arranged just as it is to appear in the book. In the latter part of August Prof. Hohmann brought the MSS, with the hymn part nearly completed, back with him. And as much as he could get time off from his duties of teaching and directing choruses he worked out the different indices and carried on extensive correspondence, even into foreign countries, concerning the use of copyrighted hymns, some of which are very valuable, hence apt to be high priced. Then the MSS was returned to Brother Hostetler, who for several weeks, in addition to a good working load as pastor, choir director, etc., scrupulously worked the opus over again, making such changes as seemed pertinent. Then he got Dr. E. Shippen Barnes, an experienced hymn book editor and maker, interested in the book, and together they found ways for further improvements.

In a letter dated Jan. 6, addressed to the undersigned he says: "It has been a great pleasure to work with Rev. Hostetler upon this book, and we have had many pleasant hours together. I think that a very interesting and practical book is being compiled and that it should rank among THE VERY GOOD BOOKS IN THIS COUNTRY. Mr. Hostetler, and others with him, have shown great resourcefulness and excellent taste in the finding of the material . . ."

As soon as the MSS comes back to Newton from California, which should be very shortly, it will be subjected to another brief examination by interested persons, whereupon it will be sent on to two or three plate-hymn book making firms for their final, definite bid on the work which they could only approximate so far, and contract can then be let. So that some time in spring the book should begin to appear.

In summa: It is a long road that leads to the manufacture of a good hymn book, when the persons engaged in its preparation are very busy at their own posts of employment, and unselfishly put what spare time they have into the task, doing this service as a type of missionary work. The Board of Publication is assuming a heavy financial responsibility in shouldering the manufacture of this book at a cost of about $6000. We had hoped that by now all of our churches in the States would have made their free contributions, either for the hymn book or for the work of publication in general. But while some have done nobly, we regret to state that a good many have failed to encourage us with their gift. If it were not for the help by some churches who have made advance payments on the books they need and the generosity of a few brethren who have offered loans without interest, we could not even then think of ordering the book to be made. And, as it is, we will have to borrow more money for a first edition of 3000 books.

The book will be notable partly for the following: The hymns and songs are genuinely spiritual and of a high musical order. In its 600 selections there is such a large variety of hymns and songs that will lend themselves to any and all religions and festival services in the Church, Sunday School, C. E., the home, the school, thus unifying our worship in song and avoiding the need of two or three books to satisfy all. It will have translations of a number of German chorals, with the German text also given. In workmanship, title and music set-up, paper used, printing and binding it will be first class, making it a book that will be a pleasure to own and a blessing to use.

Its page make-up will be as follows:

Introductory matter: Title, copyright, foreword, acknowledgements, different indexes, sources of authors and composers, index of Scriptural texts, 30-32 pages.

600 hymns and songs, or close to that --480 pages
Responsive readings ------------------60 pages

The following is a meagre outline of the contents of the book, however, recent changes may shift the numbers allotted to each section somewhat:

Topical List of Contents of New Hymn Book

Book I—Hymns—394

1. Praise and Adoration, including Morning and Evening Hymns and Close of Worship--1- 41
2. God the Father, in various aspects ------42- 65
3. Jesus Christ our Lord, in various aspects, concluding with eight hymns on "His Coming Again" ---------------------------------66-134
4. The Holy Spirit, in various aspects ----135-142
5. The Life of Christ, a very rich assortment concluding with hymns on "Service and Brotherhood" and the "Inner Life" --------------143-239
6. Courage and Comfort ----------------240-259
7. Eternal Life --------------------------260-264
8. The Kingdom of God ----------------265-272
9. The Church, including "The Lord's Day," "The Holy Scriptures," "The Ministry," "Baptism," 'Consecration of Children," 'The Lord's Supper," 'Church Unity," etc. ------------273-331
10. Christian Missions ----------------332-345
11. National and International Life ------346-356
12. The Christian Home and Family ----357-360
13. Special Seasons and Services, including "Schools and Colleges," "Mothers' Sunday," "Hospital Sunday," etc. ------------------361-378
14. Special Occasions, including 'Farewell Service," "Labor Day," "Temperance Sunday," "Our Fathers" ---------------------------------379-385
15. Youth ---------------------------------385-394

Book II

Hymns for Children—36 ----------------395-431

Book III

Gospel Hymns and Songs*—48 ------------432-480

Book IV

Chorales, covering the Church Festivals through the year, and general themes—78 ----------480-558

Book V

Metrical Psalms and other Selections—24 --559-583

Book VI

Oratorio Selections—4 ------------------584-587

Book VII

Responses, Chants, Doxologies, and Amens—13 ------------------------------------- 587-600

*This number has now been considerably increased by the addition of the new gospel hymns to the old favorites. But on the whole the above is the basis of the lineup.

J. R. Thierstein.

The Peril of Turning Back

Arnold E. Funk

In general we all agree that everything that is really worthwhile, if it comes at all, comes as a result of disciplined and sustained effort. All real progress, whether it be in our own individual lives or in society at large, is made only as the result of persistently pursuing a definite high course of action to its ultimate conclusion. To turn back when the going becomes hard, to the old and familiar, the thing that is easy because we are used to it even though it is far from satisfactory, after having started out upon a new and high adventure, never has resulted in anything worthwhile.

I say in general we all agree to that truth. But do we live by that truth?

There is an ancient story in the Bible about the tragic distruction of two cities. A man, by the name of Lot, and his family, had chosen to live in one of them. But the story goes on to relate that the wickedness of these cities was so great that the cry of it came up to Jehovah. As a result He sent two angels to destroy them. But before doing so they succeeded in getting Lot, his wife and their two daughters to flee from the city, warning them to be so much in earnest about getting away that they should not as much as look back until they had reached a place of safety.

I presume they hurried on fast enough at first. But gradually they began to tire. And as they walked more slowly the thoughts of the wife went back to Sodom. And perhaps she reasoned thus: As far as she could see there never had been any outward signs of danger. And they would never have known that there was any immediate danger now except for the word of these two messengers. And they were strangers. There was always the chance that they might be mistaken. And Sodom had had its advantages. There were many things about Sodom that were not at all bad. True enough there was also unspeakable wickedness there. But life in Sodom was familiar and easy. And the wickedness was done by folks they knew. And their wickendess they understood. And that always makes the evil not half as bad as when done by strangers and in a way that is not fully known to us. But going out into a new and unfamiliar life, even with the promise of freedom from the degradation of Sodom's wickedness, required courage to face the unknown and faith enough in the venture to be convinced that it was worth all this sacrifice.

Well, Lot's wife turned back. The going had become too hard for her. When the pressure of the old and familiar returned she yielded and eliminated herself from the ranks of those who went on and lived.

Jesus had occasion to speak very earnestly of such folks. An enthusiast had proclaimed fervently his willingness to follow Jesus, only he was not just yet ready to burn all the bridge behind him. He still wanted to leave a way open that if the going would become too hard he could slip back into his old ways of living.

And Jesus said to him, "No man having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the Kingdom of God."

But how tempted we are to look back! We have started out well upon a high course of action. Perhaps it was that we had deliberately owned Christ, and in the glow of this decision were fervently resolved to live for Him, come what may. Perhaps it was that during a period of cleared vision we had resolved to consider ourselves stewards of whatever power or position or material goods we possessed. Or perhaps it was that we had somehow come to see that the method of goodwill and love towards all men was the only way that held out any real promise of success. So we chose that way.

We started out well, happy in the realization that at last we had set our feet upon something real, something that had a future. Never again would we trade back for what we had left behind. But gradually the glow of first experiences seemed to fade out. We had hoped that everything would continue to be different, but slowly we discovered that it wasn't. And then one morning we awoke face to face with a genuine problem. A problem that put to test all our insight and resources. We had never expected that such a thing could happen. But it had. Perhaps the thought came to us that because this thing was so different from anything we had ever experienced or heard of, maybe the high principles we had embraced would have to be altered. Isn't it said that "Time makes ancient good uncouth"? And a thing six weeks old is ancient. We are living in a changing world and everything is different now. The high things we resolved yesterday don't seem to fit now. Maybe it would be better to go back to the way we had left before we tried this new thing. That old way had its defects, but at least we were familiar with it and it was not so exacting.

Have we ever been tempted that way? Well, what should we do?

A friend of mine who had taken up flying as a hobby, at one time found himself in an extremely difficult situation. He had been flying above scattered clouds when suddenly he noticed that they were drawing together and soon completely obstructed his view of the ground. He knew he did not have much farther to ge but he hoped that by the time he would come over his destination, the clouds would open and he would go through and land. He waited. But inted of the clouds growing thinner, they seemed to be getting thicker and darker. Suddenly he noticed a deep dark valley or gorge in the clouds. At least so it seemed. He reasoned that if he would fly down into this gorge it surely would not then be far to get through the clouds and under them. He headed in. But, to his dismay, the gorge closed in on him just as suddenly and as mysteriously as it had opened. There he was, in a cloud so dark that at times he could not see the wings of his plane. He had no instruments for blind flying and would not have known how to use them had he had them, never having been instructed in their use. What was he to do? The altimeter showed that he was losing altitude rapidly.

But while in this predicament re remembered what the pilot who had taught him how to fly had told him. "If ever you get into a tight place where you cannot see ahead, steady your plane, fly straight ahead, and wait patiently."

May it not be that is sound advice for all of us when things grow dark, when we cannot see ahead, and are tempted to turn back?

"SHOULD GOD'S PEOPLE PARTAKE IN WAR?"

by Theo. H. Epp

This treatise appeared first in several papers, in English and in German; then in pamphlet form, in one German and two English editions (3000 plus). These are now nearly all distributed; and it seems that another edition, in English, may become necessary. This would be a less expensive one, charging only for printing and postage. Although not all readers fully agree with all that is said in the pamphlet, which cannot be expected, we have received many fine recommendations from Mennonite leaders, among them a number of College Presidents and Professors.

In order to know whether or not to print another edition, I ask for orders now, at least very soon. This is the time to get such literature out among our people, young and old, before it may be too late!

Order from the present supply, as long as it lasts.

Yours truly,

J. B. Epp, Publisher,
Beatrice, Nebr., R. 1.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

January 28, 1940.

Jesus Proclaims His Messiahship.

Matthew 21:1-16.

Introduction

We have come to the last week of Jesus' ministry, a week to which a large part of the Gospel pertains. All four describe this sagnificant event, the triumphial entry, which occurred on Sunday morning. Matthew is the Gospel of the King and in our lesson Jesus issues a royal command, makes royal progress and receives royal acclaim.

Jesus Enters Jerusalem in Kingly State vs 1-11.

Jesus had steadfastly set his face to go up to Jerusalem. Now He is leading the group of disciples on foot, from Bethany toward the City. As they came to Bethphage, He sent two disciples, giving them definite directions for securing a colt on which He might ride into the city (vs 2,3). The definite fulfilling of these directions indicates that He spoke with supernatural knowledge. Jesus now was ready to offer Himself definitely to His people as their Deliverer and King and wished to enter the city in a manner befitting the Messianic King. In His entry, the prophecy of Zech. 9:9(v5) was literally fulfilled. Now the King had come to be acclaimed as such.

As they approached the city, an increasing throng of people made an enthusiastic procession. Some of these were on their way into the city, many others had come out of Jerusalem to meet Him (John 12:13). This procession was quite simple in comparison with those in which kings rode in state. The vast throng began to rejoice and praise God (vs 8,9) in shouting and singing. They sang one of the Messianic psalms (118:25,26). They felt that now their hopes of a king who should deliver them from Rome were being fulfilled. They misunderstood the nature of His kingship, yet He gave them an opportunity to acclaim Him as their prophet and king. Their enthusiasm was short-lived, yet it was a beautiful sight to see them so joyously welcome Him and express their faith and joy in spontaneuos whole-heartedness. It was an eminently fitting recognition of His kingship, before His death

The city was stirred as Jesus entered (v10) and many who probably knew little of Him asked, "Who is this"? Whenever Jesus enters a city, He causes a stirring and shaking up. He stirs the hearts of people, sets free the slaves of sin, and now after 19 centuries, is still the mightiest transforming power in human hearts and lives.

Jesus Exercises Authority vs 12-16.

What Jesus saw in the temple, God's house, aroused his righteous wrath, He, the King in matters spiritual, was Lord of the temple, and had a right to remedy the abuses which were permitted by the temple rulers (v 12). He saw the house, dedicated to prayer, being transformed into a place in which robbers did a thriving business in their dishonesty in selling the necessary sacrificial animals and changing the money for the many worshippers coming from distant places. God's house is to be a house of reverent prayer and worship.

Quickly Jesus' feelings changed from righteous wrath to gentle compassion for the needy and helpless who came to Him in the temple (v 14). They who come to his house to see Him will find Him there and will receive help from Him. We should be fearless in condemning wrong and gentle and loving toward the unfortunate ones. We honor Christ as King as we recognize His supreme authority. We make Christ King when by divine power there is an inner transformation in our lives.

Congratulations to Veteran Minister

"We extend felicitations to our distinguished townsman, the Rev. Allen M. Fretz, who on Tuesday of this week quietly observed his eighty-sixth birthday anniversary. Rev. Fretz, a native of Upper Bucks, holds the unique record of having served the Spiritual needs of the New Mennonite Congregation at Deep Run from the time of his ordination in 1883 until the present time, a period of fifty-six years. In addition to his work at Deep Run he has at various times served as pastor at Allentown, Souderton, Springfield, Bowmanstown and is at present serving the Bethel congregation here. Rev. Fretz never aspired to oratorical greatness, in fact he never aspired to anything more than a devoted servant working in the cause of his Master and in this he succeeded. Throughout the more than half a century in the ministry he counselled and advised to three generations at Deep Run and there has developed a bond of fellowship between pastor and congregation that will last as long as life itself lasts. This was shown Sunday when the veteran pastor asked to be relieved of his duties at Deep Run. The official Board of the church agreed to engage an assistant to the Rev. Fretz but unanimously decided that he continue as pastor of the congregation. As a neighbor and townsman Rev. Fretz exerts that same beneficient influence over all with whom he comes in contact. May the autumn of his full life be serene and happy."—The Central News, Perkasie, Pa., Dec. 4, 1939.

To the above we, too, wish to add hearty congratulation. By the help and grace of God Brother Fretz has established a record of service as a shepherd of men and minister of the gospel as few have. For, in addition to the long and successful service at Deep Run, he has the following to his credit: Upon its organization he became pastor of Zion Mennonite Church at Souderton, and served it from 1893 to 1909, while occupying the Deep Run pastorate. For 25 years, 1913 to 1938, he was pastor of the Springfield Mennonite Church, and since 1917 until now, nearly 23 years, he has shepherded the flock at Perkasie, where he continues in charge. He served as pastor of the Mennonite Church at Pottstown from 1910-1914, and of the Bowmansville charge from 1915 to 1917.

During these past 56 years it is estimated that he preached 9000 sermons, performed 219 marriage ceremonies, officiated or assisted at almost 700 funerals, and baptized almost 400 persons.

CORRESPONDENCE

WEST ZION CHURCH, MOUNDRIDGE, KANS.

"The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad," was quoted by Rev. P. K. Regier as an introduction to his pastoral report to the West Zion Congregation, Dec. 27, at the annual meeting. Our congregation has been permited to carry on the Lord's work during the year without any interruption. During this time four of our members passed to their eternal reward. They are: J. W. Krehbiel, Dan Huxman, Mrs. Maria Schmitt, and Mrs. Emmaline Kaegi.

A backward look reminds us that thirteen young people were admitted into church by baptism, four members requested their church letters, which makes our total membership 313, 55 of whom are non-resident members. — Four marriages were solemnized among our members: Juanita Stucky to Don Strauss, Maxine Taves to Lester Lehmberg, Doris Fast to Noble Hiebert and Naomi Brubacker to Orlando Krenbiel. Three of these young men are members of other churches. May God bless these new homes! Dale Galle, our faithful Sunday School Supt., and a consecrated group of teachers carry on the Sunday School work. The Sunday School as well as the morning worship services are well attended by the children and young people.— Our congregation enjoys many musical treats. The ladies' chorus under the direction of N. W. Krehbiel, and the Mens' chorus under H. J. Block sing on alternate Sundays. These organizations and the organ music by Mrs. W. J. Rupp contribute much to the worship services.

Practically every person, either young or old, is being reached through the efforts of the Endeavor societies. The Junior society, whose leaders are Mrs. P. K. Regier and Miss Helen Rupp, at Thanksgiving time presented a program at the Goessel Old Folks' Home which was very much appreciated. They left several baskets of fruit with the old people. The Intermediate Society, with Miss Evelyn Regier and Mrs. W. J. Rupp as Superintendents, is contributing to the spiritual development of the High School-age group. The Senior Society, of which Miss Katherine Winsinger is president, does a fine piece of work, though poorly attended. Each of these groups is supporting either a native child or a religious worker in India.—The Women's work in the church is done by the Sewing Society and the Mission workers. The latter group gives mission programs and supports a native Indian woman doctor.

Our congregation is looking forward to the realease of the New Hymn books. One of our members, who wishes his gift to be anonymous,, has paid for enough books to supply our church. We are very grateful for this truly generous gift.—Mrs. August Ewy, Corr.

* * *

MENNONITE CHURCH, MADRID, NEBR.

We have had very nice weather up to December 24, when it started to snow, now we have about 10 inches of snow, which will be wonderful for our wheat. Church work is progressing nicely, had a good Christmas program, Dec. 15. The Ladies' Aid had their mission sale which amounted to $102.00. On Sunday, Nov. 19, we had our Mission and Thanksgiving festival for which Missionary W. C. Voth was our guest speaker. On Monday night he showed pictures from the mission field in China and told us about the mission work there.—P. A. Regier.

* * *

SECOND MENN. CH., BEATRICE, NEBR.

The annual church meeting, reviewing the past year's activities and planning the future work, was held on the eve of January 5th. The change in leadership, i.e., the retirement of Rev. M. Horsch and the calling of his successor, Rev. R. Weinbrenner was, without doubt, the most outstanding experience of the year. Twelve new members were received during the year (7 by baptism and 5 by letter) making a total of 177 members at the present time. The total contributions on record amounted to nearly $3000.00, and about 62 per cent of this amount was used for local church expenses. The Women's Mission Society sale, held in connection with a church supper on Nov. 23, amounted to more than $100. Rev. W. C. Voth of our China mission was with us during that time and stressed the need for help in the foreign field.

On Christmas eve the S. S. dramatized the Christmas story and on Christmas day the choir rendered an appropriate program in connection with the morning worship. On New Year's day Rev. and Mrs. Jacob Wiebe celebrated their silver wedding, in the spacious rooms of the local Y. W. C. A. The entire congregation was invited and light refreshments were served at the close of an appropriate program.

May God richly bless us all and help us to do our part during the new year.—W. C. A. Corr.

Whoever would entitle himself after death through the merits of his Redeemer, to the noblest of rewards, let him serve God throughout life in this most excellent of all duties, doing good to our brethren. Whoever is sensible of his offences, let him take this way especially of evidencing his repentance.—Archbishop Secker.

FIRST MENN. CH., HALSTEAD, KANS. 1-4-40.

The annual business meeting of the church was preceded by a church dinner. In this way a social hour was enjoyed and a larger number than usual were present. The affairs of the church could be arranged for another year. The Lord has blessed our efforts in the past and we pray that His blessings may continue to abide with us this new year. — On account of the church benig damaged by fire, the funeral services of Brother John Will were held at the Presbyterian Church. The Choir under the direction of Rev. D. C. Wedel rendered the annual Christmas cantata Dec. 18. The children's program, well prepared and carried out, and with the church neatly decorated, was given Dec. 24.—Communion services were held the last Sunday of the year and the customary vesper services at the Presbyterian Church, consisting of appropriate vocal and instrumental music, were a fitting climax to the festivities of the Christmas week.

We have crossed the threshold of a new year. May we all consecrate and dedicate our lives anew in loving service to God and mankind.—Union Services will be held during the week of prayer. The pastors of the churches will lead the meetings alternately. May the peace of God that passeth all understanding go with us through the new year.—Katie B. Schmitt, Corr.

* * *

FIRST MENN. CH., HILLSBORO, KANS. 1-5-40

We look ahead with hoping and wondering and back with gratitude for God's goodness, and with regret for our failings. In the face of what is foreshadowed for 1940, our greatest concern should be to make our lives a fearless, uncompromising testimony for Christ.

The church had its annual meeting on New Year's Eve. Following the customary reports was a period for personal testimony. The Brotherhood has done a very definite piece of work in revising the old church constitution and the church has adopted it. The study of the peace and war question has been taken up jointly with the Brudertal and Johannestal churches.

The Thanksgiving season marked a high point in our church life. Dr. J. E. Hartzler of Hartford, Conn., conducted ten days of evangelistic meetings here. His powerful messages carried both conviction and inspiration for more sincere living and greater loyalty to the church. Are not insincerity and "lukewarmness" undoing a large measure of our church efforts?

The Prayer Week will be observed unitedly with three other churches, Lehigh, Brudertal, and Johannestal. It will thus be possible to carry out the program more completely, and the visiting groups will stimulate a larger attendance. The program for the Week of Prayer is so timely and holds such possibilities, that it is hoped that every church member will feel the need of attending.—A blessed New Year to our editor and the readers.—Mrs. D. P. Ewert, Corr.

EDEN MENN. CH., MOUNDRIDGE, KANS.

As we look back upon another year we feel truly thankful to our Lord and Savior for the wonderful way in which He has sustained and blessed us. We too would join the Psalmist, saying: "Bless the Lord, Oh my soul, and all that is within me bless His holy Name." Yes, we as a church and as families have been kept in a wonderful way and are praising our God and Savior for it.

On Nov. 14, 1939, we had our annual church business meeting. In all peace and quietness were we permitted to review the past and plan for the future. Since our church meeting an electrical water system, and three additional speech amplifiers have been added.—Our Senior Christian Endeavor society has just finished a course of Bible Study begun in September. It consisted of "Personal Problems in the Light of Jesus' Way of Meeting Them." Our pastor Rev. Walter Gering opened the meeting by giving points on Jesus' way of meeting the problems of life, and the rest of the evening was spent in practical applications to our own individual lives. We feel that the study proved a great blessing.—Another phase of activity of the C. E. is a volunteer group who have begun personal work among the sick and bedfast in our locality. This, too, is proving a great blessing both for those who serve and those visited.

During the two months preceding Christmas, our minister gave a series of Sunday morning sermons on "The Mission of Jesus," or "Why did He Come?" We feel that the Lord has truly used him to make our Savior precious to us. And God has sent us such beautiful weather the last few months that our meetings could be held as scheduled. Yes, the Lord has truly given us much to be thankful for, and if we have found ourselves unthankful in the Thanksgiving and Christmas season, we should humiliate ourselves and ask His forgiveness. In the light of what is going on in most of the rest of the world today it behooves us to express our humble thanks for the peace and freedom which thus far is prevalent in our nation.

Yet, God's goodness has not only come through the sunshine He sent, but also through some hard experiences. Within the last month, three members of our group have undergone serious operations, and the Abe Regier family has been called upon to give up their dearly beloved two-year old son. The Lord is reminding us again and again that His ways and thoughts are higher than ours. May He give us the grace that in it all we see His loving hand.

Our various church choirs gave a joint program on the evening of Christmas day. They presented the cantata, "Night of Holy Memories," which told the old yet ever new story of the Babe of Bethlehem. May He be born in our hearts anew, and may we do our part that many more unsaved may hear of His saving power and be born to a new and living hope in Him. —A Happy New Year to all!—Richard Schrag, Corr.

EDITORIAL
STAFF
Senior Department
R. Weinbrenner
Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers
Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

LET US MEDITATE

"Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." Matthew 5:13-20.

The fifth chapter of Matthew, which gives us pictures of Christian love at work in the world, asks much of us. We are not prepared to say that it asks too much. But when we reach the last verse of the chapter, with its counsel of perfection, we despair. To be as good as God is—No! that ideal merely mocks at our poor powers.

It is strange how carelessly we read familiar words. The verse in question does not tell us that we are to be as good as God is. Goodness is not a quantity which can be weighed and measured.

What the verse does say is this: be perfect in the way in which God is perfect; be good as God is good, after his manner. The words are still high words, but they do not ask impossibilities. Countless obscure Christians in "nameless little unremembered acts of kindness and of love" are living up to, and living out, this command. The Christian counsel of perfection is not, therefore, a counsel of moral despair.—The Fellowship of Prayer, 1937.

CHRISTIAN LITERATURE

Rev. Walter Dyck, Young People's Representative of the Western District sent in the following:

"Non-Resistance Under Test"

> "The Thrilling Experience of a Young Man Who had the Courage to Stand for His Conviction, and Why—" Mr. E. J. Swalm, a conscienteious objector in the World War, tells the story of his experiences—call for registration, farewell to home folks, various tests leading to court-martial, life in the penitentiary, and return to home. Order your copy from the Western District Peace Committee, Walter Dyck, Treas., Burrton, Kans. Price 25c.

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD

When Napoleon was on St. Helena, he was visited by Captain Basil Hall, a Scotchman returning from the Far East. Their conversation drifted to the Luchu Islands and Captain Hall commented on the curious fact that the islanders had no military weapons. "You mean cannon, do you not?" smiled the Little Corporal; "but surely they have muskets." "No muskets either," replied the Scotch explorer, "nor have they any spears or bows and arrows." The Great Warrior gasped. "Why," he exclaimed, "they must be savages."

—World Events

Senior Department

SUPPORTING THE CHURCH

Senior C. E. Topic for February 4, 1940

MAIN TOPIC: What it means to support my church.

Gen. 28:18-22, Lk. 6:38. Ps. 122:1

I. Worship Service

1. Song: "The church's one foundation," In the Cross of Christ I glory," "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord."
2. Reading of main topic, prayer.
3. Special Music: "There's a Church in the Valley by the Wildwood."
4. Offering for Missionary project.

II. Leader's Introduction

All through the New Testament we find the thought of close fellowship and cooperation in Christian service. Paul says we are the "body of Christ," and as such are members one of another. Consider what teamwork there is between the nerves, muscles, and organs of the body. One thought in Paul's mind when he used such figures of speech no doubt was that none of us can accomplish much alone, but we must all work together and go forward together under Christ, who is the head of the church. Paul's thought is a reflection of Jesus' own earlier teaching.

Do not their sharing of Christian ideals, their loyalty to the same Lord, and their common experience of self-sacrifice inevitably draw people together in close fellowship?

III. Suggested topics for short talks

1. Financial support. Mal. 3:10.
2. Charitable support. Acts 11:27-30.
3. Social support. Acts 6:1-6.
4. Hearty support. Col. 3:23, 24.
5. Intelligent support. Col. 3:16, 17.
6. Diversified support. 1 Cor. 12:4-11.

IV. For discussion

1. What is there about service for and with Christ which endears workers to one another, so that they seem like members of one family?
2. In what way is your "giving" an index of your layalty to your church?
3. In what way is attendance at church services an index of your loyalty?
4. Why do we need to support the church?

V. Facts for study

The Christian church offers to its members the opportunity and privilege of worshipping together, of having fellowship one with another, of presenting a united front to the force of evil, of a challenging program to win others for Christ. It offers Christ and His Way of Living.

Therefore we should support it with our material means, with our time and our talents, with our prayers. Our enthusiasm, our sympathy, our faith in the church and its program are perhaps even more essential than our material gifts.

VI. Illustrations

Bankers urge church attendance.—A twelve-inch advertisement in the Burlington Hawakeye, paid for by the Farmers' National Bank, is as follows:

"How long would there be a Burlington if all our churches should pack up and go?

"How long would you remain a resident after the exodus of the churches?

"Then, if your residence now is worth five thousand dollars, for how much of this value are the churches responsible? Do you think you could sell your residence property for half its value should the churches move out, never to return?

"The church is an inseparable part of the prosperity of each community. Each community prospers and is depressed as its churches prosper and are depressed.

"Support some church according to your ability.

"Go to church today!"—Selected.

Every Occasion an Opportunity.—A pastor of a growing church was traveling on a train, and, finding himself seated beside a fellow passenger, asked, "What is your business?"

"I am a salesman; I sell typewriters," was the answer. "Here's my catalogue. What is your business?"

"I'm a salesman, too. Here's my catalogue," and he handed his companion a Bible.

If the church is trying to make Christians, just as the business organizations are trying to make dividends, should not every occasion be an opportunity for presenting the gospel?

VII. Food for Thought

"It is one thing to want a jewel; another to be willing to pay for it."

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

WHAT IT MEANS TO "ENDEAVOR"

February 4, 1940

For Daily Reading:

Jan. 29. "With thy might." Eccl. 9:10.
Jan. 30. A heathen king's order. Ezra 7:21-26.
Jan. 31. Hezekiah's habit. 2 Chron. 31:20, 21.
Feb. 1. Doing one's best. 2 Tim. 1:5-10.
Feb. 2. The Apostles' way. 2 Cor. 6:3-10.
Feb. 3. "As unto the Lord." Col. 3:22-25.
Feb. 4. Topic. Matt. 5:14-16; Heb. 6:11; 12.

Opening Song: "I Would Be True"

Scripture Reading: Matt. 5:14-16; Heb. 6:11, 12.

Prayer by Leader

Vocal Solo: "This is My Task"

Song: "More Like the Master"

Challenge to thought by leader: To endeavor says Webster means to exert one's self; to work for a certain end. Also, an Endeavorer is one who makes an effort or attempt.—Let us pause today to see whether we truly endeavor. Are we Endeavorers in deed as well as in name?

Silent Meditation

Further challenge: Let us also pause to see what there is that we ought to endeavor to do in order to work more effectively for the future.

Silent Meditation

Discussion: Have you, as was suggested several weeks ago, undertaken some special project for 1940? If you have, it might be well to take account and see what has already been accomplished. If you have not begun as yet, have the members offer suggestions as to projects which they think might be undertaken. After this discussion, read again the definition of an Endeavorer.

Song: "Loyalty to Christ"

Origin of Christian Endeavor: If you can possibly get the Christian Herald of June, 1934, you will find in it much interesting and worthwhile information as to the beginning and the growth of the C. E. movement. Undoubtedly we all know who the founder of the movement was. Perhaps some of you have had the privilege of seeing and hearing the wife of the founder "Mother Clark." For more than half a century she brought this message to young people "Do what Christ would have you do."

We trust that every Intermediate knows the name of the man who became world president of C. E. after Dr. Clark felt he could do it no longer. Of course, it is Dr. Daniel Poling. Dr. Poling has been a worker in Christian Endeavor since he was ten years old. "Today he is recognized counselor of more than four million youth in Christian Endeavor.

Personal testimony: Have the members give testimonies as to what C. E. has meant to them.

Song: "Who Will Follow Jesus"

Offering

In closing repeat all together the Intermediate Christian Endeavor pledge.

Closing prayer by Superintendent.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

"SIR, WE WOULD SEE JESUS" John 12:21b.

Program for January 28, 1940

(Invite your pastor to this program)

Seeing Jesus As Our Saviour.—I Timothy 1:15—"This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief."

I. Worship Period.

1. Prelude—Piano very softly—"Softly and Tendely Jesus is Calling." Mennonite Hymn Book, 150.
2. Call to worship: "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world."
3. Song in unison: Verses 1, 3, 4 of "Love Divine, All Love Excelling." Mennonite Hymn Book, 236.
4. Scripture (Response).

Leader—"God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosover believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."—John 3:16.

Juniors: "All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all."—Isaiah 53:6.

Leader—"All have sinned, and come short of the glory of God."—Rom. 3:23.

Juniors—"Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."—Romans 10:13.

Leader—"If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart . . . , thou shalt be saved." Romans 10:9.

Juniors—"Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow." Isaiah 1:18.

Leader—"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved."

In unison—"For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life."—John 3:16.

5. Leader's prayer.

6. Song (standing)—"Softly and Tenderly Jesus is Calling."

7. In Unison (still standing) 1 Timothy 1:15—"This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am chief."

II. Study Period.

Aim: To help our Juniors to see in Jesus their Saviour and to lead them into accepting Him as their personal Saviour.

1. Introduction: The last few Sundays we have been studying about Jesus. We saw Him in His years of growth, how as a boy he went to school, how he went to worship. We saw Him in His obedience to His parents. We saw Him in loving service, teaching, healing, helping those who needed Him. We saw Him on the way to the cross, without fear, without trembling, all the while thinking of those about Him, strengthening them and caring for them. And we found that "He is altogether lovely." But we must see more than all this in Jesus. If we truly want to know Him and see Him then we must see in Him our very own Savior.

2. A short prayer that this may be accomplished, by the leader. All heads bowed.

3. Solo: (from rear of church, by an older girl). "I Have a Savior, He's Pleading in Glory." verses 1, 3, 4. Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 142.

4. Talk by a Junior Boy.

"We need a Savior"—Isaiah 53:6; John 3:3, 5, 6. Everyone of us was born into this world a sinner. Sin keeps us from living a full, free, happy life, because it separates us from God. We can not of our own will and strength get rid of sin in our hearts and lives. We need One who can cleanse and save. We need a Savior.

5. Talk by a Junior Girl. "Jesus came to save us because He loved us." John 3:16.

6. Song: verse 1—"Love Divine."

7. Talk by a Junior: "We must come to Jesus." Revelation 22:17.

8. Duett, "Jesus is tenderly calling Thee Home." vs. 1, 3, 4.

9. Heart talk by leader. Use the picture "Light of the World," Hunt. Base your talk on Revelation 2:20a: "Behold I stand at the door and knock." There is a door before which, I think, Jesus loves above all others to stand and knock. It is the the door of your young hearts. He says, oh so tenderly, "My son, my daughter, give me your heart. Let me dwell within." It is precious to know that He has forgiven our sins, that we may daily see Jesus, that He will walk with us, talk with us, live with us, live in us, if we but open our hearts to Him.

10. Solo—"O Jesus, Thou Art Standing" v. 2, 3, or (First two lines of each stanza may be sung as a solo, and the last two as a response.)

11. All heads bowed in silent prayer, introduced by leader repeating the last sentence of above song —"Dear Savior, enter, enter, and leave us never more."

12. The leader then prayerfully and reverenly issues the invitation to all who wish to accept Jesus as their personal Saviour to stand. After a moment, those who are standing sing reverently and prayerfully, "Into my heart," followed by

13. A prayer by the pastor.

III. Mission Minutes

1. Refer to the "Missionary News and Notes" of January. Ask several Juniors to report on the Albert Jantzen letter.

2. Wouldn't our Juniors enjoy having a part in the new car for the J. R. Duerksen's of India? Maybe each Junior can earn something before the next meeting, and then bring a gift for this purpose. (Get a toy car from the dime store in which these gifts may be placed. Use it in presenting the project.

IV. Closing Moments

Repeat in unison—1 Tim. 1:15 and John 3:16.
Closing Song: "My Jesus, I Love Thee"
Closing prayer.

CORRESPONDENCE

SALEM ZION CH., MARION, S. D. 1-5-40.

Dear Readers: This time of the year finds us reminiscing the past, counting our many blessings and privileges, but also looking forward to the New Year of which we are so uncertain. — We as a congregation and as individuals have had the glory of Christmas time, emphasized by the sorrow and grim shadows which have settled over so much of the world. — We had a Christmas of happiness, peace, and good will. Many have been denied this, and we earnestly pray that the spirit of peace and good will shall soon spread to all the people of all nations.

Shortly before Christmas the Swiss Choral Society of which many from our church are members, rendered the oratorio "The Messiah," at the College auditorium. They also broadcasted it from a nearby radio station. Christmas eve the children favored us with a very fine program and New Year's eve many young people went out serenading the aged and sick, singing many of the old familiar carols. — The annual business meeting of this church took place Dec. 26. In observance of prayer week it has been arranged to hold four evening meetings the second week of January. It is hoped the weather will be favorable so many can attend.

Death has claimed two aged sisters of this church in the past year. Those who were seriously ill and others who submitted to major operations in recent months have convalesenced and are again able to be about. One who is now confined to a hospital bed we hope shall have a speedy recovery.

Rev. Claassen wishes to start a class in Catechism this month and has invited all who wish to receive this instruction to enroll.—Wishing all, God's choicest blessings in 1940.—Mrs. J. J. Saner, Corr.

—Eighth Street Church, Goshen, Indiana. — The Goshen School of Leadership Training offers the following courses this winter: "The Christian Message for our Present Day World"—Rev Harry Yoder; "Guiding Children in Christian Growth,"—Mrs. Glen Miller; "Understanding Youth,"—Rev. Wyman Hull; "The New Testament: Its Content and Values"—Rev. G. S. Stoneback.

« « JOTTINGS » »

—Mennonite Church, Dallas, Oregon.—We had very fine services during the holidays. The Lord has been very gracious and we are looking forward to baptismal service for 22 or more who have accepted Christ as their personal Savior, and there are some more who will be received by church letter.—H. Leisy.

—Freeman, South Dakota, 12-21-39. The Swiss Choral Society rendered the Messiah Oratorio to an appreciative audience last Sunday afternoon in the Sioux Falls Colesium. The chorus was in a particular good mood for the performance and did good credit to its trust. The Sioux Falls Men's Bible Class sponsored the program in the city and paid the expenses involved. Hope was expressed by the sponsors that this thing could be done in a bigger and better way next year. Mrs. M. J. Wollman, Mrs. Alvina Palmquest, Mr. Warren Erickson and Mr. Willard Waltner served as soloists. Mrs. Oscar Gering accompanied on the piano and Mr. Gerhard Toews directed the chorus.

—Brudertal Church, 1-7-40.—On Dec. 26, the Brudertal church had the privilege of celebrating its 65th Anniversary. Missionary P. W. Penner and Dr. P. H. Richert were the speakers. Other numbers on the program were music by four different groups and the histories of the various ogranizations such as Sunday School, Christian Endeavor and Mission Societies, in this congregation.—Mrs. P. W. Penner was taken to the Bethel Hospital at Newton. We hope for a speedy recovery.—After having gone through 1939 without a single death in our congregation, Brother J. J. Nickel, one of our oldest pioneers passed away on New Year's day. He was over 81 years old. Funeral services were held on Jan. 4, at which Rev. Mouttet, Rev. Arnold Funk and Missionary P. W. Penner served. Mrs. H. R. Nickel, Corr.

—Friedensberg Menn. Church, Avon, S. D.—WEDDING.—Married, Miss Marie Schultz to Jacob Voth of Mt. Lake, Minn. Ceremony was performed by the father of the bride, Rev. D. A. Schultz. Rev. I. J. Dick and Rev. H. P. Voth of Mt. Lake also took part in the services.—A new basement and heating plant were added to our church, the dedicatory service of which took place on Dec. 10. Rev. A. P. Waltner of Marion, S. D. was the guest speaker, and Rev. Jake Friesen of Doland, S. D., also took part.—At two well attended meetings we were glad to hear Missionary W. C. Voth of China.—Corr.

—First Menn. Church, Halstead, Kansas.—Fire of undetermined origin caused considerable damage to the church. Lath and sidings were burned up at rear of building, and the rostrum floor was burned. While damage from water was extensive, this was covered by insurance, and the church services could be held without much inconvenience. The local volunteer fire department did fine work in preventing the fire from spreading.

—Rev. Howard G. Nyce of the Mennonite Church, Allentown, Pa., asks for the following correction. In his bulletin there was a statement that he would preach a sermon on "The Denominational College," on a recent Sunday. But at the Bluffton East Club Banquet at West Swamp, Dr. Irwin Bauman, who was accompanying the Bluffton College Gospel Team through the East, consented to speak for Brother Nyce at Allentown on that Sunday, while Harvey Bauman, a student served his other charge at Upper Milford.—The Allentown church has observed Bluffton College Day since 1932, in fact it was the first Eastern Church to do so. From 1932 to 1937 the annual Bluffton College Day gifts averaged more than $50.00. In 1938 the Bluffton mite boxes were substituted and since then the gifts avereaged $61.00 per quarter.

—Mennonite Church, Wayland, Iowa.—The two churches in our village are observing Universal Prayer Week. During the holidays many of our young people were home for a pleasant vacation. Dec. 26, the Doras Ladies served the annual H. S. alumni banquet. Our S. S. rendered a very nice Christmas program, including a candle light service, when each class presented their White Gift offering. During our annual business meeting, Jan. 6th, the regular officers were elected and Rev. Wm. Penner was elected to serve for 3 yars. We also adopted a new constitution.—Corr.

—Prof. Lucas Horsch, instructor at Chaffey Junior College, Ontario, Calif. and family visited with cousin Mrs. Roland Van der Smissen's family at Ely, Nevada, during the holidays. While there Brother Horsch preached for the First Mennonite Church of Ely, on Sunday, during the absence of their pastor.

—Rev. William H. Grubb, son of N. B. Grubb and brother of Silas M. Grubb, pastor of the Congregational Church at Amboy, Ill., died, January 1 in St. Mary's Hopsital at Streator, Ill. of heart attack. Rev. and Mrs. Grubb and daughter Dorothy were on a tour visiting friends of some of his former charges in Illinois. When Rev. Grubb got off the car at El Paso to take off the chains, he overexerted himself. At Minonk a doctor had to be called, who ordered him taken to the hospital at Streator, where he lingered from Friday until New Year morning. His entire family was present when he passed away. (More in a subsequent obituary).

—First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas.—In his annual report to the congregational meeting the pastor, Rev. J. E. Entz, reveals some interesting facts which all indicate life and growth. The church now has a membership of 575, and the total membership with children and young people not yet full members is 868. In the last five years 205 members were received into the church, 34 have left it and 25 have died, leaving net gain of 141 members. By decades the membership presents the following table: 1878—24 charter members, 1890—133 members, 1900—208, 1910—225, 1920—250, 1930—354, and January 1940—575

— Don E. Smucker, for two years the efficient secretary of the Institute of International Relations held at Bethel College, is now with the Fellowship of Reconciliation at New York City. In a recent letter he says, a survey was recently made of 54,000 Catholic students, on the question of war. 35% or about 18,000 declared their intentions of being conscientious objectors in the event U. S. A. went to war. While this is encouraging to friends of peace, it is sad to hear that the government has just rented 15,000 outdoor posters, and sent 500 recorded advertisements to radio stations, all for the purpose of recruting to the army and navy. He says, "I am very happy in my job with the Fellowship, since I can spend all my time preaching Christian non-resistance to Christians of all denominations." — Mr. Smucker visited Bethel and some other colleges during the holidays and incidentally he and his wife visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Claassen, at Newton.

— Bethel Church, Fortuna, Mo., 1-5-40—Our Annual business meeting, Jan. 4th, a new correspondent was chosen, i.e., Mrs. O. E. Baumgartner, Versailles, Mo. I am turning over to her the material I have left, and she will report for 1940. Our church has decided to put in electric lights and has just finished soliciting pledges to pay for wiring the church and the parsonage. Wishing you much grace and wisdom for your work in 1940.—Mrs. Jacob Unruh.

— Second Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—Suggested new year's resolutions: Resolved: That I will make a practice of going to church regularly every Sunday, and let my unfailing attendance be a stimulus to the leaders of the church, a source of inspiration to other worshippers, and a helpful influence to the youth of our community. 2) Resolved: That I will maintain a reverent silence while in the House of God; will refrain from whispering to my neighbor, from nervously rustling the leaves of the hymnal, and from looking at my watch in the middle of the sermon. 3) Resolved: That I will take special pains to speak to the lonely stranger and give him a cordial invitation to come again. 4) Resolved: That I will regard going to Church as a privilege and not a responsibility, a paying investment instead of a mortgage on my time and money.—Adopted from "Resolved," Duplex Env. Co.

—First Mennonite Church, Lehigh, Kans., Sunday before Christmas the Ladies' Mission Circle went out singing for the shut-ins and old folks. They also presented them a gift of Christmas cookies and pepper nuts.—We are observing the Prayer Week at this time. Arrangements have been made by the pastors of the Johannesthal, Hillsboro and Lehigh churches to have joint meetings in the three churches, changing about.—The time goes by faster than we imagine. To-day it is three years ago that Rev. Bernhard H. Janzen came to Lehigh the first time. We praise the Lord for all spiritual blessings in three years.—Corr.

— Greetings and Letters from Missionaries.—We sincerely appreciate Christmas and New Year's greetings from the following missionary families in China: Loyd, Lelia, Betty Jean, Anita and Donald Pannabecker; Floyd, Sylvia, Richard, Robert and Alice Ruth Pannabecker; Albert, Wilma and Grace Joan Jantzen. In due time we hope to share some of the things their letters tell with our readers. Unfortunately the Doctor Lloyd Pannabecker family are separated, Mrs. Pannabecker and children are residing at the College of Chinese Studies at Peking, where the mother is recovering from a threatening cough and resting, while the children are attending school. The Doctor is kept very busy at the hospital in Kai Chow.

— Berne, Indiana, Loses One of Its Veteran Farmer Citizen.—C. C. Sprunger, 79, prominent retired farmer, died at his home in town, the victim of a stroke. The decedent, a good farmer and interested in different enterprises, with his good wife lived at the north edge of town, where they raised a large, respected family. The parents celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in January, 1932. Brother Sprunger, a faithful member of the First Mennonite Church, is survived by his aged wife, six sons and three daughters and their families; Bessie, wife of Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, Quakertown, Pa., being one of the daughters. The deceased was also a brother of Benjamin Sprunger, prominent citizen and deacon of the local Mennonite church.—Berne Witness.

— Bluffton College has arranged a regular system of broadcasting over station WLOK, Lima, Ohio, each Tuesday and Friday afternoon from 4:00 to 4:30. During the first semester the programs were mostly musical, and talks by faculty members. This semester Dr. C. H. Smith, will each week give a talk on "Background of the News," an historical interpretation of present day world affairs. The Lima station can be heard over a radius of 75 miles and can reach about 72,000 homes.

— First Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—This is DIAMOND JUBILEE YEAR" for this church, which means that it has existed 75 years. With the help of God, pastor and congregation aim to make this anniversary year the biggest and best of all.

— Second Church, Beatrice, Nebr.—Our church papers, The Mennonite and the Bundesbote can bring much knowledge and inspiration into your home in the New Year. Have you provided for receiving at least one of them?—Bulletin.

— Bethel College.—A second time Minnesota students on their return to Bethel College after the holidays had an accident, which occurred New Year's day near Denison, Iowa, when a car passing them forced them off the road. Selma Dick, Louise Schroeder, Anna Regier, Henry Buller and Kathryn Nickel escaped with minor bruises, while Gladys Klassen, with an injured foot and bumps had to miss school some days. Their car was so badly smashed that they had to continue the trip by bus and train.

IN MEMORIAM

Our father, JACOB DYCK, son of Johann and Anna Claassen Dyck, was born July 20, 1849, in Ellerwald, near Elbing, Germany. He received his elementary education in a village school at Ellerwald, later on assisting his father on the farm.—In 1866 he was baptized upon the confession of his faith by Elder Johann Andres and received into membership of the Mennonite church at Elbing. —In his life sketch, he records, that in 1881, coming in contact with Evangelists from St. Chrischona and other believers, he was lead to see his sinful and worldly life, and yielded to the leading of the Holy Spirit and to be wholly dependent upon God.

On September 25, 1873, he was united in marriage to Sara Janzen of Lupushorst. They made their home on a farm in Laakendorf. Here they joined the Rosenort congregation. Their union was blessed with seven children, two daughters and five sons; two of the sons passed away in early childhood.

In 1893 our parents came to this country, making their home about 3 miles N. W. of Elbing, Kansas. Father was active in church and Sunday School work. Here they became members of the Zion Church. God graciously blessed him with spiritual and temporal blessings, of which he gladly shared with others. On September 25, 1898 our parents were privileged to celebrate their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.—After being in this country about ten years, they made a visit to their relatives in Germany, and again after seven years, mother having passed on, father undertook another trip to his native land.—On April 25, 1908, the Lord called mother from his side. Since then he felt rather lonesome. He gave up farming and made his home with his children. He enjoyed fairly good health, loved to associate with others and took interest in church and in conference affairs.

Having passed his 90th year, he grew steadily weaker. He was taken to the Bethel Hospital, to be under doctor and nurses care. Soon a stroke of paralysis made him entirely helpless. Being somewhat improved, he was taken to the Home for the Aged on November 3. He remained there till the last morning of his life, he had to be returned to the Hospital, pneumonia developing, he passed away on Christmas eve at 11:15 to be present at the great Christmas celebration in heaven.—By special grace of God, father reached the age of 90 years, 5 months and 4 days. His longing has been fulfilled: "Having a desire to depart and to be with Christ, which is far better."

He is survived by two daughters, Maria, Mrs. Ernst Kuhlmann, missionary in China; Anna, Mrs. Sam Fiedler, of Newton, Kans.; three sons, Rev. H. J. Dyck, Elbing; Herman Dyck of Elbing; Frank Dyck of Peabody, and their husbands and wives; twelve grandchildren, five greatgrandchildren, one brother and one sister in Germany and many relatives and friends.—Funeral services were held at the Zion Church at Elbing, on Dec. 28, 1939.

TREASURER'S REPORT FOR THE HOME MISSION BOARD FOR DECEMBER

Buhler Mennonite Church, Buhler, Kans., $13.18; First Colfax, Wash., $53.72; First, Upland, Calif., $19.56; First, Monroe, Wash., $10.00; Bethesda, Marion, S. Dak., $65.00; Wanderers Welcome Class, Upland, Calif., $5.00; First, Aberdeen, Idaho, $45.79; Bethesda, Henderson, Nebr., $52.94; Grace, Pandora, Ohio, $181.72; Thanksgiving Offering, Salem & Salem-Zion Churches, Freeman, S. Dak., $62.36; Salem-Zion, Freeman, S. Dak., $15.00; New Hopedale, Meno, Okla., $24.80; Zion Elbing, Kans., $153.87; Menn. Church, Near Lind, Wash., $29.00; Johannesthal S. S., $12.89; Hutterdorf, Freeman, S. Dak., $30.28; Menn. Church, Summerfield, Ill., $15.00; Mennonite Church, Deer Creek, Okla., $16.33; Bethel, Hydro, Okla., $10.00; Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Treas., Ex. Com. of Mission Societies, $224.98; Mennonite Church, Buhler, Kans., $31.98; First, Reedley, Calif., $21.57; West Swamp, Quakertown, Pa., $23.00; Mennonite Church, Pulaski, Ia., ... ; Gardentownship, Hesston, Kans., $26.00; Menn. Church, Lehigh, Kans., $14.11; Salem, Freeman, S. Dak., $125.00; First C. E., Aberdeen, Idaho, $10.00; Mennonite Church, Inman, Kans., $18.23; Salem S. S., Freeman, S. Dak., $55.00; San Marcus, Paso Robles, Calif., $23.96; B. R. Regier, Elbing, Kans., $50.00; Upper Milford C. E. Zionville, Pa., $10.00; Bethel, Pa., $18.50; Menn. Church, Pulaski, Io., $7.00; First, Hutchinson, Kans., $24.71; Second Mennonite, Philadelphia, Pa., $45.00; Mennonite Church, Richey, Mont., $10.94; Hoffnungsau, Inman, Kans., $100.94; H. D. Voth, Escondido, Calif., $10.00; First Allentown, Pa., $15.64; Zion, Arena, N. Dak., $7.00; Salem, Dalton, Ohio, $37.37; First, S. S., Upland, Calif., $8.41; Bethany, Freeman, S. Dak., $70.95; A friend, Newton, Kans., $100.00 Bethel College Church, North Newton, Ks., $20.24; First, Bluffton, Ohio, $35.00; Mennonite Ch., Pratum, Ore., $22.10; Friends, Biglerville, Pa., $500.00; First S. S., No. 38, Berne, Ind., $10.00; First S. S. (Mission Off.), Berne, Ind., $216.14; First, Napanee, Ind., $100.00; Grace, Landsdale, Pa., $60.61; St. John's, Pandora, Ohio, $162.25; Bethany, Quakertown, Pa., $33.99; Miss Louisa Hiestant, Allentown, Pa., $1.00; First, Hillsboro, Kans., $30.00; First, Aberdeen, Idaho, $50.00; Bethesda, Henderson, Nebr., $45.57; First, Mt. Lake, Minn., $25.59; A Friend, Hillsboro, Kan., $2.56; Immanuel, Los Angeles, Calif., $48.50. Total, $3,310.87.

Special: S. S. & C. E., Bakersfield, Calif., (Pacific Conf.) for Swift Current project—$104.45.

CANADIAN Offering sent to Rev. David Toews: Blumenort, Gretna, Man., $25.00; B. B. Epp, Whitewater, Man., $15.00; H. P. Lepp, Reesor, Ont., $5.00; J. D. Epp, Traux, Sask., $8.50; K. Redekopp, Vauxhall, Alta., $12.00; P. Fast, Pelee Island, Ont., $17.50; Jacob Friesen, Eyebrow, Sask., $1.50; Mrs. Regier Entz, Newton, Kans., $10.00; G. G. Neufeld, Manitou, Man., $7.00; Jacob I. Friesen, $3.00; Anonymous, Rosthenr, Sask., $1.00; Jacob J. Epp, Eigenheim, Rosthern, Sask., $9.00; A. Hiedebrecht, Ladies Aid, Gruental, Man., $5.00; Mrs. H. Riesen, Regina, Sask., $10.00; Rosthern, $1.50; J. J. Epp, Eigenheim, Rosthern, Sask., $3.50; G. H. Bock, Crystal City, Man., $8.00; P. J. Born, McGeary, Man., $7.80; Wm. Bartel, North Star, Drake, Sask., $80.00; Great Deer Church, Sask., $15.59; Nordheim, Dundurn, Sask., $35.00; C. J. Reimer, Glidden, Sask., $16.00; C. Buhr,, Zoar Church, Langham, Sask., $22.40; Ladies Aid, Langham, Sask., $20.00; Eigenheim Church, Rosthern, Sask., $37.50; V. E. Nickel, Wymark, Sask., $17.00; John D. Epp, Traux, Sask., $9.95; Jacob I. Friesen, Lena, Man., $5.00; B. B. Epp, Whitewater, Man., $20.00; Ladies Aid, Sardis, B. C., $15.00; Ebenfeld Church, Herschel, Sask., $25.00; Ladies Aid, Glidden, Sask., $15.00; Ladies' Aid, Superb, Sask., $9.06; Rosenort, Rosthern, Sask., $147.00; I. Thiessen, Brooking, Sask., $4.25; Essex County United Mennonite, $100.00; P. P. Hussar, Alta., $13.70; Zoar, Waldheim, Sask., $62.65. Total, $820.40.

Grand Total, $4,235.72.

DISBURSEMENTS:

Vouchers drawn for salaries, rent, taxes etc., $2,800.77.

All receipts gratefully acknowledged.
J. J. Plenert, Treas.
429 Knorr Street, Phila., Pa.

FOREIGN MISSION RECEIPTS FOR DECEMBER, 1939

Goessel Menn. Ch., Goessel, Ks., $371.60; West Zion Jr. C. E., Moundridge, Kans., $25.00; First Menn. Ch., Butterfield, Minn., $37.37; Mrs. Kate Schumacher, St. Louis, Mo., $5.00; Menn. Ch., Buhler, Kansas, $109.95; Zoar Church, Goltry, Okla., $2.15; Fredrick Peters, Hillsboro, Ks., $1.35; First Menn, Ch., Colfax, Wash., $107.46; First Menn. Ch,, Upland, Calif., $42.87; Bethlehem S. S., Bloomfield, Mont., $16.60; C. D. Epp, Henderson, Nebr., $30.00; First Mennonite Church, Monroe, Wash., $9.40; C. E. Soc., First Menn. Church, St. James, Minn., $40.00; Tabor Ch., Goessel, Kans., $567.78; West Zion Ch., Mdge., Kansas, $31.00; First Menn. Church, Hillsboro, Kans., $100.10; Eden Young Ladies Bible Class, Schwenksville, Pa., $60.00; Hebron Church, Buhler, Kans., $72.99; Jos. C. Graber Sr., Pretty Prairie, Kansas, $10.00; Bethel College Ch., North Newton, Kans., $22.98; Hofnungsfeld Church, Rabbit Lake, Sask., $6.50; Wanderers Welcome Class, Upland, Calif., $5.00.

Menn. Ch., Wayland, Ia., $16.22; Bergthal Church, Corn, Okla., $26.61; Coll., Busby, Mont., $13.20; First Menn. Church, Aberdeen, Ida., $68.91; Bethesda Ch., Marion, S. Dakota, $50.16; Home for Aged, Goessel, Kans., $7.00; Swiss Church, Whitewater, Kans.,$33.12; Johannestal S. S., Hillsboro, Kans., $25.77; Bergtal Ch., Pawnee Rock, Kans., $27.19; Alexanderwohl Ch., Goessel, Kans., $1379.83; Grace Ch., Pandora, Ohio, $181.72; Friedensberg Ch., Avon, S. Dak., $9.14; Christian Ch., Mdge., Kans., $88.00; Menn. Church, Goltry, Okla., $1.00; Bethany Church, Norwich, Kans., $24.06; First Menn. Ch., Berne, Ind., $15.00; S. S. Class, Mt. Lake, Minn., $10.00; Hereford S. S. Prim. Dept., Boyertown, Pa., $30.00; Salem Church & Salem-Zion Church, Freeman, S. Dak., $187.08; Salem-Zion Church, Freeman, South Dakota, $45; Neu Hutertaler Ch., Bridgewater, S. Dak., $27.16; West Swamp Ch., Quakertown, Pa., $36.80; Menn. Church Lehigh, Ks., $65.34; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Claassen, Paso Robles, Calif., $30.00; Bethel Ch., Mt. Lake, Minn., $175.00;

C. E. Soc., Arena, N. Dak., $20.00; Sidney, S. Borneman, Bally, Pa., $40.00; Menn. Young PeoPles C. E., Aberdeen, Idaho, $30.00; First Menn. Ch., Geary, Okla., $10.00; P. D. Dirks, Burrton, Kans., $10.00; Bruderthal Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., $170.41; Menn. Ch., Deer Creek, Okla., $26.66; Menn. Ch., Summerfield, Ill., $35.00; Bethel Ch., Hydro, Okla., $10.00; First Menn. Ch., Paso Robles, Calif., $20.26; San Marco's Ch., Paso Robles, Calif., $17.39; First Menn. Ch., Newton Kansas, $343.92; Mennonite Church, Pratum, Oregon, $30.86; Meadow Church, Mingo, Kans., $22.74; Elizabeth Voran, Phoenix, Ariz., $12.00; First Menn. Ch., Reedley, Calif., $13.52; Menn. Ch., Pulaski, Iowa, $18.15; First Menn. Ch., Mt. Lake, Minn., $54.47; Eden C. E. Soc., Mdge., Kans., $26.87; Bethel Ch., Perkasie, Pa., $17.00; Ebenezer Ch., Bluffton, Ohio, $100.00; First Menn. Ch., Upland, Calif., $60.00; Menn. Church, Inman, Kans., $21.75; First M. S. C. 32, Berne, Ind., $90.00; First Menn. Men's Chorus, Berne, Ind., $48.97; Bruderthal S. S., Hillsboro, Kans., $52.00; Menn. S. S., Burrton, Kans., $34.87; Vineland, Chorus, Beamsville, Ont., $6; Salem Ch., Freeman, S. Dak., $150.00; Children's S. S., Pretty Prairie, Kans., $4.00; Bethesda Ch., Henderson, Nebr., $55.34; Mennonite Ch., Richey, Mont., $21.88; Herald Ch., Clinton, Okla., $4.96; Second Mennonite Ch, Philadelphia, Pa., $45.00; Upper Milford C. E., Zionville, Pa., $10.00; Immanuel Jr. A Girls, Los Angeles, Calif., $5.00; J. C. & Nettie Wedel, Tampa, Kans., $13.00; Young Girls Class, Grace S. S., Landsdale, Pa., $5.00; Salem S. S., Freeman, S. Dak., $100.00; Menn. Ch., Halstead, Kans., $17.00; West Zion C. E., Mdge, Ks., $50.00; West Zion Intermediate C. E., Mdge., Kans., $20.00; Hoffnungsau Ch., Inman, Kans., $403.76; Bergthal Ch., Pawnee Rock, Kans., $20.43; Fairfield Ch., Ortanna, Pa., $150.00; Bethany Ch., Freeman, S. Dak., $65.00; Ladies' Bible Class, Grace Ch., Lansdale, Pennsylvania, $5.00; Bethel Church, Perryton, Texas, $13.25; Bergfelder Ch., Mt. Lake, Minn., $88.69; Eden Ch., Inola, Okla., $20.32; First Mennonite Altruist Class, Bluffton, Ohio, $15.00; First Menn. Church, Hutchinson, Kans., $36.86; Zion Ch., Arena, N. Dak., $7.00; Salem Jr. Dept., Dalton, Ohio, $99..75; First Menn. Ch., Allentown, Pa., $30.76; First Menn. Ch., Aberdeen, Idaho, $75.10; Christian Ch., Mdge., Kans., $43.06; St. John's Ch., Pandora, Ohio, $324.52; East Swamp Ch., Quakertown, Pa., $25.00; Gnadenberg Ch., Whitewater, Kans., $10.74; First Menn, S. S., Mt. Lake, Minn., $90.00; E. G. Warkentin, Lehigh, Kans., $45.00; Bethel S. S., Enid Okla., $6.25; West Zion S. S., Mdge., Kans., $10.85; First Menn. Church, Bluffton, Ohio, $50.00; German Bible Class, North Newton, Kans., $10.00; First Menn. Church, Lima, Ohio, $21.76; Mrs, Leah Bruechy, Berne, Ind., $20.00; First Menn. Ch., Berne, Ind, $164.43; First Menn. S. S., Berne, Ind., $648.42; New Hopedale S. S., Meno, Okla., $38.51; First Menn. Ch., Nappanee, Ind., $125.00; Friedensberg S. S., Avon, S. Dak., $50.00; Eden S. S., Moundridge, Kans., $535.53; H. S. Bachman, Woodlake, Calif., $5.00; Emma K. Bachmann, Woodlake, Calif., $5.00; Immanuel Ch., Los Angeles, Calif., $42.50; C. E. Soc., Goessel, Kans., $10.00; First Menn. S. S., Butterfield, Minn., $15.35; Int. & Rents, $104.75; Ex. Com. of Miss. Soc., Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Treas., $406.07—Total, $9,931.09.

Balance on Hand, Dec. 1, 1939		$ 1,033.42
Gifts for General,	$8,909.34
Gifts for Spec, Support	847.00
Interest & Rent	104.75
Sundries	70.00	9,931.09
		$10,964.51
Paid out on Orders		10,850.62
Balance on Hand, January 1, 1940,		$ 113.89

Respectfully submitted,
J. E. Regier, Treasurer.

1001 EAST BROADWAY
NEWTON, KANSAS
JA 41
KEY 33

The Mennonite

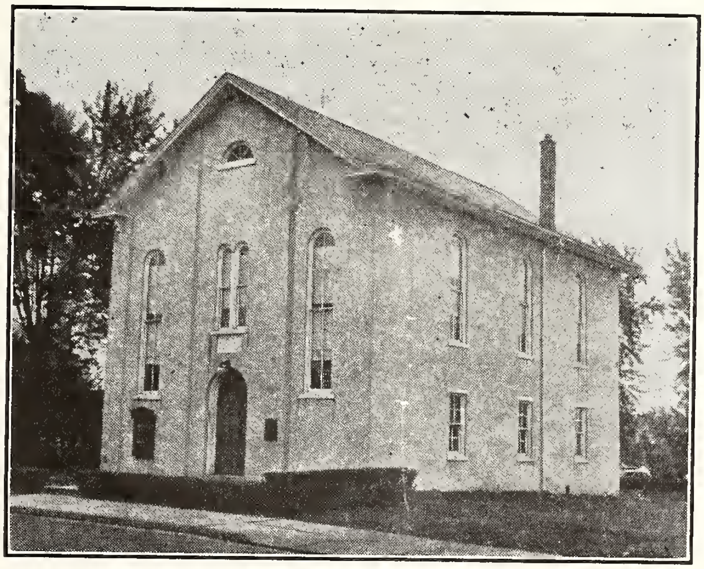
"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, JAN. 23, 1940 NUMBER 4

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

Grace Mennonite Church, Lansdale, Pennsylvania

In the true, original, catholic, evangelical religion of Jesus Christ, and in this alone, all the individual religions of Christendom find their union, their response, their support. Find out His mind, His character, His will; and in His greatness we shall rise above our littleness; in His strength we shall lose our weakness; in His peace forget our discord; in His love enjoy heaven on earth.—Dean Stanley.



From generation to generation the spiritual church is rising upwards toward its perfection, and, though one after another the workmen pass away, the fabric remains, and the great Master-builder carries on the undertaking. Be it ours to build in our portion in a solid and substantial manner, so that those coming after us may be thankful for our thoroughness and inspired by our example.—Wm. M. Taylor.

This building was purchased from the Evangelicals a little over ten years ago. The meeting house is located in a town of 8,000 population just 23 miles north of Philadelphia. The congregation was served by Rev. D. J. Unruh for the first seven years and Rev. Olin A. Krehbiel has been pastor since that time. The present membership is 229. Names common on the church roll are: Fretz, Bishop, Detwiler, Gehman, Kulp, Yost, Moyer, Smith, Gerhart, Hawthorne, Scholl, Stubbs, Van Sciver, etc. The Tenth Anniversary services will be held from February 4 to 9, to recall and thank God for His many blessings.

A VISION OF MENNONITE UNITY.—Not long ago three Methodist Conferences agreed to unite and work as one body, more than eight million strong. What an accomplishment, what blessings ahead! In America, the different branches of Mennonite faith probably number about 150,000 all told. And one would naturally imagine that it would be easier for the groups comprising this total to unite than for millions. In a recent article in the "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" we find this: "A new Methodism moves into a new year, girded with power and guided by God, in holy passion to advance the Kingdom. . . Methodists have realized that unification would be the means of bringing a more vital Christianity to bear upon the world's needs. Methodism has been brought to the Kingdom for such a time as this." This union has not only revitalized the old stock of the church, but it has given their young people an impetus for work and aggressive action that appears quite astonishing. So the paper goes on saying, "Methodist youth advances in working for peace." They are aware of the fact that Christian love cannot be passive, but must be aggressive. They employ all worthy means of creating a Christian conscience against war and a purposeful passion for a program of world peace."—"Methodist youth advances in seeking others! The genius of Methodism has been its passion for people. . .It must be a company of Christians compelled of God to seek the least and last and lost."—"Methodist youth advances in sacrificial giving! Our dream of service, our hopes for advance depend upon our vision of stewardship. . . . Youth is always disappointed with sham and much talking. Our high resolves must be undergirded with dollars and cents." — "Methodist youth advances in community service! . . . The world mission of Christianity takes on an enhanced meaning as each congregation envisions the opportunities that lie within the shadow of its spire."—"Methodist youth advances in church loyalty," . . . . because differences have been minimized in favor of unity. Methodist young people find reason for an increased church loyalty . . . They feel themselves to be a part of that vast body of advanturous persons in every century who have dared to serve God and man." Thus Methodist youth.

How about us Mennonite people? Our Mennonite young people of all shades would be ready, we venture to assert, to undertake a similar program if their leaders and old minds could only catch the vision that unity with them is entirely possible, if they would counsel and plan in true love, unselfishness, and an eye single to the advancement of the Kingdom. The Methodists united on the basis of fundamentals and essentials, putting aside non-essentials. Our young people in their desire to go ahead and do things for Christ Whom they love and are anxious to serve are, we dare say, ready to join hands. How long will the older folks hold back?—T.

How Jacob Ammann Practiced Forgiveness

In our Sunday Schools we have just discussed the great problem of Forgiveness. In this connection it may interest the readers to know a couple of happenings that show how Jacob Ammann, that "Taeufer" saint in Switzerland, after whom the Ammish Mennonites are named, lived the Jesus way in acts of forgiveness. His home was situated about three miles from the village of Bowil, "Kanton Bern." The place was called "Hinterhaus" and still existed, when the writer visited his boyhood home near Bowil in 1909. It nestled at the base of a slope wooded with pine trees. It was one of those large spreading farm buildings which include the dwelling, threshing floor, barn, sheds, etc., with a widely overhanging roof.

One night after Ammann heard something going on outside. As it was probably a moon-lit night, he could notice several persons hoisting a manure wagon up ladders and later manure. While this was going on, he awakened his good wife and told her to make some coffee and get a lunch ready, as they had a group of men working for them outside. When the persons who proved to be youngsters seemed to be about done with their task, he stepped out, and remarked that as they had worked hard, they should come in and have a cup of coffee and something to eat. Though the fellows squirmed and hesitated, they were so struck with the man's goodness that they found their way into the "grosse Stube," where a nice lunch and the greetings of Mrs. Ammann awaited them. Ammann then returned thanks for the food, for young manhood full of energy to do things that might be turned to good, but which sometimes bubbles over in apparently innocent frolics or pranks, which might prove offensive to some people, but which he was inclined to overlook and forgive. After the lunch the youngsters humbly apologized and proceded to put the wagon, sitting on top of the roof with its load, back where they belonged.

At another time, also in the night, father Ammann felt drawn to the granary, where there was a good supply of spelt, a wheat-like grain from which the hull does not separate in threshing. When he opened the door, a man with a lantern, who had filled a big sack with this grain, tried to whisk passed him. But the saintly man stopped him and gently asked what this meant. The intruder told him, he had no work but a large family with children at home who were hungry for bread. He had figured that his well-to-do-neighbor had enough bread material and to spare, and wouldn't miss what he was about to take. Father Ammann expressed his sympathy, filled the sack for him, helped put it on his back, and dismissed him saying, whenever he found himself in need he should openly come to him for help.—These are two stories that "father told" and are still remembered by "Taeufer" in that neighborhood.—T.

EDUCATION

A. S. Rosenberger

PHILANTHROPY

J. D. Unruh

The "Preliminary Sampling Report" on college income and expenditures for 1938-1939 has recently been released by the Federal Security Agency of Washington. The increase in private philanthropy is particularly worthy of notice. The 90 privately controlled institutions which filed reports with the Security Agency, reveal that gifts and grants to these institutions in 1929-1930 amounted to $3,109,364 while in 1938-1939 such gifts and grants totalled $4,591,505, or an increase of 47.7% over the 1929-1930 level.

Interpretations are always somewhat hazardous, nevertheless one always finds them tempting. Several explanations maybe advanced for increased private gifts during the depression years. On the one hand private institutions have found it extremely hard to tide over this era. In fact, only because of increased donations were they able to survive (not all did, or will). Necessity dictated increased philanthropy. However, one needs to go farther—why were people willing to sacrifice more for private schools when it was proportionately harder to do so? Two thoughts appear plausible. On the one hand the value of our institutions became more apparent as we approached the possibility of losing them. And, on the other hand it certainly must have dawned on many that material investments on occasion could vanish very quickly. Investments in institutions that develop human personalities presented more favorable prospects for stabilized returns. May God grant that among our own people this trend may become more evident. As this spirit grows among us so will we prosper in the things that are really essential.

Delegates from Historic Peace Churches Visit the President

By E. L. Harshbarger, Chairman General Conference Peace Committee

On Wednesday, January 10, a delegation of representatives of the historic peace churches called on President Roosevelt to lay before him their concern for a satisfactory program for conscientious objectors. The delegation laid before the President, during the half hour conference, the following statement and also a detailed plan of action in case of national crisis. The President's reaction was decidedly favorable, especially was he pleased with the definite plan of action. "That's great," he said, "I'm glad you have done it. This is getting it down to a practical basis. It shows us what types of service the conscientious objector will do without fighting. Excellent. Excellent."

Later the same day conferences were held with Attorney General Murphy and the new Attorney General Jackson, where the reception was also most cordial and encouraging. The following morning Brother Hiebert and myself visited Secretary of War Woodring, who also expressed great interest and general satisfaction with our proposals. More can be written about these interviews later.

The following is the letter presented to the President:

December 1, 1939

The Honorable Franklin D. Roosevelt
The President of the United States
The White House
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

On February 12, 1937, you graciously received representatives of the Society of Friends, the Mennonite Church, and the Church of the Brethren, who presented to you statements expressing the historic and unbroken convictions of these groups against war, and their devotion to peace and goodwill. These attitudes grew out of deep religious convictions, based on the spirit and teachings of Jesus, and are a part of a way of life which we believe cherishes the highest values for all men. Today we again submit to you our concerns in view of present world conditions.

We desire, first of all, to express our deep appreciation for your repeated effort to prevent the European war, our warm support of your confident insistence that the United States shall not be drawn into this conflict, and our hope that opportunity will arise for our nation to cooperate with other neutral nations in offering mediation or other peace-promoting techniques toward the earliest possible establishment of peace. We have aslo warmly appreciated your personal interest in the large number of political and racial refugees whose relief and resettlement are so urgent a present obligation for all men of goodwill. Your recent challenging appeal for humanitarian relief to European war sufferers has likewise won the hearty response of our groups. Our own organizations are definitely planning to contribute to such projects in the future, as in the past, not only with the desire to minister to human need, but also to keep vivid the vision of a better way of life than that of intolerance, persecution and war.

Opportunities and responsibilities of relief and rehabilitation for the war sufferers in Spain and elsewhere have come to us recently through the American Friends Service Committee and the service agencies of the Mennonite Church and Church of the Brethren. Our Spanish relief program, after more than two years, is probably drawing to a close, but relief responsibilities in China continue. Refugee colonies in Paraguay and Brazil still require our care and support. Just now we are being asked by interested American groups to assume important new responsiblities for the many tragic Polish war sufferers, and our representatives are now in Europe to investigate, and if possible, to inaugurate this project. This new work will again express in visible form our concern to be of direct service to the innocent victims of war.

If, in spite of all efforts to maintain neutrality, the tragic day should come when our beloved nation is drawn into war, we should expect to contine our work for suffering humanity, and to increase its scope because of the greater need at home and abroad. Such service would permit those whose conscientious convictions forbid participation in war in any form to render constructive service to their country and to the world. We appear today chiefly to discuss with you plans to provide for this alternative service as it may relate to possible conscription, reserving the privilege to offer at a later date a supplementary memorandum dealing with other types of conscientious objectors.

As you know, in the last war the United States Government finally authorized such non-military humanitarian service to be substituted for military service, and furloughed conscientious objectors to this relief work or to farm labor. But this arrangement was provided only after months of confusion and distress, and only after repeated conferences between our representatives and officials of the War Department, because of the lack of any previously established policy. Since we understand that plans are now being formulated for mobilization of the nation's man power if war should come, and since the need for dealing with conscientious objectors would again emerge to confront Government agencies, we venture to suggest the advantage of advance discussion of the problem with the appropriate officials. We should much appreciate the opportunity for such discussion and are prepared to make concrete proposals to such officials regarding procedures for handling conscientious objectors and types of service which might be provided. In this connection we also venture to suggest the desirability of again setting up a civilian agency for dealing with this problem. There is a precedent for this in the action of President Wilson in 1918.

We have come to you, Mr. President, with these requests, because our previous conversations witn you have persuaded us that you both understand and appreciate the position of the historic peace churches. Our desire is to cooperate in finding the best solution to the problem of the conscientious objector, and it is even more to render as loyal citizens the highest type of constructive service we can to our country and to the world.

Faithfully yours,

For the Society of Friends	For the Mennonite Church
Rufus M. Jones	Harold S. Bender
Walter C. Woodward	P. C. Hiebert
J. Barnard Walton	E. L. Harshbarger

For the Church of the Brethren
Rufus D. Bowman
Paul H. Bowman

Our Sunday School Quarterlies

The aim in printing our own Sunday School Quarterlies is to give to the scholars and teachers of our churches the kind of information and inspiration we consider best. The safety zone in life is the zone close to the Savior and His word. There lie also the rich sources of blessing; there the scholar finds his spiritual food; there the teacher must receive his preparation. The desire of the editors is to live in the safety zone and submit to the Sunday Schools the results of their studies and their experiences with the Master.

As the classes which use the Intermediate uarterly will have noticed, a Work-Page has been introduced in the first issue of 1940, with these five divisions:

I. Lesson in History.
II. Lesson in the Study of Human Nature.
III. Lesson in the Life and Teaching of Jesus.
IV. Lesson in the Study of the Nature of God.
V. Lesson in the Christian Life.

Each question aims to stimulate the thinking of the class, to create desire for knowledge, to inspire for better living, and to give opportunity for self-expression, testimony. It is not expected of any teacher to thresh through all the questions in one class hour. In our opinion that would be unfair toward the subject taught and towards the class. Each teacher must carefully select from the material or other sources what is most appropriate and helpful for his class.

The page is considered to be a work-page, although not in common sense of a work-book, where true and false tests, insertion tests, multiple choice questions, and completion questions are given. The teacher is expected to do considerable preparatory work, collecting information to answer the questions, prepare maps, find illustrations and also direct the scholars to do the same. The teacher is expected to work and urge his pupils to work also.—A. Warkentin, Editor.

A Soul-Orienting Christmas

By D. D. Eitzen

Class work, a too-heavy speaking schedule, a research project that needs must be completed by a certain date, and working constantly with individuals whose adjustment problems are too "realistic"—these among other factors such as taking myself too serious, depleted my energy and befogged my Christ-indicated outlook. A vacation-Christmas was imperative and our thoughts were directed to visiting the Sudermans of Oraibi, college friends and mission workers in whose cause we thought ourselves to be very interested.

The first part of the journey through the much-appreciated cities of Southern California was fascinating. Besides the sights and a flat tire there was much to talk about, for we are so little together as a family for visiting purposes. Then came the "endless" stretches of desert wastes. Stanley was replenishing his question box by taking a nap of several hours on the back seat (Donald had stayed home) and the two of us were looking into space, seeing not the occasional cactus of the desert but, mirage-like, questions involving eternity and man's place in it.

For the past few months the fellow ministers of the seminar in Pastoral Psychotherapy had been wrestling with questions like, "What is man?" "What constitutes personality-fulfillment?" "How, by God's grace, can this fulfillment be attained?" and "What is my unique mission as an under-shepherd of Jesus Christ in guiding man to the sheepfold of the Christ-promised abundant life? These questions intrigue us into time-absorbing study which in turn makes very lively and indeed intellect-enlightening but not necessarily soul-orienting discussions. The president of the American Academy for the Advancement of Science, of a few years ago is quoted as having said in his presidential address, "Entangle your mind with a problem and then leave it alone." The sculptor, working on the mole—or dimple, if you please, of his object soon loses all sense of proportion and often backs away from his model to see it in perspective. Similarly it is imperative, for a comprehension of God's ways and man's salvation, to withdraw from intriguing academic questions into prayerful "waiting" a passive beholding. Gradually, yet sometimes strikingly, eternally secondary or irrelevant matters fade into their proper place and one sees the meaning of life in focus. Such insights often precipitate at three o'clock in the morning—or, as one meets a life-"tragedy."

What revolutionary effect hills and mountains have! They remake the blue sky, they give meaning to the desert wastes and the pines. Above all, they remake man's mind, feverish with anxiety.

A fee of one dollar at the government inspection office directed our gaze from the mountains to the yawning deep of Grand Canyon (from 4 to 18 miles wide, 217 miles long and one mile deep). Said the park ranger,—a park ranger to a Christian minister—"man prides himself of his achievements but they are only incidental to God's world." Man's airplanes, as though master of the canyon, haughtily flutter over it but they last at best a few years. Place man's Empire Buildings in this canyon and it's all but a joke—so temporary, its conveniences so selfish! Then I placed my ego with its carefully circumscribed world in it. The impact of the resulting insight upon my ego-protecting shell caused it to crumble. Then came the final blow in the suggestion that Grand Canyon is but a symbol of God's eternal ways and purposes. I broke down in the psalmist's confession, "What is man that thou art mindful of him?" God answered with Hosea 11:8-9; John 3:16—Christmas!

Stanley, snow-covered and feeding the deer of the park looked up and said, "Dad, how do they get such parks?" I explained that when daddy and other daddys paid their taxes, a portion of this amount was used to take care of God's wonders. After a moment he added, "Let's pay taxes!"

OBSERVATIONS AMONG THE HOPEI BRETHREN

We regret that our visit was of necessity restricted to the Oraibi station. On the way we stopped at Moencopi to meet missionary Johnsons, but they were out for the day. We went through Hotevilla but did not have time then to visit. However, that evening, missionaries Amy and Danie Schirmer had their boys' and girls' choruses at a public Christmas program at Oraibi, so we met them there.

At the close of the last meeting several came to express thanks "for telling us of Jesus." Then Quooyawayma spoke tearfully. A young Hopi translated, "We love our missionaries and the Lord is blessing their work, but the Satanic forces are strong. Tell the churches we need their prayers." (Later this man expressed his love by giving the Suderman children and our son Stanley each a sack of pinions.)

I for one appreciate the special musical gift of the Sudermans and their sense of obligation to use this God-entrusted talent with emphasis. The congregational singing of that group is Mennonite-plus. Their Christmas program is evidence of faithful and effective missionary leadership and commendable cooperation on the part of the natives.

I proceed with this report, keenly conscious that it is merely the impressions of one person. Many of them must be naive because my interest in missions has been purely a sentimental enthusiasm with no background of experience or training and lacking in sincere consecration. Since our early youth both Mrs. Eitzen and I had been publicly committed to serve as foreign missionaries. But now as we traveled deeper into an "impossible" country and saw how the Sudermans worked we understood why we never got to the mission field.

This leads me to conclude that prospective student candidates for mission service be tested rather rigorously in their devotion to the cause as well as regarding their aptitude for the type of service which constitutes the work of a missionary. This test might consist of a series of tests. (Since I write wholly unofficially I feel alarmingly free to make these suggestions). A detailed personal analysis of why and how the candidate feels called to serve his Savior in the capacity of a missionary. Such a statement should not be answered, I believe, with a letter of congratulations. Instead, such a candidate should be assigned a big-brother counselor who, by training, devotion and experience is able to understand him, and the real "mission" of missions as to guide him into an intellectually and emotionally sincere acceptance of "his cross." 2) A very thorough clinical physical examination. 3) An emotional inventory. It is very common to be physical robust, intellectually superior, spiritually glib, and emotionally an infant. Such a person facing the trials of a mission program may find himself. If not, he becomes physically ill, and that illness is usually of a type beyond the ken of the medical profession; intellectually confused; spiritually either fanatical, hypocritical or skeptical; and emotionally more and more ego-centric. Personality difficulties do not preclude service as a missionary, but they should be reliably understood and, like physical handicaps, accepted. Says St. Paul, "Then will I glory in my infirmities." 4) Why couldn't a prospective missionary for service at home or abroad have the privilege of a supervised and guided trial service? I wish the "volunteers" in Bible Schools and Colleges might serve part-time in a near-by city mission, or church, or spend the summers as a helper at some of our mission stations in this country. The Arizona mission fields carry on an extensive program of Vacation Bible School, and, I surmize, need help badly. 5) Advisedly I have said nothing of academic mission study courses. I'm afraid of too much theory. Obviously, some of it, if based on reality, is advantageous. But give the candidate a chance to learn missions in the laboratory of life and guide him to make for-the-moment-necessary adjustments and he will be able to "light on his feet" when he faces the unique emergencies of a later situation.

We also heard a part of a S. S. Christmas program "up on the Mesa." (This is a few miles from the "lower village" where the mission work is concentrated.) Before the carefully planned gifts were handed out, brother Kliewer, associate to the Sudermans, announced that only those who were enrolled in the S. S. would get a gift. Obviously, this program had brought out those who were not interested in the spiritual program of the S. S. but were desirous of the material advantages it afforded. (Not radically different from many a church member among us, only less hypocritical). The announcer further pled that those receiving gifts please be satisfied with them. These "candid shots" of human nature "in the raw" revealed in bold relief the emphasis of the evangelical message, "Set your affection on the things above, not on the things on the earth." Paul complains to the Corinthians, "I could not speak unto you as unto spiritual, but as unto carnal . . . . "

A heart-rending revelation was this that a "beautiful" "head" testimony—an intellectual embracing of the fundamental doctrines of Christianity—does not always spell personality redemption. It obviously is the primary step towards the abundant life in Christ, but only that! Conduct-delinquency, however, must not be judged moralistically by us who would be undershepherds of Jesus, for he "was moved with compassion toward them and he healed their sick."

A middle-aged patient in the Methodist Hospital where I serve as chaplain said quite nonchalantly that she had abandoned the faith of her fathers. Later in the conversation she volunteered, with perturbed emotion, "Tinsel - tinsel, Christmas-tree decorations—that is symbolic of what Christmas means to most Americans." Quite true! But a visit to Oraibi unmistakably reveals that Christmas is the beginning of the Creator's re-winning His own. (Rev. 3:20; Col. 1:20-22.)

"Lord thou hast here thy ninety and nine
Are they not enough for Thee
But the Shepherd made answer
This, of mine, has wandered away from me
And although the road be rough and steep
I go to the desert to find my sheep."

"God hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconcilation."—2 Cor. 5:18.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

February 4, 1940

HOLDING LIFE SACRED

A Principle of Temperate Living

Gen. 1:27-31; 1 Cor. 6:19, 20; 2 Cor. 6:16-7:1

Introduction

Our lesson is the first of a series of four on Right Living, which we shall study this year. This lesson takes us back to the creation of man. A right answer to God's high purpose in creating man, will help us to live aright. Today we consider an extremely important principle, that of temperate living. We live in a Christian country in which human life is considered as sacred, and yet our government licenses men to sell to others that which degrades life and reduces many to abject slavery to intoxicating drink habit. Once in control, it reduces many to utter ruin physically, morally and spiritually.

Man Created in God's Image vs 27-31

Man, in contrast with all other animal creatures, was created on a much higher plane, in the image of God (v27). He has intellectual, moral and spiritual capacities similar to those of God himself (Col. 3:10, John 4:24). Man was created a true personality, with the power of conscious reflection, of deliberate choice and ethical character, knowing good from evil. Man has marred this image by sin, but has not obliterated it (Jas. 3:9). God also appointed man to a high place of dominion over created things on earth (vs 28, 29). God had a lofty purpose in mind for man and hoped he would fulfill all his possibilities. Man was to people the earth and subdue it—exercise wise dominion over all. God made ample provision for the physical nourishment of all created life (vs 29, 30). God made everything very good. Man has marred that goodness by permitting sin to enter his heart. Man has greatly disappointed God.

Body is Temple of Holy Ghost vs 19, 20

Paul is warning the Corinthian Christians against the very common sin of fornication. He is giving the very unique teaching of Christianity against physical impurity, declaring that our body is the temple of the Holy Spirit (v 19). The Holy Spirit is God's gift and dwells in the Christian who has given himself to God and he has no right to defile what belongs to Him. We have been bought with a great price (v20), the shed blood of Christ, and are under obligation to glorify God in our body and spirit.

Believer's Separation from Unclean Living
2 Cor. 6:16-7:1

There can be nothing in common between a temple dedicated to God and one dedicated to idol worship. It is sinful sacrilege to use the body—the temple of the living God—for any sinful associations (vs 16, 17). God's moral requirements are high and exacting and clean moral living is alone consistent with the dignity and sacredness of body and life. The Christian's life will seek to harmonize itself with God in thought, motive and act.

Holding Life Sacred

God has so provided for man's spiritual needs that it is possible for us to have communion with Him. This fact and the fact that man is destined to live eternally, has invested human life with a definite sacredness. Man is a living soul and life is a sacred trust. We hold life sacred when we refrain from everything that may injure health, debase the soul, shorten life. Using intoxicating drink does all of these. We hold life sacred when living a holy life, when doing all possible to make our lives more useful, satisfying and spiritual, when we come in full surrender to Christ who alone can thoroughly cleanse us.

Let the current of your being set toward God, then your life will be filled and calmed by one master—passion which unites and stills the soul.—Maclaren.

SERMON SKETCH

By Edgar Toews

Theme—"Jesus and the Impotent Man"
Text—John 5:6—"Wilt Thou be made whole?"
Scripture lesson: John 5:1-15.

Introduction

Jesus never gave up in despair as he dealt with men. He met all kinds of men. He dealt with them in a mervelous way. He always took a helpful and a hopeful attitude.

Some men were rich and some were poor. Some were respected in the eyes of men, while some were despised. Some were conscious of their own sinfulness while others saw only the sins of their neighbors.

The men with whom Jesus dealt all received the same consideration with the exception of one group. This group consisted of people known as hypocrites. Men who were not sincere.

All who realized their need and were willing to accept help, received more than they expected.

In our text we find Jesus at a place where there was much suffering. Often we find him at such places.

This place was called Bethesda. In many respects it may be compared with some of our modern health-resorts. A great number of impotent folk were present, seeking relief from suffering and pain.

Jesus comes to this place and shows special interest in one particular man. Why this man was singled out we are not told.

Other questions might arise as we look at this narrative but they become unimportant as we center our thoughts on the vital truths of our text.

We notice first that:

I. Jesus is INTERESTED in making men whole

"Wilt thou be made whole?" What a question to a man who had been sick for 38 years.

1. Jesus is interested in men. "We have not a high priest that cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities." Heb. 4:15.
   a. It is always encouraging to know that a friend is interested in us.
   b. Jesus is interested in men who are lonely, sick, and forsaken.
   c. Jesus is interested in our success and in our failures.
2. Jesus is interested in making men whole. He is not in the patching business. He does not merely offer the poor sufferer relief. He wants a new creature. 1 Cor. 5:17.

II. Jesus is ABLE to make men whole

"Arise, take up thy bed and walk."

1. Jesus is able, not merely interested. How different from our human limitations.
2. Jesus can do nothing for the man who is unwilling. Are we always willing to be made whole?
3. Jesus will cause a great change in any man's life.

III. Jesus wants men to REMAIN whole.

"Behold, thou art made whole, sin no more."

This does not mean sinless perfection, but it does mean that sin shall not have dominion over us.

1. Jesus wants men to remain whole.
   a. In order that they may enjoy the abundant life.
   b. To demonstrate Christ's healing power.
   c. To create in others a desire to be made whole.
2. Jesus wants to remove the cause of unhappiness. "Sin no more."
   a. A man who is made whole is expected to live on a high plane.
   b. The Christian life is one in which we may invest our interests and ambitions and truly live.

Conclusion: As ambassadors for Jesus Christ, we should remind men everywhere that Christ is still interested in humanity and in each individual life.

We should ever point men who are in bondage of sin and despair to the one and only source of healing.

Let us examplify, that the power of Christ in our own lives is a living reality.

Notice Regarding Western District Conference Loan Library

1. We again wish to call the attention to the Western District Conference Loan Library of nearly 900 volumes located at Bethel College. Last year fairly good use was made of this library by people and churches in the vicinity, but this winter there has been little demand so far.

2. Now that the postage on books is reduced to 1½ cents a pound, those living farther away can also use the library at very small cost. Books will be gladly mailed them upon receipt of an order.

3. To make the service more accessable for those who call for books, beginning February 1, the library will be open from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m. every day of the week from Monday through Friday, and also Saturday forenoon.

4. About 200 new books are being ordered, and will be available before long. A list of them will be prepared and mailed to interested parties. Those who wish a catalog of the books now on hand should drop us a card.

5. Donations of fairly new and worthwhile books to the library, by people who have no longer use for them will be gratefully received.

A. J. Regier, Secretary
Education Committee of Western Dict. Conference.

—Emmanuel Church at Pratum, Oregon.—"Rev. J. M. Franz pastor of the Emmanuel Church for the past 15 years has hesigned and accepted the call from the Grace Ch. at Albany, Oregon. Rev. Franz and family will go to Albany after June 1. Mrs. John Merryman, 912 Madison Street, Silverton, Oregon, has been reelected correspondent for The Mennonite."

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

CANTON, OKLA., Dec. 29, 1939.

Dear Friends:

Permit me to relate a worthwhile experience which I have had on a visit of a Tuberculosis Sanitarium at Shawnee, Oklahoma. If there is any place where sadness is to be expected, it is this one. Here they lie, many of them far away from their loved ones. In many instances all hope to get well again is gone. And yet, what did I find here? Sadness? Yes, in a few cases, but even in these there was to be found some of the joy of which our Master spoke when he said, "These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be made full."

I stepped into the room of one of the Indian Christians. She looked thin and haggard, and was no longer able to speak audibly, only in a whisper. If there was any one who had reason to dispair, it surely was this poor creature. For in addition to the misfortune of being beset with a hopeless disease and the worry of absent loved ones, she was beset with the illusion that another one than herself was carrying on as mistress of the house. When I told her that on our mission field there were those that had recently accepted the Savior, she whispered with a shining face, "I have prayed for them." Then she told me something that showed me to what spiritual heights our Indian Christians may ascend, it was the statement that she had forgiven those who had mistreated her.

During my next visit in this Sanitarium, I learned that our heroine had passed on into eternity. Our praying helper who had undoubtedly done much for our dear God is no longer here. But it is said that when the Lord calls away a servant, he puts another one in his place. Dear reader, may you not be the one through whose prayers the Lord wants to complete this work? Let us take these words of our Savior to heart: "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ask whatever ye will, and it shall be done unto you. Herein is my father glorified that ye bear much fruit; and so shall ye be my disciples."

With hearty greetings, Benno Toews.

—Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Suderman who have been faithfully and efficiently handling the work of our "Mennonite Publication Office" at Newton, Kansas, both entered the Bethel Hospital with severe attacks of the flu over two weeks ago and, other complications setting in, have since been lingering there seriously ill, so that only their children were permitted to look in on them. But with the help of God they seem to be comewhat better at this writing, Jan. 19. Many have prayed for this good couple and may we herewith invite others to intercede for them that, if it be God's will, they may fully recover.

DR. S. K. MOSSIMAN IS IMPROVING

Dr. S. K. Mossiman, who with his estimable helpmate has fathered and built Bluffton College for 25 years, has been the patient sufferer of an apparently incurable disease for about a year, as many of the readers know. The last couple of months he has lingered in the Bluffton Community Hospital, a very sick man, so that it was feared he might not live to see the new year. Now his condition has taken a sudden turn for the better. Although this information is taken from a personal letter of Mrs. Mossiman, received Jan. 15, we hope she will pardon us if we quote parts of it. She writes: "I am happy to be able to report that Dr. Mossiman is improving. . .and we again attribute this change alone to God's plan for him. . .The Doctors pronounced a rapid growth of the affected part, which could not be removed. . .Now the growth proved to be an abcess. The old incision opened and Dr. Steiner declared that a very large quantity of puss came forth. And that was the turning point. The mind cleared, life returned slowly, but very perceptibly, and now Dr. Mossiman sits up a half hour each day, eats and sleeps pretty well, and we hope to get him home before long."—May God be praised for this remarkable change, and may we all pray to God that He may grant the patient a recovery to fair health.— Editor.

—Dr. P. R. Schroeder still in the Hospital.—Here is what a recent communication from him dated Jan. 17 says: "Since I am still in the hospital I AGAIN WISH TO REQUEST THE EARNEST INTERCESSION OF OUR FELLOW-BELIEVERS. It is 9 weeks today since I came here. Several times the wound seemed to be almost ready to close. Then something hindered again. On January 4, I was on the operating table once more, so the doctor could help healing with a small cut and a few stitches. He thinks now that I may be able to go home soon. My prayer is that the Lord may carry through His Will with me. Romans 12:1, 2.—2Cor. 1:8-11.

Prayerfully yours, P. R. Schroeder

Sacred Heart Hospital, Yankton, S. Dak.

—The Institute for Ministers and Church Workers at Bethel College hit one of the worst weeks imaginable as far as the weather was concerned. It snowed so much, with some drifting, that roads were almost impassible, making it wellnigh impossible for country folks to come in. Yet, people from Newton and students made up considerably, especially of evenings. The Bible Hours by Dr. H. S. Gehman were instructive, the Ministerial Conferences conducted by Dr. W. A. Elliot very helpful and his Evening Addresses were truly rich. The Hour devoted to "Our Children and Their Needs" by people who knew their subjects were greatly worth while and, last but not least, the ladies handled their Women's Hour very creditably.

EDITORIAL STAFF
Senior Department
R. Weinbrenner
Intermediate Department
Huldah E. Myers
Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

Youth and Patriotism

by Eldon W. Graber

Youth in America is confronted with the serious problem of answering the challenge of the future whose beckoning call is, to say the least, confusing. To say that the frontier is gone is correct, but in its place have come so many new frontiers that youth is bewildered and fails to grasp the opportunity before its very eyes. The new frontiers have appeared in at least four different fields—social, economic, political, and religious. It is in the latter two fields that the problems of the Mennonite youth assume a much greater proportion than those of other faiths.

The exact relationship of the church and the state was a matter of great concern to the Pilgrim fathers; it was a vital factor in the colonization and formation of our country, and it is today a problem of no mean proportions to our Mennonite youth. Now the historic peace stand of the Mennonite church dates back even earlier than the formation of our country. But it is the special problem of our youth to present an undivided front to outside influences, to preserve for us and our posterity so great a peace heritage.

No man lives alone. He must associate and deal with other men. He needs some central authority to protect him in those dealings. In the Dark Ages there were councils and chiefs who defended society and regulated its affairs. That was modern government in the beginning.

Since then two principal kinds of government have developed—one in which the citizen is supreme and the government obeys his will, the other in which the state is supreme and controls the citizen. In the first, man created machinery to look after him as a separate individual entity, and he retains the power to run that machinery. In the second, he is merely a small cog in the machinery, his desires and will are sacrificed to the state.

Our American democracy is individualistic. All powers of government are granted or withdrawn by the citizen. The successful operation of such a system of government definitely rests upon the individual citizen, upon minorities and upon majorities. Since minorities must be recognized our Mennonite faith ought to flourish as long as America is a democracy and as long as our Constitution contains the words, freedom of religion. But whether our faith can and will retain its hegemony depends upon the attitude and program of action for our young people.

Perhaps much could be gained by a redefinition of patriotism. It ought to be made increasingly clear that patriotism is not a synonym for bloodshed. Equally clear, however, should be the axiom that love of country and appreciation of her true greatness and protection is not a war time activity, but a peace time duty and privilege. If in this redefinition of patriotism we can show the validity of a creed that does not hamper or destroy democracy and does definitely preserve both a political and a religious heritage, we shall not have contended in vain. It is up to us also, as Mennonites, to make and to keep our country good and great.

Senior Department

LIBERTY AND JUSTICE FOR ALL

Race Relations Sunday

Senior C. E. Topic for February 11, 1940

Main Topic: LIBERTY AND JUSTICE FOR ALL
Matt. 7:12; 25:34-36

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Love Divine, All Love Excelling," "More Like the Master," "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer.
3. Talk or music by a visiting negro, or someone of another race. If that is impossible, let some one impersonate a character of another race, as Booker T. Washnigton, or have a quartett sing some negro spirituals.
4. Offering for missionary project.

II. Leader's Introduction.

"It is both unintelligent and unchristian to discriminate against a person because of his race. Take anti-Semitism, for example. Just because a person is a Jew does not mean that he personally possesses all of the bad characteristics that Jews are supposed to have. Our judgments of what Jews are like are usually all wrong, based on unsound, unscientific, biased observation. We need to look upon people as individuals, without regard to race, and deal with each one according to his need and merit. Jesus treated people so. He never put them in racial cubbyholes. This is particularly evident in the record in John's Gospel of His encounter with the Samaritan woman at Jacob's well."

III. Suggested topics for Short Talks

1. Liberty for an Ethiopian. Acts 8:35-39.
2. Christ's great mission. Isa. 61:1-3.
3. Proper use of liberty. Gal. 5:1, 6, 13, 14.
4. Justice promised. Jer. 23:5, 6.
5. Kindness to enemies. 2 Kings 6:18-23.
6. A foreigner healed. Mark 7:24-30.

IV. Discussion.

1. How did Philip treat the Ethiopian?
2. How was Peter's prejudice toward Cornelius, the foreigner, broken down?
3. How can we cultivate a sympathetic attitude today a) toward Jews? b) toward Japanese and Chinese? c) toward negroes?

V. Facts for Study

Dr. Frank Crane once said that "much of the wrongdoing of the world arises from confusion of mind." People are not so much confused concerning the difference between right and wrong, however, as concerning their personal responsibility. People tell themselves that they are in the grip of forces which they cannot resist: they yield to inherited prejudices, and to the opinions of their associates.

We need to develop the ability to stand up with Christian fortitude for the rights of those who belong to another race. We need to learn to consider them as our equals, and as equally precious in the sight of God. We need to develop an appreciation for the contribution they have made, and are making today for the good of mankind. We should see their possibilities even as Jesus saw the possibilities in those of other races.

VI. Illustrations.

One of the finest portrayals of the text "Suffer the little children to come unto me" is the painting where Jesus is in the midst of the children of all the races, black, brown, yellow, red and white. Race problems will be solved if the Spirit of Love and Charity exemplified in the following story will be put into practice: A young man who recently came into a certain church was asked why he was led to the church. He said that the music attracted him. "I was going by when I heard an old hymn with the strains of the great organ, and something in that music said to my heart, 'Come in.' There was a welcome in the melody. I found a cordial welcome from the congregation, there were handclasps, cheerful faces, and the message of the minister encouraged and strengthened me. There seemed an atmosphere of welcome that just found me."

VII. Food for Thought

Christ has no hands but our hands
  To do his work today;
He has no feet but our feet
  To lead men in his way;
He has no tongue but our tongues
  To tell men how he died;
He has no help but our help
  To bring them to His side.

We are the only Bible
  The careless world will read;
We are the sinner's gospel,
  We are the scoffer's creed;
We are the Lord's last message
  Given in deed and word—
What if the line is crooked?
  What if the type is blurred?

—Annie Johnson Flint.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

ALIKE, THOUGH DIFFERENT

Intermediate C. E. Topic for February 11, 1940

For Daily Reading:

Feb. 5. Welcoming the foreigner. Ruth 2:5-13.
Feb. 6. From the east and the west. Matt. 8:5-13.
Feb. 7. Other sheep. John 10:14-18.
Feb. 8. At the Jerusatlem council. Acts 15:7-12.
Feb. 9. All children of God. Gal. 3:23-29.
Feb. 10. The unity of the Spirit. Eph. 4:1-7.
Feb. 11 Topic. I Cor. 12:5; 12-14, 26-28.
(Race Relations Sunday)

Opening Suggestions—If you live in a community where there are various races of people, we think it would be fine to invite some of them to your meeting. Plan the meeting so that they will be given an opportunity to take part if they wish. If some of them are especially talented along certain lines, ask them in advance to be ready to take part in the program. Should there be a minister of another race in your community ask him to be your special speaker. By all means try and sing a commonly known Hymn or Gospel song in more than one language at the same time.

Opening song: "Everybody Ought to Love Jesus"
Scripture Reading: I Cor. 12:5, 12-14, 26-28.
Prayer by Leader
Song: "In Christ There is No East or West"

Introduction to the poem "Heathen".—"People are much more alike than they are different. After one of the great battles of the World War the nurses found a poem scrawled on the back of an old envelope in the waistcoat of a Tommy who had made the 'supreme sacrifice.' It was written about his Indian fellow soldiers."

Heathen

"I used to think him 'heathen,'
Just because—why, don't you see—
He didn't speak God's English
  And didn't look like me.

"He had a burnt complexion—
Which is 'heathen,' goodness knows—
He ate a 'heathen's rations,
And he wore a heathen's clothes.

"But he's kind to little kiddies,
And there's written in his eyes
A willingness to offer up
  A Christian sacrifice.

"Yes, you'd know him for a 'heathen'
If you judged him by the hide;
But, bless you, he's my brother,
For he's just like me inside."—Onward.

Song: "Love Thyself Last"
Offering
Memorize: Galatians 3:26.

Discussion—Naturally the problems of each society will be different and we trust each leader will consult his superintendent and find the most needful phases of the topic to discuss.

Chorus—Have all join in the singing of the little chorus "Jesus Loves the Little Children"
Closing Song: "The Call of Brotherhood"
The Lord's Prayer

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Program Suggestions for February 1940

BOYS OF THE BIBLE.

Febryary 4.—Boys who loved the things of God.
February 11.—Boys who helped others.
February 18.—Boys who were dependable.
February 25.—Boys who became Kings.
Song for the Month:
Verse of the Month:

"I have no greater joy that to hear that my children walk in the truth. 3 John 4.

Prayer for the Month:

"Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me." Psalms 51 v 10.

"Here Is My Heart", Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 222.

Program for February 4, 1940.

BOYS WHO LOVED THE THINGS OF GOD

I. Worship Period:

1. Prelude—Melody of, "Break Thou the Bread of Life".

2. Call to Worship—Let the words of my mouth and the meditations of my heart, be acceptable in Thy sight, O Lord, my Strength and my Redeemer.

3. All stand and sing: "Break Thou the Bread of Life". Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 187.

4. Psalms 1, read by a Junior.

5. Leader's prayer closing with the Lord's prayer in which all join.

6. Trio—"Sing Them Over Again to Me."

7. Solo—"Sweet Hour of Prayer"—Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 201.

8. Song in unison—"Here is My Heart."—Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 222.

Study Period:

Aim. To help our Juniors learn from experience and service of the characters studied, that they might be strengthened in their Christian lives.

1. A boy who loved God's Word.
   (a) A Junior should read aloud 2. Timothy 1:1-6; 3:14, 15, 16. and Acts 16:1-3.
   (b) Another Junior may discuss Timothy's accompanying Paul on his journey and his usefulness to Paul.

2. Poem: "The Bible A Book For Boys" (by a boy carrying a Bible.)

"The Bible is a good book for boys,
As anyone can prove,
Its full of just such stories
As boys are sure to love.
There's Daniel and his Hebrew friends,
Who to their God were true,
Through fiery furnaces, lions' dens,
And all men's hate could do.
Then prophets brave, who warned of sin
In no uncertain tone.
Who faced king's wrath, but stood their ground
Trusting in God alone.
The story of our Lord Himself
Of Peter, John, and Paul—
Oh, the Bible is the book for boys,
The best, best book of all!

—Selected.

3. A boy who prayed.
   (a) Tell the story of Ishmal as found in Genesis 21:9-20—by a Junior.
   (b) Discuss: "God hears our prayers"—Genesis 21:17—by a Junior girl.

4. Bible Findings on "Prayer." Psalms 4:1; 2 Chron. 7:15; Psalms 39:12a; Psalms 66:19; Psalms 65:2; Proverbs 15:8; Matt. 21:22; James 5:16; Phillipians 4:6.

5. A boy who chose wisely.

3:9a a.—Tell the story of Solomon as found in I Kings 3:5-15 and Chron. 1:7-13.

b.—Discuss: "Solomon's wise chioce" I Kings 3:9a. A Junior c.—Discuss: James 1:5. by a Junior.

6. Leader's Heart Talk.

II. Mission Minutes:

1. Refer to the December "The China Home Bond". Read and then tell the story of Mr. and Mrs. Blackstone that Miss Aganetha Fast tells.

2. Name the new missionaries to China.

III. Closing Minutes:

1. Stand and pray the "prayer for the month", Psalms 51:10.

2. Leader's closing prayer.

3. Doxology.

Program for February 11, 1940.

BOYS WHO HELPED OTHERS

I. Worship Period.

1. Prelude. Melody of "Here Is My Heart".

2. Call to Worship. "O Come, let us worship and bow down: let us kneel before the Lord our maker, For He is our God; and we are the people of His pasture, and the sheep of his land."

3. The piano again softly, the melody of "Here Is My Heart" while a good reader reads the words, all Juniors following them in the Hymnal.

4. Stand and sing above song in unison.

5. Scripture. Ecclesiastes 12:1-6; 13-13.

6. Song. Boy's Chorus—"Work for the Night is Coming".

7. Sentence prayer followed by

8. Leader's prayer.

9. Song in unison—One More Day's Work for Jesus. Mennonite Hymn Book. No. 268.

Study Period. Aim. To help our Juniors to realize that every Christian, even the boys and girls should be active for Jesus and always ready to help others.

1. The story of a boy, who ran after an arrow. Samuel 20:10; 11, 18-22, 35-40.

   This boy, whose name we do not know, did a great work in Israel that day. He saved a king, although he did not know it. This boy had his work to do and he did it well, he ran swiftly and as soon as he found the arrows he brought them to his master. There is a strange sentence in verse 39, "But the lad knew not anything." It is always so.—If we are faithful and quick in doing our duty we often do more good than we know. But we must be busy about our Master's work.

2. The story of a boy, who shared his lunch. John 6:1-13.

   Another boy, whose name we do not know, but whom we love because he was unselfish and gave all he had for others. We might call him the lad who served. There were several things which fitted this boy for his service. On was that he was following Jesus, he was right close to Jesus, and that is the right place to be. He was with the friends of Jesus. Then, he had something to give, it wasn't much in his hands, but in Jesus' hands it was much. We all have gifts, shall we put them into Jesus' hands? And last of all he was willing to give what he had. He had the right spirit, and a willing heart.

3. The story of a boy, who saved his uncle. Acts 23:12-31.

   And a third boy, whose name we do not know, but who did a wonderful service for not only his uncle but for all the world. He was a boy who used his ears to listen, and his head to think. He was couragous, obedient and polite. Isn't it wonderful to know that the Lord who used angels to set Peter free, used this boy to save Paul's life? It may be that we too, in saying the right word in the right place may be instruments in God's hand to save a life for eternity.

4. Discussion of the stories. (Questions and answers by the Juniors.)

5. Leader's heart-talk.

6. Prayer-song (all heads bowed) Verse 1 and 3 of "O, Master, Let Me Walk With Thee." Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 287.

III. Mission Minutes

1. Discussion with the Juniors how our missionaries get the needed money with which to live.

2. Stress, that we should all give to the Lord's cause. Refer to the last paragraph of Dr. P. H. Richert's letter in "The Mennonite" of January 16.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Stand and sing the song for the month. "Here Is My Heart" v. 1, 3.
2. Pray, the prayer for the month. Psalm 51:10.
3. Leader's short closing prayer
4. Doxology.

Youths' Attitude Toward War

Kindly sent in by L. J. Horsch

One youth's attitude toward the European war was expressed recently on the campus of the University of California at Berkeley. The youth is Leonard Mather of Upland, who is president of the Wesley Foundation, a student organization. His views were recently published by the organization. They are timely and of real interest to local people. His comments were published in two installments. The first installment follows:

By Leonard Mather

In this time of war crises we hear a great deal about the obligation of a democracy which must be assumed by its citizens in return for the rights and liberties gained under such a system.

May I ask what some of these obligations are? Must I assume the policy of "My country, right or wrong, but my country"? Have I no higher allegiance than to my country? How can I be loyal to God and to my conscience, and at the same time support my country in the anti-Christian and anti-social business of war? The troubles between the 48 states are solved peaceably largely because we have a higher loyalty to the federal government. How can troubles between the national governments be met and solved if there is no higher allegiance than that to our selfish nationalistic interests?

Do I have an obligation to defend our industrialists' interests in foreign countries? On every hand we hear the unanimous answer, "no." But, will I be called in 1941 to protect loans made by American business to the Allies—made in 1940 at their own risk? What if these business men go bankrupt through a sudden turn in the war's developments? Then comes the tremendous clamor for RFC loans to save these industrialists and business men. Our tax-payers would be compelled to shoulder the burden for credits to belligerents that they had not authorized and in fact had clearly condemned.

Do I have an obligation to defend our democracy in Europe? If we enter this war is not the very first step to give up our democracy, the very same democracy we would defend in Europe? In the time of war the president assumes dictatorial powers. In effect we then have a military dictatorship. Instead of this, let's defend our democracy at home. Let's solve our own economic ills and not play the game of power politics. When our democracy is lost it will not come because of a force from without, but as a direct result of frustrations within our system. When our economic house is set in order, then we need have no fears of the "isms."

Therefore, an obligation I must assume is to develop a consciousness of these ills such as the depriving of some citizens of the right to a normal healthy life because of unspeakable living conditions, or because of unfair wage, etc. In a democracy what right do I have to these privileges if there is one citizen who does not have that right. Who is there to judge?

Also, I must assume the obligation of acting in these matters. After I have become aware of these conditions I must take time to examine the issues involved and to support proper legislation to overcome them. If democracy is as cherished a principle as I say, I certainly must be willing to spend considerable time in its behalf. I must vote and that vote must be a result of intelligent thought, not a rubber stamp for the last person with whom I talked or for a financial neurotic.

The obligations I assume must be constructive. War has proven time and time again thoroughly and undeniably destructive. I shall, therefore, support my country in every way I can, as it builds a better United States and a better world; but never shall I support my country in the futile and ghastly business of war.—Clipping from Upland News.

CORRESPONDENCE

BETHEL MENN. CH., MT. LAKE, MINN. 1-9-40.

Greetings in Jesus' name. Again we have passed the threshold of the new year, little realizing what problems and hardships it will have for us to encounter. But this we know, the same loving Heavenly Father who watched over and cared for us in the past year will sustain and undertake for us in the coming year. When we consider the blessings, physical and material and spiritual, as individuals and families and congregations, or a community at large, our words fail to express the feeling of gratitude in the heart of a child of God who feels totally dependent upon Him. On the other hand, when we consider our own shortcomings we cry out with the publican in the temple, "God be merciful to me a sinner." And we praise Him anew that "He hath made Him to be sin for us, who knew no sin; that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him."

The annual business meeting occured November 27, when new members were elected in the places of those whose terms had expired. On the first Sunday of the new year an impressive consecration service was observed, after the regular service, in behalf of the members of the Board of Deacons and Board of Trustees. With the words of Jesus—"Well done thou good and faithful servant," etc.—used by our pastor, Rev. John Bartel, it was impressed in a specail way upon our hearts that the little deeds faithfully done in His name will not remain unrewarded.

The Sunday school teachers have been elected for the adult classes and appointed for the childrens' classes. It is encouraging to see how willingly the young people serve. Surely this will help them grow in the grace and knowledge of their Lord. I know of no better way to grow spiritually than to serve in a place that requires much earnest and prayerful study of God's word. The young people's weekly Bible classes in charge of our pastor help them much in their path of duty. New Year's Eve was observed with a late program consisting of voluntary songs, testimonies and inspirational thoughts, followed by the customary candle-light service at midnight.

Prayer and Bible-study week, according to the program given out by the general conference, was observed the first week in the new year. The attendance was encouraging and the discussions very helpful.

Two families have been bereaved by the departure of a loved one. The Peter Stoesz family lost their father through a sudden death on December 26, and the F. C. Hiebert family, residing in Bingham Lake, lost their mother on Januray 7, after she had suffered for several weeks. Among our sufferers is grandmother David Wiebe, who has been an invalid for many years and suffered a severe attack of pleurisy about two weeks ago. She has recovered from this, and is patiently enduring the hardships that come with dropsy, as before. Two daughters, Mrs. H. H. Schultz and Mrs. A. P. Siemens, both from Oregon, are with her at present. Mrs. H. R. Quiring, the wife of our faithful church janitor, has been critically ill for the last two months. The many hours which she has spent in agonizing pain have drawn her into close fellowship with her Lord and Master.—A little sufferer is Harold, the 13 year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Fast, who had an operation for ruptured appendix November 27. For a number of weeks, he was in the Bethel Hospital with his precious life hanging in the balance between life and death. At present he is slowly recovering.

May the dear Lord keep us faithful as living stones in His Temple witnessing for Him until He comes.

Mrs. D. H. Fast, Correspondent.

* * *

MENNONITE CHURCH, PULASKI, IOWA.—

At the annual business meeting of the Pulaski Mennonite Church, held on Wednesday evening, January 10, the following persons were chosen to fill the elective offices of the church for the new year:

Chairman, Oscar Dieffenbach; vice chairman, J. A. Baughman; secretary, S. F. Ramseyer; assistant secretary, Russell Augspurger; treasurer, D. L. Widmer; assistant treasurer, Warren Baughman; missionary treasurer, Mrs. Ed. Cowles; assistant missionary treasurer, Mrs. W. M. Delzell; corresponding secretary, Victor E. Swartzendruver; assistant corresponding secretary, Mrs. Harlan Widmer; trustee for three year term, E. M. Cowles; Aid Plan secretary for three year term, E. M. Cowles; Aid Plan valuators for three year term, John Schindler, J. A. Baughman.

The Pulaski church now enters upon the seventy-ninth year in the long period of Christian service to which the founding fathers and mothers dedicated their hopes in sixty-one. May this generation not fail either those before us or those to come later in quest of the Eternal Truths of God for mankind.—V. E. S. Correspondent.

RANSOM MENN. CH., RANSOM, KAN. 1-9-40

May a blessed and happy New Year be God's gift to all readers!—As a church we have experienced God's kindness in many ways during the recent past. We observed Rally Day the latter part of October in which much interest was shown. A number of three-minute talks were given by various young people of our church, referring to the value of attending regularly Sunday school, preaching services, and other activities of the church. The program was interspersed with music by the choir. A bountiful dinner followed.

From Dec. 3rd to 8th we had the privilege to have Rev. P. P. Wedel of Moundridge conduct evangelistic meetings in our church. The meetings were well attended and we trust that many spiritual blessings have come to all of us through these meetings.—Our Sunday school Christmas program, Dec. 24, consisted of music, recitations, playlets by the juniors and intermediates, and a Christmas play entitled: "The Empty Room," given by the high school students of Robert Sargent's Sunday school class. The program was well rendered.

After a very dry fall and early winter, we have received an unusual amount of snow, from 12-15 inches, without much wind. This blanket of snow is a great blessing to this part of the country, for it will give a lot of moisture to the fields and hold down the dust. The thermometer at times dropped to 8 degrees below zero.

However with joy came also sorrow. Death claimed one of our aged church members, Ernest Ummel, aged 69 years, through heart failure. May we all realize that we have no abiding place on earth.—(Obituary later). —Abraham Albrecht.

* * *

EAST SWAMP CHURCH, QUAKERTOWN, PA.

"Hitherto hath the Lord blessed." Another year has gone into eternity, bringing us nearer to the coming of the Lord, the hope of the believer. God has been gracious to us throughout the past year. His spiritual blessings were super-abounding, for which we praise Him. In March, 1939, our annual evangelistic services were conducted for two weeks, by a consecrated man of God, the Rev. Addison J. Horn of Atlantic City. Several decisions were made for Christ, and the spiritual blessings we as a congregation received made us realize the need of such meetings. Similar services are being planned for from Feb. 25 to Mar. 10th of this year. In June, 1939, we conducted our first Daily Vacation Bible School, with an enrollment of 103. In November the Y. P. Society conducted their first Y. P.'s Bible Conference, with Dr. E. Schuyler English of Philadelphia as their speaker. During the past year there were fourteen accessions to the church, six by baptism and eight by letter and the right hand of fellowship. The pastor also reports that he had seven weddings, six funerals, and made 453 pastoral calls.—At the beginning of this New Year, the Women of the church, under the direction of Mrs. Harold Burkholder, organized a missionary society.

At this writing, the pastor emeritus, Rev. W. S. Gottshall, is quite low in strength. May God bless this faithful warrior of the Gospel.

At the yearly congregational meeting our pastor was unanimously re-elected for the coming year, and we move forward with courage, "looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith." During the past year the Men's Brotherhood came to life. New interest has been shown, since we are using as a study the book, "Should God's People Partake in War." This booklet is written by Theodore, son of Rev. J. B. Epp, of Beatrice, Neb. We recommend it to others. At present we have three young men studying for the Lord's work. John Boehr at Bluffton College, Richard Boehr and Burwell Kennedy at the Moody Bible Institute. May God bless us one and all as we labor together to bring men and women to Christ.—Corr.

* * *

BETHESDA CHURCH, MARION, S. DAK.

Our C. E. society sponsored a Sylvester Eve program on December 31, 1939. The program included poems, musical numbers and a talk by Rev. A. P. Waltner, our pastor. In his talk, Rev. Waltner reminded us of blessings we received last year. Thirty-two were baptized and admitted as members and six more were admitted by letter.

Services were held every Sunday except three, when we were invited to attend the ordination services for Orlando and Vernelle Waltner at the Salem Church, Freeman, the farewell services for Missionary August Ewert's at the Bethel Church, Dolton, and the farewell for Missionary Waltner's at the Salem-Zion church, Marion.

During the year three funerals were held, and nineteen ministers from far and near gave messages on Sundays or special services.—Susan Deckert, Corr.

* * *

BETHEL MENN. CHURCH, LANGDON, N. DAK.

A happy new year to all of you! We have again entered another year and wonder what it will bring us. In our neighborhood there is so much sickness, especially among the little children, so many having whooping cough, which in some cases turns to pneumonia; some have scarlet fever and chicken pox. Among the older ones the flu is making the rounds. Just before Christmas the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hiebert was saddened by the accidental death of their son, Walter, 27, who got killed in a car accident, also one of the two passengers, a 15 year old girl. Death never waits, so let us be ready when the call comes for us. The weather is still real nice for our part of the country with hardly any snow and not very cold, with all the roads open and the cars going. It looks more like fall than the middle of January, it saves a lot of fuel, also feed. With greetings to all, especially to Mrs. J. H. Spents, Dallas, Oregon.—

Mrs. I. Veer, 1-13-1940

« « JOTTINGS » »

—Brudertal Church, Hillsboro, Kans. January 14.— During Prayer Week the Brudertal church had the privilege to have Missionary P. W. Penner in their midst and deliver a series of six sermons on "Realities of Our Inner Life". The topics were as follows: (1) The Climb Toward Reality, (2) The Three Major Happenings, (3) The Five Steps to Growth, (4) The Cause—The Cross, (5) The Cross in Experience, (6) The Life of a Christian.—The Prayer Week Topics were discussed in three forenoon meetings namely: Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. All in all, this past week has been one of rich spiritual blessings to those who were able to come out in spite of the snow and cold weather.—Mrs. H. R. Nickel. Corr.

—First Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—"Had a blessed year at First Church with a good spirit of cooperation and by the grace of God we were able to liquidate all indebtedness. This means much to us as we enter into the Diamond Jubilee Year, for which we have planned several things. Compliments to you as editor of The Mennonite for the splendid way in which you put out the paper."

—A Good Brother writes: After all, our own Mennonite colleges are safer for the youth of the Mennonite faith than a certain other college which is being advertised as "the only safe college in the United States," and may be even safer than the Bible institute in some respects. Anyone who ever really "gets the spirit" of our Mennonite colleges will find that his conscience will give him considerably more difficulty to do things concerning which other Christians have small scruples of conscience.

—First Church, Bluffton, Ohio.—As we look over the budget of this church in their bulletin we find this commendable feature: For church maintenance the budget provides $3000, and for Missions, education and relief a total of $3142. The church thus expects to do as much or a little more for their "neighbors" as for themselves. This is fine, that's the way it should be, for did not Christ teach that we are to "love our neighbors" as ourselves. In the matter of giving for the Lord's work some of our churches have a great deal to learn yet.

—St. John Church, near Pandora, Ohio.—Their Bulletin brings these timely thoughts relative to the duties of the church's newly elected officers: "These officers have been entrusted with a sacred trust. It is their duty to fill their offices with good conscience, so that the cause of Christ may prosper. If they fail let us not condemn them, but rather pray for them, and encourage them. Is it not the duty of the rest of us to support them and the work of the church, by our prayers and our sympathetic cooperation? Selfish and partisan criticism will only hinder the Lord's work.

—Second Church, Philadelphia.—At the annual meeting this church voted to purchase chimes, to make an attempt to pay off all bonds during the year, an increase in the church budget, a Worker's Training Institute after Easter, a Church School for the summer and special services in the fall.

—Bethany Ch., Freeman, So. Dak.—At their annual meeting the congregation decided to continue "The Bethany Messenger,'" a weekly sheet which, besides announcements and plans of service, always contains a valuable brief treatise of some religious topics by the pastor, L. H. Linscheid, which we much appreciate. After this, German service will be held in this church every third and fifth Sunday and English on the other Lord's days.

REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF MISSION SOCIETIES, for December, 1939

Foreign Miss. Gen'l Treas.: Sew. Soc., Deer Park, Wash., $46.55; Mr. Peter J. Dyck, Whitewater, Man., $7; Menn. Sew. Societies, Buhler, Kans., $76; Ladies Aid, Medford, Okla., $25; Tabitha Sew. Soc., 2nd Ch., Beatrice, Nebr., $25; Eden Ladies Aid, and Miss. Soc., Moundridge, Kans., $76; Hebron Sew. Soc., Buhler, Kans., $100; Miss. Circle, Meno, Okla., $20; Miss. Soc., Deer Creek, Okla., $10; Johannestal Sew. Soc., Hillsboro, Kans., $18.58; Miss. Soc., Shafter, Calif., $38.99; Dorcas Miss. Soc., Grace Ch., Pandora, Ohio, $15; Miss. Soc., Grace Ch., Pandora, Ohio, $65; Ladies Aid and Miss. Soc., West Swamp Ch., Quakertown, Pa., $25. Total, $548.12.

Home Missions: Menn. Sew. Societies, Buhler, Kans., Home Miss. Gen'l Treas., $38; Ladies Aid, Medford, Okla., Same, $25; Coll. Women's Miss. Program, Western Distr. Conf., Wichita, Kans., Same, $58.67; Tabitha Sew Soc., 2nd Ch., Beatrice, Nebr., Same, $25; Eden Ladies Aid and Miss. Soc., Moundridge, Kans., Same, $37.99; Hebron Sew. Soc., Buhler, Kans., Same, $95; Johannestal Sew. Soc., Hillsboro, Kans., Same, $18.58; Miss. Soc., Shafter, Calif., Same, $33.99; Dorcas Miss. Soc., Grace Ch., Pandora, Ohio, Same, $20.00; Miss. Soc., Grace Ch., Pandora, Ohio, Same $65; Ladies Aid and Miss. Soc., West Swamp Ch., Quakertown, Pa., Same, $40; Hoffnungsfeld Miss. Soc., Moundridge, Kans., Chicago Mission, Poor $10; Ladies Aid and Miss. Soc., West Swamp Ch., Quakertown, Pa., Same, $10; Happy Young Mother's S. S. Class, Pawnee Rock, Kans., Same, $2.50; Miss. Sew. Soc., Pretty Prairie, Kans., Same, $10; Bethel Miss. Soc., Mountain Lake, Minn., Same, $10; "True Blue" Soc., Aberdeen, Ida., Portland Mission, $5; Miss. Soc., Trenton, Ohio, Lima, Ohio, Mission, $10. Total, $514.73.

For India: Master Servants S. School Class, Medford, Okla., Biblewoman, $25; Sunshine Bible Class, Hutchinson, Kans., Bibelwoman, $30; Miss. Soc., 1st Ch., Bluffton, Ohio, Biblewoman, $35; Ebenezer Miss. Soc., Bluffton, Ohio, Biblewoman, $30; Mission Workers, West Zion Ch., Moundridge, Kans., Dr. John, $43.60; Miss. Sew. Club, Avon, S. D., Native Worker, $20; Ladies Aid, Medford, Okla., Evangelist, $25; Bethany Ladies Aid, Quakertown, Pa., Orphan, $30; Happy Hour Circle, Hoffnungsau Ch., Buhler, Kans., Native Workers for Christmas, $6.62; Friendship Circle, 1st Ch., Bluffton, Ohio, Champa Hospital, $10; Hochfeld Sew. Soc., Hague, Sask., Same, $9; Miss. Circle, Meno, Okla., Leper Home, Champa Hospital,$10; Zoar Sew. Soc., Goltry, Okla., Same, $10; Willing Workers Class, Grace Ch., Pandora, O., Water System, Champa St., $25; Johannestal Sew. Soc., Hillsboro, Kan., Janjgir Station, $50; Ladies Aid, Medford, Okla., Boys' School, Birra St., $10; Ladies Aid and Miss. Soc., West Swamp Ch., Quakertown, Pa. Same, $10; North Alexanderwohl Sew. Soc., Canton, Kans., Work where needed, $30.20. Total, $419.42.

For China: Miss. Soc., Summerfield, Ills., Biblewoman, $40; Oakleaf Miss. Soc., Mountain Lake, Minn., Biblewoman, $25; Zion Miss. Soc., Donnellson, Iowa, Biblewoman, $5; Miss. Circle, Meno, Okla., Biblewoman, $80; Ebenezer Miss. Soc., Bluffton, O., Native worker, $25; Tabitha Sew. Soc., 2nd Ch., Beatrice, Nebr., China Hospital, $25.00; North Alexanderwohl Sew. Soc., Canton, Kans., Same, $10.00; Jr. C. E. Soc., Brudertal Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., Same, $35.21; Miss. Soc., Newport, Wash., Same, $8.00; Hochfield Sew. Soc., Hague, Sask., Same, $9.00; Burwalde Sew. Soc., Morden, Man., Medical Work, $14.00; Bethel Miss. Soc., Mountain Lake, Minn., Flood Relief, $25.00; Miss Nettie Becker, Marion, S. D., Same, $1.00; Coll. Women's Miss. Program, Western Distr. Conf. Wichita, Kans., Same, $58.68; North Alexanderwohl Sew. Soc., Canton, Kans., Same, $10.00; Young Men's S. S. Class, Medford, Okla., Same, $7.84; Zoar Sew. Soc., Goltry, Okla., Same, $10.00; Miss. Soc., Perkasie, Pa., Same, $5.00; Hoffnungsfeld Miss. Soc., Moundridge, Kans., Same, $10.00; First Menn. Jr. C. E., Mountain Lake, Minn., Same, $20.00; Ladies Aid & Miss. Soc., West Swamp Ch., Quakertown, Pa., Electric Light Plant, $15.00; Nursery & Beginners Depts. S. School, Wayland, Iowa, Missionaries Children, $3.00; Ladies Aid, Medford, Olka., Rev. & Mrs. Albert Jantzen, $10.00.. Total, $451.73.

Bibles for Arizona:

Jr. C. E. Soc., Deep Run Ch., Bedminister, Pa., $1.00; Int. Miss. Band, Berne, Ind., $10.00; North Alexanderwohl Sew. Soc., Canton, Kans., $8.00; Happy Young Mother's Class, Pawnee Rock, Kans., $2.50; Hoffnungsfeld Miss. Soc., Moundridge, Kans., $5.00; "True Blue" Soc. Aberdeen, Idaho, $5.00; First Menn. Jr. C. E. Soc., Mountain Lake, Minn., $10.00; A Friend, $3.00; Miss. Soc., Eicher Menn. Ch., Noble, Iowa, $10.00; Miss Mary Hege, Newton, Kans., $5.00; Little Children's S. S. Class, Frazer, Mont., $.36. Total, $59.86.

Retired Miss. Pension Fund:

Tabitha Sew. Soc. 2nd Ch., Beatrice, Nebr., $12.80; Ch. Menn. Sew. Soc., Moundridge, Kans., $8.45; Emmaus Miss. Soc, Whitewater, Kans., $20.75; Zoar Sew. Soc., Goltry, Okla., $5.00; Miss. Soc., Perkasie, Pa., $1.04; Miss. Soc., Shafter, Calif., $15; Miss. Soc., Trenton, Ohio, $10; St. John's Miss. Soc., Pandora, Ohio, $1.68. Total, $74.72.

Christmas Fund:

Sew. Soc., Wisner, Nebr., $8.00; First Menn. S. School, Bluffton, Ohio, $13.23; Bethel College Ch., Miss. Soc., North Newton, Kans., $5.00; Newhopedale Sew. Soc., Meno, Okla., $20.00; Mary Martha Circle, Brudertal Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., $10.00; Friendly Circle, Buhler, Kans., $10.00; Bethel Sew. Soc., Mountain Lake, Minn., $30.00; Ladies Miss. Circle, Menn. Church, North of Butterfield, Minn., $25.00; Northeast Alexanderwohl Sew. Soc., Hillsboro, Kans., $5.00; Young Men's S. School Class, Medford, Okla., $5.00; Master Servants' S. School Class, Medford, Okla., $5.00; "Mission Friend's" Circle, Goessel, Kans., $15.00; Zoar Sew. Soc., Goltry, Okla., $15.00; Dorcas Miss. Soc., Grace Ch., Pandora, Ohio, $15.00; Miss. Soc., Grace Ch., Pandora, Ohio, $20.00; First Menn. Jr. C. E. Soc., Mountain Lake, Minn., $5.00; St. John's Int. C. E., Pandora, Ohio, $5.00; Miss. Soc., Pratum, Oregon, $10.00; Jr. Mission Band, Berne, Ind., $5.00; Mission Workers, West Zion Ch., Moundridge, Kans., $3; St. John's Miss. Soc., Pandora, Ohio, $15; Miss. Soc., Shafter, Calif., $5; Total, $249.23.

Expenses of Ex. Com. and "Miss. News and Notes":

Ladies Aid, Medford, Okla., $5; North Alexanderwohl Sew. Soc., Canton, Kans., $1.20; Ladies Aid Soc., First Menn. Ch., Allentown, Pa., $2.50; Emmaus Sew. Soc., Whitewater, Kans., $3.45; East Swamp Ladies Aid, Quakertown, Pa., $5.00; Mrs. David Jantzen,Plymouth, Nebr., $.25; Herald Publ. Co., (Donation), $3.87; Miss. Soc., Perkasie, Pa., $.70; Bethany Ladies Aid, Quakertown, Pa., $3.00; Miss. Soc., Shafter, Calif., $1.80; Miss. Soc., Grace Church, Lansdale, Pa., $4.00; Mrs. Peter Goertz, Freeman, S. D., $.10; Mrs. Phil. Krehbiel, Marion, S. D., $.10; Bethel Miss. Soc., Frazer, Mont., $1.20. Total, $32.17.

Miscellaneous:

Menn Sew. Societies, Buhler, Kans., Mrs. V. Petter Montana, $10.00; "True Blue" Soc., Aberdeen, Idaho, Same, $5.00; Bethany Ladies Aid, Quakertown, Pa., Ashland St. Mont., $15.00; Tabitha Sew. Soc., 2nd Ch., Beatrice, Nebr., Lame Deer St. Mont. Bibles, $5.00; Int. Miss. Band, Berne, Ind., Rev. and Mrs. A. Habegger, Mont., $5.00; ZoarSew. Soc., Goltry, Okla., Busby St., Mont. Where Needed, $5.00; Miss. Soc., Arlington, Kans., Clinton St. Okla., Bibles, $10.00; Miss. Soc. 1st Ch., Hutchinson, Kans., Clinton, St. Okla., Poor Indians, $5.00; Miss. Circle, Meno, Okla., Rev. B. Toews, Okla., $20.00; Ladies Aid, Medford, Okla., Miss Elizabeth Foth, New York, Work, $5.00; Miss. Soc., Deer Creek, Okla., Same, $5.00; Bethel Miss. Soc., Mountain Lake, Minn., Same, $5.00; Int. Miss. Band, Berne, Ind., Rev. and Mrs. Sylvan Lehman, Pa., $5.00; Menn. Sew. Soc., Buhler, Kans., Home Miss. Western District Conf. $38.00; Miss. Friends Circle, Goessel, Kans., Wichita Mission Work, $3.00; Hoffnungsfeld Miss. Soc., Moundridge, Kans., Same, $3.00; Hebron Sew. Soc., Buhler, Kans., Same, $5.00; Johannestal Sew. Soc., Hillsboro, Kans., Same, $4.00; Miss. Soc., Trenton, Ohio, English Hymnal Fund, $10.00; Same. Board of Publication, General Conf., $10.00; Same. Canadian Transportation Debts, $10.00; Miss. Circle, Meno, Okla., Sudan Interior Mission, $20.00; Zoar Sew. Soc., Goltry, Okla., American Bible Soc. N. Y., $5.00; Miss. Soc., Newport, Wash., Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kans., $10.00; Coll. Women's Miss. Program, Western District, Conf., Wichita, Kans., Lit. Com., $15.00. Total, $233.00. Grand Total, $2,582.98

Gratefully acknowledged,
Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Treas.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA.

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHUCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Business Office, Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kans.
Editor .... J. R. Thierstein, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.50 .... Foreign, $2.00

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges, to J. R. THIERSTEIN, or the MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS.

REV. G. A. LINSCHEID JA 41
1001 EAST BROADWAY
NEWTON, KANSAS
KEY 35

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, JAN. 30, 1940 NUMBER 5

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

Dr. S. K. Mosiman Gone Home

Dr. Samuel K. Mosiman, beloved Ex-president of Bluffton College and widely known in General Conference circles, passed away Wednesday afternoon, January 24, and was buried Saturday. He was known as a scholar in Hebrew and O. T. Studies. For a number of years he served as Superintendent of our Indian Mission School in Oklahoma, and since 1908 he has been connected with Bluffton College, as its president from 1914 to 1935, and president emeritus until now. It was principally through his untiring efforts that the school has been built to its present proportion and high standing. Through the years he served on numerous conference committees and on the Board of Education from its organization until 1935, mostly as its president. He will be greatly missed by his devoted wife, who has our heartfelt sympathy, his relatives, and his many friends.

HIS MASTERPIECE

The sunset's golden glow,
With crimson intertwined,
And hung with curtains bright
With purple edges lined;
The large, red fiery ball
Out in the western sky
Sending its radiant rays
Into the deep blue dye:
Such color harmony
No canvas ever saw;
It grips your very soul
And lifts your heart in awe.
Such painting never yet
Did artist's brush release;
Yet, you query reverently,
"Is this His Masterpiece?"

The mountain towering up
To its majestic height,
And standing steadfastly
Forever for the right;
The strongest of the strong
Nothing its strength can shake,
For though the tempests rave
Their might upon it break.
Today its loftiness
Is seen as it was of yore,
And in the years to come
It'll be as it was before;
Its majestic form shall stand
Till heav'n and earth shall cease.
In reverence you ask,
"Is this His Masterpiece?"
Yes, friend, these wonderworks
Were made by His strong arm
To beautify His world
And lend it exquisite charm.
He made the sunset's glow,
The mountain's majesty,
And all the wondrous sights
That daily we can see.
He formed the rolling land,
He carved the rugged peak;
But for His greatest work
Elsewhere we still must seek.
For all these works so fair,
The mountains, skies, and seas,
Were made to be enjoyed
By MAN, His Masterpiece.

—Mary Becker, Senior in Bethel College

* * *

It Worked Both Ways:

"Last night my little boy confessed to me
Some childish wrong:
And, kneeling at my knee
He prayed with tears—
'Dear God, make me a man
Like daddy, wise and strong;
I know you can'.

"Then, while he slept
I knelt beside his bed,
Confessed my sins,
And prayed with low-bowed head,
'O God, make me a child
Like my child here—
Pure, guileless,
Trusting Thee with faith sincere' ".

—Andrew Gillies.

We Need The Bible

Men need life. Therefore men need the Bible. It is the only Book this world has ever had that brings spiritual and eternal life to men; and it is the only Book that is itself living—alive; "For the word of God is living and active." "The word of God . . . liveth and abideth for ever."

Men need a Book like this, and they could not write it for themselves; so God provided it, and "holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost."

Men, today, are working busily at reorganizing the world, readjusting human socitey, doing everything in their power for the recovery of normal and prosperous economic conditions. It is right that they should; and all hearts are hoping for a lifting of the heavy burdens that are bearing humanity down. But, in the midst of these earnest and sincere efforts, let us remember that we have a Book that shows the way of deliverance.

In fear and distress, men have been asking: "What shall we eat?" or "What shall we drink?" or "Wherewithal shall we be clothed?" These questions are not new; the Lord Jesus quoted them from men in the Sermon on the Mount. And He gave the answer: "Your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things," He said; and He continued: "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

The Bible is the only Book that tells us just how we may seek first God's Kingdom and His righteousness. It is the all-sufficient way—the sure and infallible way. Everyone who reads the Bible with open heart and mind can say, as did a man who lived some three thousand years ago, "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path."

It shows the only way of salvation; the only Way of life; the only way of safe guidance; the only way of real strength; the only way of true comfort.

It reveals what men could never discover for themselves.

It is written, that "ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name."

—C. G. Trumbull, in Christian Monitor

PRAYER IN WARTIME.—It has been customary for the people of nations at war to pray for the victory of their own or befriended armies and for the defeat of their foes. And the pity of it is that countless so-called Christians did that regardless of the fact that Christ has taught us to love our enemies and to do them good. If the peace treaty in the World War, based on a bolstered-up allied victory, has taught us anything it should be this, that it was a curse for Europe and in a way for the world. Victories in war always sow the seeds of new wars. So, real Christians cannot conscientiously pray for victories by this or that belligerent, even though one might be entirely in the right and the other all wrong, which is not likely. To us in America it appears that, in the war between China and Japan, the Chinese are quite innocent and deserve support and final victory, while the Japanese deserve to be condemned as cold-blooded murderers. But, according to reports from missionaries, the Chinese do not seem to harber hatred against their foes but rather wish and pray that God may open their adversaries' eyes to see their wrongdoing. This serves as a lesson to us emotional westerners who incline to take sides in the present European war and seriously wish, if not pray, that the Allies might be the victors. How much better, how much more Christian it would be to pray that God might so guide the actions of the belligerents that there may be no victory but that a just and lasting peace may be the end of the entire Conflict.—T.

THE THREE FRIENDS.—A certain man had three friends whom he all loved though, at times one more than the other two. Things had been going well with him through life. But since all men have to die sooner or later, the time came when he heard the summons: "Set thy house in order; for thou shalt die, and not live." Now, what did the three friends do? One of them whom he had been tempted to love most, his earthly possessions, remained behind in their accustomed place. The second, his human friends, accompanied him to the grave but beyond that they could do nothing except cherish their friend's memory. The third friend, his deeds of charity, of help and succor to his fellowmen went with him before the judgement seat of God and interceded for him that mercy and forgiveness might be extended to him as he had been merciful like his Master, the Savior, Whom he had tried to serve by helping those in need. And the judge was merciful to the man's soul.—T

DON'TS FOR CHURCH GOERS

"Don't visit. Worship.

"Don't hurry away. Speak and be spoken to

"Don't stop in the end of the pew. Move over

"Don't monopolize your hymn-book. Be neighborly.

"Don't wait for introductions. Introduce yourself.

"Don't choose the back seat. Leave it for late comers.

"Don't criticize. Remember, and think on your own frailties.

"Don't stare blankly while others sing, read or pray. Join in.

"Don't leave without praying God's blessing on all present.

"Don't sit while others stand or kneel. Share in the service.

"Don't sit with your hands to your head as if worshiping hurt you.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

GOD'S WILL AND YOUR PRAYERS

The other day I found it. For years I felt assured that if anything was according to the will of God, that then it was merely a matter of persistent prayer and sacrificial application to the task until victory was assured according to that will. And now comes this verse supporting this assurance.

"This is the CONFIDENCE we have in Him, that if we ask ANYTHING according to HIS WILL, HE HEARETH us;
And if we know that He heareth us, WHATSOEVER we ask, we know that we HAVE THE PETITION that we desire of Him." I Kn. 5:14, 15.

Our Christian supporters in America! Not very quickly can we forget the response you gave to our pleadings half a dozen years ago that you pray for the work in the Basna Area.God answered. Harvest came. Not very soon can we forget the response you gave during our furlough. God seemed to have been in our plans also, and sent us back, to arrive just before the outbreak of the war.

But now, cannot we plead with you to support us even more valiently in prayer for Ingatherings in Janjgir Area, where we are now stationed? His name be praised for the labors and fruitage of the years at Janjgir, and thrice praised. But it cannot be His will that only one church exist in one among 400 villages, and that more than a hundred thousand live and die a Christless life? Surely it is His will that they come to a saving knowledge through faith and baptism in the name of Christ. The times are propitious. God moved world forces to get Mary to go to Bethlehem, that Christ might be born there. Cannot He be moving India today, that Christ may be born in the hearts of hundreds of thousands in areas where Ingathering has not set in?

If you are convinced with me that it is HIS WILL that thousands accept Jesus Christ as their Savior in baptism in our area during this our term of service, please covenant with me to pray according to I John 5:14, 15. Pray daily throughout January, February, and March. Pray that,—

a. The Holy Spirit may surcharge us with unprecedented power;

b. That the River of God may be in spate, in flood, and overflow our area;

c. That our Indian coworkers may be welded into a Gospel Team, cleansed through the blood of Christ their Savior, endued with the power of the Holy Spirit in strange new ways hithertofore unknown to them;—

d. That the Guru of the Chamars in Lewae may be among those conquered for Christ this year;

e. That Ingathering may begin this year in our area.

We are now in camp trying our new workers and equipment, as tents, etc., and training workers to TEACH GOD'S WORD according to Ps. 1:2, 3; Lu. 8:11, Jn. 15:7. This is preparatory to the campaigns of January and February. Then we will probably work in the village of Lewae and surrounding villages. There lives a Guru who is an enemy. He has hindered perhaps 200 or 300 of his caste people in that area from accepting Christ. They want to come. He says no. If we have changed locations from last term, we have not changed methods nor message. We cannot forget the mysteries of God as to His ways of working. Pray with us that through the power of the Spirit of God Satan's work through this Guru may be halted, and that he himself may come under God's hand.

"As soon as Zion travailed, she brought forth her children." Isa. 66:8.

Janjgir, C. P. India, Nov. 18, 1939 S. T. Moyer.

Our Historical Library---Hymn Books

Next to the Bible the hymn book has had the greatest influence on the spiritual life of the Church since the Reformation. Because of this fact, our hymn books have experienced more editions than any other of our writings. Our Historical Library already has over one hundred different editions of song and hymn books which have been used in our churches. However, the collection is not yet complete by far.

Lately Brother N. W. Bahnmann of British Columbia sent us the first edition of the Palatinate hymn book, published at Worms in 1832. The title is "Christliches Gesangbuch zunächst für den Gebrauch der Taufgesinnten in der Pfalz." The second edition was printed in Friedelsheim in July of the same year. Could some one send this to us?

The West Prussian congregations printed their first German hymn book in 1767. Of this Brother Bahnmann sent us a copy of the fifth edition. Now the Library has editions five to nine, but it still lacks the first four. The Historical Committee is very grateful for every contribution. All gifts of money should be sent to the treasurer of the General Conference, K. A. Richert, Newton, Kansas; all books and other material to the undersigned.

A. Warkentin, Secretary
North Newton, Kansas

—Miss Edith Warkentin, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. Warkentin, 1603 N. Main St., Newton, Kans., has enrolled for the winter term at the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago. This is the first time in the 53 years of history that the Institution's registration has reached the 1,000 figure. Early feature of this term will be the Founder's Week Conference, Feb. 5-11 at which more that 30 internationally known Bible authorities will speak.—Sent in by the Intsitute.

EDUCATION

A. S. Rosenberger

REPORT OF THE MEETINGS OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

In session at Bluftion College, October 19, 1939

The meeting of the Board was called for 8:30 on Thursday morning, at the Musselman Library. Members present were: E. G. Kaufman, J. H. Langenwalter, and J. D. Unruh. Illness prevented P. R. Schroeder from attending the sessions of the Board, while other conference obligations made it impossible for Lester Hostetler to attend. A. S. Rosenberger arrived shortly after the formal opening by the president. In the absence of Lester Hostetler, J. D. Unruh served as secretary—pro tem.

The meeting was opened by the reading of Mark 4:26-41, and prayer, by the president of the Board, E. G. Kaufman.

Minutes of the 1938 meeting were read and approved.

The following resolutions were adopted:

1. That the Board of Education retain its membership in the Council of Church Boards of Education and that the secretary be instructed to send the $25 membership fee annually until otherwise informed.

President Kaufman reported briefly on the 1939 annual meeting of the Council of Church Boards, held at Louisville, Kentucky.

2. That E. G. Kaufman and A. S. Rosenberger represent the Board of Education at the 1940 session of the Council of Church Boards, to be held in Philadelphia.

3. Since the 1941 session of the General Conference is to be held in the East, the Board resolved to accommodate its two California members by convening somewhere in the Rocky Mountain area for its 1940 session. The time of meeting, preferably in August, as well as the place, was left to be determined by President Kaufman. Colorado Springs, Ogden, Estes Park, and Salt Lake City were mentioned as possibilities.

4. That Dr. H. A. Fast be asked to continue his study of the relation of this Board to the District Conference committees or Boards of Education, anticipating a summary of his findings or possible recommendations at the 1940 sessions of the Board of Education.

5. That A. S. Rosenberger be requested to assume responsibility for a section on Christian Education in the Mennonite and the Bundesbote, as well as edit the annual Educational number of these papers.

Sunday School Work

6. That the present staff for the adult quarterly be asked to serve for another year with the same remuneration.

7. That the staff for the Intermediate Sunday School quarterly be requested to serve for another year with the same remuneration. The Board approved the suggestions for 1940 given by the Editor-in-chief, Dr. Warkentin, and requested its secretary to publish these in our church papers.

(Later by mail the opinion of the Board prevailed that the age level between adult-senior on the one hand and primary on the other be kept in mind by the staff members in preparing material for the Intermediate Sunday School quarterly, assuming that we are working in the direction of preparing material on the three levels indicated. It was inferred that aids to teachers should not be incorporated in this Intermediate quarterly).

8. The board resolved to make the Intermediate quarterly a matter of careful study with view of establishing more permanent policies at an early date, preferrably by the summer of 1940.
1939.)

9. That we encourage the preparation of future and present Sunday School teachers by establishing teacher training classes with the emphasis on methods, and classes for present teachers with content receiving the major emphasis.

(It was reported that some Sunday Schools have found it convenient to have the class for future teachers during the regular Sunday School hour and the class for present teachers on some evening of the week.)

The Board felt it inadvisable at this time to begin preliminary work on Primary quarterlies.

11. That we convey to Dr. Warkentin that the picture appearing on the cover of the Intermediate Sunday School Quarterly represents a negative suggestion and we recommend something more positive.

October 19, 2:00 P. M.

The report of the treasurer was read and adopted. It showed a balance of $185.74 in the General Fund and $193.86. in the Student Loan Fund (not including a $100 loan made to a Bethel student on December 1,

12. That we express our thanks to the churches for the support given and that, in view of the continued growth of our work, we request increased aid. (It was reported that a number of Sunday Schools held a quarterly offering for the Board of Education since a good deal of the Board's work pertains to the Sunday School.)

13. That we request Lester Hostetler to continue his studies on Family Religion, Church Bulletins, and the question of a church standard.

On the Seminary question President Kaufman reported that the new Seminary Board was intact and apparently awaiting the next move to come from the old Witmarsum Seminary Board.

With reference to conference representation on the various Boards of our respective colleges, brief reports were heard from Bethel College, Freeman Junior College, and Bluffton College. These reports indicated that progress was slow and that various problems prevented the fulfillment of such a move in the future.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

J. H. Langenwalter, to whom this phase of the Board's work is entrusted, reported briefly on the progress of the work. He touched on all of the projects proposed by the Young People's Union at the Saskatoon conference. In order, these were: Young People's paper; a constitution; C. E. standards; retreats; Prayer Calendar; Mennonite Youth Service; Home Mission work; Foreign Mission work; Student Loan Fund; Mennonite Heritage appreciation.

14. That we accept Dr. Langenwalter's report and express our gratitude to him for his untiring efforts in behalf of the young people of our conference; and similarly express our appreciation to the Young People's Committee for its enthusiasm in the work.

Evening Session, 7:30 P. M.

15. That as many members of the Board of Education as can, take in some of the sessions of the American Friend's Service Committee in session at Indianapolis, Indiana, from October 20 to 22, and, if deemed advisable, to meet briefly with any other General Conference representatives there, at the close of the session, to crystalize impressions received.

16. That the following budged be adopted for 1940:

Sunday School Quarterlies	$1100
Field Secretary	500
Council of Church Boards	25
Board Travel	250
Stationery and postage	25
Board of Education studies	140
Student Loan Fund	260
Young People's Work	200
Miscellaneous	100
Total	$2600

17. That we extend to Brother P. R. Schroeder our best wishes for his complete recovery.

18. That we extend felicitations to Dr. Lloyd L. Ramseyer upon his inauguration as the fourth president of Bluffton College.

19. That we express our appreciation to the officials of Bluffton College for all courtesies extended during our sessions on the campus.

A. S. Rosenberger closed the session with prayer.

Adjournment

Immediately after adjournment the Board proceeded to the vault in the Musselman Library to examine a box of old records belonging to the Board of Education, collected by its former secretaries.

—Rev. Weinbrenner of the Second Ch., Beatrice, Nebr., reports the following, "Our neighbor who is a musician, studied in a music conservatory at Naples for ten years, who was reared as a Catholic and later married a Presbyterian girl said last night that, considering all the various churches in the city, he would rather be a member of the Mennonite church than of any of the others!"

OUR CONFERENCE TREASURERS

For the benefit of members of our conferences who wish to remit money to one or the other of the respective treasurers, we give below a list of them and their addresses. Those who have copies of either the 1940 "MENNONITE YEAR BOOK" or "BUNDESBOTE KALENDER" will also find the information there, but others will do well to clip the list and preserve it.

TREASURERS OF GENERAL CONFERENCE BOARDS

Foreign Missions: Mr. J. E. Regier, 616 Main St., Newton, Kans.

Home Missions: Rev. J. J. Plenert, 429 Knorr St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Publication: Mr. E. W. Baumgartner, Berne, Ind.

Education: Dr. P. R. Schroeder, Freeman, S. D.

Emergency Relief: Rev. P. H. Unruh, Goessel, Kansas.

Trustees: Mr. Karl A. Richert, 110 East 6th St., Newton, Kansas, who is also Conference Treasurer.

Committee for Doctrine and Conduct: Rev. J. E. Entz, Route 3, Newton, Kan.

Peace Committee: Prof. L. J. Horsch, Route 1, Box 223A, Upland, Calif.

Women's Missionary Society: Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, 317 East 4th St., Newton, Kansas.

Treasurer of the Young People's Union: Mr. William Juhnke, Route 2, McPherson, Kansas.

TREASURERS OF DISTRICT CONFERENCES

Eastern District: Mr. Alvin H. Alderfer, 3235 Fuller St., Holmsbury, Pa.

Middle District: Do not have data.

Western District: Rev. G. A. Linscheid, 1001 East Broadway, Newton, Kans.

Northern District: Rev. Victor Sawatzky, Butterfield, Minnesota.

Pacific District: Mr. John C. Jantz, Odessa, Washington.

Canadian District: Rev. John G. Rempel, Rosthern, Saskatchewan, Canada.

Compiled by the Editor

EMOTION IN DEVOTION

Head religion is good, but heart religion is better. A glowing heart is a better evidence of Christianity than a brilliant brain.

Emotion is a large and vital part of devotion. Jesus craved the love of His friends more than He yearned for their understanding of Him. His last question of Peter was "Simon, lovest thou Me?" Even a little love is precious to the Lord.

Both the church and the world are weary of theological hair-splitting. In the fellowship of Jesus we want, first of all, disciples of the burning heart, whose love for the Master is real, and who can say, with Peter, "Thou knowest that I love Thee."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

February 11, 1940

THE PERILS OF REJECTING CHRIST

Matthews 21:28-43

Introduction

Our lesson consists of two parables which definitely condemned the Pharisees and scribes for their rejection of John the Baptist and Christ, and plainly indicated the penalty which God would impose upon them. These parables make Christ's teachings more impressive than plain statements would have made them and the religious leaders well understood His message. Christ made clear His claim of being the Son of God and the Pharisees were filled with wrath toward Him.

The Perils of Lip-Service Only vs 28-32

The parable of the two sons teaches that lip-service, unless accompanied by deeds, is not enough to give entrance into God's kingdom; but that sinners, who for a time reject the gospel, may be saved if they repent and believe. The "certain man" is God and the "two sons" represent two types of people. These He asked to go and work in His vineyard—be faithful servants of His and give such service as a godly, Christian life may require.

The first son, representing the publicans and sinners, rudely refused to go, but his conscience moved him to change his mind and, in obedience, go and do what had been asked of him. The publicans and sinners, at first disobedient, afterward believed the gospel and repented. The second son (v30) represents the Pharisees and scribes who by their profession pretended to go and work in the vineyard. Very politely they said, "I go sir," but did nothing further about it. These professed to be very religious but their deeds did not correspond with their professions. When John the Baptist came preaching repentance and righteousness, they would not believe him (v32). They went on their way, self-satisfied with their formal religion, but were not in God's kingdom. The real test of our acceptance with God consists in what we do. Jesus puts the emphasis on "did" (v31) and declares emphatically—"verily I say"—that when sinners believe the gospel and practice it, they are received into the kingdom ahead of those whose religion is only outward form. God's people have a large work to do in today's troubled world.

The Peril of Open Rejection vs 33-43

In the parable of the wicked husbandmen, Jesus depicts the Jews' open rejection of God's servants, the prophets, and of Himself, God's Son. Israel has frequently been likened to a vineyard. God, the householder, planted the vineyard and provided everything that was needed for the security of it. Israel had indeed been planted, given privileges enjoyed only by them as God's chosen people. They alone had been taught the worship of the one true God. They were the husbandmen who were to use and guard these privileges well, worship God only, and bring fruit. God sent His servants—the prophets—(v34) that He might receive the fruits of righteous deeds and holy living. Instead of rendering fruits, the Jews mistreated and killed the servants sent to them (vs 35, 36). Finally in the extremity of love and forbearance, God sent His Son, giving the Jews their supreme opportunity. Instead of receiving Him they cast Him out of the vineyard and slew Him. The result was doom for the nation (v41), a fact actually brought upon them in the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A. D. (Luke 19:41-44). When we continue to reject God's mercies He turns to others. They who reject Christ suffer the penalty of their choice. Many today with even greater privileges than the Jews enjoyed, are doing essentially the same as they did. They fail to produce the fruits of righteousness which He has a right to expect. To reject Christ is to rob the soul of its richest treasure. They who reject Him, close the door of opportunity against themselves.

—THIRD QUARTERLY CONFERENCE, EAST. DISTRICT will be held February 5, 1940, at Grace Church, Lansdale. The Theme will be— "FORWARD WITH CHRIST." Rev. Olin A. Krehbiel, pastor of the host church will direct the song service. AFTERNOON PROGRAM, at 2:30: Devotions, John E. Fretz.—Conference Business.—Paper, "The First Decade of Grace Mennonite Church," Jacob R. Fretz.—Remarks by H. S. Stauffer for the Home Mission Committee; by Rev. A. J. Nenenschwander for the Home Mission Board, and by Rev. Freeman Schwartz for the Conference.—EVENING PROGRAM, at 7:30 Scripture and Prayer, Geo. D. Greger.—Message, "Lansdale as a Mission," Rev A. M. Fretz.— Message, "The Early Years of Grace Church." Rev. D. J. Unruh.— Message, "The Church Going Forward with Christ," Rev Olin Krehbiel.—Lansdale church will furnish special music and serve supper.

—Saron Menn. Church, Orienta, Okla. 1-23-40.— "To us as fellowship it indeed seemed a great calamity to stand helplessly by and see our church building destroyed completely by fire of undetermined origin, on last Sunday afternoon. We do not know the purpose of the Eternal God, but in His Word we read, 'All things work together for good to them that love God', Rom. 8:28. Of course at this early date no arrangements have been made for church services."—Mrs. Wm. Frantz, Corr.

Ex-President Herbert Hoover As A Peacemaker

Quite a bit of sentiment is being aroused in this country, favoring the appointment of some truly outstanding, internationally well known man who has the good will of the people of America and Europe, to help the nations of Europe find a way to a real peace. A Methodist laymen of Quaker descent, Dr. Denton G. Nutter of Newton Center, Mass., has the following to say in a recent issue of ZIONS HERALD:

"If in this country there could be found a private citizen whose every act toward Europe had been one of humanitarian assistance and who had helped to salvage much from the wreck of 1918; a man recognized as one of this country's leading neutrals; an American for whom Europe from the Arctic to the Mediterranean, especially Germany and Russia, had the deepest respect; a leader who from the privacy of his own study could tomorrow call by telephone any or all of the heads of the combatant countries and get a respectful hearing, could we not hope through him to halt the headlong dash to ruin? Suppose, moreover, we were able to discover a man who met all the foregoing qualifications and in addition have enjoyed the prestige that comes from having served one's country in the highest office within the gift of one's fellow citizens, and who while in that position had scaled down war debts and finally called a moratorium; and just suppose, in addition to all this background we were to discover that he belonged to a religious sect known the world over for its pacific convictions, the Quakers—should we not be inclined to say that in such a personality we had found the only possible answer to the perplexing problem of negotiating world peace? There is just such a man living in America. His name is Herbert Hoover.

"Whether or not we agree with Mr. Hoover's political creed is of no consequence in this conncetion, for he has been so conclusively removed from the field of national politics as to be free from all ambition. It is inconceivable that either Europe or the world in general could imagine that this former President would have a single political end to serve."

It is reliably reported that in New York, New England and elsewhere resolutions similar in sentiment to Dr. Nutter's have been drafted and signed in churches and public meetings. Multiply these acts by similar action on the part of religions, pacifist and even business groups throughout the country and the the voice of Mr. Hoover asking for peace would be not only his voice but the nation's voice.

Zions Herald suggests further "that individuals bombard Mr. Hoover at his home in Stanford University, California, with post cards urging him to initiate, on his own responsibility, so to speak, but at the same time with their backing and in their name whatever steps he deems best as a beginning to the end that the European madness cease and that the European rulers meet around a common council table."

—Partly from "The American Friend."

A suggestion: Why should not we Mennonites, too, write Mr. Hoover, urging him to ponder the possibility of the undertaking suggested above? Not only that, why not write to our representatives in Congress to inaugurate and help pass a measure looki toward the appointment of Mr. Hoover for this task?

—The Editor.

LET'S QUIT APOLOGIZING

By Edgar DeWitt Jones

When the prodigal son came to himself he said—well, what did he say? He might have said, "I am not to blame for this; there is no living at home with that brother of mine. He is a sour-puss. He made life unendurable for me. That's why I left the old home place." But he didn't say that.

He might have said, "It isn't my fault that I am here, penniless. I had an ancestor somewhere along the line who was a gay dog. He's living again in me. I couldn't help but get into trouble in the far country. But I'm not to blame. Charge it up to hereditory inflence." But he didn't say that.

He might have said, "Oh, well, this thing isn't so bad after all. I have had my little fling, but it isn't serious. I'll live it down. Come to think of it, it's part of my education." But he didn't say that.

What he did say, when he came to himself, was this: "I have sinned. I am no more worthy to be called the son of my father. I am going back home and ask his forgiveness." And with these sentiments in his heart, he arose, journeyed back to his father's house, and the story of his reception is of imperishable beauty.

Let's quit apologizing. Usually it is a sign of weakness. Let's quit apologizing for religion. It's the one victorious power that we have not taken seriously, or made adequate provision for in our lives and society. "O earth, earth, earth, hear the word of God." There are many voices but only one Voice. Imagine a Scotch Covenanter apologizing for his robust faith. Fancy a Quaker in apologetic attitude for his convictions against war.

Let's quit apologizing for the church. With all its frailties and mistakes, it is the best institution we know. Professor Albert Einstein said recently that he has a new appreciation of the church due to the fact that when the deification of the State began in his homeland, the only institution to stand out and protest was the church, through an heroic company of her ministers, notably Pastor Niemoeller.

Let's quit apologizing for America. Our country has its vexatious problems. Nor have we fully lived up to the fundamentals of our political and religious faiths. But its a country worth living and suffering for. Let's quit apologizing for its imperfections and do something about them. Let us magnify our citizenship.

—Religious News Service.

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENN. CH., COLFAX, WASH. 1-13-40

Dear Editor and Readers: My wish to you all, a very happy, blessed and prosperous year for 1940. Our annual business meeting was held Dec. 4, the Sunday School held its election for officers and teachers which were installed the first of the year also. On Aug. 27 in the evening we had the privilege of having the Rev. J. J. Thiessen family of India here; and on Oct. 1, Rev. and Mrs. P. W. Penner, missionaries on furlough from India, were with us one day. They gave two wonderful sermons, morning and evening, and in the afternoon Rev. Penner spoke to the men and Mrs. Penner to the women. We also had Rev. J. J. Esau, wife and son, as Evangelist for a ten-day blessed revival meeting.

On Oct. 22, seven new members were received into the church, five by baptism and two by reaffirmation; while two were taken away by death, an elderly sister, Mrs. Fredrica Nauret, and a youth of 17 years, Milton Naftizger.—There has been a lot of illness here this fall and winter and a goodly number of operations, all are recovering nicely.—Wishing you all God's blessing through the coming year.—Pauline Schrag, Corr.

* * *

UPPER MILFORD MENN. CH., ZIONSVILLE, PA.

On January 7, we completed our yearly meetings for the church and the Sunday School. The reports of the church, as well as of its auxiliaries, the Sunday School, the Young Peoples' society, and the Ladies' Aid Society, all showed substantial growths and comfortable balances in their treasuries.—The congregation lost but three members during the year, one by dismissal, and two, John Geissinger and Susan A. Diehl, by death. The two congregations of the charge, Allentown and Upper Milford, had two joint services during the year. The Easter services were held in the Allentown church, with the Upper Milford choir furnishing the music, and the Ascension Day services were held in the Upper Milford church with the Allentown choir furnihsing the music. The two churches also observed our minister's tenth anniversary in this charge in our church this fall. The first quarterly ministerial meeting and the Eastern District Sunday School conventions were held in our church.

In July of this year, the Mennonites, Friends, Schwenksfelders, and Brethren, held a joint-meeting in our church, during which time they discussed ways and means of furthering world-peace. We were also visited by Dr. Fast, General Secretary of the General Conference, at which time he gave us interesting talks on the work of the Conference.

Our church council as now composed consists of Monroe Geissinger, deacon; Andrew Schantz, Albert Heistand and Lloyd Gehman, trustees; Henry G. Stauffer, treasurer, and Norman S. Schantz secretary. In the Sunday School, we elected Norman Geissinger and Boyd Strunk as superintendents, Mae Oberholtzer, secretary, and Warren and Arlene Geissinger.

* * *

BURRTON MENNONITE CH., BURRTON, KS.

Another year is dawning, dear Master let it be,
In working or in waiting another year with Thee.

The Lord never forgets nor forsakes His own. We can again testify that the Lord has graciously dwelt among us. Our pastor, in reviewing the work of 1939, said with Psalmist David: "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it. This work is His. The accomplishments have been due to the blessings of God.

We have been privileged to hold services every Sunday of the year. Our pastor has preached 48 times and presented 4 illustrated lectures on evenings. Mission--aries August Ewert, John Thiessen, Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Voth and Rev. and Mrs. G. A. Linscheid brought inspiring messages. Their fellowships were blessings to us. We have shared 34 messages of our pastor's with other places during the year. In return 15 others have served us. The S. S. work has been of steady growth, reaching an average attendance of 102 per month. The Lord hath called Home one member, Mrs. Caroline Base. We had the joy of receiving four members upon their confession of faith and baptism. Eight homes were blessed through joy of a new member added. The other organizations also gave reports that make a heart glad toward God.

An unexpected cloud has overshadowed us. It is hard for us to comprehend the fact of our pastor's resignation. But we must accept it as God's leading and not man's work, which is quite a trial. Missionaries' experiences indicate that severe trials and tests usually open doors to further and deeper service. May God accomplish a new purpose in our lives.

We earnestly hope that we, like the church of Portland, Oregon, will also be remembered in prayer for the Lord's choice of a new Shepherd.The Lord is our portion, therefore let us hope in Him.—Ella Pankratz, Corr.

SHALL MAN ALWAYS FEAR?

I fear the world that men create;
Its warring greed, its killing hate.
Shall men forever fear and quail;
Cry out for peace with no avail?
I love the world that God has made;
Its warming sun, its cooling shade.
I love the world's kind open hand
That scatters seed upon the land,
Sows deeds of peace and loveliness
The sons of men too cheer and bless
Who joins the God to right earth's wrong,
Destroy men's fear, give back his song.

EDITORIAL
STAFF
Senior Department
R. Weinbrenner
Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers
Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

"TAKING INVENTORY"

(Editor's note: Rev. Paul R. Shelly, son of Rev. Elwood S. Shelly, was awarded the William Thompson Fellowship from the Hartford Theological Seminary last spring. Had the war not come Rev. Shelly would have enrolled in the Graduate School of Divinity, New College, University of Edinburgh and there would have pursued graduate work in the Church History and Theology Departments for two years. Now he is pastor of the First Congregational Church, Aberdeen, Washington. The following is a sermon preached by him as a New Year's sermon and then condensed for the MENNONITE.)

During the past week I heard quite a number of people talking about the inventory they were taking in their places of business. Reading the newspaper and listening to the radio I again became familiar with inventories of all kinds. All of these things reminded me of the importance of taking an inventory of my life. With this in mind I turned again to the story of the young man who came to Jesus asking the way to eternal life. (Mark 10:17-22) I saw in this story a young man taking an inventory of his life. This account gives us three things we should keep in mind as we take an inventory of our own life as we face a new year.

1. In taking an inventory we must be sincere.

The young man in our illustration was not entirely sincere. He was interested in the greatest thing in life—the pursuit of eternal life. However, he was not willing to pay the price. Had he been entirely sincere he would have been willing to follow the command of the master.

A business firm is sincere in taking its inventory. It lists everything correctly. If it has lost money it is foolish to try to cover up the fact because sooner or later the truth of the financial situation will be revealed. We have all seen business firms that tried to cover up their true situation. In a short time, however, the true state of affairs was revealed.

Men and women always find it easy to take an inventory of their business and even of the lives of others. It is extremely difficult, however, to take an inventory of our own lives. Men have always found it so. It is hard to be sincere about ourselves. David was a great man but found it hard to see his own sin even when the prophet Nathan told him about it in parable form. Nathan had to tell him frankly "Thou art the man." Belshazzar, the king had many things under his command. He too found it difficult to take an inventory of himself. He had to be told the true condition of his life in the interpretation of the handwriting on the wall by Daniel. "Thou art weighed in the balances and art found wanting." Socrates spoke words of wisdom when he said, "Know thyself."

As we face the new year we must check up on ourselves.

2. In taking an inventory we must have a worthy standard.

One of the difficulties with the young man in our illustration was that he was using the wrong standard in taking his inventory. He was concerned with doing certain things rather than in giving undivided allegiance to God through Christ. This was revealed when he was not willing to follow the master. "The glory of our life comes not from what we do or what we know, but dwells for evermore in what we are."

A business firm always has a standard when it takes its inventory. There is a real purpose. There is a standard of measurement. Many young people and older people make the mistake of the rich young ruler. They use a standard that is not worthy when they take their inventory. Some of the standards which have been set up are: moral, that of a comparison with someone else, material prosperity, educational, social, and many others. These are not adequate. The first question in the shorter catechism is: "What is the chief end of life?" The answer is: "To glorify God and to enjoy Him forever." This must ever be our standard. Have we glorified God by our lives during the past year? A motto which is seen in many homes gives us the same standard in different words:

"Only one life, 'twill soon be past,
Only that which is done for Christ will last."

How have we lived in relationship to this standard during the past year? Have we been spending too much time on the other standards? Have we grown in our Christian experience? Have we grown closer to our standard? Have we made use of all of the resources which we have as Christians? Have we dedicated all of our talents to the master? The inventory up until this point is not corrective. It is entirely objective. It should show us our position in the past. It is like a report card which we receive in school. It is merely an inventory of work which we have done up until a certain period. We must go a step farther.

3. In taking an inventory we can have a hopeful outlook for the future.

Here again the character in our illustration failed. He took his inventory. He realized that something was lacking in his life or he wouldn't have come to the master seeking for eternal life. He realized a weakness in his life and received information as to the way by which he could have hope and joy. He wasn't willing to pay the price and according to Mark he was sad. Luke tells us the same thing. "He was very sorrowful."

Here too business does not give us a true parallel since if the inventory reveals failure there are times when the firm cannot continue to remain in business. The Christian can always face the future with hope. Regardless of what a sincere inventory of our life reveals there is hope for the new year. Paul said: "Forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press towards the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

Your inventory may reveal many things which you would like to have changed had you been able to. You may have had problems, sorrows, difficulties. However, even here a sincere inventory for the Christian gives hope for with Paul our experience should be expressed in the words: "For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory."

There is hope for all as we face our new year. Regardless of what our inventory reveals for 1939 there should be growth in 1940. Like the tree which shows its age by the ring each year so our Christian Life should reveal a growth each year. We must be careful to measure our inventory in the light of eternity. It is here that we see beyond the present—beyond the ills of the world to the time when God's way in the world shall be fully consummated. It is then that the vision of Browning in "Pippa Passes" shall be a reality.

Senior Department

NEITHER JEW NOR GREEK - Col. 3:9-17

Senior C. E. Topic for February 18, 1940

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Am I a Soldier of the Cross," "The Churches one Foundation," "I can hear the Savior Calling."
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer.
3. Special music.
4. Offering for missionary project.

II. Leader's Introduction

"Many people, in dealing with a person of another race, assume that he possesses all of the bad characteristics that are supposed to adhere to his race. They form their opinions of him accordingly. So and so is a Jew, and you know what Jews are like! Sam is a Negro, and every one knows that Negroes are all the same!

Jesus never treated people so. He looked upon them as individuals and dealt with each one according to his need. This is particularly evident in the record of His encounter with the Samaritan woman at Jacob's Well."

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Service, a criterion for brotherhood. Matt. 23:8-11.
2. Having all things in common. Acts 4:32-35.
3. No respecter of persons. Acts 10:34-38.
4. Jesus and the Samaritans. John 4:39-42.
5. All things to all men. 1 Cor. 9:19-22.
6. Jesus' intercession for all. John 17:20-23.

IV. Discussion

1. What can our C. E. do for developing an attitude of brotherliness among its own members toward the Jews?

2. What do the white people of America owe the negro?

3. What strong qualities of character do we see in the Chinese? the Japanese?

V. Facts for Study

Those who live and work among the people of other races, sometimes confess that they have gone there with the idea that they were rather superior, and were in a position to offer and give to these people out of their abundance those things which they lacked. Later when they learned to know these people of another race more intimately they found that they could learn much from them, and that these people had much that deserved appreciation and was worthy of emulation.

Jesus' own way of dealing with people was that of seeing their good points, their possibilities, appreciating them, bringing them into light, and encouraging their growth. Witness his word to Nathaniel: "Behold, a true Israelite, in whom there is no guile"; to Peter: "Henceforth, ye shall be fishers of men"; to Mary: "She hath done a good work."

Jesus also was keenly aware of their need and was willing to go out of his way to meet that need. He told Zachaeus that he must come to his house today, he made the trip to the home of the Syrophoenician woman to help her in her hour of trouble, he forgot his own needs in the presence of the great need of the woman at the well of Samaria.

His example is still the challenge to us to follow in his steps.

VI. Illustrations

"Launch Out" Today! A young man said to Mr. Phillips, who was one of the pioneers in the community, "Mr. Phillips, I think if I had lived in your time I would have been heroic, too." The old man straightened up, pointed to the saloons down the street, and his voice was keen with indignation. "Young man," he said, "you are living in my time and in God's time. Be assured that no man could have been heroic then who is not heroic now. There is plenty of work that takes courage today."

When Kenesaw Mountain Landis was a judge in the courts of Chicago, he was seen one wintry day facing the piercing wind of the loop district without an overcoat. "Hello there, Judge, where's your overcoat?" shouted a friend.

"I used it to light a fire," he answered.

"Used it to light a fire?"

"Yes. I used it to light a fire to keep warm inside of me the spirit of charity that life in a great city like Chicago tends to freeze."

It was learned that he had just sentenced a man to the House of Correction. The prisoner had turned away from the bench and pulled his coat collar around his throat.

'Where is your overcoat?" asked the judge, sharply.

"Your Honor, I ain't got none," was the reply.

"Officer," said the judge, "get mine and give it to him. Now, gentlemen, we'll proceed to the next case."

VII. Food for Thought

"You got to believe folks believe in you to do your best."

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

HELPFUL DAILY DEVOTIONS

Intermediate C. E. Topic for Febraury 18, 1940

For Daily Reading

Feb. 12. Daily need. Exodus 16:13-20.
Feb. 13. Daily sacrifice. Exodus 29:38-43.
Feb. 14. Thanksgiving with requests. Phil. 4:4-7.
Feb. 15. Daily praise. Ps. 145:I-10.
Feb. 16. Daily worship. Acts 3:1-10.
Feb. 17. A prayer for daily use. Matt. 6:11; 25-34.
Feb. 18. Topic. Dan. 6:10; Ps. 55:16; 92:1, 2.

The Sentinel

The morning is the gate of day,
But ere you enter there
See that you set to guard it well
The sentinel of prayer.
So shall God's grace your steps attend,
But nothing else pass through
Save what can give the countersign;
The Father's will for you.

When you have reached the end of day
Where night and sleep await,
Set there the sentinel again
To bar the evening's gate.
So shall no fear disturb your rest,
No danger and no care.
For only peace and pardon pass
The watchful guard of prayer.
—The British Weekly, F. H. Revell Co.

Opening Song: "Sweet Hour of Prayer"

Scripture Reading: Dan. 6:10; Ps. 55:16; 92:1, 2.

Sentence Prayers

Song: "What a Friend We Have in Jesus"

Reading of Daily References

We think it well to read all these references in the meeting. For there is no better source than the Bible to find the way to have helpful devotions. As they are read, have your secretary write upon the board those qualities which we should find in our daily devotions. It would be well to have every member copy these and take them home with him. Let us really strive to learn how we can make our personal devotional life more meaningful.

Vocal Solo: "Teach Me to Pray"

Discussion

1. When is the best time to have our daily devotions?

2. What should we include in our personal devotions?

3. How much time should we use?

4. What is prayer? Read Luke 11:9, 10. From this do we not gather that prayer is seeking to find God?

5. What is the basis of true prayer? Read Matt. 21:22.

6. How can we best study the Bible? Is it sufficient to read a chapter a day? Ask your superintendent to present to you various helpful ways to study the Bible.

Leader: "As we pass through the forest or orchard, we see the majesty of the glorious trees—their graceful branches, the many lovely shaped leaves, their greenness and their living beauty. But, we are conscious that all these depend on the underground labyrinth of strong, far-reaching roots. These roots are absolutely necessary to the strength, growth and life of the oak or pine or maple. Should they die or become severed, decay would result."

Song: "I Need Thee Every Hour"

Leader: Read the following slowly so that the members may copy them, if they wish.

When you have sinned, read Psalm 51.
When you worry, read Matt. 6:19-34.
Before church service, read Psalm 84.
When you have the blues, read Psalm 34.
When you are discouraged, read Isaiah 40.
When you are lonely or fearful, read Psalm 23.
When you want courage for your task, read Joshua 1.
When your prayers grow narrow or selfish, read Psalm 67.

Vocal Solo: "Evening Prayer"

Poem in Closing: "That is the Time to Pray"

In the soft blush of morning.
When song-birds greet the day,
After long hours of darkness,
That is the time to pray!

In the bright glow of midday,
When thoughts are all astray
With the rush and whirl of living,
That is the time to pray!

In the sweet hush of twilight,
As daylight slips away,
And everything stands in shadow,
That is the time to pray!

Ere we close our eyes in slumber,
Tired with work and play,
For our busy day is over,
That is the time to pray!
—A. M. Hodgson.

Offering

Closing Prayer by Superintendent

(As the Intermediates leave, have the pianist play "Take the Name of Jesus with You."

"O for that flame of living fire,
Which shone so bright in saints of old
Which bade their souls to heaven aspire,
Calm in distress, in danger bold.
Remember, Lord, the ancient days;
Renew Thy work; Thy grace restore;
Warm our old hearts to prayer and praise,
And teach us how to love Thee more."
—Bathurst

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

"BOYS OF THE BIBLE"

Program for February 18, 1940

Boys Who Were Dependable

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude—Pianist plays melody of "I Would Be True." If possible have a violin obligato with this.

2. Call to worship—"My son attend to my words; incline thine ear unto my sayings."

3. Sing in unison "Come Thou Almighty King."

4. Scripture read by two Juniors.
   Voice one—Proverbs 2:1-6.
   Voice two—Proverbs 3:1-7
   Voice one—Proverbs 23:15, 16, 19.
   Voice two—3 John 4.

5. Sentence Prayers. Leader closes this prayer season.

6. Solo—"I Would Be True."

7. Reading of Psalm 8 (A Psalm that David wrote)

8. Song in unison—"Here Is My Heart." Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 222.

II. Study Period.

Aim: To create in our Juniors a desire to be dependable; to help them to realize that they can and should honor God with all their life.

1. Introduction: Today we study about three boys who were dependable. One, Samuel, whose name means "asked of God," was probably twelve years old, at least so the Jewish historian Josephus says, when God called him. The other, David, whose name means "darling," and whose name by the way, occurs 324 times in the Bible, was probably seventeen years old when Samuel anointed him for his special work. And the last, Daniel, whose name means "God's judge" was also about twelve when he was taken as captive from his home in Jerusalem to Babylon. I hope that we will all find the stories of these boys in our Bibles and read them again at home.

2. Story of Samuel, the boy who answered God's call. — I Samuel 3:1-18, by a Junior boy.

3. Song in unison, (stand to sing): "Trust and Obey" verses 1, 4, 5. Mennonite Hymn Book No. 235.

4. Discussion: "What we can learn from Samuel," by three Junior girls.
   a. He was not afraid.
   b. He obeyed quickly, pleasantly, willingly.
   c. He was in the temple when God spoke to him.

5. Story of David, the boy who was trustworthy. 1 Samuel 16: 1-13, by a Junior boy.

6. Trio—"Take My Life and Let It Be." Verses 1, 3, 4, 5.

7. Stories of David, by two Junior girls.
   a. 1 Samuel 17:34-37.
   b. 1 Samuel 17:1-33; 17:38-58.

1. Discussion: "What can we learn from Daniel?" by three Juniors.
   a. He was very brave.
   b. He loved and trusted God. Psalm 8, 19.
   c. He did his work well.

9. Story of Daniel, the boy who would drink no wine. Daniel, chapter 1:1-17 by a Junior boy.

10. Boys' chorus—"Dare To Be A Daniel"

1. Discussion: "What can we learn from Daniel? by three Junior girls.
   a. He determined in his heart to obey and honor God, although in a country that had a different religion.
   b. He was courteous and polite.
   c. He would drink no wine.

12. In unison: 1 Cor. 6:19.

III. Mission Minutes

1. Two Juniors find special missionary needs, report on these.

2. Season of prayer for our missionaries, remembering the special needs presented.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Leader's short heart-talk stressing that we should so live that we might glorify and honor God with our lives.

2. Prayer for the month, Psalm 51:10 in unison (standing).

3. Doxology.

CORRESPONDENCE

MENN. CHURCH, NEWPORT, WASH., 1-16-40

Our group here had their annual business meeting on the second of January, when all business for the year was again regulated.—Our Primary S. S. teacher took four of the little girls of her class before Christmas and visited the Community Hospital here in Newport, where they sang Christmas carols. One old lady, especially, enjoyed it so much that they had to stop at her bedside the semond time to sing again.—A group of ladies helped one of the members all day Jan. 15, sewing and fixing comforts.—Rev. Unruh and his family again were in Deer Park, Jan. 14, where he preaches once a month. We miss him on that Sunday but have Sunday School, Bible Study, and singing that day. Our C. E. is always very well attended, with only a very few members missing. Quite a few come to these meetings that fail to show up for morning services.—The weather is very nice this winter. The coldest it has been was 10 degrees above zero.—Mrs. F. J. Kliewer, Corr.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA. Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHUCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Business Office, Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kans.
Editor .... J. R. Thierstein, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.50 .... Foreign, $2.00

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges, to J. R. THIERSTEIN, or the MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. AGANETHA RICHERT KLASSEN was born at Gnadenheim, South Russia, on July 21, 1870. When she was 4 years of age she immigrated, with her parents Heinrich Richerts, to America. Here they made their new home in McPherson County, Kansas. As her father was a teacher and also a minister of the Gospel, she was raised in the fear of the Lord and upon this faith she was baptized June 10, 1889, by Elder Jacob Buller and united with the Alexanderwohl Mennonite Church, of which she was a faithful member at the time of her death. On March 3, 1893, she was married to her now deeply mourning husband, Peter P. Klassen, on which occasion Missionary H. R. Voth officiated. This union lasted nearly 47 years, and blessed with six sons, all living. Many blessings were granted them by the Lord and even tribulations proved to be blessings. Very conscientiously and devotedly she did her part in the home. Often she wished that she could find some time to take part in Christian benevolent activities. She worked hard and was a good steward of material things and yet ready to give. She did what she could.

About 20 years ago we noticed that she developed some kind of heart trouble, but the disturbances were of short duration. It became alarming only during the last years. In July she entered the Bethesda Hospital at Goessel, Kansas, and after 2 weeks' treatment and care her condition was much improved and she was dismissed and returned to her home. Before long her breathing was seriously hindered, so that she sat up nights in a chair praying in her suffering. Last Christmas she was much improved and she enjoyed the homecoming of the children. Soon after that her condition became alarming and she entered the Bethesda Hospital a second time for treatment and care. All that modern treatment and kind care could do was done but with no results. She was called home to be with her Lord at 3:30 a.m., January 5, at an age of 69 years, 5 months and 14 days.

She leaves to mourn her departure her deeply mourning husband, Peter P. Klassen, the children, Henry and Peter Klassen at home, Christoph and Maria Boese Klassen, Otto and Linda Hiebert Klassen, John and Elisabeth Schmidt Klassen, Rudolph and Selma Strauss Klassen and 4 grandchildren. Also one half-sister Mrs. Rudolf Riesen, Arlington, Kansas, and 6 brothers and sisters—P. H. Richert, Newton, D. H. Richert, North Newton, Margaret Richert, Goessel, and John J. Richert, Wichita, Kansas, Martha Richert Penner, Champa, C. P. India, and Elizabeth Richert Epp, Henderson, Nebr., one uncle, two aunts, and a large circle of friends.

At the funeral Rev. C. C. Wedel made the introduction, Rev. P. H. Unruh spoke on 2 Cor. 4:14, and Rev. J. J. Banman on Job 19:25-27.

JOHN GUSTAV WILL, son of Johann and Renatha Henning Will, was born April 16, 1867, at Tiegenort, Kreiss Marienburg, West Prussia. He came to America in 1888, finding employment on farms near Halstead, Kansas. In 1894 he visited his old home but soon returned to America to take up his permanent residence near Halstead.

He was baptized upon his confession of faith, Feb. 27, 1898, by Rev. Christian Krehbiel and received into the Mennonite Church, where he remained a faithful member until his death.—He was joined in holy matrimony to Helena M. Mierau, Oct. 2, 1898. This union was blessed with ten children. Two sons preceded him in death, and on April 1, 1938 his life companion passed away.—After a lingering illness he died Dec. 13, 1939.

He leaves to mourn his departure four sons, John, Henry, Frank of Halstead, and Otto of Hutchinson; four daughters, Marie (Mrs. Walter Bockhaus), Helen (Mrs. Karl Schroeder) both of Halstead; Frieda (Mrs. Oliver Keller) of Harper, Kans., and Louise at home; also one sister in Berlin, three sons-in-law, four daughters-in-law, fourteen grandchildren and many other relatives and friends to mourn his passing.

* * *

ELIZABETH HILTY, daughter of Christian C. and Anna (Gilliom) Hilty, was born on Easter Sunday, April 16, 1911 and passed away Dec. 12, 1939 at the age of 28 years, 7 months and 25 days. In childhood and early womanhood Elizabeth was a very active girl in school and church. She taught a S. S. group. About ten years ago she contracted tuberculosis against which she put up a heroic struggle, never losing her cheerfulness and interest in others. At times she seemed to be making progress in mastering the disease, spending many years in rest cure both at home and in sanitoriums but finally succumbed. Elizabeth was a cheery spirit in spite of her ill health, Her faith in her Lord was a source of constant sustaining grace to her in her illness. She leaves a fine memory of a heroic Christian life under great difficulties. Funeral services at Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio, by her pastor, Paul E. Whitmer, Dec. 14 1939.

* * *

GIDEON LUGIBIHL, son of Christian C. and Mary (Schumacher) Lugibihl, was born at Pandora, Ohio, Dec. 20, 1878, and passed away Jan. 3, 1940, at the age of 61 years and 13 days. Gideon never enjoyed rugged health, especially in his childhood and youth. He grew to manhood and had better health for some years but in later years he was again handicapped with ill health. He was a member of the Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio, for many years. He was a regular attendant at the services whenever health permitted. After a short illness of pneumonia he passed away. Funeral services were held at the Grace Mennonite Church January 6, 1940, his pastor, Rev, Paul E. Whitmer, officiating.

ERNEST UMMEL was born in Le Locle, Switzerland, on March 29, 1870, and passed away at his home north of Ness City, Kans., Jan. 3, 1940, at the age of 69 years, 9 months, and 4 days.

In his early boyhood he came to America and located in Iowa, where his sister resided. Later he located in Ness County, Kansas. In the fall of 1894 he married Lenora Mishler. Their happiness was of brief duration, as she departed this life August 2, 1896.—In 1899 he was married to Louisa Fuige, who was his faithful and loving companion to the end. To this union 9 children were born. He leaves to mourn his passing, his wife, four daughters, Mrs. Lenora Steiner, Claflin; Mrs. Mary Reider, Ness City; Mrs. Kathryn Johannes, Arnold, Kansas; Mrs. Martha Wollbrinck, Laramie, Wyoming; four sons, Samuel, Ransom; Herman, Ness City; and Daniel and Benjamin of the home; also nine grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Mary Slonaker of Pulaski, Iowa; one brother, Joe Ummel of Udall, Kansas, and many relatives and friends.

He was a life-long member of the Mennonite Church and revered his Lord. It was his daily task to read his Bible, from which he got much comfort in a world torn with strife. His greatest pleasure was to serve others. He was a kind and loving husband and father to the end and will be greatly missed.—Funeral services were held in the Ransom Mennonite Church on Friday, Jan. 4, Rev. Abraham Albrecht officiating. He used Psalms 73:23-26 as basis for his message of comfort and hope to the bereaved family. The choir sang the following songs selected by the family: "The Old Rugged Cross," "All the Way My Savior Leads Me," and "Sometime We'll Understand." The body was laid to rest in the Ransom cemetery.

* * *

MARIA UNRAU, nee Banman, was born Nov. 12, 1877, in McPherson County, Kansas. She received her education in the district school and in Elder Peter Balzer's religious school. Later she attended Bethel College. In June 1896, on Pentecost, she was baptized upon the confession of her faith by Elder Jacob Buller, and joined the Alexanderwohl Church, where she was a member of good standing at the time of her death. Her mother died June 19, 1897, and she then assumed the many household duties in her parental home. On June 9, 1899 she was married to J. B. Unrau and for a period of over 41 years they were privileged to share joy and sorrow with each other.

In September, 1938, she had the misfortune to break her right arm. This was quite a hindrance in performing her household duties as formerly. Lately she was not as well as usual, since she suffered from heart trouble. On Sunday, Jan. 7, she took sick and the doctor pronounced it to be a stroke. She passed away at 8 a.m., Jan. 8, at the age of 62 years, 1 month, 26 days. She was mother of nine children 3 sons and 6 daughters. To her husband she was a dear and true companion on life's journey and to the children a loving mother.

She leaves to mourn her departure, her husband, 2 sons, 6 daughters, 3 sons-in-law, 1 daughter-in-law and 19 grandchildren. The children are: Jacob, Marie, Velda and Norma at home; F. J. and Bertha Unrau Schmidt, Newton; J. P. and Eva Unrau Nikkel, Lehigh; Albert L. and Helen Unrau Pankratz, Canton; Rufus B. and Mathilda Nikkel Unrau, Lehigh; one brother J. F. Banman, Hutchinson, and many relatives and friends. Speakers at the funeral were: Rev. P. H. Unruh on Ps. 147:3; Rev. P. H. Richert on Joshua 23:4; Rev. C. C. Wedel on 2 Tim. 4:18.

* * *

JOHANN J. NICKEL, the son of Johann and Elizabeth Olfert Nickel, was born July 26, 1858, at Fuerstenau, South Russia. He died on New Year's Day, Jan. 1, 1940, in the home of his children, Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Gaede, Newton, Kansas, where he had been cared for the past three weeks. He reached the age of 81 years, 5 months and 6 days.

On August 1, 1874, he came with parents, brothers and sisters, to America, where they found a new home in the Brudertal community, northeast of Hillsboro, Kans. May 17, 1880, he was baptized upon confession of faith and received into the Brudertal Church, where he remained a faithful member to his end.—On April 27, 1890, he was united in marriage with Katharina Ediger of Inman, Kans. To this union 4 sons and 3 daughters were born. They lived in this union 19 years. On August 24, 1909, after only a few days of illness his dear companion went to her heavenly rest.

On August 18, 1911, he was again married, with Maria Dirksen of Goessel, Kans. This union lasted 8 years, when father entered his heavenly home. He leaves to mourn his departure his wife, 3 sons, 3 daughters, one daughter-in-law and one son-in-law and 5 grandchildren. Funeral services were held on January 4, 1940. Rev. Paul Mouttet spoke words of comfort in the home. Rev. A. E. Funk and Rev. P. W. Penner conducted the services in the church and cemetery.

« « JOTTINGS » »

—Mountain Lake, Minn.—At a special meeting of the congregation — Evangelische Menn. Bruedergemeinde known as the Valley church (formerly Wall church), the question of the location of a new church building was decided, a vote of 106 against 52 favoring Mountain Lake as the proper place, whenever building operations are to be undertaken.—Mt. Lake Observer.

—THE NEW HYMN BOOK AGAIN.—Referring once more to this book, we are glad to report that not only will this be a hymnal with a wonderful variety of choice music and food for worship, but the Responsive Readings have also been revised and enriched by three trusted brethren in the ministry, the Reverends C. E. Krehbiel, A. E. Kreider and J. N. Smucker.

—First Church, Reedley, Calif.—The Jan. 14 Bulletin of this church contains these very appropriate and timely observations which our people have need to be reminded of: "There is no end of opportunity to help meet needs in our day. The calls are becoming more urgent as time goes on. This makes it more and more necessary that we learn to give wisely as well as generously. Unfortunately there are those who make appeals under false pretenses. They use the misfortunes of others and the generous spirit of those able to give for their own ends. This confuses many givers and makes them more or less afraid to give for fear that their money will not be used for the purposes for which it was collected.—Another difficulty which confronts many givers is the fact that there are those who emphasize the method of giving more than they do the object for which the gift is asked. Often these methods do not appeal to the giver."

—Rev. J. J. Plenert of First Church, Philadelphia writes: "I have always enjoyed reading the sermonettes in THE MENNONITE, yet I am one with many others that have never said anything to the effect that they were appreciated.—Shall make another effort this year to add more subscribers from our church.

—Second Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—PASTORAL MESSAGE: The youth of the world is on the march. Half of this youth is on the doomed trail of war. The other half holds the future destiny of our civilization in its hands. The youth of America will play an important part in determining the fate of our nation. Where will youth lead? Will youth follow Christ or will it follow "other gods"? We must help you decide.

—Ebenezer Church near Bluffton, Ohio.—The young people of this church are again planning for a Young People's Convention and are trying to get the best speakers possible. The church has a Ladies' Mission Society, a Girl's Mission Band, a Gospel Team, three C. E.'s—Senior, Intermediate and Junior—all of which meet every Sunday evening.

—A Remarkable Church Family.—The father has not missed church for twenty-threeyears, the mother for eleven years, a son for twelve years, and a daughter for eight years. What's the matter with this family anyway? Don't they have Sunday company, feel tired on Sunday, have headaches, colds, late parties? Don't they have a radio and lounge in slippers while hearing some other preacher? Can't they just read their Bibles at home when it rains? Don't they get tired of their preacher and blame him for all the faults of the congregation? What's the matter with this family anyhow?—From the Pacific Lutheran.

"GLIMPSES FROM OUR COLLEGES"

—Bluffton College.—The student work program launched a number of years ago is growing in size and effectiveness. At present three out of five students are earning part of their expenses. These earn from $20.00 to $67.50 per semester, the average being around $50. To earn this amount, the student must work about eleven hours each week. Eighteen students work in college offices, twenty are employed as assistants in laboratories and in grading papers, nine students work in the College and Community libraries. The "campus work" uses the largest number, about forty. They haul coal, shovel snow, keep the buildings and campus clean, mow lawns, etc. The college dining hall and kitchen use 21 boys and girls as table waiters, dish washers, cooks and assistants of various kind. This makes a total of 118 students receiving part time work from the college proper. Outside the wholesale book company and the chicken industry each uses several students.

—Bethel College.—Our colleges never cease having their needs. Like a growing child their needs multiply continually. One of the immediate needs of Bethel is a larger room for the post office, North Newton, Kansas, which serves several hundred people, and through the years there was needed an organization of the male students that would clean the campus walks after each snowfall in winter, so that the girl students, faculty and other pedestrians would not have to wade through snow, ankle-to knee deep. It stands to reason that the "boys" would do this without compensation, as an act of chivalry.—Dr. E. L. Harshbarger is writing a pamphlet on "How to Analyze and Counteract War Propaganda", which augurs to be of such a value during these war times that it should and will be widely read. It will be distributed by the Gen. Conference Peace Committee.—Again the time is here when offers of scholarships and fellowships from high class institutions to outstanding students come in. It pays to be a good student for self-enrichment and for the opportunities it brings.

—Freeman Junior College, Freeman, So., Dak.—Denominational Colleges have resorted to various methods to raise funds during the trying years of the depression. A comewhat unique plan was that launched by loyal friends of this school back in 1933. Perhaps a score of friends contributed money to erect a service station on a convenient corner of the town's Main Street. The understanding was that the College should receive all receipts above operating expenses. After nearly seven years of operating the school has received $1744.18. Besides, the original donors have turned over to the College Board of Trustees the actual operating of the station.—Thirty-nine of the 1939 Normal graduates of the College are teaching in nine counties of the state and are given preference over teachers from some of the other colleges.—Freeman Jr. C. Bulletin.

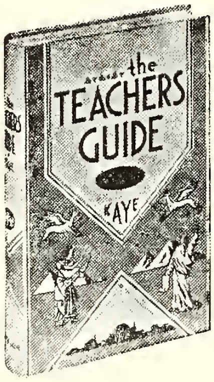
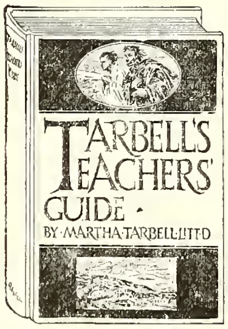
SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON COMMENTARIES 1940



the
TEACHERS
GUIDE
KAYE



TARBELL'S
TEACHERS'
GUIDE
BY MARTHA TARBELL LITT.D

SNOWDENS
SUNDAY SCHOOL
LESSONS

The Teacher's Guide

Edited by Dr. James R. Kaye

A completely new and inspiring volume of helps for the Sunday School teacher. Nearly 400 pages. ______ $1.50 postpaid

Tarbell's Teacher's Guide

by Bertha Tarbell, Litt.D.

35th Annual Volume. The best Teacher's S. S. Lesson Commentary on the market. We sell more every year.

Price, postpaid $2.00

Peloubet's Select Notes

66th Annual Volume

A Commentary on the International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

by Wilbur M. Smith, D.D.

Our most popular lesson commentary.
Price, postpaid $2.00

3 Popular Pocket Lesson Helps

The Gist of the Lesson for 1940—R. A. Torrey ______________ 35c

A Pocket Digest of the S. S. Lessons for 1940—Geo. L. Robinson ________ 35c

The Superintendent's Guide for 1940 on the International Uniform Lessons

by Harry Edwards Bartow

Many superintendents are finding this handy little annual an indispensable all-year-round assistant. Just what the busy leader needs. ______________ Postpaid, 35c

PELOUBET'S
SELECT NOTES ON THE
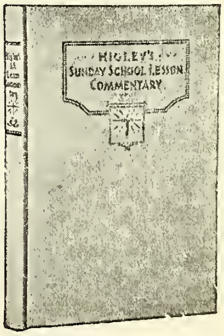
INTERNATIONAL
SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS



HIGLEY'S
SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON
COMMENTARY

THE INTERNATIONAL
SUNDAY SCHOOL
LESSONS
ARNOLDS COMMENTARY

SNOWDEN'S SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

James H. Snowden

19th annual volume. Practical expositions of the International Sunday School Lessons. Dr. Snowden selects incidents enough to make the people and events of the lessons interesting and human, fits into this frame sufficient comment to bring out the character, indicates for the instruction of his students places where the same judgments may apply to themselves, and suggests further live topics for discussion.

Price...................... $1.35

ARNOLD'S PRACTICAL COMMENTARY

With teachers' hints, blackboard exercises, illustrations, questions and maps, this popular help has for many years supplied the need for a good all-around commentary at a popular price......... postpaid, $1.00

HIGLEY'S S. S. LESSON COMMENTARY

"5 New features for 1940"

This excellent Commentary is gaining new friends every year. Very practical helps for the busy teacher who teaches adult classes. Only $1.00

Mennonite Book Concern - Berne, Indiana

Send Cash with order

REV. G. A. LINSCHEID
1001 EAST BROADWAY
NEWTON, KANSAS
JA 41
KEY 37

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, FEB. 6, 1940 NUMBER 6

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

We Want Peace

We want peace. Certainly there is nothing unusual about that. It is stated daily. Practically the whole world is saying it. Everyone hates war either for social, economic, or religious reasons. The paradox of the whole situation is that we can say, "We want peace" and "I hate war" and at the same time increase navies, armies and military equipment. Doesn't it seem foolish to prepare for something we do not want?

Certainly we would not expect our children to put on football equipment with all its protection and resistance just to go to school; nor would we put on steel armor, gas masks, etc., if we expect to carry on peaceful activity on the farm or in the office. Why should we as a nation follow such an inconsistent policy? We prepare for what we want to do and we dress for what we want to do. A nation made up of individuals who want peace should act accordingly. Let us prepare and expect to continue in peace by the course which we pursue.

When we say, "We want peace," we are not necessarily saying anything sensational, unique, or colossal. Even the nations at war are saying it. It is only when we act in the promotion of peace and in the prevention of or opposition to war that we are unique and unusual.

We as a church are not effective any more in simply voicing our belief, "We want peace" and "We hate war." It is only as we act to accomplish that ideal that we are helping to promote peace. We must live peace in our daily associations. It is necessary now to show the world the way of peace.

The Mennonite Church has long been recognized as a leader in believing in the principle of peace. Today we are not particularly different because of that belief; for now at length nearly everyone is beginning to accept that belief. If we as a Church expect to continue our leadership and expect to be effective in maintaining such a heritage, it is necessary that we go a step farther. It is necessary that we participate in peace activity to the extent that we have accepted the peace philosophy for over four hundred years. In order to remain leaders in such an ideal we must accept the responsibility as leaders in an activity program that will show the world the advantage and the Christ-likeness of peace.

There are projects to be supported financially, morally, and by actual self-giving. The extent to which we want peace will be shown by the support we actually give to these projects. Plans for such activities at home and abroad are being considered and investigated. The opportunity for activity is large. Will you help us show the world we want peace? Will you help Christ prove to the world that love can conquer evil?—William Ramseyer in "Christian Evangel."

* * *

"LORD, TEACH US TO PRAY."—One of Jesus' disciples said to the Master one day: "Lord, teach us to pray as John also taught his disciples." And He said to them: "When ye pray, say: Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name," etc He taught them the Lord's Prayer. Of this prayer Luther says: "Because this prayer sprang from the Lord's own heart, it no doubt is the highest, noblest, and the best of all prayers. If He had known a better one, the good and faithful Schoolmaster, He would have taught it to us." Christians the world over pray this daily, and seldom or never is there a divine service in which they do not pray it. They do this because Jesus said: "When ye pray,say, Our Father which art in heaven." They do it furthermore because this prayer covers all our needs. There is not a thing that we can and should pray for which is not contained in this prayer. All our earthly needs and all our spiritual needs, all that we need for time and for eternity, is contained in this masterful prayer, "Our Father which art in heaven." Christians also fashion their own prayers, and should learn more and more to fashion them, after this prayer; for the closer our prayers come to this great model, the better prayers they doubtless will be.

The Lord's Prayer is made up of an introduction, seven short petitions, and a conclusion. It is found in two places in the Bible, Matt. 6:9-13 and Luke 11:2-4. The wording is not exactly the same in both places, but the meaning is the same. In the remainder of this booklet we shall strive to regale you in a measure with the rich contents of this most wonderful prayer.—Lutheran "Devotional Reading."

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

Change to Be Made in First Mennonite Church, Chicago

The Apostle Paul in Ephesians 4:11 indicates that God gives different offices to workers in His Vineyard. "And he gave some to be apostles; and some prophets, and some evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers."

More than five years ago, Rev. A. H. Leaman, who had been in the city many years, assumed the temporary leadership of First Mennonite Church, at the request of the Home Mission Board. The Board anticipated to find a leader from among the ranks of the General Conference, but since the work was progressing under Rev. Leaman's evangelistic efforts, it seemed best for the time being to make no change. For a little more than two years the congregation has been paying the major part of the Pastor's monthly salary in addition to taking care of the local expenses. The Workers Home, owned by the General Conference, was not occupied by the Pastor, hence the income from the rent went into the treasury of the congregation.

During the earlier years of the Church, a goodly number of Mennonites who lived in Chicago were very active in the Sunday-School and Church. As time passed on, more and more local leadership was developed, until today there are very few of Mennonite background in the church. The coming in of new members and workers from the vicinity of the church was a source of joy.

For sometime the Home Mission Board has been suggesting to Rev. Leaman and the Church leaders, that the many Mennonites who make Chicago their home, be contacted and drawn into the Church. The Board hoped that a similar growth as has been noted in Los Angeles, Hutchinson and now in Portland, might manifest itself here. In the places named, the Mennonites in the respective city were earnestly sought and brought together as a nucleus. With this nucleus energetic work was carried on in each local community which resulted in growing churches. First Mennonite Church, Chicago, has an active Sunday School and Church organization, but so far the enlisting Mennonites has not materialized.

On July 31st, 1939, members of the Home Mission Board met with the Congregation concerning the future leadership of the Church. The Board acceded to a strong desire of the congregation that Rev. Leaman remain their leader. Thereupon the Board engaged him to serve the congregation until July 31st, 1940.

In a letter written January 17th, 1940, Rev. Leaman wrote in part: "My time is out on the 1st of August, 1940. So the Board has plenty of time to get another (Shepherd)." In order to proceed in cooperation with the Church to find a new leader, the Board had asked that a proper Committee be appointed or elected. To this Rev. Leaman answered in the same letter: "I will appoint a Committee, or rather have the church appoint one with whom the Board can meet. This will be a representative Committee from the various organizations."

The Home Mission Board is holding the Annual meeting in Chicago, February 15th and 16th at the Y. M. C. A. Hotel, Wabash Ave., near 8th Street. In this connection the Board expects to confer with this committee, looking to the calling of a new Pastor.

We earnestly solicit the prayers of all who are interested in First Mennonite Church, Chicago, so that the Lord might lead in the choice of a new leader. Let us pray that the zeal to enlist new members from the vicinity of the Church might not be diminished in the least, but that those Mennonites who are in the city either as students or as permanent residents might be enlisted and brought into active fellowship with Christ and the Church.

The Board also desires the prayers of the many Mission friends, that in the other matters that come up for consideration the Will of the Lord might be carried out.

Thanking you for your past interest in the work through prayers and your gifts, I am Very sincerely in Him, A. J. Neuenschwander.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

Kai Chow, Hopei, China, 11-21-'39

Dear Readers of the Mennonite:

We had a very quiet voyage across the Pacific with only a few days of slightly stormy weather for which we are very thankful. We landed in China October 25, and it was a real joy to be back again and speak Chinese. Somehow I felt very much at home. We had splendid fellowship on the ship with the large group of missionaries going to different parts of the world to carry the gospel message.

Because of the uncertainty of the future, Mrs. Ewert and the children are at the present staying in Peking on the advice of our fellow missionaries. After having found a suitable home for them I left for the interior. Except for slow travel I encountered no difficulty in getting to Kai Chow. I got there just in time for the Annual Workers Conference. That being over, I made my first trip to three village churches to examine candidates for baptism. Together with evangelist Yang we made about 35 miles on bicycle on bad road and part of the way against the wind. The rain today prevented us from continuing the work in other village churches.

The country around here is very quiet at present, but one really never knows how long it may last.

There are many new problems to face here, and new sacrifices to be made. And it all means a new consecration. First separation from parents, close relatives, and friends and now even separation from wife and children for a time. This together with the insecurity of the future calls for new faith in God if one is not to become discouraged.

Our furlough in the home land with the many contacts with our churches gave us the lasting impression that you dear fellow Christians are heart and soul back of the Lord's work in China. We also know that you are praying for us and the work out here which greatly strengthens our feeble efforts. We again wish to thank you for the many kindnesses you showed to us while at home both in words and deeds and prayer. We regret that we could not visit all the churches, especially those that invited us.

We wish you all God's richest blessings for the coming year.

August and Martha Ewert

College of Chinese Studies, Peking, China, 11-14-'39

Dear Brother Richert:

We are now hard at work in the Peking Language School, God having granted us a safe journey to China. Our voyage and trip here were exceptionally pleasant and especially was it pleasant and helpful for us beginners to have with us the Ewerts and Waltners to keep us company. We regretted very much to say farewell to the Waltners on the dock at Kobe, Japan, where they were forced to wait for a ship to take them farther on their way to India. All over China the friendship of fellow workers seems to be a possession of great worth, especially at this time.

Rev. Ewert had to go to the field alone, while his family is here in Peking. One makes sacrifices of this kind only when one sees the urgency of the work, which is now more needful than ever, since the masses of the people are more receptive. It is our prayer that we may master the language and then be permitted to go to these people with the message of eternal life through Jesus Christ. May those who love the Lord Jesus Christ everywhere pray that the darkness into which the world has again been plunged may be dispelled, that His work may progress as never before.

As stated above, we are busy studying the language. Exceptionally busy since we arrived just four weeks late. We are supposed to catch up with the regular class by Christmas time, which in my opinion is a rather big job. Personally I think it's rather a grave mistake to arrive here late for language study. But we are trying hard to catch up. Only five others out of seventy-two arrived late, and only one of those as late as we.

Sincerely yours,
Marvin J. Dirks

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

A. S. Rosenberger

COUNCIL CHURCH BOARDS OF EDUCATION MEETS

The annual meeting of the Council of Church Boards of Education, with which our Board of Education is affiliated, was held in the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, Philadelphia, on January 10,1940. The theme of this year's convention was "Christian Education and Democracy." This topic reflects the concern Christian leaders of today have for the preservation of democracy and their realization of the important place of Christian institutions in its maintenance.

Frank W. Stephenson, Executive Secretary of the Board of Education of the Methodist Protestant Church, and presiding officer of the convention, stated that the answer to our jeopardized democracy lies in an enlightened citizenry. This enlightenment must come through institutions based on the Christian religion. Through them we must develop the primary place of faith in God and the virtues resulting therefrom. The greatest obstacle to the growth of totalitarianism is a democracy founded on Christianity.

Gould Wickey, energetic and consecrated executive secretary, stressed the fact that the church must know what she wants to accomplish in education, and that she must grasp the opportunity offered by the growing interest of young people in the study of the Bible and religion.

The statement that there is a growing interest on college and university campuses in the Bible and religion received much emphasis in the Convention. Five workers with students in different colleges and universities reported this to be the case. One said "Many are seeking more definitely an adequate theological basis for their beliefs as well as an action program. In answer to a query, it was stated that this interest was in "supernatural" religion and not merely a social religious program.

Possibly the most widely known speaker of the day was Daniel Poling, editor of Christian Herald and leader of Christian Endeavor. He challenged the church-related colleges to regain the influence they had before 1840. A vital program of religion is the answer. Education without religion is sterile, and is intellectual anarchy. He agreed that there was a trend toward a deeper appreciation of the place of religion in life.

The spirit of the Convention in general was that the problems of the day must be met on a spiritual level. The dynamic of faith in Jesus Christ and the need of close fellowship with Him were stressed. Such an approach to the problems of the day and problems of the campus cannot help but be effective.

A. S. Rosenberger

Letter by President Roosevelt to the Federal Council of Churches

The White House, Washington, Dec. 23, 1939.

My dear Dr. Buttrick:

Because, at this Christmas time, the world is in sorrow, it is especially fitting that I send you a message of greeting and of faith. Realizing the spiritual kinship of all who believe in a common God, I have sent a like greeting to the Pope as head of the Catholic Church, and to Rabbi Cyrus Adler as an outstanding leader of the Jewish faith.

The world has created for itself a civilization capable of giving to mankind security and peace firmly set in the foundations of religious teachings. Yet, though it has conquered the earth, the sea, and even the air, civilization today passes through war and travail.

I take heart in remembering that in a similar time, Isaiah first prophesied the birth of Christ. Then, several centuries before His coming, the condition of the world was not unlike that which we see today. Then, as now, a conflagration had been set; and nations walked dangerously in the light of the fires they had themselves kindled. But in that very moment a spiritual rebirth was foreseen—a new day which was to loose the captives and to consume the conquerors in the fire of their own kindling; and those who had taken the sword were to perish by the sword. There was promised a new age wherein through renewed faith the upward progress of the human race would become more secure. . . .

I have the rare privilege of reading the letters and confidences of thousands of humble people, living in scores of different nations. Their names are not known to history, but their daily work and courage carry on the life of the world. I know that these, and uncounted numbers like them in every country, are looking for a guiding light. We remember that the Christmas Star was first seen by shepherds, long before the leaders knew of the Great Light which had entered the world.

I believe that while statesmen are considering a new order of things, the new order may well be at hand. I believe that it is even now being built, silently but inevitably, in the hearts of masses whose voices are not heard, but whose common faith will write the final history of our time. They know that unless there is belief in some guiding principle and some trust in a divine plan, nations are without light and peoples perish. They know that the civilization handed down to us by our fathers was built by men and women who knew in their hearts that all were brothers because they were children of God. They believe that by His will enmities can be healed; that in His mercy the weak can find deliverance, and the strong find grace in helping the weak . . . .

In these present moments, no spiritual leader, no civil leader can move forward on a specific plan to terminate destruction and build anew. Yet the time for that will surely come.

It is, therefore, my thought that though no given action or given time may now be prophesied, it is well that we encourage a closer association between those in every part of the world—those in religion and those in government—who have a common purpose.

I therefore suggest that it would give me a great satisfaction if you would, from time to time, come to Washington to discuss the problems which all of us have on our minds, in order that our parallel endeavors for peace and the alleviation of suffering may be assisted.

When the time shall come for the reestablishment of world peace on a surer foundation, it is of the utmost importance to humanity and to religion that common ideals shall have united expression.

Furthermore, when that happy day shall dawn, great problems of practical import will face us all. Millions of pepole of all races, all nationalities and all religions may seek new lives by migration to other lands or by reestablishment of old homes. Here, too, common ideals call for parallel action.

I trust, therefore, that all of the Churches of the world which believe in a common God will throw the great weight of their influence into this great cause.

To you, whom I have the privilege of calling a good friend, I send my sincere greetings at this Christmas Season.

Cordially yours, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

A Letter from First Mennonite Church, Chicago, Illinois

I am glad to write news for THE MENNONITE from this part of God's vineyard. We are glad to write that God is blessing our efforts. This fall we decorated our church in the audience room and the chapel as well. A fine spirit of unity prevails and thus all pull together. We laid a beautiful rug in the church, and it looks very inviting.

Many calls came in for help during the cold weather we have been having. Let me tell you about one family. I found this family in a deserted flat. Father was in jail and deserted his wife and three little children. The mother was timid and did not ask for relief. After she learned who I was she gave the children to me, I took them and found homes for them. Just this week I went to Pontiac, Ill., and had the baby, two years old, adopted into one of the families of our church. One little girl is in Freeport, Ill., and the other at Gridley, Ill. I am planning to place this little girl out for adoption. The mother is attending our church and is becoming interested in the work.

Recently we took into membership seven precious souls. Others are counting the cost. Will you pray that God will bless and use us to reach many more.

—A. H. Leaman, Pastor.

Communists Morally Bankrupt

Don. E. Smucker, New York City, Youth Secretary, Fellowship of Reconciliation

Mennonites need not be reminded of the diabolical nature of the Communist movement, the world over. More than most groups, our people have seen it within an international rather than a strictly American context.

Living in New York, where the American movement is the strongest, I have been able to observe it with considerable advantage. The Nazi-Soviet pact came as a stunning, unexpected blow. A number of intellectuals like Vincent Sheean, Granville Hicks and Ralph Bates have broken with the movement; the wanton invasion of beautiful Finland has increased the tempo of the departure. The movement, however, is not dead. The other night I attended a public forum where Communist speakers spoke of the invasion of Finland as an act of "self-defense" on the part of Stalin and his Russian armies. Such hypocrisy is almost unbelievable but, on second thought, militarists throughout the pages of history have defended aggression (war is aggression!) as defensive war.

Writing from London, Devere Allen, well known Amercian pacifist, submits the following amazing example of the zig-zag thinking of British Communists as found in the English Red publication, The Daily Worker, counterpart of the U.S.A. Daily Worker:

On page 1 it states that the Soviet government took action only when the Polish defense collapsed.

On page 2 it describes how Warsaw is still fighting, five days after the Red Army advanced. Scattered elsewhere in the paper are statements (a) that the Polish government does not exist; (b) that the British government could still send war planes to help the Polish government (which does not exist); (c) that the liberated population welcomed the Russians without firing a shot and (d) that Kalinin, President of the Soviet Union, has decorated Red Army officers for courage under fire."Woe unto you scribes, Pharisees and hypocrites."

It becomes increasingly clear that Communism is morally bankrupt and that traditional methods of fighting this menace are likewise bankrupt. With shame we must admit that some Mennonites thought Adolph Hitler was really fighting this menace. The Nazi-Soviet pact dispelled all such fantasy. "Satan cannot drive out Satan."

Communism is an attempt to overcome injustice with violence and a materialistic philosophy of history. To overcome this evil, Christians must use love, godwill, kindness and pacifism on the one hand, and the redemption of God on the other. This, obviously, is a definition of Christian pacifism. The pacifists who were falsely accused of Communism are today standing out against all modern paganism with brilliance and clarity.

Muriel Lester? This great English Christian is touring America freely admitting the sins of British imperialism and militarism (particularly the British blockade and the war to force opium on China!) as well as condemning the sins of Hitler and Stalin.

Leyton Richards? He has suggested that British ships laden with food be sent into the North sea in order that they might be captured by German ships, the food to be used in the Reich. When this was called fantastic he answered: "Yes, but it is only because we deem the Christian way absurd that Europe is doomed to fall by its own self-inflicted wounds. In the measure that men respond to or repudiate the way of Christ do they rise or fall in the final verdict of history and in the living judgment of God. The Christian ethics is idealistic not realistic; a thing for the other man, not for us. What is our (British) dominant aim in prosecuting the war? We say we want to destroy the sin of Hitlerism, and it is a sin, with all its outrages, its violence, iniquities and blasphemy. But do we want to save Hitler from his sins? God does. We say 'force must be met by force.' Do we say that because we are really zealous for international right, or do we say it because we are really afraid to take Christ's way of the Cross."

Only this endless faith in the redemptive power of divine love can save the world. Only this can break the vicious circle of fighting evil with evil. Though supernatural in origin, it is available to every believing Christian to use daily, to practice always. God's plan is known. Let us use it and hold it up to sinning mankind. Nothing short of this is an answer to Communism and all the morally bankrupt political philosophies.

SHE DIDN'T BELIEVE IT!—When Dr. J. C. Massee's daughter was small, attending a school in Brooklyn, her teacher said one day, "There is no doubt at all but that the moon is made of green cheese." She further explained that this was due to a "chemical reaction." Dr. Massess's daughter told her father, "I told her I didn't believe it, that it wasn't in the Bible and I'd prove it.

She then asked her father to help her win her point; but he told her to study her Bible and try to figure it out herself, for he was too busy to help her that evening. The next morning he had planned to help her, but she left for school without his help. All day he wondered how she got along with her teacher; so when she came home that evening he was interested to hear her explain, "I got down my Bible as you told me and found where it said that the moon was made on the fourth day and cows were not made until the sixth day. So I asked the teacher how the moon could be made of green cheese when there wasn't any milk to make it of." —Christian Victory.

Important Considerations

* * *

"ENLARGE THE PLACE OF THY TENT"

A new call is coming to our churches: "Spare not, lengthen thy cords, and strengthen thy stakes." Our Mennonite friends in South America have just celebrated the tenth anniversary of their redemption from Soviet Russia, expressing deep gratitude to God that they are where they are instead of in the land from which they have fled.

Dr. H. A. Fast has told us a good many things about these brethren in the continent to the south of of us. They have overcome great obstacles in their forward march, but it is a hard struggle. Rev. Abr. Harder, an exceptionally strong leader, is physically not very strong and, besides all his pastoral cares, must work for a livelihood along with all the other people. The load is too heavy. The Home Mission Board has greed to send aid to this valuable servant, that he need not succomb under his heavy responsibilities. It is expected that this will help free his hands to carry on more effectively the work to which the Lord has called him. The first check, to give assistance for the first three months of this year, has already been forwarded.

Rev. Harder's son Ernst, now a student in Freeman College, has also received some aid from the Home Mission Board, and the salary of Brother Fast on his trip to these brethren, was also provided by the Home Mission Board (The Relief Board paid the traveling expenses). All this is an additional drain upon the treasury. So please "spare not, lengthen thy cords, and strengthen thy stakes." These, our own brethren, need us. —J. M. Regier

A MACEDONIAN CALL FROM SOUTH AMERICA

In the land of Paraguay, where some 3000 of our Mennonite people settled about ten years ago, there is a large city named Asuncion. About 90 of the Mennonites have moved to that city to find employment. They are far removed from their brethren and receive little spiritual care. For lack of leadership, there is no Mennonite Church. It is a struggle for existence, and how quickly people will lose their vision for the things of the Kingdom.

Our brethren in Paraguay are burdened about this matter. A plea has reached the Home Mission Board to make it possible to station a Christian worker in that big city to look after the spiritual interests of our brethren. The Board has agreed to advance the salary of a worker, if the church in the Southland will secure the worker. It is believed that can be done. Fortunately for us, a dollar goes farther there than in this country.

The call to the friends of home missions is very clear, "Come over to Asuncion, Paraguay, and help us." We believe that in a very short while it will be possible to open that work for Mennonite people in that great city. Will you not pray that the right worker may be found by the brethren of Paraguay, and that the means for his support will be forthcoming. Very sincerely, J. M. Regier.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

February 18, 1940

GOOD CITIZENS AND GOOD NEIGHBORS

(Peace Lessons)

Matthew 22:15-22, 34-40

Good Citizenship, vs. 15-22

The Pharisees were enraged at Jesus after He uttered the parable of the Wicked Husbandmen and only the fear of the people kept them from putting Him to death. He continues to expose and denounce their hypocrisies. They counseled together and plotted to entrap Him in his talk (v15) and thus bring about his downfall. The leaders sent some of their disciples with some Herodians—the most determined enemies of the Pharisees—to try to entangle Him. The Herodians were loyal to Rome and believed the tax should be paid. Frequently today, those who are enemies otherwise, will join in their common hatred of Christ and his cause.

By their flattering words (v16), in which they spoke much more truthfully than they realized, they sought to put Jesus off his guard and have Him say something which would be sure to bring Him into trouble. How easily we are misled by flattering words. Satan is never so dangerous as when he flatters. The snare was well laid in the cunning question (v17) and the conspirators doubtless felt very confident of success. The Pharisees hated to pay tribute to Caesar. The question meant whether the payment was morally and religiously right. Their object was to bring Jesus into conflict with the Roman government. If He answered "yes," He would infuriate the patriotic Jews, and if He answered "no," the government might likely treat Him as a rebel. They felt sure the answer must be one or the other. How little they knew Jesus. How shallow was their hypocrisy. How thoroughly Jesus squelched them in their sham sincerity. He asked for a Roman denarius with which the tax was paid, and which bore the image and superscription of Caesar (v20), indicating that he was in fact the ruler of the country. Then the masterful words of Jesus (v21) completely silenced His enemies. He said in effect—"You use Caesar's money, you must pay his tax." This was only giving what was properly due him. Jesus throws much light on the Christian's duty to his civil government. He also has a duty to God which must be faithfully performed. The true basis of citizenship is devotion to God and the highest loyalty must always be to Him.

Love, the Most Important Commandment vs 34-40

The Jews were much divided in their views as to whether moral or ceremonial commandments were more important and whether duties to man were superior to duties to God. The question (v36) was an important one and Jesus' answer was important and convincing. He quoted Deut. 6:5. Man's first duty is to God and it is summed up in one word—love. We shall love Him with all our faculties, and we show our love when we put God first in everything. Jesus declares that the whole duty of man, the sum of all moral obligations is expressed in one word—"love," which must be shown toward God and man. If leaders of all nations would live out this divine duty, there could not be any wars.

Love for fellowman (Lev. 19:18) is active good will and seeks our neighbor's good will as well as our own. It means that we have the same desire for his welfare that we have for our own. Such love is fundamental to peace. Love for our neighbor is involved in love for God. It is sheer nonsense for one to pretend to love God if he does not love his neighbor. These two commandments sum up the whole duty of man. Every one owes an obligation to the state, to his neighbor, and to God. The good Christian is a good neighbor and the best citizen.

COPYING THE WHOLE BIBLE BY HAND

A young Armenian artist and sign painter, living in Beirut, Syria, has written out the entire Bible in his own hand in Armenian. He has memorized thousands of verses, has read the Bible through ten times, doing it once in twenty-four days, and has made a resolution to read it through several times a year. His working hours are from 7:30 until 7, and he has begun to read at present for an hour in the morning, an hour at noon, and an hour in the evening. He is superintendent of the Sunday school of 200, having seven classes of boys and seven for girls.

At the top of his little house, which he has owned since it was one tiny room in size, for many years he had a large sign of his own make, with ridges of metal, displaying the word, "Jesus," in Arabic, English, and Armenian, according to the angle from which one looks. This sign, and the handwritten, leather bound Bible, have often led many visitors to his home.

In the Sunday School Times (Philadelphia for January 20, this young Armenian Christian told the story of his remarkable, handwritten Bible. He gives many interesting details, such as the exact time it took him, the weight of the Bible, and the total expense, including even the cost of electric lighting. He gives twelve reasons why he undertook this great task. The article in the Times is accompanied by a picture of the young man and his wife and the big Bible.—Order "The Times" or a copy of this article.

SERMON SKETCH

MUST WE HAVE CRIME?

by Allen M. Fretz

Text: Prov. 1:10—Read 10-19

Crime is the manifestation of sin. Sin is the violation of the Divine Law, while crime is the omission of a duty commanded, the commission of an act forbidden, the violation of every one of the tenets in God's commandments. It is the action of sin. People are led to commit crime by Satan, the enemy of God and man.

Joseph, a young man tempted by his master's wife, could positively say, "How could I do this great wickedness—crime—and sin against God." Gen. 39:9. Crime is prevalent in our day among the young people—boys and girls.

Our text is a father's, a mother's appeal, "If sinners entice thee (tempt, lure, seek tolead astray) consent thou not." The enticements are of two classes, internal and external.

Internal enticements may come from badly managed homes. Family quarrels, self-indulgent parents, low standards of morality, drunkenness, lack of concern and of sympathy, carelessness in handling delicate problems of child nurture—these and other similar conditions in homes often turn young people toward immorality and crime. We find many examples of this class. Oh fathers, mothers, will you not in the most positive way by word and example plead in the words of the text: "My son, my daughter, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not."

External enticements come through bad companions, the open door of sinful living. If tempted to a criminal life read prayerfully Proverbs 3, and take into consideration the temptations of our Lord Jesus, and you will find strength to "consent not" to crime of any kind; and so "mayest thou walk in the way of good men, and keep the paths of the righteous. For the wicked shall be cut off from the earth and the transgressors shall be rooted out of it."

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, UPLAND, CALIF.

Again by the grace of God we have crossed the threshold of the new year. The church services of the year were fittingly begun by the celebration of Holy Communion, Sunday morning, January 7. The Universal Week of Prayer was observed, January 8 to 12, inclusive. The Pastor lead two meetings and church officers the others. At the annual congregational meeting which was preceded by a church dinner, the customary reports were given. There was a membership gain of 21 and a loss of 5. The total membership of the church, January 1, 1940, was 354. Following the reports, election of officers, plans were made for carrying on the work of the church during the coming year. The installation service for all new officers is planned for Church Night, February 7. Of special interest to the whole congregation at this time, is the building of the new parsonage, which is nearing completion. The matter of furnishings is being taken care of, so within a month our pastor and his family should be comfortably settled in their new home.

Brother and Sister Ledig Celebrate their Golden Wedding

On January 19, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Ledig celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. In honor of the occasion a reception was held on Sunday, the 21st, at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Ledig, Alta Loma, on the old "home place" which Mr. and Mrs. Ledig cleared and planted about 45 years ago. The first group invited were the relatives and a short service was held. The Rev. Lester Hostetler spoke on Psalm 121, making some very appropriate remarks for the occasion. Rev. M. Horsch, the first pastor of the church, spoke in the German language, using Psalm 23:6, Phil. 4:4-5, Isaiah 46:4, Matt. 28:20 as a basis for his remarks. During the hours from 2 to 6, guests called to extend congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Ledig have always had the interest and activities of the church at heart. They were most influential in the organization and building of the first Mennonite church at Upland. Through the years their interest has not abated, which has been proven by the numerous and liberal gifts to both church and missions. May God bless them and give them in His wisdom, as many more years in the Master's service as He sees best. Another couple in our church, Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Buller formerly from Henderson, Nebraska, will also celebrate their golden wedding anniversary in February, if the Lord permits. Besides this Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Mehl and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Teuscher share the distinction of having reached fifty or more years of married life. May God grant them all future blessings.

On January 23, 1940, Rev. Andrew Oesch the oldest member of the congregation passed away at the Community Hospital, Long Beach, Calif. In recent years he has made his home with his daughter, Mrs. J. H. Donner, Long Beach. A funeral service was held at Mattell's Funeral Parlors in Long Beach, after which his son Rev. Julius Oesch from Staunton, Illinois, will accompany the body of his father to Morton, Illinois, where he will be buried beside Mrs. Oesch.

The Pastor, Rev. Lester Hostetler has begun a series of Wednesday evening Bible studies on "The Message of the book of Revelation." The studies will continue until Easter. The attendance is encouraging and much interest is shown in these studies. May they prove of special blessing and benefit to all. Greetings to the editor and readers.

—Amanda H. Hostettler, Corr.

* * *

EMMANUEL MENN. CHURCH, PRATUM, ORE.

We are grateful to our heavenly Father for the many blessings we enjoyed during the past year. We were privileged to conduct our regular services every Lord's day, besides some special ones. The attendance and interest was good during the entire year.

The first of the Christmas services was the rendition of the cantata "Bethlehem" by the church choir of 30 voices, on Sunday evening Dec. 17. The church was filled to capacity. On Christmas eve the Sunday school program was given. A large group was gathered in spite of the dense fog which made driving very difficult.

The annual business meeting of the church was held on Jan. 2. The membership was well represented and a spirit of unity prevailed. It was decided to continue the remodeling program until the entire church is remodeled. The work was started in the basement. A new furnace was installed and other improvements were completed before Christmas. Another important item was the resignation of our pastor, J. M. Franz, which had been handed to the church board, and read by W. C. Rutschman, chairman of the board. The resignation was accepted. We regret very much to see the Franzes leave us. On the other hand we thank God for having given them to us fifteen years by next June, at which time they plan to take up their new field of labor in the Grace Church at Albany, Ore.

During the past year 29 members were received into membership of the church, 20 by confession of faith and baptism and 9 by letter. All the various departments of the church are again organized and we are looking forward to a blessed year in the Lord's service.

Our pastor is conducting a Bible school on Thursday evenings. Two courses of study are being given, "The Life of Christ," and "What the Bible Teaches." The studies will be continued until Easter. Much benefit and blessing is being derived from the studies.

—Mrs. John L. Merryman, Corr.

* * *

—First Church, Bluffton, Ohio.—The Young People's Union C. E. from the Bluffton District gave a New Year's Play at this church, the theme of which was the turning of a new leaf for the future. Greed Selfishness and Indifference were shown in their folly.—Rev. H. T. Unruh is instructing a catechesical class from New Year until Easter.—Missionaries John Thiessen who have their furlough home in Bluffton are a much appreciated help to our church and S. S.—Correspondent.

R. Weinbrenner
Editor
Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen
Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers
Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR!

(Editors note: The following is a letter from Miss Elizabeth D. Goertz, aunt of Richard and Hilda Beth Goertz. The letter was sent as a Christmas and New Year's Greeting to the Sundri Bai Mission Society of the Second Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebr. It is here reprinted because of its interesting information.)

Here comes a personal greeting from "me to you" at this Christmas time. May your joys be many and may the New Year bring you blessings, such as you need most. I know we cannot always have what we want, but it is good to have what we need.

We here in China are having "the time of our lives"! Doors were never more widely open, nor the opportunities for service as many and varied. One of our Chinese leaders said recently at the reception for our newly arrived missionaries: "Formerly there was less work and there were more missionaries. Now there is more work and there are fewer missionaries."

Mission work has taken on greater propertions, such as—Hua Mei Primary and High School formerly had 100 plus students. Now they have a total of 426. The Bible School had 9 in 1926, now they have 86. The School of Nursing started with 10 students in 1930, now we have 25 and expect to enter a class of 10 more in 1940. Hospital in-patients numbered 96 in 1929, this year 960 (in ten years). Daily clinic used to serve 30-60 patients, now we register 120 in one afternoon. Maternity patients numbered 10 in several years, now we have had 50 since last year in July. Since my special course in maternity nursing in Seattle, these mothers are my special charge. September 29th was a red-letter day—Three babies were born in one day at the following hours: 3:30 A.M. a baby girl, 3:00 P.M. a girl, and at 5.45 P.M. a baby boy.

Out in the villages and here in the institutions there is a new large demand for songbooks, Bibles and Scripture portions. The Bible Societies cannot fill the orders fast enough, even though they turn them out one every two seconds!

Crops have been good this year and most of our field is quite well supplied, only in several sections floods have destroyed all the people had hoped to harvest for their living. There will be need for relief of suffering. Taxes are heavy which consume about all that the people could otherwise use for better living conditions.

The conflict is still on, even in some one or other part of our field. We have frequent opportunity to relieve sufferng near the front lines. We can at times hear the distant cannon roar.

A view of the whole world (Occidental and Oriental, civilized and less civilized) makes one pray more and more for the rule of the Prince of Peace. This is a quotation of what I read just lately:

> "If Jesus came back to earth to spend Christmas among us, He would be practical. He would be the Leader the whole world is awaiting. He would use the same weapons He used of old—faith and love and prayer. And with these alone He would conquer. Armament squabbles, peace conferences, means test committees,—they would all be swept away by the rising tide of peace in a world guided by love."—From "Miracles of Faith" by John Maillard. Even so, O Lord!

The year 1940 has large plans awaiting it—more buildings for the hospital, a new site and building for the Bible School, extended work everywhere, so continue to pray as you have done, give as the Lord prospers you, and send those who can come to help in the front lines!!!

Yours for Him, lovingly,
Elizabeth B. Goertz

THIS AND THAT

Hereford—Christmas Gifts were distributed to the guests of the Old Folks Home at Fredrick, Pa., by the Senior C. E. Society. The young folks also joined other groups of the Perkiomen Valley in observing Watch-Night Services. Andrew Shelly, one of our members, now attending Hartford Seminary, has been assisting Dr. Johnson, pastor, in the pulpit.

First Church, Philadelphia—Miss Edith Noher, of the Methodist Deaconess Home of this city, recently spoke at the regular weekly service about her work among the needy. The Senior Society conducted an effective Candlelight Service on Dec. 24th.

Bowmansville—Our Young People have united with neighboring Y. P. Societies and have formed a Y. P. Chorus. (A very fine project and a good suggestion for others to follow where possible.) Removed from the center of activities of the E. D. Union, we have also held joint meetings and socials with societies of other denominations.

Lansdale—52 Young People, including the Pilgrim Trio with their horns, under the direction of the Worship Department of the C. E., chairman, John Unruh, spent a very successful night singing Christmas Carols at 23 places in Lansdale, Kulpsville, Hatfield, and Souderton. The sound carried for blocks around so that many were privileged to hear it. Rev. Bohn was awakened about 3 A. M. as Grace Mennonite serenaded the Zion Mennonite pastor.

At five places, Clarence Fretz's, Kline's, Issac Gehman's Rittenhouse's, and Allen Fretz's the cold carolers were invited in for refreshments.

Fellowship Supper

The 3rd annual Y. P. Fellowship Supper was enjoyed by aproximately 120 young people on Saturday evening, Jan. 20, 1940, in the Grace Mennonite Church, Lansdale, Penn.

The ladies of the local church served a delicious meal. The singing was in charge of Rev. Harold Burkholder of East Swamp church. Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander was toastmaster. Mr. Albright gave several wonderful numbers on the Vibra-harp.

The address of the evening was given by Dr. Hans Evans of Kings College, New Jersey. His theme, "A Living Sacrifice," was based on Romans 12:1-2. His experiences in Germany, where he has studied as an exchange student, were helpful in comparing what European youth is doing for its earthly dictators and what we should do for our Heavenly Father and Leader "as a reasonable service."

Dr. Henry A. Fast showed his pictures of his recent trip to the South American Mennonites. They were a great inspiration and were very profitable. The main theme was the wonderful progress which they have made in the last nine years in spite of great hardships. What progress have we made in the same time?

Spring Rally

The Spring Rally will be held April 7th in the Flatland Mennonite Church. The Fall Rally was held in the Bethany Church, Quakertown. It was well attended and proved a spiritual blessing. Let us pray for this coming Spring Rally.

Retreat Grounds

The retreat ground was being developed until cold weather set in and made work difficult. An artesian well has been drilled to a depth of 74 feet. It yielded 10 gallons of water per minute during continuous pumping. The foundation has been laid for the first building, and considerable clearing has been done. Due to the cold weather actual work is at a standstill. Let not our enthusiasm be at rest!

FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT

Annual Eastern District Y. P. Convention, May 30, 1940. East Swamp Church, Quakertown, Penn.

Senior Department

GROWING IN KNOWLEDGE

Senior C. E. Topic for February 25, 1940

Main Topic: Christians Keep on Learning. 1 Thess. 4:11, 12

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "More about Jesus Would I Know" "Open My Eyes That I May See," and "More Like the Master."
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer
3. Talk by Sunday School Superintendent on "Opportunities to Learn Through the S. S."
4. Offering for mission project (play softly on piano, "Take Time to be Holy," during the offering.

II. Leader's Introduction

Many communions observe this Sunday as Education Day, with special attention to the work of their colleges and seminaries. In the United States there are about 650 institutions of higher learning. Nearly 400 of these institutions are related to Christian communions. The denominational college plays an important part in the educational life of our country.

The emphasis of this topic, however, is upon the need of young people to keep on learning when school days are over, when formal education has been completed. In these days of change, with new problems appearing in our common life every year that demand new insights and new outlooks, a person who does not keep abreast of the times rapidly loses his value as a Christian citizen. Nor can anyone today say that he has no opportunity to keep up-to-date on what is happening in any field in which he has an interest. Lectures, forums, extension courses, night schools, public libraries—these and other educational services are available to almost everyone. Our churches, too, may foster learning by means of courses, discussion groups, reading circles, study groups, and so on."

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Learning from experience. Phil 4:8-12.
2. Godly wisdom profitable.Prov. 4:7-13.
3. Law of the Lord taught. Neh. 8:5-8.
4. Study for divine approval. 2 Tim. 2:15.
5. Learning God's law. Ps. 119:97-100.
6. Learning by growing. 2 Pet. 1:4-8.

IV. For Discussion

1. Which book of the Bible would you like to study more thoroughly?
2. What books would you place on your reading list "to keep on learning?"
3. What lectures or programs, or study courses have you heard or taken lately?

V. Facts for Study

In our hurried life today, with its many and varied activities it is rather essential to find time for study and thought. To read some good book to join some study group (which may well be on the subject of "Peace") will give you a freshness of mind and will help you to meet life with a better understanding. It is well to plan for time and to carefully choose what to study. So many avenues are open that our lives are much too short to delve deeply into all of them. It is well if a good teacher or counsellor is available.

VI. Illustrations

"Nothing Within"—In Boston Public Library there were alcoves filled with wooden blocks shaped like books with a strip of imitation leather labeled, "Nothing Within." As new books are purchased the shams are displaced and the genuine ones fill the space. Are there not many such members of our churches who have an outward Christian appearance, but whom God must label, "Nothing Within"?

Counsel for Getting Vision.—Recently a lady came up to M. E. Dodd, the well-known Baptist preacher and leader, after he had concluded a powerful sermon,, and she said, "Dr. Dodd, I have read your books; I have heard your radio messages; but I have never seen you face to face. Please step down from the platform so that I may have a good look at you."

And the preacher answered, as recorded in The King's Business, "Sister, you had better not look at me too closely. I am afraid you'll be disappointed. I am just an ordinary, frail human being. I want you to look beyond me to Jesus. You'll never be disappointed in him."

VII. Food for Thought

Whatever you are doing, let your heart be in your work, as a thing done for the Lord and not for men. —Paul's Letter to the Collossians.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

MINUTES TO INVEST

Intermediate C. E. Topic for February 25, 1940

For Daily Reading:

Feb. 19. By the well. John 4:1-7,28-30.
Feb. 20. Work while it is day. John 9:1-7.
Feb. 21. A critical moment. Mark 10:17-22
Feb. 22. A changed life. Luke 19:1-10.
Feb. 23. The uncertain tomorrow. James 4:13--17.
Feb. 24. Improve the present. Luke 12:16-21.
Feb. 25. Topic. Ps. 90:12; Phil. 3:13, 14.

I must work the works of Him that sent me, while it is day; the night cometh when no man can work. John 9:4.

Opening Song: "Work for the Night is Coming." Ye know not what shall be on the morrow. Jas. 4:14.

Song: "Just for Today."

Read, Luke 12:16-21 and follow this with the hymn "Take Time to be Holy"

Scripture Reading: Ps. 90:12; Phil. 3:13, 14.

Sentence prayers asking God to give us wisdom in the use of our time. Especially may we seek to know how we may give enough time to God.

Discussion:

1. Why is it that some very busy people still find time to do all the thing asked of them?

We always find time enough, if we will use it aright. Goethe.

Well arranged time is the surest mark of a well arranged mind. Pitman.

2. How do we waste the most time? Is it the doing of big tasks or is it during those brief idle moments of the day?

Much may be done in those little shreds and patches of time, which every day produces, and which most men throw away, but which nevertheless will make at the end of it no small deduction from the life of man. Colton.

3. Have those daily references read which show what use Jesus made of his time.

4. Make a time budget of your society. Put on the blackboard the time spent in sleeping, eating, studying, school, listening to the radio, etc.

Then see how improvements could be made in the use of time. If time be of all things the most precious, wasting time must be the greatest prodigality, since lost time is never found again; and what we call time enough proves little enough. Let us then be up and doing, and doing to the purpose; so by diligence shall we do more with less perplexity. Franklin.

Occupation is a necessity to the young. They love to be busy about something, however trifling; and if not directed to some useful employment will soon engage in something that is evil, thus verifying the proverb, "That idleness is the mother of mischief."

Song: "Today Belongs to Jesus"

Offering

Mizpah Benediction

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

BOYS OF THE BIBLE

"BOYS WHO BECAME KINGS"

Program for February 25, 1940

I. Worship Period:

1. Prelude—Pianist plays melody of "O Worship the King."
2. Sing in unison, the above song, v. 1, 2, 4.
3. Scripture by a Junior, Psalm 24.
4. Prayer by the Junior leader
5. Song (stand to sing): "All Hail The Power of Jesus Name" v. 1, 4, 5, 6.
6. Memory Verses—Each Junior repeat a favorite verse and tell why it is a favorite, conclude this by reading Psalm 24, v. 7-10 responsively.
7. Duet—Verses 1 and 4 of "Joy to the World."

II. Study Period

Aim: To help our Juniors realize that they too have a "King" to whom they owe love and loyalty.

Introduce the study for this evening by a short talk on rulers of nations and their responibility to the people of their country.

2. The story of Joash, a boy king, told by a Junior boy. 2 Kings 11:2-3 and 12-21; 2 Kings 12:1-2; 4-8; 9-16; 2 Chron. 23 and 24.
3. Discussion of the good things that Joash did for his country and people. Questions and answers, by the Juniors.
4. An older person might discuss the blessing of having a God-fearing uncle, Jehoida, to help Joash.
5. The story of Josiah, the youngest king that ever ruled over the Jews, told by a Junior girl. 2 Kings 22:3-13; 23:1-3; 21-23; 25; 2 Chron. 34:1; 8:13, 29-32.
6. "Things that Josiah did to help his country and people"—by a Junior boy.
   a. He repaired the neglected Temple.
   b. He ordered God's Word read to all the people.
   c. He promised to keep God's commandments.
7. Three Juniors read the following verses which have something very fine to say about Josiah:
   a. 2 Kings 22:2
   b. 2 Kings 23:3
   c. 2 Kings 23:25
8. The story of Joseph (who although not a king became the ruler of Egypt) by five Juniors.
   a. Joseph dreams dreams—Gen. 37:5-11
   b. Joseph sold by his brothers. Gen. 37:12-36.
   c. Joseph made ruler of Egypt. Gen. 41:1-44, 46.
   d. Joseph forgives his brothers. Gen. 45:1-15.
   e. Joseph cares for his father and his brothers. Gen. 47:1-12
9. Discussion: "What we can learn from Joseph."
10. Bible verses that help us when we think of Joseph: Gen. 4:18 Prov. 10:12; Ps. 133:1; Luke 6:10; Rev. 2:10; Eph. 4:31, 32; Matt. 6:14.
11. Leader's Heart talk: "Making Jesus the King of Our Lives."

III. Mission Minutes

1. The story of the Indian Christian found in the letter of Rev. Benno Toews, "The Mennonite," January 23, by a Junior Girl.
2. Short prayer season—praying for our mission work among the American Indians.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Verse of the month: Ps. 51:10.
2. Song of the month: "Here is My Heart"
3. Closing Prayer
4. Doxology

IN MEMORIAM

Dr. Samuel K. Mosiman

DR. SAMUEL K. MOSIMAN was born near Middletown, O., December 17, 1867, the son of Christian and Anna Kinsinger Mosiman. He received his A. B. degree from Wittenberg College, Springfield, Ohio, in 1879. After taking his A. M. degree from the same institution in 1905, he continued his graduate studies at McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago. Here he was awarded the Hebrew Entrance prize and the Nettie F. McCormick prize of $2000 to study in Germany. He received his B. D. Degree from Mc Cormick and his Ph. D. degree from the University of Halle, Germany, in 1907, having specialized in the study of the Hebrew, Aramaic, Syriac and Arabic languages.

In 1902 he was married to Amalia S. Krehbiel, who preceded him in death in 1905, while crossing the Atlantic with Dr. Mosiman to take up work in the University of Halle. On Aug. 12, 1909, he was married to Emilie Siemens Hamm, who remains to mourn his passing.

It was in 1909 that Dr. Mosiman assumed his responsibilities as organizer and builder of Bluffton College. He served as President of Central Mennonite College until 1913, when Central Mennonite became Bluffton College, and during its rise from one building to its present place of esteem in the educational world, Dr. Mosiman served as its energetic, patient, far-seeing, and inspiring pilot. He retired from active service in 1935 and was honored with the Emeritus Presidency of Bluffton College.

In spite of his many arduous duties in connection with Bluffton College, Dr. Mosiman found time for active participation in the Religious and Educational programs of the Mennonite Church. He held many positions of trust and confidence in Religious and educational organizations in the General and the Middle District Conferences and the Federal Council of Churches.

His wise guidance will be greatly missed by the First Mennonite Church of Bluffton, of which he was a member until his death. The community of Bluffton will reap the benefits of his unselfish interest for many years to come, and the Community Hospital, which proved to be his last mortal refuge, and in the planning of which he played such an important part, will stand through time as an affectionate token of his constant concern in the community's welfare.

In educational circles Dr. Mosiman was held in high regard, being honored with the Litt. D. degree by Wittenberg College, in 1920, the Chairmanship of the Ohio Association of College Presidents and Deans in 1930 and the L. L. D. degree by Bluffton College in 1939. He was also a contributor to the International Standard Bible Encyclopedia and, until his recent illness, to the Mennonite Sunday School Quarterly.

In August 1938, Dr. Mosiman was taken with a malignant illness, against which, his valiant fight and the earnest prayers of his many friends were destined to fail, and on Wednesday afternoon, January 24, 1940, at 2 o'clock, he quietly relinquished his earthly mantle for nobler service in a Godlier realm. Dr. Mosiman brought his age to 72 years, 1 month, and 7 days. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Emilie Mosiman, and the following sisters and brothers: Mrs. Herman Martin, Salvena Mosiman, Mrs. Thomas Kennel, Mrs. D. K. Roth, Mrs. Louise Yoder, J. R. Mosiman, Dr. Eddison Mosiman, William Mosiman, Elmer E. Mosiman, Ida M. Mosiman, and Mrs. Artimus Howe; his parents, his first wife and one brother and sister having preceded him in death.

Dr. Mosiman loved to transform virgin soil into gardens, he loved to plant in the unsoiled hearts of youth, seeds of spiritual loveliness, and the flowering and fruits of these plantings were his greatest joy. Bluffton College was the expression of his soul and in this soul the hearts of Dr. and Mrs. Mosiman have been beating as one. Today his many friends lay his body to rest as he wished it, close to and where it can overlook his beloved College and where the fragrance of his mound can mingle with the fragrance of his campus. We commend his spirit to God in whom he had unflagging faith. —H. W. Berky.

He held his place—
Held the long purpose like a growing tree—
Held on thru blame and faltered not at praise.
And when he fell in whirlwind, he went down
As a lordly cedar, green with boughs,
Goes down with a great shout upon the hills,
And leaves a lonesome place against the sky.

Edwin Markham

LAVINA BURKHALTER, daughter of Peter and Mary Burkhalter, was born March 26, 1887, on the home farm near Berne, Indiana. There she attended the district school and later Bluffton College.

She was blessed with God fearing parents, who taught her early to love and serve the Lord, and who encouraged their children to do something for the Lord, even if it would mean the sacrifice of having them go away from home. Lavina early accepted the Lord as her personal Savior and was baptized on her confession of faith. While in Berne, she was very active in the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor.

In 1920 she received a call from the Home Mission Board to work in the "Whosoever Will Mission" in Los Angeles. After prayerful deliberation she accepted the call, but feeling the need for more Bible knowledge she took some studies at the Los Angeles Bible Institute for several months, then she began her city mission work. On May 29, 1921, she was ordained into the work by Rev. P. W. Penner, then home on furlough from India and serving as pastor of the mission. She remained faithful in this work for over 19 years. In the meantime the mission changed its location and devolped into one of our strong General Conference Churches, changing its name to "The Immanuel Mennonite Church of Los Angeles." The last three years she received her support from the above named church instead of the Home Mission Board.

She was very free to talk to others about spiritual things, and her work brought her in contact with many as she visited the homes in the district where the church was located and inviting newcomers to attend church and Sunday School as well as keeping in touch with many of the older ones. May God richly bless those whom she led to Christ, and may those for whom she prayed and was burdened for their soul's salvation, but have not yet accepted him do so before it is too late.

On October 13, 1939, she ended a letter to her loved ones in Berne by saying, "I am well and happy for which I am thankful." On Nov. 5, she wrote another letter saying, "In my last letter I wrote 'I am well for which I am thankful.' I had hardly sent that letter when I became aware that all was not right with my health and after a good blood examination by a blood specialist, was informed that I have that rare disease, "Lymphatic Leukemia." I am taking the recommended treatments. Why this should come at thise time I do not know; I rest in the Lord, He is my stay." But this letter did not reach its destination before she passed away on Nov. 9. Her condition became suddenly serious and on Nov. 7 her friends sent a telegram to her family in Berne state that she was in the hospital for blood transfusion. An airmail letter gave more details about her condition. Her sister Rachel left for Los Angeles to be at her bedside, but arrived too late to see her alive.

She leaves behind her aged father nearly 90 years old, two brothers Amos and Menno, and the following sisters, Rachel, and Mrs. Herbert Sprunger of Berne; Mrs. George Baumgartner and Mrs. Caroline Zook of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Martha of Janjgir, C. P., India. Her mother, three sisters and one brother, a missionary, preceeded her in death.

A very impressive funeral service was held at the Immanuel Church at Los Angeles on Sunday, Nov. 12. The body was then taken to Berne and the funeral there was held Nov. 17. At the home Dr. C. H. Suckau held a short service in German. Lavina's niece and nephew, Lorraine and Edward Burkhalter sang "My soul delights in Christ My Lord" knowing that this would be their aunt's testimony if she could speak. At the church Rev. Arman Steiner read 1 Cor. 15:55-58 and led in prayer. Rev. Suckau spoke words of comfort and admonition based on John 11:21ff and I Thess. 4:4, 14.

CORRESPONDENCE

TABOR CHURCH, NEWTON, KANS. 1-24-40

Many and varied events have occurred since the our last report to THE MENNONITE. The Lord has dealt graciously with us, for we have been permitted to gather at the church every Sunday, except the first Sunday of this year the services had to be called off on acocunt of extremely cold weather and drifted roads.—As customary we had a Sunday School picnic and Children's Day on Sept. 10. In Sept. the elections for S. S. officers and teachers were held. Samuel Richert was made the new superintendent. Alfador Frey had served 5 years. The S. S. enrollment is 430, with 21 classes. The S. S. officers and teachers meet once every week in the Goessel High School, together with the Goessel and and Alexanderwohl officers and teachers. They study problems, discuss the lesson for the coming Sunday, and take a Teacher Training course. On Nov. 3, the Women's Sewing Society held a church sale. The proceeds were used to reduce the debt on the church building.

Communion was held Dec. 3, at which 214 members took part. Communion is held 3 times a year. The first Sunday of each month is observed as Mission Sunday. The Pastor gives a mission sermon and a collection is taken for the various mission enterprises. On Thanksgiving Day missions are especially considered. The last Sunday of the year 1939, Rev. J. J. Banman preached while Rev. Richert served at the Immanuel church at Galva.—The annual Business Meeting was held on Dec. 28. Reports were given and election of officers was held. Brother W. V. Lehrman was elected as a new member on the Trustee Board.—Our Library grows, since we have a good librarian who selects worthwhile, inspiring books. He secured a Loan Library of the Conference Committee.—Three evenings of the Prayer Week were observed. Two topics were discussed each evening; one topic in English and the other in German.

GRACE MENN. CHURCH, ENID, OKLA. 1-24-40

Looking back over the past year, we feel constrained to pause in gratitude to our Heavenly Father and you, our brethren in Christ. For you have given of your means that this group of believers might have a church in which to worship. We are deeply thankful for this building.

Rev. Clyde Dirks conducted evangelistic meetings here during the Thanksgiving season. We were privileged to see lives reconsecrated and others brought into the fellowship of believers and followers of Christ. Rev. Dirk's messages were inspirational, carried conviction, and were ably adapted to his audiences. Following these meetings, Rev. Harder has started Bible Study and catechetical instruction for young people. Great interest is shown in this class of about 15.

The Children's and Young People's Departments of the Sunday School presented a fine Christmas program, consisting of a short Christmas pageant, readings, and songs. The S. S. superintendent and teachers are beginning the new year with renewed effort. A S. S. teacher's training class is to be conducted by the pastor several times a month. Walter Ewert is our new superintendent. We would ask that all you readers would support the pastor and the leaders of the various departments with your prayers. The work here is progressing but we need more workers who have consecrated thir lives to God's service.

Both Missionary John Thiessen and Rev. H. A. Fast have been with us and have given us interesting reports of their work and a trip to South America respectively. Jan. 23, Rev. J. H. Epp of Hillsboro, Kans., was with us and gave us an inspirational message. We appreciate such visits very much.

—Mrs. H. N. Harder, Corr.

* * *

APOSTOLIC MENN. CH., TRENTON, O. 1-24-40

We had a most joyous Christmas Season. The Missionary Society, as well as the Woman's Society, rendered Christmas Programs at their December meetings.—Sunday evening, a week before Christmas, the choir and the young people of the church and Sunday school, under the direction of Mrs. Estelle Mosiman Howe, rendered a beautiful Cantata, "The Heavenly Hosts," to a large and appreciative audience. On December 24th, the children of the Sunday school gave their program followed by a Christmas Message by Rev. Amstutz.

January 14th our annual Congregational Meeting was held. As usual a covered dish dinner was served immediately after the morning service, at which time a social hour was enjoyed by all. Following the dinner the Business Session was opened by Rev. Amstutz with Scripture reading and prayer. Encouraging reports of the church and all its organizations were given, followed by election of officers for the ensuing year. Rev. Amstutz gave a resume of the years' work, and a short Memorial Service was held for the departed members.

We are glad to report that Mrs. Amstutz, after a siege of twelve weeks, has had the cast removed from her broken limb, and we hope she will soon be able to be out. —Lydia A. Augspurger, Corr.

* * *

EMMAUS MENN. CH., WHITEWATER, KANS. 1-30-40.

In our weekly prayer and Bible study hour we have continued with the study of the epistle to the Ephesians, in which our pastor, Rev. J. C. Kaufman, reveals to us some of the interesting truths from the Word of God. On January 7, Rev. Kaufman preached a sermon on "The Christian's Responsibility."

The annual Christian Endeavor business meeting was held on January 21, with the election of new members in place of those whose terms had expired. Rev. P. W. Penner, missionary from India, was to conduct a series of meetings in our church, but because of the severe cold weather these meetings were postponed to a future date. On February 11, the Bethel College Choir is to render a program in our church.

The present unrest that is prevalent in Europe today reminds us of a marvelous truth that peace can only be obtained through regeneration and not by legislation. E. E., Corr.

* * *

WINTON COMMUNITY CH., WINTON, CALIF.

This town has four churches of different creeds besides the Presbyterians. For several years there have been no services in the Presbyterian Church, except S. S. services. In the summer of 1938 the way was very significantly opened for Rev. D. B. Hess of Upland, Calif., to come here and hold community services. For these services the Presbyterian church organization very graciously gave the use of their building. This is a fairly good and nice concrete building of about 250 capacity. The door of this community effort was opened upon the strength and support of Rev. 3:8, "I have set before you an open door and no man can shut it."

Rev. Hess delivered his first sermon on July 31, 1938, with about 22 souls present. Our slogan is, "Gather them in," based on Matt. 14:16. We are admonished to disregard creed or nationality. The work is difficult but not disheartening. Our present average attendance per Sunday is 36, varying from 21 to 42. The audience itself is very variable. Hardly a Sunday passes but what there are new faces present, not always the same parties attending. If all who have attended at various times could come out at one time we could not accommodate them all. So we are not discouraged. We have held Communion three times, the first time 33 partook, the second time 48, and the last time (right during harvest) only 23. Last summer Rev. Hess conducted a Community Bible School in which 42 pupils were enrolled, with an average daily attendance of 38. Our pastor is occasionally called upon to broadcast the message of salvation in Christ over radio station KYOS, Merced. He is usually assisted by a male quartette and a vocal soloist.

Jan. 2, the pastor and wife moved into the manse belonging to the Presbyterians. After they were fairly well settled about 30 of those who attend regularly gave them a "HOUSE WARMING." Envelopes containing contributions amounted to $9.32, to be used for necessary immediate repairs on the manse. Money is now being collected for the purchase of new song books. Noah A. Koehn and A. E. Teppner have just returned from Salem Oregon where they had gone for a three day conference of the Pacific Coast Mennonite Aid Plan. —Mrs. A. E. Heppner, Corr.

« « JOTTINGS » »

NOTICE

The date of the meeting of the General Conference Home Mission Board in Chicago had to be changed from February 8th and 9th to February 15th and 16th to accommodate Brother David Toews who also wants to attend a meeting of the Mennonite Central Committee in Chicago, February 17th.

ANNOUNCEMENT

—The Annual Meeting of the Bethel College Fellowship is to be held on Tuesday evening, February 6, at 7:00 p.m. The program will be preceded by a fine fellowship supper.—J. M. Regier, Director of Fellowships.

NOTICE

—The Bethel Deaconess Home and Hospital Society of Newton, Kansas, will hold its 36th annual meeting on Tuesday, February 13, 1940 at 10 A. M. at the First Mennonite Church, Newton.

—Dr. P. R. Schroeder probably at home by now. Last Saturday evening, too late for insertion in The Mennonite in the Jan. 30 issue, we received this message from Brother Schroeder: "My wound is healing so fast that the Doctor tells me, I can go home, Sunday, Jan. 28. This is the Lord's way of answering our prayers. All praise and honor to Him! Am feeling fine. Have had many visitors, over 500 in the 10½ months."

—Friedensberg Menn. Church, Avon, South Dak.—On Jan. 25, the Prayer Conference met in our church. This is a meeting in which many denominations within a radius of sixty miles take part. The service consists of prayer, lectures, music, and is observed once a month. A large number of relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Koehn on Jan. 28. The afternoon was spent in visiting, music and spiritual fellowship.

ANNOUNCEMENT AND PETITION FOR PRAYER

—THE HOME MISSION BOARD OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE will hold its annual meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Hotel, Wabash Avenue near 8th St., on February 15th and 16th. It earnestly solicits the prayers of the membership of the Conference, to the end that all the transactions may be in accordance with the will of God and to the glory of the Great Captain of Msisionary Work. Prayers are also coveted for the Lord's leading in the choice of a new leader for the First Mennonite Church in Chicago.

—Dr. Isaac Tieszen of Marion, South Dakota, gave us a happy surprise in a letter which reads as follows: "Herewith enclosed please find $25.00 as an order for four copies of the New Hymn Book. . . . Whatever balance there may remain after the cost of the four books, please keep as a personal gift to be used in your noble work." May God bless the Doctor for this generous deed and for the encouragement given to those of us who are struggling to finance the making of this book!

—Mrs. G. T. Soldner, wife of Rev. Grover Soldner who is pretty well known throughout our Conference, passed away after long and critical illness at her home in Bluffton, Ohio, Sunday morning, Jan. 28. She is survived by her husband and three children, Paul, Helen and Louise. The funeral was held Tuesday, 9:30 a.m., at First Church, Bluffton, and at 2:30 p.m. in Berne, Indiana, Rev. H. T. Unruh officiating at both services. Let us pray for the motherless family!

—Mr. O. F. Gilliom, highly respected citizen of Berne, Indiana, and useful member of the Mennonite Church, who underwent a major operation in University Hospital, Ann Arbor, Michigan, has recovered sufficiently to be able to be taken home, to the joy of his many friends and the praise of God.

—Emmanuel Mennonite Church, Pratum, Ore.—Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ramseyer celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Jan. 7, at their home near Pratum, by open house and a reception. A program was rendered in the afternoon, at which time the Brethern J. M. Franz and S. S. Baumgartner gave short talks. Several hundred friends and relatives called to congratulate the couple and to wish them God's blessings. —Brother Val. Gerig had not missed Sunday School for more than 15 years until recently, when he submitted to an operation. We trust that he will soon be able to meet with us again. May we all profit by this example of faithfulness.—Correspondent.

—Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Suderman Steadily Recovering.—The dear heavenly Father has heard the many prayers for the recovery of this worthy couple, and their physician, Dr. R. S. Haury who has done much to aid them in getting better, thinks they will have been permitted to go to their home by the time this note reaches the readers.

—Another Donation for the new Hymn Book, of $6.75, as a White Gift Offering, from S. S. classes One to Four, of the First Mennonite Church, Bluffton, has just reached us through Mr. D. C. Kirchkofer, Secr.-Treasurer. We appreciate this gift all the more highly because it came from children. How thoughtful of them. Would that adult S. S. classes might proportionally emulate their example. May God bless the dear givers!

—First Mennonite Church, Reedley, California,—We have more than twenty young people meeting for the study of Christian living. Some have made their decisions; others have initimated that they are considering seriously. Some of them will need help and encouragement. These are days of searching within and without. They look about to see what having accepted Christ has meant to others. Our attitudes toword Sunday School, toward Church membership and toward doing things in, with, for and to the Kingdom of God may mean more to some of them than anything anyone can say. This is a good time to take the steps we have often thought of taking when, for the moment at least, we realized what it might mean to us and to others if we lived more earnestly, sincerely, thoughtfully, intently, heartily as those counted as belonging to the Kingdom of God.

—First Menn. Church, Aberdeen, Idaho.—The Annual Report of this church reveals the following interesting facts: Membership 347; members added through baptism, 20, through the right hand of fellowship, 7; loss through death, 4, by church letter 3. The pastor Phil. A. Wedel who is known for his untiring activity preached 183 sermons, served in the Retreat at Mt. Lake, Minn., and is instructing 135 high school students, in five classes, in the principles of Christian education. The church has 4 C. E. societies, 2 choirs; and its contributions have been: For foreign mission, $573.24; home mission, $222.07; Pacific Conference, $77.72; Gen. Conference, $23.53; for all purposes a total of $5,365.50.

—From Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill. the Berne Witness, Berne, Indiana, has this report: "Announcement has been made that Dr. James Oliver Buswell, has been removed as president by the Board of Trustees and Dr. Edman named as successor. It was Dr. Buswell that proselyted in Mennonite communities to get students for his school and it is to be hoped that his successor will find other fields from which to recruit students and leave our young people to attend our own Mennonite Colleges.

—Farm Women Unfortunate.—A recent survey of 10,000 rural homes shows that 87 per cent of the farmers' wives never have any vacation. Perhaps they never have enough money to take them beyond the nearest market town. Isn't this terrible after the politicians of both parties have fought for the farmers for the last 40 years. —Exchange

—The Church Councils of the Four Gen. Conference churches in western Ohio recently held their annual fellowship meeting at the St. John church. A pot-luck supper was enjoyed by about 75 persons. Mary Haas, missionary from Africa and John Thiessen from India told of the organization of churches in their mission fields.

—Eighth Street, Menn. Church, Goshen, Ind.—Miss Maria Reimer, one of the three young women who swam the Amur river to escape the Bolshevists, then came to America, was graduated from Bethel College, and has since both taught and continued her studies, recently gave an interesting lecture in this church on her escape and the deplorable conditions in Russia, as her parents and friends still living there experience them. "Miss Reimer is a charming personality, with a gripping and inspiring message." —Bulletin —WEDDING.—Bethman-Knight. On Jan. 10, 1940, by Pastor A. M. Fretz at his home in Perkasie, Pa. Mr. Linford R. Bethman and Miss Kathleen M. Knight were united in marriage.

—Mrs. J. D. Schroeder gone Home.—Word has just been received that Mrs. J. D. Schroeder, mother of Rev. P. R. Schroeder, died at her home in Mt. Lake, Minn., Wed. Jan. 31, after a lingering illness, at the age of 77.

* * *

THE EX-KAISER HEARD FROM

Recently the editor has expressed to some that the best thing that could happen in Europe at this time would be, that the Allies and Germany would get together in some way, and together with Italy, drive Russia back into Asia, close to the other arch murderer Japan, where she belongs. Now the dailies bring this news: The Ex-kaiser in a letter written to his close American friend Boultney Bigelow, among other things says this: The belligerants should stop fighting and join their forces to help the Finns. They should fight in one line to rid the world and civilization of Bolshevism."

—LET US REMEMBER THE WORLD'S DAY OF PRAYER COMING FRIDAY IN OUR HOMES AND CHURCHES, IN OUR PERSONAL MEDITATIONS AND EVEN AT OUR WORK.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA.

Devoted to the Interest of the MENNONITE CHUCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Business Office, Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kans.
Editor .... J. R. Thierstein, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.50 .... Foreign, $2.00

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges, to J. R. THIERSTEIN, or the MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS.

EV. J. A. LINSCHEID
1001 EAST BROADWAY
NEWTON, KANSAS
JA 41
KEY
38

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON. KANSAS, FEB. 13, 1940 NUMBER 7

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

LENT

This word, derived from the Anglo-Saxon "lengten", signifies lengthening (of days in spring time). It is akin to the German "Lenz", spring. Spiritually, however, it has come to mean a time for the cleansing of the soul. Webster says, "It is the annual season of fasting in the spring, observed by many churches as a preparation for the great feast of Easter, and as a time of special penitence." In the Western Church it covers the forty days preceding Easter, beginning with Ash Sunday, not counting the intervening Sundays, because Sundays are festival days anyway.

As early as the second century it became quite usual to fast before Easter, in commemoration of Christ's suffering. As time went on, however, fasting, which was intended to consist in the practice of abstinence, penitence, and contrition of heart, had sadly deteriorated, until the Church Fathers "appointed forty days of fasting and prayer and hearing sermons—that all men in these days, being carefully purified by prayer, and alms-deeds, and fasting, and watching, and tears and confession of sins, and other like experiences, might come—with a pure conscience to the holy table."

The liturgical churches have kept up this practice of fasting during lent more or less to this day, and in recent times the evangelical Protestant churches have followed them in observing the season as a period of preparation by holding prayer and evangelistic meetings. This practice is very commendable. But, with our efforts for soul-winning, we should not fail to emphasize strongly soul-cleansing which involves soul discipline, repentance, self-abnegation and the like. During this period it is profitable to take inventory of our spiritual assets and liabilities, to ascertain if we have any faults that need to be corrected, any weaknesses that need to be extirpated, any virtues that should be acquired or strengthened. This soul study and self-appraisal needs to be done not only in private but also before men. "Confess therefore your sins one to another," the Word says, James 5:16a. Honest confession unburdens the soul and witnessing strengthens the faith. All such self-examinations and confessions before God and men tend to prepare our hearts and minds for holy Communion which churches do well to observe, perhaps not just once during this lenten season, for there is nothing that is more soul-searching than the partaking of the emblems of our Savior's flesh and blood. In these times of confusion, unrest and search for anchorage, it is very necessary to have a searching of hearts and to make special efforts to draw nigh unto God, so that with His help men's lives may be transformed.

—T.

EDITORIAL

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND THE VATICAN—Protestant organizations in this country have rather numerously censured President Roosevelt for the appointment of Myron C. Taylor as his personal representative at the Vatican. The Baptists, in a letter signed by the leaders of three conferences representing a membership of more than 10,000,000, approve the President's peace efforts but register serious concern over the appointment of his personal representative with the Pope in Rome.—At a meeting held at Columbus, Ohio, the American Section of the Lutheran World Convention voiced rather sharp criticism of the president's appointment.—The Seventh Day Adventist group also protested vigorously the appointment of Mr. Taylor. A representative Methodist paper, concluding an article on the subject says, "The important thing here is, that Methodists, along with other Protestants and Jews, spend their energies working out peace-making suggestions that they would like to have Mr. Taylor discuss with the Pope and others." Some will differ with us when we state that the Executive Committee of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America has taken a rather sensible stand on the subject. It is as follows: "If the appointment should unfortunately prove a stepping-stone to a permanent diplomatic relationship, we should feel obliged in good conscience to oppose it, as a violation of the principle of separation of government function and religious function, which is a basic American policy and which both history and conscience approve, and as an ultimate injury to all faiths.—We assume, however, unless events disprove us, that the appointment is strictly temporary, unofficial, and centrally concerned with efforts for world peace. We can see ways in which it may help to bring peace and to avert wholesale bloodshed and a continuing disaster of civilization."—T.

CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTORS IN GREAT BRITAIN

In a Parliamentary debate last spring, Prime Minister Chamberlain made the statement that "the experience of the Great War showed that it was both a useless and an exasperating waste of time and effort to attempt to force objectors to act in a manner contrary to their principles."

In order to discover just what effect this declaration might have on the treatment of Objectors in the practice of the British tribunals, Dr. C. E. M. Joad, well-known English philosopher, visited two of those sitting in London. Up to November, of 417 considered at the Fullham Tribunal, in 96 cases the pleas were "rejected out of hand," 159 men were given non-combatant duties in the army, 153 were given exemption "conditional upon their obtaining employment in some approved occupation," and 9 were given full exemption. These figures, Dr. Joad believes, "conceal a number of serious abuses. First, young men are given non-combatant service in the army who want alternative service in agriculture, forestry, or other form of nationally useful work." Secondly, the "vast majority of those given conditional exemption are men already engaged in work of national importance who are allowed to continue this work, not because they have established the sincerity of their conscientious objection, but because it is of national importance."

—Partly from "Information Service."

BROTHERHOOD WEEK

The week of February 18-25, Washington's Birthday week, has been set aside as Brotherhood Week, with the central theme, "The Present Crisis in Human Relations." This is the seventh annual observance of this week in America and has our government's official sanction, as is shown by the following letter by President Roosevelt to Dr. Arthur H. Compton, Co-Chairman of the National Conference of Christians and Jews:

"I note with interest that the seventh observance of Brotherhood Week across the country, under the auspices of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, is set for the week of Washington's Birthday, Feb. 18-25, 1940.

"With gratitude to God for the liberties we enjoy and with a full measure of mutual respect for each other's faith, let us gather together in our churches, synagogues, schools, public halls and homes during this week to celebrate our brotherhood under God as citizens of our beloved land. Let us here resolve that in a time of world division and pain this nation shall be rededicated to the principles that all men are brothers; that religious prejudice and group intolerance may not here destroy that unity in freedom which is the strength of our national character."

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

EXTRACTS FROM A CHRISTMAS LETTER

by the S. F. Pannabecker Family, Kai Chow, Hopei, China

A fine vacation at Peitaiho last summer enabled our family to get acquainted again and the time together reestablished these habits of united family life. We found that the boys (17 and 13 respectively and both taller than Dad) still appreciate and feel the need of their parents.

Now again we are separated with the boys in High School at T'unghsien, near Peking. Richard graduates in June and hopes to take the first year or two of college work at Yenching University in Peking. Robert is in the first year of High School, just finished his initiation period and burned up his green cap. Alice Ruth (10 and up to her mother's chin) is studying fifth grade work with Mother. Sometimes she almost weeps at being without playmates of her own age, but usually she is very happy and does good work and plays with her Chinese friends.

Our work this year has been extremely heavy due to the shortage of foreign workers. For six months we have had to superintend evangelistic work in three counties, besides the regular work in the Bible School. Now with the arrival of more workers we will be free to limit ourselves to the Bible School and local churches and such incidental jobs as mission correspondence and the CHINA-HOME BOND.

The Bible School work offers great opportunities. The advantages are: first, our school is conducted primarily for Christian training; second, only baptized Christians are accepted, hence we can keep a higher spiritual tone than ordinary high schools; third, not being tied to a government specified course we can select such secular courses as are useful, add good Bible training and conduct the whole in a thorough Christian atmosphere. We feel we are preparing the kind of men and women that society most needs, not to mention the church.

The work projects which were started the past year have been proceeding well. There are four major divisions now: printing, book binding, weaving and knitting, labor jobs. The printing has grown rapidly and is the most flourishing of the four and self-supporting. Job printing, tracts, Christmas letters, and booklets keep our press and store both busy. Through these works projects, eighty-five students are being given enough work to help them pay about one-third of their school expenses.

At this Christmas season may we, like the Wisemen, kneel before the Babe of Bethlehem, bringing our gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh; gold which is a symbol of our money, frankincense—the adoration of a consecrated life, myrrh—the sharing of Christ's sorrows and those of the world.

Nov. 22, 1939, Kai Chow, Hopei, China
Rev. and Mrs. S. F. Pannabecker

IF CHRIST HAD NOT COME

A Basna shopkeeper developed pneumonia. After the man had been ill several days, his wife brought him to our hospital on an ox cart. Here he was treated and taken care of, and he recovered contrary to his own and our expectations. He was very grateful and said, "When I had become earth, you took care of me and I recovered." He listened attentively to the daily messages at our morning preaching services. His two boys, aged ten and eight years, attended government school and could read, so he bought gospel readers for them, also several tracts. The family stayed on after they had been told that they could now go home with a bottle of tonic. Thus a month had passed since this man entered the hospital, and one day the shopkeeper said, "If I did not have a shop and fields and children, I would never go home, because I like it so well here." He had been told that if Christ had not come this hospital would not be here and that the service to the sick was offered in the name of Christ. So one day this man brought a cow and a calf and said, "I wish to give this as a thank offering in the name of Christ on top of the fees." Yes, if Christ had not come what would be our condition?

This is to serve as a Christmas greeting to my friends.—August Schmidt, Basna, C. P., India.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The annual meeting of the Board of Foreign Missions will be held at Newton, Kansas, beginning on Tuesday, February 20 at 10:00 a.m. Three or four days will be required to take care of the work entrusted unto us. Difficult questions and weighty problems will confront the Board during these sessions. The special guidance of the Holy Spirit will be needed to come to correct conclusions. We covet the intercession of God's children at all times and now especially for this meeting, in which the work for another year will be planned. Pray that the Spirit of God may have the right of way in all our deliberations and resolutions to the glory of God and to the salvation of souls through the precious blood of Jesus Christ.

—P. P. Wedel, Pres., Boar dof Foreign Missions

—February 25 Gift and Prayer Day for Freeman Junior College. At its 1939 session the Northern District Conference adopted a resolution that on the last Sunday in February, every church in the Conference remember Freeman Junior College with special prayers and with a free-will offering for the work of the school.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

A. S. Rosenberger

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION MADE EFFECTIVE THROUGH THE FACULTY

by Lloyd L. Ramseyer

As I think back over my school days, I realize that I remember the personalities of my teachers and the incidental things which they taught me, although in many cases I have long since forgotten a large percentage of the subject matter of the courses which they taught. Advisors of graduate students in universities are likely to advise their students to get into contact with certain great men on the staff rather than to merely take certain courses. This is because they realize the inspiration which comes from contact with great personalities.

A good teacher will have many opportunities for influencing students, either consciously or unconsciously. We are all likely to adopt ideals and to follow patterns of action which are exemplified in lives which we admire. If a student greatly admires a mathematics instructor, for instance, he is likely to also look with favor upon his viewpoints on religion and social philosophy. Not only is he likely to accept his beliefs, but he also has a tendency to copy his personal habits. These influences are exerted both in the classroom and in the more intimate contacts with students in personal conferences, extra-curricular activities, and the like.

The influence which a teacher has over his students is a great responsibility and also a great challenge. This is an important source of the effectiveness of Christian education. The Christian school must have great scholars, specialists in their fields. But it must also have great Christian characters, men and women who through their personalities encourage young people to counsel with them, and in these conferences help students toward a better understanding of life, a clearer conception of God and Jesus Christ, and help them to develop high ideals and standards for living.

Much of that which makes the Christian school unique comes from these personal contacts between faculty and students. The subjects and the texts studied are similar in all schools. The character and ideals of the teachers who teach the courses and supervise the student organizations make the difference between education which is Christian and that which is purely secular. There are few vocations which give greater opportunities for helping young people to develop wholesome Christian lives than does teaching. The personal contacts with a faculty of men and women who have inspiring Christian personalities provide an influence upon students which can scarcely be overemphasized. The student is fortunate indeed who has such guides to inspire him.

Home Missions and Human Need

The Home Missions Council and the Council of Women for Home Missions, representing some thirty denominations and about fifty national mission boards and societies, held their Annual Meeting in Indianapolis the week-end of January 11-16. These organizations are particularly concerned to render a religious ministry to minority groups such as Indians, Negroes, and people speaking foreign languages, to the disadvantaged and the underprivileged. They seek to join the forces of denominational mission boards in a united fellowship and a united ministry to the neglected peoples of America.

Following are some of the worthwhile thoughts brought out in the addresses and discussions: "We are living in bewildering days. The present situation at home and abroad demands a prayerful, united and unprecedented emphasis on religion and a new Christian advance. Mankind is perplexed and fearful. Men and women are burdened with evils and oppression almost insupportable and with problems apparently insoluble. Poverty abounds in the midst of plenty. Racial suspicion and hatred are rife. Everywhere people are conscious of uncertainty and chaos. Youth is at a loss to know what to do next and is concerned as to the future. No wonder the mood of disillusionment and even despair is widespread. No wonder that vast multitudes of people are ready to respond to the appeals of new cults and movements that are foreign to the religious history of this country and to the American way of life. These agencies are claiming the allegiance of the human spirit, an allegiance which should belong only to God.

Confronting such a challenge, the national mission boards are preparing to make a new advance to meet the obstacles that ever arise in human crisis. They seek to recapture the fearless agressiveness of the Christian Church, and rekindle the fire of the pioneer spirit of religion, to meet the needs of the new masses of dispossessed and disinherited people. Home missions is Christianity in action. It is in particular an attempt to make Christianity available to the needy sections of the country.

Three alternatives confront society today: the collapse of civilization; the acceptance of a new pagan faith like Fascism or Communism; or the revival of Christianity on a scale of new values and at an intensity quite beyond anything that our day is visualizing.

To this end these home mission agencies in annual session were concerned to relight the fires of religious passion and discover more dynamic ways and means of rendering service to America's needy multitudes. They sought first to discover anew the transforming grace of God for their own lives and then to relate their noblest inspiration to the social hurts and the social needs of our generation. Some two hundred and fifty people, representing executives and staffs of national missions agencies, responsible for the administration of approximately $25,000,000 annually, and with schools, hospitals and churches covering every section of the North American continent including Canada, the United States, Puerto Rico, the Dominican Republic, Alaska and Hawaii, constitute the personnel of these Home Missions Councils.

Bishop Francis J. McConnell who gave the address at the Sunday evening Mass Meeting, speaking upon the theme "Home Missions and World Mindedness" revealed the significance of home missions to the success of foreign missions, and stressed the importance of a Christian attitude to the depressed peoples of America as the best possible answer to the problem of getting Christianity accepted in foreign lands.

Menno Simons on the Mode of Baptism

By John Horsch

In not a few books and pamphlets by various writers the statement is found that Menno Simons taught and practiced baptism by immersion. The first author to advance this view was Morgan Edwards, a Baptist writer who made such a statement in 1770. This opinion was in consequence repeated by various writers, among them J. Newton Brown whose booklet, The Life and Times of Menno, the Celebrated Dutch Reformer, saw various editions in both the English and the German language.

Some of these writers based this opinion on the strange supposition that the Dutch word for baptism, doopsel, as used by Menno, means immersion. Furthermore, in support of their view that Menno defended baptism by immersion they quoted a notoriously false (not to say falsified) translation of a certain passage from his writings. In the original Dutch, as well as in the English editions of his works, the passage in question reads:

"For however diligently we may search day and night, we yet find but one baptism in the water, pleasing to God, which is expressed and contained in His Word, namely the baptism on the confession of faith, commanded by Christ Jesus, taught and administered by His holy apostles." Menno adds at the end of the same paragraph: "But of that other baptism, that is infant baptism, we find nothing." (Complete Works of Menno Simons, Part II, p. 204b.)

Following is the translation of this passage, as given by some of these writers:

"After we have searched ever so diligently, we shall find no other baptism but dipping in water which is acceptable to God and approved in His Word."

The claim has been made that the rendering, as given by these writers, corresponds with the text as found in the earliest edition of Menno Simons' Works. This opinion is entirely erroneous. Various Mennonite authors, as well as a number of Baptist historians, including Ira Chase, Henry Burrage, August Rauschenbusch, William H. Whitsitt, have shown that the assertion is without foundation.

In the Reformation period there was no controversy on the mode of baptism. While Menno Simons' writings do not contain a defence of a particular mode, he incidentally made statements which definitely indicate the mode of baptism in use in the church which he represented, namely effusion. He says in his book, "Foundation" that, compared with such commandments as to love one's enemies, to crucify the flesh, etc., it is an easy matter to submit to the act of baptism, and he describes this act as "having a handful of water applied." (Works, Part I, p. 38b.) Again in his book, The True Christian Faith, he refers to the act of baptism as receiving "a handful of water." (Works, Part I, p. 124a.) The late William H. Whitsitt, President of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., said rightfully that there are definite expressions indicating the act or mode of baptism. Without question this is correct.

An attempt has been made to annul the force of these passages. The passage from the Foundation is a part of a treatise in which Menno pointed out that no rite, no ceremony, can save the soul, and that the whole ocean could not cleanse from sin. This does by no means disprove the fact that in this passage, as well as in the other passage above quoted, he clearly refers to the act of baptism as the application of a handful of water. These passages indicate beyond the possibility of a doubt how baptism was practiced in the early Mennonite Church.

THE RURAL MINISTER AND HIS MESSAGE

by Aaron H. Ropking

These are days of great opportunity for rural ministers who are called of God, to live and preach the gospel of the Son of God in terms of soil and souls, minds and bodies, personal salvation and social relationship, the material and spiritual, church and state, time and eternity; ministers with clear minds, warm hearts, strong wills, and a dynamic faith, who love people and feel at home in the humblest cottage and in the majestic palace; ministers who believe that this is indeed a good world for the purpose for which it was created; ministers who in the pulpit, in the homes, along the highways, and in all their relationships of life, help people to sense and feel the great throbbing, loving heart of God the Creator, and sustainer of the universe; ministers with vision who can see, challenge and direct the untapped resources for high adventure and noble living in many of our rural people; ministers who know the resources as revealed through Christ and can, by putting their hands in Christ's hands, help to bring God and man, heaven and earth closer togther.—Extract from article in "Expositor" Dec. '39

Annual Bethel College Fellowship Meeting

A few years ago the leadership of Bethel College conceived the idea of organizing, in the churches of its territory, fellowships, groups of workers who would endeavor to create and maintain a lively interest in and for Bethel College in their respective communities. It succeeded in organizing such fellowships in 58 churches, 44 within the confines of the Western District and 14 in states to the north and west. To date the members of fellowships in these 58 churches number 1074, or an average of 18 per church, the largest being 129, that of the Eden Church, Moundridge, Kansas; the next largest 89, that of the Bethel College Church; the smallest being one. These fellowships have been a great help to the institution in endeavors along the following lines:

1. To pray for Bethel College
2. To talk for Bethel College
3. To suggest improvements at Bethel
4. To help people get better acquainted with Bethel
5. To call Bethel's attention to prospective students
6. To encourage prospective students to attend Bethel
7. To encourage individuals to make a definite financial contribution to Bethel.

This year the Annual Fellowship Meeting was held on the evening of Feb. 6, in the College Dining Hall. And in spite of poor country roads an enthusiastic assembly of about 100 gathered for the occasion. It was opened with a song, and prayer by J. H. Epp. Then a fine meal was served, after which, with Rev. J. M. Regier, Fellowship Director acting as chairman, the following program was given:

Minutes of 1939 and Roll Call, showing 23 churches represented.

1. Report of Director of Fellowship
2. Address: "Sacrificing by and for youth". Rev. J. N. Smucker.
3. Short talks on Planning an Effective Campaign:

a. "Advantages of the Simultaneous Campaign", Lester Lehmberg.

b. "Advantages of the Spring Campaign", H. F. Reimer.

c. "How Publicity has helped the Canvass", D. C. Wedel.

d. "Help through Pulpit Exchange as in 1936", A. E. Funk.

e. "Starting the Canvass with District Fellowship Luncheons", E. E. Flickner.

4. Address, "Aims and Goals", E. G. Kaufman.

Music by College Quartets was interspersed.

After considerable interesting discussion the meeting was closed with prayer by Rev. H. J. Dyck.

Summary of President E. G. Kaufman's address on:

AIMS AND GOALS

In talking about our college we include faculty, board, fellowship members, every home interested, every church in our territory, and every individual who has ever given money, prayer, thought, energy, or anything else for Bethel College. Considering Bethel College in that light, naturally it makes a difference as to aims and goals.

The first aim, I would say, pertains to the young people who come here as students. Our chief concern is that they might better know God as revealed through Jesus Christ, commit their lives to Him, prepare themselves for His services, and go forth as Christian workers in His vineyard—as farmers, business men, preachers, missionaries, teachers, homemakers, etc. The second aim pertains to our churches and is twofold: (a) To provide proper leadership in the ministry, Sunday School workers, etc.; and (b) That our church might better be able to preserve the best elements of its heritage and transmit the same to its own young people as well as to the world at large.

A third aim of Bethel College is to furnish our people something to work, pray, give, and sacrifice for, so that by cooperation they may become conscious that God is working with and through them for a great cause. In Kansas there are some eighteen Mennonite groups with different cultural background. These should be brought to a feeling of belonging together by sacrificing together for Christ's cause as represented by Bethel College which is to be an instrument in God's hand for the upbuilding of His kingdom in their communities and in the world at large.

I find a fourth aim by trying to look at this problem from the point of view of God. In the Garden of Eden God cried out, "Adam, where art thou?" He has been searching for men ever since. Repeatedly in the life of Jesus people heard a noise. Some said it was thundering; others said an angel was talking to Jesus. But Jesus Himself heard the Father's voice. God always has been anxious to commune with man. It must ever be an aim of Bethel College to serve as a receiving instrument in tune with God through which he can send His messages so that they will be understood.

These are some of the important aims that we must never lose sight of whether we teach classes, work in the offices, serve on the board, or fellowship committies or collect funds for the institution, or otherwise work for the College. Everything else is secondary and they are only a means to spiritual ends as suggested above. This Fellowship is not merely a collection agency. As a part of Bethel College it, too, must always keep in mind the spiritual aims.

—Rev. Willard K. Claassen, pastor of Roaring Spring Menn. Church, Pa. has concented to conduct a week of evangelistic services at the St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio, during the week of Feb. 18-25. Prayers for God's blessings upon these services are solicited.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

February 25, 1940

STEWARDSHIP IN THE KINGDOM

Matthew 25:14-27—Read chaps. 24, 25

Topic: Faithfulness in Stewardship

Introduction

Our lesson is taken from the discourses of Tuesday in the last week of Jesus' life. Jesus clearly predicted his death and the resurrection (chps. 24, 25), and He just as definitely foretold his return, after a long time, at the end of the present age. In the parable of the Ten Virgins (25:1-13) and in the parable of the talents, He is teaching his followers to be prepared for his coming by being watchful and making good use of their talents and the opportunities given to them. A steward handles the substance, the goods of another. All of us are stewards because all we are and have has come from God, so we are under obligation to use our time, ability, and means to His glory. The parable of our lesson emphasizes primarily our duty of faithfulness, and the fact of a day of reckoning at Christ's coming.

The Servant's Use of their Lord's Goods vs 14-18

The man going to a distant land represents Christ. The man wished that his goods should be properly taken care of during his absence and entrusted them to his servants, according to their ability to use them (v15). Each was given a definite part, not merely for his personal benefit, but to be used as a steward for his lord. Each one was free to use his part as he wished. The talents represent opportunities for service based on their abilities. Our talents, in their spiritual application, are our abilities plus the opportunities we have to use these abilities.

Jesus used this illustration out of life to teach a spiritual lesson, truth. At His return to the Father, He bestowed gifts upon his disciples, left his work in their hands to be furthered by them. We are expected to do well the work entrusted to us. Two of the servants in the parable had larger ability and consequently opportunity, and used them well (vs 16, 17). They saw their talents increase through wise use. Our gifts are given to us for use and will increase when used. The one servant buried his talent, let it lie unused. He preserved it well, but no one received any benefit from it and he lost it. He failed entirely to use the opportunity given to him. There is joy and profit in using our talents.

The Lord Reckons with his Servants, vs 19-27 —

When Christ returns, we shall be required to give an account of our stewardship. The servants reported the use made of their talents and two of them brought the increase of their stewardship (vs 20-23). There was joy in their hearts and voice, the joy of an obligation well fulfilled. There was joy in their lord's approval, "well done, good and faithful servant," and a share in his joy. God is greatly pleased when we shall be judged and rewarded on the basis of our faithfulness in using our opportunities. In God's sight, success is the right use of what is entrusted to us, be it much or little. An old model T engine hitting on all four, is a real success, doing the best possible. A new V8 hitting on four, would be a serious failure. We fail when we do not do our best. The reward of the faithful servants included a still larger opportunity for the service.

The unfaithful servant tried to shift the blame on his lord, and he made the longest speech. His lord exposed the folly of his excuses and revealed the real trouble—"thou wicked and slothful servant." His sin lay in neglecting his talent, and it was taken from him. The same condemnation comes upon us if we neglect the work God gives us the ability and opportunity to do. We are stewards and God will reckon with each one of us.

SERMON SKETCH

"NAAMAN—THE LEPER"

by Harold Burkholder

Scripture Lesson—II Kings 5:1-19

Introduction—Leprosy, like sin, was incurable by man himself. Cleansing was only found in God. "Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men,

I. CLEANSING NEEDED (v1) "but he was a leper."

whereby we must be saved."

Naaman was a great man before the world, being "captain of the host of the king of Syria" and being referred to as a "mighty man of valor." He was the idol of the army, the favorite of the king, and his name must have been on the lips of all Syrians. In spite of his greatness there was something in his life which made him unhappy; for "he was a leper". True happiness cannot be found in popularity and earthly applause. It lies in the Lord.

Like Naaman, all men are in need of cleansing. Every life, regardless of earthly achievement, must have written at the end of such, "but he was a sinner." For all have sinned and come short of the glory of God". (Rom. 3:23)

II. CLEANSING PROCLAIMED (v. 3)

The Jewish maid, who was taken captive by the army of Naaman, did not have to stay in her master's home very long until she saw the unhappiness of Naaman. He was carrying the sore of leprosy, while she knew the secret of cleansing. How interesting to see this Jewish maid proclaim the secret of cleansing to Naaman, a gentile. As true servants of Christ, denominational lines should be cast aside as we behold those who are in need of cleansing. Let us be unselfish Mennonites in making Christ known to a needy and lost world. If we are busy working for the True Church, the Body of Christ, then we will be faithful to our church as an organization. Frequently we find the church substituting many non-essential programs of a political nature, and fail in God's supreme task of proclaiming the "good news of salvation." Let us please God rather than man.

III. CLEANSING RECEIVED (vv. 5-14)

Naaman was informed that cleansing was available in Samaria. Though not on good terms with this people, yet his need urged him on to get it at any cost. What we need today is old time Holy Ghost conviction of sin, that will drive us to the cleansing fountain of Christ's blood.

1. Man's method of receiving cleansing (v. 5)

a. "A letter commanding the cure . . . man's will."
b. "Money to buy the cure. . .man's purse."
c. "Servants to patronize the cure. . .man's pride."
Man's way will end in ruin and disappointment.

2. God's way of cleansing (10)
Naaman was told to dip himself seven times into the river Jordan. Man is willing to go to extremes to obtain redemption of his own choosing, but like Naaman will scoff at God's simple remedy and prescription.

"Naaman had come to Elisha feeling that he was a great man who just happened to have leprosy, but Elisha dealt with him as being one who had leprosy and happened to be great." The reception and remedy was so provoking that Naaman turned away white with anger, but still white with leprosy. Cleansing was finally received, after Naaman followed the prophet's instructions.—If man is to be cleansed of his sin, he must follow God's instructions in His Word.

I. RESULTS OF CLEANSING (vv. 14,15)

1. His flesh came again like a little child's (v.14; II Cor. 5:17)
2. Communion and fellowship with believers (v.15; I John 1:7)
3. Thanksgiving (v.15; Acts 3:8)
4. Assurance ("Now I know.") (v.15;; II Tim. 1:12; John 9:25)
5. Worship (v.17; John 9:38)

CONCLUSION: Let us not minimize sin, but rather magnify Christ and the cleansing power of His blood.

—New Teachers at Bluffton College.—Dean N. E. Byers, professor emeritus of philosophy and psychology retires, and Dr. R. G. Wistler of Findlay, O., takes his place. Miss Edna Ramsayer, head of the home economics department and dean of women who has gone to France to serve as dietician for an American Friends Service Committee. Mrs. Harry Bogart of Bluffton takes her place in home economics, and Miss Geraldine Evans of the French department will be dean of women. Miss Elizabeth Higley of Delaware, Ohio, will teach public school music.

TRICKS

By J. H. Langenwalter

We have a very interesting story of a boy who was surrounded by tricksters nearly all his life and yet he became a man whom many people trusted to their good. His father's name means supplanter, i.e., trickster. This man cheated his only brother and tried to get most of his father's possessions by deceiving him and by lying to him. His brother became very angry about all this and so the man had to flee for his life. God appeared to him in a dream showing him that He was interested in him. This impressed the man very deeply at first, but he did not change his ways.

Later he reached the home of his uncle. This man also was a trickster. For twenty years the two tried to outwit each other. The younger man finally won out but neither was satisfied and they parted company in very bad spirits.

Meanwhile, a dozen children had come into the home. There had been a lot of trouble there because there were four mothers and only one father. This led to jealousies among the mothers and among the children. The father was too busy trying to trick his father-in-law out of his property to pay much attention to his home.

When his second youngest son was born he called him, May-God-Add. He loved this boy. First, because he was the first son of the woman he really loved and then, because this boy was different. He was thoughtful. He had a very strong imagination This sometimes made him trouble with his older brothers, who were not thoughtful. The boy clearly felt the need of changes in his home. He dreamed of better times and of ways in which to bring them about. He had no human being to guide him in this. He was only seventeen years old and probably did not always clearly understand the stirrings within his own soul, but he thought far out beyond the range of his trickster father and brothers. They did not understand him and became very angry at him. Then his father made the mistake of trying to make up for his own wrongs by making a pet of this boy. This aroused the jealousy of his brothers so that they hated him very bitterly and wanted to kill him, even after he had gone to a great deal of trouble to bring word from home and some real home cooking for them when they were very far from home for a long time. They finally sold him as a slave and took the price of a slave to add to their possessions.

Being a slave is never a pleasant experience, and it was not for this boy. He suffered much. After many years he became the second highest ruler in the strange land into which he had been sold as a slave boy. This came about through the strange ways which God has of leading people who are thoughtful and in sympathy with His ways.

Meanwhile his father was in great sorrow. He thought his boy dead. The other boys were not kind to their father. You see, they were tricksters too. Finally they had to go to their brother to get grain to live because of a great famine. Then one sees the difference between the brothers. The ten older brothers never rose to a place where they really trusted their brother, whom they had wronged and who had saved their lives. They and their father paid dearly for their tricks.—Bulletin, First Church, Reedley, Calif.

For Christian Race Relations

Announcing the eighteenth annual observance of Race Relations Sunday, February 11, which will be one feature of Interracial Brotherhood Month, the Federal Council of Churches has issued through its Department of Race Relations a mesage emphasizing the Christian obligation to make the United States of America a nation in which brotherhood prevails.

The Message, drafted by Rev. Philip C. Jones, Associate Pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, challenges the Church in a time of world conflict and suffering, to be aware of the "lack of social justice in our own country," and "to purify herself of the great modern heresy of racial discrimination within her own walls." Christians are called upon "to give themselves to the exposition of and opposition to every cruelty and injustice which greed, bigotry, and prejudice create." Specific suggestions are given which show the responsibility developing upon American churchmen in bringing about community changes in fields where there is discrimination in industry, unequal education opportunities for minority races, inequitable administration of public benefits of social security, the withholding of civic privileges and rights from citizens because of color, and an unbrotherly conduct in the daily life of people of different racial groups. Concrete suggestions are given to the local church for stimulating activity toward these results, and a note of penitence is sounded for the injustices which infest our American society.

In reference to the extension of the observance from a day to Interracial Brotherhood Month, the Message continues: "No day or week or month, however, will suffice. Education in brotherhood is a continuing process. We must emphasize Brotherhood Years, Brotherhood Decades, Brotherhood Centuries, until, in the grace of God, it is Brotherhood Now." The Message takes its departure from the word of St. Paul:

> But now in Christ Jesus, ye who sometimes were afar off are made night by the blood of Christ. For He is our peace who has made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us. Eph. 2:13-14.

An attractive poster and helpful program suggestions for various departments of the church and for community groups have also been issued. Address: Federal Council, 297 Fourth Ave., New York City. —Federal Council Bulletin.

R. Weinbrenner
Editor
Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen
Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers
Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

The Twenty-Third Psalm

(Perhaps, Dr. J. H. Langenwalter's explanatory phrasing of this beautiful Psalm will make it even more meaningful to you than it now is.)

The Great Thinker of this wonderful Universe is my Friend.
He provides for my mind's ever enlarging interests.
Restful and refreshing experiences border the ways of my life.
He builds up my very being by leading me in ways which are always true, because He is a Being altogether true Himself.
He makes it possible for me to meet the unavoidable difficulties of life without fear by His very Presence.
He has means beyond my ability to think or understand for providing for my well-being of body, mind and soul.
When adverse circumstances seem near enough to overwhelm me, He treats me as though I were a guest of honor.
The attitude of this Friend is most re-assuring for all that is good and lovely in life and makes me feel thoroughly at home with Him for all time and for the whole of life in every way.

Miss Marianna Ensz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ensz of Visalia, California, and Mr. Marden Habegger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Habegger of Busby, Montana, were married in the Berne (Indiana) Mennonite Church on December 30th. They are now living in Chicago where Marden is attending medical school at Northwestern University. Mrs. Habegger did excellent work last summer in editing the Senior C. E. topics.

When in Rome

by Helen A. Penner

We have all heard the old saying, "When in Rome do as the Romans do," sometimes used as an excuse for doing something that the guilty party knows he shouldn't do, but continues to do thinking he excuses his weakness in this way.

The other day I read a revised version of this saying which impressed me as a very excellent plan. It was worded thus: "When in Rome try to win the Romans to do as Christ would do." It then becomes a Christian motto that could never again be used as an excuse for weakness. Instead, following its message would make of each one of us a missionary in whatever community we might find ourselves.

"One small life, in God's great plan,
How futile it seems as the ages roll . . .
A single stitch in an endless web,
A drop in the ocean's flow and ebb,
But the pattern is rent, when the stitch is lost,
Or marred where the tangled threads have crossed;
And each life that fails, of its true intent,
Mars the perfect pattern, that its Master meant."

HINTS FOR SOCIALS

1. Know your games. Do not read directions from a book.

2. Plan more games than you will use. Change games frequently before anyone tires of the game being played.

3. Your society should guarantee you 50-75c per party for decorations and prizes.

4. Plan a devotional period of 15 minutes including hymns, Bible choruses, and a brief message and prayer.

5. Thank the Lord before you eat. Have someone appointed.

6. One well-planned party each month is usually enough.

7. Have your "clean-up" committee planned.

8. Fill every minute and then close before everyone is too worn out to appreciate the evening just passed.

9. Let your pastor or sponsors approve of each game before you use it. —"The Living Word."

ACTIVITIES OF YOUNG PEOPLE—IMMANUEL MENNONITE CHURCH, LOS ANGELES

by Louise Richert

Monday evening has been designated as calling night. At this time a group of the young people go calling on our visitors of the previous evening, delinquent members and young people of the neighborhood who have never attended our meetings.

A Young People's Fellowship Hour has been established on Wednesday evenings, including ages from junior high school through college. This has afforded opportunity for all the young people of our church to become acquainted with each other as well as to receive spiritual uplift for the rest of the week.

Previous to Christmas, the Young People's Sunday School class sold scriptural greeting cards, and with the proceeds filled four baskets with food for needy families.

The Senior Young People's group who regularly make visits to the county farm, prepared a small bag of candy and other Christmas dainties for each patient of the farm, and distributed them when they carolled there on Christmas eve.

Senior Department

NEW LIFE

Senior C. E. Topic for March 3, 1940

Main Topic: Life Made New, John 3:1-17.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Take My Life, and Let It Be," "Oh Jesus, I Have Promised," "Who'll Be the Next to Follow Jesus."
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer.
3. Roll call, to be answered by Bible verses.
4. Offering for mission project—(piano played softly meanwhile).

II. Leader's Introduction

Have you ever watched an airplane sailing through the sky and wondered what made it fly? To explain it simply, there are three essentials needed for successful flight. First, there must be force enough to drive the airplane forward. The motor and the propeller furnish this energy. Then, there must be rudders to control this motion, keeping the ship balanced and guiding it aright. Finally, there must be wings to lift the airplane above the ground and to support it in space. Given these three essentials—force, control, and lift—the airplane is ready for service. It can rise high in the air, travel fast and far, and safely reach its goal.

These same three essentials must be found in the life of every Christian. First, there must be force to go forward, for a Christian will not be contented to stand still or fall behind. Then, there must be control for he must be able to keep his balance and follow a straight line to his goal. Finally, there must be lift, for the noble life must rise above the lower limitations and temptations of this world, in order to travel in the higher realms of the spirit. The New Life which Jesus gives will provide the force, the control and the lift.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Dead unto sin; alive unto God. Rom. 6:11-14.
2. The walk of the believers. Eph. 4:21-32.
3. A new creature, 2 Cor. 5:14-17
4. Walking in the Spirit, Gal. 5:16-24.
5. Fruit-bearing Christian, John 15:5-11.

IV. For Discussion

1. What does it mean to be converted?
2. How does the "new life" manifest itself?
3. What does it mean "to walk in the light?"

V. Facts for Study

1. Two groups of people were religious outcasts in Jesus' day: publicans or tax collectors, and "sinners," those who were unable to carry out the ceremonial demands of the law. The Pharisees either railed against or ignored them. Jesus was their friend, knowing that God desired their salvation. One day as he passed along the street he saw Levi collecting taxes and invited him to discipleship. Levi was so grateful for this friendship that he prepared a feast for Jesus and invited other publicans and sinners to meet him. When the Pharisees complained, Jesus replied, "I came not to call the righteous, but the sinners to repentance." How can we reach others and stir within them a desire for the "New Life"?

2. "Creating a new world," has become the watchword of great numbers of Christian young people today. They have come to feel personal Christian growth is limited when they or their friends are forced to live in unchristian surroundings. They are accepting the responsibility for turning unwholesome surroundings—inferior homes, immoral conditions—into environment where they or those less privileged may find it easier to develop great character. They are not willing to say of those who fail, "It is his own fault." Rather they ask themselves what they can do to make Christian living easier. Will the "New Life" within always seek to express itself in accepting responsibility for others?

VI. Illustration:

Gave All His Heart—A native of the Congo region was the leading persecutor of the missionaries there. With his drum and plenty of liquor, he enticed people away from the gospel meetings to pagan dances. He sometimes would break up a Christian meeting. Nioko (a curse) was his heathen name. Suddenly in one of his awful attacks on the native Christians, Christ appeared to him in a vision. No one knew how, but Christ came into Nioko's heart. Instantly he joined the Christians and wanted to preach. He wanted the hardest place. After some preparation he was sent off to open a new mission among a hostile tribe. At first he was rejected but he camped by the village. When he died some years later he left a church of six hundred members, the result of his own labors.

VII. Food for Thought

I was common clay till roses were planted in me, said the aromatic earth.—Turkish Proverb.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

TALENTS ON THE BLOCK

Topic for Intermediate C. E. for March 3, 1940

Opening Song, "All for Jesus."
Scripture Reading, Matt. 25:14-29.
Prayer by Superintendent
Song, "Purer In Heart, O God"
Discussion of Scripture Reading:

1. "To every man according to his ability." — God gives man special spiritual grace according to his natural capacities. That is, if we have the gift of song, God by his grace will help us to become a singer who lifts men up to God. Or if a man possesses great wealth, God will put within him the spirit of helpfulness and that man will become a philanthropist.

2. v. 16, "traded." — Men trade their talents when they use them to the advantage of others, and themselves. The talents gained by the apostles were those people whom they had won to Christ.

3. v. 18, "hid." The man who hides his talents uses them to the advantage of none. They have not been used to help himself or others.

4. v. 21, "well done." — All receive an equal reward. Thus we see that faithfulness in the use of the powers we possess is what counts.

5. v. 29, "shall be taken away," A power or talent that is not used falls into disuse. Use will strengthen it.

Vocal Solo: "In the Secret of His Presence"

Questions:

1. What is talent?
2. Can we ever become aware of all our talents?
3. At what age in our lives do most of our talents become evident?
4. Enumerate the talents which are evident among your members.
5. Do you think your society gives young men and women sufficient opportunity to use their talents? If not, lead the society in trying to find what might be done to give more chance for development of talents.

Offering (Before the offering is received consider whether giving may be a talent.)

Song: "Work for the Night is Coming"

The Lord's Prayer

For Daily Reference:

Feb. 26. Ahithophel's sagacity. II Sam. 15:21; 16:23
Feb. 27. Capable judges. Exod. 18:17-26.
Feb. 28. David, the psalmist. 2 Sam. 23:1-7.
Feb. 29. Ezekiel, a pleasing speaker. Ezek. 33:30-33.
Mar. 1. Stephen, the powerful reasoner. Acts 6:7-10
Mar. 2. Philip's daughters, prophetesses. Acts 21:7-9.

JUNIOR CORNER

Program Suggestions for March, 1940

JESUS' "I AM'S."

March 3, "I Am the Light of the World." John 8:12.

March 10, "I Am the Bread of Life," John 6:35

March 17, "Behold, Thy King Cometh," John 12:15. (Palm Sunday).

March 24. "I Am the Resurrection and the Life," John 11:25 (Easter Sunday)

March 31, "I Am the Door." John 10:9.

Song for the month: "Jesus, the Very Thought of Thee," Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 93.

Verse for the month: "The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life." John 6:63b.

Prayer for the month: "O Lord, open Thou my lips; and my mouth shall show forth Thy praise." Psalm 51:15.

Program for March 3, 1940

JESUS' "I AM'S"

"I AM THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD," John 8:12

To the leaders. Put candles on the piano, on the leader's table, and wherever they can safely be placed. If possible place either mirrors or metal reflectors behind the candles. Use no light but candle light.

I. Worship Period.

1. Soft Music, "Jesus, the very Thought of Thee," Piano with violin obligato.
2. While the music continues the leader reads the words of the song prayerfully.
3. Remain seated and sing the above song.
4. Scripture reading, Genesis 1:1-3; John 1:1-12.
5. Silent prayer followed by leader's prayer.
6. Memory Verses by six Juniors each carrying a candle, and a Bible. a. John 6:12; b. John 1:4; c. John 1:9; d. John 21:35; e. Matthew 4:16; f. Matt. 5:14-16.
7. Solo — "Stepping in the Light." All Juniors joining in the last chorus.
8. Verse for the month. John 6:36b, in unison.

II. Study Period.

To help our Juniors realize that without Christ the world would be in the darkness of sin, and that there is no light for men except in Jesus Christ.

1. Talk by a Junior girl. "The world was dark with sin before Jesus came." John 1:5, John 3:19.
2. Talk by a Junior boy. "The story of Jesus brings light everywhere." John 1:9; John 8:12; John 9:46.
3. Song in unison, (stand)—"Send the Light."
4. Talks by three Juniors: "We, too, shall let our light shine," or "We shall be reflectors of the Light."
   a. There is no light in us until we come to Christ.
   b. In order to have more light we must be faithful in Bible study and prayer
   c. We must shine for Christ everywhere.
5. In unison, Matthew 5:14-16.
6. Solo, "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning"
7. Story—Jesus Opens a Blind Man's Eyes." John 9:1-41. (The story should have been carefully studied so that it can be told in the Junior's own words.)
8. Bible Drill: Ps. 27:1; Matt. 5:14; 2 Cor. 4:4; 1 John 1:5; Ps. 119:105; John 12:35, 36; Eph. 5:8; Rev. 7:16; Isaiah 60:1; Acts 26:18; 2 Peter 1:19; John 8:12.
9. Leaders' heart talk.

III. Mission Minutes

The leader should find several short stories of how the "Light" brought to heathen darkness by missionaries has dispelled the darkness. These may be retold by the Juniors, or a good reader by reading a story.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Repeat in unison the verse for the month. John 6:63b.
2. One Junior may repeat from memory, John 8:12.
3. Sing softly: "Into My Heart."
4. In unison, "Prayer for the month," Ps. 51:15.
5. Leader's closing prayer.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA.
Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHUCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.
Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Business Office, Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kans.
Editor .... J. R. Thierstein, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.50 .... Foreign, $2.00

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges, to J. R. THIERSTEIN, or the MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.
Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS.

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, BERNE, IND.

As usual, the churches in Berne united in a two week's series of evangelistic meetings in January, in our church. This year Dr. M. R. DeHaan, of Grand Rapids, Mich., was the speaker. His messages on various topics were deeply instructive, revealing and inspirational, as well as challenging. He is a gifted Bible teacher and a most forceful speaker. Much blessing was brought to Berne through his earnest ministry, and a number of souls were brought to a saving knowlege of the Lord Jesus Christ.

On the afternoon of January 30, the funeral of Mrs. Grover T. Soldner of Bluffton, Ohio, was held in our church, as she was brought here for interment in the Berne Cemetery. Rev. H. T. Unrugh of Bluffton Church, Dr. C. H. Suckau of Berne Church, and Rev. Paul E. Whitmer of Grace Church, Pandora, took part in the funeral service. Our sympathies go out to the beraved family.

On Tuesday, Feb. 6, our pastor, Dr. C. H. Suckau, spoke at the Founder's Week Conference at Moody Bible Institute, Chicago. About 30 speakers participated in the week's program. Quite a number of our young people have studied at the Institute, and a number more have taken courses of study by correspondence.

One of our young people's groups is called the "Missionary Union". This group goes around in various neighboring towns to hold meetings, distribute tracts, visit jails, etc. Occasionally they bring in outside speakers for inspiration. On Sunday, Jan. 28, Miss Mary Haas, a missionary in Nigeria, Africa, was the speaker. She also showed pictures of her station and work. A great work she is doing among those uncivilized blacks, at great sacrifice and labor, in this pioneer field. However, she says, "the joys far outweigh any difficulties and discouragements." Her's is the true missionary spirit.—Martha Gilliom, Corr.

MENNONITE CH., HUTCHINSON, KANS. 2-5-40

Almost nineteen years ago I received my first invitation to attend the Mennonite mission here in our city. The invitation came through Rev. H. T. Unruh, who was working here at that time. Many invitations have been extended since that day, to men and women, boys and girls, of different creeds and denominations, by the workers here. Many responded as I did, and received an abundance of spiritual help. Some became interested enough to unite with the church, and are now dependable workers for the Master's Cause.

The Churches in the city have problems that do not confront those of the rural communities, so the past ninteen years our group has changed several times. Only a few of the families who might be considered charter members, are left. We are very thankful for our church here, even though it seems almost impossible to build in numbers, because of adverse economic conditions which cause our young people to make many undesirable changes, and quite often it is hard for them to attend a church regularly.

There are about thirty Mennonite girls working in homes in our city. Sunday, quite often, is their busy day, with no time off for church services. To these young people, our pastor and his wife have given special attention in arranging a week day meeting for them at the church. The large number that attend these weekly meetings proves that this service is deeply appreciated by the young women.

Rev. and Mrs. Dirks worked faithfully during the past years, trying to solve some of the many problems which arise in city mission work. All organizations of the church and S. S. have been organized under able leadership, so we expect even greater spiritual uplift in the future.

Our church is now under the guidance of a church Council, and is governed by a newly adopted Constitution which we hope the home mission board will approve. We are thankful for the different ministers who visited us during the past year when Bro. Dirks was working elsewhere, and also for those who worked with him here at home. From Bethel College there was always fine response, and there were a number of other ministers who were willing to serve us.

Our young people's organizations are growing both in number and in strength, so we are looking to them for new leadership in the S. S. and C. E. work.

One member, Mrs. H. H. Friesen, passed away, leaving her husband and daughter to mourn her loss.

We covet your prayers for God's grace in all we undertake. —Edward W. Miller, Corr.

BELL MENNONITE CH., FREDONIA, KANS.

Upon the close of the month and beginning of of the new, we are looking forward to better weather. We have had a very cold winter which has been hard on all live stock. Again we know that there is coming a season when nature will pour forth its beauties out of the warm earth, which we will then appreciate so much more. In spite of all the cold weather. we have had Sunday School and services three Sundays in January. Since we live all the way from one to twenty-three miles apart we often wish for telephones to be able to call off S. S. in cold weather. But we feel responsible to go, because with our little group success depends on each one. Attendance has been fairly good. In nice weather we often have perfect attendance. Can some of you sister churches say that?

We are glad to have several new families moving in for March. The men are going to start a chorus. We have a nice group of voices here and we wish that more would join us.—We are very short on song books for S. S. and are waiting for the new

Mennonite Hymnal, but trying to get along with borrowed books till the Hymnal is ready.

There has been very little sickness in our group so far. We are praying and hoping that Mrs. H. T. Krause, a sister to the two nurses in the Goessel hospital, will be able to be with us again next Sunday.

May the Lord bless each church according to its needs. —Mrs. Harlow Schmidt, Corr.

FIRST MENONITE CH., SHAFTER, CALIF.

The first week in January we had meetings every evening except Wednesday when the Sunday School Teachers met to discuss the lesson for the next Sunday. The Lord blessed us wonderfully and we feel we have at least made a good start in the New Year. May we keep it up!

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Epp, of our church left Friday, January 19, for Long Beach, California, where they will make their home. We regret that we must part with them, but trust that the Lord will be with them there.

Tuesday evening, January 22nd, occured the installation of our pastor, Rev. J. P. Glanzer. Rev. Lester Hostettler of Upland, California, was with us and installed Rev. Glanzer as pastor of our church and our conference. A men's chorus from the Shafter church brought several numbers. Reverend Hostettler gave an interesting message on I Corinthians. His subject was "Discussion of Problems in the Corinthian Church" as—Church Discension, Immorality, Law Suits, Marriage, Food Offered to Idols, Support of Ministry, Conduct of Public Worship, Controversy Regarding Gifts, Resurrection and Collection. The message was timely and Biblical. We sincerely thank Rev. Hostettler for his service.

At present Rev. J. J. Esau of Bluffton, Ohio, is conducting a series of meetings. We wish that everyone would pray for these meetings that they may have God's blessing and, even if only one soul is saved, or brought closer to God, we know that the meetings will not have been held in vain.

—Dorma Goershing, Corr.

EICHER EMMANUEL, NEAR NOBLE, IOWA.

Our congregation held its annual business meeting January 1, 1940. Old and new business was taken care of and new officers were duly elected. Taking a retrospective look over the past year, we have many reasons to be grateful to our Heavenly Father. Although the hand of death called 7 members of our fold to their eternal reward, we must strive on with the implicit faith that, "All things must work together for good to those who love the Lord."

In the fall we redecorated the interior of our house of worship, covering the walls and ceiling with "Nuwood," and the wood work was all redone. On December 24 the building was rededicated to the Lord's service. It is our prayer that this material improvement will prove to be an inspiration to our congregation and all who enter into worship with us, in promoting a deeper and fuller realization of the Lord's divine presence in His sanctuary.—Mrs D. E. W. Corr.

BELL MENN. CHURCH, FREDONIA, KANS.

Upon the close of the month and beginning of the new, we are looking forward to better weather. We have had a very cold winter which has been hard on all live stock. Again we know that there is coming a season when nature will pour forth its beauties out of the warm earth, which we will then appreciate so much more. In spite of all the cold weather and snow storms, we have had Sunday School and service three Sundays in January. Since we live all the way from one to twenty-three miles apart we often wish for telephones to be able to call off S. S. in cold weather. But as it is we feel responsible to go, because with our little group success depends on each one. Attendance has been fairly good. In nice weather we often have perfect attendance. Can some of you sister churches say that?

We are glad to have several new families moving in for March. The men are going to start a chorus. We have a nice group of voices here and we wish that more would join us. We are very short on song books for S. S. and are waiting for the new Mennonite Hymnal, but try to get along with borrowed books till the Hymnal is ready.

There has been very little sickness in our group so far. We are praying and hoping that Mrs. H. T. Krause, a sister to the two nurses in the Goessel hospital, will be able to be with us again next Sunday.

May the Lord bless each church according to its needs. —Mrs. Harlow Schmidt,

IN MEMORIAM

WIDMER: JOSEPH WIDMER, son of Jacob and Kathryn Widmer, was born Sept. 1, 1887, in Alsace Lorraine, Germany, now, France, and passed away Jan. 23, 1940. In July, 1907, he migrated to America and settled in Washington county, Iowa.—Upon his confession of faith he was baptized by Rev. Michael Widmer and accepted into the membership of the Mennonite Church at Basel, Switzerland. This membership was transferred to the Eicher Emmanuel Mennonite church at Noble, Iowa, under the pastorate of Rev. S. M. Musselman.

On October 3, 1916, he was united in marriage to Elizabeth Graber. Three children were born to this union.— He leaves to mourn his passing his wife, 3 children, Harlan, Marvin, and Kathryn; 3 brothers and 2 sisters.

Funeral services were held at the Eicher Emmanuel church, Noble, by his pastor, Delbert E. Welty, Jan. 25, 1940. —Mrs. D. E. W., Corr.

JACOB J. HARMS, son of Jacob and Eva Klassen Harms, was born in Michalin, near Machnovka, Kiev, Russia, April 26, 1872. His father had died before Jacob was born, so the boy had to grow up fatherless. In 1874 his mother and Jacob with her parents and many others came to America, arriving at Peabody, Kansas, Dec. 5. On Nov. 22, 1895, Jacob was joined in marriage with Anna Ewert. To them seven children were born. On June 23, 1901, Jacob was baptized by Elder Jacob Toews of Newton and received as member of the Gnadenberg Church, of which he remained to his death a useful and honorable member. For several years he was afflicted with a peculiar malady and doctors' treatments and hospital care gave but temporary relief. About a month ago his suffering became intense. During this time he prayed much and many others with and for him. Jan. 18, he was taken to his eternal home where there is no suffering. His age was 67 years, 8 months, and 23 days. Surviving him are his wife, who for more than 44 years was his loyal and true helpmeet, four sons and two daughters with their families.

* * *

REV. WILLIAM H. GRUBB, the son of Rev. N. S. Grubb and Salome Gottshall Grubb, was born September 28, 1879, in Schwenksville, Penn. When four years of age his parents moved to Philadelphia. There he attended public school and later Temple University, after which he pursued a theological course. He was licensed to preach by the Eastern Dist. Conference and ordained to the Gospel Ministry at Allentown, Pa., Sept. 13, 1903.—In 1905 he assumed the pastorate of the newly formed Bethel Mennonite Church, Perkasie, Pa., and here also a church building was erected. The Bethany Mennonite Church of Quakertown was yoked with this field August 1906, and the East Swamp Church in 1910. He served this parish for eight years. On June 24, 1906, he was ordained to the office of Elder in the Mennonite church.—August 1, 1913, he accepted a call to the Mennonite church in Trenton, Ohio, and in December 1917, to the Eden Mennonite Church in Schwenksville, Pa., this being his birthplace, where his father served his first pastorate for ten years. The first Mennonite Church of Normal, Ill., called him May 1, 1921. Here his pastorate was very successful, the church being rebuilt and enlarged. Then he held in succession the following pastorates: the Union Congregational Church in Cobden, Ill.; the First Congregational Church in Dwight, Ill.; and the Congregational Church at Amboy, Ill.

He has been on the preaching staff at the Women's Reformatory at Dwight since 1930. He was appointed Protestant Chaplain of the U. S. Veterans' Hospital in Dwight, November, 1935.—He served as president of the Eastern District Mennonite Conference, as member of the Publication Board and Associate editor of the Year Book, as member of Church Building Fund Board 1908 to 1913.—He is the author of "The Mennonites of Butler County, Ohio," published in 1916. The Year Book and Annual Mission Reports were established by him. For several years he was an instructor of Missions and Church History at the Annual Bible Conference of the Central Conference of Mennonites.

Rev. Grubb passed away as the result of a heart attack at Streator, Ill., while on a trip visiting members of his former ministerial charges. He leaves behind to mourn his departure, his wife, the former Della Reed, whom he married Jan. 2. 1905, in Pennsylvania; the children, Della and Ruth of Bloomington; Esther, Mrs. Chester Ummel of Peoria; Norman and James of Chicago; William of Dwight; and Dorothy, a teacher at Rockford, all in the state of Illinois. His age was 67 years, 3 months, and 4 days. Funeral services were held at Amboy, Ill., in the church he last served, at which Dr. Ernest Atkins paid a beautiful tribute to the life of service of the departed.

« « JOTTINGS » »

ENCOURAGING NEWS

—The Sunday School of the Hebron Mennonite Church, through P. T. Franz, its superintendent, has placed a good sized order for the new Hymn Book, with check for the order, which help the Board of Publication deeply appreciates and for which it heartily thanks the Sunday School.

—The Good Sisters of the Mennonite Deaconess Home and Hospital, likewise have made our hearts glad by placing an order for 25 new Hymn Books, through their superintendent, with the request that seven of them be bound in leather with the name of the owner stamped on in gold letters.—May God bless the Sisters and the Hebron Sunday School for their encouragement of a good cause!

—Mennonite Church, Burrton, Kansas.—Because of a scarlet fever quarantine, our pastor addressed the congregation, Feb. 4, at the morning service, through a public address system, arranged by remote control from his study. It proved successful and we were very glad for it. We are indeed sorry they are having the experience of another quarantine this winter. They are finding comfort in Romans 8:28.—Victor Graber brought the evening message. He spoke with much feeling. Coming Sunday we are expecting Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Regier to spend the day with us.—Corr.

—Rev. J. J. Pleuert, First Church, Philadelphia, writes, "Yesterday we had our Quarterly Conference, in the Grace Mennonite Church, Lansdale, Pa., as part of their 10th Anniversary. Had a large attendance and a blessed and inspirational fellowship. We always enjoy these Quarterly Conferences. They add to our fellowship and work for better understanding and closer cooperation.

—Dr. George A. Buttrick, president of the Federal Council, recently reported the receipt of a check for $125,000, contributed by the United Jewish Appeal for refugees. The Executive Committee voted to distribute the fund as follows: $5,000 to the Provisional Committee of the World Council of Churches, Geneva, Switzerland, for the assistance to German Christian refugees having visas for emigration which will expire soon.—$5,000 to the Central Bureau for Relief of the Evangelical Churches of Europe, Geneva, Switzerland, for assistance to Christian refugees now in temporary camps or in transit in neutral countries of Europe.—$15,000 to the American Friends Service Committee.—100,000 to the American Committee for Christian Refugees.

—Rev. A. S. Bechtel, Hanston, Kans., writes Feb. 5: We have had another fine snow of about four inches, a wet snow, with no wind. It melted fast and made moisture which all went into the ground. Now there is some hope for the recovery of this western so long very dry country.—Now that Dr. S. K. Mosiman has gone on, another one of our really able men is no longer among the living. Who will fill his place? I found his artices in the S. S. quarterly very interesting, informative and helpful. I fear that his labors for our Mennonite education work has been too little appreciated by too many, perhaps even too frequently opposed by some."

—First Church, Reedley, Calif.—White Christmas was observed by the Reedley S. S. $205 was contributed towards the Duerksen automobile fund. The other churches in California are cooperating in this project with the hope that this much needed improvement in the work in India can soon be realized.

—"A Program with Material on the Home Mission Work in Canada is being prepared for the California C. E. Societies by Mrs. Paul Sellers, and will be sent out about February 1. Other societies interested in such a program may write, Mrs. Sellers at Reedley, Calif., for a copy. —Workers' Exch.

—Menno Church, Washington.—Work on remodeling and redecorating the parsonage of this church is in progress, in preparation for the arrival of the new pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. Edmund Miller, on Feb. 1.

—Second Church, Philadelphia.—February is Loyalty Month at this church. A "Loyalty Bond" will be offered each person, with coupons of loyal attendance at the various church services attached. The bond may be redeemed when the coupons, one after another, after each service, have been deposited at a designated place. Each loyal member is to visit and invite to regular attendance, some member or family that is irregular. Similarly other folks in the neighborhood are to be contacted. And, above all, February is to be a month of prayer for the church, that God may bless it and be glorified.

—"Zionspilger," weekly religious paper of the Mennonites in Switzerland reports that the theological faculties at the German universities, some of which had been closed since the war started, are now again open and doing regular work.

—Col. Alvin C. York, World War veteran, who captured 132 Germans and 32 machine guns, is building a Bible school at Wolf River, Tenn. Speaking at the site of the school recently, he said "Folks have got to get back to the old time religion if we're going to save the world from those madmen who are getting the upper hand. The best way to do this is to teach the Bible right, and that's what we aim to do at my school." This is a better way than bullets to bring peace.

—Lynching Declining: "Praising the efforts of Southern churches and churchmen, the statistical office of Tuskegee Institute has announced that in 1939 lynchings reached the all-time low of three ,as compared with six in 1938, eight in 1937, eight in 1936, and twenty in 1935. Commenting on the figures, President F. D. Patterson said: "Only the continued enlightened attitude of pastors and community leaders can account for this suppression of a dastardly and vicious attack on civic decency."

EMERGENCY RELIEF BOARD RECEIPTS

December, 1939

Received for General Fund: Refund, Rev. H. A. Fast, North Newton, Kans., $173.37; First Menn. Ch., Aberdeen, Ida., by I. J. Wenger, $16.87; Christian Menn. Ch., Moundridge, Kans., by J. B. Stucky, $26.50; First Menn. Ch., Reedley, Calif., by P. H. Ruth, $9.66; Hoffnungsfeld Menn. Ch., Moundridge, Kans., by Eli J. Goering, 28.80; Mennonite Ch., Paso Robles, Calif., by C. R. Lichti, $40.53; Menn. Ch., Summerfield, Ill., by G. W. Ruth, $10; Buhler Menn. Ch., Buhler, Kans., by J. B. Regier, $30.45; West Swamp Menn. Ch., Quakertown, Pa., by Mrs. Moyer, $9.20; First Menn. Ch., Beatrice, Nebr., by H. Reimer, $132.16; Inman Menn. Ch., Inman, Kans., by C. J. Froese, $12.99; Bergthal Menn. Ch., Pawnee Rock, Kans., by H. C. Schultz, $12.36; Mrs. R. Riesen and Mrs. Selma Linscheid, Arlington, Kans., $8; Bruderthal Menn. Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., by F. N. Funk, $8.81; Herald Menn. Ch., Cordell, Okla., by J. A. Harms, $11.26; Goessel Menn. Ch., Goessel, Kans., by I. B. Fast, $17; Emma K. Bachman, Woodlake, Calif., $5; H. S. Bachman, Woodlake, Calif., $5; Bethany Menn. Ch., Quakertown, Pa., by H. L. Trumbower, $17; Bergthal Menn. Ch., S. S., Pawnee Rock, Kans., by H. C. Schultz, $44.

Received for Canadian Debt: West Zion Menn. Ch., Mdge., Kans., by F. D. Meyer, $27; Christian Menn. Ch., Mdge., Kans., by J. B Stucky, $26.50; Hoffnungsfeld Menn. Ch., Mdge., Kans., by Eli J. Goering, $13.18; First Mennonite Church, Berne, Indiana, by E. A. Luginbill, $193.33; L. Schmutz, Eedgwick, Kans., $5; Eden Menn. Ch., Inola, Okla., by G. J. Voth, $14.29.

Received for South America: G. H. Linscheid, Newton, Kans., (Freight on Books), $5; Mrs. Warner and M. Woelke, Arlington, Calif., $2; New Hopedale Menn. Ch., Meno, Okla., by Alpha Unruh, $11.04; Bethel College, Menn. Ch., North Newton, Kans., by Helen Penner, $13.93.

Received for China: Bethesda Menn. Ch., Marion, S. Dak., by A. P. Waltner, $56.43; C. E. Society, Dalton, Ohio, by A. J. Amstutz, $20; Johannesthal Menn. Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., by H. J. Enns, $22.57; Bethel College Menn. Ch., N. Newton, Kans., by Helen Penner, $3; Bethel College Menn Ch., (German Bible Class) N. Newton, Kans., by H. Penner, $10; Mrs. Richard, Philadelphia, Pa., by P. J. Boehr, 25c; Mrs. J. B. Bechtel, Philadelphia, Pa., by P. J. Boehr, 25c; Manie Weiss, Philadelphia, Pa., by P. J. Boehr, 25c; Miss C. Niswander, Philadelphia, Pa., $1.

Total for General Fund	$ 618.96
Total for Canadian Debt	279.30
Total for South America	31.97
Total for China	113.75
Grand Total	$1043.98
December Disbursements	$ 675.75

Respectfully submitted,
Peter H. Unruh, Treas., Goessel, Kans.

FOREIGN MISSION RECEIPTS FOR JANUARY, 1940

Gnadenberg S. S., Whitewater, Kans., $35.25; Immanuel Berean Class, Los Angeles, Cal., $15; East Swamp Ch., Quakertown, Pa., $25; Bethel Ch., Lustre, Mont., $10; Menn. Ch., Wisner, Nebr., $15.40; First Menn. Ch., Halstead, Kans., $35.56; First Menn. S. S., Monroe, Wash., $17.30; Menn. S. S., Ringwood, Okla., $5.45; Alexanderwohl Ch., Goessel, Kans., $28.87; Alexanderwohl S. S., Goessel, Kans., $75; Inman Menn. Ch., Inman, Kans., $61.60; Sychar Ch., Cordell, Okla., $7.75; Herald Ch., Clinton, Okla., $7.54; First Menn. Ch., Butterfield, Minn., $72.67; Mennoville Ch., El Reno, Okla., $4.80; Friend, Newton, Kans., $100; Friend, Newton, Kans., $20.

Edgar Toevs, San Anselmo, Cal., $15; Friend, Hurley, S. Dak., $50; Bergfelder Ch., Mt. Lake, Minn., $38.09; Saron Ch., Orienta, Okla., $30.13; Betheny Ch., Quakertown, Pa., $67.99; Grace Ch., Lansdale, Pa., $81.75; J. Soldner, Reedley, Cal., $4; D. D. Epp, Glenbush, Sask., $9.43; Bethel Ch., Fortuna, Mo., $47.72; Saron S. S., Fairview, Okla., $18.42; First Menn. Ch., Upland, Cal., $61.65; Bethel College S. S., No. Newton, Kans., $52.55; Garden Twp. C. E., Mdge., Kans., $12.30; Second Menn. C. E., Beatrice, Nebr., $26; Zion Ch., Donnellson, Iowa, $160.39; First Menn. S. S., Pretty Prairie, Kans., $141.33; Christian S. S., Mdge., Kans., $43.87; Christian Ch., Mdge., Kans., $19; Goessel S. S., Goessel, Kans., $71.54.

First Menn. Ch., Beatrice, Nebr., $134.81; Ebenezer C. E., Bluffton, Ohio, $40; Mr. and Mrs. Otto Rupp, Mdge., Kans., $3; Through W. C. Voth, Newton, Kans., $136.78; Hoffnungsfeld Ch., Mdge., Kans., $8.23; S. S., Winton, Cal., $3; Friedenstal Ch., Tampa, Kans., $7.62; Zion Ch., Souderton, Pa., $200; Salem Ch., Munich, N. Dak., $65.85; Ebenezer S. S., Bluffton, Ohio, $300; Hoffnungsfeld S. S., Mdge., Kans., $90; Friends, Los Angeles, Cal., $414; First Menn. Ch., Philadelphia, Pa., $42.91; Zion S. S., Souderton, Pa., $500; Eden Ch., Schwenksville, Pa., $29; Eden Ch., Inola, Okla., $9.65; Grace Interm. C. E., Lansdale, Pa., $6; Bergfelder Ladies S. S., Delft, Minn., $14; Grace Ch., Enid, Okla., $6.25; Menn. Ch., Deer Creek, Okla., $10.69 Christian Ch., Mdge., Kans., $49.50; Hebron Ch., Buhler, Kans., $5.40; Philathea Class, Wayland, Iowa, $5; J. H. Krehbiel, Mdge., Kans., $72; Menn. S. S., Medford, Okla., $56.06; Bethel S. S., Fortuna, Mo., $9.15; Immanuel S. S., Los Angeles, Cal., $22.31.

West Zion Ch., Mdge., Kans., $17; Grace Ch., Albany, Ore., $10.03; Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Waltner, Pretty Prairie, Kans., $30; First Menn. S. S., Jr Dept., Bluffton, Ohio, $17.25; Arapaho Ch., Canton, Okla., $3.72; Menn. Ch., Cantonment, Okla., $.69; Cheyenne Ch., Fonda, Okla., $1.93; Cheyenne Ch., Longdale, Okla., $1.08; Mission Sale, Canton, Okla., $9.40; First Menn. S. S., Jr. Dept., Reedley, Cal., $30; Onecho S. S. Union, Colfax, Wash., $60; Menn. Ch., Pratum, Ore., $32.87; Bethel C. E. Lustre, Mont., $17.89; San Marcos Ch., Paso Robles, Cal., $20.63; Bethel S. S., Enid, Okla., $4.25; Apostolic Ch., Trenton, Ohio, $40; Second Menn. S. S., Beatrice, Nebr., $100; Bethesda S. S., Henderson, Nebr., $14.31; Eden Jr. Interm. C. E., Mdge., Kans., $4.37; Zion S S., Prim. Dept., Souderton, Pa., $7; Ebenezer S S., Gotebo, Okla., $9.39; Fred Peters, Hillsboro, Kans., $5.88; Johannestal S. S., Hillsboro, Kans., $60; Hebron Jr. C. E., Buhler, Kans., $3.37; Augusta Thiessen, Buhler, Kans., $.60; Eugene & Betty von der Smissen, Buhler, Kans., $3.14; B. F. Welty, Pt. Legacy, Tacoma, Wash., $29.63; Lena P. Rempel, Mt. Lake, Minn., $50; Brudertal Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., $25; Eden S. S., Inola, Okla., $120.

Immanuel Interm. C. E., Los Angeles, Cal., $2; Bethesda Ch., Henderson, Nebr., $20.19; Bethel S. S., No. 1, Dolton, S. Dak., $4.94; Bethel S. S., No. 2, Dolton, S. Dak., $9.47; Bethel S. S., Wolf Point, Mont., $30.40; First Menn. Ch., Berne, Ind., $309.30; First Menn. S. S. No. 53, Berne, Ind., $18.50; Five S. S. Scholars, Brudertal Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., $25; Bergfelder Chs., Mt. Lake and Delft, Minn., $64.08; Bethel College Ch., No. Newton, Kans., $24.07; Bergfelder Chs., Mt. Lake, Minn., $60.47; Bethel Sr. C. E., Mt. Lake, Minn., $25; Bethel Ch., Dalton, S. Dak., $4.28; Salem Ch., Munich, N. Dak., $120; John Staufer, Deer Creek, Okla., $100; Int. and Rent, $308.82; Ex. Com. of Miss. Soc., Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Treas., $961.72. Total, $6,547.23.

Balance on Hand, Jan. 1, 1940		$ 113.89
Gifts for General	$4,886.15
Special Support	1,027.40
Interest & Rent	308.82
Pension	75.06
Sundries	249.80	6,547.23
		$6,661.12
Paid out on Orders		6,258.79
Balance on Hand, Feb. 1, 1940		$ 402.33

Respectfully submitted,
J. E. Regier, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS OF HOME MISSIONS COMMITTEE OF W. D. CONFERENCE—JANUARY, 1940

General Conference, H. M. B., J. J. Plenert, $25; Inman Mennonite Ch., C. J. Froese, $38.77; Meadow Mennonite Ch., Abr. Albrecht, $2.50; Mennoville Ch., Mrs. O. C. Wehmueller, $20.56; Mennonite S S. Ringwood, Okla., H. J. Becker, $5.29; Friedensfeld Ch., Turpin, Okla., H. B. Regier, $12; Gruenfeld Ch., Carnegie, Okla., Dave Schmidt, $24.65; New Hopedale S. S., Meno, Okla., R. M. Koehn, $14.07; First Menn. Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., P. A. Pankratz, $17.40; Hebron Ch., Buhler, Kans., C. Plett, $5.46; Garden Twp. S. S., Raymond Neufeld, $27.87; Grace Mennonite Ch., Enid, Okla., A. Theodore Mueller, $3.30; Helena Schmidt estate, P. F. Friesen, $17.19; General Conference H. M. B., J. J. Plenert, $25.00.

Total, $239.06.

G. A. Linscheid, Treas.

V. G. A. LINSCHEID JA 41
1001 EAST BROADWAY KEY
NEWTON, KANSAS 41

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, FEB. 20, 1940 NUMBER 8

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

SELF-MADE WINGS

The mad race for acquiring riches still goes on. Although it is a race that had its beginning in the time of Adam, and although its manifold dangers and the futility and folly that generally accommodate it have been repeatedly exposed, yet it goes on.

God has implored man to set his heart upon heavenly treasures; to seek first spiritual riches. Throughout His Word He lays open the dangers of allowing the love for material riches to crowd out the soul's needs.

In Proverbs 2:35 we read: "Wilt thou set thine eyes upon that which is not? for riches certainly make themselves wings; they fly away as an eagle toward heaven." Thousands of thousands of our contemporaries can testify to the truth of this statement. Riches gone —overnight! Vanished in a wink of time! Yet riches do not always take their flight by means of bank failures, robberies, and the like.

Sometimes one may cling to one's wealth until death, when the self-made wings of riches "take off" leaving a miserable and often lost soul helpless and destitute—truly poverty-stricken. To their eternal sorrow, countless "rich people" have found that "riches profit not in a day of wrath: but righteousness delivereth from death" (Prov. 11:4).

By keeping our highest interests for spiritual riches we may obtain and maintain that blessed balance between the material and the spiritual, that God wants us to have.

He purposely seasons His Holy Word with passages such as these: "A little that a righteous man hath is better than the riches of many wicked" (Ps. 37:16); "Better is the poor that walketh in his uprightness, than he that is perverse in his ways, though he be rich" (Prov. 28:6); "he that maketh haste to be rich shall not be innocent" (Prov. 28:20); "Better is a little with righteousness than great revenues without right" (Prov. 16:8); "Better is a dinner of herbs where love is, than a stalled ox and hatred therewith," "Better is little with the fear of the Lord than great treasure and trouble therewith" (Prov. 15:17, 16).

How much better it is to seek enduring riches! to know "the riches of his goodness and forbearance and longsuffering" (Rom. 2:4)! to take with us into eternity the riches of a saved soul!

Earthly riches do make themselves wings sooner or later! They escape far out of our reach and are utterly worthless in the day of accounting—that day when the spiritually rich shall come into their great inheritance—an inheritance that "fadeth not away"—an inheritance that has no self-made wings.

Edna R. Brown, Spokane, Wash., who gratuitously contributes to papers like THE MENNONITE.

* * *

"We will serve the Lord"

Joshua is about to finish his career. He has brought and settled his people, the children of Israel, into the Promised Land. Now, in a final address before their assembly, he reviews the many blessings that Jehovah has bestowed upon them, then asks them to choose this day whether they are going to serve the heathen gods of their fathers, or Jehovah, and in conclusion makes this memorable statement, "As for me and my house, we will serve Jehovah."

Exteriorly considered, this sounds like a bold statement. What authority has Joshua to speak for his house. He himself has served Jehovah all his life and is sure to remain His loyal servant to the end. But his vow is not for himself alone nor just for his immediate family. It covers the whole sweep of a large relationship, the members of which were exposed to the influence of idolatrous nations among whom they lived. And the whole history of the people of Israel proves that they were naturally inclined toward idolatry. What then gave Joshua the power or authority to make his sweeping statement? Was it his skill in the art of pedagogy? Hardly. The God-fearing man that he was, he would decline any merits of this kind. Or was it his mandatory authority as the head of his house or clan? Not likely. For that would hardly carry enough weight with each person in a large group. What was it then?

It was, may we say, the divine power of a man who lived and had his being in God. Mandatory authority is apt to cause resentment. But the silent, unobtrusive authority of a father who lives and moves among his own in the fear of and obedience to God is a power that has its effect. It is the sanctified, consecrated personality in the family that exerts the greatest influence toward godly living. It is this, shall we say, magic power that entitled Joshua to make his sweeping forecast. O that we had more sanctified, genuinely consecrated fathers and mothers in the land! Truly great men all through history have taken pride in giving credit to their god-fearing mothers for their successes. What a force for good upon their sons do we find at work in the lives of men like Moses, Samuel, John the Baptist, and even Jesus! T.

A CHRISTIAN AND CITIZEN VIEW ON WAR.—A prominent Episcopal Bishop in Chicago recently told a religious gathering of his church that there is no inconsistency between denouncing war as a Christian and participating in it as a citizen. It is "evil." "Nevertheless, if my country should be drawn into war even against my will and against my conscience, I cannot deny my citizenship nor withhold the service to my country—combatant or non-combatant—which it has the unquestioned right to demand." Not to fight is, in effect, to fight against one's own country. "In such a dilemma I choose the lesser of two evils."

Upon this view THE CHRISTIAN CENTURY very sensibly comments as follows, with a pertinent note of warning at the end: Is war evil only in some such sense as surgery before the use of anaesthetics was evil? It seems quite clear that the bishop is not thinking of war as sinful or anti-Christian, but rather as obnoxious or costly in life and property. If it were really wrong, in a moral sense, he would be in the position of saying that it is sometimes right to do wrong; and, generalizing upon his choice of "the lesser of two evils," he would be saying that it is always right to do whatever the government requires. In that case, the Christian martyrs made a great mistake, as did all those who have thought it better to obey God than man. The pagan doctrine of the almighty state could scarcely ask a more definite defense than the admission that, whatever the state demands, the Christian man ought to do it because, bad as it may be, not doing it would be worse. That is, we venture to say, a most dangerous doctrine. It is ominous to find it followed immediately by the declaration that "we are bound as Christians to appraise ethical values involved in the wars in Europe and the Far East and to register our stern opposition to ruthless tyranny," etc. Yes, to be sure. But is the previous urging to fight if the government says fight meant to prepare our minds for a call to register our stern opposition to tyranny by war? Whatever the conscious motive, there is now in progress a big buildup toward preparing Christians to present arms.

RADIO COMMITTEE ANNOUNCEMENT

—In compliance with a resolution of the Western District, the Radio Committee has finally succeeded in arranging at least these broadcasts, until further notice: Over K A N S, once a month, on last Sunday morning, at 10:05 to 10:15.—Over K F H, once a month, Saturday morning, the first Saturday of the month, at 10:15.—A sermonette and good music will likely make up the program. —D. C. Wedel, Secr.

OUR GOVERNMENT AND PEACE.—The United States government has actually taken steps looking toward peace in Europe, for which we should heartily thank God. It has announced the opening of conversations with neutral nations desiring the "eventual restoration of world peace on a sound and lasting basis," and has directed Undersecretary of State, Summer Wells, to go to Italy, France, England and Germany for information. Secretary Hull has stated that the initial conversations with neutrals would bear on "a sound international economic system and world-wide reduction of armaments." These conversations are to be carried on with all neutral governments and as Secretary Hull said, "can, of course, be extended to belligerent nations in so far as they involve these two common problems of future peace." In this country the Wells commission has found general approval. Official circles in London received the news "with satisfaction" and with the assurance that Wells would be given all available information. A government source from Berlin has it that the news from Washington was "very interesting," though the purpose of the mission "still is not clear." It is the president's desire to have coordinated information on the present conditions in Europe from all countries concerned, hence the need of one man visiting all countries. And it so happens that at present we have no representative with any of the belligerent nations, none being accredited to Germany; Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to London, being home on leave; and W. C. Bullitt back from Paris for consultation. Shall we not all fervently pray that lasting good may come from these conversations and this visit, and all similar efforts toward peace. Once the people get their minds directed peaceward, and away from war, once the truth, that the willful and mostly useless shedd-of human blood is all wrong, begins to crystalize public sentiment, the war spirit should begin to wane. If only the heads of the governments who have proudly stated their war aims could experience a change of heart and humbly heed the words of Jesus, "Put up again thy sword into its place, for all that take the sword shall perish with the sword!"

—First Mennonite Church, Wadsworth, Ohio.—The members of the church and Sunday School surprised the Rev. Shelley family with a miscellaneous shower on the evening of Dev. 21.—On Dec. 24, a special Christmas program was presented, consisting of a pageant by the Junior Sunday School, assisted by the church choir.—The annual business meeting was held Jan. 3, and was followed by a social hour in the church basement.—On Jan. 7 the regular quarterly Communion Service was held with a large number of our fellowship in attendance.—Rev. Thiessen, returned missionary from India, gave the address of the morning on Feb. 4, and in the evening showed pictures of his work in India. —Corr.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

A. S. Rosenberger

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION MADE EFFECTIVE THROUGH COURSES

by Arnold C. Schultz

There are approximately thirty-five millions of our American youth enrolled in our schools. Nearly two million of these, the potential leaders of the future, are in institutions of higher learning. It requires no argument to make plain the fact, that what is wrought in the plastic minds and hearts of this section of our population today conditions the quality of our civilization and the moral destiny of the nation. Unless the reverence and reality of spiritual things and a sense of moral oughtness are bred into the life of these young people education is secularized. A secularized education in which moral values and religious sanctions have no place is not Christian and will not solve our problems. For the Christian nothing is secular.

This means that in spite of our departmentalized education, where religion appears in an institution as a department of Bible, every course in the curriculum must be spiritualized. The total intellectual experience of a college education at its highest level does not despiritualize life but rather enriches it and puts into the control of men amplified powers for serving God. It does not follow that in working out our educational experiences the task of spiritualizing the intellectual life will be a natural and easy process.

In the first place spiritual ends and moral values must not secularize education by omitting the spiritual and moral uses of knowledge. A teacher does not violate educational procedure when he does more than set the facts or principles involved in a given situation before the student. There is a theory of teaching, that holds the interpretation of facts and the appraisal of values in these facts and their relation to the spiritual and moral ends of living degrades teaching into a biased propaganda and is beyond the province if not below the dignity of the scholar and the teacher. This theory holds that, the cold, detached information, the facts of laboratories, the facts of physics, the facts of science, of history, of art, of life in general are in hand and presented, but the groping mind of youth must be developed by reaching its own conclusion unhindered by the adult mind seeking to hand on traditional views and interpretations.

But a teacher's Christianity somehow gets into his teaching. The one thing that has saved education thus far is that thousands of men and women teaching in our schools are genuine Christians. It is not the conscious teaching of the Bible that will lead the student in the right direction, but it is the attitude of the teacher toward its message. If the teacher will even slightly let his students know, in the multiplied opportunities that constantly present themselves in history, in physics, in biology, in literature, in the social sciences and in fact all other studies, that he accepts the Bible as the very Word of God, that he accepts its teaching as to the fundamental nature of man and his need of a savior, and Jesus Christ as the Savior, the courses will be made effective in the Christian sense of the word.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

"OUR FAMILY"

A Christmas Letter from C. F. Pannabeckers

DADDY, "the Doctor" is kept busy with the innumerable matters of hospital management, figuring accounts, buying drugs and supplies, besides medicine and surgery. His dream of specializing in eye work has not materialized perhaps, but the eye cases in the clinic are many and a few like old Mother Sung who had a cataract removed and says, "Thank God and thank Dr. Pan" on every occasion make life much worth while.

MOTHER, "the Teacher" was kept busy teaching the children, but this fall had the disappointment of her life in not being able to return to Kai Chow. She had a persistent cough all spring and summer and examination this fall showed some pleurisy. She spent two weeks in the hospital and they said she must rest this year. So she and the children are staying at the Language School Hostel in Peking. The children go to school and she has the morning and afternoon for rest in bed. But if you should see her you would not think her sick, she looks and acts and feels quite normal. Her cough is better and her chest x-ray shows much improvement.

BETTY JEAN, "Honey" is now twelve, in the 7th grade and attends the Peking American School.

ANITA MAY, "Bunny" is now nine and in the 4th grade. She rides in a ricksha with Betty Jean to school and back twice a day. Both of the girls have made friends in Peking but they would gladly pick up anytime and leave the city to return to Kai Chow.

DONALD, "Sonny," is now three and pretty young to go to school, but he piles in the ricksha with the girls everyday and goes to kindergarten.

OUR FAMILY LIFE has been much divided these last three years. Less than half the time have we lived together at Kai Chow. We enjoyed last year together here and looked forward to this year. Our disappointment was keen but we are glad mother is improving and we now expect to spend Christmas together. We look forward to a happy time and wish for all our friends A MERRY CHRISTMAS.

Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Pannabecker.
Permanent address: Kai Chow, Hopei, China
Temporary address for Mother and Children:
College of Chinese Studies, Peking, China

"Inasmuch then as I am a Deaconess, I will Glorify my Ministry"

by Sister Frieda

Mother Sister of Bethel Deaconess Home and Hospital, Newton, Kansas.

"Now in these days, when the number of disciples was multiplying, there arose a murmuring of the Grecian Jews against the Hebrews because their widows were neglected in the daily ministration. Then the twelve called the multitude of the disciples unto them and said, It is not fit that we should forsake the word of God, and serve tables. Look ye out therefore, brethren, from among you seven men of good report, full of the Spirit and of wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business. But we will continue steadfastly in prayer, and in the ministry of the word. And the saying pleased the church and they chose seven men full of faith and the Holy Spirit, whom they set before the apostles: and when they had prayed they laid their hands upon them." Acts 6:1-6. Thus was born the Diaconate, a ministry of good works, which was from this time forth a service of the church supporting the ministry of the Word.

The apostolic writings reveal that soon women were also chosen to help in the church in various ways. The Greek word Diakonos—of which the English word Deaconess is the translation—has at heart the meaning, prompt and helpful service. In connection with Paul's work the activity of women is constantly recognized. Phoebe and Mary and Junia are named by him with affectionate regard; also Tryphaena and Tryphosa, "who labored in the Lord," Persis, "who labored much in the Lord." All these and others are mentioned in a single chapter. The first Deaconess, called by that name Diakonos, is Phoebe. "I commend unto you Phoebe, our sister who is a Diakonon of the church which is at Cenchrea, that ye receive her in the Lord, worthily of the saints, and that ye assist her in whatsoever matter she may have need of you." Romans 16:1-2a. Notice she is not called the Deaconess, the only one, but a Deaconess. The fact of her traveling, probably alone, and of her being certainly the bearer of this important letter, in the journey from Cenchrea to Rome, speaks well for her character and bravery. And her business too—since the church is urged to help her on with it, is it not reasonable to suppose that it was church business?

The Deaconesses of the Post-apostolic Church were an important Order. They are constantly mentioned by the writers of the church and occasionally even by profane authors. The early church, like its great Founder, reckoned the care of the poor, a religious service. There were peculiar duties pertaining to the sick and destitute, that only a woman could perform. As the organization of the church became more complicated, their duties increased. The Deaconesses instructed female and youthful catechumens in the doctrines of the church, and assisted at the rite of baptism. They acted for the bishop in his spiritual ministrations to the women of the congregation. They also nursed the sick women and helped care for the poor. Since women could gain access to prisons more readily than men, Deaconesses visited the cells of those who were soon to receive the martyr's crown and administered to them the consolation and encouragements of the gospel.

Deaconesses were ordained with solemn ceremony by the laying on of the hands of the bishop, or some ecclesiastical authority. A form of prayer to be used at the ordination of the Deaconesses, has come to us, in the Apostolic Constitutions, which give us a very interesting picture of the church in the second and third century. This scriptural and historical prayer has found general use in the consecration services for Deaconesses in Motherhouses and various churches today and we also use it in the ordination of our Sisters.

We quote from Lucy Rider Meyer's book "Deaconesses." "A single large church in Constantinople, had at one time forty Deaconesses pushing its work, and a smaller church in the same city, had six of these assistants. We are always amazed at the rapid growth of the early church. . . . May not the explanation of this astonishing rapid growth be found, partly at least, in this multitutde of devoted Christian women, who as ministrae worked side by side with the ministers of the gospel; spreading the story of Jesus Christ and Him crucified, as only a woman's heart of love and tongue of enthusiasm can do it? Suppose a large church in Chicago had forty Deaconesses earnestly pushing its work on every side?" Thus far Lucy Rider Meyer.

After the Emperor Constantine became a Christian and Christianity suddenly became the State religion, the female diaconate declined rapidly, although we find traces of it till the 12th century. While on the one hand, many Christians relapsed into a worldly, voluptuous life, on the other hand the crucifying of the flesh and the renunciation of the world were so much more accentuated. The cloister became the refuge of pious meditation and asceticism, of study and benevolence. The Deaconess gave way to the Nun.

Time does not permit us to trace the blessed service of devoted women through the history of the so-called dark and the later Middle Ages. The rise of the great monastic orders for both men and women are not only interesting, but reveal at times a depth of spiritual devotion and heights of attainment in Christian service which are unsurpassed today. The names of St. Francis of Assisi, St. Elizabeth of Thuringa, St. Catherine of Sienna and many others are not only well remembered since the twelfth century, but still exert a lasting influence upon the thought life of thousands today.

After the gigantic upheavals of the Reformation and the long religious and civil readjustments which followed the Thirty Years war, it is of special interest to Mennonites that history mentions the Waldenses, the Mennonites and Pilgrim Fathers as being the first to reestablish the Deaconess as a helper in the congregation of protestant believers. Through St. Vincent de Paul the great order of the Sisters of Charity was founded in the Catholic church, and soon new life and vigor became evident everywhere as seen in the renewal of many earlier organizations of monks and nuns. The Catholic church of today points with just pride to the great army of men and women who renounce the world and its attractions and opportunities, to follow the footsteps of the Master in teaching and healing, in serving the poor and needy, in humbleness of heart as a free will service to the church. Whatever our ideas may be regarding this form of service, the Catholic Church claims its evidence as a proof of her divine origin and history and peculiar place as the only church which brings true salvation for time and eternity.

Two years ago the class in deaconess history in Bethel College worked at the task of trying to count the Roman Catholic Sisters in the United States. We estimated their number to be in the neighborhood of 150,000. By far the largest number of these are teachers, serving their church in the thousands of parochial schools, in girls boarding schools, academies and colleges. Thousands of Catholic Sisters own and conduct general hospitals and institutions for those suffering from mental and nervous disorders, homes for the aged, homes for epileptics, defectives and imbeciles, and homes for every phase of human need and suffering. Schools, hospitals and orphanages comprise the main divisions of these Sisters' work. Who can estimate the helpful service which is thus rendered to all classes of people? Who can estimate the respect and honor which they bring to their church? It is easy to criticize the motives and ideals which sweep large numbers of men and women into the diaconate of the Roman church annually. The fact remains that though formalism, spiritual degeneracy and other evils may be present in some orders, true consecration and devotion to the Lord Jesus Christ and His Church can only produce the fruits which are evident to the world at large.

Germany and probably Sweden and Holland have been able to outnumber the Catholic Sisters with the Protestant Deaconess. In the United States a pathetically small group of Deaconesses try to carry on the woman's service of charity of the Christian church. In the Lutheran church however the number of Deaconesses is growing steadily and the scope of their work is enlarging.

The Protestant church at large has overlooked the importance of offering to its women the opportunity to enlist in an organized diaconate service. In some instances, at least, in the United States, where efforts have been made to develop the work, pastors and church leaders have not supported it, in fact have helped to undermine its influence and growth. History reveals the fact that men must furnish the leadership and direct the work if organized female diaconate shall prosper. The church in Germany has produced such leaders, great men of vision and love for the service of the ministry in works. Such names as Fliedner, Wichern, von Bodelschwingh, Gossner, Schulze, Zoellner and scores of others, are inscribed upon the history of the church as shining examples of faith in and devotion to this cause. The pioneer of organized deaconess work in the Mennonite church of America is the late Rev. David Goerz. His co-workers strengthened and supported him in his convictions and they and their successors have carried on the service for over thirty years.

As we mention this, we trust that each member of the Bethel Deaconess Home and Hospital Society will realize as never before how important a part each one bears in the future development of the Female Diaconate service in the Mennonite church. It is the duty of each member to acquaint himself with the principles of this work, to support it by his prayers, and to interest young women in the opportunities which the deaconess work offers to them to invest their talents in service to their church. Because Deaconess organizations usually begin in connection with a hospital, deaconess work is often confused in the minds of the public with the nursing profession. Why go to so much effort and expense to train and support a Christian nurse, they may ask. A Deaconess may be a nurse, but she is not only a nurse who occasionally reads the word of God and prays with a patient. All Christian nurses will do that. A Deaconess is first and foremost a Christian woman who wishes to serve in the ministry of good works under the auspices and direction of her church. These deeds of mercy may include may forms of service besides that of nursing the sick. The care of children in day nurseries and orphanages, teaching in kindergartens, elementary and Higher Schools for girls, conducting schools of domestic economy, institutions for training maid servants and providing Christian homes for working women—all these are definite branches of the deaconess work. The Deaconesses also care for demoralized children and juvenile criminal girls in rescue homes, serve in institutions for epileptics and defectives, feeble minded and idiots. Homes for aged and infirmaries, parish work, city missions and district work among the poor offer other fruitful fields for service. The Deaconess undertakes her service with the thought of making it a life vocation, contributing freely her strength and talents that the task may be accomplished to the glory of God. Shall we say that a Deaconess seeks to obey literally that which Jesus requested of the young ruler: "Go, sell that which thou hast and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come and follow me." May not some Christians be allowed to do this?

The Deaconess usually wears a garb or so called religious habit. She wears this for the sake of simplicity and economy, not because she attaches any religious merit to it. She just cannot be bothered with the demands of fashion and wears her garb as a soldier wears his uniform.

There is in the heart of every woman touched by the Spirit of God the desire to give herself to others in sacrifice and love. This desire can find full expression in the life of a wife and mother. But a woman can also mother the children of another, she can mother the sick and aged, the poor, the helpless. The Deaconess service does not ask too great a sacrifice of the Sisters. Anyone seeking to save his own life can lose it also in the Deaconess work, but whosoever shall lose his life for the Master's sake shall truly find it.

An Explanation and Appeal

Dr. H. A. Fast, Field Secretary of the General Conference and member of the Western District Peace Committee, has been taking a month's special trainin a course of Christian Peace and Leadership at the Friend's Training School at Pendle Hill, Pa. Here representatives of Friends, Brethren and Old Mennonites have been spending a month of intensive study to prepare themselves for greater service in the cause of Christian Peace. Brother Fast was granted this privilege through the Executive Committee of General Conference. Considerable expense is involved, and the Western District Peace Committee feels that this special training will be so helpful to our various churches and our youth that many churches will want to help defray these expenses. Perhaps individuals or Sunday School classes would also welcome this opportunity to assist the cause of peace by sending in contributions for this purpose. All such contributions should be sent direct to Rev. Walter Dyck, Burrton, Kans., the treasurer of the Western District Peace Committee.

We also wish again to call attention to our Speakers' Bureau. Churches interested in hearing able addresses on various phases of Christian Peace may make arrangements through the Secretary for the speaker of their choice.

For the Western District Peace Committee,
J. N. Smucker, Secretary.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The 1940 Middle District Conference will be held August 15-18 in the Zion Menn. Church, at Donnellson, where Adolph Friesen is pastor. Rev. A. S. Rosenberger of Dalton is president of the Conference.

—Gerhard Buhler

A Suggested Peace Program

A suggested program from the Peace Committee of the Middle District Conference Dirceted to all the Ministers and Churches of this Conference

Peace—peace between nations, races and tongues has been, is and I suppose will be a problem. Many voices are raised in behalf of peace in this day of war and destruction of human life. There is a way to peace in this day of war and destruction of human life. There is a way to peace and that is Christ's way as proclaimed in the Sermon on the Mount. The Mennonite Church has always looked upon war as contrary to the teachings of Jesus and so has condemned war as sinful and wrong. Will the Mennonite Church of Tomorrow be true to this wonderful Christian heritage that has come to us not without cost and sacrifice on the part of our forefathers?

To combat the sin of war and the suffering, both bodily and spiritually, and to preserve the precious conviction on war that our church has brought to this age, this committee recommends to each church and its pastor:

I. That a definite program of Peace Education be adopted and carried out. The following plan may be carried out or changed to meet the needs and possibilities of the local church.

a. That at least three Sunday School hours be taken for this purpose, and the material presented to all the high school seniors in the church including boys and girls. (Unless a week day hour can be successfully arranged.)

b. Point for discussion:

1. The Biblical background for peace.
2. The Mennonite (Historical) background.
3. The problem of today. (Based on "Pacifist Handbook" Friends Service Committee. This Pacifist Handbook may be obtained from the chairman of the Conference Peace Committee.) Let the pastor or some competent person instruct these classes.

II. Each church should take at least one offering during this period of study. Stress this offering—half of which should go to the General Conference Peace Committe and half to the Middle District Peace Committee. If at the end of the year there should be a surplus in our district peace fund, it will be sent to the General Conference Peace Committee Treasurer.

III. Report to the Peace Committee what you have done during the year to promote peace education.

H. T. Unruh, Chm., Bluffton, Ohio.
Delbert Welty, Secretary, Wayland, Ia.
Adrian Amstutz, Treas. Court House, Wooster, O.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

IN THE UPPER ROOM

March 3, 1940 Matt. 26:17-30

TOPIC: The Memorial Supper

Introduction

Jesus felt it necessary to have a last evening alone with the twelve for instruction and fellowship, before his death. The upper room provided a very suitable place. How infinitely poorer the world would be if the gracious words there spoken were unknown. In the last supper together, the sacred Passover meal, the significance of the meal was far deeper than was customary among the Jews. Jesus was to provide by his sacrificial death, for the deliverance of the world from eternal death and from the bondage of sin. The memorial He now instituted, was far more sacred than the Passover.

Preparing the Passover Meal vs 17-19

Special preparations had to be made for the ancient and sacred feast. The paschal lamb had to be secured, inspected by the priests, slain in the temple and then taken to the house where the supper was to be eaten and there was roasted and the meal prepared. The disciples, good, religious Jews, were much concerned that all be well prepared so they might eat it as a group, so they ask Jesus where it should be prepared. He sent two disciples (Luke 22:8), Peter and John, giving them unusual directions (Mk. 14:13-15; Luke 22:10-12) by which the man was to be known who would show to them the guest-chamber, all ready for preparing the Passover feast. Quite likely the upper room was in the home of a friend of Jesus. Peter and John, true disciples of Jesus—asked no questions, but simply, gladly did as Jesus requested them to do. Our business is to obey His wishes and all will be as He says it shall be.

Jesus Startling Revelation vs 20-25

Jesus, anxious for this hour (L. 22:15), was now alone with his intimate associates in the quiet of the upper room. While gathered around the table in close fellowship, He made the startling declaration that one of the intimate circle was to betray Him. He was sad at heart. The hearts of the eleven were exceeding sorrowful (v22) when they heard this. They looked into their own hearts and asked, "Lord, is it I"? or "Can it be I"? When we look into our own hearts, we may well see depths of evil possibilities there. There is also sufficient grace in Christ for each one of us. Judas had the exalted privilege of close fellowship with Jesus (v23) which made his treachery the more awful.

Jesus gave a stern warning which should have caused Judas to think. He was responsible for his wicked deed and the awfulness of his doom v24). Jesus clearly declares the fact of future punishment.

The Memorial Supper vs 26-30

Jesus took bread from the table, blessed it, brake it, gave to the eleven disciples, Judas having gone out into the night (J. 13:27-30) and asked them to eat it as emblematic, representing his giving of himself in sacrifice upon the Cross. His body was broken for us. Jesus also used the cup filled with the fruit of 'the life of the vine' representing his life-blood shed for the remission of sins. He asked "all" of them to drink of it (v27). Israel had made a covenant, sealed with the blood, on Mt. Sinai, to keep the law. Now Jesus established a new covenant of love, sealed by him with his life-blood.

The Supper is a highly significant Memorial. It is of greatest importance that we should have a definite understanding of Christ and of what He accomplished. The Supper keeps us close to the living Christ. It commemorates the event of outstanding importance in his life, his atoning death on the Cross, that for which He primarily came to earth. In partaking of the Memorial, we confess our need of a Savior and our confidence that through His self-sacrifice, our need is fully met. When Christ's Spirit moves upon our hearts as we partake of the Supper, we feed upon Him in an exalted spiritual manner. There should be a real presence of Christ in the heart of the worshipper at the Lord's table.

SERMON SKETCH

JESUS TEACHING STEWARDSHIP

by J. J. Plenert

Text: Matthew 18:23

We mistake if we imagine that the teachings of Jesus' doctrine and His principle was either to amuse us with notions of divine mysteries or to entertain us with notions of divine mercies. The divine revelation of both of these in the gospels is intending to quicken us to the practice of Christian duties, and as much as any one thing to the duty of doing good to those who stand in need of anything that either we have or can do for them. Jesus presses it upon us that we are but stewards of the manifold graces of God.

I. The Stewardship of Business

All of our business is God's business and not only the proceeds, therefore should be carried on honorably. How we make our money is as much a part of our stewardship, as how we spend it, is well illustrated by the parable of the unjust steward (Lk. 16:1-13) who had been wasteful in his business. Rall says, "If God is a real partner, as He should be in every business, then men will come first and the dividends second." In the parable of the ten pounds Jesus teaches that the two men who were faithful in business were blessed while the one who was careless was condemned. (Lk. 19:11-27).

II. The Stewardship of Property

Whatever property we have is God's, we have only the use of it. The man who boastfully says that it is all his and how hard he worked for it, and now it is time to build a barn and store up for himself, is a fool according to the teachings of Jesus (Lk. 12:16-20). If property is only for self then it is a death sting to the possessor as we find illustrated in the story of the rich man and Lazarus (Lk. 16:19-31). Rabbi Kimshi says, "This world is a house: heaven the roof; the stars the lights; the earth, with its fruits, a table spread; the Master of the house is the holy and blessed God; man is the steward, into whose hands the goods of this house are delivered; if he behave himself well, he shall find favor in the eyes of the Lord; if not, he shall be turned out of his stewardship."

III. The Stewardship of Time

We are always living on God's time, and as such we have no time to waste. The harvest is ripe but the laborers are few (Lk. 10:2). Jesus set His disciples to work with no time to waste, if not welcome at one place just move on to the next (Lk. 9:1-6). We are to be busy in the Lord's work and count it a privilege to labor faithfully till He comes. (Lk. 19:13).

IV. The Stewardship of Truth

Jesus gave the truth to His disciples when he said, "I am the Truth," and He asked them to spread this truth to all nations (Matt. 28:19). We are responsible to tell the Good News to the world in word, deed and in thought. It is this stewardship of TRUTH and LIFE that lies back of all Christian Missions.

V. The Stewardship of Money

Money to us is the medium for exchange, but we are told that "All silver and gold is God's (Hag. 2:8), and as such should be spent so God will be glorified by it. In the Old Testament people went by the TENTH, and anyone that did not give the TENTH was considered a robber (Mal. 2:8). Does Jesus teach that the TENTH is a fair portion for us to give? Jesus never said that it was not a requirement, but He always inferred that it was a necessity, "These things ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone." (Mt. 23:23, Lk. 11:42). Jesus teaches that there should be some system to our giving and never boast, "But when thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth." Mt. 6:3). Let us be good stewards of the manifold graces of God.

We have entered the wonderful Lenten Season. May see Calvery and its meaning anew. Church members should especially rethink the meaning of church membership and others should think of the challenge and opportunity of being a church member. Come and let us talk over such a step during this Easter season. God has given us the church for a purpose; why not share this great purpose with God and his church?—Bulletin, 1st Church, Bluffton.

DOCTRINAL DEVOTIONAL

"THE ALL-INCLUSIVE GOSPEL"

by P. A. Kliewer

In 2 Cor. 1:10, we read: "Who delivered us from so great a death, and doth deliver us: in whom we trust that he will deliver us." 2 Cor. 5:17: "Therefore, if any man is in Christ Jesus, he is a new creation: old things are passed away; behold all things are become new." Titus 2:11-13: "For the Grace of God hath appeared unto all men. Teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously and godly in this present world; looking for that blessed hope, the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ." Col. 3:1-4: "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth. For we are dead, and our life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with Him in glory." I Thess. 1:9-10: "How ye turned to God from idols to serve the living true God: and wait for his Son from heaven, even Jesus which delivered us from the wrath to come." And in many more such precious passages we find the past, present and future tense of salvation.

But before the first can be true, that by faith in the atoning blood of Jesus Christ, we pass from death unto life, from guilt, condemnation and separation to no more guilt, condemnation and separation, we must believe, and believe what? There are certain fundamentals of the Christian faith that WE MUST believe or we can never make Jesus Christ our Savior from the guilt of sin, power, and finally presence of sin. We must believe in the verbal inspiration of the Old and New Testament, inspired by God and innerent in the original writing—and that they are the infallible revelations of God to men. We must believe in the One God, eternally existing in three persons, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. That Jesus Christ was begotten by the Holy Spirit, born of the Virgin Mary, and is true God and true man. That man was created in the image of God; that he sinned, and thereby incurred, not only physical death, but also that spiritual death which is separation from God; that all human beings are born with a sinful nature, and, in the case of those who reach moral responsibility, become sinners in thought, word and action. That the Lord Jesus Christ died for our sins, according to the Scriptures, as a representative and substitutionary sacrifice; and that all who believe in Him on the justified ground of His Shed Blood. That all who receive by faith the Lord Jesus Christ are born again of the Holy Spirit, and thereby become the children of God. Believe in the resurrection of the crucified body of our Lord, and in His ascension into heaven, and in His present life there for us, as High Priest and Advocate. That man is saved only by grace apart from works. I also believe that if any one believing the above, having passed from death unto life, indwellt by the Holy Spirit will believe in that blessed hope, the personal, premillennial, and imminent return of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Wil believe in the bodily resurrection of the just and the unjust, the everlasting blessedness of the saved and the everlasting punishment of the lost.

Thus believing in the lost, fallen condition of men, turning to the Lord Jesus Christ by faith in His atoning blood, he will be saved from the guilt of sin. This past tense is once and for all. Then by the indwelling Holy Spirit he will have victory over the flesh, world and the devil. And will be looking for the Lord Jesus Christ to come.—All things will be new, past, present and future. Once guilty, now no more condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus. Once in bondage of sin, now victory, even more than conquerors through Christ Jesus. Once a hell bound sinner, now future glory with Him. Making Him Savior, and the greatest sin of the saved is refusing to make Him Lord of all. Thus being built upon the Old and New Testament, the written word, and upon Jesus Christ the living Word. Eph. 2:20. The present life is only an evidence that I have been saved from the guilt of sin and that I am looking for Him to come. But the fruit of the Holy Spirit is not fundamental to salvation, only an evidence of salvation. Too often people make the tree dependent upon the fruit for life, when they make any fruit of the Holy Spirit fundamental to salvation, whereas the fruit is dependent upon the tree for life.

The Holy Spirit will never regenerate any one, unless he first accepts what the Lord Jesus Christ has done for Him on Calvary. Nor will the Holy Spirit indwell any one, unless he has first been saved by faith in the Shed Blood of the Lord Jesus Christ, from the guilt of sin. Thus, how can any one produce PEACE as one of the fruits of the Holy Spirit, when he denies the very thing that will bring into his life that which will produce peace. So it is with separation from the world, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, and to live soberly, and righteously in the present world, one must first be born from above, of the Holy Spirit. And then to be victorious over flesh, world and devil, by the indwelling Holy Spirit. Justification by faith in the Shed Blood of Jesus Christ, comes first. Then sanctification, a growing up in Him in ALL things, as the saved yield to the indwelling Holy Spirit, will follow. Glorification is the glorious future of the saved, for which they long, and look for. To go forth in battle against evil and apostacy, with the whole armor of God, and for righteousness and truth, having put off the armor of darkness and put on the armor of light.

Let us be careful in not making ONE FRUIT of the Holy Spirit the only evidence of salvation. Also be careful in not being willing to join hands with organizations that deny all the fundamentals of the Christian faith and may believe in that One Fruit of the Holy Spirit: "PEACE." Too often we turn our backs upon schools and men of God, because they do not fully agree with us on the one fruit of the Holy Spirit, though they do believe in Peace and are Anti-War, and stand "Out and Out" for the Fundamentals of the Christian Faith. In places some will associate with organizations and conventions and men who are modern, yes, even deny the very fundamentals of the Christian faith.

We have an all inclusive Gospel of salvation, that saves us once for all from the guilt of sin and doth save us from the power of sin and some day, we are looking, longing, praying for it, He will appear the second time and save us from the very presence of sin. When we shall see Him and be like Him. Let us be true to the fundamentals of the Christian Faith, preach, teach them, that men and women may hear, believe and be born above, indwellt by the Holy Spirit, go out and be the light and salt—be a testimony for Him.

The past under His blood; the present we have Him at right hand of God interceding for us, and indwelling us in the Person of the Holy Spirit, giving us victory over flesh, world and devil, with Him the hope of Glory in us, sealed by the Holy Spirit unto that day, we look for Him soon to come, when we shall appear with Him in Glory—ALL THINGS HAVE BECOME NEW—OLD THINGS ARE PASSED AWAY.

OUR HISTORICAL LIBRARY

New treasures for our General Conference Historical Library have been received recently from friends in Mountain Lake and in Beatrice. Among the books which Rev. J. B. Epp and other friends from Nebraska donated the following three are especially noteworthy: Carl J. van der Smissen's translation of Cornelius Ris, Glaubenslehre, 1st edition, 1850; the first American edition of Gesangbuch in welchem eine Sammlung geistereicher Lieder befindlich, 1880; and J. B. Epp, Bible History in the Hopi Indian Language, 1916. These and the many other gifts are a valuable contribution to our collection.

Some friends have also made contributions in money. We are especially grateful for these gifts. The library is the property of the General Conference, and it is only by the support of friends that this very important work can grow. All contributions in money should be sent to the Conference treasurer, K. A. Richert, Newton, Knasas, with the remark "for the Historical Library."

When you visit Newton, please pay a visit also to our Historical Library.

The Historical Committee, A. Warkentin, Secretary.

R. Weinbrenner
Editor
Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen
Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers
Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

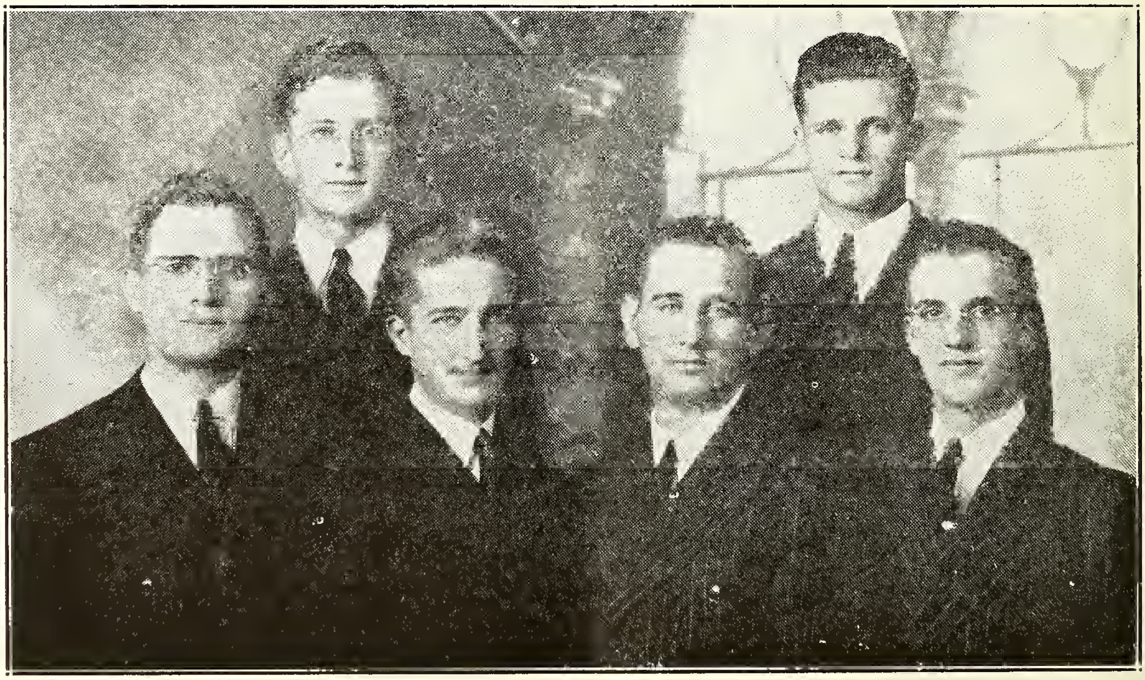
Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE GOSPEL TEAM



DEPUTATION GROUP (Left to right)

First Tenor	John Boehr, Richlandtown, Pa.
Deputation Chairman	Harvey Bauman, Quakertown, Pa.
Second Tenor	Robert Sommer, Middlebury, Ind.
Baritone	Leonard Metzker, Roaring Springs, Pa.
President	Stanley Fretz, Lansdale, Pa.
Bass	James Habegger, Berne, Ind.

Undoubtedly the most frequent point of contact between College and Congregation in our Eastern Conferences has been the Bluffton College Gospel Team.

Primarily a Campus organization, its aim is threefold:

First—To provide a spiritual influence on Campus activities. It provides devotional booklets for the students.

Second—To sponsor weekly meetings where an opportunity is provided to both study and discuss Christian work and problems, under the direction of a competent leader. These meetings are opened with devotions and may be devoted to a definite subject.

Third—To tour or visit the congregations. This affords the lay members an opportunity of coming into first hand contact with the work of our School and to see what is being accomplished. Many indeed are the expressions of appreciation from the pew and one appreciates here that what is taught in the classroom, is put into practice as these young folks give of their time and talents in the worship service.

The present organization consists of a President, who is Stanley R. Fretz, Lansdale, Pa.; Vice President, Leonard Metzker, Roaring Spring, Pa.; Sec.-Treas., Robert Sommer, Middlebury, Ind.; Deputation Chairman, Harvey Bauman, Quakertown, Pa. There are now twenty-eight members active in the organization. Teams picked from these members have been visiting churches in the Middle, Eastern, and Illinois Central Conferences and nearby Canadian Churches in Ontario.

Harvey Bauman

THIS AND THAT

Lansdale, Penn.—At the last business meeting the Senior Y. P. Society decided to send a box of articles—consisting of things necessary for the work—to Miss Elsie Pfister, missionary in Kentucky, and to send as large a money gift as possible to the Schirmers in Arizona. Miss Martha Fretz is the president of this society.

Aberdeen, Idaho.—The TRUE BLUE GIRLS, a S. S. class, are worknig on the project of rebinding all the worn and torn books in the S. S. library. They also presented the pastor, Rev. Wedel, with a photograph album, containing a picture of nearly every family in the church. (The creative and energetic spirit of this group is worthy of parise. Many church library books need the healing touch of nimble fingers. Once attractive again a book can say with self-respect, "Come and become acquainted with me."—Editor).

Reedley, Calif.—A program with material on the Home Mission work in Canada is being prepared for the Calif. C. E. societies by Mrs. Paul Sellers, and will be sent out about Feb. 1. Other societies interested in such a program may write, Mrs. Sellers at Reedley for a copy.

Senior Department

The "Still, Small Voice."

Senior C. E. Topic for March 10, 1940.

MAIN TOPIC: HEARING THE "STILL, SMALL VOICE." I Kings 19:9-12, Ps. 40:10

I..Worship Service

1. Songs: "Take time to be Holy" "Nearer, My God to Thee," "Sweet hour of Prayer."
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer
3. Meditation period—while pianist plays some suitable church hymns
4. Offering for mission project

II..Leaders Introduction

The vibrations of the human voice were on the air ages before the thought of the radio entered the imagination of man. Now we have learned to control these vibrations by electrical and mechanical means, an the marvelous achievments of the radio result.

We are certain that the voices we hear in our room comes from some one though he be hundreds of miles away. It is brought to us in a mysterious way but we are sure that the things we hear are actually being said. We do not imagine them, there is no doubt in our minds about their reality. We can hear them and heed them if we will.

But there is something else even more marvelous than this—and that is God speaking to man through "the Still, Small Voice". Man can be in touch with God and God with man just as surely and definitely as the radio can bring its message. "Who hath ears to hear, let him hear".

III..Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. A boy who heard. I Sam. 3:1-10
2. Wait upon the Lord. Ps. 27:11-14
3. An unexpected hearing. John 12: 27130
4. A prophet's urge to listen. Isa. 51:1-5
5. Private devotions. Matt. 6:5,6
6. Jesus all-night communion. Luke 6:12

IV..For Discussion

1. Do you find time daily for a "quiet hour" with God? Is that a necessity if we want to hear the "Still, Small Voice"? What value do you see in "Quaker Silence" at their meetings?

V..Facts for Study

Make a list of Bible passages where Jesus prays, or talks about prayer. He is the Master Teacher also in regard to keeping in close communion with God. He did not only speak to God but knew how to listen to God. Often we are so anxious to talk to God that we do not give him a real chance to talk to us. Sometimes we are so hurried with our own important business after we have put our petition before him that we do not take time to wait for his answer. Or, perchance, we are so desirous that our will may be done that we fail to even let him tell us what his will would be. Time spent in "waiting on the Lord" is never time spent amiss. Effort made to hear the "Still, Small Voice" will bring large dividends.

VI..Illustrations

Gone Out—Back Soon

The story is told of a physician who was a man of a strong, sunny nature, who carried good cheer into his patients' homes, to sustain them in weakness and discouragement, and still carried back enough to fill his own home. His frail wife needed all the sunshine and vigor of his personality to sustain her; and it did not fail. She seemed to live so much by the strength of his spirit that when he passed away suddenly after a month of especially hard work, her friends said, "It will kill her!"

But the ties between husband and wife were too strong to be broken by the incident of death. The memories of the past were as real as his presence had been. The religious life and the faith in God that they two had shared together did not fail her. By the doorway of the living room she fastened the card that he had sometimes left, in short absence, on his office door: "Gone Out—Back Soon."

Those who came with consolation went away themselves consoled. They felt behind this frail form and lips that smiled while they quivered, a mysterious power, a spiritual experience that had united two souls in a marriage that death itself could not annul. More than one went out from her presence to find, in the years that followed, a strong, although secret consolation, in the deathless companionship, through memory, of his lost ones, and in the cheery suggestion of that brief message. The gospel of Jesus is in those four words: "Gone Out—Back Soon."

VII.Food for Thought

"I cannot put his presence by, I meet him everywhere;
I meet him in the country town, the busy market square;
The Mansion and the Tenement attest his presence there.

"I heard Him call
'Come follow,' that was all.
My gold grew dim,
My soul went after him.
I rose and followed
That was all.
Who would not follow
If they heard His call?"

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

March 10, 1940

For Daily Reading:

March 4. The promise to seekers. Matt. 7:7-11.
March 5. The doors Christ opens. Rev. 3:7,8.
March 6. He enters when invited. Luke 24:28-32.
March 7. The fellowship offered. John 14:21-23.
March 8. The time to act. 2 Cor. 6:1,2.
March 9. The danger in delay. Luke 13:24-27.
March 10. Topic. Christ at the Door. Rev. 3:20.

Call to Worship:

Behold, I stand at the door and knock: If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. Rev. 3:20.

Prayer Chorus—"Into My Heart"
Scripture Reading Rev. 3:20
Prayer by Superintendent
Song "Give of Your Best to the Master"

Discussion:

1. The Gospel Call.

The scene—Christ knocking at the door of our hearts.

a. To what material structure may our hearts be compared?

b. For whom was our heart intended?

2. The Gospel Duty.

"If any man hear my voice, and open the door."

a. To knock is the Savior's part, to open is ours.

b. The act of opening must be preceded by hearing.

c. How can we be sure we have opened our heart's door for the entrance of Jesus?

d. Should not the room for Jesus in our hearts be enlarged just as homes need to be enlarged?

e. When is it our duty to answer the knock of our heart's door? Read Luke 13:24-27. Is it not an unpleasant feeling to wait for a door to open? Do not you think Christ must become very weary with waiting at times?

3. The Gospel Promise.

"I will come in to him and will sup with him." Here the blessings of God are called a supper.

Why is it that we enjoy having guests in our homes?

What kind of heart will ours be if we are conscious of Jesus dwelling within?

What are other blessings we are promised if we permit Christ to enter in?

Repeat the Chorus "Into My Heart"

Hymn Sing (We believe all the members will be able to express their feelings by joining in this brief sing. Those who might hesitate to speak will feel themselves free to join in the singing. It would be fine to have your Church Chorister present to reverently lead you in the singing.)

"I'll Live For Him"
"Lord, Speak to Me That I May Speak"
"O Jesus, I Have Promised"
"Where He Leads Me, I Will Follow"

Chorus "One Door and Only One"

Poem to be read by leader

The Way; The Truth; The Life

Without the way, there can be no going;
Without the life, there can be no growing.
Without the truth, there can be no knowing;
Since Christ is the Way, we ought to walk
in him;
Since Christ is the truth, we ought to trust
in him;
Since Christ is the life, we ought to live
in him.
Thou art the Way, lead us;
Thou art the truth, teach us;
Thou who art the life, continue to live in us and love us.

Samuel Judson Porter
F. H. Revell, Co. 1933

Silent Prayer

(While the Intermediates leave have the pianist play, "Where He Leads Me, I Will Follow")

JUNIOR CORNER

Program for March 10, 1940

JESUS' "I AM'S"

"I Am The Bread of Life"—John 6:35

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude,—"Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing."—Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 66.
2. Stand and sing the above song in unison.
3. Leader's opening prayer.
4. Responsive scripture reading.

Boys. John 6:27 "Labor not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you: for him hath God the Father sealed."

Girls. John 6:28 "Then said they unto Him, What shall we do that we might work the works of God?

Boys. John 6:29 "Jesus answered and said unto them. This is the work of God that ye believe on Him whom He hath sent."

Girls. John 30:31. "They said therefore unto Him, What sign showest Thou then, that we may see and believe Thee? What doest Thou work? Our Father did eat manna in the desert; as it is written, He gave them bread from heaven to eat."

Boys. John 6:32,33 "My Father giveth you the true bread from heaven For the bread of God is He which cometh down from the heaven, and giveth life unto the world".

Girls. John 6:34 "Then said they unto Him, Lord, evermore give us this bread."

Boys. John 6:35 "And Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst."

In Unison John 6:47 "Verily, verily. I say unto you, He that believeth on me hath everlasting life."

5. Solo "Break Thou the Bread of Life", verses 1, 3, 4.

(The Service Hymnal has four verses)

6. Silent Prayer, (all heads bowed)
7. Softly hum the melody of "Break Thou the Bread of Life".

II. Study Period.

Aim: That our Juniors may realize their need of this "Bread of Life", and earnestly seek it.

1. A memory scripture passage by a Junior boy. John 6:48-51, 57, 58.

2. Introduction by an older person: In order to be healthy, happy, strong and growing our bodies need good, wholesome food. We can not keep our physical health or strength by anything which we have in ourselves. We must receive into our bodies food from without. But we are more than physical, we are spiritual. Our bodies need food but so do our souls. We can not keep up our spiritual strength and health by anything that we have in ourselves, we must receive it from God. He gives us spiritual food in Jesus Christ, who is the bread of Life.

3. Song: "O Bread of Life", Verse 1, The Service Hymnal, No. 127.
4. Discussion by the Junior Girls:
   a. "We need bread".
   If a person is hungry or starving he needs food for his body. Our souls are hungry until we know Jesus. He alone can feed them.
   b. "Bread gives us strength".
   When we have plenty of wholesome food we are healthy and strong. Then we can play and work with joy. It is so with our souls. Jesus is the bread which we must take when we know Him, love Him, believe on Him; then we are living on Him. He is the bread of life to us, and we can become strong spiritually.
   c. "Bread satisfies us"
   If a baby is hungry it cries. If a boy or girl is hungry he or she is cross. When anyone is hungry he is unhappy and uncomfortable. But when we eat that uncomfortable feeling disappears. The soul can be hungry as well as the body. We are then, uncomfortable and unhappy. What our souls need then is Jesus. He is the only One that satisfies.
5. Song: "Jesus is All the World to Me"
6. Leader's heart talk.

This world has no food in it that satisfies a hungry soul, but God has sent us food for our souls from heaven. But we must take it. No one can eat for us, so no one can accept Jesus our Saviour for us.. But if we accept Him and take Him, and feed on Him, then we can have a beautiful strong spiritual life, a life that glorifies Him.

III Mission Minutes

1. If possible have a returned missionary tell of the heart hunger, sorrow and need of those who do not know and do not have this precious "Bread of Life".
2. A short season of prayer for our missionaries and those to whom they bring the "The Bread of Life".
3. A collection for the h__.odnmg.Tjl areaand
3. A collection for our mission treasury.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Repeat in unison John 6:35
2. Sing the Song of the month: Jesus the very Thought of Thee".
3. In unison, "Prayer for the month", Ps. 51:15.
4. Leader's closing prayer.

CORRESPONDENCE

HOFFNUNGSAU MENN. CH., INMAN, KANS.

2-6-40.

We have received manifold blessings in our congregation during the past year. And we need to be more appreciative for thd things and opportunities we have, and also more energetic in the work of building up the Kingdom of God. We are very grateful for the two efficient ministers, Rev. A. J. Dyck and Rev. C. H. Voth, who bring us the message every Sunday. Rev. Albert Gaeddert, who is attending the seminary at Evanston, Ill., will again serve us during the summer months. He has one more year in school. We have German and English services alternately. Each Sunday a short English sermon is given to the children which they enjoy very much.

The newly elected S. S. officers took up their work the first Sunday in January. Eldo Schmidt, has served us very faithfully and efficiently for the last three years. Our new superintendent is John P. Franz, and Arnold Kim for the junior department. We have 8 classes in the senior and 9 in the junior department. Twenty-five pupils were present fifty times the past year, in 51 sessions. The youngest to receive a record of attendance certificate was Lena May Franz, and the oldest Rev. D. D. Unruh of Buhler, who is past 80 years, and teaches a class every Sunday. The entire H. B. Martens family, with their 5 children, and the Diet. Regier family, with their 3 children, received their awards. This speaks well for these families.

Our Senior C. E. is directed by Irvin R. Schmidt and the Junior group by Mrs. Waldo Enns. Our meetings are well attended, though there is always room for more. The two groups hold their programs together, the Juniors usnig the first half and the seniors the rest of the allotted time. This plan works out very satisfactorily with us.—Our Ladies' Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Wm. Buller, and our Men's Chorus, under the direction of Mr. John M. Reimer, meet every Thursday night for practice. At the rendition of the cantata, "The World's Redeemer," in the Inman High School, Sunday after Christmas, seventy-five singers took part.—We have two sewing circles, the Senior and the Happy Hour Circle. Both circles meet once a month in church basement, and the H. H. C., one evening a month extra, with some member. The annual mission sale turned out well.—Early in the fall three Bible classes were organized, to meet each Monday. The German class is lead by Rev. Voth, the English class by Rev. Dyck, and the Junior class by Mrs. Arthur Dyck. Great interest is taken in the work and classes are well attended.

Several of our members have been sick for quite some time. Blind Sister Justine Warkentin, bedridden for so many, many years, is in the Old People's Home at Goessel. Mrs. Peter Flaming, at the Bethesda Hospital in Goessel, now for 9 months, is very ill. Peter Heidebrecht, age 79, suffers greatly on account of his foot. Amputation may have to be resorted to but it is being put off as long as possible. Mrs. J. E. Ediger who had a stroke last summer is improving, though slowly. May all such affliction and suffering remind us that we are just sojourners in this world, and may they tend to draw us closer to our Lord who suffered and died for us.

—Correspondent.

MENNO MENNONITE CH., LIND, WASH.

The Menno Mennonite congregation of Lind, Wash., heartily welcomed the Rev. and Mrs. Edmund Miller on February 4, as their Pastor and Elementary Sunday School Superintendent respectively. This day marked exactly two years since our congregation has been without a pastor. Although the Sunday School, Christian Endeavors, and the Choir have carried on with their work during these years as usual, we greatly felt the need of a leader.

The Millers, who have been stationed at the Portland Mission, for the past four or five years, regreted leaving the Station, but due to Mrs. Miller's health, a change in climate was necessary. After many attempts to secure a minister during the past two years, the Millers have answered our call. We feel this has been God's plan, and hope that the climate will agree with Mrs. Miller's health.

Sunday School was held at 10:00 A.M. followed by Rev. Miller's sermon and a special number by the choir. At noon a fellowship luncheon was given in the basement of the church in honor of Rev. and Mrs. Miller. A program followed, consisting of speeches by several members of the church, a number by the Male Quartette, a vocal solo, an instrumental trio, and choruses by the children. After the program, the Millers were presented with a Grocery Shower by the church.

The church purchased a house in Lind which needed considerable remodeling, which was done during the past month by several members of the church. This will be the church parsonage.

We sincerely hope and pray that God will add his blessing to the work to be carried on in the future.

Evelyn Jantz, Correspondent.

* * *

WAYLAND MENN. CH., WAYLAND, IA., 2-12-40

A most inspirational service was enjoyed, when the Dorcas society invited all Christian women in our community to unite in the observance of "World Day of Prayer." We feel it was a great spiritual uplift, with Mrs. Sara Penner as program chairman. We followed the program which was prepared for the Day by Muriel and Doris Lester. Parts were assigned to the different groups, including ladies from the Church of God, United Brethren, Methodist and Mennonite churches. We hope this may become an annual observance.

January 28, funeral services were held for John Kauffman, at the Wayland Mennonite Church, conducted by his pastor, Rev. Wm. Penner. His quiet disposition and kindly attitude will be missed among friends and in the home. He was born May 27, 1863, and is survived by 3 sisters, Mrs. Barbara Arnold, Lizzie Kauffman and Mrs. B. W. Eicher, and one brother Peter.

Feb. 4, Rev. Penner had installation service for our newly elected deacon, Frank Rich, after which he gave us an appropriate message. —Corr.

IN MEMORIAM

RICHARD SCHIRMER, son of Joseph and Anna Schirmer Maurer, was born Sept. 20, 1870, at Wylen, Baden, Germany, and departed this earthly life Jan. 7, 1940, at 10 p. m. He attained the age of 69 years, 3 months and 18 days. In his youth he was baptised and became a member of the church at Binningen, a suburb of Basel, Switzerland.

He came to America with the family in 1888, and found work near Wichita with the Wirklers. Later he traveled through the states to the coast but returned to Kansas and located near Whitewater where he was one of the charter members of the Swiss church and was later elected to the ministry serving in that capacity for some time.

He came to Halstead in 1905 and has lived in the vicinity ever since. He joined the Halstead Mennonite church December 20, 1908, where he held his membership at the time of his death. On Nov. 16, 1902, he was joined in holy matrimony to Elizabeth Kaufman Mueller who passed to her reward Aug. 18, 1934. She had two children by her first marriage, a daughter and a son. A daughter, Frieda, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Schirmer. Later they adopted a son, Benjamin Schirmer.

He leaves to mourn his departure, one daughter, Frieda, one son, Ben, of the home; his stepdaughter Mrs. John Mosiman and family of Furley; one stepson, John Mueller, and family of Shawnee, Okla.; also three sisters, Mrs. Oscar Bangerter of Faxon, Okla., Mrs. Emelie Regier of Elbing, and Miss Mary Schirmer of Farmington, N. M.

Rev. D. C. Wedel, his pastor, officiated at the funeral services.

* * *

MRS. AGUSTA EVELYN PENNER, daughter of Henry S. Schroeder and Sarah Flaming Schroeder, was born August 20, 1910, at Hillsboro, Kans., and departed this earthly life January 20, 1940, at Halstead, Kans., having attained the age of 29 years and 5 months. In her youth she resided with her parents near Hillsboro where she grew to womanhood, and was baptized upon her confession of faith by the Rev. John Plenert and received into the membership of the Johannestal Mennonite church.

On August 20, 1928, she was joined in holy matrimony to John Penner of Halstead. She was a faithful companion and a kind, sympathetic mother to her children.

She leaves to mourn her early departure her husband, John Penner, and seven children in the home, Evelyn, Vernon, John, Frank, Laurence, Lucille and Max. She precedes her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schroeder of Newton, three sisters, Mrs. Marvin Franz, Martha and Hilda Schroeder of the home; and four brothers, Menno of Sedgwick, Peter of Newton, Leonard of Stockton, Calif., and Arlo of the home. Also he grandmother, Mrs. P. S. Schroeder, of Hillsboro, her father-in-law, Frank Penner, and many uncles, aunts, close relatives and friends, who mourn her seemingly untimely departure.

Rev. D. C. Wedel, her pastor, conducted the funeral service, and she was laid to rest in the Halstead Cemetery.

* * *

MRS. MICHAEL EICHER, daughter of Karl and Philipena Laurer, was born in the Rheinpfalz, Bavaria, Germany, on September 23, 1844. It was there that she received her early education and training. In 1867, she emigrated to America and came to Summerfield, Illinois, where she started to do domestic work.—On February 1, 1868, she was united in marriage with Michael Eicher. This union was blessed with one son and one daughter. Her husband passed away on April 29, 1896, and for almost 45 years she was a widow and lived with her children on a farm near Summerfield.

About two and one-half years ago, she had a fall in which she injured herself, so that she could no longer walk and was bedfast most of the time. She gradually became weaker from the infirmities of old age and passed away on January 17, at the age of 95 years, 3 months, and 24 days.—She leaves to mourn her departure one son and one daughter, one stepdaughter, some nephews and nieces and many other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the Evangelical church in Summerfield and were conducted by Rev. Elmer Basinger. Interment was made in the Summerfield cemetery.

* * *

MRS. JOHN HIRSTEIN, daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth Baer, was born near Troy, Madison County, Illinois. on December 27, 1856. On March 29, 1872, she was baptized by Rev. Jacob E. Krehbiel, and received into the fellowship of the First Mennonite church of Summerfield, Ill., of which she remained a faithful and active member until her death.—On February 25, 1883, she was joined in the bonds of holy matrimony with John Hirstein. This union was blessed with eight children, four of whom preceded her in death.

After a brief illness, she passed away at her home n Summerfield on January 24, 1940, at the age of 83 years and 27 days. She was permitted to share ife's joys and sorrows with her husband for nearly 57 years.—She leaves to mourn her departure her deeply bereft husband, one daughter and three sons, nine grand-children, three great-grand children. She s also survived by two brothers, many nieces and nephews besides many other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held from the Mennonite hurch on Friday, January 26, and were in charge of the pastor of the church. Interment was made in the Summerfield cemetery.

« « JOTTINGS » »

—A Word From Ed. E. Liechty, Editor "The Berne Witness", Berne, Ind.: "Really enjoy The Mennonite, and to my mind it is better—more alive—than at any time since I began reading it years ago. Good work!" —In this connection WE WISH TO MAKE THIS CONFESSION: In a recent Jotting in The Mennonite, with reference to Wheaton College, this quotation alone was from the Witness: "Announcement was made that Dr. ------ has been removed as president by the Board of Trustees and Dr. ------ named as his successor." Here the quotation-closed mark (") was omitted, so it looked as though the remainder was from the same source, whereas it was added by the editor. We humbly beg pardon.

—An Ommission Corrected— In last week's Jottings we complimented "the Good Sisters of the Mennonite Deaconess Home and Hospital" for placing a nice advance order for the new Hymn Book, but failed to name the location. We wish to correct this by reporting that the Sisters of the Beatrice, Nebraska, institution, did the kind deed.

—West Zion Menn. Church, Moundridge, Kans.—The churches in and near Moundridge, together with those in Hesston observed the World Day of Prayer at the West Zion Church. The morning session, beginning at 10:30, was led by Mrs. P. K. Regier. The knowledge that our group was a link in a great prayer chain encircling the globe made the morning meditation and prayer service an inspiration; a service of spiritual strength. The program prepared by Muriel Lester and Doris Lester was used. Its theme was, "In quietness and in confidence shall be your strength." A covered-dish luncheon was served at noon to over one hundred guests. Mrs. Harvey Parks was leader for the afternoon. Missionary and Mrs. W. C. Voth were guest speakers. A special offering of over $20.00 was received for the four special fields which are being supported through the World Day of Prayer.—Corr.

—Zion Menn. Church, Souderton, Pa.—"According to the resolution passed at our Annual Business Meeting Jan. 1, 1940, the church council has appointed a Building Committee which is composed of the following members: H. M. Detwiler, Chairman; Weston K. Hartzel, M. A. Kratz, Wellington Nyce, Lloyd Yoder, and E. J. Bohn, ex-officio member. The Committee according to the instructions stated in the above referred to resolution, has instructed Mr. Chas. Tally to draw specifications for the new building and procure bids which may be presented to a congregational meeting."

—Church Bulletin

—A Veteran Church and S. S. Worker is Bro. Joseph B. Bechtel of Philadelphia, where he has been active in religious service for 50 years." Mr. Bechtel came to Philadelphia, February 1, 1890, and attended the Sunday School and Church services at First Mennonite Church on Sunday, February 2, 1890. Why did he attend our Church the first Sunday while in the city? In the first place he was a Christian and accustomed to attend church. In the second place he came from the Hereford Mennonite Church, Bally, Pa., of which Rev. C. A. Van der Smissen was the pastor, and the Sunday before he left Rev. Van der Smissen gave him his Church letter, stating, "Here is your Church letter; join a church in Philadelphia, as you will be no good to us living in Philadelphia." That same week Rev. N. B. Grubb called on him and asked him to come to the First Church. Why not more of such cooperative service between our pastors?—Mr. Bechtel has been a member of our Sunday School and either taught or had an office ever since. He was elected superintendent of our S. S. in 1894 and during the fifty years has served in that capacity off and on for 14 years. He has been an active deacon of the First Church for 48 years. —Bulletin, First Church.

—Bergfelder Mennonite Church, Delft, Minn., 2-12-40.—On February 6 the Cottonwood County Ministerial Association held a meeting in the Delft Bergfelder Church. Twenty members were present. At noon dinner was served by the Ladies Mission Society of the church.—Sunday evening, Feb. 4, members of the Mt. Lake Bible School, together with the Rev. Corn. Wall, rendered an inspiring program in the Delft Church. The Bible School is showing fine progress, and the enrolment increases considerably each year.—The third Sunday in every month our Mt. Lake and Delft Bergfelder churches exchange pastors; Rev. H. H. Quiring delivers the message in Delft, and Rev. Lando Hiebert of Delft brings the message in Mt. Lake.—Last night God blessed the earth with a much needed snow and rain. We are thankful for this.

—Mrs. Abram P. Baerg, Corr.

—First Menn. Church, Allentown, Pa.—"About one hundred and thirty were present at the Eastern District Young People's Union Annual Fellowship Banquet held in Grace Church, Lansdale, last Saturday evening. Dr. Hans Evans of Kings College, Belmar, N. J., and Dr. Henry A. Fast, General Conference Field Secretary were the speakers. Dr. Fast showd three interesting films of his recent visit to the Mennonites in South America.—The Pastor has been appointed a member of the Committee on Religious Cooperation of the State Job Mobilization Organization." —Bulletin

—First Church, Upland, California. — Dr. Hans Buchinger, a young Quaker, with degrees from Berlin and Bristol, who in May was sent to this country by German Quakers to get acquainted with the American Quakers, recently gave a lecture at this church on "An Inside View of Germany." —Ch. Bulletin.

—WESTERN DIST. LOAN LIBRARY—The last two weeks were very busy weeks, with over one hundred books loaned out and about as many books coming in. Churchs and individuals from Kansas and other states appreciate the use of the library.—Reverend G. A. Linscheid and Reverend J. B. Epp have recently made valuable contributions. About 200 new English books are now coming in and will be put into circuation as soon as they can be cataloged.—

A. J. Regier, Secretary

—From Lorraine Avenue Church, Wichita, Kans.: "Our church will be on the program on K F H Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 26, 27, 28, at 6:45 A. M."

—The Bethany Church, Freeman, So. Dak. bulletin states: "At the recent annual meeting it was decided to continue the publication of our Bulletin, The Bethany Messenger, for another year, provided the necessary funds can be raised."—We hope the supporters of the church can put this across, for we would really miss this biweekly visitor which brings, besides the announcements of the church, in each issue an edifying article on some religious topic or occurance which we truly enjoy reading.

—MARRIED: at the first Menn. Church, Reedley, Calif., on Nov. 26, 1939, by the pastor, J. H. Langenwalter, Mr. Leonard Bolinder and Miss Hildegarda Lichti.—At St. John Church parsonage, Pandora, O. by Rev. D. J. Unruh, Miss Cleona Reichenbach, daughter of Mr. Henry Reichenbach, to Mr. Howard Ellis, of Lima O.

—St. John Mennonite Church, Pandora, O.—"Members of the Living Links Sunday School Class are scheduled to conduct the services at the Putnam County Home this afternoon. This is one way of making our Christian testimony effective and practical. We can keep up the monthly service at the Putnam and the Hancock County homes, as in the past years. The co-operation of our membership in maintaining this schedule will help the inmates at these homes to enjoy some services of worship and will bring a blessing to them and to you.." —Ch Bulletin

* * *

When the righteous are increased, the people rejoice; but when a wicked man beareth rule, the people sigh. Prov. 29:2.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA.

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHUCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Business Office, Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kans.
Editor .... J. R. Thierstein, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.50 .... Foreign, $2.00

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges, to J. R. THIERSTEIN, or the MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS.

REV. G. A. LINSCHEID
~~1001 EAST BROADWAY~~
NEWTON, KANSAS
JA 41
KEY 43

Temporary Order

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, FEB. 27, 1940 NUMBER 9

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

Church Discipline

P. H. Richert

Recently I was asked to write something on church discipline. Without much thought, I promised to do so.

When I sat down to write, I looked up once more article XXVII in our Ris' Confession and article 283-290 in the Methodist book on "Discipline." The article by Ris is so scriptural and excellent and comprehensive that I could not improve on it. All that would seem necessary would be that we all read it from time to time, and to impress it upon all Bible teachers and preachers to teach this difficult but necessary doctrine first to all young Christians during catechetical instruction, and repeat the importance of it to older Christians again and again, because it is so difficult, that it is one of the most neglected doctrines, neglected both in teaching and in practice.

The most neglected part of this doctrine is perhaps the first step as demanded by Jesus in Matt. 18:15—"If thy brother trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone." If he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother. Here we have both the first step and the motive taught, which motive must be to "gain the brother," to prevent him from going to hell, and not in any way to get even with him or to revenge ones self, throwing things into his face. It should be a feet-washing and not a "face washing," in love and humility.

The Methodist rules make very much of arbitration, so much so, that if a member fails to submit to arbitration, he is expelled, or if instead he enters into a lawsuit, he is expelled.

One item should perhaps be stated more clearly than it is in both regulations, namely, if a matter once has been settled, even if only between the two parties alone, it should stand, and not again be dealt with by any on as if it had not been settled.

Our church has from the beginning made more of church discipline than almost any other church. Some outsiders in the course of time have almost envied us for this. One of them said some time ago: "You have a jewel in this doctrine." May we appreciate and use it it accordingly, even if it is difficult. One of the most difficult problems in this line in our conference has been, how to discipline lodge members. The conference has found a way, namely by restricting the voting power of a church in proportion to its neglect of discipline in this, as also in other matters. In my church, lodge members are dropped from the list.

* * * * * *

GOD A WONDERFUL DELIVERER

"Call upon me in the day of trouble. I will deliver thee and thou shalt glorify me." Psalm 50:15. This is a call and a promise which gives intensified meaning to Christians in these troublous times. What privileges and what assurances are ours in God through Jesus Christ! We are not exempt from troubles. They come as sickness, sorrow, suffering, want, privation, disappointments, and adversities of all sorts, and also as private sins, "the thorns in our flesh." Are we to endure these troubles stoically, in sullen silence? No! God's Word invites us to take them to the Lord in prayer, "Call upon me in the day of trouble," and immediately adds, "I will deliver thee." What a comforting, what an assuring promise!—for God's Word is true. No matter how great the trouble, no matter who or what causes it, "I will deliver thee." No trouble is so strong and so deeply rooted that God is not able to deliver us. He may not do it after our own notion. He may not do it today, nor tomorrow, nor next month, but He will do it in His own good time. We have God's personal invitation to come to Him in trouble; we have His promise that He will deliver us from them. We all have our troubles and all we have to do is to take Him by His Word in faith and, when we are delivered, give Him the glory for it all, and tell a desperate world the great things that God has done for us. —T.

* * * * * *

THE CHURCH IN THIS HOUR OF HISTORY

What must the church do? The church must hear again the great commission of the Lord and obey it. World salvation must again grip the church as it gripped our Lord and Master. Here is the vision of great souls of history—one world—one Lord and Savior—one Kingdom of God—and one great inter-racial and international brotherhood. This idea must grip the church anew. Nothing less is involved in our Lord's last great command to His disciples. It was world business to which He sent them. Had He committed such a task to men without the promise of His continued presence and helpfulness among them, He would have been asking the impossible. His presence and promised power make possible the carrying on and the carrying out of the great program. —Selected.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

TAMINGFU EDUCATIONAL REPORT

During the summer vacation we had daily vacation Bible Schools. Mr. Li Ching Hsien was in charge of these schools. Since the country is still much disturbed by troops of both sides, and actual fighting is going on in many places, the schools did not do so well in some places, and in several villages, where in former years we used to have successful schools, the situation was so critical, that we did not dare to open these schools. The schools lasted a month or even longer. Most all of the teachers were voluntary workers without remuneration. The closing exercises that we attended gave us the impression, that very good work had been done. 278 pupils attended one whole month and 12 attended two weeks. May the seed sown spring up and bear rich fruit!

Now since September first the regular schools are running again. Our enrollment here at Tamingfu is somewhat less than what it was in spring, namely 102 instead of 158. The present city government has opened many schools, some even very close to our schools. This seems to be the main reason for a decrease in enrollment. In Lung Wang Miao where fighting has been on the daily program, and is still on, thirty pupils are attending our school. When the shooting gets too fierce they go into the dugout in the schoolyard, but they are determined to attend school. We hoped to open the Tsing Feng school, but two days before the opening, rumor of war resulted in a complete evacuation of the city.

The Kindergarten at Tamingfu is again on the way, but so far the enrollment is only 18. Some people are too busy to send children to school. Others again are too poor, especially since this awful flood. And yes, there also are those, who consider it of no value to have their children learn to read. No matter what we undertake there are great difficulties in the way; and this, it seems to me, makes life worthwhile. We must strive and overcome! Then, too, it very effectively reminds us of the fact, that the work is not ours but the Lord's. It all brings us closer to Him, and teaches us anew to trust explicitly in the Lord. In closing we covet the prayers of the saints! Faithfully yours,

H. J. and Maria Brown, Aganetha Fast, Chm.

TEMPORARY CHANGE OF ADDRESS

Having been asked to assist in mission work in Arizona our address will be as follows: (1) Up to middle of March: care of J. P. Suderman, Oraibi, Arizona; (2) after that for some weeks: Care of Mrs. A. H. Hostetler, 841 N. 2nd Ave., Upland, California. We crave the ardent prayers of all mission friends especially in connection with the protracted service among the Hopi Indians the first part of March. —G. A. Linscheid.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION MADE EFFECTIVE

through Student Organizations and Chapel

by J. S. Shultz

A college that has regular daily chapels, "Y's" gospel teams, student volunteers, and prayer meetings by students and faculty is a Christian institution: one that does not have any of these is secular or non-Christian, according to a formal definition. However, though we might accept such a statement as a starting point, we would not want to grant such deductions as: all colleges that have four chapels a week and four Christian organizations are equally Christian, or, an institution that has half as many chapels and half as many organizations is half as Christian as the first. Quantity is one measure, quality, another; the letter of a rule determines in part, the spirit, more. The number of organizations and chapel periods is one question, the effects on spiritual growth of students of these is a far more weighty issue.

Christian organizations and chapel programs should achieve at least two things on a college campus. They should offer opportunity for concentrated worship and inspiration. During certain periods young active souls should be lifted to unusual spiritual heights of praise and devotion; they should be inspired to the highest idealism; the immeasurable love of God through Christ should flood these hearts individually and in warm fellowship with others. Such lives should overflow with thanksgiving and the spirit of sacrifice and service to God and to His creation. Prayer, sacred song, scripture reading and exposition best promote such lofty spiritual experiences.

On the other hand such programs and organizations should in a sense sanctify all activities that are commonly thought of as secular. All of life is one; the most genuine joy and satisfaction of life comes only when each experience is harmonized and unified with every other. This concept is pertinent to every individual life, and to a lesser degree when life touches life in society. The difference between sacred and secular is a difference of degree, not of kind, according to Paul's statement: " . . . whatsoever you do, do all to the glory of God." When students assemble for discussions of world events or national and local politics; campus problems or girl-boy relationships, gripes and peeves over the toughness of exams or college rules and requirements; the latest joke on the city mayor or the stinging sarcasm on the ill-mooded professor—all of these experiences, if justifiable under the eyes of God, must have an effect on the spirit of man and so have spiritual significance for the individual or the group. Since the all-seeing God is concerned about us to the extent of numbering the very hairs of our head, He must equally follow our every thought, mood, and act of life. We could not escape Him if we would; to the contrary, true children of our Father rejoice to work under His watchful eye.

Publication

CORRESPONDENCE

Since New Year we have called upon practically all of the pastors of our churches in the U. S. to report their correspondents for this paper, and we are happy to state that to date we have received the addresses of 84 correspondents, representing that many churches, which is a considereably larger number than usual.

It may interest the correspondents and readers generally to know how they line up: The Eastern District is represented by 12 corrsependents, 6 males and 6 females; the Middle District, by 17, 1 male and 16 females; the Northern District by 13, 4 males and 9 females; the large Western District by 31, 11 males and 20 females; and the Pacific District by 11, 4 males and 7 females. The Middle District believes in extending the palm to the women, there being only one man among the 17 correspondents. And, if our experience furnishes a lesson, it is that ladies have generally served more faithfully than men. So it is to be hoped that the men will take the hint and improve their record.

Addressed envelopes and cards have gone out to all correspondents now listed, also a letter of instruction and suggestions. And we confidently hope that they will be heeded. Putting it briefly, both Correspondences and Jottings should comprise reports of incidents, happenings and occurences in the respective churches, things that are, if at all possible, of more than merely local interest. Correspondences should not be long. Readers say they read the shorter ones, but often skip long ones to come back to them, which may not happen.

A number of Urban churches send us their church bulletins, from which one can glean Jottings. Correspondents of rural churches without bulletins should make frequent use of the cards for Jottings, so as to be more often heard from. Above all, correspondents should not let occurences pass into history for nearly a year but, if possible, be heard from every few months.

May God bless the correspondents and their efforts that their mission through our church papers may be a blessing to us all and redound to the glory of God and His Kingdom. —The Editor.

* * *

A NAME FOR OUR NEW HYMN BOOK

The Hymn Book Committee and its Eidtors, as well as the members of the Board of Publication, feel that they would like to have many of those who are interested in this venture join us in choosing a good, meaningful name for the book, for very often a suitable name greatly helps to recommend a book.

That all who may read this may be given an opportunity to help select a suitable, attractive name, we list some of those that have been suggested and solicit others that may be still better. It has been suggested that it might be well to revamp the names of all our publications so that they might all include the word WITMARSUM or CHRISTIAN, as Witmarsum Senior S. S. Quarterly, Witmarsum Hymn Book, or Christian Intermediate S. S. Quarterly, Christian Worship Hymnal. May we hope to receive several hundred choices or suggestions. We would think this can mostly be done on postal cards. Kindly address them all to the address given below:

Here are some of the names suggested:

MENNONITE HYMN BOOK (or HYMNAL)

WITMARSUM HYMN BOOK (or HYMNAL)

(THE) CHRISTIAN HYMN BOOK

CHRISTIAN WORSHIP HYMNAL

CHRISTIAN WORSHIP AND PRAISE

SONGS (or HYMNS) OF PRAISE

THE HYMNARY or THE MENNONITE HYMNARY

THE HYMNAL or THE MENNONITE HYMNAL

TREASURY OF CHRISTIAN SONG

CHRISTIAN SONGS (or HYMNS) OF PRAISE

ADDRESS: MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS

Our Intermediate Sunday School Quarterly

The greatest art of a teacher is not to think for the pupil, but to stimulate thinking; not to relate experiences, but to create them.

This our Intermediate Sunday School Quarterly is trying to do. Of course, he wo wants to create experiences must have gone through them and must have the gift of leading others the same path. Only he who knows the way to God can lead to God. But no Sunday School teacher should consider the quarterly as his or her only source book in teaching a class. The quarterly is intended to be just a stimulus, a guide, an advisor for deeper study and more extensive preparation.

Thus for instance, Brother J. H. Langenwalter, puts forth much effort to give the teachers ideas about the historical background to the lesson, about the characters, about customs of those times, about general human characteristics, etc. Every paragraph is written with the intention of stimulating thoughts in the mind of the teachers, and if the teachers will use the quarterlies with this in view, they will greatly benefit. Quarterlies are outlines rather than textbooks; let us use them as such.

A. Warkentin, Editor.

Mennonite Bible School and Seminary

Upon invitation of the Old Witmarsum Seminary Board the six representatives of the General Conference and those of the Colleges and the Witmarsum Alumni were to meet with the Old Board on February 13 at Bluffton, Ohio. The Old Board by resolution recognized the following 14 as duly named for the Central Conference: E. Troyer, I. R. Detweiler and Allen Yoder; for the General Conference: Ed. G. Kaufman, E. W. Baumgartner, A. S. Rosenberger, L. Hostetler, P. E. Whitmer and C. E. Krehbiel; for Bluffton College, L. L. Ramseyer; for Freeman, J. D. Unruh and for Bethel, P. K. Regier; for the Witmarsum Alumni, H. T. Unruh and W. S. Shelly, and these now constitute the New Board which elected as officers: P. E. Whitmer, chairman; I. R. Detweiler, secretary, and E. W. Baumgartner, treasurer. The officers were instructed to propose any changes that may be necessary in the charter and constitution of Witmarsum, and the following were named by the officers as a Policy and Program committee: I. R. Detweiler, chairman, L. L. Ramseyer and C. E. Krehbiel. They are to explore possibilities of realizing the hope of the bodies concerned and other Mennonite bodies, of opening a Bible School and Seminary, with the Witmarsum Seminary as a nucleus, and will welcome suggestions from other institutions or individuals as to the best way of attaining this end. May the Lord guide!—C. E. K.

Itinerary and Speaking Dates of Rev. John Thiessen in Eastern C. Churches

Monday, March 4, Altoona.—Tuesday, March 5, Smith Corner.—Wednesday, March 6, Napier.—Thursday, March 7, Roaring Springs.—Friday, March 8, Mechanics Grove.—Sunday, March 10, First, Philadelphia (morning).—Sunday, Morch 10, Second, Philadelphia (evening).—March 11th to 17th, inclusive, West Swamp.—Monday, March 18, Souderton.—Tuesday, March 19, Perkasie.—Wednesday March 20, Lansdale.—Thursday, March 21, Deep Run.—Friday, March 22, Hereford.—Sunday, March 24, Schwenksville (morning).—Sunday, March 24, Quakertown (evening).—Monday, March 25, Springfield.—Tuesday, March 26, Flatland.—Wednesday, March 27, Zionsville.—Thursday, March 28, Alletown.—Friday, March 29, East Swamp.— Sunday, March 31, Bowmansville.—Monday, April 1, Richfield.

—WHICH—REVIVAL OR REVOLUTION?—This question must be decided upon by the churches of today. Most people do not want either, but the choice must be made. Revolution is already at our heels. Why not turn to Christ, and let Him REVIVE us. The devil is fighting it. Are we helping him along, by doing the same? May REVIVAL begin in ME.—East Swamp Bulletin.

I WILL BE CHRISTIAN

Dan Poling

I will be Christian. Like a crimson line running through my life, let this covenant bind me to the will and way of Jesus.

I will be Christian. My body, mind, and spirit Christ-centered, that I may learn His will; that I may walk His way; that I may win my associates; and that "in all things He might have the pre-eminence."

I will be Christian. My voice of passion in an age grown cold and cynical because of faltering faith and shrinking deeds; my answer to the Macedonian call of spiritual continents unpossessed and unexplored.

I will be Christian. In my heart, in my home, in my group, in my country-now, to help save America that America may serve the world.

I will be Christian. Through my church; agency at once human and divine, weak as man but strong as God, and through which He at last "shall reign where'er the sun does his successive journeys run."

I will be Christian. Thinking peace, studying to find and helping to perfect its machinery; recognizing no sea as a division and no language as a barrier; loving my own country first but all who love another, and knowing that patriotism which begins at home ends only in the unity of mankind.

I will be Christian. That Christianity may become as militant as Fascism; as terrible toward wrong as God's hatred of sin; as tender with the weak as His love for little children; as powerful as the prayer of the righteous, and as sacrificial as calvary's cross.

I will be Christian.

GOD'S WORDS

On a recent Sunday morning, a visiting minister was asked to pray. In his prayer, he asked God to help the congregation to realize that the sermon was not a man's own efforts, but God speaking through him.

Attending church all my life, I knew that, and yet it came to me afresh, like a shock.

How we fuss about sermons! Or sit, letting our thoughts wander where they will! All the time we may be missing something God especially wanted us to hear and think about.

We are just like children going to school. They complain about having the same old lessons day after day. Probably the ones who talk the loudest are the ones who need these lessons most.

We know well that the most valuable things in this world cost the most. Yet we hope to gain heaven by being "entertained."

Let us listen carefully for what God may be trying to tell us, and have respect for a man who is willing to be God's mouthpiece.

SERMON SKETCH

OUR DUTY TO THE CHURCH

by John S. Raugh

Text: Acts 2:42: "And they continued steadfast."

At the outset we call attention to the first church and its workers, both the Apostles and he people, setting their minds on things above, things eternal. Above everything the leaders of the first church thought of the eternal welfare of the souls of men. The head of the Church then, as now, was CHRIST, and from Heaven, by his Spirit he directed the work.

The Church we are told is "the Assembly of the Saints," Ps. 89:7; "the Body of Christ," 1 Cor. 12:27; "the Flock of God," 1 Peter 5:2; "the Bride of Christ," Rev. 22:17. Therefore it is little wonder that He would give himself for her, and that those devoted to Him would also yield their bodies a living sacrifice. Christ's love for the Church is of such a degree that he gave His life for her. The apostles and many others not only died for her but gave of their strength, while in this life, forgetting all else. Striving for the perfection of the church, they gave their lives rather than see her fail.

The Church has a divine commission, and surely, if we would be true to her, we too must have some sense of divine duty, and that duty is clearly stated in the Word: "Go ye into all the world," Matt. 28:19; "to give Spiritual enlightment," Isa. 2:3; to witness for Christ, Acts 1:8. The true Church is pure and holy, Eph. 5:27; the true Church shall not pass away, Matt. 16:18. The glorious hope of the Church is, or should be, the hope of each individual. Henceforth there is laid up for ME a crown of righteousness, 2 Tim. 4:8. In view of the forgoing I am forced to wonder why there are so many broken vows, so much of making excuses, and so much of putting FIRST things second, third, or when and where it suits. This is sad, and is not as it should be.

There cannot be all preachers or all hearers, there must be both, and each individual is responsible for fitting himself into his own place. There are talents for all, and a place for all talents. Some think that the church could and should be run without money. (This thought is in response to their loving money more than the church), but never has one that I know of offered to run it that way or offered to show us how it can be done. Some think it not necessary to attend the meetings regularly, this is the product of natural thinking, not spiritual.

Our duty is, to support the Church with our PRAYERS, PRESENCE and FINANCES, always remembering that service rendered in this way is rendered to Christ, and he will not forget his faithful ones, nor will he forget those that are not faithful, he will remember those also but in a different way.—Let's take these things as serious as they are.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

March 10, 1940

GETHSEMANE: TRIUMPH THROUGH SURRENDER

Matthew 26:36-46

Introduction

Jesus and his disciples ended the memorable Passover meal with the singing of a hymn and then went out to the mount of Olives (v30) and into the garden. Our lesson subject is unusually challenging and may seem to be a paradox. It however conveys a great truth, well illustrated by the experience of Jesus in Gethsemane. In human, earthly warfare the defeated army surrenders and the victor dictates the terms. In the spiritual realm it is necessary for us to surrender to our divine Lord if we would attain victory in soul and life. The greatness of triumph depends upon the fullness of surrender.

Jesus' Soul Extremely Sorrowful vs 36-38

It was late in the night, all was quiet in the city as the small group came to Gethsemane. Jesus was deeply absorbed in thought and troubled in heart and was eager to speak with the Father in prayer (v36). Jesus prayed much and particularly in the crisis hours of his life. How greatly we need to do as He did. He took the three disciples who seemed to understand Him better than the others did, a little farther into the garden. As He came nearer to the time of his betrayal and the agony of being rejected by his own people, He longed for companionship and symapthy. Sorrow of soul, even unto death, overtook Him. He was almost crushed by the weight of man's sins. The faithlessness of man almost broke His heart (L. 22:44). He asked the three to watch (pray) with Him.

Jesus Prays, the Disciples Sleep vs 39-46

Jesus, alone with the Father, prostrated Himself and prayed in an awful agony of soul sorrow and intensity of desire (L. 22:41). He experienced an intense struggle. The gall-like bitterness of the cup seemed too much for a moment, and He must speak to the Father. In His bitterest anguish of soul, Jesus was fully submissive to the Father's will. However revolting the Cross may be in itself, yet if it is the Father's will that He drink the cup, Jesus was willing (v 39, 42). The disciples slept while Jesus agonized in prayer. They failed Him in his deepest sorrow. We too fail Him at times when we should be watching (praying). Jesus rebuked and warned them (vs 40, 41). We need so much to heed this warning. A second and a third time Jesus withdrew to pray. Not until He had prayed the third time, was the inner struggle ended and his heart calm. God strengthened Him. Jesus won a triumph through surrender. Sincere prayer always receives an answer from God.

When Jesus returned to the disciples the last time, He no longer needed their sympathetic watching with Him. The victory was won, the hour of betrayal was at hand and they could sleep now (v 45). We need to watch lest we sleep while we should be of use to the Lord. Jesus was ready to go and meet the betrayer with a calm and unafraid heart.

Triumph Through Surrender

Surrender to God is necessary. He is our Creator and Lord and has a right to direct our lives. Jesus recognized this right. We must needs have faith in His righteousness and goodness, must recognize His claim upon us and yield to Him our all, if we would receive the spiritual blessings God would gladly give to us. Our failure to surrender indicates that we place some other good ahead of God. It implies that we do not fully trust His promises and goodness.

Surrender to God seems difficult sometimes. When it may mean sacrifice or perhaps hardship, it will mean a struggle. Jesus is our great example. It was not easy for Him to meekly go to the Cross, yet He could say, "Not my will, but thine be done."

Surrender to God is glorious in its results. It assures us of His favor and help along the path of duty. Jesus' surrender meant the carrying out of God's plan of redemption. It meant glorious and eternal honor to Him. It is glorious to all followers of Christ.

RELIEF NOTES

(Compiled by O. O. Miller and Abram Warkentin)

The Mennonite Central Committee Treasurer submitted to the December 30, meeting of its Executive Committee his financial reports covering the period from August 23, 1938 to December 1, 1939. Mennonite Central Committee Balance Sheet as of December 1, is as follows:

Assets

Cash	$ 729.42
Loans Receivable	320.35
Stocks (Corp. Paraguay Purchase)	57,500.00
Adv. to European War Sufferers' Fund	842.43
Para. Fernheim Debt to Menn. Cen. Com.	170,377.87
	$229,770.07

Liabilities

Loans Payable (acc't Corp. Para. purch.)	$ 51,150.00
Funds	7,146.34
Menn. Central Comm. Capital Account	171,473.73
	$229,770.07

During this period the treasurer received from cooperating relief organizations $2392.67. The net amount received from Paraguay for land purchase by the Mennonite Immigrants $2419.72. Cash payments from Paraguay to apply on colonists' debts $4356.00. According to the Mennonite Central Committee plan at time of Paraguay land purchase, the net income from Paraguay is to be used to pay interest on loans made on account of the purchase and to liquidate same. It was felt that this loan could be liquidated over a period of not more than fifteen years. So far the program has developed according to this schedule.

December 4 correspondence from Relief Commissioner, M. C. Lehman from Ingolstadt, Helmsberg, Germany advised that his program for investigating relief needs in German-controlled territory was working out according to schedule. Benj. Unruh planned to join him the day following for the further trip to Berlin and Poland. Jan. 2 cable from Berlin, Germany, received as follows: "Negotiations for relief proceedings. Await definite communications after New Year. Unruh-Lehman." Later Jan. 4 cables were received from Lehman at Budapest, Hungary, informing the committee that Yankee Clipper letter from Berlin would advise full developments in the Lehman-Unruh investigations to date, and that Lehman was temporarily engaged in work in Budapest. The Committee will await receipt of the letter referred to before going forward with plans for sending the second Commissioner to this area.

The appointment of Amos Swartzentruber, 17 Pandora Ave., Kitchener, Ont. as Relief Commissioner to the Allied area was confirmed at the Dec. 30 Executive Committee Meeting. Brother Swartzentruber has arranged to sail for Liverpool, England, from New York on Jan. 13 and is due to arrive in London about Jan. 20. Mennonite workers in Spain, Lester Hershey and Ernest Bennet, are arranging to join him there. The first task of this group will be to arrange relief distribution of clothing and monies being forwarded from Canada following which they are to look into relief needs in France and also ascertain for the groups interested, what further needs and opportunities there may be in Spain. Brother Swartzentruber plans to stay on the field for a period of three to four months.

Recent correspondence from Paraguay indicated that 1939 harvests were below normal. This fact, with an unfavorable exchange rate and lower cotton prices, helped to prevent the Colony from meeting its full schedule of payments to the Mennonite Central Committee's Agent in Paraguay, gave assurance, however, that barring entirely unforeseen difficulties in the coming year, the full payments would be met then. Most recent letters indicated that rains necessary for the coming crop came early. Because of the discontinuance of Relief help from Germany to Colony hospital and school enterprises, the Mennonite Central Committee has decided to do what it can in helping the Colony meet the problems created by this. The Committee's principal concern is that the Colony's hospital and medical facilities be continued and has granted the Colony $500.00 during the coming year for this purpose. A recent letter from one of the Colony preacher-teachers indicates the thankful feeling on their part for their M. C. C. relationship: "We very much appreciate what the M. C. C. has done and accomplished for us poor refugees during our great need. As the bloody hand of Communism reached for us, the Committee was there to help. This help from God and His children we dare not forget. The terror from Communism is terrible as those will know who have experienced contacts with it as our people did. Dear Brethren, God will fully reward you for what you have done."

Notice Earlier Date of Bible Conference

The third annual Christian Bible Conference will be held at Newton, Kansas, April 14 through 21. Dr. Herbert Lockyer of London, England, will be the main speaker. Dr. Lockyer comes to us highly recommended as a Bible Expositor and Evangelist.

Dr. A. H. Unruh of Winkler, Manitoba, will again conduct morning services, Monday through Friday.

Let us pray that the name of God might be glorified.

—The Committee.

CORRESPONDENCE

ZION MENN. CH., ELBING, KANS., 2-20-40

At its annual election, our church entrusted me with the duty of correspondent for the year of 1940.

In a letter which I received from the Editor a few days ago, he calls this work a part of the missionary work of the church. He also asks his correspondents to share our joys and sorrows with the other readers of the Mennonite that all may receive a blessing. For, even though we must report sorrows, we may receive a blessing.

On January 28, we witnessed an unusual baptismal service. On that day, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Regier were baptized upon their confession of faith. We thank the Lord, that through the Holy Spirit He will not let his own go to wander by themselves, but follow them and finally bring them into the fold. This young couple, whose daughter is four years old, had repeatedly felt the urge to confess the Lord, but held back to make the decision. Finally the Holy Spirit was victor and we as Church rejoice.

As background for his sermon our pastor the Rev. H. J. Dyck related the story of Jacob arguing with the Lord, and of the great persuasive power of our Lord Jesus.—At the same service Mrs. Frank N. Epp, who was formerly a member at Hoffnungsau, was received into the church by letter and the following Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Henry Warkentin, now living in Peabody, were also received into the church by letter.

We welcome each and everyone of these and hope others may be inspired to do likewise.

—Oswald Klassen, Corr.

ALBERTA COM. MENN. CH., PORTLAND, ORE.

2-10-40

On January 23, Rev. Ed. Miller, faithful pastor of this congregation since October 1, 1937, preached his farewell sermons. During the morning worship, Rev. Miller baptized a fine young man, Paul Roller, thus bringing the total membership of our congregation to 40.

For years it has been the aim to bring our S. S. attendance up to 100 or more. The presence of 19 visitors brought the number up to 103 on the last Sunday Rev. and Mrs. Miller were among us. This served as a fine climax to over two years of hard work by the Millers.

On Monday, Jan. 29, the church members held a pot luck supper in the basement of the church and then had an informal farewell program for the Millers. Many were the expressions of appreciation for their work. It will be hard to find a successor who will be able to preach Sunday after Sunday such heart-searching, practical, spiritual sermons as those we have enjoyed during Rev. Miller's pastorate. He always stuck to his subject and carried us with him step by step. I would like to see some of Brother Miller's sermons published in the MENNONITE, at least in outline. Our loss is the gain of the Menno Church, at Lind, Washington, their new post of service.

On Wednesday, Jan. 31, all the earthly possessions of the Millers were loaded on two large trucks driven by Walt Waltner and Joe Jantz of the Menno Church, Rev. and Mrs. Miller riding in the cabs of the trucks with the drivers. It was a long, weary journey which did not end until 2:00 o'clock Thursday morning. Before they reached Washington the truckdrivers were stopped and questioned about their permits to haul furniture in Oregon. Only the fact that they were moving a poor preacher and his wife with their furniture, and had the owners actually with them, saved the drivers from a heavy fine. We wish the Millers God's richest blessing in their new field of labor.

Our little congregation is now looking for a pastor who can hold the members and enlarge the work by winning others in this community. Several prospective pastors have preached trial sermons. Brother John Bartel of Mountain Lake, Minn., has preached for us a couple of times. Our church council will be glad to consider applications of qualified ministers. All applications should be addressed to Rev. S. S. Baumgartner, 3425 S. E. Grant St., Portland, Oregon, who is a member of the council as well as of the Home Mission Board which has the most to say in making a choice, since this work is to a large extent supported by the Home Mission Board and the Pacific District Conference. F. J. Wiens, Corr.

"The blood of Jesus cleanseth us from all sins."

GRACE MENN. CH., DALLAS, ORE.

We had a very happy time here January 28. After the morning services we had baptismal services. Eighteen young people, aged 11 to 20, were baptized by sprinkling. Eight were received into the church upon their confession of faith. Then in the afternoon, in the Christian Church, five were baptized by immersion. Now our membership has reached 130. Since Brother Leisy has come to Dallas we have received 76 new members. Truly the Lord is working through our new servant.

Feb. 8, in the evening Rev. Bartel from Minnesota was in our church. Those present all received a spiritual blessnig.—Sunday evening, Feb. 11, Missionary Alexander Dodds from Africa told some very interesting things. How happy we should all be to live in a civilized country, where we can worship our dear Lord as we want to.

On Wednesday evening of each week we have orchestra and male chorus practice. It is wonderful how many take part. On Thursday evenings we have our prayer meetings and Bible Study. Our pastor has also started a Teacher's Training Class. There is a good turn-out every evening. That shows that the people really are hungry for the Word of God.

The weather has been very wet here this month. We are all looking for spring. It will soon be March and then we should surely have nice weather.

Mrs. Leonard Schmidt, Corr.

* * *

FIRST MENNONITE CH., BEATRICE, NEBR.

Our church held its annual business meeting, Jan. 9. Elder Franz Albrecht has asked for a year's leave of absence, due to impaired health.—Rev. J. B. Epp, who has made his home here and occupied the pulpit occasionally, has gone to Kansas to interview friends, and may go to Kansas City to assist with a Bible School there.—Rev. Jacob Wiebe, from the Second Mennonite Church, conducted the morning services here, Feb. 18. The church is looking forward to the time when Rev. Walter H. Dyck will be here to serve the church.

Although the membership had increased the passed year, two members, Mrs. Helene Zimmerman and Marie Claassen, have passed into eternity.—Our hospital has been very busy with a large number of influenza cases during the holiday season. Church attendance has been smaller this year, due to sickness and drifted roads. The month of January has been exceptionally cold with much snow.—We have enjoyed the visits from several missionaries, their pictures and reports from their respective fields of work. Dr. E. L. Harshbarger's pictures and address from his trip abroad was real interesting. A number of members of the different churches of Beatrice and vicinity, gathered at the Second Mennonite Church, in the afternoon of February 9th, to observe World's Day of Prayer. E. H. T., Corr.

ALEXANDERWOHL CH., Near GOESSEL, KANS.

Our church held its annual business meeting, Dec. 28, 1939. Reports were given and discussed and officers were elected. At noon all enjoyed the lunch which had been prepared in the basement of the church. Due to snow and cold weather the meeting was not as well attended as usually. This year we have a real cold winter with much snow, but we have been privileged to hold services every Sunday except on Jan. 7 and on Feb. 18, when services were called off on account of snow-drifted roads. Every Wednesday night, Rev. P. H. Unruh conducts Bible study at the church, the book of Hebrews being studied. A large number of young people have enrolled in the catechism class which is taught every Sunday during the S. S. period by Rev. Unruh.

The three churches, Tabor, Goessel and Alexanderwohl are carrying on a training class for S. S. teachers and workers. It meets at the Goessel High School every Thursday night. The book "New Training for Service," by J. C. Sharp is being used. It is a splendid book. Each lesson contains several questions and some points in Christian pedagogy. The second part of the evening is spent in discussing the S. S. lesson for the coming Sunday. Here the students may attend either the group which discusses the lesson for adult classes or the group which studies the presentation and discussion of the lesson for children's classes. As a whole, I think, this arrangement is of great help to all S. S. teachers.

During the month of January we were saddened by the passing away of three of our church members. Their call to the eternal home reminded us of the words of the Psalmist when he says: "So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom." On Jan. 1st, took place the funeral for Mrs. P. A. Schmidt. Funeral services for Mrs. P. P. Klassen who died at the Bethesda Hospital on Jan. 5, were held Jan. 10. Quite unexpectedly my dear aunt, Mrs. J. B. Unrau, suffered a stroke and died on Jan. 8 Funeral services for her were held on Jan. 12. Her facial expression, as we saw her last, was one of peace and contentment. All three of these dear mothers will be greatly missed in their respective family circles and in the church.

—Katie Wedel, Corr.

— The Vine Press.—Vol. III, No V. of this splendid little paper, put out by the Young People of the Middle District has just reached us. It is a very creditable number and reflects very favorably on its editor, Mr. Gordon M. Liechty, Berne, Indiana. Among the items and articles are a beautiful poem, "Over There" by Paul Rader; "Review of the Swift Current Saskatchewan, Bible School Dormitory Project," "A Brief History of the Beginnings of Missions among the Indians and Extension of the Work into India and China."

R. Weinbrenner
Editor
Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen
Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers
Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

Three Reasons for Attending Bethel

by Carl Claassen

(Carl Claassen is a brother of Paul Claassen now studying at Bethel and of Dorothy Claassen formerly a student at Bethel and now completing her nurse's training at Wesleyan Hospital, Wichita, Kansas)

The first reason why I want to attend Bethel is that I will have the opportunity to become acquainted with other young folks who are of the same faith and who have been taught the same religious doctrines and principles as I have. Surrounded by such an environment, I believe that these principles would keep growing and become more firmly established within me. At all times and especially now during wars and unrest, these principles should be a very part of us.

A Bethel professor once told me that this one reason should be enough to make young Mennonites want to attend Bethel.

Secondly, I will have access to a course that trains the spiritual body. In few schools may one have this opportunity. Since the soul is the eternal part of our body, it is vitally important that it receive the proper care and training. At Bethel I will be able to receive training for both the soul and for a future occupation.

The third reason is that I will be supporting our church school. Since it is our school, it is important that we support it, not only with our prayers and financial aid, but also by attending it.

It is my sincere wish that those people who have loyally supported Bethel will, by observing the work of Bethel alumni and future Bethel alumni, be richly repaid for their efforts.

News from China

College of Chinese Studies
Peking, China

Dear Friends:

Ever since two months ago when we arrived in China, we have been busy catching up with the class of students who started their work here in the language school during the first week of October.

Even though we have been busy, to the extent that we did not even get one day of vacation, excepting Christmas Day and New Year's Day, we do have time to hear, see, and do, or experience many things which we would enjoy sharing with you, if that were possible. Each day brings new developments, new understandings, or new problems and questions unsolved and unanswered in one's mind. Every person you speak to here corroborates the idea that this is a mighty interesting time to be in China.

Not only is this an interesting time to be here, but it is a most opportune time to do mission work, to bring the message of Jesus Christ to the people who do not know him. Among all classes of the people there seems to be a growing scepticism of the old in their religious life as in social economic fields. I do not mean to give the impression that this is anything like a definite mass movement or anything like the feeling of the majority, for some of the people think all that is necessary is to accept Western scientific methods in industry, and others of course are propounding a return to the ways of the sages of old China. But many are turning to Christ for help in their troubles for personal salvation and victory and to the Christian way of life.

Frieda and Marvin Dirks

This and That

The First Church C. E. Phila., recently conducted a service at the Seamen's Institute in downtown Philadelphia near the waterfront. Rev. Horace duBois and Rev. John Plenert spoke briefly. Members of the society contributed to the program with musical numbers. As usual these services were well attended. Members also distributed the Gospel of John to those living in the neighborhood of the First Church. (Note: This suggests possibilities of spreading the Gospel by other societies, regardless of where they may be located.)

February 4th marked the 59th birthday of the Y. P. Christian Endeavor Society of the Hereford Church. Four of the young folks reviewed the growth of the C. E. movement generally, while Dr. Johnson, the Pastor recalled to mind the past history of the local organization. Fifty-nine years is quite an age; we are wondering if there are many Mennonite organizations that can equal this span of existence.

James Downing, the popular and lovable manager of the University Camp (E. D. Retreat Grounds), will speak on "Race Relations" at a regular meeting in the near future.

Have You Seen 1939 Retreat Pictures?

All Western District Young People—and parents, too—should see the Camp Wood Moving Pictures. Make arrangements to have them shown in your community. Only week nights before April 1st remain open. So write immediately to Walter H. Dyck, Sec. Retreat Committee, Burrton, Kansas.

(It is a distinct pleasure and a great help to have material come in as it lately has come in. The young people's representatives of the various districts are to see to it that their districts send in news items, articles etc. Thus far John Fretz of the Eastern District has been most faithful in this. The representatives of the Western and Pacific districts have also facilitated this work. We are waiting for contributions from the Middle and Northern districts and from Canada.)

Senior Department

Introducing Friends to Christ

Senior C. E. Topic for March 17, 1940

MAIN TOPIC: "INTRODUCE YOUR FRIENDS TO CHRIST". Jn. 1:35-46

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "There's not a friend like the lowly Jesus", "What a friend we have in Jesus", "I would be true, for there are those who trust me."
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer.
3. Special music—several numbers
4. Offering for mission project, while a quartet sings, "Send the light".

II. Leaders Introduction

Friendship is one of the finest and greatest things that come to anyone. To be able to confide in some one, to trust some one, and feel secure in his understandings—how much that means. To be a real friend one must help enlarge the vision, the outlook of those one befriends. One must desire to enrich and beautify their lives. How could this be done better than by introducing them to Christ. Andrew did this for his brother Peter, and the way Philip introduced Nathanael to come and meet Jesus is most interesting. To bring our friends to "see Jesus" is the most valuable thing we can do for them. Young people make most of their friendships with others who have common interests. These interest ties become even stronger than those of home and tend to bind them together closely and in varying intensity. These friendships, formed about interests, have a lasting effect upon character. Their greatness or shallowness quite often determines the character of the individual. In the work of Christ young people meet one another at their very best, and together they give their best. Here, as a great family, they will grow Christlike.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. John points his friend to Christ. Jn. 2:31-39.
2. A transformed servant. Phil. 1:8-21.
3. A heathen won by kindness. 2 Kings 5:14-19.
4. One whom Christ won. Lk. 5:27-32.

IV For Discussion

1. What qualities of character do you want your best friend to have? 2. In what ways can we make our friends eager to become better acquainted with Christ? 3. Whose life has helped you to know Christ better, and to follow Him more closely?

V. Facts for Study

A man once tumbled into a muddy pit and injured himself, spraining an ankle and breaking his wrist. In his crippled condition it was impossible for him to clamber out again; so he shouted for help. After a time a superior citizen came by. "How did you happen to fall in there?" he asked, staring down into the pit disapprovingly. "Didn't you know it was dangerous? You have been very careless."

The superior citizen found a rope and lowered it down from the top. "Take hold of the rope," he instructed, "and I will help pull you out." The unfortunate man at the bottom tried bravely, but his injuries made the effort impossible. "Since you can't do any better," called down the man at the top, "you'll just have to stay there. I don't want to get down into the mud with you."

Fortunately a friend of the injured man happened by. He asked no questions and made no suggestions or criticisms. He hurried to the nearest house, borrowed a ladder, and then climbed down into the pit. He lifted the unfortunate man out of the mud, supported him on his shoulders, and raised him out of the pit.

Jesus always saw the man behind any garb he might wear, or work he might follow, and knew that he was precious to God. He forgave men the obstacles which they did not control and tried to remove them. We likewise have our responsibility for improving the social conditions of our day, seeing children of God in our unlikely neighbor, and doing our part in helping him find God.

VI. Illustration

Works For the Love of Christ

A gentleman visiting one of the hospitals for lepers in India, and wishing to test the nurse on duty, said, "You must have a great deal of enthusiasm for humanity to labor here among those awful cases of disease."

"Enthusiasm for humanity, indeed!" replied the nurse. "That would not keep me here a week; but I do possess some of the compassion of the Lord Jesus Christ, and that is the reason why I am content to live and labor among such surroundings."

It is the love of Christ that is the motive of all true service for God. We love lepers because he first loved us.

VII. Food for Thought

"I worked for men," my Lord will say,
As we meet at the end of the King's highway.
"I walked with the beggar along the road,
I helped the bondsman stung by the goad,
I bore my half of the porter's load.
And what did you?" my Lord will say,
"As you traveled along the King's highway?"
"I showed men God," my Lord will say,
"As I traveled along the King's highway;
I eased the troubled doubter's mind;
I helped the blighted to be resigned;
And I showed the sky to souls grown blind.
And what did you?" my Lord will say,
As we meet at the end of the King's highway.

"The flatterer's object is to please in everything he does; whereas the true friend always does what is right, often giving pleasure, often pains, not wishing the latter, but not shunning it either, if he deems it best." —Plutarch

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

IF HE ENTERED MY TOWN

Intermediate C. E. Topic for March 17, 1940

For Daily Reading:

Mar. 11. Urged to depart. Matt. 8:28-34.
Mar. 12. Unwelcome as a guest. Luke 9:51-56.
Mar. 13. Privileged cities rebuked. Matt. 11:20-24.
Mar. 14. In a publican's house. Luke 5:27-32.
Mar. 15. In the Bethany home. Luke 10:38-42.
Mar. 17. Topic. Luke 4:16-30; 13;34, 35; 19:41-44.

Opening Hymn "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee" (Read each verse in unison first).

Scripture Reading: Luke 4:16-30; 13:34, 35; 19:41-44.

Daily Readings:

1. The rejection of Christ
   a. Matt. 8:28-34
   b. Luke 9:51-56
2. The rebuke upon those who rejected him
   a. Matt. 11:20-24
3. The welcome to Christ
   a. Luke 5:27-32
   b. Luke 10:38-42

Hymn: "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me"

Discussions:

1. Our individual reception of Christ.

a. Suppose Christ were to appear before you as he appeared before the people of Nazareth, how would I receive Him?

b. Would I be eager to take Christ into my home or are there certain conditions there of which I would be ashamed?

c. Would I be happy to introduce Christ to my friends?

d. Would I gladly take Christ with me to the places I frequent?

2. The town's reception of Christ.

a. Would the churches of our community be ready to have Christ as a worshipper?

b. Would our Intermediate Christian Endeavor service be such as to honor Christ if he should come in?

c. What changes do you think would have to take place in the politics of your community if Christ should enter your town?

d. If Christ should enter your town would there be a friendlier relationship between those of different races?

e. Is there any phase of our lives that would not need changing if Christ should enter our towns and communities?

3. What can we do to make our town and community a place in which Christ would feel at home.

Let the Intermediates make suggestions as to what they think should be done.

Poem. Your Place

Is your place a small place?
Tend it with care!
He set you there.

Is your place a large place?
Guard it with care!
He set you there.

Whate'er your place, it is
Not yours alone, but His
That set you there.
—John Oxenham, F. H. Revell, Co. 1933.

Song, "Trust and Obey"
Offering
Mizpah Benediction.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Program for March 17, 1940
(Palm Sunday)

JESUS' "I AM'S"

"Behold, Thy King Cometh," John 12:15.

I. Worship Period.

1. Prelude—"Coronation"
2. Call to worship: "Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion; shout, O daughter of Jerusalem: behold, thy King cometh unto thee: He is just, and having salvation." Zechariah 9:9a.
3. Song in unison, "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name."—Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 128, v. 1, 4, 5, 6.
4. Scripture Reading, Luke 19:28-40; Phil. 2:9-11, by a Junior boy.
5. Leader's opening prayer.
6. Song in unison,—"Hosanna! Loud Hosanna!—Mennonite Hymn Book No. 97. Stand to sing.
7. Poem, by a Junior girl

"The Coming of the King"

"He came—a King from Glory;
He left His heavenly throne,
Where angel hosts attend—
Such splendors ne'er were known.

Earth's richest king ne'er boasted
Such wealth as He could claim,
Yet down to earth in human form—
Incarnate God—He came.

* *

His coming brought salvation
From sin and endless woe;
Redemption's plan was finished
When Calvary's stream did flow.

He came—and we adore Him
His praises gladly sing,
And bowing low, we worship
Our Savior, Lord and King."
—Florence Huntington Jensen.

8. Pianist plays melody of "O Worship the King," softly, while Juniors read the words of verses 1, 2, 5. Then sing verse one in unison.

II. Study Period.

Aim: To help our Juniors desire to make Jesus their King. To arouse a sense of deeper devotion and loyalty to this "King."

2. A few words of introduction. "We are now studying Jesus! "I am's." Words that help us to know who and what Jesus is for us all. I can not find that Jesus said, "I am King" but when Pilate asked Him, "Art Thou the King of the Jews?" Jesus answered, (let us all read His answer, John 18:36), Pilate again said, "Art Thou a King then?" And Jesus' answer was, "Thou sayest that I am a King." In the story we have today we find that Jesus claimed to be King. He is King.

3. Discussion by four Junior boys.

"Jesus claimed to be King"

a. He has authority, Matt. 21:3.

b. He accepted the acclaim of the people, Matt.

21:9, Luke 19:38.

c. He makes a royal entry into the City: Luke 19:38-40.

d. He exercises Kingly authority, Matt. 21:12-14.

4. Duet, "Jesus Shall Reign"—Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 323.

5. Talk by an older person. "Jesus' kingdom not of this world." John 18:36.

6. Talk by a Junior girl: He shall reign forever and ever. Rev. 11:15.

7. Poem: by a Junior girl.

"Hail to the King, who is coming to reign
Glory to Jesus, the Lamb that was slain,
Life and salvation, His empire shall bring,
Joy to the nations when Jesus is King.

Kingdom of Christ, for Thy coming we pray;
Hasten, O Father, the dawn of the day
When this new song, Thy creation shall sing:
Satan is vanquished, for Jesus is King."—Selected.

8. Leader's Heart-talk.

Is He your King? Not unless you crown Him King in your hearts, put all your possessions at His disposal, obey Him and sing His praises. Those who make Him the King of their lives are full of joy always.

III. Mission Minutes

Find answers to the following questions.

1. Who was our first missionary?
2. Where were the first mission stations?
3. What living missionary has served longest? Where?
4. Who are the medical missionaries? (You know of course, that we are talking about the mission work and the missionaries of the General Conference. Our very own, the ones that we pray for and give for.

IV. Closing Moments.

1. Sing song for the month, "Jesus, the Very Thought of Thee."
2. A few minutes of silent prayer followed by the leader's closing prayer.
3. Sing twice,—"Into My Heart."

IS POLAND "TO REMAIN THE HOME OF THE JEWS"?—Recently pamphlets issued by the Polish government-in-exile in France, by the Polish embassies in Rome and in Vatican City, have charged Germany with a campaign of mass extermination against the Poles and with a long series of persecutions, with such outrages as shooting priests, sterilizing Polish children, torturing Jews or executing students by the thousands," etc. In an interview with 150 press correspondents Hans Frank, governor-general of the German occupied territory of Poland, said: "Such fantastic accusations can make a philosopher smile." Continuing he stated: "Germany is at war, fighting for its existence. So it is not to be supposed that the Reich could extend liberties to the Poles greater than those enjoyed by the populations of England, France or Germany. But those who assail me from abroad should know—there is no hunger here, there is not any rationing of bread as in Germany itself. They should know there is not a single concentration camp in all Poland." His government was not persecuting the Jews there, he said. But thousands of them from Germany, Hungary, Slovakia, Rumania and Russia had applied to enter Poland. Referring to the rumor that Lublin with adjacent territory might be set aside as a Jewish state, he said, he saw no objection to such a plan. That, if Hitler could have his way, Poland is to remain "the home of the Jews;" that by tradition it seemed more Jewish than other European states. Where the newly arrived Jews go, was largely decided by the Jewish communities, which were operating freely in every region.—Since neither England nor France nor Germany appear to have lands for a Jewish colony, would it not solve one of the world's problems, if at the close of the present war, a part of Poland might be set aside for that purpose, until God can have His way with His own people? —T.

CORRESPONDENCE

IMMANUEL MENN. CH., LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

2-17-40.

"Oh give thanks unto the Lord; for He is good; for His mercy endureth forever." God has been gracious to us. Our hearts rejoice in remembering how safely and wisely He has led us, step by step.

As we have found it desirable to allow a few weeks between the holidays and the important Annual Meeting, to afford a better opportunity to seek spiritual preparation and guidance, this meeting was held January 14th, with a large attendance. A fine spirit of brotherly love was evident. The reports for the past year showed that the church, through her various auxiliaries, and under the guidance of our earnest young pastor, Rev. W. A. Regier, had gone forward in service for Christ, both in the church and in the community. Especially has the Young People's Division of the Sunday School and C. E. given a good account of itself in trying to reach other young people of the community. The Senior C. E. had charge of one evening service each month at the Union Rescue Mission and one Sunday afternoon a month at the County Farm (Poor House), where they brought a spiritual message to the inmates and also gave out a treat to each person in their assigned wards. Our five C. E. Societies meet simultaneously on Sunday evenings before the church service, and are always faithful in attending the latter also. Other spiritual activities of our church are the midweek children's meeting, the two Euodia Girls' Clubs, the Miracle Book Club, the Women's Bible Class Wednesday afternoons, and the monthly Women's Missionary Society meeting. The pastor reported an addition of eleven new members to the church last year. All new officers were installed on January 21st by the pastor in a solemn service of dedication.

We were saddened during the past year by the departure of four of our members, but can rejoice ethat thy are "with Christ; which is far better." Another, whose kindly presence we miss, is grandfather J. W. Regier, who was a regular attendant so many years. Dear Miss Lavina Burkhalter is greatly missed, having served in the church since 1921. Her various activities, which she had to lay down so suddenly, were taken up by our pastor's wife and other volunteers. And now we must report the Home-going of another one from our older ranks, Miss Anna Dirks, on February 8th. Her friends had helped her celebrate her 94th birthday anniversary in the previous week. This sister was the oldest member of our church. She had come here from Beatrice, Nebraska, many years ago, with Miss Helena Jensen.

One of the big events for which we are planning in the new year, the Lord willing, is the entertaining of the Pacific District Conference, probably in June. We anticipate a blessed time in fellowship with visitors from our sister churches in this Conference district.

We are looking to the Lord for a blessed year of spiritual growth and service, and praise Him that we were permitted to receive eight new members on February 4th, three by baptism, and the others by letter or on pervious baptism.

Anna G. Stauffer, Correspondent.

IN MEMORIAM

BEULAH GEIGER SOLDNER, daughter of Calvin C. and Sarah Steiner Geiger, was born at Bluffton, Ohio, July 4, 1896, and entered into peaceful rest Sunday, January 28, 1940, at her home in Bluffton, at the age of 43 years, 6 months, and 26 days.

At the age of 14 years she professed her Christian faith, was baptized and received into the membership of the former Zion Mennonite Church, near Bluffton. This faith was but the beginning of a most beautiful, devout, and genuinely helpful Christian life. She later transferred her membership to the First Mennonite Church, Bluffton, Ohio.—She graduated from Bluffton High School in 1914, and received her A. B. degree from Bluffton College in 1920.

On August 28, 1919, she was united in marriage with Grover T. Soldner. To them three children were born: Paul Edmund, Helen Marie, and Louise Irene, all of whom survive. Surviving are also her mother, two brothers: F. Steiner Geiger, Green Springs, O., and Ivan J. Geiger, Van Buren, O.; and three sisters: Mrs. Eva Harshbarger, North Newton, Kansas; Mrs. Mabel Nordstrom, Cambridge, Mass., and Mrs. Marguerite Fretz, Chicago, Ill.

For 17 years Mrs. Soldner greatly aided her husband in three pastorates: 1920-23, The First Mennonite Church, Summerfield, Ill.; 1923-1931, Zion Mennonite Church, Souderton, Pa.; 1931-1937, Eighth Street Mennonite Church, Goshen, Indiana. In this work, as well as in her home and the community, her presence was always a heavenly benediction. Many there are who bless her memory because of some inspiration, word of encouragement, or kindly help, received from her overflowing Christian spirit. Truly her life has been lived for others, and her message to all, could she speak to us, could best be expressed in the words of the apostle Paul to the Corinthians: "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord."

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning, January 30, in the First Mennonite Church, Bluffton, O., in charge of Rev. H. T. Unruh, pastor, assisted by Rev. P. E. Whitmer who was Mrs. Soldner's girlhood pastor, teacher in Bluffton College, and performed her marriage ceremony. Rev. Unruh based his meditation on Isaiah 40:31 and 41:10. Further brief services were held in the afternoon of the same day in the First Mennonite Church, Berne, Indiana, in charge of Rev. Unruh, and assisted by Rev. C. H. Suckau, and Rev. Whitmer. Rev. Whitmer based his meditation on 1 John 3:1-3. Interment was made in the M. R. E. cemetery, Berne.

* * *

REV. ANDREW OESCH was born near Pekin, Illinois, December 16, 1848. Passed away at Long Beach, California, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. H. Donner, January 23, 1940, at the age of 91 years, 1 month, 7 days. He was the oldest member of the First Mennonite Church of Upland. He was ordained to the ministry in 1874 and served churches in Illinois and Nebraska over a period of thirty years, His wife, Magdalena Unzicker, passed away many years ago in Nebraska. Surviving are a son, Rev. J. A. Osch, Staunton, Ill.; and a daughter, Mrs. J. H. Donner, Long Beach. Funeral Services were held at the Mottell Mortuary, Long Beach, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Lester Hostetler, January 27. Text, Rev. 21:16. The body was shipped to Morton, Illinois, for interment.

* * *

FREDRICK S. PATTERSON, son of Wm. and Sarah (Arnold) Patterson, was born in Canada, Jan. 24, 1863. In 1934 the Rev. W. S. Gottshall, his former pastor, led him to Jesus Christ and on Oct. 7, 1934 was baptized and received as a member into the East Swamp Mennonite Church. Though almost deaf, he was a faithful attendant at the church services.

On February 3, 1940, he was burned to death in his home near Quakertown, Pa., thus bringing his age to 77 years, and 10 days. Having no close relatives, he leaves to mourn many friends of the community. Funeral services were held at the East Swamp Mennonite Church, on Feb. 7, 1940; th pastor, Rev. Harold D. Burkholder, officiating. The body was then shipped to Blackwater, Ontario, Canada, for burial.

MOTHER MARIA SCHROEDER, daughter of Jacob and Helena Friesen, was born January 6, 1863, in South Russia. At the age of 12 she emigrated to America with her parents. The first winter was spent in Ontario, Canada. In spring they came to Minnesota where they settled on a farm nine miles northeast of Mountain Lake.

On the confession of her faith she was baptized by the Elder Aaron Wall and received into the church in the year 1882. On June 24, 1883, she was united in marriage to our father Jacob D. Schroeder. To this union were born ten children: Maria, Mrs. J. J. Vogt of Mountain Lake; Jacob G. of Huron, S. D.; Peter R. of Freeman, S. D.; Helen, Mrs. I. J. Dick of Mt. Lake; David S. of Mt. Lake; Elizabeth, Mrs. J. A. Quiring of Frazer, Mont.; Ernest H. of Spokane, Wash.; Leonard A. of Mt. Lake; Arnold, and Susan, Mrs. J. J. Janzen of Henderson, Nebr.

Father preceded her in death, September 15, 1916. A very trying time in her life was when Arnold, at the age of six, had an accidental death. She also deeply felt the loss of her oldest daughter, Marie, who passed away two years ago last September.

For many years she had a weak heart and it was feared her end would come suddenly, but instead she had to suffer very, very much the last few weeks, death was a bitter enemy to overcome. On Wednesday, January 31, at 5:05 P. M. she was permitted to enter her heavenly rest for which she had longed so much. —She was a God fearing, praying mother. Her place will be missed, but on that great resurrection day we hope to meet her face to face.—She leaves to mourn her departure, five sons, three daughters, five daughters-in-law, four sons-in-law, twenty-nine grandchildren, five brothers, eight sisters-in-law, one brother-in-law, and many relatives and friends.

Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit that they must rest from their labours; and their works do follow them. Rev. 14:13.

The funeral was held Saturday, Feb. 3. Rev. J. J. Balzer conducted the services in the David S Schroeder home and Rev. P. J. Friesen officiated in the church, assisted by Rev. Victor Sawatzky. All the children except Ernest were present.

* * *

PETER STOESZ, son of John and Maria Heppner Stoesz, was born Dec. 16, 1875, in Schoental, South Russia. In August, 1877, he migrated with his parents to America, and settled on a farm near Mt. Lake, Minn., of which they soon became the owner, where he spent his youth and grew to manhood. In those pioneer days there were meager opportunities to obtain an education, but he enjoyed a strict Christian home training and developed valuable virtues in the open country. He grew up in the fear of the Lord and in 1897, on his own inner conviction, he took catechetical instruction, was baptized by Elder Gerhard Neufeld, and became a member of the First Mennonite Church. Later in 1920 both he and his wife joined the Bethel Church, of which he was a member until his death.

June 4, 1899 he was joined in holy bonds of matrimony with Maria Falk to share life's joys and sorrows together. The Lord blessed this union with six children. Soon after marriage the couple moved on their own farm, 8 miles northeast of Mt. Lake, where they lived under God's blessing until Nov. 27, 1915. Then he purchased the parental home, entered the garage business, and the family moved to the village of Mt. Lake where they spent 23 years in business. In this his experiences were trying during the years of financial depression, but they learned to trust in God and lean upon His promises.

Just lately he remarked that, if it were not for his being able to attend church regularly, he would not be able to carry on under his heavy burdens. He enjoyed church services, for they gave him comfort and courage to go on. With joy he read the Bible and would pass his personal remarks of their values in life.

Tuesday morning, Dec. 26, he left home and soon felt pain in his chest. Stopping at a filling station to wait for it to pass, heart failure suddenly ended his life. We do not comprehend why so suddenly from Christmas joys into the valley of sorrow and bereavement; but we have the living hope of King David: "I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me." (II Sam. 12:23).

He reached the age of 64 years, 10 days, and lived in the bonds of matrimony 40 years, 6 months, 10 days. He leaves to mourn his unexpected passing, his widow, 4 daughters and one son: Maria, Mrs. N. J. Toews; Anna, Mrs. C. B. Friesen; Kate, Mrs. D. G. Schroeder; Peter and Helen; 3 sons-in-law; 1 daughter-in-law; 9 grandchildren; 5 brothers, Dietrich, Rev. Jacob, John, Cornelius, Erdman, all of Mt. Lake community; and many relatives and friends.

The following officiated at the funeral: Rev. J. J. Bartel and Jacob Stoesz in church; Rev. P. J. Friesen at the cemetery.

» » JOTTINGS « «

—Freeman Junior College.—With Prof. D. S. Wipf as coach, the College Debate Squad is busy practicing and participating in debate tournaments. Of the 12 schools that enter them, Freeman has ranked as high as first and never below eighth.—The College library is making a good showing. It has about 5,706 volumes on its shelves. During this year so far 3,318 books and 2,080 periodicals, or a total of 5,398 items have been checked out, an average of 1,079 per month. The average number of items checked out per student thus far in the year has been 37.

An Appeal in A Worthy Cause

— Rev. Walter Dyck, Young People's Representative of the Western District wishes again to call attention to the following very valuable book which all young people, especially the young men, should read and profit thereby:

"NON-RESISTANCE UNDER TEST"

"The Thrilling Experience of a Young Man Who Had the Courage to Stand for His Convictions, and Why."—Mr. E. J. Swalm, a conscientious objector in the World War, tells the story of his experiences—call for registration, farewell to home folks, various tests leading to court-martial, life in the penitentiary and return to home. Order your copy from the Western District Conference Peace Committee, Walter Dyck, Treas., Burrton, Kansas.—Price 25c.

— PASTORS GATHER FOR CONFERENCE AT BLUFFTON COLLEGE.—The Ministerial Association held its annual meeting February 14 and 15 on the Bluffton College campus.

For the conference the members had engaged as the speaker Alva J. McLain, president of the Grace Theological seminary, Winona Lake, Indiana. Due to sudden illness, Dr. McLain was unable to fulfill the engagement. Wednesday C. E. Krehbiel of Newton, Kansas, president of the Mennonite General Conference, lead the discussion which centered around the question of peace. In the afternoon sessions Dr. Calvert Ellis spoke to the group on "Fellowship in the Church". The conference came to a close Thursday noon after a challenging discussion concerning some of the vital problems confronting the ministers of the three conferences represented.

The conference was attended by ministers from the Eastern, Middle District and Central Conferences of the Mennonite church. —Sent in by Corr.

— PASTORAL MESSAGE: To slight the invitations of our friends without valid reason is a social blunder. To slight the invitations of the greatest Friend, Jesus Christ, is a sin. How often do we hasten to respond to the invitations which the world gives us but we neglect the greatest invitation of all—to come and dine with God. Let us remember that it is not only men who invite us to fellowship with God but God himself sent out this invitation. What is our reply?— E. W., Second Church, Philadelphia.

— Rev. W. L. Augsburger, formerly of Albany, Oregon, announces that he has accepted a call to the Van Orin Community Church in Illinois, and that his new address is: REV. W. L. AUGSBURGER, VAN ORIN, ILLINOIS. Some of us will remember that Brother Augsburger served the Grace Church at Albany for some time. But due to the fact that he found his service for the church and outside work that he had to engage in to make a living too hard on his health, he resigned to seek improvement. We are sorry to see him leave our fold, though hoping that it may be only temporarily. May he find his new charge congenial in every way, and may God bless his ministry!

— Bethel College Church, North Newton, Kansas.— Rev. J. N. Smucker, the pastor, is featuring a series of Sunday morning Lenten sermons on the general theme of the twenty-third psalm, "The Lord is My Shepherd." The Peace Study group continues to meet on Thursday evenings. Prof Ralph C. Kauffman and Dean P. S. Goertz serve as leaders.—Last Sunday was the regular monthly Church Night program, consisting of a panel discussion of some of the needs of the church as brought out by the recent Every-Member Visitation. A social hour with light refreshments followed the program.—A meeting of the Men's Brotherhood is planned for Monday evening, March 4.— Several Lenten Vesper services for Sunday afternoons are being arranged.

— The TRUE BLUE GIRLS, a S. S. Class in the Aberdeen Church, Idaho, are working on the project of rebinding all the worn and torn books in the Sunday School Library. At a Christmas Social held at the H. C. Wiebe home, this group spent part of the evening caroling shut-ins and also the pastor, Rev. Wedel, who was presented with a photograph album, containing a picture of nearly every family in the church. The evening was closed by a devotional hour and refreshments. — Workers Exchange.

REPORT OF TREASURER PACIFIC DISTRICT CONFERENCE, OCT. 21, 1939 TO FEB. 17, 1940

For Pacific District Conference:

First Menn. Ch., Upland, Calif. $30.73; First Menn. Ch., Colfax, Wash. $60.00; First Menn. Ch., Reedley, Calif., $19.32; First Menn. S. S. Reedley, Calif., $8.40; Menno S. S., Lind, Wash., $6.71; Menno Church, Lind, Wash., $14.50; Menno Choir, Lind, Wash., $13.36; Grace Menn. Ch., Dallas, Ore. $13.33; Immanuel Menn. Ch., Pratum, Ore., $52.34; Menn. Ch. Home Miss. Board, Philadelphia, Pa., $260.00; Jno. C. Jantz, Odessa, Wash., $2; H. D. Voth, Escondido, Cal. $10; Adult C. E. of I. M. Ch., Los Angeles, Calif., $9.20; Menn. S. S., Newport, Wash., $9.79; Menn. Young P. C. E., Aberdeen, Idaho, $10; Menn. Ch. Newport, Wash., $34.46;

For Portland, Ore., Mission:

Young P. and Young Married P. Class, Upland, Calif., $9.75; S. S. of F. M. Ch., Upland, Calif. $18.83; Sunday School of the Eden M. Church, Moundridge, Kans., $10; Worth While Circle of F. M. Ch., Reedley, Calif., $10; The Young P. C. E. of F. M. Ch., Reedley, Calif., $5.00.

The Workers Exchange:

California M. S. S. C. E. Conference, Bakersfield, Calif., $35.00;

For Dallas, Oregon, Church Building:

F. M. Ch. Reedley, Calif., $41.86; San M. M. Ch., Paso Robles, Calif., $23.58.

For Swift Current, Canada, Building Fund:

M. S. S. and C. E. Conference, Reedley, Calif., $100; Calif. M. S. S. and C. E. Conference, Bakersfield, Calif., $104.45.

We thank all the givers for their gifts. Our prayers are The Lord Bless These Gifts.

All gifts Gratefully acknowledged,
Jno. C. Jantz, Treas.

TREASURER REPORT OF THE HOME MISSION BOARD FOR JANUARY

Receipts

Hoffnungsau, Inman, Kans., $15.95; Ebenezer, (White Gift), Bluffton, Ohio, $4.50; H. S. Backman, Woodlake, Calif., $5; Emma Bachman, Woodlake, California, $5; Alexanderwohl, Goessel, Kans., $52.48; Mennonite S. S., Ringwood, Okla., $6.61; East Swamp, Quakertown, Pa., $25; Trust Fund of General Conf., $128.66; Bergtal, Pawnee Rock, Kans., $15.66; Friends, Chicago, Ill., $8; Women's Missionary Soc., Wadsworth, Ohio, $10; Bethel, Fortuna, Mo., $9.81; Tabor, Newton, Kans., $19.80; First S. S., Monroe, Wash., $8.68; A Friend, Newton, Kans., $50; Pacific Conf., $20; First, Mt. Lake, Minn., $30.92; Young Men's Class, Flatland, Quakertown, Pa., $4.50; Rev. Edgar Toews, $15; Friedensberg, Avon, S. Dak., $11.08; Ebenezer S. S., Bluffton, Ohio, $150; Germantown Mennonite Ch., Germantown, Pa., $9.51; Immanuel S. S., Los Angeles, Calif., $14.22; Saron, Orienta, Okla., $18.42; First, Upland, Calif., $12.17; Bethany, Norwich, Kans., $22.72; First, Phila., Pa., $21.45; Sperling Floor Co., Los Angeles, Calif., $50; Friends, Newton, Kans., $80; Second, Beatrice, Nebr., $25.56; Bethel, Mt. Lake, Minn., $100; Immanuel Jr. C. E., Los Angeles, Calif., $5; First, Wadsworth, Ohio, $25.33; First, Trenton, Ohio, $18.94; Hoffnungsfeld S. S., McPherson, Kans., $15; Mennonite, Richfield, Pa., $15; Bethel, Volt, Mont., $20; First, of Christian, Moundridge, Kans., $34; Zion, Moundridge, Kans., $17; Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Waltner, Pretty Prairie, Kans., $20; First, Berne, Ind., $103.20; First, Halstead, Kans., $13.99; Nichols Contract No. 2309, $14.81; First, Beatrice, Nebr., $52.21; Bruderthal, Hillsboro, Kans., $34.87; First, S. S., Monroe, Wash., $3.75; First, Berne, Ind., $111.15; Deep Run, Hilltown, Pa., $88.43; Monroe S. S., Near Lind, Wash., $6.71; Mennonite Ch., Pulaski, Ia., $3.73; First, Chicago, Ill., $10.24; Pacific Conf., $20.00. Total, $1583.96.

Special: West Zion, S. S. Class No. 15, Moundridge, Kans., for Girls Home in Saskatoon, Sask., Canada, $6.50. Grand Total, $1590.46.

Disbursements

Vouchers drawn for the month, salaries, rent, stamps, etc., $1086.75.

All receipts gratefully acknowledged.

J. J. Plenert, Treas., 429 Knorr St., Phila., Penn.

Reprt of the Ex. Com of Mission Societies for Jan. 1940.

Foreign Miss. Gen'l Treas.:

Saron Miss. Soc., Orienta, Okla., $25; Sew. Soc. Whitewater Ch. Lena, Man., $20; Sew. Soc. Whitewater Ch., Boissevain, Man., $4; Miss. Soc. Grace Ch. Dallas, Oregon, $25.80; Miss. Circle, Springfield Ch., Pleasant Valley, Pa., $5; Miss. Soc., Wadsworth, Ohio, $10; Elsie Schroeder, Hillsboro, Kans., $5. Total $94.80

For India:

Int. Miss. Band, Berne Ind. Orphan, $30; Miss. Soc. Reedley, Calif. Orphan, $30; Young Women's Miss. Soc. Henderson, Nebr. Orphan, $30; Ladies Aid, Medford, Okla., Biblewoman, $25; Sew. Soc., Liberal, Kans. Biblewoman, $25; Grace Miss. Soc. Albany, Oreg. Housefather, Birra St. Boy's School, $40; Miss. Soc. Monroe, Wash. Champa Hospital, $14; Truth Seeker's S. S. Class, Medford, Okla. Leper Home, Champa St., $5; Friendship Circle, Menn. Ch. Inman, Kans., Same, $15; West Zion Sew. Soc., Moundridge, Kans., Janjgir St., $10; Friendship Circle, Menn. Ch., Inman, Kans., Birra St., $15; Sr. C. E. Soc. Immanuel Ch., Los Angeles, Calif. Witnessing Band, $10; Sew. Soc., Wimbley, Alta. India, Where needed, $35; Total $284.00.

For China

Miss. Sew. Soc., Inman, Kans.,, Biblewoman $40; Grace Miss. Soc., Albany, Oregon, Biblewoman, $40; Ladies Aid, Alsen, N. D., Evangelist, $40; Miss. Soc. Wadsworth, Ohio, Kai Chow Hospital, $10; Miss. Soc., Monroe, Wash., Electric Light Plant, $14; Bergfeld Jr. Miss. Soc., Mountain Lake, Minn., Flood Relief, $10.59; Miss. Sew. Soc., Pretty Prairie, Kans., Same, $10; Tabea Sew. Soc., Tampa, Kans., Same. $20; Primary S. S. Class, Brudertal Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., Sick Children, $9.18; Sew. Soc., Wembly, Alta., China, Where needed, $35.00. Total $228.77.

Expenses of Ex. Com. and "Miss. News and Notes":

Young Women's Miss. Soc. Henderson, Nebr., $.30; Tabor Sew. Soc., Goessel, Kans., $2.60; Rev. and Mrs. P. W. Penner, Hillsboro, Kans., $5; Miss. Soc., Portland, Oreg., $.70; Sew. Soc., Aberdeen, Sask., $1.00; Mrs. P. G. Schmidt, Marion, Kans., $.25; Mrs. P. P. Schmidt, Newton Kans., $.25; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Jantz, Oressa, Wash., $.25; Mrs. Peter Boehr, Tiffin, Ohio, $1.00; Mrs. Herman Androes, Wichita, Kans., $.10; Mrs. Sam Baergen, Wichita, Kans., $.10; Mrs. Edward Duerksen, Alsen, N. D., $.25; Mrs. P. Loewen, Alsen, N. D., $.25; Mrs. H. Loewen, Munich, N. D., $.25; Miss. Soc., Trenton, Ohio, $3.00. Total $15.30;

Miscellaneous:

Miss. Soc. Monroe, Wash., Home Miss. Gen'l. Treas. $14; Miss. Circle, Springfield, Ch., Pleasant Valley, Pa., Same, $5; Miss. Soc. 1st. Ch., Lima, Ohio, Retired Miss. Pension Fund, $5.90; St. John's Ladies Aid, Pandora, Ohio, Same, $3.00; Sew. Soc. 1st. Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., Same, $10; Bergfeld Miss. Soc., Delft, Minn. Traveling Expenses of Miss., $10; Miss. Sew. Soc. Inman, Kans., Rev. J. J. Thiessen, Bluffton, Ohio, $4; Friendship Circle, Menn. Ch., Inman, Kans., Same, $4; Same, Rev. H. A. Toews, Africa, $15; Eden Ladies Aid and Miss. Soc., Moundridge, Kans., Ariz. Miss. Bibles, $10; S. S. Class, West Zion Ch. Moundridge, Kans., Same, $2; S. S. Class, Pretty Prairie, Kans., Same, $10; Friend, Christmas Fund, $.27. Total, $93.17.

Grand Total $716.04

Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Treas.

ORDER BLANK

MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE

Newton, Kansas

Place a cross in the order used.

☐ I wish to become a new subscriber of THE MENNONITE, and am enclosing the special price of $1.00 for the first year.

☐ I hereby renew my subscription to The Mennonite and enclose $________, for which credit me as far as it goes. Regular price is $1.50 a year.

Old subscribers paying to 1941 or beyond get the YEAR BOOK free. The valuable Year Book may be had postpaid for $.25. Kansas subscribers should add 2 percent for taxes.

Name ______________________________________

Street or Route ______________________________

City _______________ State ____________________

~~1001 EAST BROADWAY~~
NEWTON, KANSAS

KEY
44

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, March 5,1940 NUMBER 10

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

Mission Number Next Week, with Right-of-way over Other Matter.

THE SUFFERING MESSIAH

As we approach the Easter season, let us pause to consider the price that was paid for our salvation. It was not only the physical suffering of the cross that tore the heart of the Savior but the ingratitude of those whom He would save. From the cross He cried out, "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do."

Isaiah in the fifty-third chapter of his book gives to us a picture of the Messiah who through affliction and suffering should make possible the forgiveness of the sins of those for whom He was afflicted and killed. Isaiah saw what we know, that wherever the world has been lifted and helped it has cost some one very dearly. Our emotions are stirred by the heroic and our hearts are touched by the afflicted and oppressed but many times the one who gives the most suffers in silence and receives little acclaim or sympathy.

The world ever moves forward on the sacrifice of those who have given freely of themselves so that those who follow may profit. Mothers and fathers rejoice when they can help their children even if they themselves must make some sacrifice in giving help. The world's martyrs have not all died on the field of battle but many have given their all in some quiet and unknown way that others should reap of their sowing.

All these are following in the footsteps of Him who led the way, who suffered the same temptations as we do, in addition to the knowledge of His power over those who would destroy Him, and yet followed the pathway of non-resistance which allowed Him to accomplish what could be done in no other way.

The world today is not what it ought to be. The power of righteousness conquers wickedness very slowly. We think of men's lust for money and power, of war and preparation for war and wonder if His sacrifice was in vain. Yet we read here in Isaiah, "He shall see of the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied—." We believe that His suffering was not without results and that when He cried on the cross, "It is finished," He looked down through the centuries and saw you and me saved from sin through His sacrifice and knew He had accomplished that which He had been sent to do.

FROM MOUNTAIN TOP EXPERIENCE TO ABJECT DESPONDENCY

Many of us are familiar with the story of Elijah, one of the most unique of the Old Testament prophets. He had been called from obscurity to be Jehovah's champion in checking Israel's fall into idolatry. He found his task particularly difficult with the court of Ahab and his perverted wife Jezebel. His struggle to lead the people Godward came to a climax on Mount Carmel, where in the presence of a large assemblage and of 450 prophets of Baal, he called upon Jehovah to show His power and His claims upon His people, and the impotence of Baal. Then fire from heaven devoured Elijah's sacrifice, altar and all. It was only human for the prophet to feel considerably exalted over this victory of Jehovah's might and his own approval as the servant who championed His cause. Now that the kingdom was reclaimed and rededicated to the true God, he must have been tempted to rest on his laurels, with the hope of easier times ahead.

But Jezebel the terrible was still alive and would be sure to plot revenge on the prophet for the extermination of the false prophets. So, with the shifting of the scene, we find Elijah fleeing for his life, without stop until he sinks beneath a juniper tree out in the wilderness, where he prays that he might die. It is a pathetic scene, when a big soul is nearing a break down. Many devout Christians have faced situations where they felt like crying with their Savior, "My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" There are three causes that may explain Elijah's pitiful state: In the first place, he was suffering from physical fatigue. On Mount Carmel he had been subjected to a terrible strain. It is one of those instances when men live years in minutes. And when the long promised rain came, he ran all the way from there to Jezreel befor Ahab's chariot. It is as some one has truly said, "The canker which eats out the joy of so many Christian lives is frequently caused by mere physical depression; . . . and a tired body may cause the veriest saint to doubt his 'calling and election.' " Another reason for Elijah's low spirits is, he was idle. He had dropped from a life of intense activity into one of inaction. "An idle man's brain is the devil's workshop." And "enjoyment stops where indolence begins." It is safe to say that most of the unhappiness in the world is caused by idleness. A third reason for Elijah's depressed mood may be found in the fact that he had stood too long alone. God wisely foresaw that man needed sympathy and companionship. So he made him a companion in Eve. A certain hard criminal known for his sullenness, gradually developed a pleasanter mood. One day the jail-keeper found him with a rat on his lap, stroking and caressing it. A mute animal gave him a bit of companionship which men shunned to give. It is ever true that all elements of man, the physical, the spiritual, the social, and intellectual must be wisely nurtured, and balanced, or things are likely to go wrong.—T.

TO LOVE GOD IS TO KEEP HIS COMMANDMENTS

Peoples' conceptions of love differ widely. Some hold that love should never be coupled with sternness, that its essence is all sweetness, that its function is to yield things that are pleasing to the senses. Again there are those who show their love by frequently giving parties and entertainments or furnishing other rather sensuous pleasures of this or that sort. Even well-meaning Christians are tempted to indulge in excesses along this line. Certainly love is kind, affable, it gives gladly, gives itself. But true love, genuine Christian love, love "in the Spirit," will always try to discover what will bring the most real benefits to the one on whom this love is bestowed. Such love may have to deal quite sternly at times. Even the love for God is not what some people conceive it to be. Christ expresses the essence of this love when he says, "If ye love me, ye will do my commandments."—John 14:15. It is possible to engage in many helpful Christian activities, to attend many Christian meetings and festivals, and to indulge in all sorts of apparently Christian exuberances. And when Christ takes such doings under the scrutiny of his all-seeing eyes, he may find them admixed with considerable form, pretense, and even sham, and why? Because they are not duly motivated with the desire of keeping God's commandments. If we truly, honestly want to love God, we will have to do just what he wants us to do. Here is a young woman who is burning with the desire to go to the mission field, but is compelled to stay at home to nurse her ailing mother. To do this work tenderly, sacrificially, in filial love, is loving Christ and doing His will. God may not always ask His child to do what is pleasant and congenial. But such tasks are apt to become so, when done obediently, cheerfully, for his love's sake.—T.

—Friedensberg Menn. Church, Avon, S. Dak.—"We had prayers, a special sermon, and an offering on Sunday morning, Feb. 25, for the benefit of Freeman Junior College, and all Christian schools."

—J. E. U., Corr.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

I Wonder Who We Are?

One day at the close of the Sunday School Teacher's Meeting one of the Hopi Indian Christians asked the above question. When queried as to the reason for such a question he asked, "Do you ever hear of the Jews coming to the Lord in great numbers. No! Only a few here and there."

Some of the Hopi Indian ceremonies are very similar to the Jewish worship of the Old Testament that one is led to wonder—who are the Hopis! The other day as we were reading in Micah we were struck by the reference to "eagle fashion" hair dress as recorded in Chapter 1, verse 16. Soon after Christmas one sees many of the pre-school children's hair cut eagle fashion as a part of their ceremony at that time. The hair is clipped close to the head at all places except over the ear and in front.

One day a Hopi Christian woman in reading the Bible happened to read about the care of the ashes from the altar and she was much surprised, "for" said she, "my clan used to carry certain ashes to a certain specified place." Certain of their food regulations and specifications with certain limitations for certain ceremonies are similar to those of the Jewish ones.

It seems that this very similarity of their heathen ceremonies to the Jewish worship is a great hindrance to the Hopi in coming to the glorious Light of the gospel of Jesus Christ. "For," say they, "what you tell us goes parallel to our own religion, and why should we change?"

A certain lady who for eight years was a gospel worker in the Sherman Institute for Indians where forty different Indian tribes were represented made this remark, "Of all those forty different tribes of Indians the Hopis were the hardest to reach with the gospel and to win to Jesus Christ.

The singularly uncanny, weird and satanic Hopi ceremonies and dances seem to be spotted for the curiosity, yea, even for study by university graduates, by government people of our land, from countries even across the oceans, and tourists in general, for as many as 6000 white tourists will cross these long stretches of desert wastes to attend certain of these dances. The majority of these lament the fact of missionary work that is carried on to "spoil these beautiful ceremonies and dances."

Many of you may have read Mrs. Seymar's article in the Saturday Evening Post, "Thunder Over the Southwest." (We have extra copies of the article which we'd be glad to send you upon request). From this you will clearly sense the "New Deal" feeling of "Let the Indian live his own life he pleases." In other words, "Let him go back to his former primative state if he so chooses."

One of the Christian women one day said, "when they have put me in a cage in the zoo I'll hand out gospel tracts to the tourists that may come by!"

The satanic powers seem to be getting more clinching and hostile against the gospel in bolder form.

Our expectation is from the Lord, for "Not by might nor by power but by my Spirit saith the Lord." The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

Pray for the Hopi Indian Christians that God may give them grace to live a life of faith and obedience in Jesus Christ separated from all heathen ceremonies.

Pray for the unsaved Hopis that God may give them grace unto conviction of their lost condition and grace to yield unto Jesus Christ who died to save them.

Pray for us that we may be faithful to "occupy" till He comes.

In His blessed service,
John and Mabel Suderman

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

SUMMER WORK WITH STUDENTS

The policy announced a year ago was reviewed at the Annual Board meeting in Chicago, of offering to be the "go between" for students and churches to get together in a summer work agreement. A beginning in this type of work was made last summer, and it is hoped that even more can be accomplished this year.

While on our way to the Board meeting, three Board members met with a group of interested students in Bluffton College, to discuss with them the possibility to assist them in finding places in Vacation Bible Schools and also in finding summer appointments for young men who are preparing for the Ministry.

We feel certain that similar groups are to be found in our other schools, Bethel and Freeman College. It is hoped that such interested individuals will write in to the Board members early. Of course, there will also be a need for Churches to open doors for such helpers.

By working together, our young people can find some work, and at the same time receive very valuable training; and churches can in this manner get help that may be needed. Let us work and pray together and thus help the Cause of Christ along.

Let Churches and individual students write to the Board member in your District, or address the Secretary.

I love the acquaintance of young people, for they help me stay young, and they have more virtue and more generous sentiments than old folks.—Dr. Johnson

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

A. S. Rosenberger

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION MADE EFFECTIVE THROUGH OFF-CAMPUS CONTACTS

I. W. Bauman

The public usually thinks of colleges and universities as being founded and conducted solely for the education and training of students. This is indeed their first function and responsibility but by no means their sole function. We are likely to forget the great service rendered by these institutions in the fields of general research, scientific and medical investigation and discovery, constructive and progressive thought, leadership training, character education, contributions to literature, to name only a few. A country without this type of leadership and service remains stagnant and unprogressive as the histories of many countries such as China, India, and Russia abundantly prove. A close study of the "off-campus" services and functions of our institutions of higher learning may well raise the question whether these functions and activities are not quite as important as is the training of students on the campus.

Christian colleges have special opportunities and responsibilities along these lines. First of all is the special responsibility of providing wise and efficient leadership in solving problems of the denomination and its constituency and of mapping out constructive programs of action. This can best be done through intimate and friendly cooperation with the officials, ministers, and lay leaders of the church. Attendance at conferences and retreats and participation on the programs is essential. Books and articles in the church papers on doctrines, policies, and activities of the denomination provide splendid opportunities. Members of the faculty should appear as frequently as possible in churches and among the constituency to give service and establish good fellowship. Faculty and constituency should know each other more intimately. Student organizations such as gospel teams, choirs, dramatic groups, athletic teams, etc. not only reveal to the public the quality and character of the college program but also forge a chain of friendship and mutual helpfulness between the college and its constituency.

The college campus should also provide a place for church conferences and retreats, and all sorts of meetings connected with the work of the church. At their institution all can feel a common interest, ownership, and pride in the work of the church. How often we prize other places and institutions more highly on the same principle as stated in the proverb, "Distant pastures always look greener." The ultimate of service by the Christian college to its constituency and denomination can only ge given when its place is properly recognized and appreciated by all, and when friendly mutual cooperation exists between those serving and the ones served.

"The New Testament Basis for Pacifism"

A current issue of Fellowship, the magazine for Christian pacifists, contains a very fine article by Professor G. H. C. MacGregor of the University of Glasgow on the New Testament Basis of Pacifism.

He says in part: "For the Christian war is primarily a moral problem; all moral problems are ultimately thological; and for theology and morals alike the final court of appeal is the New Testament.

I find three basic postulates. First, the foundation of the New Testament ethic is love toward one's neighbor, the latter being defined in the widest possible sense as Jesus defines him in the parable of the good Samaritan and the law of love being extended to cover even enemies. Indeed it is just this extension which gives the law of love its specific Christian content: "For if ye love them that love you . . . what do ye more than others."

Secondly, it is characteristic of the New Testament that its ethics are always rooted in theology, its teaching about man's duty in its teaching about the nature of God. Jesus' disciples will love even their enemies not only because that is good morally but in order that they be "sons of their Father who is in Heaven." The New Testament offers us morals founded on theology, an ethic of the brotherhood of man founded on a theology of a Father God who loves all men impartially. The preciousness of human personality in the sight of God; that is our second New Testament postulate.

Thirdly, the New Testament shows us in the life of Jesus a characteristic way of meeting and overcoming evil. And it is in the light of this way of life and above all of the Cross which sealed it, that all the teachings of Jesus must be interpreted. Jesus taught that it was better to suffer wrong than to inflict it on other people. He insisted that error must be overcome not by violence but by truth, hatred not by enmity but by love, evil not by its own weapons but by good. He consistently lived by a principle of "non-resistance" yet there was nothing negative about His life. He never condoned the stark reality of evil but He never met it with its own methods. He overcame evil with good. This basic redemptive method of overcoming evil when carried to the uttermost finds its supreme climax in the Cross.

These are the three basic postulates in the light of which the pacifist claims the New Testament as his ally: an ethic of absolute love; a theology of a Father God to whom every individual is precious; a characteristic redemptive method of overcoming evil through love and self-sacrifice."

Certainly these points by Professor MacGregory are worthy of serious study today. Mennonites will be interested to know that Professor MacGregor is coming to America and that there is a possibility that he may lecture on the Bethel College campus next June. —E. L. Harshbarger

Religious Training for Children

Recently the "CHILDREN'S BUREAU" of the U. S. Department of Labor is showing considerable interest in the subject of religious instruction for children. From a report on "RELIGION AND CHILDREN IN A DEMOCRACY," prepared for presentation and group discussion at a conference of religious leaders of the country, held at the White House, January 18 to 20, we glean some significant statements, as follows:

"Approximately one-half of the children and youth of America receive no formal religious sinstruction . . . Yet religion is presented as one of the fundamental essentials of the preservation of a democracy." Teaching religion to the youth of the land is termed "an unsolved problem, which is: How to utilize the resources of religion in meeting the needs of children without in any way violating freedom of conscience or the principle of separation of church and state."

"The child needs to have a conviction of his own intrinsic worth as a person and also a conviction that he has a significant and secure place in a rational and moral universe," the report sets forth.—"Whatever else we may do to help the child achieve the fulfillment of his needs, we have not met his greatest need until we have helped him to build a practical philosophy of life . . . Historically man has achieved this end chiefly through art, philosophy and religion. —In scientific discovery, technology, and material achievements there has been phenomenal progress, but in appreciation and achievement of values—in art, morals, and religion—there is a great cultural lag, . . . the need to assist growing children to achieve a convincing and impelling sense of values in a prevailing culture in which ends have become greatly obscured by the techniques of living."

Primary responsibility for the religious nurture of children is usually placed in the home, in many of which little if any attention is paid to it. Here the report raises the serious question, how the child's religious needs shall be met as he grows older. It is pointed out that religion was once a part of the integral education of children in this country, the first schools having been religious schools. But that religion has slowly been crowded out by increasing intellectual, scientific and industrial subject matter. Then it goes on:

"In the historical perspective of more than a century and a half, we reaffirm the principle of American democracy which leaves the Church and State each independent in its own sphere. . . However, historically it was never intended that the separation of Church and State should deprive children of the resources of religion . . . So deeply have certain religious groups felt the need of bringing up their children under the influence of religion that they have attempted to carry the entire responsibility of education in parochial schools at their own expense, in addition to the public taxation for education. Other churches have adopted the Sunday School, an institution originally designed for the underprivileged, and giving a meager amount of religious instruction on Sundays. In more recent years individual churches, or churches cooperatively, have conducted religious schools during the summer vacations. In some instances, religious instruction is given in the public schools as a regular part of their programs. Despite these various types of church and school response, the religious needs of the children are very imperfectly met in the case of many who belong to various constituencies."

The report saw hope ahead, stating: "Fortunately, at the time when we are feeling the urgency of this problem there is a growing sense of common ends which all religious groups are seeking to achieve for their children and youth, irrespective of their particular theological beliefs or church polities . . . A satisfactory solution will require a critical analysis of the problem in the light of more than a century of experience and a careful weighing of alternatives."—T.

FORWARD WITH CHRIST

Given by D. J. Unruh at the Anniversary Festival of the Lansdale Church

Christian experience cannot tolerate a standstill. There must be progress or else there will surely be a decline and not infrequently a decadence. But progress must be willed, and to will aright we must recognize the proper means of progress. If, therefore, we would make Christian progress it must be 'with Christ.' This may mean, with the aid of Christ; or it may indicate a partnership with Christ; and it may mean, I believe that it should mean, to go forward in proportion as we are yielded to the Lord Jesus Christ and so go forward with Him.

Let us envision for a moment the first of these, i.e., with the aid of Christ. What couldn't we do if only we had the full aid of Christ, if we could always assuredly say, Christ is with us. Isn't that too often the way in which we seek the help of Christ. Shortsightedly we measure our progress and say that it was 'I and Christ,' and that accounts for our progress. What a great thing WE can do if Christ is with us.

But that is an ego-centric Christianity, narrow and unworthy of our great Savior. Christianity that envisions Christ merely as an aid, may make some progress but it does so at the expense of its spiritual health.

The second view of Christian progress, is that which gives Christ a larger place, it is a partnership with Christ. Christ is now, not the servant of Christian progress, but the companion and the partner, and this can be best expressed in the term 'Christ and I.' We cannot say that such a relationship is impossible or untrue to experience, but let us beware lest we draw Christ to our level and let us recognize that whatever there is of truth in the partnership idea, the suggestion must not come from us.

Forward with Christ must mean for the informed and spiritually minded Christian, that progress is true Christian progress only when it is Christ-centered progress. It is no longer 'I and Christ.' 'I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the son of God, who loved me, and gave Himself for me.' Gal. 2:20.

Under God, I had a part in the birth and the early growth of the Grace Mennonite Church, Lansdale, Pa. Now you are commemorating your Tenth birthday. I am happy to write these few words and to felicitate you on this occasion. He who wrought effectually in this work in the past ten years, will continue to work effectually as you yield yourselves to him. May you continue to grow. If the Lord tarries, may the next ten years be an evidence that with Christ you have gone forward, to win souls for him, to witness faithfully to His Lordship in the church, and to wait for His coming from Heaven.

God has done great things through the Church at Lansdale. May he continue to bless and use you to His glory. I salute you in Christ and felicitate you on this Tenth Anniversary. 'Now the God of peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus Christ, that great shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant, make you perfect in every good work to do His will, working in you that which is well pleasing in His sight, through Jesus Christ; to whom be glory for ever and ever.' Amen.

AMERICAN YOUTH CONGRESS

Two weeks ago the American Youth Congress held an institute at Washington, D. C. Several thousand youth rallied to the nation's capital to form a sort of gigantic lobby in the interest of jobs, education and civil liberties. "It was a tumultuous session," as the reports have it. Two of the delegates were rejected at one of the sessions, for trying to present resolutions condemning Russia for the invasion of Finland. The Congress which started in 1934 has set before it some worthwhile aims, among which are the following: Dedication to the service of the country and mankind; promise to uphold the American ideal; maintenance of freedom of conscience and expression; safeguarding our national heritage; social pioneering in securing the fullest devolopment to all; respect for and defence of the Constitution, the Bill of Rights, etc. Worthy as these aims may be, the last Congress seemed to indicate that it is not easy to live up to them, and to accomplish much.

—"Christ is the World's Life.—Passing centuries have not and could not erect a character like His. The study of that character is largely profitless unless it leads men and nations to hear the voice of Jesus as on that great day of the feast, He stood and cried saying, "If any man thirst let him come unto me and drink." —H. T. Unruh, in Church Bulletin.

SERMON SKETCH

JEREMIAH AND THE NEW COVENANT

by A. J. Neuenschwander

Text, Jeremiah 31:33

The more one studies the life and work of the Prophet Jeremiah, the more one needs to admire him. Jeremiah sees the stubborn persistence of the people in their sin, in spite of his sincere efforts to have them turn in the way of the Lord. A prophet of less patience might have roundly condemned them, not so Jeremiah. After many year's of consistent labors in the almost hopeless task of turning the people in a better way, the prophet in Jer. 13:23 uses a most striking comparison with his people when he asks: "Can the Ethiopian change his skin, or the leopard his spots?" To the average man, yes even to Jeremiah, a man of extraordinary patience, it seemed a hopeless case.

I. Divine Intervention Needed

• Although Jeremiah saw no way out of the difficulty, he felt sure that the Lord knew and had a way to bring about a change. In this connection Jeremiah reveals his conviction of the ability of the Lord to help, in the beautiful picture of the potter, (18:1-6). Others in Scripture have used this same illustration, but Jeremiah seems to have used it first, in this particular way. Others have emphasized the fact that the Lord is a divine sovereign over the clay. Already Isaiah had expressed himself as indicating that the clay is helpless (64:8) and later on Paul emphasizes the same thing, Rom. 8:21. Jeremiah sees farther and goes deeper into the relationship between the divine potter and the clay, by suggesting a cooperation between the clay-man and the great Potter. Modification might be necessary, but if there were cooperation and ready response, a good and useful vessel can be made "as seemed good to the potter to make it." Jeremiah, knowing full-well the religious reform to the formal keeping of the law as prescribed in the newly found book of Deuteronomy, arrives at this significant conclusion: the trouble is not with laws, but with men. No matter how detailed their laws, laws for outward or physical observance, can never touch the spirit of men.

II. The New Covenant

In bringing forth the principles of the new covenant, as seen in our text, Jeremiah pioneered again, this time going much deeper into the consideration of spiritual life, than anyone ever went before. Here we have the result of a spiritual intuition of Jeremiah, whereby the individual soul comes in intimate and direct touch with God. How long Jeremiah pondered this matter is impossible to say, but this one fact is clear, it came from a spiritually warm and vibrant soul. The conviction that the Lord would make the new covenant by writing it in the hearts of his people, would have a far-reaching effect upon the future office of the prophet. As it was they got the inspiration for their "outward reform revival" from a book (Deuteronomy). If this new covenant became effective, the prophet's "Thus saith the Lord" would be greatly diminished. Jeremiah, however, does not seek to prolong his office to maintain his work.

According to Lindsey B. Longacre, student of Jeremiah, we have here the prophet's outline for true religion. True religion is clearly shown to be: (1) "The concern of the individual far more intimately than the concern of the nation as such; (2) as depending ultimately on a perfect harmony with the will of God; (3) as attainable, not by any outward conformity, but only in a spirit and a life." To us today this is nothing less than the acceptance of the doctrine of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit as taught by Jesus. Jeremiah is truly the forerunner of Jesus. In his last hour Jesus himself adopted the same phrase when he said in Luke 22:20: "This is the new covenant in my blood."

III. Our Attitude toward the New Covenant

In the centuries since Jesus, we have been so busy building churches, cathedrals, creeds, church organizations and machinery, that a casual observer might well feel that the main effort is toward the outward manifestation of Christian life. The inner, the spiritual, is much more difficult to approach. People speak glibly of "joining the church" as though it were similar to joining a literary society or a debating club.

You and I as sincere followers of Christ, need to emphasize the importance of the spiritual change that must attend the "joining of a church." If and when you have been duly sorry for your sins; if and when you have confessed them; if and when you are determined by the help of Jesus Christ, to remain loyal by the aid of the Holy Spirit—Then you or anyone can join the church. Then the "new covenant," the Spirit's indwelling, is a reality and a power.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

March 17, 1940

CALVARY: TRIUMPH THROUGH SACRIFICE

Matthew 27:33-50

Introducton

When Christ made the complete surrender to the Father's will it meant unspeakable sacrifice and we see the full culmination of it in our lesson today on Calvary's cross. Christ's awful agony in the garden was scarcely ended when He was arrested, taken before the high priest and the Sanhedrin and tried. The trials were little more than a farce and were held to give a little semblance of legality to the murder His enemies were determined to commit on Christ. With Pilate's confirmation of the death sentence, all was ready to begin the sorrowful procession to the cross on Calvary or Golgotha.

Jesus Crucified vs 33-38

Jesus was led to a place without the city walls to be crucified. It was early in the day, the third hour, when they crucified Him (Mk. 15:25). The accounts in the four Gospels should be read together. The crucifixion is the supreme manifestation of man's sinfulness and God's holiness; the unfathomable depths of human depravity and the infinite heights of divine love. He who went about doing good and who had done no evil, was nailed to the horrible cross. MEN CRUCIFIED HIM. The attitude of mankind, as a whole, toward Jesus is not essentially different today. Our Lord is still rejected and disowned by the great many.

Jesus was in full possession of all his mental powers when He offered himself unto death (v34). He refused to drink the stupefying drink prepared for those to be executed. The executioners were entitled to the garments of the victim and in casting lots for his vesture, they literally fulfilled prophecy (Ps. 22:18). Soldiers in relays were required to watch until the victim was dead (v 36). Many today gaze with complete indifference upon the crucified Christ.

Jesus Mocked While on the Cross vs 39-44

Passers-by, soldiers, (L. 23:36) the Jewish rulers mocked Jesus in his dying agonies. He loved them all and that made the mockery so bitter. The chief priests felt that now their triumph over Jesus was complete. They railed upon Him insolently (vs 40, 42, 43). They would not have believed if He had come down from the cross. Their jeers revealed the utter blackness of their hearts. They spoke truly, "He saved others; himself He can not save," but they did not realize it. Jesus could have saved himself, but instead He gave himself as the sacrifice for man's sins.

Jesus Yields up His Spirit vs 45-50

Jesus had hung on the cross for three hours exposed to the gaze of His enemies and now God draws a curtain of deep darkness over the remaining three hours (v45). These hours were too awful and sorrowful for mortal eyes to see the suffering Savior. Nature herself was in deep sorrow. Jesus had taken the sinner's place and felt an intense loneliness and uttered his last appealing cry (v46). The words of his lips expressed the weight of the burden which overwhelmed his heart. The heavy cloud passed by, faith shone forth triumphant, and Jesus could say, "It is finished." God enabled Him to yield up his spirit (v50). He gave up his life.

Sacrifice—Triumph

Many have made real and great sacrifices for others or for a cause, but no human being can make a sacrifice as great as Christ's is. He was willing to leave his pre-existent glory, come to earth and die on the cross, a vicarious sacrifice. Humanly thinking, the cross meant defeat for Christ. However the apparent defeat was in very reality the greatest victory. Christ

(Concluded on page 15)

DOCTRINAL - DEVOTIONAL

The Inspiration of the Holy Scriptures

by Elmer Basinger

In a recent issue of The Mennonite there appeared an article in the Doctrinal-Devotional section entitled, "The All-Inclusive Gospel." In this article the writer, in speaking of the fundamentals of the Christian faith, enumerates certain things which we must believe if we want to make Jesus Christ our Savior from the guilt and power of sin. The first essential mentioned by the writer is: "We must believe in the verbal inspiration of the Old and New Testament, inspired by God and inerrant in the original writing." I challenge the truth of this statement, because neither Christ nor his apostles ever made such a demand for salvation.

I believe in the inspiration of the Holy Scriptures, but I do not believe in the theory of verbal inspiration, nor do I consider this to be a requirement of salvation. This theory has been known as the mechanical or dictation theory. An advocate of this theory says, that man is a mere lyre or harp upon which God plays. What is human is suppressed, the indwelling God uses the human organs irrespective of the human will. The man is the mere mouth-piece of God, uttering words he need not know the meaning of, thoughts which no free process of his own faculties has reached, consequently what he writes comes from God himself and must therefore be inerrant.

There is no conception of inspiration so simple and so easily grasped as the theory of verbal inspiration. If God dictated the Bible first word to last, that is a conception so simple that a child can grasp it, and so long as a man can believe it, he will have no trouble with the Bible. He settles at a stroke all sorts of problems, and henceforth has nothing to do but to take implicitly just what is written. But if we can not believe that the Bible was dictated and are driven to believe that every man who wrote a part of it allowed his own personality and experience to enter to a greater or less degree into everything he wrote, then we have a conception which is far more difficult to manage.

The theory of a literal inspiration and inerrancy has no foundation in the Bible itself, is disproved by the free quotations from the Old Testament, and is exposed to unanswerable objections. It is inconsistent with known facts and truths. It is certain from these facts that the Divine influence did not enter the Scriptures by dictation to the writers. These writings could not have been dictated because they are too human and alive, too full of life and feeling, too evidently suggested to living writers by living occasions. It is inconceivable, and contrary to all we know of the manner of God's working, that he should have used men in this merely mechanical way.

According to Toy's "Quotations from the Old Testament" there are 275 quotations used by the writers of the New Testament. Of these there are only 53 in which the Hebrew, the Septuagint, and the New Testament agree; that is, in which the Septuagint Version has correctly rendered the Hebrew and has been correctly quoted by the New Testament writers. Now, on any explanation of this style of quoting, it would certainly seem as if the New Testament writers thought much more of the sense of the Sacred Scriptures than of the exact language. It should be further noticed that those who record the sayings of our Lord greatly differ in their reports. One would expect that here, if anywhere, sacredness would attach to the very letter and precise language used, if the words had been dictated by God himself. If inspiration involved perfect accuracy of language, then there could not be these differences.

The great thing after all is the fact that the Bible is the record of God's revelation of Himself to mankind, and that this revealing was not made in writing, but in life and action, and especially in the living Christ who dwelt among us and who was willing to suffer and die that we might live forever. Our faith in the Bible, as containing the very word of God and as the infallable guide in all matters of faith and practice, rests on its intrinsic value, and is independent of any human theory of inspiration. Christianity is founded not in the inspiration of its documents, but upon the life, character, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ, our Savior. Christ was saving sinners before the New Testament existed, and could no doubt do the same today, if it had not been written, for he promised to send us the Holy Spirit who is to reprove the world of sin, of righteousness, of judgment, and is to guide us into the Way of Truth. If Christianity were not historically true, no divine aid in the composition of its Scriptures could make it true. The account which Luke gives us of his preparation for writing his Gospel shows that he was not a mere mouth-piece of another's thoughts. He used the same methods that modern historians employ in getting the facts, for in his preface to his Gospel he states: "I have investigated all these events with care from their very beginning, have resolved to write a connected history of them for you, in order that you may be able to satisfy yourself of the accuracy of the story you have heard from the lips of others." I have quoted from the Twentieth Century New Testament.

I notice that the writer of the article referred to at the beginning makes his claim of verbal inspiration and inerrancy to the original writings. But the original manuscripts have been allowed to disappear, for us, therefore, there is no verbally inspired and inerrant Scriptures. Direct or virtual dictation of these writings is at once unprovable in history and impossible in fact. Since God has not seen to it that the original manuscripts were preserved, and has made no provision for infallible transcribers and infallible translators of the Bible, we must infer that verbal inspiration was not necessary to make the Scriptures authoritative and inspiring. Inspiration must not be confounded with dictation; the former is a free spiritual, the latter a mechanical process. God acts upon men as free and responsible agents, and so inspired the organs of revelation that they became his faithful witnesses in preaching and acting as well as in writing, but always in accordance with their education, their mode of thought and speech, and without superseding the ordinary means of information. The fact of inspiration is manifest, the mode of inspiration is as mysterious as the influence of the mind upon the body.

A WORD OF CHEER

By George Mueller

"Why art thou cast down, O my soul?" (Psa. 43:5).

Is there ever any ground to be cast down? There are two reasons, but only two. If we are as yet unconverted we have ground to be cast down, or if we are converted and live in sin then we are rightly cast down. But except for these two things there is no ground to be cast down, for all else may be brought before God in prayer with supplication and thanksgiving. And regarding all our necessities, all our difficulties, all our trials, we may exercise faith in the power of God, and in the love of God.

"Hope thou in God." Oh, remember this: there is never a time when we may not hope in God. Whatever our necessities, however great our difficulties, and though to all appearance help is impossible, yet our business is to hope in God, and it will be found that it is not in vain. In the Lord's own time help will come.

Oh, the hundreds, yea, the thousands of times that I have found it thus within the past seventy years and four months. When it seemed impossible that help could come, help did come; for God has His own resources. He is not confined. In ten thousand different ways, and at ten thousand different times God may help us. Our business is to spread our cases before the Lord, in childlike simplicity to pour out all our heart before God, telling Him, "I do not deserve that Thou shouldst hear me and answer my requests, but for the sake of my precious Lord Jesus; for His sake answer my prayer, and give me grace quietly to wait till it please Thee to answer my prayer. For I believe Thou wilt do it in Thine own time and way."

"For I shall yet praise Him." More prayer, more exercise of faith, more patient waiting, and the result will be blessing, abundant blessing. Thus I have found it many hundreds of times, and therefore I continually say to myself, "Hope thou in God."

—First Mennonite Church, Chicago, Ill.—Rev. A. H. Leaman has handed in his resignation as pastor and it was accepted by the Board and the Council of our Church. His resignation will take effect July 31 next. A fine spirit prevails in this growing church.—Corr.

R. Weinbrenner
Editor
Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen
Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers
Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

"Blessed are the Peace Makers"

Often we are inclined to talk and act as though this beatitude read, "Blessed are those who profess a belief in peace" or "Blessed are those who are untroubled about a man's attitude toward his neighbor." But such was not the teaching of Jesus. No, Jesus said that blessed are those who actively, in a positive manner make peace—who eliminate conflicts between man and God and man and man. These two functions of the peacemaker cannot be separated.

There is conflict between man and God as long as there is conflict between man and man. Jesus said, "For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you. But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses." He also said, "If therefore thou art offering thy gift at the alter, and there rememberest that thy brother hath aught against thee, leave there thy gift before the alter, and go thy way, first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift."

However, there cannot be peace between man and man when there is no peace between man and God. God is the source of all peace. He is continually offering this precious gift to man. As he accepts this gift he enters into the right relationship with God and with his fellowmen.

Therefore one who professes to love God, and yet insists that it is right for him to riddle the body of his neighbor with bullets has a very poor conception of the right relationship with God. Such individuals present a task for the peacemaker. As the latter brings such individuals into the right relationship with God and with man, he is blessed. R. W.

RETREAT IN OFFING

"The young people of Washington and Oregon are considering the possibility of having a retreat. We would like to have information concerning other Mennonite retreats." So writes Myrtle Aeschleman of Colfax, Washington, Route 3, box 27 a.

LOCATES OLD MINUTE BOOK

Helen Lichti, past treasurer of Young People's Union ran across the old or perhaps the original minute (secretary's) book of the Y. P. Committee. Perhaps it should be placed in the Mennonite Historical Library. Is there such a library?

Yes, at North Newton, Kansas, with Dr. A. Warkentin as librarian.—Editor.

SHOULD Y. P. CONFERENCE BE DELEGATED?

There is a revival of talk about copying the big conference and sending delegates to the Pennsylvania meeting of the young people's union in 1941. The Y. P. constitution drafted for adoption in 1938 had proposed "one delegate for each 25 or fraction thereof". In October, 1938, Y. P. Pres. Krehbiel revised the clause to read: "Each society is entitled to one vote."

WHY THE CHURCH NEEDS YOUNG PEOPLE?

Abe Regier of the Inman, Kansas, Mennonite C. E. says the Church needs young people because the young people represent the future of the Church. "And that from a child thou has known the holy Scriptures which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus." II Tim. 3:15.

SWIFT CURRENT

The Pacific District has sent in over $100.00 direct to the Home Mission Board. That is the only district that has sent in its quota according to its secretary, Florene Krehbiel, North Newton, Kansas. The Eastern District young people have voted to send in a similar quota.

RETURN OF MISSIONARIES

China and India are CALLING! The Foreign Mission Board has seven missionaries ready to go back but there is no money available for this now. Is YOUR society doing its share? To widen interest in missions we are having a contest between districts. Send your contributions to William Juhnke, treasurer for Y. P. Union, McPherson, Kansas.

LET'S READ

"Captain P. Mumford said pointedly: 'You cannot limit or humanize modern warfare. What is the difference between throwing five hundred babies into a fire and throwing fire from airplanes on five hundred babies? There is none. Yet people who abhor the idea of doing the former, approve doing of the latter.'" Quoted from WAR AND THE CHRISTIAN CONSCIENCE by John Horsch. This excellent sixteen-page pamphlet can be secured from the Mennonite Publishing House, Scottsdale, Pennsylvania for 5 cents.

—This is the Five Hundredth Anniversary of the Invention of the Art of Printing by Gutenberg, the beginning of the use of movable type which resulted in the printing of the Mazarin Bible. Just one hundred years later, in 1540, the first printing was done in Mexico, the product being religious books. Again, after a period of 100 years, in 1640, the first book was printed in the U. S., the socalled Bay Psalm Book, by Richard Mather.

Senior Department

Easter Lesson

Senior C. E. Topic for March 24, 1940.

MAIN TOPIC: Love Invincible: Lk. 24:46, 47; Mt. 28: 1-10.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Love divine, all love excelling", "Low in the grave he lay".
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer
3. Singing of a number of songs, either by various groups, by the C. E., or a choir.
4. Offering for mission project.

II. Leaders Introduction

Easter, celebrating the resurrection of Jesus Christ, is usually thought of as a demonstartion of the deathlessness of personality. That is its primary significance. But it may also be looked upon as a manifestation of the overcoming power of love.

Love was the motivation of Jesus' life. Love made Him willing to go to the cross. It was a love so great that no power of this world could hold it entombed. The Easter morning miracle affirms the invincible power of love.

"God is love," said John. And the converse is true, "Love is of God." That is why love is invincible.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talk

1. Love on the cross. Luke 23:39-43
2. The victory of love. I Cor. 15:53-57
3. The depth of God's love. Rom. 5:6-9
4. Human evidence of love. I John 4:7-12
5. The exalted Name. Phil. 2:5-11
6. Christ's love in action. Matt. 15:29-32

IV. For Discussion

1. What is the meaning of Easter?
2. Why do we believe in immortality?
3. What proof do we find in the history of the Church as to the fact that "Christ is risen from the dead"?
4. How does "the risen Christ" make our outlook on life different?

V. Facts for Study

Review the appearances of Jesus after his resurrection:

To the women at the tomb. Matt. 28:1-10

To Mary Magdalene. John 20:11-18

To Peter. Luke 24:34. I Cor. 15:5

To two disciples journeying to Emmaus. Luke 24:13-35

To ten disciples, Thomas being absent. Luke 24: 36-40; John 20; 19-23

To eleven disciples, Thomas being present. John 20: 26-29

To a number of disciples at the sea of Galilee. John 21:1-14

To more than five hundred followers. 1 Cor. 15:6

To James. I Cor. 15:7

To the disciples, just before the Ascension. Luke 24:50, 51; Acts 1:1-9

To Paul, near Damascus. Acts 9:1-9; I Cor. 15:8.

"Three Days Apart"

An unknown writer tells us that Calvary and Easter Day— "earth's blackest day, and whitest day"— were just three days apart. In reading the resurrection story one becomes keenly aware of this. Back of the open tomb was Calvary. Back of the sunrise and the astounding message of the angels was the midday darkness pierced by an anguished cry—"My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

Easter teaches us that life is ever lord of death. We watch bleak fields and shivering woodlands wrap themselves in snowy blankets while winter is abroad in the land. Then through stormy days and nights the earth swings steadily toward the sun, until there comes a morning when we catch a glint of green on bare boughs and sodden meadow lands. Soon there are rosy clouds of bloom in the orchards, and the gleam of unnumbered dandelions in the grass. "Spring is here!" we cry joyously. Against the gloom and chill of winter its brightness and warmth and bird song stand out in strong relief.

There was a time when the Lord of Life and Light yielded voluntarily to the power of death and darkness. For three days he rested in Joseph's garden tomb. Then the imprisoning stone and the seal of soverign Rome were swept aside, and he went forth to meet his disciples. He said, "Because I live, ye shall live also, and sent them out with this torch to kindle beacons of hope and faith in every land.

IV. Illustrations

Life and Light Thru Suffering

I read once of an artist who was desirous of painting the picture of the three crosses on Calvary. He painted first the face of the unrepentant thief; that was easy, for he had seen many men like that. Then he painted the face of the repentant thief upon whose face the light was breaking as he got a glimpse of the other world; that was harder, for he had never seen a face of just that kind. But after weeks and months of endeavor he was measurably satisfied. Then he painted the central cross and the central face. He tried day after day, week after week, month after month to paint that face, but failed. Then in despair he seized his brush and simply put upon that central cross one great burst of light. That is what is was—a great burst of light. There was the agony, and out of that comes the light that reaches down to you and me. —Selected.

VII. Food for Thought

"A song of sunshine through the rain,
Of spring across the snow;
A balm to heal the hurts of pain,
A peace surpassing woe.
Lift up your heads, ye sorrowing ones,
And be ye glad of heart,
For Calvary and Easter day
Were just three days apart.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

RESURRECTION AND ETERNAL LIFE

Intermediate C. E. Topic for March 24, 1940

For Daily Reading:

Mar. 18. Christ's words fulfilled. Mark 8:31-33.
Mar. 20. Salvation assured. 1 Cor. 15:12-20.
Mar. 20. Victory through the resurrection.
1 Cor. 15:54-57.
Mar. 21 "Yc shall live also." John 14:19.
Mar. 22 Believers' eternal life. John 11:25, 26.
Mar. 23. The saint's glorified body. Phil. 3:21.
Mar. 24. Topic. Luke 24:1-12, 33, 34.

Song "Christ Arose."
Scripture Reading Luke 24:1-12, 33, 34.
Prayer by Leader
Vocal Solo "In the Garden"

Prayer song "My Faith Looks Up To Thee"
Song "I Know That my Redeemer Liveth"
POEM

Because He Lives

Because He lives, I too, shall live;
  The same life quickens me
That held His spirit all secure
  Above the death-bound tree.

Because He lives, I cannot die.
  Death signifies no loss;
My soul shall know but spirit-change
  Because He knew the Cross.

Because He lives, Hiss Cross transmutes
  Death into life, for me;
And failure, fear, disease, and death,
  Love crowns with victory.

Adele Lathrop, F. H. Revell, Co.

Leader's talk:

"Easter is not Easter because Christ arose long ago, but because He still lives. Each Sunday commemorates His resurrection.

Since Christ died for us, we ought to live for Him. He needs our lives, for it was His plan that we take the gospel to all the world.

Because of the hope in eternal life which Christ gave to Christians, Easter should be a glad time for us. All things of life—sickness, hardship, poverty, persecution and death— are as nothing in the light of the Easter message."

Questions:

1. What hope does the resurrection of Jesus give to us?
2. What is the strongest proof of the resurrection?
3. What did Jesus mean when He said, "He that believeth shall never die"?
4. Do any of the other religious of the world have the hope that the Christian has?
5. Why is the springtime a proper setting for the Easter season?
6. Do we let material things, such as food and clothing, blot out the real meaning of Easter?
7. Give your idea of how Easter should be observed.

Easter Messages:

The Lord is risen indeed. Luke 24:34.

In Christ shall all things be made alive. 1 Cor. 15;22.

I know that my redeemer liveth. Job 19:25.

The dead in Christ shall rise first. 1 Thess. 4:16.

He that raised up the Lord Jesus shall raise us up also. 11Cor. 4:14.

I am the resurrection and the life. . . . whosoever liveth and believeth on me shall never die. John 11:25, 26.

Consecration Hymn "Jesus, Keep Me Near the Cross"

Offering

Benediction (Let each Intermediate quietly pray). For the close of this period of silence have the pianist play "The Old Rugged Cross".

(Helps for this topic were received from Nevada Miller Whitwell's book "Intermediate Expressional Service).

But now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept.—Bible.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Program for March 24, 1940

(Easter Sunday)

JESUS' "I AM'S"

"I Am the Resurrection and the Life" John 11:25.

To the leaders.

Easter is the happiest, the most joyful day of all the year, for the Christian. Let us make it a day of joy for our Juniors, helping them to understand what "Easter" really means.

I have read that the Russian church had a beautiful Easter custom. Early in the morning of the Resurrection Day the children, who had been learning Easter songs during Lent, would hide in the branches of evergreen trees near the church. Then when the people came to the service the unseen children would break into joyous song. Perhaps our Juniors could gladden the heart of some shut-in with a glad song, and maybe a card of greeting or a flower on this Easter Day.

Another beautiful custom found in Eastern Europe was the salutation of friends and neighbors on Easter morning. We shall use this greeting as our "Call to Worship'.'

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude "Christ the Lord is Risen Today".
2. Call to Worship

Leader: "The Lord is risen."
Juniors: "The Lord is risen indeed!"
In Unison: Let us praise His Name."

3. Song in unison, standing, "Christ, the Lord is Risen Today" - Service Hymnal. No. 98.
4. Scripture reading. (Choose someone to read the scripture who will read it well.) John 20:1-8, 11-16;18.
5. Leader's Prayer.
6. Solo - "Low in the Grave He Lay" — Mennonite Hymn Book No. 121.
7. Poem:

"The Easter Life"

—Homera Hodgson

Sing aloud the glorious tidings—
"Christ is risen today"!
Far and wide the echoes answer,
"Death has lost its sway."

Sing till in the breeze the message
Sweeps around the earth—
Sing till clouds and hills and forests
Ring with holy mirth.

Christ is risen, death is conquered—
Tell it far and wide;
Sing aloud till all creation
Know the Crucified.

Sing aloud the Easter message;
Live the message, too!
By His grace let Easter's triumph
Show itself in you.

Let His power and wondrous glory
Fill your heart today;
Live an Easter life at Easter—
Live an Easter life alway.

8. Song in unison "Jesus the Very Thought of Thee" — Mennonite Hymn Book No. 93.

Study Period

Aim: To help our Juniors rejoice in Him, who is the "Resurrection and the Life".

1. Jesus said, "I am the resurrection and the life." Let us find the passage of scripture in which these words occur and read it. John, chapter eleven, verse one to forty-four.

2. Discuss:

"What does Jesus mean when He says, "I am the Resurrection and the Life"?

3. What does Jesus mean when He says "Because I live, ye shall live also"?

4. Song "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth"
Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 119.

5. Promises of life after death.

Make this Bible drill a little different when a Junior has found the verse called for he should quietly raise his hand, the first one to raise his hand receives a cut-out Easter Lily upon which the Chapter and verse is written. When all the passages have been found those who have more than one Easter Lily give to those who have none. Then each in turn find and read the passage given.

The cut-out Easter Lily may be used as a pin-on to take home.

John 11:25; John 11:26; John 5:21; John 6:40; John 12:25; John 14:6; John 14:19; John 5:28, 29; John 5:24; John 17:3; John 17:24; John 10: 27-29; John 10:10; John 6:47 John 5:25; I Cor. 15:55-57; I Cor. 6:14; I Cor. 15:51-52; Rom. 8:11; I Thess. 4: 14-17; Matt. 22:31, 32; Rev. 1:18.

6. In unison from memory or black board. John 11:25, 26.

7. Leader's heart talk

III. Missionary Minutes

1. There are two long letters in the March "Missionary News and Notes". Let several Juniors find items of interest from each one and bring them at this time.

3. A brief season of prayer for our missionaries

IV. Closing Moments

1. Sing, prayerfully "My Jesus I Love Thee."
2. Repeat verse for the month.—John 6:63b.
3. Pray prayer for the month.—Psalm 51:15.
4. Follow this by leader's closing prayer and close with prayer song, "Into My Heart."

—A Fine Spirit Manifested.—Mrs. Martin Fast, Alsen, North Dakota, has been reported as church correspondent. She writes that she has received envelopes and cards, but cannot write English. However, she will try to interest one of their young people in the task. "It is too bad," she says, "that so few read our conference papers. If they did, they would become more interested in our missions and other conference activities."

—"REVIVAL—Such services are conducted for the reviving of God's children who have become indifferent in the things of God, and not for the salvation of souls. One can revive only those who have life. Unsaved people need to be awakened from the dead. However, unsaved folks are always invited to Christ. Such services are not conducted to bring members into our church, but into the True Church, and for the spiritual help they may be to all people of the commpnity." —Bulletin, East Swamp.

HAS THE CHURCH FAILED?

In its January number the magazine FORTUNE brought an article which contains some pointed charges against the Church and its ministry. Since this article gives us food for serious thought we shall here give some extracts from it:

"But while his (namely the American's) original debt to the Church is thus profound and utterly without price, it cannot be said that for the past hundred years or so, it has been much increased. It cannot be said that this period, characterized by the greatest material progress that man has ever made, is characterized by an equivalent spiritual progress. . . .

"We have, therefore, the peculiar spectacle of a nation which, to some extent, practices Christianity without actively believing in Christianity. It practices Christianity because the teachings of the Church have been absorbed into its culture or ethos; but it fails to believe because it is no longer effectively taught. The Christian leadership has passed from the hands of the Church to the hands of the active and practical laity—the statesmen and educators, the columnists and pundits, the scientists and great men of action. And this is another way of saying that there is no true Christian leadership at all. Hence the future of Christianity, and of its derivative political and social doctrines, has become imperiled."

How thoughtful the inference that the real Christian dynamic is not practice but teaching! And do we not find considerable truth in the statement: "We have, therefore, the peculiar spectacle of a nation which practices Christianity without actively believing it?"

"The way out is the sound of a voice, not our voice, but a voice coming from something not ourselves, in the experience of which we cannot disbelieve. It is the earthly task of the pastors to hear this voice to cause us to hear it, and to tell us what it says. If they cannot hear it, or if they fail to tell us, we, as laymen are utterly lost. Without it we are no more capable of saving the world than we are of creating it in the first place."

The answer to what this voice is to be, the Moody Monthly thinks was given a hundred years ago by the great French preacher Adolphe Monod, in the following passage:

"I declare to you . . . that all the discussions which in later years have been raised upon the inspiration and divine authority of the Word of God . . . have only confirmed me . . . in the unalterable conviction that when Scripture speaks God speaks; when it proclaims His will, the way of salvation, the grand doctrine of sin and pardon, of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, what it tells us is not less assuredly true and absolutely true, than if at this moment the heavens were to open over our heads and the voice of God should thunder as of old on Sinai, telling us the same things."

Better Peace Possibilties Now than After the War

"The fact that the present stalemate is likely to continue indefinitely is beginning to dawn upon observers everywhere, despite the propaganda of both sides. Germany's active front is a little strip of coastline between Holland and Denmark. Thes Western Front is closed, dead, and apparently likely to remain so. Germany has no Eastern Front in this war and her eastern and southern gates are open to supplies from all the world. This situation is far more favorable than that of 1914-18, when it took four years and a half to bring about her surrender, which even then might not have come if it had not been for the inducements offered by President Wilson's Fourteen Points. The common prediction of a five-year war, which assumes an ultimate Allied victory, is probably not unduly pessimistic. But who can foretell what the state of Europe will be five years from now? The common purpose of the belligerents is to lower the living standards of their enemies, to the starvation point if possible. If the effort succeeds on either side, revolution will be prevented only by a harsher dictatorship. Hatred is bound to increase with the war. To pretend that this is the way to a peace filled with sweetness and light is fanciful. Already the French are sharpening their knives for the carving up of Germany into ineffective pieces which, they hope, will never unite again. Britain's new War Minister, Oliver Stanley, struck a similar note in his first speech when he said that Britain's war aim is to strip from the German people forever "under this regime or any other regime, the power to make war." Since presumably it is assumed that Britain and France will retain this power, as they did after Versailles, the hopelessness of the "peace" that would follow victory is all too clear. There is only one conclusion possible from this situation. It is that a better peace can be made now than could be made after victory for the Allies. That a better peace would follow a victory for Hitler, no one would maintain. What we all want is a just and lasting peace. The object of these exploratory moves is to find out if such a peace is possible now through neutral mediation. —Peace Action.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA.

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Business Office, Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kans.
Editor .... J. R. Thierstein, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.50 .... Foreign, $2.00

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges, to J. R. THIERSTEIN, or the MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS.

CORRESPONDENCE

GRACE MENN. CHURCH, PANDORA, OHIO

At our annual business meeting on Jan. 1, I was given the responsibility to write to the church paper.

January 13 and 21 Missionary J. J. Thiessen brought the messages. At the latter service Harold Thiessen furnished special music on the violin accompanied on the piano by his sister.—Feb. 1, Rev. Whitmer returned from Columbus where he had been in attendance at the Ohio Pastors Convention.—During the week of Feb. 11-16, some of our church members availed themselves of the annual Bible lectures at Bluffton College.—The choir is rehearsing, "Olivet to Calvary," by Maunder, one-half to be sung March 10 and the other half March 17. "The Seven Last Words" by Dubois is to be sung on Easter.—Mrs. J. J. Thiessen was speaker at the World's Day of Prayer for Women at the Missionary Church.—Feb. 11, Dr. H. A. Fast reported on his South American trip, illustrating it by moving pictures.

Feb. 14, Rev. and Mrs. P. E. Whitmer became grandparents. A son Richard was born to Mr. and Mrs. Dana Whitmer at Columbus, Ohio.

Feb. 18, Robert Sommer, student at Bluffton College, brought the message. Our annual Pre-Easter services are scheduled for Mar. 10-17. Dr. E. G. Kaufman of Bethel College is to be the speaker.

Mrs. Selma C. Sommer, Corr.

* * *

BETHANY CHURCH, QUAKERTOWN, PA.

The Bethany Church has been conducting a series of pre-Easter services, from Feb. 25 to March 1, with Rev. Freeman Swartz of the Eden Mennonite Church, Schwenksville, Pa., as speaker. He based his meditations on the Book of Romans. The topics follow: Sunday, Feb. 25, "The Revelation of God's Righteousness," 1:17-20; Tuesday, Feb. 27, "How God Can Righteously Forgive Sins," 3:19-26; Wednesday, Feb. 28, "The Titanic Struggle of Good and Evil," 7:13-25; Thursday, Feb. 29, "The Transforming Power of God's Righteousness," 12:1-2; Friday, March 1, "The Great Christian Bond," 16:1-24.

—Correspondent.

* * *

EBENEZER CHURCH, GOTEBO, OKLA. 2-18-40

We regret very much that we are left without a regular minister for 1940. Rev. Henry Hege who has been our preacher for the past eight and one-half years, moved to Corn, Okla., where he is employed as teacher in the high school, and is serving the Bergtal Church near there. He labored hard and sacrificed much for our church while here.

Several other members have also moved, but if God sees fit we want to build up new hope and carry on Sunday School and preaching services. Every member has pledged a given amount to repair the old church and try to secure a permanent shepherd for our church. But, unless God sets His blessing on this undertaking, we will fail. May He give us a revival which we need so badly.—We are very thankful to the different ministers and missionaries who have visited in our church and given us messages of inspiration.

Death has come into our midst and has taken two of our oldest members. In spring Mrs. Abraham Beier and in November Mrs. Foth, a devout Christain past 92 years. In her early life she had memorized much of the Bible and during her last few months, when her memory was practically void to all else, she would recite chapters of the Scriptures. Mrs. Foth was the mother of Elizabeth Foth, Missionary in Brooklyn, N. Y.

The great drouth has affected this section of the country very much. Wheat is beginning to come up after the snows in January.—Mrs. Oscar Schmidt, Cor.

* * *

MENNONITE CHURCH, SHAFTER, CALIF.

We have been having a series of meetings in our church the past two weeks conducted by the blind evangelist, Rev. J. J. Esau, formerly of Mt. Lake, Minn. The meetings have been well attended and the Lord blessed us through his ministry. Some of the subject he treated were, "The Christian's Walk with God"—"Bearing the Marks of the Lord Jesus"—"The Bible, the Inexhaustable Treasure"—"The Christian Church and Her Mission"—"The Rich Young Ruler" and "What Prospects Do We Have for This World?"

A group of young men and women from the six different churches in California met here in our church recently and made out a program for the S. S. and C. E. conventions, to be held on April 12-14, in the Paso Robles Church. May the Lord richly bless that convention. In the three months we have been here, my wife and I have visited about 70 families where we had the privilege of reading God's Word and pray together.

The weather has been nice lately. Many are planting potatoes, some as many as 700 acres. Nick Neufeld has $5000.00 worth of seed potatoes, ready to be planted soon. Everything is green, grain is 6 to 10 inches high and so is the alfalfa. Here within a mile of Shafter is a Government Migrant Camp with about 1000 migrants. A Rev. Mr. Pietsch is working amongst them. He would like to have some young couple or brother to take it over, as he wants to go into other government camps.

Well, Miss Donna Goershing is our correspondent for THE MENNONITE so I will leave something for her to write. We like THE MENNONITE and I think it should be in every home. Yours for the Master,

—J. P. Glanzer, Pastor.

IN MEMORIAM

MARIE CLAASSEN, daughter of John J. and Catharine Penner Claassen, was born Feb. 10, 1904, in Jefferson County, Nebraska. She received her education in the rural school and in the church Bible School taught at that time by the late teacher and Rev. J. K. Penner. Upon her confession of her faith she was baptized May 15, 1921, by Elder Franz Albrecht and became a member of the First Mennonite Church of Beatrice, Nebraska. Her father and two brothers preceded her in death.—She has been in failing health for the last eight years.—After taking seriously sick January 1, she was taken to the Mennonite Hospital, where she willingly answered her Master's call, in whom she had put her faith and trust, the following morning.

She is survived by her mother, 5 sisters, 3 brothers, 2 sisters-in-law, 2 brothers-in-law, 11 nieces and many relatives and friends.—Funeral services were held at the home by Rev. Cornelius Penner and her uncle Rev. Albert Claassen, Freeman, S. D. A men's octette sang several songs in the home and the church. Rev. Albert Claassen and Elder Franz Albrecht spoke messages of comfort in the church.

* * *

DR. PAUL EWERT, son of Professor H. H. Ewert, died suddenly due to heart attack at his home in Golden, B. C., on Sunday night, February 4, 1940. At the age of 56 years, 5 months and 9 days. Funeral took place at Golden, B. C., Wednesday, February 7th. He was born at Newton, Kansas, August 23, 1883. In 1891, at the age of 8 years, he came with his parents to Gretna, Manitoba. Here he attended public school and the Mennonite Collegiate Institute. Later on he attended Bethel College at Newton, Kansas, where he had been born, and then the college at Oberlin, Ohio, where he took his M. A.—After that he studied medicine at McGill University, Montreal, where he graduated in 1912. Whereupon he spent one year as interne in Vancouver General Hospital, and then came to Golden, B. C., where he has been ever since, in the practice of his profession, with the exception of about one year, when he was overseas in England, with the Army Medical Corps, during the war.

On October 4th, 1921, he married Miss Anne Beattie.—Two sons were born to them, Vaughan and Carl.—Besides his dear wife and the two sons there are his three brothers, Dr. Carl Ewert of Prince George, B. C., Dr. William Ewert of Altona, Manitoba, and Professor Alfred Ewert of Oxford, England, and one sister, Elma Ewert, a graduate nurse, at present at Port Chester in the state of New York, and many other relatives and friends to mourn his sudden passing.—The undersigned is an uncle of the deceased.

—Benjamin Ewert

CORNELIUS S. FRIESEN, son of John and Maria Sherling Friesen, was born at Mariental, South Russia, September 12, 1857. He passed away suddenly while seated in a rocking chair at the home of his children, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Stucky, in Alta Township, on January 13, at the age of 82 years, 4 months and one day.

At the age of 17, 1874, he, with many other relatives and friends, came to this country and settled at Halstead. He lived in Harvey and Reno counties ever since. In 1878 he was baptized upon confession of his faith and united with the Bethel Mennonite Church at Inman. Later he transferred his membership to the Hebron Mennonite Church at Buhler.

On May 25, 1882, he was married to Maria Epp. For almost 49 years they shared the experiences of life. On May 17, 1931, death entered the home and took his wife from him. Six daughters and five sons were born to them; two of the daughters, Helen and Martha, departed this life before the father.—He is survived by the following children: Mary, Mrs. Jacob B. Stucky of Moundridge; Frank of Burrton; Elizabeth, Mrs. Julius Base of Hutchinson; Katie, Mrs. John E. Stucky of Moundridge; Curt of Hutchinson; John of Halstead; Susie, Mrs. Aaron Ratzlaff of Horton, Abe of Moundridge, and David of Hutchinson; also three brothers, Abraham S. of the Bethel Home for the Aged, Newton; Klass N. of Burrton, and Peter S., Paxton, Nebr.; 34 grandchildren, 9 great-grandchildren, and many other relatives and friends.

Funeral services, held at the Mennonite Church, were conducted by the Reverends D. C. Wedel and P. P. Wedel.

* * *

HELENE ZIMMERMAN, daughter of Johannes and Marie Wiebe von Riesen, was born August 24, 1861, at Tralau, near Marienburg, West Prussia. She received her first education in Traulau. Since the Mennonites could no more receive exemption from military training, her parents moved to Russia in 1870. In only a few years this privilege was also denied them there and they moved back to Prussia, and in 1876 they migrated, with a group of relatives and friends, to America.

She was baptized upon her confession of faith by Elder Leonard Suderman.—On Nov. 3, 1881, she was married to Johannes Andreas Zimmerman. This union lasted 33 years, when her husband preceded her in death. Seven children blessed the couple, one of whom passed away in infancy.

On Dec. 25, 1936, she fell and broke her hip. She spent 3 months in the Mennonite Hospital and then went to her home to recuperate. Her strength failing the last three months, it became her greatest desire to "go home." She was called to her eternal home Jan. 8, at the age of 78 years, 4 months and 15 days.

She leaves to mourn her departure 2 sons, 4 daughters, 2 daughters-in-law, 4 sons-in-law, 11 grandchildren. Funeral services were held at the home by Rev. J. B. Epp and from the First Mennonite Church, of which she was a member, by Rev. Franz Albrecht and Rev. C. Penner.

MARIA SCHRAG, daughter of Jacob and Maria Graber, was born Feb. 20, 1874, in Russia. She died Feb. 10, 1940, in her home near Marion, South Dakota, at the age of 65 years, 11 months, and 20 days. In the year 1882, the family moved to America, making their home on a farm near Marion, S. Dakota. Her educational advantages were few, however, she knew how to use her meager training in practical life to the best of results.

March 30th she was baptized by Rev. Joseph Kaufman and received into the Zion congregation. Later she united with the Salem-Zion Church of which she remained a faithful member to the end of her days. —On Oct. 31, 1890, she was married to her surviving husband with whom she faithfully shared the joys and sorrows of married life for 49 years, 3 months and 9 days. They engaged in farming and remained active therein until her departure. Amid the hardships of their life an accident stands out, when in Nov. 1904 she was run over by a run-away team in their farmyard. A leg fracture and other injuries laid her up for many months. She recovered but retained much suffering therefrom the rest of her life.—The union was blest with 14 children, 9 daughters and 5 sons, of whom 2 sons and 2 daughters died in early childhood.

During the spring of 1939, she began to suffer from weariness and failing strength. A thorough examination revealed that cancer of the lungs had set in. All medical aid failed. She rarely complained of much pain, though this at times was pronounced. On Feb. 10, in the afternoon she was permitted to depart this life without a struggle. Having committed her life into the hands of her Savior, she looked forward patiently to the meeting with her Lord, knowing that He had prepared her a better and abiding home in heaven.

Her departure leaves to mourn her sorrowing husband, 7 daughters, 3 sons, 7 sons-in-law, one daughter-in-law, 18 grandchildren, 5 brothers, 2 sisters, and many other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. A. P. Waltner, Rev. John J. Schrag, and her pastor, H. A. Claassen, Feb. 12th. A men's quartette sang in the home, the church and the cemetary.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(Concluded from page 7)

triumphed through the sacrifice of himself. He paid the price necessary for our salvation. The real victor today is the one who steadfastly gives his supreme allegiance to Christ even though it may involve much sacrifice. Many a martyr has triumphed through the laying down of his life while living up to his convictions. Through the greatest sacrifice ever made, the redemption of a lost world was achieved.

« « JOTTINGS » »

—First Menn. Church, Hillsboro, Kansas. — The Kansas District Y. W. C. A. and Girl Reserve Conference convened in Hillsboro, Jan. 26-28. 328 delegates representing 43 communities were present. The Conference voted to go on record as being actively interested in preserving peace by thinking, speaking, and praying peace.—On Feb. 12th, the 64th birthday of Missionary P. W. Penner was appropriately observed by a large group of friends from the Brudertal and our churches. A program of unusual interest preceded a delicious supper in the church basement. Mr. and Mrs. Penner were remembered with monetary gifts from their many friends.—Our church choir with other singers is preparing the Easter cantata, "Hosanna" by Nolte, for rendition on Easter Sunday.—Dr. Hess of McPherson College spoke here at a union peace meeting, Feb. 25, on the subject, "The Seven Thousand Who Have not Bowed Their Knees to Mars." It was his experiences as a conscientious objector and prisoner during the World War. The address was so penetrating and so challenging, it compelled one to pray, "Lord, make us equal to the testings ahead, if another war comes." Corr.

—West Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa.—We are in the midst of a Bible Study Course, by studying the book, "Through the Bible." The meetings are well attended. Before the Bible Study, each week, a class of 21 catechumens are getting instruction and will be ready to join the church later in spring. We are planing Pre-Easter Services, for March 11-17, with Missionary John Thiessen as speaker. We trust they will be well attended. —Corr.

—"The Second Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebr., has, by unanimous vote, extended the call to Rev. R. Weinbrenner for a period of 3 years. The congregation greatly appreciates the services he and Mrs. Weinbrenner are rendering. May God richly bless them in His service." W. C. A. Corr.

—NUGGETS FROM A MEDITATION ON GIVING by Dr. J. H. Langenwalter.—As one looks at life in this Universe, one is deeply impressed with God's orderly arrangement of giving. There is the giving of life that there may be life all around us. There is the giving of self that other selves may have a better chance everywhere.—It is not a question whether one will give, but of how and what.—We can give in an orderly, systematic, business-like and honorable way, or we can do it aimlessly. The former manner leads to an increased appreciation of giving, the latter to an unsatisfied attitude.—The Tithing System of the O. T. taught and practiced by the Children of Israel has valuable lessons for us today, though under vastly different conditions.—All giving has to do with what we have and with what we are.—We all give . . . willingly or unwillingly. In the end we either give or lose what we have and what we are. —Bulletin

—First Menn. Church, Halstead, Kans. — The World's Day of Prayer was observed in a union meeting of the local churches, at the Presbyterian church. The three devotional periods at 9, 10, 11 o'clock were conducted by a leader of each of the churches. The thought that our praying group was a link in a prayer chain encircling the globe, made the morning an inspiration and a blessing. In the afternoon Mrs. Hart of Wichita who has traveled extensively in the interest of missions gave an interesting address to a large audience, and brought us a blessing. An offering was taken for the fields supported through the World's Day of Prayer.—The Men's Bible Class presented the church a new pulpit Bible.—The redidication of the church building which was somewhat damaged by fire weeks ago took place Sunday, Feb. 26.

—From Rev. Edmund Miller, Lind, Washington.—"We are happily settled in our parsonage, and in our work. The spirit of cooperation, friendliness and generosity is easily discerned among this group. We are looking forward to a blessed time. During the Lenten season we are delivering seven sermons, presenting the suffering and victorious Christ, as follows: "Christ in Gethsemane."—"Christ on Trial before Pilate."—"Christ Traveling the Calvary Road."—"The Forsaken Christ."—"The Thirsting Christ."—"Christ's Cry of Victory." — "Christ's Last Word from the Cross."

—Rev. P. J. Boehr of Richlandtown, Pa. on his return from the funeral of his father, at Henderson, Nebraska, visited his son Richard at the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago. Next he stopped off at Berne, Ind., to visit relatives and friends, then proceeded to Bluffton, Ohio, to spend the week-end with his son John, student at Bluffton College. The Boehrs are scheduled to return to the China mission field this year. —Berne Witness.

ORDER BLANK

MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE
Newton, Kansas

Place a cross in the order used.

☐ I wish to become a new subscriber of THE MENNONITE, and am enclosing the special price of $1.00 for the first year.

☐ I hereby renew my subscription to The Mennonite and enclose $________, for which credit me as far as it goes. Regular price is $1.50 a year.

Kansas subscribers shoul add 2 per cent. for taxes.

Old subscribers paying to 1941 or beyond get the YEAR BOOK free. This very valuable book may be had by anyone, postpaid, for $.25.

Name ______________________________________

Street or Route ____________________________

City _______________ State _________________

1001 EAST BROADWAY
NEWTON, KANSAS
JA 41
KEY
47

MISSION NUMBER

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, MARCH 12, 1940 NUMBER 11

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

FOREIGN MISSIONS

REMARKS ON THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

From February 20-22 the Board of Foreign Missions held its annual meeting at Newton, Kansas. For three days we labored to arrange the mission work for another year; but as we worked and faced the many problems connected with the work we also enjoyed blessed fellowship. To hear of the results from the fields is always a source of joy and inspiration. It is encouraging to know that the past year too has yielded precious fruit in souls saved through Christ the crucified and risen One. It is soul distressing, on the other hand, to see needs and to be unable to supply them.

Urgent appeals came from India and China for an increase in the number of mission workers. Our China Worker's Conference requested that P. J. Boehrs, Miss Marie J. Regier and S. J. Goerings might be sent to the field this year, as well as W. C. Voths. From the India Worker's Conference came the plea that P. W. Penners and J. J. Thiessens be returned and that a new couple be sent. Both of the fields also requested the sending of a doctor, a nurse and a teacher. How gladly we would have complied with each one of these requests. All the missionaries are ready and anxious to return to the field. We also have the candidates who are ready to go out, with exception of the doctors, so that we could meet most of the requests for new workers, if only the necessary funds were available.

Realizing that funds would not permit sending out so many people, the Board asked itself, "Whom shall we send of those asked for?" "Who shall be detained for another year?" "Already two years ago and then again last year a new couple received the definite promise that they would be sent out this year. Dare we disappoint them?" Like mountains these questions confronted the Board.

After much prayerful consideration it was decided to send out P. J. Boehrs, Miss Marie J. Regier and a new couple to China; P. W. Penners are to return to India, and a new couple also is to be sent. Another new couple is to go to Montana to study the Cheyenne language. Whether they shall be stationed in Montana or Oklahoma will be decided when they have studied the language.

Can we undertake all this? It will require at least $75,000 to carry out our mission program for this year. Would that all the members of our General Conference Churches might be so loyal to our own mission cause that all their mission contributions would be directed to our treasury. Our foreign mission field is the child of our Conference, our child. Shall our children not come first? If there would be such loyalty we could undertake to send out all workers that have been requested and have a balance in the treasury at the end of the year. It is lack of funds that forces the Board to limit the number to be sent out this year.

It is necessary to make application for passage on the boats early. The Board therefore has ordered the immediate booking for the passage of the above mentioned five persons for China and four workers for India. What if funds to pay this passage should not be at hand when they are to sail? In the Board meeting we said one to another, "Ours is a FAITH MISSION. Let us venture forth in faith also in this matter and pray the Lord to provide." We plead with our constituency to join our prayers that the Lord might provide in such a way that it will be possible to send the workers and to carry on our whole mission enterprise to the salvation of many precious souls.

P. P. Wedel, President Board of Foreign Missions

REPORT OF THE FOREIGN MISSION BOARD MEETING held in the Kansas State Bank committee room, Newton, Kansas, Feb. 20-22, 1940

For the opening of the session the president of the Board read, Rom 10:11-15, with some remarks on the passage as it throws light on our work. Then followed a brief season of prayer.

All Board members were present: P. P. Wedel, A. E. Kreider, M. Horsch, H. G. Nyce, A. P. Waltner, J. E. Regier, and P. H. Richert. The Field Secretary, H. A. Fast, and the officers of the Women's Societies Association were also present, namely: Mrs. R. A. Goerz, Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Mrs. J. E. Kaufman and Miss Elizabeth Voran. The missionaries P. W. Penners and W. C. Voths were called in when their fields were discussed.

Missionary R. Petter sent the following telegram: "My natal day greetings. Rev. 15:3-4." In reply it was decided:

1. Resolved to send Brother Petter "a letter of acknowledgement and thanks with best wishes for the years to come."—Another greeting was sent as follows:

2. Resolved to send "our best wishes for a speedy recovery to Dr. P. R. Schroeder." (He is the father of one of our new missionaries in India, Mrs. Orlando Waltner.)

The first report read was that by the treasurer, J. E. Regier. The following is a brief summary of his report:

Receipts:
Balance in Bank, Jan. 1, 1939		$ 1,323.79
General Fund	$63,582.18
Special Support	6,591.41
Interest and Rent	2,127.62
Pension	233.59
Small accounts	35.10
Auto Accounts	729.30
China Relief	432.82
Sundries	1,589.77	75,309.79
		$76,633.76
Disbursements	$75,519.87
Other Expenses	1,000.00	76,519.87
Balance in Bank, Jan. 1, 1940		$ 113.98

4. Resolved to give the treasurer a vote of thanks for his efficient service, which he does gratis.

5. Resolved to send also Mr. D. W. Friesen, Assistant Treasurer for Canada, a vote of thanks for his good services.

ARIZONA

6. Resolved to reply to Brother Suderman's report about more room for some of his meetings, that no solicitation should be done until the Board takes further action on the matter.

7.Resolved to accept the following budgets for Arizona:

Moencopi		Hotevilla
Fuel	$50.00	Fuel	$30.00
Repairs	5.00	Mission Fence	15.00
Lamp	8.00	Blackboard	8.00
	$63.00		$53.00

Oraibi
Interpreter	$180.00
Blackboard	8.00
	$188.00

8. Resolved, in view of the need of the church in Oraibi for more space for Sunday School purposes, etc., that a plan be worked out during the present year, awaiting final action at the next annual meeting of the board.

MONTANA

Lame Deer—Native Helpers	$380.00
Busby—Budget	$100.00
Ashland—Native Helpers	$100.00
Budget	$175.00
Total	$755.00

10. Resolved, that we do not see our way clear to continue the support of two single lady helpers on this field, and we ask Miss Marie Buller to move to Ashland to take Miss Gibbs' place under the same arrangement as those under which she works at Lame Deer.

11. Resolved, to send the new couple, Bro. and Sister Arthur Friesen, to Busby for language study.

12. Resolved, to specify to our native workers in Montana under what conditions they can be ordained, namely some such way as this:

1. Have a thorough and systematic Bible training
2. Have the promise of their partial (financial) support by the Cheyenne church there.
3. Be willing to occupy or stay at any of the other stations, to which the Mission Board might assign them.
4. Would be ready to be such helpers or ministers with only a certain small compensation from the Mission (as is the case with the Nez Perces ministers, who get or got some $150.00 from their Board and the rest from their congregations.)

OKLAHOMA

13. Resolved, to ask Bro. P. P. Wedel, together with the Oklahoma missionaries, to investigate the opportunity to get a house in Canton for our missionaries in exchange for a piece of mission land.

14. Resolved, to accept the following budgets for Oklahoma:

Cantonment District (Canton, Fonda, Longdale)
Budget—$300.00; Native Helpers—$600.00
Clinton, Hammon, and Thomas
Budget—$300.00; Native Helpers—$800.00

15. Resolved, to ask Brother Ediger to attend the Regional Conference (Indian).

CHINA

16. Resolved, to allow the following budget for:

Evangelistic	Mex. 16,396
Educational	9,200
Medical (School of Nursing, Hospital)	15,200
Property Committee	900
Travel	1,150
Special Allowances to native helpers	7,000
School (Hua Mei)	3,500
Total Mex.	53,346
U. S.	$5,336.00

17. Resolved, to return Sister Marie J. Regier and Brother and Sister P. J. Boehr to China this fall.

18. Resolved, to retain Brother and Sister W. C. Voth another year in the home field for deputation work in the churches.

19. Resolved, that our Executive Committee refer the Kuhlmann request to the Executive Committee of the General Conference.

20. Resolved, to send Brother and Sister Wuethrich to China this coming fall.

21. Resolved, to send copies of the Kuhlman correspondence to our missionaries in China for their reaction to the same.

22. Resolved, that we are sorry not to be able to send Brother and Sister Goering back to China this year, but we hope to do so next year.

INDIA

23. Resolved, to postpone the building of the new bungalow asked for.

24. Resolved, to return to India this coming fall Brother and Sister P. W. Penner.

25. Resolved, to turn over to the Women's Association and the Young People's Association the request from India for Rs. 9000 (U. S. about $2800.00) to cover it by special gifts. (This is for the Boy's Middle school, that has to be moved on account of flood danger.)

26. Resolved, to accept the India budget to the extent of 16,500.00, the same as last year (instead of the over 20,000.00 asked for).

27. Resolved, in reply to India's request for an inspector, that under present war conditions the Board does not consider this the proper time to send a representative of the Board to the mission fields.

28. Resolved, to send Brother and Sister Harold Ratzlaff to India next fall.

29. Resolved, to retain Brother and Sister John Thiessen in the home land for deputation work another year.

30. Resolved, to leave it to the Women's Association to take up the solicitation for the $240.00 asked for by Dr. Dester for a native doctor's house and salary.

31. Resolved, to pay Brother and Sister Wiens half salary next year.

32. Resolved, that we suggest to sister Alida Schrag that another year of practical nursing in the home land may be advisable. We hope to send her to India next year.

GENERAL

33. Resolved, that the Board talk over with our Medical Advisor, Dr. R. S. Haury, the advisability of greater scope and thoroughness in the examination of our mission candidates.

34. Resolved, that either a Board member, or Brother J. Thiessen (if he is not too far west at the time) attend the F. M. Conference next June.

35. Resolved, in view of the fact that the pension plan provides for a possible deduction from the pension payments by considering all the other income of the pensioner (rent, interest, wages) besides the pension, the Board decides to split such other income into half by retaining one half of it in the treasury. (This deduction is based on the following provision in the pension plan: "If the pensioner has other income either in his own name or his wife's name, or received by his children during their minority, he is in honor bound to state its amount to the Board, so that the Board may decide whether any deductions should be made from the pension. Failure to make such a statement forfeits his standing as a pensioned missionary.") Since this is our first step in the application of the pension plan, it is open to later revision as far as its interpretation is concerned.

36. Resolved, to publish in our papers that our regulations require a full college course by missionaries, besides the necessary Bible knowledge, before they can be sent out.

37. Resolved, to print some additional information

3. Resolved to accept the treasurer's report.

for our missionaries about details not contained in our rules.

38. Resolved, to refer Bro. J. B. Epp's letter to our Relief Committee.

39. Resolved, to accept the total budget for this year (1940), namely, $74,993.60. (This is based on last year's income, which was $75,000.00. If we had allowed all the needs asked for by the missionaries, it would have been almost $85,000.00. Should more come in than this allowed budget, there would be immediate use for it for needed buildings, etc.)

40. Resolved, to thank all our mission friends, churches, S. E. Societies, S. Schools, and especially the Women's Association for their faithful and sacrificial support of our work. We are glad for the increasing number of readers of the "News and Notes," issued by the Women's societies. While the gifts per church member are smaller than before the depression, they are still three times larger than the average for all denominations, which is about 75 cents. The average in our conference is about $2.50. In the best years it used to be over $5.00.

41. Resolved, to thank our mission workers for their faithful planting and watering, and the Lord for giving the increase, so that during 1939, 503 souls could be added to the church by baptism.

42. Resolved, to thank the officials of the Kansas State Bank for the use of their fine committee room for our sessions, and Brother C. F. Claassen for his kind entertainment.

43. Resolved, to thank the Lord for his guiding and protecting hand over our work, so that even in China the work could go on, and no missionaries lost their lives, and even two new workers could be sent there, as also to India, besides the four that could be returned, and the two that could be sent to Oklahoma as successors to Brother and sister Linscheid.

44. Resolved to adjourn. Brother Horsch led in the closing prayer.

P. P. Wedel, President, P. H. Richert, Secretary

ARIZONA

Statistics

Number enrolled in Sunday School	115
Average attendance in 1939	62
Number of funerals	5
Active Christians	26
(A number have backslidden)
Number of conversions	0
Offerings	$47.18
Dispensed for S. S. literature, light and heat	$49.85
Number of regular services per week	8

Mary Honaptsi

"Father, I will that they also, whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me." John 17:24a.

Three years ago Mary Honaptsi asked the Lord Jesus to come to live in her heart, and on Sunday morning, July 31st, of last Summer, the Lord called her into His glorious presence.

Here in Northern Arizona live two Indian tribes. The Hopi Indian lives in villages and the Navajo, being more nomadic, lives in mud huts, called hogans. A hundred years or so ago these two tribes were constantly at war with each other. Mary's mother, a Hopi girl, was in those days stolen and taken along by the Navajos. She grew up amongst them and in due time married a Navajo. Soon the relationship between the two tribes became more friendly and the Navajos came to the trading post at Oraibi to trade. Thus the Hopi woman saw her own people occasionally. A son and a daughter were born. Mary was the third child. But when she was born her mother died. The Navajos had no way to raise this little motherless infant so they brought her, together with her sister, to the Hopi relatives. Later on the older sister returned to the Navajo people, while Mary stayed and grew up with the Hopis. She married a Hopi Indian and they raised five daughters. She was already an old widow when we came here eight years ago. Her daughters each have their own good sized families.

Mary Honaptsi, Oraibi, Arizona

The Lord has in these years dealt very graciously with her and her daughters. Nancy, a Christian, preceeded her in death; Laura was saved on the Sunday before Christmas and Alice with her husband Tom, on Christmas day, four years ago. Then in the following summer Mary, the mother became a Christian. Her need and desire for salvation was awakened by her saved daughters' testimonies and by the Word she heard in the sewing classes. Her conversion was very sweet with a childlike faith. She was baptized on a Sunday evening together with one of her granddaughters, Daisy, who also was saved during that time. Mary's answers to the questions preceeding baptism were not only "yes" but a little testimony for each with a beaming gladness on her face. The grandmother stayed at Tom's home. When they came home that evening the grandmother looked around and said, "Where are the others?"

"Which others?" they asked.

"Why, those that came with us."

They said, "We are all here, nobody else came home with us."

Then Mary explained, "Yes, there were three people, all dressed in white, who came home with us; one to my right, one to my left and one behind me."

Then they realized that the Lord must have opened her eyes to see three angels guarding her. They all rejoiced for such divine approval.

Some months later her only unsaved daughter, Rhoda, was saved. During the baptismal services the mother's face was one revealing a joy divine. After the service she was asked, "Mary, how do you feel now that you and all your daughters are saved?" With a beaming face she said, "I'm so happy. I'm so happy."

This aged lady was a woman of few words. But her life these three years has been a living testimony. She never failed the Lord at the assembling together. Even on Sunday nights, at the English preaching service, she was usually there, though she did not understand any English. But the name of "Jesus" was sweet to her and she enjoyed hearing the singing. During the interpreted services she would be such a blessing to us for she helped us speak the mysteries of Christ by her eager listening.

She was ill only a few months, not really ill but feeble from old age and from rheumatism. A few days before her death, as we visited with her and spoke of the glory of Jesus Christ and how He wished for us to come and see Him, she said, "I'm thinking about it all the time." On Saturday afternoon on July 30, she had lifted her arms as though in ecstacy of seeing some one and then had repeatedly spoken about "King Jesus." She changed so that they thought she would die soon. Mr. Suderman and Mr. Kliewer stayed with her till after midnight. Whenever they sang she moved her lips singing in her soul. She ate a little breakfast in the morning and the Lord called her to Himself at about eight o'clock. As she went she said, "I believe it all now."

In the afternoon was the funeral service. It was warm, but it was a blessed service. Throughout there was the note of a happy and glorious entering into heaven. There were sobs on the part of the daughters and granchildren but not anything of the wailing and loud weeping of the heathen. Even as her lifeless form lay in the sateen covered hand made coffin her face bore traces of a glorious meeting with Jesus Christ.

OKLAHOMA

STATISTICAL REPORT

Oklahoma Field 1939

Missionaries: Rev. and Mrs. Benno Toews, Canton, Okla.; Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Ediger, Clinton, Okla.

Congregations: Canton, Longdale, Fonda, Cantonment, in charge of Missionaries Toews; Clinton, Hammon, Thomas, in charge of Missionaries Ediger.

Organized: Canton, 10-28-97; Longdale, Fonda, and Cantonment, 5-22-98; Clinton, 2-19-99; Hammon, 2-11-06; Thomas, 11-11-28.

Total Members Admitted: Canton, 206; L. F. & C., 255; Clinton, 157; Hammon, 95; Thomas, 53. Total, 766.

Total members died or transferred: Canton, 104; L. F. & C., 140; Clinton, 88; Hammon, 34; Thomas, 8. Total, 374.

1939

Members Admitted: Canton, 20; L. F. & C., 14; Clinton, 18; Hammon, 14; Thomas, 21. Total 78.

Members died, etc.: Canton, 9; L. F. & C., 4; Clinton, 3; Hammon, 2; Thomas, 3. Total, 21.

Membership, 12-31-39: Canton, 102; L. F. & C., 115; Clinton, 69; Hammon, 61; Thomas, 45. Total, 392.

Average attendance Sunday services: Canton, 41; Longdale, 21; Fonda, 16; Cantonment, 14; Clinton, 37; Hammon, 28; Thomas, 32. Total 189.

Collections: Canton, $14.81; Longdale, $3.95; Fonda, $8.39; Cantonment, $3.10; Clinton, $20.62; Hammon, $17.23; Thomas, $12.73. Total, $80.83.

Benno Toews, President,
J. B. Ediger, Secretary.

MONTANA

Data with Regard to Montana Cheyenne Mission Field

Number of living Indians, Jan. 1, 1940, 1606.

Neither increase nor decrease in number during the year 1939.

First visit to Northern Cheyenne reservation by Missionary Rodolphe Petter with view that field be taken up by our General Conference, 1899.

Second visit of Missionary Petter, 1901.

Third visit of Missionary Petter, 1903.

Busby station established by Missionary Linscheid, 1904.

Lame Deer chapel built in 1908.

Birney station begun in 1910.

Ashland chapel dedicated November, 1919.

Lame Deer Station

Native helpers at Lame Deer: Ernest King, Milton Whitman.

Cheyenne services at Lame Deer chapel every Sunday during the year.

Mixed Sunday School every Sunday during the year, five classes, one of which is an adult English Bible class attended by government employees, public school teachers, trades people and a few English speaking Indians.

Cheyenne prayer meeting each week during year, average attendance, 55 plus.

Collections during the year, $62.20. This took care of fuel, light, Sunday School supplies, cleaning of chapel, etc.

Accessions by baptism during the year 1939, 5. (Of these one was a white lady who teaches in the Lame Deer public school.)

Candidates for baptism at beginning of the year 1940, 5.

Funerals, weddings, hospital visitations, camp visitation during the year.

Weekly native workers' Bible class for training native evangelists. Cheyenne reading classes, also work with individuals.

Birney Mission Station

This station is served mostly by Frank Littlewolf since the year Rev. Pankratz left. Frank comes for the week ends, does some camp visiting, assists in funerals, gives baptismal instruction and conducts the Sunday morning service. He usually goes on horseback. Sometimes he is accompanied by his family. He reads the Cheyenne Scriptures fluently and gives its message faithfully. There are three candidates for baptism. Some petty thieving about the premises would indicate that the large sunny mission dwelling should have occupants. The day school teacher has begged for such occupants for many years, as he thinks it would be wholesome for the station to have missionaries there permanently. A nucleus of Indians comes faithfully to the Sunday morning services throughout the year. The general verdict of the Birney Indians is, es'-nhaheo, "They are still wild." The sacred tent of the Northern Cheyenne Indians is located there in the care of a keeper, exerting a strong influence in the entire community. Regular Sunday morning services have been conducted throughout the year, with the help whenever possible of native preachers sent over from Lame Deer. Martin Twobulls, member of the Ashland church has assisted at times. Weekly prayer meetings have been encouraging in attendance and interest. Every effort is made to attract the young people and children to the home. Thus the confidence of old and young has been won by most faithful and untiring efforts. The deadly influence of a most ungodly environment has long classed Ashland as our hardest field.

Submitted by Mrs. Rodolphe Petter

Busby Station

Busby, services on Sundays and during week. Upper Rosebud, services occasionally.

Native helpers: Chas. Yellowrobe. Used only occasionally. Mr. Fightingbear, who lived in our district for a while helped out a few times. He is from Lame Deer.

Number of members added, two.

Number of members died, two.

Number of living members on record, 105.

Average attendance at church services, 36.6; average attendance at Sunday School, 32; total, 68.6.

Collections S. S., $32.13; Others as Easter, Thanksgiving, etc., $15.35; Total, $47.48.

Budget estimate for 1940 ________________$100.00

Estimated value of Mission property:

Church	$1000.00
Dwelling House (Frame)	1500.00
Log House (Four rooms with back porch)	850.00
Barn, Garage, chicken-house	200.00
Outstation Building	30.00
Total estimate	$3580.00

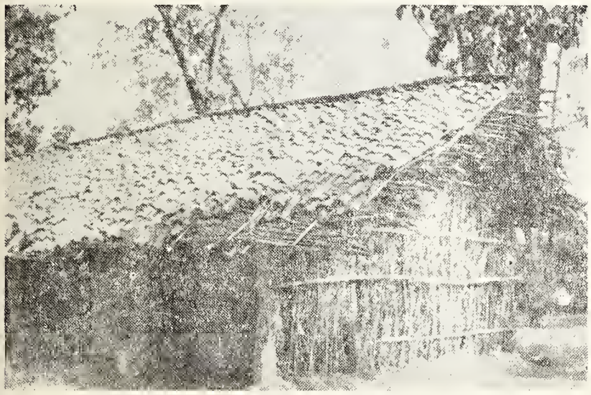
The Outstation building has not yet been moved, as the road up the river has not yet been built. We have not yet fully decided how to work the Upper Rosebud, as more folks have moved away from there.

During the past year we held the following extra meetings:

Prayer meetings	34
Funerals (3 were at Lame Deer)	13
Marriages performed	10
Special Meetings with Boarding School children	70
Evenings on which Stereopticon slides were shown	17
Sessions with Women Sewing Classes	22
Cheyenne Language Reading classes	9
Special meetings as Anniversary, and others	24

Respectfully submitted, Alfred Habegger

INDIA



First School House, Basna, India

BLESSINGS OF SCHOOL WORK AT BASNA

By Mrs. Dr. H. E. Dester

About 325 million illiterate people which is one third of the entire world's illiterates, live in India. Only 8 per cent of India's population can read and write. Among the Christian community, 28 per cent are literate. Before the recent mass movements this had been up to 34 per cent. Of our own Mennonite field the majority of illiterates live in our Basna area, because the majority of our Christians are of the mass movement.

"A Literate Church for Christ" has been the aim of the Primary School at Basna station ever since its beginnings. Phuljhar area of which Basna station is the center has almost 50 villages in which Christians live. Naturally the children of these homes can not all be provided with school opportunities in their villages. A few live near to government supported schools but can not always attend these. So a central boarding school was opened that our children might be given a Christian education.

Many of these newly baptized, illiterate people feared to send their children away from home, the children themselves clinging to mother's apron strings, (only here it was a sarie). Very often they would run home again after they had been persuaded to come. Food, clothing, bedding, shelter, books, etc., all was given gratis, just to induce them to come. In the early days we were glad to admit any who were willing to come, just to get the folks to value an education.

The first teachers were our own boys who had learned to write. Methods, psychology, games and the like were all foreign to them. The first school house and boarding were mud and stick walls with grass or tile roof, as picture inclosed. When it rained, as it can in India, these roofs leaked like sieves. But, as our school took shape and form and more came and older experienced teachers were employed, our work was good enough to receive Government recognition. The Government Inspector came to examine it, to give examinations and to make recommendations. At present our entire staff is of our own local boys and girls who have been educated in our own schools and trained in our Normal School in Birra. They know and love the children and are doing a very creditable work.

All the old mud and stick houses have been replaced by better larger buildings of burnt brick laid in mud with tin roofs. The walls are hung full of the master's hand made reading, arithmetic, health and cleanliness charts, and pictures of interest to children. The children sit on home woven cocoanut mats laid on the mud floors. From the very beginning much stress was laid on hand and industrial projects. These children must go back to their homes with a primary education but not weaned away from home industries. Many never go as far as our fourth grade, but they become a great help in their village church service. They have learned to sing, they know Bible stories and Scripture portions and have learned DISCIPLINE.

The main projects taught here are hand sewing, gardening, marketing, rope making, nawar tape weaving, and the making of brooms and baskets. Indian Congress is stressing these cottage industries very much for which we are truly thankful. Cotton work and cloth weaving were rather expensive and as our primary children now are rather small this project was dropped until the fifth grade. The children in the boarding do all their water carrying, their sweeping, washing of clothes and the larger ones the cooking of food. The early morning period is taken up in supervised games and drill.

But time has changed matters. We no longer have to coax children to come. In fact we have had to refuse some. Formerly parents had to be persuaded to send the children, now we often must say, "No your child is too young, wait a year or two." Or, "Your child does not show any possibilities to go on, we cannot admit it next year." Not always so easy to say but often very necessary. No clothes are given gratis, all must pay, not the full cost of production, as all are made locally by the children and often not too well sewn. Fees are paid by the parents according to their earnings.

We have had village schools for several years in such centers where we had enough children to demand one. During the depression these were closed. Now we have opened three such again, where twenty to thirty children attend. But we need many more and good local trained masters who know both the Orriya and Hindi language. Hindi is the government language of our district, although most of the villagers talk only the Orriya. Our plans for next year are to open a few central boarding schools right out in the villages. Many villages are only one to two miles apart and the children could easily walk to school on Monday, stay for a week, and return home Friday evening. We plan to have a trained master with one helper in each center, who will also serve as their house father. The children are to bring their own rice for the week. We will help with the wood and oil. That will keep the child closer home, so he can be a help in the singing and the Sunday services. Also it will reduce expenses greatly for us. We can not possibly take all these children here into our local boarding and feed them for ten months of the year. We will need funds for the roofs of these new school houses. The Christians in many of the villages can put up the walls.

Last June the boys from the four other stations came to Basna to read in the fifth and sixth classes which had been moved from Birra to Basna. That brought 25 boys from these stations and twenty-five local children into our Middle school. Of our local children 9 come from villages and stay in our boarding. If finances permit, next year, the seventh and eighth grades will also be moved here. At present we have 72 boys and 28 girls in our boardings. To feed all these young growing children three times daily is no small task. They can consume mounds of rice! At our Christmas school meal we had two hundred and ten children present.—Not all the industrial projects could be moved from Birra, but we have three departments, hand sewing, nawar tape weaving, and garden work. All the Middle school children work at one of these for two hours daily. The masters help me in the supervising of this work but they do not have their heart in it as they do in the regular school work. Next year we hope to have other arrangements.

We see many results which encourage us very much. Of course every story has its two sides. Recently we admitted into our Primary school and boarding, three children from a village where a few families were brave enough to come out and take baptism in face of much opposition and ridicule. When the children returned home for a few days vacation they had shown such a change, their songs and Bible knowledge were such a surprise that those who ridiculed changed face about and said, "If Christianity can do that for them it must be quite alright."

Yours for a Literate Christian Church in India,

Basna, C. P. India,
January 9, 1940.

Very Sincerely,
Mrs. H. E. Dester.

The only way to be loved is to be and act lovely, to possess and manifest kindness, benevolence, tenderness: to be free from selfishness, and to be alive to the welfare of others.—Jay.

New School House, Basna, India

The disposition to give a cup of cold water to a needy one is a far nobler property than the finest intellect. Satan has a fine intellect, but not the image of God. — Howell's.

STATISTICAL REPORT OF WORK IN INDIA

I. Composite Report

Area of field, 4,615 square miles. Number of villages, 2870. Number of population, 945,000. Number of villages in which there are Christians, 92.

II. Workers

	Men	Women	Total
A. Missionaries	11	15	26
B. Indian co-workers:
a. Evangelistic	38	16
b. Educational	30	19
c. Medical	31	13
d. Institutional	2	4
e. Industrial	5	2
	106	54	160
			186

III. Christian Community

A. No. of Organized churches		21
B. No. of Baptized church members (215 baptisms 1939)	2,029
C. No. of unbaptized children	1,523
D. No. of other Missions	54	3606

IV. Mission and Church Activities

A. No. of Evangelistic Outstations	30
B. B. No. of Educational Outstations	4
Total Enrollment	110
C. No. of Primary Schools on Mission Stations	7
D. No. of Middle Schools on the Mission Stations	2
Total Enrollment	150
E. Sunday Schools
a. No. of schools	15
b. No. of officers and teachers	118
c. No. of scholars	1472
F. No. of C. E. Societies—8; Enrollment app.	500
b. Women's Societies—3; Enroll. app.	100
c. No. of Bands of witnesses	3
d. No. of Prayer meetings	8
e. Bible course classes at all stations as usual
G. No. of Orphanages, 2. Boys—21; Girls—10	22
H. No. of Boardings, 4. Boys—138· Girls—116	254
I. No. of Leper Homes,1; Christians 327, Non-Christians, 231	558
a. No. taking treatments (Practically all)
b. No. declared relatively cured in 1939	21
c. No. declared relatively cured in total	172
d. Children, Untainted Boys, 18; Girls, 27	45
J. Medical work: a. No. of Dispensaries	4
b. No. of Hospitals	2
c. No. of patients registered	14927
d. No. of inpatients registered	1657
e. No. of major operations	192
f. No. of minor operations	712
g. Income	Rs. 9302
K. Widows—a. No. of Widows supported by Mis.	11
b. No. of widows supported by Church	4
c. No. of widows self-supported	3[illegible]
d. Total No. of widows	45

L. A certain amount of Industrial work is carried on at four stations

M. Financial Records:

a. Monthly church dues received	Rs. 2257-7-0
b. Sunday Offerings received	903-7-0
c. Special Offerings received	825-5-3
d. Sunday School offerings received	326-8-6
e. Gospel sales	75-1-3
f. Educational fees	1242-8-9
g. Medical income	9347-8-9
h. Institutional	548-10-0
Grand Total	15526-8-6

Remarks

The church membership total shows very little increase (2013—1938; 2029—1939), yet there have been many baptisms (215) especially in the Basna area (158). On the other hand the Leper Home church shows a considerable decrease due to many deaths and abscondings. Mauhadih reduced its membership by elimination from the church rolls of a number of persons which have not been heard from for a long time.

GROUP OF OPERATED PATIENTS

(First from left is Ramsai)

In the Basna area a new congregation has been organized; three ministers have been ordained; and a substantial growth in the Christian community is to be noted. Korba statistics show that the revival there has cleansed the church, has increased Sunday School and C. E. attendance, and has created a new interest in the Witness Band. In addition to the weekly prayer meeting daily prayer meetings were necessary to meet the needs.

Medical work shows substantial growth in every way.

At several stations the congregations are taking more responsibility for widows and orphans. This is as it should be. Barring famine or other similar disasters, the Mission orphans and widow budgets should be decreased. The Bible course continues to be well attended and is one of the great assets of our whole mission effort. The medical income is quite an appreciable sum. Both our hospitals ask for practically no budget money for drugs. Their income is sufficient to cover this item. (signed) F. J. Isaac

CHINA

"THE TIME OF OUR LIVES"

We here in China are having "the time of our lives"! Doors were never more widely open, nor the opportunities for service as many and varied. One of our Chinese leaders said recently at the reception for our newly arrived missionaries: "Formerly there was less work and there were more missionaries. Now there is more work and there are fewer missionaries."

Mission work has taken on greater proportions, such as—Hua Mei Primary and High School formerly had 100 plus students. Now they have a total of 426. The Bible School had 9 in 1926, now they have 86. The School of Nursing started with 10 students in 1930, now we have 25 and expect to enter a class of 10 more in 1940. Hospital in-patients numbered 96 in 1929, this year 960 (in ten years). Daily clinic used to serve 30 to 60 patients, now we register 120 in one afternoon. Maternity patients numbered 10 in several years, now we have had 50 since last year in July. Since my special course in maternity nursing in Seattle, these mothers are my special charge. September 29th was a red-letter day—three babies were born in one day at the following hours: 3:30 a. m. a baby girl, 3:00 p. m. a girl, and 5:45 p. m. a baby boy.

Out in the villages and here in the institutions there is a new large demand for songbooks, Bibles and Scripture portions. The Bible Societies cannot fill the orders fast enough, even though they turn them out one every two seconds!

Crops have been good this year and most of our field is quite well supplied, only in several sections floods have destroyed all the people had hoped to harvest for their living. There will be need for relief of suffering. Taxes are heavy. They consume about all that the people could otherwise use for better living conditions.

The conflict is still on, even in some one or other part of our field. We have frequent opportunity to relieve suffering near the front lines. We can at times hear the distant cannon roar.

A view of the whole world, Occidental and Oriental civilized and less civilized, makes one pray more and more for the rule of the Prince of Peace. This is a quotation of what I read just lately:

"If Jesus came back to earth to spend Christmas among us, He would be practical. He would be the leader the whole world is awaiting. He would use the same weapons He used of old—faith and love and prayer. And with these alone He would conquer. Armament squabbles, peace conferences, means test committees, they would all be swept away by the rising tide of peace and prosperity. There would be no place nor need for them in a world guided by love."—From "Miracles of Faith" by John Maillard.

The year 1940 has large plans awaiting it—more buildings for the hospital, a new site and building for the Bible School, extended work everywhere, so continue to pray as you have done, give as the Lord prospers you, and send those who can come to help in the front lines!

Yours for Him, lovingly, Elisabeth D. Goertz.

China Mennonite Church Statistics—August, 1939

23 churches in the missionfield
15 of these have also Sunday afternoon meetings
2118 people attend the Sunday morning services on an average.
92 on an average in each church
20 churches have all-week programs
11 churches have Bible classes during the week
12 churches have reading classes.
9 churches have C. E. meetings
4 churches have Junior C. E. meetings
566 is the total enrollment of the C. E. societies
63 would be the average society membership.
11 Sunday Schools are divided into classes.
77 Sunday School classes in all the churches.
7 Sunday Schools have teachers' meetings.
16 churches have women's meetings on Fridays.
21 churches have midweek prayer-meetings.
$6.30 is the average church collection on each Sunday for all the churches.
$.65 is the average member contribution for annual church fees.
87 officers and helpers in the churches have no salary.
3 officers and workers on an average in the churches have no salary.
39 out post preaching places besides the churches
12 churches have preaching places.
10 preaching bands in all the churches (volunteer)
1210 faithful church-members in all.
52 on an average to each church
17 churches have preachers visiting church-members.
197 such visits during the year.
11 visits on an average for each church.
867 church-members can read the New Testament.
37 on an average in each church can read
204 church-members have home (family) devotions.
10 on an average in each church have family devotions.
4 churches have no family devotions at all.
940 church-members have Bibles.
753 church-members have song books.
2 churches have no song books (that is Goodrich or Universal)

The methods for establishing Christian homes are: Prayer, exhortation, family devotions, etc.

7 churches have missionary societies for women.

3 churches have annual memorial services.

6 churches have annual harvest-festivals. Generally after wheat-harvest they bring products and money.

11 Churches have Sunday Schools.

1142 is the total Sunday School enrollment.

10 Sunday Schools have S. S. supplies sent them by the Sunday School Union. These supplies are limited to leaflets and scrolls.

$2.56 is the total Sunday School offering, on an average for each Sunday.

7 Sunday Schools regularly take up collections.

52 volunteer teachers in the Sunday School (not on salary) All Sunday Schools have some volunteer and unsalaried teachers.

6 Sunday Schools report cradle rolls. But it seems a question, whether they fully understand, what is meant by the question.

203 were baptized in 1939.

Below is a tabulated summary of the number of admission of in-patients and days of care rendered by the Hospital.

Admissions

	Men	Women	Children	Total
Surgical	262	64	6	312
Medical	244	158	62	464
Others	67	97	9	173
Total	573	319	77	969

Patient -days

	Men	Women	Children	Total
Surgical	7747	1031	388	9166
Medical	2226	1362	770	4358
Others	911	1074	56	2041
Total	10880	3477	1214	15571

Thus the total for 1939 was 969 Patients with 15,571 Patient-days.

Cases treated in Out-Patient Department

Men		Children
Total new cases	4032	Total new cases	1158
Return visits	5706	Return visits	2566
Total visits	9738	Total visits	3724
Women		Total new cases	6933
Total new cases	1743	Total return visits	10788
Return visits	2516
Total visits	4259	Total all visits	17721

PEACE COMMITTEE TREASURY IN DISTRESS

Prof. Lukas J. Horsch, treasurer of the General Conference Peace Committee, reports that their treasury is totally empty, and that they sorely need some funds to carry on the task that the Conference has delegated them to do. This is summarized in the following conference resolutions:

"The Peace Committee shall, in accord with the directions of the Conference, concern itself with the promotion of the cause of Peace as taught and commanded by Jesus, our Lord, and his apostles, etc." Res. 94, 1933. "In the promotional work the Peace Committee is herewith authorized to organize study courses, stimulate the writing and publication of peace literature, arrange for lecture courses, seek cooperation with Peace Societies within our Conference, court coordination with Christian Peace groups beyond our own organization, and utilize any other opportunity to promote the cause of Christian Peace." Res. 95, 1938.

The Committee is honestly trying to promote Christian Peace and to disseminate informational Peace literature, but its efforts are seriously crippled by the lack of funds. Should not every church heed this call and do a little to help this worthy cause along. Send all gifts to: L. J. Horsch, Upland, California.

—The Editor.

HOME MISSIONS

HOME MISSION BOARD MEETING

Matt. 25:21. Can the Lord say this to me?

The Annual Meeting of the Home Mission Board was held in the Y.M.C.A. Hotel, Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Feb. 15 and 16, 1940. The Lord granted health and other circumstances that every member of the Board could be present. Dr. H. A. Fast, Field Secretary of the General Conference, was also invited and was able to be present with us for the entire session.

The many problems and questions that confronted the Board could be considered and we feel the Lord gave grace that they could be solved at least in a measure. The slowly diminishing monthly income was a matter of keen concern, especialy in view of the growing work. True some of the loans made in 1937 and early in 1938 have been repaid, but there have been many places that have made inquiry for financial aid. A few of the most needy instances could be helped, some will have to wait until others are able to repay their loans.

The Board is truly grateful to God for the feeling that in general the work has been developing and growth has been noted in many of our Home Mission stations. The many Home Mission workers in Canada have labored faithfully and in a spirit of sacrifice, for the ingathering of precious souls and for the nurture of those already in the fold of Christ.

The appeals and reports from South American Mennonites, were carefully considered and some aid was extended in places and instances of strategic importance. We trust that all our Mission friends will remember to do something about the special appeal made in the Bundesbote of Feb. 13th, when Rev. J. M. Regier, Chairman of the Board, made an appeal for the new work to be opened up at Asuncion, Paraguay. Send special gifts properly marked to Rev. J. J. Plenert, 429 Knorr St., Philadelphia, Pa., Treasurer. This work is to require between 400 and 500 dollars for a year.

It was encouraging to note how quickly our Brethren in Canada responded with larger gifts where they had the first fair harvest in many years. In some places they have to wait even longer for the first one. Still they labor and toil on in faith and hope that in due time the Lord might see fit to grant a fairly good return for their labors.

In the Sunday School lesson of Feb. 25th we had the topic: "Stewardship". Ability and opportunity constitute an obligation. Opportunities for work are many. Are we all good stewards? May the Lord guide and bless each Mission friend, and may many more join the noble ranks of those who give and pray for the work regularly.

Very sincerely, A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary

Sardis, British Columbia, December 9, 1939

Yesterday I received the letter and check for $20.00 for November. Many thanks for this help. Although our home is in Saskatchewan, and we had to come here on account of my wife's health, I am trying to help in the work here. Because of my wife's condition, I did not undertake any long trips to churches. I was in Vancouver two days attending the Sunday School worker's conference and training. On this occasion I delivered messages on Israel's History. Twice I have been in Yarrow and tomorrow I am to go there again to bring them a message from the Word. Yarrow is so near that one can serve easily from here. At other times I help here in Sardis. On Tuesday evenings I give Bible Studies and preach on Sunday evenings.

Church work is being carried on very actively here. Rev. D. Hausknecht is conducting a Bible School with the young people in the winter, three evenings each week. Almost 30 young people, practically everyone that resides at home is in the Bible School. Rev. Warkentin is assisting in the German School on Saturdays and is active in the Sunday School. He has charge of the Church here and preaches at regular worship services. He does as much as he can, but has to do other work to help care for his family. Last Sunday Rev. N. W. Bahnmann was here for Holy Communion, other times he is working elsewhere. He is directing the Bible School at Coglan, and visits in many other groups in British Columbia.

I find a real interest here for religious help and instruction. Worship services are well attended, and my Bible Studies receive a large hearing. One is at a loss at times to know how to make arrangements, since the Church is in use every evening. Then we hold some of our meetings in private homes.

We are hoping that the climate here will contribute to my wife's improvement. In Saskatchewan the climate is harder on a person afflicted as she is. Her wind-pipe is affected and air here seems to be much better for her. She had been suffering with asthma and hence the moister air is a help to her. But as the Lord leads, will be accepted by us. My home church lies heavily on my heart. We hope all will continue to go well. It would be very difficult for me to be far away from my church in critical times. Oh, that peace might soon be established. Still the Lord is in command.

My wife and I send cordial greetings to all friends.
Sincerely, J. J. Klassen.

MENNONITE BIBLE MISSION CHICAGO

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Friesen, students, Bethany Seminary, Chicago, are volunteer workers in this Mission church. This letter is from him:

3425 Van Buren, Chicago, Ill., Jan. 8, 1904

Members of the Home Mission Board and Mission Friends:

Rev. John T. Neufeld asked me to write a report of the work at the Mennonite Bible Mission, especially for the Christmas and the New Year season. Mrs. Friesen and I are grateful that we have the privilege of helping in the work and observing Mr. Neufeld in his labors. We find here a very fine, friendly, sincere Christian spirit and we greatly enjoy the fellowship with the people.

Mr. Neufeld is not a forceful speaker, but it seems that he thoroughly understands the people, and what has especially impressed me is the way he uses their customs to present the gospel to them. He is always ready and willing to let others help in what ever way they can and thus the people feel that they have a real part in the work. The young people seem to be very sincere. They take an active part in all phases of the mission work, and are quite regular in attending both the morning and evening services on Sunday.

On Christmas eve the Sunday School classes from the intermediate group presented a pageant of the Christmas story. It was an inspiration to all who were there to see it. On Christmas morning the lower classes gave us their program of songs and recitations. This too was uplifting and a joy to listen to. On Christmas eve the young people of the Mission went caroling through the community. It was the largest group of any years and I think it brought cheer and was a sign of goodwill. Rev. Neufeld accompanied the group.

The New Year's Eve watch service was another feature of this season. Each familv present brought some part of the service, either song, poetry, instrumental music, story, etc. The story of "The Other Wise Men" was read during the showing of slides depicting the story. Each family had also brought some refreshments which were all spread out together and served to those present in a very delightful fellowship hour. We were dismissed early enough so that everyone could get home in the old year before the New Year with its noise and merry-making was upon us.

A new class in catechetical instruction is to begin presently. We pray that a good number may avail themselves of this step of learning about the Savior and to accept him as their own.

The church is filling a very definite need in the community. It is a beacon light sending forth rays of goodwill, peace, love and helpfulness. Rev. Neufeld is often called upon to conduct funerals of people who are outside the church and uses this opportunity of presenting the gospel, as well as when he visits the sick. Would that more people, especially men, make use of the church. I think that Rev. Neufeld is doing a very fine piece of work. To me, as an observer and helper, he is a great inspiration in his sincerity, faith, and sacrifice, giving everything and doing the best he can. The work of the Home Mission Board is very worthwhile and is greatly appreciated.

We pray that God may richly bless the work.
Sincerely, Arthur Friesen.

Wymark, Sask., Jan. 25, 1940

Home Mission Board, Rosthern, Sask.

Dear Brethren: Greetings in His name!

There is nothing of importance to report, due to the general inactivity during cold Saskatchewan weather. All stations have been served as faithfully as possible. Only one service was missed due to the fact that the worker had car trouble on the way. The services were usually well attended, except during the busy harvest season or unusually cold weather. As a rule the people show a hunger for the Bread of Life, but one meets some whose interest and attitude is discouraging. However, we can pray for such and faithfully scatter the seed of God's Word, trusting His promise that His Word shall not return void.

We are just now entering the most difficult period for the workers. Some roads are impassable and all of us have poor cars. However, the Lord knows that, and we trust Him to make it possible for us to get to the different stations on time. Thus far we have had no special meetings this winter. It is very necessary that these should be held in order to raise the spiritual temperature during these dark, chaotic days of stress, strain, coldness and unrest. It is also necessary in order to gather in the lost, hungry and weary ones or at least, by God's grace, invite them tenderly, yet earnestly, to come. Last winter we had such a wonderful harvest. Praise His holy name! As you know, I am busy in school and Br. Epp and Br. Doerksen are busy in the Bible School in Swift Current. Therefore, it is not possible for us to conduct special meetings. Could any member of the Board suggest to us some person, whom we could invite to help us?

I am very much burdened about all those scattered families in the country who are too far from any point where meetings are held. They are poor, have no means of transportation and need spiritual help very much. They should be visited, encouraged, invited and helped by prayer and every other possible means. My heart just bleeds when I think of them daily. They are starving spiritually and are truly as sheep without a shepherd. I could relate some pathetic experiences. A young lady came to us some time ago, with her two small children, and asked us to help her find her husband, who had left home and threatened suicide. Some phoning was done, and a police search resulted in finding him in a neighboring town. The lady had walked nearly 8 miles in deep snow with her two children. She was weak, sickly, having just recovered somewhat from a severe illness, a living skeleton, and ready to collapse. We took her home, gave them what we could, prayed with her and her husband, and tried in every way to help them get a new hold on life by looking to Jesus, who is the Way, the Truth and the Life.

Just one more incident. We were asked by a weeping woman, recently, to take her 25 miles to the hospital or doctor in Swift Current, because her husband had left her and she did not know where to find him. We gladly complied with her request. Since that time her husband returned. We have prayed with them, and tried to help them as those mentioned above. Both voiced their desire to commit their lives to Jesus and to seek in Him, strength for the struggle of life. The wife has been in the hospital several times. A few days ago they asked to be accepted as members in the church. (They are baptized.) This has not been done yet. We are waiting to see how their testimony will verify itself in conduct. They need much help spiritually and materially.

Many more similar instances could be reported. An elderly lady stayed behind after a meeting, asking prayer for herself and for the salvation of her husband, a drunkard. She said, she could not endure it any longer.

We have our little group prayer meeting every Monday evening. We are constantly holding these scattered ones up to the Throne of Grace in prayer and we know the Lord hears and helps. Praised be His name! Oh, how I wish I could devote my full time to go from home to home, seeking to help these needy ones by God's grace! My experience is, that this is the greatest need and results in most fruit, because "man's extremity is God's opportunity."

Every Friday I am giving four young men Catechism instruction. They wish to follow the Lord in baptism in spring, when Bible school closes in Swift Current. Pray with us, for these needy ones. We know the Lord is able "to do exceeding adundantly above all that we ask or think." Praised be His saving and keeping power. With Christian regards,

Yours for the salvation of sinners, V. E. Nickel

East Freedom, Pa., Jan. 6, 1940

The Home Mission Board Gen. Conference,
Dear Brothers:

I suppose that you are wondering about my report, or rather reports since I did not send any for the third quarter. Well I shall try to give you a six months report.

During the third quarter it was warm weather, and things were going pretty well, only July and August are picnic and family reunion months, and these sometimes reduce our attendance. However, we think it was fair all things considered. The average attendance for the third quarter was 52 in Sunday School and morning church service. And the average offering was $2.41.

Our Young People had regular services during the quarter. I wonder sometimes if other churches are like ours in this service. There seem to be a few whom one can depend on to carry on the work in the Y. P. meeting, the balance attending like silent partners. If you have any remedy for this I should like to know it. The offering in these meetings goes into the Y. P. treasury and they use it for the work of the church wherever needed. It never amounts to much. However, in the course of a year it helps.

The evening service during the third quarter was well attended, but here again we have another problem. We minister to two different groups, one in the morning and the other in the evening, there being few that attend both services. I have made mention of this but it seems to do no good. It seems that they think once a week is enough to go to church. And so it goes, we work, pray and preach, and pray some more and try to be helpful to all and our prayer is that God would use us in this place that when we are gone we may have done something that would serve to advance the Cause.

Now concerning the last quarter of the year 1939. The average attendance was 54, and the offering was $2.69, this is a slight increase over the third quarter. The morning worship, the Y. P. Meeting and the evening worship are about the same as usual, but again due to bad roads, and, I don't know maybe a slowing up in spiritual things, we are again obliged to close our midweek service for a little while. The past few weeks it has been very cold and rough here in these hills and some have far to come over dirt roads that are often drifted, so we closed the midweek services for a while. (Do all of our regular churches conduct mid-week services all year? A.J.N.) We hope to start again as soon as conditions are a little better. One thing that hinders us is the fact that when children travel 8 and 10 miles to high school and have their studying to do in the evening, and do not get home until 5:30 or 6:00 o'clock, then to ask them to come from one to six miles to Bible study, well, you can imagine how hard that would be, when they often must walk, at least a good part of them must.

During the last quarter of the year it seems that there were a lot of things crowded in, outstanding was that never to be forgotten trip to Kansas. I have often wondered if I have done any good, and if I would be permitted to go again, there is only one thing in my church work that did me more good than that trip, and that is to be permitted to show some soul the way to Christ. I am still at a loss to know why "I" the least of all the workers in the employ of the Home Mission Board was chosen to go, but again thanks to the Board for the privilege and my prayer has been that God would bless the effort.

Shortly after coming home, the Lord saw fit to call my mother from this life. Now I, like many others, have neither father or mother.

About this same time I was elected to serve as president of the Eighth Sunday School District of Blair county, Pa. This means extra work. Then at the October meeting of the Blair county ministers meeting, while I was in Kansas, I was elected as Vice President of that organization. There are 147 ministers in Blair county, not all however belong to the organization but the greater part do. I pray that God will give me strength to do the work that is mine to do, since there is no other that can do what he has for me.

In the last quarter we removed the balance of the ground in the church basement making a larger furnace room and coal bin, also we are planning to make a room for mothers to take their children when they get fussy in church. Also we needed to take down both furnaces in the home and the church and have them cleaned, the furnace man wanted $15.00 for the job and we did it ourselves and saved that money.

Last Sunday being the last Sunday in the old year, I spoke on six persons in the Bible who had their own way, and in the evening I intended speaking on the subject six persons who let God have his way. Sunday afternoon I felt I should change that and speak on the last message of the Bible, the invitation to sinners to come, and the warning that Jesus will come quickly, this I did. I gave the invitation. A young couple that recently lost their little one in death, were in the audience. They sat there with bowed head and after the service the husband came to me and said that they were both going to come forward and accept Christ as their Savior, but they want to go home and talk it over and decide if they both want to join our church or if they both want to join her church. Our prayer is that God may lead in both their decisions.

I report this incident to give you a better idea of what is going on here at Smith Corner. We have many here that should be called after Paul's helper Demas, for many have in time past forsaken us for the pleasures of this world. However it seems that when one goes another comes, and by the grace of God the work here goes on, thanks to God, the Home Mission Board, and the good folks who continue to contribute.

Concerning finances, we closed the year with a small balance in the treasury. We were able to meet all our bills as they come, and buy one dozen small chairs for our little folks in Sunday School. Also we sent to Rev. Toews one box of used clothing weighing 120 pounds, this cost us $5.80 freight. We have a box for the home for the aged at Fredrick and will ship it as soon as the weather gets a little warmer so it will not freeze.

Yours sincerely, John S. Raugh

ALBERTA COMMUNITY CHURCH

Portland, Oregon

In a final report, issued by Rev. and Mrs. Edmund Miller, before they left for their new field, we glean the following facts and figures:

The Sunday School

Collections in 1937	$ 90.32
Collections in 1938	146.69
Collections in 1939	196.09
Average collections per Sunday in 1937	1.73
Average collections per Sunday for 1938	2.82
Average collections per Sunday for 1940	3.70
Average attendance per Sunday for 1937	36
Average attendance per Sunday for 1938	56
Average attendance per Sunday for 1939	70

The Church

Church Membership, 1937		30
Church Membership, 1938		36
Church Membership, 1939		39
(Lost 3, gained 6)
Church Offering 1937		$147.23
Church Offering 1938	$388.83
Gifts, Members 1938	112.71	502.54
Church Offering 1939	444.45
Gifts, Members 1939	145.25	589.70

Naturally one cannot get a full and complete picture from figures and statistics. Still, we believe that we all catch a spirit of devotion and consecration to the Cause of Christ. It is to be noted that growth is manifested in every field, the Sunday School, in the gifts and also in the Church membership which is usually the last phase to manifest much change.

At present the Church at Portland through its Special Committee is looking around for a Minister. The Committee and the Home Mission Board are actively cooperating. The special prayers of God's people are earnestly sought that the Lord's choice might be found for Alberta Community Church.

Winton, Calif., Jan. 10, 1940

The Evangelization Committee of the Pacific District Conference and the Home Mission Board of the General Conference.*

Greetings in the Name of our Lord!

It has been a long time since you heard from the work here and no doubt you have been wondering just what has happened at Winton. I am attaching hereto a numerical report which will speak for itself. The work here at Winton becomes somewhat discouraging at times but, then again, the people are so very sympathetic and devoted to us that we really must feel unworthy of their esteem. This report covers a period of five months. I waited with this in order that my quarterly reports would coincide with the quarters of the year hereafter.

Shortly after our return to the work here, from the Mennonite Young People's Retreat at Lake Sequoia, which had a profound effect upon the life of a young man, we seemed to notice a distant attitude of the Presbyterian group toward us. We could not account for the change and things began to look pretty blue. Then our Sunday School Superintendent told me what the trouble was. There seemed to be some misunderstanding between the Presbyterians and Mr. A. E. Heppner regarding my coming here. The Presbyterians seemed to have the impression that I had been engaged to come here for work in the fruit season and during this time I was to have a Sunday try-out service, and if they liked me they would issue a call. However, I came bag and baggage to stay six months. Well the Presbyterians thought we were trying to pull a fast one on them and so the matter of my coming got to be a sort of "thorn in the flesh." In the mean time the people had learned to know and love us and felt sure that if there was any underhanded work done, that I was perfectly innocent in the affair. I told the superintendent so when she spoke to me about the matter. Well, I immediately conferred with Mr. Heppner and he too claimed innocence and said he had made arrangements with the proper authorities. These "proper authorities" later confirmed his statement. The whole thing came about because the proper authorities had not called a congregational meeting and laid the matter before the constituents, which of course would be contrary to Presbyterian ways of doing things. After considerable explanation back and forth, everything was straightened out peaceably. Then I got a call to come to Shafter, California, for a trial service. When I announced this fact to the congregation they immediately began to request me to remain here. "We need you," "The community needs you," "We don't want you to go," were the expressions heard. Right then the attitude of the group changed and there is a feeling of greater brotherly love here now than there had been before.

Church at Winton, California

During the time between Aug. 1st and Dec. 31st we were visited by Missionaries John Thiessens and P. W. Penners. These meetings were well attended, not only by our own members but by members of the various churches in the community.

The spirit of unity in the community is growing We had Union Thanksgiving Services in which all the churches cooperated, with the exception of the Holdeman branch, although several of their members ventured to be present. Several of the churches tried to have revival services but with little success. I think the cause is that every year each church has tried to carry on services of this kind until people are tired of them.

There is a spirit of indifference here that will gradually have to be broken down. It cannot be done in a few months but I believe that eventually it will come to pass. Several of our families have moved back to Oklahoma.

On December 1, the Presbyterian Group notified us that they were going to have the Manse vacated and we would then be permitted to occupy it, rent free. We feel that this move was brought about by the feeling that they were not doing enough toward the work. We are now gradually getting settled right near the church building. The building consists of kitchen, dining room, large living room, Pastor's study, large bed room, screen porch and bath. This gives us a splendid dwelling place with running water in the house. We appreciate these added conveniences.

Sincerely, Dillman B. and Bertha A. Hess

---

*Note that two groups are in this field cooperating.

ALTOONA MISSION

Dear Mission Friends:

Greetings in the precious name of Jesus.

Although the year 1939 has been a little discouraging at times, yet we could see the blessings of the Lord resting upon the work and therefore encouraging us to press on. How we praise Him for the strength He has given us. And as we are entering into the New Year of 1940, we are looking forward to many more blessings and trust that we will ever be faithful unto Him who has called us into His Service.

Since we sent in our last report the work has been going on quite well. The winter months always bring on extra duties. The Bible study for the boys and girls was started again this fall. The attendance kept up real well until the holidays when it fell off some. We have an hour of Bible study then an hour of sewing with the girls and wood work with the boys. We have also been kept busy with the clothes that had been sent in for the poor. The girls of the Ebenezer, Bluffton, Ohio, Mission Band sent in a box of cookies for the children for Thanksgiving and another large box for Christmas. This year we held our Thanksgiving Service on Wednesday evening, instead of a sunrise service on Thursday, as some other churches do in this city.

The children rendered a Christmas program on Dec. 24th and we were greatly pleased with the way they performed their parts. A good sized crowd was present for the program, many felt that it was the largest crowd since we have been here. We do not report this boastfully, only to His glory and honor. On New Year's eve we held our watch night service, which started at 10:00 p. m. The group was smaller than expected, because it was a very cold night and otherwise nasty out. The time, however, went all too fast. A number from the Gospel Prayer Band were with us in the meeting and took part in the service.

The Sunday School enrollment for 1939 rose to 130. The average attendance was 76 for the year, which is a little below the 1938 mark. This decrease is no doubt due to the fact that about 25 of those who regularly attended, have for some time been going out of the city to a place Dry Run to services. Our hearts are still heavy over the way they left us. Some from this group attend some of our meetings when they have no way to go out to theirs.

Our prayer meetings are not attended as well as we feel they ought to be. Our hearts ache when we think of the terrible conditions in the war areas and where the people do not have freedom of worship. How our people in America ought to appreciate our freedom of worship. We need to spend much time in prayer. We trust that you will continue to remember us in your prayers. We wish to thank the General Conference for their support during the past year.

In His service, Rev. and Mrs. E. F. Slotterback

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

March 24, 1940

THE SEPULCHRE: TRIUMPH OVER DEATH

Matthew 27:57-28:6

Introduction

Christ's death paid the price of man's redemption and obtained God's forgiveness of his sins. If Christ's body had remained in the tomb, neither His disciples nor the world would have understood this truth. Jesus' words would never have been understood. His death would be seen as a dark tragedy, forced upon Him, instead of a part of God's great plan of redemption. His arising from the tomb was a demonstration of victory over death, Satan, and all his foes.

Jesus Body Laid in the Tomb vs 57-61

The even of the crucifixion day was come. The soldiers found Jesus dead. One of them pierced His side with a spear (Jno. 19:31-37). This act made His death doubly sure, silencing those who say that He only fainted and afterwards revived while in the tomb. Joseph of Arimathea, a secret disciple of Jesus (Jno. 19:38), asked permission of Pilate to give Jesus' body a proper Jewish burial. Pilate was much surprised that He was dead so soon (Mk. 15:44) and when assured of the fact, gave the body to Joseph (v58). He wrapped it in a new linen cloth, enclosing in its folds the spices which Nicodemus had brought (Jno. 19:39, 40) and together they laid it in Joseph's tomb and rolled the heavy stone to the door of it (v60). He considered it a signal honor to show this last act of respect and love to Jesus and did not hesitate to have others know that he was a disciple. Two women (v61), faithful friends of Jesus, were near the cross all day and now were watching, perhaps helping in this last tender ministry of love.

The Watch at the Tomb vs 62-66

On the next day, that is Saturday, the chief priests and Pharisees asked Pilate to place a guard at the tomb (vs 62-64). This request indicates their fear. They acknowledged that Jesus was dead (v63). They felt very uneasy because Jesus had said He would arise again after three days. They were deceitful and believed Jesus' disciples would be deceitful also (v64). This fear of the disciples stealing His body, was but a flimsy excuse. Pilate granted the request and the grave was made doubly secure (vs. 65, 66). The chief priests and Pharisees very unintentionally did Christ a great service in securing the seal and guard for the tomb. The fact of the resurrection was the only way to explain the disappearance of the body from the tomb. The chief priests were extremely dismayed when the soldiers told them the truth after the resurrection (Matt. 28:11-15). Why should man try to withstand the power of God?

The Angel Announces Jesus' Resurrection vs 1-6

Early in the morning of the first day, the two Marys who were the last at the cross, came first to the tomb with spices (L. 24:1) to complete the preparation of the body (Mk. 16:12). Love hastened them in their coming and they were the first to know the glorious truth. Matthew alone, tells of the earthquake and the angel rolling back the stone from the door. This was not done to let Jesus come out, but for the women to look in and see. The soldiers were paralyzed with fear and became as dead men. They did not see Jesus arise nor hear the angel's message. The angel quieted the fears of the women by telling them that Jesus had arisen (v6). They were asked to "go quickly and tell the disciples" (v7, Mk 16:7). They met the risen Lord as they went to tell the good news. God opened the door of the tomb. His power can surmount all human obstacles. Jesus triumphed over death. This is a guarantee that we also shall live beyond the tomb. The evidences for Christ's resurrection are so abundant that it is rightly regarded as the cornerstone of Christian faith. He who raised our Lord from death, will send eternal morning to banish sin's darkness. Christ's triumph over death is a foretaste of our coming triumph through Him.

—The Indianapolis Ministerial Association deem it advisable to write the Roosevelt children, advising them that "they had shocked the Christian conscience by their divorces," and that one would expect them to set before the country an example of moral living that would be such as is becoming the family of the first man of the land. The matter was left to the executive committee for action.

—The Senior and Intermediate C. E. Societies of the First Church, Berne, Ind., have engaged Prof. G. Allen Fleece of Columbia Bible College, Columbia, S. C., to deliver the messages to the Mennonite Young People's Conference, March 24 to 31.—Berne Witness.

R. Weinbrenner
Editor

Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen

Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers

Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

YOU AND TODAY

With every rising of the sun,
Think of your life as just begun.
The past has shrived and buried deep
All yesterdays; there let them sleep.
Concern yourself with but today,
Woo it, and teach it to obey
Your will and wish. Since time began
Today has been the friend of man;

But in his blindnes and his sorrow,
He looks to yesterday and tomorrow.
You, and today! a soul sublime,
And the great pregnant hour of time,
With God himself to bind the twain!
Go forth, I say—attain, attain!
With God himself to bind the twain!
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox

A NOBLE EXAMPLE

Gen. 24:63, "And Isaac went out to meditate in the field at the eventide."

These words describe an approach to life which is both serious and beautiful. It is serious in that it tries to discover the real meaning of life. It is serious in that it considers all the incidents of life in their relation to the deepest meaning of life. Such an approach recognizes that God has given us a life which holds great possibilities. Such an approach shows a willingness to permit God to make something of one's life.

It is beautiful in that it shows a holy and reverent attitude towards life and towards the giver and sustainer of it. It is beautiful in that it is peaceful and a beautiful method of drawing nigh unto God.

Perhaps, the sun was sinking in the west as Isaac went forth on a quiet, warm spring evening. Somewhere the song of a meadowlark may have punctuated the quietness of the evening. Perhaps, tall grain, which would be ready for the harvest, stood in the field. The freshness of the earth and of growing things may have risen around him. Isaac had chosen a beautiful place and a beautiful time to engage in a beautiful method of drawing night unto God.

The unhurried life of the day was conducive to meditation. Men listened for God and they heard Him speak. Men sought God and they became aware of His holy presence. Meditation did something for these men of the Orient.

However, when we turn our eyes from the past to the present we become aware of the fact that meditation will still yield rich fruit unto him who uses it. We are impressed by the Christ-like manner in which Quakers meet human needs. Back of those active, Christ-like deeds are periods of quiet meditation in which individuals permit themselves to be enlightend and guided by the inner light until they feel a compelling concern for some area of mankind.

The transforming lives of many radiant Christians are largely based upon Bible reading, prayer, and much meditation. Meditation is especially helpful for finding ourselves and for finding God in these days when so many things tug at our attention.

The example of Isaac is a noble one, for it will enoble lives in this our day.

LET'S READ

Rev. Olin A. Krehbiel, president of the Young People's Union says, "Mennonite youth and youth leaders should be familiar with these in order to have some appreciation of Mennonite principles." He then names the following booklets, etc.

"Menno Simons" by Smith, 60c; "Mennonite Articles of Faith," by Ris, 40c; "A Guide to Christian Teaching," by Rosenberger, 40c; "Catechism," by Schroeder, 40c, "Words to Young Christians" by Wedel, 20c; "Christian Peace" (400 years of Mennonite Principles and Practice) by Smith, 20c; "Christian Peace" (New Testament Peace Teachings outside the Gospels) by Bohn, 20c; "Pacifist Handbook," 10c; "Should God's People Partake in War," by Epp, 10c.

Rev. Krehbiel adds, "To these booklets should be added books on Mennonite Missions and Enterprises such as: '25 Years with God in India,' 'Feeding the Hungry,' 'Education Among the Mennonites,' and 'Missionary Interests Among American Mennonites.'

ORDER FROM THE MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, BERNE, INDIANA.

"I told them I knew from whence all wars arose . . . . and that I lived in the virtue of that life and power that took away the occasion of all wars, that I was come into the covenant of peace which was before all wars and strife."—George Fox.

Senior Department

Senior C. E. Topic for March 31, 1940

John 5:39-47; 2 Tim. 3:14-17

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Thy Word is a Lamp to my Feet," "More About Jesus Would I Know," and "We've a Story to tell to the Nations."
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer.
3. Favorite Bible verses, by members.
4. Offering for mission work.

II. Leader's Introduction:

The Bible has had a determining influence upon the prevailing moral standards of the Western world. The Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule, some of the teachings of Jesus, have been universally regarded as patterns of conduct. Several years ago, David Lawrence, in the United States News, showed that the social ideals of America have been derived from the Bible.

The Bible has been a source of comfort, encouragement, peace of mind, and hope for multitudes of men and women. Distressed people of every age in the Christian era have found saving help in the Holy Scriptures. Indeed, the faith-inspiring power of the Bible is the best of all proofs we have of its divine inspiration.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. A code of morals and conduct, Ex. 20:1-17.
2. The highest rule of action, Mt. 7:12.
3. Love, the summary of law, Mt. 22:35-40.
4. Endurance of the gospel, I Peter 1:22-25.

IV. For Discussion

1. What chapters of the Bible bring us a summary of Jesus teachings? What are the most important truths that Jesus taught?

2. What signs do you see today in the world of the influence of the teachings of Jesus?

3. Is the industrial life of the world influenced by them?

4. Is the social life of the world influenced by them?

5. Is the political life of the world influenced by them?

V. Facts for Study

We must be prophets of the times. With our ears to the earth we much catch the heartbeat of humanity. When we do we shall undoubtedly discover the field remarkably fertile for the reception of the gospel of Christ. A man prominent in the religious field said, at a Sunday-school convention, "The world today is not only in need of salvation but knows that it is." This speaker further pointed out that unless Christianity comes to the rescue society faces a consequence of violence and collapse.

A great religious leader once wrote a letter to a younger friend in which he urged him to stir into flame the spiritual gift which he possessed. The great religious leader was Paul. His younger friend was Timothy.

Just as certainly as Timothy needed a flaming heart for the varied and difficult responsibilities of his work at Ephesus, so certainly do we need it for the work that faces us today.

The Bible is not a Book of past times and other days; it has a message for today; it is a vital force; a dynamic which still works as a leaven within the peoples and nations of this world.

VI. Illustration: "What We Need Is Fire"

"With engines alone you cannot pull Pullman cars, not without fire. We need fire. We get fire only through prayer. We must confess our shortcomings. It requires prayer groups throughout the world . . . We Christians need a courageous, adventurous drive to get the whole world converted to the cause of Christ."—Toyohiko Kagawa.

"We are the only Bible, this careless world will read;
We are the sinner's gospel, We are the scoffer's creed;
We are the Lord's last message, Given in word and deed—
What if the line is crooked? What if the type is blurred?

VII. Food for Thought

"Unless God has first spoken to a man it is vain to attempt to speak for God." James Stalker.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

Intermediate C. E. Topic for March 31, 1940

For Daily Reading:

Mar. 25. We are God's workmanship. Eph. 2:8-10.
Mar. 26. Good works demanded. Tit. 3:1-8.
Mar. 27. Different duties. Eph. 4:11.
Mar. 28. Women's service. 1 Tim. 5:5-10.
Mar. 29. God's fellow workers. 1 Cor. 3:8-15.
Mar. 30. The aim of the work. Eph. 4:13-16.
Mar. 31. Topic. James 2:14-24.

Poem Just Like Me

What sort of a church would our church be
If every member were just like me?
Better or worse would our church be
If every member were just like me?
Were every member of our church to be
Just such a member as Christ would see,
What changes would come to you and to me,
And the gain to our church—what would it be?
P. W. Sinks, F. H. Revell, Co.

Hymn: "The Church's One Foundation"
Scripture Reading—Jas. 2:14-24.
Prayer by Superintendent
Introduction to topic by leader

"A strong church with a vital program stands in a strategic position in a community. It can furnish inspiration and fellowship for many people. It can be the focus for many valuable and far-reaching enterprises. Young people by their many enterprises for the church have proved that it is worth working for."

God provides work for all. Not all have the talents to do the same tasks. In our discussion today we want to think of projects we might undertake for the church and how each one of us can find some phase of church activity which interests us and which we are talented to carry out.

1. Many young people have helped in the Vacation Bible Schools. Are some of your young people especially gifted to work and play with small children? Perhaps some are gifted in the making of posters or other physical materials which would be a great help in the schools.

2. Does your church or Sunday School have a library? If so, is it carefully indexed? Could something be done to increase the demand for good books to read? Could your society perhaps raise funds to purchase new books?

3. Does your church have a definite recreational program? The young people of one church planned monthly social meetings at which new games were played. All the games were indexed and a small library of game books was started.

4. What could your society do to develop a program of Personal religious living.

5. The members could discuss how they might help other young people to be Christians.

6. How can we help to bring about world peace?

7. How can we help to solve the liquor problem?

8. What qualifications do leaders in any of the above projects need?

Song, "For Christ and the Church"
Offering
Vocal Solo: "My Task"
Lord's Prayer

JUNIOR CORNER

Program for March 31, 1940

JESUS' "I AM'S"

"I Am The Door." John 10:9

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude: "My Faith Looks Up To Thee."

2. Call to worship: "The Lord is in His holy temple, let all the earth keep silence before Him."

3. Song Service. (Let the Juniors gather around the piano for this.) Suggested hymns are: a. "Sing Them Over Again to Me," b. "Sinners Jesus Will Receive," c. "Jesus is Tenderly Calling Thee Home," d. "Blessed Assurance, Jesus is Mine."

4. Scripture by a Junior, John 10:1-10.

5. Prayer by the leader.

6. A story: "The City of Refugee," told by a Junior boy. "Several times we read in the Old Testament of the city of refuge. A very interesting account is found in the nineteenth chapter of Deuteronomy. From the various references we find that Moses established six cities of refuge, three on the east side, and three on the west side of the Jordan river.

If a man had killed anyone accidentally, he fled to one of these cities to escape vengeance, for the nearest relative of the one slain had the duty to punish the slayer. He had to pursue him. But if the slayer entered the door or gate of one of these six cities he was safe. The roads leading to them were kept perfectly good, so that when a man started for the refuge nothing could hinder him. Along the cross-roads and where there might be any mistake about the way, there were signs put pointing to the right way with the word "Refuge."

The cities of refuge are types of Christ, for He is our shelter and refuge. He saves the sinner from judgment. In Romans chapter eight, verse one, we read, "There is therefore now no condenmation to them which are in Christ Jesus."

7. Song: "Sinners Jesus Will Receive," v. 1, 2, 4. Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 144.

II. Study Period. Aim: That our Juniors might know our Lord Jesus Christ better and so love Him and trust Him more.

1. In unison: John 10:9: "I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture."

2. Introduction, by the leader. (Use the blackboard. Write "I am the door," as you come to the words underline "am" with red chalk and "the" with yellow chalk).

Jesus says, "I am the door." How simple the pictures are that our Lord uses to help us to understand Him. Every child knows what a door is and what it is used for. Jesus says, I am the door. Not I was or I will be, but I AM, always, I AM. Then He says, I am the door, not a door. If He had said a door we might think that there were many doors, the door of being good, or of going to church, or of doing kind things that would give entrance into the kingdom of God. But when Jesus says, I am the door, we know that there is only one way. And that way is Jesus.

3. Talk by a Junior boy—"What a door is used for." A door may be shut and it may be opened. A door that is shut keeps those that are inside safe. No enemy can hurt nor can any harm come to those inside.

A door may be opened. Every door leads into a room. The house door leads into the house, the church door leads or gives entrance into the church. Jesus is the only door that leads into the kingdom of God. He is the right door. If any one misses this door he can not enter.

4. Talk by a Junior girl. "How Can We Enter." We have heard that Jesus is the only door by which we may enter the kingdom of God. We may knock and the way to knock is to pray, but we must come in by faith. By believing in Jesus as our Saviour and by trusting Him.

5. Solo: "My Faith Looks up to Thee," v. 1, 2.

6. Talk by three Juniors. Precious promises for those who enter: a. He shall be saved, be forever happy. b. He shall go in and out, always feel at home,—be welcome. Zech. 10:12. c. And find pastures —food for our souls.

7. Discussion. (This should lead into the mission thought). "Who may enter?" Any Man. It doesn't make any difference who — the door is for everyone.

8. Heart-talk. How many have found this wonderful door, and have entered? As soon as we have entered through this precious door we are blessed, because Christ died on the cross for us. Without that sacrificial death Christ would have been a closed door to us but through his sacrifice on the cross we may now enter into the Kingdom of God and find joy, peace, and sweet fellowship.

III. Mission Minutes:

1. Give ways in which we may bring the message of this wonderful "Door" to those who do not know it.

2. Closing song and prayer.

« « JOTTINGS » »

— First Church, Reedley, Calif.—We have not had the severe weather here, which is reported from the East, but we have had much illness for several months. The flu is said to be as bad as it was in 1918 and 1919. The recovery period is long and there are many fatalities.

RADIO PROGRAMS OF THE WESTERN DISTRICT

The Radio Committee has been able, temporarilv, to arrange for programs as follows, from Wichita stations:

On the last Sunday of the month, at 10:05 to 10:15, over KANS. On the first Sunday of the month, at 10:15 to 10:30, over KFH.

— First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho.—A loud speaker has been donated to our church by one of our faithful members, Rev. B. A. Burgs. This is very helpful to the old people who find hearing difficult. We have a lot of rain, in fact it is very wet here now. But attendance in church is splendid in spite of bad roads.—We enjoy the Mennonite. May the Lord continue to bless the editor.

— Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minn. March 2, 1940. Dr. H. A. Fast has just completed a short series of meetings in our church. The pictures taken on his trip to South America cause us to appreciate and be more thankful for the community and environment in which we live. Dr. Fast also served in several other churches of the community during his visit.—Last week, March 3-9, Dr. Fast served some of our churches in South Dakota similarly.—Editor.

— Second Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—The Church Loyalty Campaign which was featured during the month of February is ended but we trust its blessings may long continue. The results were excellent. The attendance at both morning and evening services was definitely improved over previous months. The Wednesday night Bible Study attendance was most gratifying. Many visitors attended our church during the month through the invitations they received from church members.

— Goshen College is to Have a New President.—It is reported that Dr. Stanford C. Yoder, since 1924 faithful president of Goshen College, desires to retire and that the Board has found a suitable successor in Dr. Ernest E. Miller.

— First Mennonite Church, Sugar Creek, Ohio.— Rev. Jesse N. Smucker of North Newton, Kans., is holding a series of meetings at the Union Church, Tuesday to Sunday, March 5-10. Theme: "The 23rd Psalm." Subjects: "The Divine Shepherd," "Green Pastures and Still Waters," "The Restored Soul," "Bright Paths and Dark Vales," "The Rod and Staff," "The Gracious Host," "Pursued and Attaining."

— FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, NAPPANEE, IND., CELEBRATED ITS 65th ANNIVERSARY, on the evening of February 27. The fore part of the evening was enjoyed in fellowship, while the ladies of the church served a penny supper. Exhibits of old records, books and photos, charts with lists of organizations and names of former leaders were examined. The program in charge of Mrs. J. S. Slabaugh consisted of the singing of old favorite hymns and reminiscences of church experiences. Tributes of honor were given to H. J. Renenberg for having been a member of the church for 62 years and about to celebrate the 82nd birthday. A potted plant of hyacinthes was presented to him. It was also pointed out that D. J. Miller had served as janitor continuously for 33 years. Others received honorable mention. In closing a large circle was formed joining hands and singing, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

— Bethel College. — Pre-Easter services are being held at the College chapel Sunday afternoons at three o'clock. The service Sunday, March 3, was a devotional service in charge of Prof. A. E. Kreider. On Sunday, March 10, the service is to be an all music program. On Palm Sunday, March 17, will be the rendition of the cantata, the "Seven Last Words" (of Christ) by the College a Capella choir. The soloists this year are: Vera Friesen, soprano; Robert Senner, tenor; Sam Barkman, baritone. Mrs. Ruth Regier Douglas will assist on the organ· Miss Verna Kaufman on the piano; Dr. A. Warkentin, will be the reader, and Prof. W. H. Hohmann as always, the director.

— St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio.—The Evangelistic meetings conducted by Rev. Willard Claassen of Roaring Springs, Pa., Feb. 18-24, were well attended. His inspiring and helpful messages created much interest.—Rev. D. J. Unruh, pastor of this church, is conducting evangelistic meetings in the Mennonite Church at Madrid, Nebr., Feb. 29—March 13. Rev. A. C. Schultz, Bible teacher of Bluffton College, will substitute here for the pastor.—Mrs. M. H., Corr.

— Eighth Street Church, Goshen, Ind., recently gave a vesper program of Fanny Crosby music. The selections which may interest others follow: Organ Prelude—"To the Work" and "Praise Him;" Hymns —"Blessed Assurance," "Close to Thee;" Duet — "Rescue the Perishing;" Anthem—"Tell the Story of Jesus;" Flute solo—"Jesus is Calling." Quartet— "Though Your Sins Be as Scarlet;" Alto solo—"Speed Away"; Organ Medley of Fanny Crosby tunes;— Hymn—"I Am Thine, O Lord."

— Bluffton College.—"The Witmarsum reports that Lawrence Burkhalter, son of Mrs. Ada Wenger, missionary in India, has just made a 13,500 mile trip across oceans and continents to enter Bluffton college. In crossing the International Date line, coming across the Pacific, he naturally lived through two February 6th and since this is leap year, the young man claims he has a third February 6th thrown in for good measure.—The Booster Banquet held Feb. 24, netted the college $313.50 with which a new refrigerator for Ropp Hall kitchen is to be purchased.

— Grace Church, Lansdale, Pa., concluding its tenth anniversary: "In retrospect we see the hand of Christ working through His co-laborers. Men like Brother A. M. Fretz have sacrificed that Grace Church might come into being. Men like Bro. D. J. Unruh have labored hard in carrying on the work of the Master and building up His church. Hundreds, who on bended knees, have remembered the work before the throne of Grace. But it was God who gave the increase.—One might point out that possibly no other Mennonite church has enjoyed such phenomenal growth in its first decade as has come the way of Grace church, but in making this observation let us take heed not to glory in the flesh. "This is the Lord's doing; it is marvelous in our eyes." Psalm 118:23. —Olin A. Krehbiel.

— First Church, Mountain Lake, Minn.—Last Sunday, Mar. 4, was a good day for our church. The Mission collection at the morning service brought $42, the C. E. Offering was $12. Then Dr. H. A. Fast showed his pictures the same evening, and this brought another offering of $16. The Oakleaf Society has promised $10 to repair the telephone line from Champa to Janjgir, India. They are making plans for a spring program and social meeting for the church.—Rev. P. P. Tschetter, a schoolmate of Rev. I. J. Dyck, our pastor, 30 years ago, is conducting a series of sermons on the eight names which God gives to Himself in the Bible. Rev. Tschetter's visit is much appreciated. The Bluffton A Capella Choir will also include Mt. Lake in their tour next month. We expect their concert about April 14.

—Mary Bargen, Ch. Corr.

— Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio.—Annual Pre-Easter Services, March 10-17. Speaker: Dr. E. G. Kaufman, Pres. of Bethel College. Dr. Kaufman will speak morning and evening Sundays, March 10 and 17, and each evening through the week. General Theme: "What Christians Believe." Particular Themes: God, Creation, Man, Christ, Prayer, The Bible, The Church, The Kingdom, The Christian, The Future.

— Rev. William Penner of Wayland, Iowa, recently attended the funeral of his brother-in-law, Mr. G. R. Toews at Newton, Kansas, and visited friends while here.

— Rev. A. D. Schmidt of the Lorraine Ave. Menn. Ch., Wichita, Kansas, recently gave a series of interesting devotional programs over KFH station at Wichita.

GIRLS HOME WINNIPEG

(Home Missions)

Board Members and Friends of Missions:

December 21st was the date of our Christmas program in the Home here. At such a time our room is all too small, since all the girls that belong to the Home come back. The program of songs and poems was rendered in a commendable manner and the minister's in their remarks brought forth many good and helpful things. What a blessing to be able to observe the birth of Christ undisturbed and unmolested.

Herewith I desire to express our thanks to all the many friends in the States for the many evidences of their thoughtfulness for the holiday celebrations. Many girls were able to go home for Christmas, which of course, is always a source of much joy. Others who cannot go home, always try to come to the Girls' Home at least for the evening of Christmas.

A few new girls came to the city again to find work. There are still inquiries for our girls to serve in homes. Some of the older girls in the Home knitted 18 pairs of stockings in November for the soldiers. A lady where one of our girls has worked for eight years, sent the yarn to the Home. Now we have received more wool, therefore we will get busy again with our knitting.

Thank you again (in the name of the girls) for the support, which we have received during this past year. I was able to pay all bills. We hope that the Home might be maintained for the girls also during this coming year.

Sincere greetings, Helena Epp (Matron)

ORDER BLANK

MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE
Newton, Kansas

Place a cross in the order used.

☐ I wish to become a new subscriber of THE MENNONITE, and am enclosing the special price of $1.00 for the first year.

☐ I hereby renew my subscription to The Mennonite and enclose $________, for which credit me as far as it goes. Regular price is $1.50 a year.

Kansas subscribers shoul add 2 per cent. for taxes.

Old subscribers paying to 1941 or beyond get the YEAR BOOK free. This very valuable book may be had by anyone, postpaid, for $.25.

Name ____

Street or Route ______________________________

City _______________ State __________________

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA.

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Business Office, Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kans.
Editor .... J. R. Thierstein, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.50 .... Foreign, $2.00

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges, to J. R. THIERSTEIN, or the MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS.

REV. G. A. LINSCHEID
~~1001 EAST BROADWAY~~
NEW[illegible], K[illegible]SAS
JA 41
Key 42

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, MARCH 19, 1940 NUMBER 12

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

All Suffering Is Lonely

ALL suffering is lonely. We may be Surrounded by a host of friends who would Reach out with eagerness to minister
Within our solitude.

But oh, no human hand can touch the heart;
Our dearest friend is stranger to our need;
In utter loneliness we stand apart,
Uncomforted, indeed.

If it were not for ONE whose heart has known,
The loneliest roads, the bitterest agony;
Whose friends slept soundly as HE prayed alone
In dark Gethsemane.

WHO climbed a lonely hill on April day
That we through lonely hours might touch his hands,
To find we are companioned in the dark
By ONE who understands.

—Grace Noll Crowell.

* * *

THE ROAD TO EMMAUS

TWILIGHT. And on a dusty ribboned way,
Out from Jerusalem, two travelers walked.
Gray shadows touched their feet, but deeper lay
The shadows in their hearts. They softly talked
Of days just passed, of hopeless days in view,
Of boats of nets, the while their eyes were dim,
Of Galilee, the work they used to do,
Their voices often stilled remembering Him.

A stranger also walked that way, and when
They sensed his nearness, some new sympathy
Assuaged their grief. Old hopes came warm again
As in the dusk he kept them company . . .
Thus, through the troubled twilight of today
Emmaus road has stretched its shining thread,
And still Christ walks beside men on the way,
To hold the light of hope, to break the bread.

—Ida Norton Munson, in CHRIST. CENTURY

* * *

"Him God raised up the third day, and gave him to be manifest, not to all the people, but to witnesses that were chosen of God . . . To him bear all the prophets witness, that through his name every one that believeth on him shall have remission of sins."—Bible.

"If Christ Be Not Risen"

"The apostle Paul in his great message on the resurrection of Christ (I Cor. 15) well states the issue involved when he says, "And if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain."

What a sad "if" that would be had there been any question at all in the mind of Paul! But Paul is not expressing a doubt. He is registering his confidence. Christ died. Christ arose again. Of these two facts the apostle is always sure and on these two facts he predicates his message. Take away the fact and the message is gone. And we might as well say now that any preacher who discards these facts is entirely without a message. Any man who believes with all his heart in the atoning death and triumphant resurrection of Christ has a message for this or any age. And this message does not depend on current events or timely topics. It is not colored by yesterday's book or tomorrow's newspaper. It is permanent and of undiminished value.

But Paul does use another "if" in a sense of uncertainty. "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens" (II Cor. 5:1). Paul was very sure of the resurrection of Christ, but he wasn't sure that he, Paul, would die before the return of Christ. The certainty of Christ's substitutionary death makes uncertain the death of each generation of believers from the cross to the second coming. Some day the procession of death will be interrupted, but if we do not happen to live until that day it is all right, for "we know" what we have in heaven by God's grace and the finished work of Christ."—Moody Monthly.

* * *

This Easter time brings us the assurance that when He comes and shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voices of the archangel and with the trump of God, believers who sleep in Christ and those then living will be caught up together to meet Him in the air, and all will be as in the twinkling of an eye, transformed and transfigured and possessed of bodies as perfect and as glorious as His own, and in these glorious and resplendent bodies we shall reign and rejoice forever.

—E. P. Goodwin.

"Who Shall Roll the Stone Away?"

Jesus was dead and buried. His disciples and friends were extremely downcast. The outlook for the Kingdom which He had come to establish was apparently hopeless. The rulers of the Jews had done away with this new Prophet, yet with fear they remembered His word that in three days He would rise from the grave. In Satan's realm there must have been great commotion, after Jesus had uttered the word that sealed His work of salvation, "It is finished." They knew that He had met and vanquished them. Their consternation reached its climax when the tomb burst open and He Whom they had maliciously tried to destroy had come forth as the Conqueror of death and the Lord of life.

Now a few of his truest friends, a trio of women, are approaching the tomb. They are bringing sweet spices with which to annoint the body of their 'dead' friend, when all at once they remember the huge stone blocking the entrance to the place and distressfully they ask, "Who shall roll away the stone?" But what startling revelation awaits them when they find the boulder—for it was exceeding great—rolled away. And as they enter tremblingly they see to their astonishment, "a young man sitting at the right side, arrayed in a white robe," saying to them, "Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth who was crucified: He is risen." Strange, indeed! Not only their stone gone, but their friend and Lord also! Trembling and speechless from astonishment, they leave the place in great haste to spread the wonderful news: Christ is risen, salvation is complete!

Have we not had similar experiences? How often has some seemingly insurmountable obstacle hindered our Christian service and our contact with the Master. And how we worried! We wanted to proceed, but there was that barrier ahead of us, prodigious, forbidding. Then when we arrived, O wonder! the stone was gone. A loving heavenly Father had rolled it away. And we were led anew to a realization of His power, His grace, His Love. T.

EASTER POINTING TO HEAVEN.—We greatly need the cheer of this precious Easter truth. We make too little of the place our Lord has gone to prepare for us. We rob ourselves greatly when we try to reduce heaven to a mere state of ecstatic feeling. We need the cheer which comes of having the eye of faith fixed on the better country and the city that hath the foundations. Such a certainty of an inheritance that is real and that cannot fade away goes far to mitigate the pangs which come of the fires and floods and disasters and frauds which so often despoil God's people of their earthly possessions; for we know that the things seen are temporal, but the things not seen are eternal, and they are only a few heart-beats away. —E. P. Goodwin.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

Directed by the Mission interests not to exceed a certain amount of space, the following articles intended for the Mission Number had to be deferred by the editor to this issue of THE MENNONITE.

Bhaskaro

by P. A. Penner

That was her name. She was dumped into the Bethesda Leper Home by her father in May, 1936. Yes, "dumped" is the right word. He was glad to be rid of this girl. What does a girl amount to, anyway? Bhaskaro was about 13 to 14 years of age. Only a girl, and homely, especially when she smiled which was very seldom. Hands and feet were badly mutilated by that dread disease, leprosy. She was in rags and her hair was disheveled and probably inhabited. Her father put a bundle of filthy rags near her and without so much as a word, left her sitting on the ground, in the hands of the mission.

On the evening of that day she sat on the veranda of one of the homes and out of an Ooriya book read fast and furiously. Not because she was homesick, methinks, but because of sheer loneliness and an attempt to keep the tears back that would come out unbidden. I spoke to her, but received no reply, so I simply let her read. She was given a place in the Spencer Jack Memorial Home with our leper girls. She did not fit in. Because of her loneliness, ignorance of the Hindi language, not being able to enter into the games and sports, etc., that the others so thoroughly enjoy, the girls did not seem to win her confidence. Often I saw her standing against a pillar of her home with a forlorn and unhappy expression on her face. Father and mother did not want her; the villager did not want her, and here, too, she apparently did not fit in. She was indeed a sad picture. My heart went out to her in genuine pity. What could we do for this unhappy leper girl? I made up my mind that I would endeavor with the help of God to win her confidence and love. In small ways I tried to show her that I cared for her. A little attention here and there that I did not show the other girls, I gave to her. Telling her how pleased I was that her room looked so neat and tidy, how nice she was, etc., nothing seemed to win this kiddie. Outwardly, at least, she showed no signs of appreciation and gratitude.

Recently her physical condition necessitated her removal to the hospital as an inpatient. Her wounds began to ulcerate and she had a good deal of pain, which she bore quietly. Daily and sometimes twice daily, I visited her and endeavored to cheer her and comfort her. She accepted everything I said and did quietly with never a sign of appreciation or thanks. When I came into her ward and said "Good-morning, Bhaskaro," she would reply: "Goo' morin." "How are you to-day, Bhaskaro?" her reply was "Achchi." (Good). That was all. After some weeks, her condition began to improve and so at one of my morning visits, I said to her: "You will soon be well, and then I will send you home to your father and mother." She turned her big eyes on me and with quivering lips said: "I don't want to go to father and mother." "But, why not?" "They don't love me as you do," was her reply. So love had won her after all. "Love NEVER faileth." A day or two later when I again visited her, she said: 'Papaji, I want to be a Christian." She was baptized on July 11th, and is a very happy Christian. "When my father and my mother forsake me, then Jehovah will take me up."

THE SWORD OF THE SPIRIT PREVAILS AGAINST THE "ARROW:"

by J. B. Ediger

Dear Mission Friends: The arrow ceremony is an old religious Cheyenne ceremony. Our Cheyenne Indians had and have other religious ceremonies but this ceremony is claimed to have originated with or by the Cheyennes and belongs to them only. The keeper or priest of the ceremonial arrows has to be a full blood Cheyenne. When different tribal doings are slated the arrow ceremony has the right of way.

For the first time since we are here, the arrow keeper, elected or appointed several years ago after the death of his predecessor, lives in the Clinton district. Last spring two of his daughters accepted Jesus as their Saviour and were baptized. I went to see the parents. The father said: "It is up to them. They are old enough to know what they want." When the time for the annual arrow ceremony gathering came, the Indians gathered but their arrow keeper did not come. He asked them to give him a horse before he would come with the arrows. But finally he went. The Indians say this was a smaller camp and with less interest than ever before in the ceremony.

Last fall this arrow keeper aspired to a governmental tribal position. He was told at a large gathering by some of the "old faithful" that the keeper of the sacred arrows is not to mix with the people and by all means not join in discussions or even debates as that office he tried to get would require. One of our Christians came to me soon after that meeting and somewhat excited told me about it. I asked him what the arrow keeper said. He said the arrow keeper answered: "I am elected arrow keeper and accepted the position and as long as I have that I am going to do my duty faithfully. But I am also a citizen and a father of a family. It is my duty as citizen to take part in our tribal affairs just like anyone else and that has nothing to do with the position as arrow keeper. Besides, while I am arrow keeper and doing my duty, you know that two of my children joined the church and naturally I am leaning that way now."

This caused quite a commotion. The "old Indians" say they see that they are losing ground because so many become Christians and others are not interested in the old tribal ceremonies.

"So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it." Isa. 55:11.

Clinton, Oklahoma
February 21, 1940

A SPROUTING GRAIN AND RESURRECTION.—Look into the wheat bin. There lie the bare seeds—the natural bodies—but no artist would think of sitting down before them. Now turn your eyes upon the field of living grain as the winds of summer billow its surface. What beauty—what a glory! The bare grains have risen from death in a body of living green, matchless in the splendor of a new and a higher material body. So is the resurrection of the human form. It is sown corruptible—it is raised incorruptible; it is sown in weakness—it is raised in power; a low, inferior, imperfect body is sown—one of glorious perfection rises up from this, as from a seed. There is a natural body and there is a spiritual body, and the former comes first—is the seed of the latter? As we have borne the image of the earthly, so also shall we bear the image of the heavenly. —S. S. Mitchell.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

A. S. Rosenberger

THE PURPOSE OF CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

J. H. Langenwalter

The keynote of Christian Education is found in Jesus' epitome of the Law and the Prophets: "Thou shalt LOVE the Lord, thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength, AND thy neighbor as thyself." This suggests a right relationship with God and with our fellow man as a good working definition for religion. Jesus occupied Himself with training men in this direction. Following Him constituted Christian Education for them.

The purpose of Christian Education is well expressed in Matthew 6:33: "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." When we seek God's kind of righteousness we find, sooner or later, that other things have a way of falling into line with the great purpose which He holds before us. When we follow this suggestion of Jesus we find our lives becoming helpful in three directions:

I. We help people to become successful seekers for the realities of life. These realities of life are found in the realms where we can be ourselves at our best, as God intended that we should. It is the business of education to lead men out into these higher, more real realms. Education which is truly Christian does just that.

II. We help people to properly arrange the values of life. If people are to be themselves at their best, they must learn to put first things first. God has an orderly arrangement for the good of mankind. It is the business of education to teach people how to find that orderly arrangement for their lives. When education is Christian it achieves that objective.

III. We help to reveal the ways which God has of making helpful adjustments, when people give Him a chance. It is the business of education to help people see the reasonableness of finding the great central truths and then letting the incidents arrange themselves about these. There is little sense in planning the arrangement of the bouquet until you have planted the seeds for the flowers. Just so, there is little sense in expecting spiritual fruits without meeting God's conditions for them.

—The Test of Growth.—Doctor Bonar once remarked that he could tell when a Christian was growing. In proportion to his growth in grace he would elevate his Master, talk less of what he was doing, and become smaller and smaller in his own esteem until, like the morning star, he faded away before the rising sun. Jonathan was willing to decrease that David might increase; and John the Baptist showed the same spirit of humility. —Selected.

Looking for the Unexpected

By Edna R. Brown, 3111 E. 35th Ave., Spokane, Washington

"If I had only known, it would have been different, but it took me completely by surprise!" is a common acknowledgment for some embarrassing defeat or failure.

Lack of foreknowledge, however, is no worthy excuse for spiritual downfalls. The Christian soldier is expected to be prepared at all times. He has orders to be ever watchful; to have his complete armour on at all times; and to expect surprise attacks from the enemy.

Satan is an accomplished specialist in the art of attacking the strongest Christians in their weakest moments. His vigilance is unceasing. He is always feverishly busy scheming how to take sincere Christians unaware. (How well most of us know this, for under this category we could place most of our defeats).

Much as the enemies of God's people schemed (at the time when they were building the walls of Jerusalem under Nehemiah's direction), so do our present-day enemies plan, and their plans are conceived by the very same master-schemer, SATAN. Their adversaries, being "very wroth" at their good work, said: "They shall not know, neither see, till we come in their midst among them, and slay them, and cause the work to cease" (Neh. 4:11). That plan of Satan's never grows old, and it works only too well in far too many cases. But here, as in the case just cited, we would do well to follow their example of constant preparedness. "Nevertheless we made our prayer unto God, and set a watch against them day and night, because of them"; "Our God shall fight for us" (Neh. 4:9, 20).

Moreover, they were acquainted with the course they were to take if the battle should come. "Be not afraid of them: remember the Lord which is great and terrible, and fight . . . " (Neh. 4:14). In the meantime, as for the builders, "everyone had his sword girded by his side, and so builded" (Neh. 4:18).

When Satan saw their vigilance, he turned his efforts to other crafty schemes, trying hard to trap Nehemiah, but Nehemiah—in constant touch with God—perceived the nature of the whole series of tricks, and refused to be caught.

Our soul-enemy today is the same one, and he is just as tricky as ever. He delights in trapping us when we are unaware. That is why we are commanded: "Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour: Whom resist steadfastly in the faith, knowing that the same afflictions are accomplished in your brethren that are in the world" (I Pet. 5:8, 9).

Satan's boldness and activity are surprising. In Job we read: "Now there was a day when the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord, and Satan came along among them. And the Lord said unto Satan, Whence comest thou? Then Satan answered the Lord, and said, "From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it" (Job 1:6, 7). Then Satan viciously attacks Job, "a perfect and an upright man, one that feareth God and escheweth evil."

Satan still is looking for Jobs. None of us is free from the dangers of Satan's wiles. Recalling with blushing cheeks, we can easily see the need of looking for the unexpected, for our unawareness is Satan's favorite route of attack.

That is why it is necessary for us to take to heart passages of Scriptural admonition such as the following:

"Neither give place to the devil"; "Pray without ceasing"; "Prove all things: hold fast that which is good";"Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong," and many more. We are to keep in mind that God, who knoweth how to deliver the godly from temptation, is stronger than Satan. So, only in being constantly prepared for the unexpected can we be "more than conquerors."

Peace Committee Treasury in Distress

Prof. Lukas J. Horsch, treasurer of the General Conference Peace Committee, reports that their treassury is totally empty, and that they sorely need some funds to carry on the task that the Conference has delegated them to do. This is summarized in the following conference resolutions:

"The Peace Committee shall, in accord with the directions of the Conference, concern itself with the promotion of the cause of Peace as taught and commanded by Jesus, our Lord, and his apostles, etc." Res. 94, 1933. "In the promotional work the Peace Committee is herewith authorized to organize study courses, stimulate the writing and publication of peace literature, arrange for lecture courses, seek cooperation with Peace Societies within our Conference, court coordination with Christian Peace groups beyond our own organization, and utilize any other opportunity to promote the cause of Christian Peace." Res. 95, 1938.

The Committee is honestly trying to promote Christian Peace and to disseminate informational Peace literature, but its efforts are seriously crippled by the lack of funds. Should not every church heed this call and do a little to help this worthy cause along?

Send all gifts to: L. J. Horsch, Upland, California.

—The Editor.

Yes, He is ris'n who is the First and Last;
Who Was and Is; who liveth and was dead;
Beyond the reach of death He now has passed,
Of the one glorious Church the glorious Head.

—Horatius Bonar

To the Churches of the Western District Conference

At the last conference session in Wichita, Kansas, resolution No. 6 was adopted. Resolved: In view of the work already done in Southwest Wichita, we authorize our Home Missions Committee, if they deem it advisable, to take up this work in an experimental way.

The Home Mission Committee investigated the possibilities of this field and at present plans, with the cooperation of the Lorraine Ave. Church to continue the work. The emphasis is to be on the spiritual, even though relief work is also to be continued among the most needy. This extended undertaking, our city missions and the work among the scattered Mennonite groups, demands increasing expenditures.

Our treasury is depleted and we do not know how to meet the necessary expenses. Therefore, we come to the churches with this plea, to support this work of Gods' Kingdom with prayer and gifts. If every congregation in the Western District would send in a liberal contribution to the treasurer of our committee, Rev. G. A. Linscheid, Newton, Kansas, this work could be continued with great blessing and success.

The congregation in Wichita has undertaken to pay one half of their minister's salary this year. It is gratifying to know that the church is growing so that it now has a membership of 110. We believe the time will soon come when this will be a self-supporting church. Also in Enid, Okla., as well as among the scattered Mennonite groups, the work is progressing nicely to the blessing of many. Therefore, again we remind you to remember this work with your prayers and gifts.

A. J. Dyck, Pres.,
John E. Kaufman, Sec.

MISSIONARY WIENS TO WORK FOR OUR PUBLICATIONS

For some time the officers of the Board of Publication have been trying to find some one who would go out and work among our constituency in the interest of our publications and our book business. Now Missionary P. J. Wiens thinks he would like to try this work, while the family is held in the home land. We feel that our people will approve of this effort and appreciate the opportunity thus given this brother for work within our circles, and will open their doors to him.

Brother Louis Beer who in his own unique way, with a pony team and a top buggy, did colportor work in our conference for about a generation, is in the Old People's Home at Gossel, Kansas, still in a way his own self, but unable to work. With a runabout Brother Wiens should be able to get around faster and do quite well. Let us hope so, and pray for him.

J. R. Thierstein.

SERMON SKETCH

THE TWO PATHWAYS OF LIFE

By Elmer Basinger

TEXT: Matthew 7:13, 14

Introduction

Jesus is here using a figure of speech commonly known as a metaphor to represent the two pathways of life or the two courses of conduct one may follow. The exhortation "Enter ye in at the Strait gate" is followed by two causal clauses. The first clause, "for wide is the gate and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat," is a description of the pathway which we are to avoid. The second clause, "Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way which leadeth into life, and few there be that find it," points out the pathway which we are to follow.

I. The Broad Way of Destruction

1. The Gate to the broad way stands wide open, it requires no effort to enter in. All one needs to do is to follow the evil desires, the lusts and passions of the flesh, and he will have entered the wide gate which leads to the broad way.

2. The Broad Way. On the paths of godlessness there is a deceptive appearance of freedom and independence, but licentiousness and true liberty are not the same thing, and true freedom is not to do as you please, but to like to do as you ought. The path may seem attractive and tempting for a little while, but earthly pleasures have a strange knack of losing their charm.

3. The Travelers. The broad road is accommodating and suits the taste of the unregenerated hearts. "And this is the condemnation," said Jesus, "that light is come into the world and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds are evil." Is it not the same today?

On this broad road, we find all classes of people. The high as well as the low, the educated as well as the ignorant, the wealthy as well as the poor. It is not always safe to follow the crowd. It is safer to be with the few than with the many.

4. Then End-Destruction. The end is the natural consequence of one's conduct. Whatsoever a man sows that he must also reap. The man who sows to the flesh will of the flesh reap corruption. The sinner who spurns salvation and the love of God and chooses to travel on the broad road will finally reach the destiny to which the road leads.

II. The Narrow Way to Eternal Life

1. The strait gate is the entrance to the narrow way that leads to life eternal. If we would enter through this gate, there must be a consciousness of our own emptiness and need, there must be a penitent confession of our sins and a willingness to forsake them.

There must be a sincere desire after the righteousness which comes by faith and a full surrender of our life to Jesus Christ who is the Way, the Truth, and the Life.

2. The Narrow Path. The Christian course has limitations and restrictions of which the godless man knows nothing about. The Christian life calls for the lit lamp, the girt loin, the taking up of the cross, and a strenuous persistent endeavor of self-denial and consecration. The road is narrow because there can be only one aim or purpose in life and this is to seek his Kingdom and glorify God in all we do.

3. The Travellers. On the narrow road there are only a few in comparison with the many on the broad road. That was true in Christ's time and I am sorry to say, that it is still true today. Permit me to ask you, are you among the many or the few? Have you enlisted as a soldier of the cross and are you following in the footsteps of your Master?

4. The End—Eternal Life—Eternal life is a certain quality of life which one must possess here and now, if he expects to be admitted to the Heavenly Home above. Someone has said: "Heaven is a place prepared for a prepared people." If you ever intend to walk the golden streets of the New Jerusalem, it will be necessary for you to put on your wedding garment now and walk the narrow path which finally will take you there. If you ever expect to enjoy heaven, you had better get busy now and learn the language, the songs, and the occupation of heaven.

III. The Exhortation, "Enter ye in at the strait gate."

The conditions of success in any branch of human activity is the strait gate. No eminence is attained in any field of endeavor without effort, and self-discipline, and watchfulness, and watchful attention to one's work. You pronounce a young man's doom when you say, "He takes things easy or he does not care about anything."

It is not by easily floating on the tide, not by thoughtlessly falling in with the fashion of the crowd, that any one accomplishes what is worthy and lasting. It is only by separating himself from the crowd and becoming exceptional in discipline and in effort that in any department any one rises to the top.

Jesus applies the same principle to the spiritual realm. He does not want us to follow the path of least resistance. Jesus exhorts us to enter the strait gate and walk in the narrow way, because it takes effort, struggle, self-sacrifice, and self-denial. The Christian life is not an easy life. To be saved is the exceptional thing, not the common.

If we have not yet entered the Kingdom of God through the strait gate of repentance and faith in Jesus Christ as our personal Savior, let us not put it off any longer, but heed the call of Christ and enter in while the door of opportunity is still open for us.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

March 31, 1940

THE CONTINUOUS TASK

Matt. 28:16-20

TOPIC: The Kingdom and Missions

Introduction

No one of the Gospel writers gives an entire description of the resurrection of Christ, but all of them unite in unanswerable testimony to the FACT of the resurrection. Our lesson has to do with the thought uppermost in the risen Christ's mind as He was about to return to the Father. He had finished the work He was to do while on earth. He had a large program for the future which He must entrust to his disciples to carry out. To Christians of all time the Great Commission, the "continuous task" is given, the task of making disciples among all nations.

Jesus Meets His Disciples in Galilee

It was some time after the resurrection day. Jesus had said, "After I am risen, I will go before you into Galilee" (Matt. 26:32). The angel at the tomb asked the women to remind the eleven (v7) and Jesus gave them the same command (v10). The disciples had now gone to Galilee, to an appointed meeting place (v16) where they waited for Him. High hopes filled their hearts for they had seen the risen Lord in Jerusalem. When they saw Him approaching they were moved to reverent worship and adoration of Him as their divine Lord. It was an holy hour. His divine glory quite likely was visible to them. Some of those present doubted (v17), not likely any of the eleven, for Jesus had appeared to them twice in Jerusalem. Most probably others were present at this time, likely the more than five hundred mentioned by Paul (1 Cor. 16:6).

The Great Commission

Jesus came near to them (v18) so all could see Him clearly and have their doubts dispelled, and hearing His voice would help to convince all present. A near approach to Christ will banish the doubts of many doubters. Jesus declared to them that the authority for giving the commission they are to receive, was given to Him by the Father himself (Matt. 11:27). Jesus had no powers such as the world recognizes. Yet He is Lord of all and all power in heaven and on earth necessary to advance His kingdom is given to Him.

With authority Jesus gives the commission (vs 19, 20) to the eleven disciples. "Go ye," is the first word. God works through men and expects us to use the power He gives us. The mission is world-wide. "Teach" —the Greek verb used means much more than teaching—make disciples of people of all nations. Not all will respond to the Gospel message, but it shall be taken to them so it may permeate every nation. Those who believe and accept the Gospel, shall be baptized, thus making an outward profession of discipleship. The believers were to be taught further, to observe all the commandments of Jesus. His teachings are binding upon everybody. The assurance of his continued presence as helper, makes the fulfillment of this commission possible.

One can scarcely conceive of a living Christianity that is not missionary in outlook. We are under obligation to do our Lord's bidding. Sin is a universal fact, and there is no salvation apart from Christ. All nations need Christ. The primary objectives of Christian missions are first, to make disciples, win followers for Christ, and second, to teach all people to observe His teachings. The truth must be made known to people before they can accept it. Christian education is a necessary part of the missionary enterprise. Christ's work is committed to His followers, to His Church. Each one has a part in it. Not all can go away as missionaries, but all of us should be actively interested in distinctly missionary work. We can all inform ourselves, we can pray earnestly, we can give according to ability. It is a fundamental duty of all Christians, of the Christian Church to help actively to carry on Christ's Great Commission, to bring the Gospel to all nations and peoples.

DOCTRINAL - DEVOTIONAL

"VERBAL INSPIRATION"

By P. A. Kliewer

I do not wish to refute any statements some one else has made, merely reaffirm my belief in the Verbal Inspiration of the Holy Scriptures, and give my reason for thus believing. The writer of the article: "Inspiration of the Holy Scriptures," states: "Christianity is founded not on the inspiration of its documents, but upon the life, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ as Savior. In Eph. 2:20 we read: "And are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone." Thus the WRITTEN and the LIVING Word both, Old and New Testament. I Cor. 15:3-4: "Christ died, was buried and rose again according to the Scriptures." Rom. 10:17: "So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God." Paul to Timothy: "Preach the Word."

False teachings as to the inspiration: "God gave the thought and men clothed God's thoughts in words." Or, "The Bible is men seeking after God." I could not base my salvation upon any such indefinite revelations. I believe in the Verbal Inspiration, the thoughts as well as the words inspired of God, the method may not be known, nor does this greatly matter. The writings, and not the writer are inspired. "All Scripture is GIVEN by inspiration of God . . ." II Tim. 3:16, "Holy men of God SPAKE as they were moved by the Holy Ghost," and not of any private interpretation. The teaching here is that writings are made up of words and letters forming the words, God-breathed, and given to men. Had it been left to the haphazard and chance selection of words which weak, fallible and, for most part, illiterate men might choose to express God's thoughts, it is obvious that we have no infallible revelation of the plan of salvation. Had man clothed God's thoughts in words, how reliable would such revelation be? Revelation was made to the prophets by the Holy Spirit and was independent of their own thinking, arising not from their minds but from the Spirit of God who made known to them these revelations in the literary style natural to them. The Holy Spirit spake in the prophetic utterances, giving to the prophets the very words to speak. "Which things we speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teaches, but which the Holy Spirit teacheth." . . I Cor. 2:13. The writers could take given words and record them better then that they could take God's thoughts and find appropriate words for them. Just as the technical engineer could dictate a letter with better results than if he told the stenographer the bare thoughts and let her choose the words. Prophets sometimes wrote things they did not understand, like a stenographer takes down medical terms. True, we have only copies of the original word, but I believe that God who sent His only begotten Son into this world to die for our sins, to save us, and who inspired the original writings, was enough interested in the copying of the original writings to guard from error and preserve its truth and power. Also believe that God guided the gathering of the books of the Bible as we have it today, and did not leave us a record of eternal salvation worded by fallible men, nor did He leave it to men in the gathering of the books. In Ris' Confession of Faith, page 3, top of page—Not as word of man but of God—and is only infallible and sufficient rule, etc.,—could this be true, if not verbally inspired?

We have the Bible itself witnessing of its being verbally inspired. Direct witness, Exo. 4:10-12, Deut. 4:2—Referring witness, Ps. 119:89, Heb. 4:12 — Such: "The Word of the Lord came to Noah." In Joshua 22:26-27, Word given to him and he gave to the people. Isa. 53—worded by men? John 12:48-50, Pre-authentication of the New Testament. Heb. 1:1-3 —Spake first by the prophets and then by His Son—acutally did speak through His Son. John 12:48-50. Many other passages.

Many great Bible teachers, all soul-winners, believe in the verbal inspiration. Bishop Lyle: "Give me the plenary verbal inspiration theory with all its difficulties rather than the doubts. I accept the difficulties and humbly wait for their solution: but while I wait, I am standing on a Rock." Thus I stand, on the God-breathed Word, the Bible. I can't help what others may believe or not believe, here is where I stand, and on it I base my eternal salvation.

Shall the United States Continue to Arm Japan

It is estimated that 40,000,000 Chinese have been driven from their homes to far distant areas, and of this number, from 5 to 10,000,000 have died of disease and privation.

Cities far distant from the battle areas have been bombed and hundreds of thousands of non-combatants have been killed and wounded. The "Rules for the Conduct of War" approved at The Hague many years ago, which provided for humane treatment of prisoners and non-combatants, have been discarded.

Freedom for one-fifth of the human race hinges upon the grim struggle now raging in China. The alternative, if Japan wins, is a vast militaristic, aggressive Empire dominating Asia and the Western Pacific.

American sympathies favor China, but our economic strength, which counts, is overwhelmingly with Japan. Even before the outbreak of conflict in Europe, Japan obtained 56 per cent of her essential imports of war supplies from the United States. During 1937 and 1938, over $300,000,000 worth of American resources—scrap iron, copper, steel, ferro-alloys, oil, machinery and motors—went to build up the Japanese military machine. Since the beginning of war in Europe, we have become even more exclusively the mighty economic support of the Japanese Juggernaut.

The ambitions of Japan's calculating and determined military leaders are fairly well known; the conquest of China and the elimination of Western influence there; through use of China's untapped resources and huge man power, the building up of immense and unassailable military and economic strength; the expanding control of the Western and Southern Pacific; an increasing invasion of world markets with low-priced manufactures; and finally, the rise of Japan to world dominance.

If, with our continued help, they succeed in China, then the foundation will at least be laid for a very formidable military and naval empire—one increasingly able to challenge America on issues of vital importance in the Pacific and in this hemisphere. Is it not strange that we continue vigorously to build up an aggressive power which threatens to become a growing menace to ourselves and to the peace of the world, depleting our own resources in the process? Our help to Japan prolongs the war, reduces peacetime trade, helps to impoverish both China and Japan, helps Japan to kick us out of China, and imposes upon ourselves and our children the burden of billions of dollars in added taxation for naval armaments in defense against the power that we are now helping to build up.

The firm withholding of all support to Japan now would lead certainly to the bogging down of their military machine, and to the emergence of an independent China—the best guarantee of our own future security in the Pacific. For it is American materials which, most of all, make possible the continued mechanized superiority of Japan's forces in China.

And China is the greatest open market for freedom and democracy in a world now threatened with expanding tyranny and force. Yet we, who love freedom, are furnishing decisive help for the cruel subjugation of the Chinese people. American public opinion has turned increasingly against this participation in Japanese aggression. A Gallup poll, taken in August 1939, showed 82 per cent of those voting as favoring government action for an embargo on war supplies to Japan.

Under the Nine-Power Treaty by which we pledged ourselves to respect the sovereignty and independence of China, our obligation and our rights are clear. It gives us a perfect right to withhold supplies now being used for the assault against China. The ending of the commercial treaty with Japan in January has cleared the way for such action.—The American Committee for Non-Participation in Japanese Aggression, New York.

TENTATIVE ITINERARY OF THE FIELD SECRETARY AMONG THE CHURCHES OF SASKATCHEWAN, CANADA

Mar. 31—Apr. 3—Herbert, Ruch Lake, Copeland, Morse.
April 4, 5, and 7—Swift Current, Wymark, Gull Lake
April 9-14—Dundurn, Hanley, Clavet, Eyebrow, Colonsay, Foam Lake.
April 16, 17—Langham. April 18—Osler
April 19—Aberdeen. April 21—Rosthern
April 22-24—Hague, Neuanlage, Hochfeld
April 25—Waldheim. April 26—Laird
April 28—Eigenheim
April 29-30—Tiefengrund, Garthland
May 1—Great Deer. May 3—Mayfair
May 5-8—Rabbit Lake, Bournemouth, Glenbush
May 9, 10—Spritwood, Debden. May 11—Capasin
May 14—Meadow Lake
May 16-18—Lost River, Carrot River, Petaigan
May 21—Superb. May 22—Herschel
May 23—Fiske
May 24—Kindersley, Glidden, Madison.

NUGGETS FOR MINISTERS

BE YOURSELF—"I do detest the kind of people that have a religious tone—who always change their voice when they begin to talk to you on the subject of religion, and have a peculiar whine that makes you think of cant. Be natural. Talk of this subject as you would on any other subject."—D. L. Moody.

"Here is good advice for any speaker: 'Don't forget that it is a hideous gift to possess, to be able to say nothing at extreme length.' The Westerner says: 'If a speaker can't strike oil in thirty minutes he should give up boring.'" —King's Business

R. Weinbrenner
Editor

Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen

Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers

Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

The Sign of the Cross

Throughout all ages a large majority of mankind has been in confusion as to the relationship between power and the doing of God's will upon earth. Men in this day of "Christian nations" insist by word and action that there is more power in the sword than in forgiving, serving love. The Medieval church held that God's saving power was revealed in the Inquisition. The Jews set up a definition of power for their Messiah. Because of it they were blind to the "sign of the cross."

"And they that passed by reviled him, wagging their heads, and saying, . . . 'If thou be the Son of God, come down from the cross.' The chief priests . . . scribes and elders said, 'If he be the King of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe him.'"

Men haunted and taunted Jesus, as He hung on the cross, with the accusation that He was powerless. He seemed powerless according to their conception. But was he? Power may be defined as the ability to achieve one's purpose. It was the purpose of Jesus to suffer and die upon the cross in order that men might be saved. The whole universe was affected by this utilization of power. But certain men in their little world of conceptions saw no sign of power. They clamored for a sign. The sign of the cross was so large that with their smallness of heart they were unable to comprehend it. The cross was to them a blank. So it is to many in this day.

There is power in the cross, as it points upward to God and with outstretched arms to all mankind. It spells right relations with God and with man. R. W.

FUTURE WORKERS IN OUR CHURCH

Where will they come from and what training will they have? The past can give us light on this subject, for looking back into Bible history one notes that God used farmers, shepherds, fishermen, carpenters, artisans, tent makers, tax collectors, merchants, students, doctors, kings, priests, etc. Some were refined; others were rather rough; some came from the country, others from the city; some were from poor homes, others from mansions of wealth. Their training was as varied as their background and talents, for some were trained in all the worldly wisdom of their day together with the religious instruction available at that time, while others had no schooling.

What is it that qualifies one for service in the church? You will observe in the book of Acts that Spirit-filled men were the ones that were chosen. These were the kind of men that were picked as deacons in the Jerusalem church, see Acts chapter six. Barnabas, "was a good man full of the Holy Ghost and of faith," we are told in Acts 11:24. Were not the Apostles men filled with the Spirit?

So judging from this we can say that the future workers in our church will no doubt have different backgrounds, training, talents, and aptitudes, but there is one thing they must have if they would be men of God. That is, they must be full of faith and be led by the Spirit.

It grieves my heart that now and then remarks are made that tend to foster strife over the training of our ministry. The question of chief importance is not whether one is college trained or Bible School trained or Seminary trained or any combination of these, but is one fit for the Master's use. This is not putting a premium on ignorance but merely stressing the fact that any training without a spiritual rebirth is useless. Yes, God wants trained young people who have come the way of the cross, being cleansed by the blood of the Lamb of God.

Young people who desire to be workers in the Mennonite church in the years to come, seek first to experience the regenerating power of Christ, then get a good working knowledge of the Scriptures, acquire an understanding of the wisdom of our age, acquaint yourself with the background of the Mennonite church and her needs, and then be in the place where God wants you to work.

Olin A. Krehbiel.

Let's Read

Swords into Plowshares

An Account of the American Friends Service Committee, 1917-1937

By Mary Hoxie Jones

"Here we have the story of the work of the Friends Service Committee from 1917 down to the present. The Quakers have always been sensitive to the struggles and sufferings of their fellowmen and this dramatic story of their service, together with its portrayal of the spirit in which this service was done, forms a stirring epic. Mary Hoxie Jones writes graphically from personal experience. German children were fed by the Friends, typhus was fought in Poland, medicines were sent into Russia, tens of thousands of young people were cared for in the coal fields of West Virginia, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, and Ohio; and in more recent times in warring Spain, children of both parties were clothed and fed. The ills of war were healed and swords were truly turned into ploughshares."

"The book is a continuation of Dr. Jones' book, 'A Service of Love in Wartime.'

This is an inspiring and suggestive book for Mennonite youth who are interested in manifesting an attitude of active goodwill to a needy mankind. It can be gotten from the Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana. The price is $3.00.

Senior Department

CHRIST'S WORK IN MISSION FIELDS

Senior C. E. Topic, for April 7, 1940

MAIN TOPIC: Healing the Sick - Mt. 4:23; Lk. 9:12; James 5:14

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "To the Work," "Oh, Where are the Reapers," "Bring Them In," "Rescue the Perishding."
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer.
3. Presentation and discussion of mission project
4. Offering for missions.

II. Leader's Introduction

Secure some missionary if possible for a short inspirational talk—read a letter from the mission field taken from some church paper if a missionary is not available.

II. Suggested Topics for Short Talks.

1. A foreign daughter healed. Matt. 15:21-28.
2. An invitation to the burdened. Matt. 11:28-30.
3. The apostles heal. Acts 5:12-16.
4. Prophecy of the Healer. Isa. 61:1-3.
5. Ten lepers healed. Luke 17:11-14.
6. Reliance upon Christ. 1 Pet. 5:6-9.

IV. For Discussion

1. What is more important, preaching the gospel, teaching it, or healing the sick?

2. Does the healing of the body ever depend on the healing of the soul? If so, why?

3. Should each mission station have a mission doctor?

V. Facts for Study

When Jesus wanted to teach the meaning of the true spirit of brotherliness he spoke the parable of the good Samaritan. No Christian can evade the clarion call to service and helpfulness which Christ put forth in this parable. "Who is my neighbor?" The answer still is today as it was then, "He who is in need." Those in need are with us everywhere, the blind, the deaf, the maimed, those bruised in body and spirit. What do we do for them? "Am I my brother's keeper?" Everywhere the missionaries have found that healing and helping the sick was one of the very first essentials of their Christian service. It has opened the doors of homes and hearts. It is one of those things which are not easily misunderstood. Healing and helpfulness to those who are in need speak a universal language, the language of love.

VI. Illustrations

Dr. William Mayo, world-famous surgeon, speaking for himself and his equally famous brother Charles, said "The 'holy money,' as we call it, must go back into the service of that humanity which paid it to us. If we can train five hundred pairs of hands, we have heped to hand on the torch. From the year 1894 onward we have never used more than half our incomes on ourselves or on our families; latterly, much less. My brother and I have both put ourselves on salaries. We live within them. My house is turned over to the Foundation for the service of others. I wouldn't want my children deprived of the fun and benefit of wanting something and going out to fight for it." Such a spirit of generosity is most worthy of duplication by many others. "Holy money" is holy indeed when put to the use of others in such a Christian manner.

A Moslem patient whose eyes had been terribly injured by a mortal enemy was once brought to Dr. Pennel's hospital in western India. When told he would never see again, he implored the surgeon with these words, "Oh, Sahib, if you can only give me sight long enough to go and shoot my enemy, then I shall be satisfied to be blind the rest of my life." What a contrast with the Christian spirit of an Amrican missionary of whom Vincent Burns writes in "The Master's Message for the New Day." She had just arrived on the field with her husband and her little child when the former was shot by the savage Moslems whom they had come to help. The temptation to hate was conquered by the religion of Jesus. This woman took every dollar of her husband's life insurance money and built with it a hospital for the care of the sick of this very tribe that had murdered her loved one. Her magnanimity so amazed the Moselms that they were half won at the start to the gospel of Christ, brought to them by that brave, forgiving Christian woman.

VII. Food for Thought

Jesus gave away a bit of his soul with every healing touch. —John McNeil.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

TUNE IN TO THE BEST

April 14, 1940

For Daily Reading:

Apr. 8. The call of wisdom. Prov. 1:20-33.
Apr. 9. The mockers' sneer. 2 Pet. 3:1-13.
Apr. 10. The song of fools. Eccl. 7:3-6.
Apr. 11. A song of joy. Ps. 98:1-9.
Apr. 12. A promise of help. Isa. 41:10-14.
Apr. 13. A voice of trust. Hab. 3:17-19.
Apr. 14. Tune in to the best. Phil. 4:8.

Opening Song, "Purer in Heart, O God"

Scripture Reading, Phil. 4:8

Prayer by leader

Song, "Purer Yet and Purer"

Discussion of topic: (We trust the leader will assign these topics a week previous to the meeting, at least).

1. What program to which you have listened this week has been of real help to you?

2. What type of program do you listen to regularly?

3. What program has really given you factual information which every citizen should know?

4. Are there any types of programs on the air which you think are really harmful?

5. Do you think it is all right to advertise during a religious program?

6. Name some programs which help us to appreciate fine music.

7. Should we listen to programs during the week which we do not think it proper to listen to on Sunday?

8. Can we tell anything about a person's character by the type of program he listens to frequently?

Suggestion: Perhaps you might obtain permission to bring a small radio to your meeting which can be used to illustrate the answers to the above questions.

Song, "Saviour, Like a Shepherd Lead Us"

Offering

Song, "Take Time To Be Holy"

Mizpah Benediction

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

JESUS' "I AM'S"

Program Suggestions for April 1940

April 7.—I Am the Good Shepherd. John 10:11.
April 14.—I Am the Way. John 14:6.
April 21.—I Am the Vine. John 15:5.
April 28.—I Am Alpha and Omega. Rev. 22:13.

Song for the month: "Blessed Assurance Jesus is Mine"

Verse for the Month: Philippians 2:9-11.

"Wherefore God also hath highly exalted Him and given Him a name which is above every name: that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth; and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father."

Prayer for the month: Psalm 139:23, 24.

"Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting."

Program for April 7, 1940

"I Am the Good Shepherd" - John 10:11

To the leaders: Arrange a worship center using Copping's "The Good Shepherd" or some other picture of Christ as the Shepherd. Throw a light on the picture, place a vase of pussy-willows or a bowl of early spring flowers before it.

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude, Largo, with violin.

2. Call to worship: "O come, let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the Lord, our maker. For He is our God; and we are the people of His pasture, and the sheep of His hand." Psalm 139:6, 7.

3. Song in unison, "Saviour, Like a Shepherd Lead Us"

4. Scripture reading by a Junior boy: John 10:11, 14-18, 26-30.

5. Prayer by the Junior leader.

6. All turn to Psalm 23 and read it silently while the pianist plays the music of "The Lord Is My Shepherd". Service Hymnal No. 198.

7. Read in unison, Psalm 23. (As many as can, repeat it from memory).

8. Duet. The above song, "The Lord is My Shepherd."

Study Period. Aim: To help our Juniors to trust themselves to the "Good Shepherd."

1. Introduction. Some of the greatest characters in the Old Testament were shepherds, such as Able, who of course, was the very first shepherd. (Gen. 4:2.) Jacob, Joseph, Moses, David, and others. The shepherds of the east care for their sheep differently than we do. They know their sheep, they lead them to pasture and water, they protect them from enemies even giving their life for them. So the people who heard Jesus say, "I am the good shepherd" knew what a good shepherd is. But there is only one Good Shepherd. Jesus says, "I am," only "I" not another. It is of this good shepherd that we want to learn more tonight.

2. Talk by a Junior girl. "The good shepherd cares for his sheep." Isaiah 40:11; Matt. 11:28, 29; Ps. 23:3, 5.

3. Play the record from the Messiah, "He Shall Feed His Flock Like a Shepherd."

4. Talks by two Junior boys.
(a) "The sheep know the shepherd." John 10:14.
(b) "The sheep follow the shepherd." John 10:4; John 10:14; John 8:12.

5. Song in unison: "What a Friend We Have in Jesus."

6. Leader's Heart Talk. "The Shepherd giveth His life for the sheep." John 10:11.

7. Solo, "There Were Ninety and Nine." Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 164.

III. Mission Minutes

The Mission Number of "The Mennonite" is rich in material. Let each Junior bring one item found in this Mission Number. We might call this "Mission Gleanings." Some will want to show a picture to illustrate their "gleaning."

IV. Closing Moments.

1. Bible Verse by girls—John 10:11.
2. Bible Verse by boys—Psalm 100:3.
3. Bible Verse in unison—Psalm 79:13.
4. One Junior give from memory verse of the month. Phil. 2:9-11.
5. Stand and sing song of the month, "Blessed Assurance Jesus is Mine."
6. Pray the prayer of the month. Psalm 139:23, 24. Close by singing very softly
7. "Into My Heart."

—AFTER SUNDAY SCHOOL, WHAT?—Don't go home as soon as Sunday School is dismissed. Somebody might follow your example and never come back. Somebody might have planned to attend and seeing you go home will feel that the church service does not amount to anything to you, why should he attend? That somebody might be your own child, or your brother or sister, or husband or wife, or friend. Suppose that they would never attend because of your example? Stay for church service and the sermon. It might be the last one you ever hear.—Bulletin, First Church, Philadelphia.

A Harrowing Bombing Experience

From a letter by Mrs. Floyd Pannabecker that appeared in the Berne, Indiana, Witness recently we give below the main facts:

On January 7th Chai Chow was bombed again. As I stepped from the house to go to Sunday School I heard the peculiar drone of bomber airplanes and noticed six of them. At the church Etta and I found folks standing around and getting excited. We went upstairs. We could still hear the planes, but the children in the hall below did not seem to be aware of them. After the singing of the first hymn, three bombs fell. It sounded about like the slamming of a door. Then Alice Ruth's (daughter) class came running upstairs, and she cried, "Bombs, bombs—it seemed so terrible down stairs, and everybody is crying." The teacher following them was as white as a sheet. I told them to pray and "to believe that God's hands were over us." Other classes were found crying. I suggested that we pray one after another. But the hearts were so full that all prayed at once and aloud, the way we do occasionally in church with a big audience.

Before the meeting was over, the bombing ceased and the planes disappeared. Soon injured folks were carried to the hospital, not soldiers, just civilians. It always seems to hit just these. Li Hung Liang, a former evangelist, was killed by falling timbers. Nearly 40 bombs were dropped, 23 people were killed and 20 wounded. One family had come here, a distance of 30 miles, about a month ago, because they had heard there was more to eat here. Five of the six of them were killed. We went in later to see the results of the bombing in the homes of two of our families. What a mess! Mud, beams, bricks, all in a big pile.

During these troublous years thousands have come to know Him who otherwise would never have entered a church, nor heard the message in any other way. Our church work in the city is very difficult these days. A fine school with 200 pupils is reduced to ten who still have the courage to come. Almost all the large windows in the city were broken. Thus Albert Janzens and Etta Davis had their first experience of this kind.

CORRESPONDENCE

BETHLEHEM MENN. CH., BLOOMFIELD, MT.

We have been blessed with a mild winter but with considerable snow, so that blocked side-roads hindered church attendance. However, there have been services every Sunday but one. We have our weekly prayer meetings, when weather permits, usually in two different homes each week. We have also begun to have a S. S. teachers' meeting once a week, which is proving very helpful to the teachers and makes them grateful to the pastor. Last but not least, Sewing Circles have had their regular meetings too and are busy preparing articles for the Mission Sale in the fall. Then we have regular monthly Christian Endeavor, Mission programs, as well as evangelistic services, and also a children's church. This last surely helps the children to take an interest in the church, and we older ones always receive encouragement and greater inspiration in our service for our Lord and Savior.

Just recently an electric lighting system was installed in the church which surely is a wonderful improvement and we are so thankful that we were able to do this, and now steps are being taken to have the interior of the church redecorated. Surely the Lord is good to us. Praise His Name!—Mrs. Abe Schultz, Cor.

* * *

SWISS MENN. CHURCH, NEAR WHITEWATER, KANSAS

We have been kindly reminded that nothing has appeared in THE MENNONITE for a long time, from our church, and that it is our duty as well as our privilege to share our joys and also our sorrows to increase the former and diminish the latter, by so doing. We have had both sunshine and clouds, the darker days may prove greater blessings at last. We still enjoy fundamental and sound gospel preaching regularly, the S. S., the C. E. and last, but not least, the midweek Bible study or prayer service. Have also been visited with Gospel messages from a number of Ministers in the past, also of returned Missionaries, and even some not of our conference.

Of the greatest of God's works the superlative is placed on the resurrection of Christ, by many outstanding men of God. Our dear Pastor announced a sunrise Easter service to be held in union with two or three neighboring churches, to meet at our humble place of worship this year. We have of late years enjoyed many inspiring programs at the early dawn of Easter and are looking forward to this next one with even greater expectation.

Our dear Editor suggests that correspondences should be short or in condensed form. So now in closing let me just share a thrill which I received over the air this morning from Dr. Weber about the "No mores" of the future; i.e. no more war, no more sickness, no more death, no more night, etc. Look them up with me in your Bible.

Now I wish to extend our fondest Easter greetings to all, especially to our friends in the mission fields who are acquainted with us. It will be long past Easter when you read this.—Chas. Zuercher, Corr., Benton, Kansas.

Jesus is the bread and the water of life.

MEDFORD MENN. CHURCH, OKLA. 3-6-40

At its annual meeting our church obligated me with the duty of correspondence to THE MENNONITE. Though I do not feel qualified, by His grace I will try. Some time ago our young people rendered a song service program at the church which was enjoyed by all. Rev. A. G. Schmidt is the song leader. A little later the young people from the Deer Creek Mennonite Church favored us with a fine musical program, consisting of choruses, quartets and readings, which we enjoyed very much. Rev. Herbert Miller was the leader. How those beautiful sacred songs inspire! We were all so glad to have a visit from Miss Elizabeth Foth who does missionary work in the slum district of Brooklyn, New York. She gave us a glimpse of conditions there, and of her personal experiences.

Recently we had the privilege of celebrating two wedding anniversaries in our church. On Nov. 25, the anniversary of Brother and Sister H. J. Janzen was celebrated, with a program at the church and a reception at their home. Feb. 11, 1940, Brother and Sister J. P. Reimer celebrated their twenty-fifth anniversary with a program at the church and a reception at the home. The Reverends George Regier of Inola; H. L. Janzen, Enid; John Lichti, our pastor emeritus, and the present pastor, A. G. Schmidt, shared in the program, which was well interspersed with music.

In November we were blessed with a series of revival meetings, conducted by Rev. C. H. Dirks of Hutchinson, Kansas. All of those that came with the desire for more light and food for the soul were richly blessed. The annual Ladies Aid Mission Sale at the church on Thanksgiving Day was well attended and caused a good deal of interest.

The Giver of all good gifts has supplied our fields with ample moisture this winter, but the wheat having a poor start last fall is not very promising yet.

Peter Neufeld, Corr.

* * *

MENNONITE CHURCH, HANSTON, KAN. 3-6-40

A great deal of sickness has existed within our membership, making it necessary to omit our Christmas exercises, and also the Annual Congregational meeting. This was held Feb. 25. The treasurer reported all bills paid, and a small balance left in the treasury.

Mrs. Jacob Ewy is recovering nicely from a major operation, March 1. Two of our sisters entered Bethel Hospital, at Newton, Mrs. Minna Ewy for an eye operation, and Mrs. Susie Bamburger for medical treatment.

We have had some snow this winter, and a few rains, not much, but it has given our people a more hopeful attitude for the coming season.

March 3, the Bethel College Male Quartet rendered a very fine sacred concert at the church to a large and appreciative audience.—Correspondent.

SMITH CORNER CHURCH, EAST FREEDOM, PENN. 3-2-40.

We gratefully received manifold blessings from God during the past year. We gained one member, lost three by dismissal and one by death. This leaves us a membership of 64. Our membership consists to a large extent of children and young people. While some churches have the problem of getting their young people to stay for church services, almost every one of our young people stay for church worship.

On Jan. 14, our annual congregational meeting was held. Almost all the old officers were reelected again this year, with Bernard Smith, a young man not yet 21 years of age, entering upon his fifth year as our S. S. superintendent.—On Feb. 4 our pastor, Rev. John S. Raugh, conducted installation services. The reason for this delay was that some of the officers could not get there sooner because of bad weather. Our pastor spoke very fittingly on the subject "Zeal."

On Sunday afternoon, Feb. 18, funeral services for Brady E. Stiffler, were conducted in our church, by the pastor. Death came quickly after a very brief illness. He was born Feb. 11, 1910, and died Feb. 14, 1940, bringing his age to 30 years and 3 days. This proves to us that death does not only come to the young and the old but also to those in the prime of life. Surviving are his wife Nora, his aged father, James Stiffler, and five brothers and two sisters. He united with our church in 1935.—Melvin Smith, Corr.

* * *

EAST SWAMP CHURCH, QUAKERTOWN, PA.

The Lord has shown His face upon us. The interest has increased as also the giving. We had one severe snowstorm that closed a number of the roads, but that was no setback to the people of East Swamp. We had a Sunday School attendance of 104 on that Sunday. Mr. Frank G. Shelly, a member of our church, sent his snowplow to clear away the snow and cut the drifts, so we could get near the church. May God richly bless him, for his part in giving us a chance to come and worship in God's Holy Temple.—We also notice new faces from Sunday to Sunday who in a little while enroll in the Sunday School.

At present there are 17 members in the Catechetical class and a large majority will be accepted into church membership. A number of other folks who are under private instruction are to be accepted by baptism and confession of faith. We pray very definitely for these people.

The Evangelistic Meetings are well attended. May we sing "Wash me and I shall be whiter than snow." This is the appointed time, for who knows what the morrow may bring. We may again sing "Give to the Master," give yourself. May we pray for help to guide us in the narrow path, for the BROAD path leads to destruction. May many souls be won for "CHRIST" not the "CHURCH."

—Correspondent.

« « JOTTINGS » »

— DISTRICT CONFERENCES.—The date of the Middle District Conference has been set for August 15 to 18 and will convene at the Zion Mennonite Church, Donnellson, Iowa. The Pacific District Conference will meet at the Immanuel Church, Los Angeles, California, June 6-9.

— Grace Mennonite Church, Dallas, Oregon.—This church, sometime ago, packed and delivered to the Portland Docks 2200 pounds of dried fruit for India, and paid the freight, a little over $40.00 on the shipment.—Worker's Exchange.

— Rev. John Bartel, pastor of the Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minn., has been visiting some of our churches along the Pacific coast, and it is reported that his inspiring messages have been duly appreciated.

— First Mennonite Church, Colfax, Wash.—The Y.P.C.E. of this church has set up the following AIMS and GOALS for the coming months.—Look Out: (1) To invite new members to its meetings by telephone and post card. (2) To have a pre-prayer service before the C. E. meetings and sponsor mid-week prayer meetings. (3) To get more people to sign the pledge. — Missionary: (1) To write to missionaries. (2) To show mission pictures. (3) To give special programs, missionary news and biographies at our meetings. — Prayer Meeting: (1) To have special speakers occasionally. (2) To have exchange programs with other churches. (3) To give special programs. (4) To meet once a month with the leaders and help plan meetings. — Social: (1) To send cards to the sick. (2) To have a social once a month. (3) To break up cliques. (4) To have socials to save, not only to entertain.—Worker's Exchange.—(These are surely worthy and well-planned aims, and if religiously carried out ought to be fraught with great blessings.—Ed.)

— First Menn. Church, Newton, Kansas.—On a recent Sunday morning, Rev. van der Smissen's class of boys had charge of the program. Robert Richert gave a talk on good citizenship.—A week later the Bethel College Volunteers had charge of the opening and closing exercises of the S. S. The devotions together with the musical numbers made the program one of inspiration and reverence.—The Lenten season is being observed in song, prayer and sermon in our church. As Rev. H. J. Kliewer maintained, it behooves us to propare our hearts for this time of serious significance.—Corr.

— Zion Church, Donnellson, Iowa.—This church is featuring a course in Teacher Training, with Rev. A. Friesen as instructor. The course extends over 18 months and is recommended by the Conference. Ten girls are enrolled. The first three months we are studying the psychology of religious education, with the book "Our Pupils" by Mudge as a text. The study is very helpful. The next three months we will study pedagogy as applied to religious education. We heartily recommend this course to other churches.

— Mennonite Church, Pretty Prairie, Kans.—NOTICE and INVITATION: A Bible Conference is to be held at this church, April 2 to 4 as follows: On April 3 Rev. A. H. Unruh, Winkler, Man. will preach in the evening, and on April 4 and 5, at 10 to 11:30 in the forenoon and at 2 to 4 in the afternoon, he will lead in a study of the Sermon on the Mount. On April 3 and 4, in the evening Rev. Clyde Dirks will preach in English. Come and share these blessings with us.—P. P. Tschetter, Pastor.

— Prof. A. E. Kreider of Bethel College held a series of pre-Easter meetings at the Silver Street Church, Goshen, Indiana, this last week.

— First Menn. Church, Chicago, Ill.—Rev. A. H. Leaman, pastor of this church will hold a series of evangelistic meetings at Sterling, Ill., March 31 to April 5. The pulpit here will be filled by a nearby pastor. — Communion will be observed in this church Easter Sunday.

— Zion Church, Souderton, Pa.—This church is planning to erect a new S. S. building. Plans have been drawn up and the architect instructed to get competitive bids from contractors, which are soon to be submitted to the building committee.—This is an effort in the right direction. Too long have we erected church buildings for the grown-up folks or for church service, with little if any thought of the church school and of the children. This church is to be congraulated. —Editor.

— Grace Church, Enid, Okla.—Dr. E. L. Harshbarger of Bethel College spoke at a Vesper Service held at the Presbyterian Church here on the subject "Lights Out in Europe." This lecture was sponsored by the Committee on International and Interracial Good Will of the Enid Council of Churches, of which Rev. H. N. Harder is Chairman.—Through the efforts of Elmer Unruh, our C. E. president, the young men and boys of the church are undertaking to beautify the church grounds. Old trees are cut down, the ground leveled and new trees and shrubs are to be planted.—Great interest is shown in the Junior choir recently organized under the direction of Mrs. H. N. Harder.

— ARE WE STILL EVANGELICAL? Unfortunately this worthy Christian term has been used by all sorts of folks. We must confess there have been unworthy evangelists. However Christians must always be evangelical. We must always let our light shine. Those outside the Christian fold must know and feel that they are welcome and that we have a concern for them. We can hardly impress them unless they see in us a Christian consistency in our manner of life. After all what we are speaks very loud. What we say can sometimes not be heard for what we are. Let us be evangelists in seeking others and may they see the example of an evangelist in us.—Bulletin, First Menn. Ch., Wadsworth, Ohio.

—From the Bulletin of the Menno Church, Menno, Washington, artistically colored by Mrs. Miller, we cull the following deeply meaningful poem:

"Lord, when I am weary with toiling,
And burdensome seem Thy commands,
If my load should lead to complaining,
Lord, show me Thy hands . . .
Thy nail-pierced hands, Thy cross-torn hands,
My Saviour, show me Thy hands.

Christ, if ever my footsteps should falter,
And I be prepared for retreat,
If desert or thorn cause lamenting,
Lord, show me Thy feet . . .
Thy bleeding feet, Thy nail-scarred feet,
My Jesus, show me Thy feet. . —Brenton Badley

—Lorraine Avenue Menn. Church, Wichita, Kans.—Rev. Edward D. Schmidt, pastor of this church, has kindly sent us their program of services, extending from Sunday, March 10 to Monday, April 29. Meetings and doings are scehduled for every day, for Sundays several. As this church, which is itself a mission church, sponsored by the Western District, is doing mission work on the west side of the city, so-called community meetings are also provided for that group. On the evening of Palm Sunday the Young People and Choir of the congregation will present the drama, "The Living Christ," the proceeds from which are to be applied to the purchase of pulpit furniture for the new church. With a steadily growing membership—it has reached 110—under the vigorous leadership and indefatigable labors of the pastor, a larger church building for Wichita is becoming a pressing necessity.

—Meeting of the Emergency Relief Board.—To make it easier for its chairman, Rev. John Lichti of Medford who is somewhat crippled, to attend, the Board met in Wichita, recently, for inportant business.

—Bethany Mennonite Church, Freeman, S. D.—The pastor of this church, Rev. L. H. Linscheid, gives the following thoughtful recipe for a blessed prayer meeting: 1 hour of time, 3 or 4 gospel hymns sung with feeling, 1 dozen live testimonies, ½ dozen real prayers, 1 helpful Bible study.

—Missionary G. A. Linscheid who with Mrs. Linscheid is rendering special service in our Arizona Mission field writes: "Our trip so far has been very pleasant, and we are enjoying the royal hospitality of the Suderman's here. For our meetings we are leaning heartily upon the support of praying mission friends."

—Dr. J. D. Unruh, president of Freeman Jr. College visited on the Bethel Campus recently, in an effort to find teachers for his school, to fill prospective vacancies. Brother Unruh has our sympathy in his task to find first class instructors, with the necessary missionary spirit, to teach for the meagre salary they are compelled to offer.

FINANCIAL

CORRECTION

Referring to the Lame Deer Budget, in the Foreign Mission Board's report of last week's mission number, Rev. Petter says that the $380.00 for native help is mostly for Birney, and only a little over $100.00 for Lame Deer.

REPORT OF THE TREASURER OF EMERGENCY RELIEF BOARD FOR JANUARY AND FEBRUARY

General Fund:

Herald Menn. Ch., Cordell, Okla., by J. A. Harms, $25.56; First Menn. Ch., Mountain Lake, Minn., H. T. Nickel, $39.48; Zion Menn. Ch., Donnellson, Iowa, Hugo Loewenberg, $44.07; First Menn. Ch., Upland, Calif., G. E. Schmidt, $15.37; Mennonite Ch., Pratum, Oregon, W. A. Roth, $24.61; Bethel Menn. Ch. S. S., Inman, Kans., P. E. Kroeker, $30.90; Emmaus Menn. Ch., Whitewater, Kans., W. A. Claassen, $120.01; Hoffnungsfeld Menn. Ch., McPherson, Kans., P. E. Kaufman, $24.30; A Friend, Newton, Kans., $20.00; Bethel College Menn. Ch., North Newton, Kans., Helen Penner, $24.72; Christian Menn. Ch., Moundridge, Kans., J. B. Stucky, $61.00; Men's S. S. Class, Wayland, Ch., Iowa, Mrs. L. Magdefrau, $3.55; Summerfield M. C. E. Society, Summerfield, Ill., Clinton Baer, $5.00; Lehigh Menn. Ch., Lehigh, Kans., R. Weinbrenner, $19.39; Emmaus Menn. Ch., Whitewater, Kans., W. A. Claassen, $34.96; Bethel Ch., Fortuna, Mo., S. J. Moser, $6.05; Bruderthal Menn. Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., F. N. Funk, $10.20; Bergthal Menn. Church, Pawnee Rock, Kansas, H. C. Schultz, $14.28; Gnadenberg Mennonite Church, Whitewater, Kans., E. L. Schmidt, $11.65; Christian Menn. Ch., Moundridge, Kans., J. B. Stucky, $38.00; First Menn. Ch., Newton, Kans., Ted E. Claassen, $30.12; First Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota, H. T. Nickel, $41.31; W. H. Entz, Newton, Kansas, R. 3, $50.00; Medford Mennonite Church, Medford, Okla., P. W. Friesen, $10.00.

For Canadian Debt:

Hoffnungsau Menn. Ch., Inman, Kans., A. B. Reimer, $15.72.

For China:

Bethel College Ch. S. S. Class, North Newton, Kans., W. A. Schroeder, $32.50; West Zion S. S. Class, F. D. Meyers, J. W. Dirks, $8.00; Bethesda S. S., Henderson, Nebr., B. A. Friesen, $39.56; B. B. Wedel, Hillsboro, Kans., $10.00; Kunnjoiners Class, West Zion, Moundridge, Kans., Dale S. Galle, $10.00.

German Relief:

M. Woelke, Arlington, Calif., $5.00.

European War Relief:

Bethel College Ch. S. S. Class, North Newton, Kans., M. A. Schroeder, $8.00; George Gregor' S. Menn. Ch., Olin Krehbiel, $1.00.

South America:

Friends in Christ, Newton, Kans., A. Warkentin, $5.00.

Ernst Harder Acct.:

Y. P. Union, William Juhnke, McPherson, Kans., $2.00; Home Mission Board, J. J. Plenert, Treas., $75.00.

Totals:

General Fund, $704.53; Canadian Debt, $15.72; China, $100.06; German Relief, $5.00; European War Relief, $9.00; South America, $5.00; Ernst Harder, 77.00; Grand Total, $916.29.

Remittance, Total, $755.43.

Respectfully submitted,
Peter H. Unruh, Treas., Goessel, Kansas

REPORT OF EX. COM. OF MISSION SOCIETIES

Foreign Miss. General Treas.:

Miss Sew. Soc., Pretty Prairie, Kans., $15.00; Mary Martha Circle, Brudertal Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., $40.00; Young Women's Miss. Soc., West Swamp Ch., Quakertown, Pa., $35.00; Miss. Sew. Soc., Berne, Ind., $50.00; Tabea Sew. Circle, Petaigon, Sask., $5.00; East Swamp Miss. Soc., Quakertown, Pa., $7.00; Sew. Soc., First Menn. Ch., Madrid, Nebr., $27.90; Miss. Soc., Eicher Emmanuel Ch., Noble, Iowa, $35.00; Pleasant Valley, Miss. Soc., Kismet, Kans., $10.00; Johannestal Sew. Soc., Hillsboro, Kans., $26.95; Jansen-Watson Sew. Soc., Watson, Sask., $40.00. Total, $291.85.

Home Missions:

Pleasant Valley Miss. Soc.,Kismet, Kans., Home Miss. Gen'l. Treas., $10.00; Jr. Miss. Band, Berne, Ind., Home Mission Evangelistic work, $10.00; Int. Miss. Band, Berne, Ind., Girls Home, Winnipeg, Man., $10.00; Total, $30.00.

Retired Miss. Pension Fund:

Miss. Soc., Aberdeen, Idaho, $32.54; Deep Run Miss. Soc., Bedminster, Pa., $3.00; Mrs. Charles Wasser, Bedminster, Pa., $1.00; Jansen-Watson Sew. Soc., Watson, Sask., $8.32; Total, $44.86.

Bibles, Arizona Mission:

Young Ladies Aid, First Menn. Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., $5.00; S. School Class, Wayland, Iowa, $2.75; Miss. Soc., Lima, Ohio, $5.00. Total, $12.75.

For India:

Chr. Menn. Sew. Soc., Moundridge, Kans., Biblewoman, $30.00; Bergtal Sew. Soc., Pawnee Rock, Kans., Widow, $20.00; Hereford Ladies Aid, Bally, Pa., Orphan, $25.00; Same, India, where needed, $25.00; Same, Champa Station, $15.00; Miss. Soc., Lima, Ohio, Water System, Champa St., $5.00; Salem Ch. Sew. Soc., Munich, N. D., Basna St. work, $14.69; Jr. Quarter Fund, Johannestal Sew. Soc., Hillsboro, Kans., Needy children, $20.45; Sew. Soc., Goessel, Kans., Rev. J. R. Duerksen, Birthday Gift, $5.00. Total, $160.14.

For China:

Salem Ch. Sew. Soc., Munich, N. D., Biblewoman, $30.00; Same, Work where needed, $14.69; Johannestal Sew. Soc., Hillsboro, Kans., China Relief, $15.00; Sew. Societies, First Menn. Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., Electric Light Plant, $60.00; Jr. Quarter Fund, Johannestal Sew. Soc., Hillsboro, Kans., Needy children, $15.45; Hereford Ladies Aid, Bally, Pa., China, where needed, $25.00; Same, Kai Chow Hospital, $15.00. Total, $175.14.

Oklahoma and Montana Stations:

Miss. Soc., Aberdeen, Idaho, Rev. B. Toews, Okla., $10.00; Miss. Soc., Upland, Calif., same, $5.00; Onecho Miss. Soc., Colfax, Wash., same, $5.00; Miss. Soc., Reedley, Calif, same, $5.00; Miss. Soc., First Menn. Ch., Paso Robles, Calif., same, $8.00; Miss. Soc., Immanuel Ch., Los Angeles, Calif., same, $2.00; Miss. Soc., Aberdeen, Idaho, Mrs. R. Petter, Montana, $10.00; Miss. Soc., Upland, Calif., same, $5.00; Onecho Miss. Soc., Colfax, Wash., same, $5.00; Miss. Soc., Reedley, Calif., same, $5.00; Miss. Soc., First Menn. Ch., Paso Robles, Calif, $8.00; Miss. Soc., Immanuel Ch., Los Angeles, Calif, same, $2.00; Miss. Soc., Aberdeen, Idaho, Mrs. V. Petter, Montana, $10.00; Miss. Soc., Upland, Calif., same, $5.00; Onecho Miss. Soc., Colfax, Wash., same, $5.00; Miss. Soc., Reedley, Calif., same, $5.00; Miss. Soc., First Menn. Ch., Paso Robles, Calif., same, $8.00; Miss. Soc., Immanuel Ch., Los Angeles, Calif., same, $2.00. Total, $105.00.

Expenses of Ex. Com. and "Miss. News and Notes":

Dorcas Soc., Wayland, Iowa, $5.50; Flatland Group, Quakertown, Pa., $1.00; Emmaus Miss. Soc., Whitewater, Kans., $0.15; Bethany Miss. Soc., Freeman, S. D., $2.60; Chr. Menn. Sew. Soc., Moundridge, Kans., $5.00; Upper Milford Sew. Soc., Zionsville, Pa., $2.00; Mrs. Fred Klassen, Whitewater, Kans., $0.25; Mrs. Jonathan A. Miller, Freeman, S. D., $0.25; Mr. Peter B. Friesen, Loon Forks, Sask., $0.25; Mrs. Marie Bauman, Halstead, Kans., $0.26; Group, Coaldale, Alta., $1.25; Sew. Societies, First Menn. Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., $11.00; Hereford Ladies Aid, Bally, Pa., $6.00; East Swamp Miss. Soc., Quakertown, Pa., $0.60; Miss. Soc., Windom, Minn., $0.80; Miss. Soc., Inman, Kans., $0.50; Miss. Soc., Plum Coulee, Man., $2.00; Mrs. E. J. Neuenschwander, McPherson, Kans., $0.25; Mrs. Anna Hallman, Milford Square, Pa., $0.25; Herald Publ. Co. (Donation), $9.23. Total, $49.14.

Miscellaneous:

P. W. Penner's Birthday Coll. per Brudertal Sr. and First Menn Ch. Sr. Societies, Hillsboro, Kans., P. W. Penner's Return to India, $111.73; Hereford Ladies Aid, Bally, Pa., U. S. Indian Missions, $25.00; Miss. Soc., Aberdeen, Idaho, Call. World's Day of Prayer, $1.00; Bergtal Sew. Soc., Pawnee Rock, Kans., same, $4.60; Jr. C. E. Soc., Bethel College Ch., North Newton, Kans., J. B. Ediger, Okla., Bibles, $2.50; Jr. Quarter Fund, Johannestal Sew. Soc., Hillsboro, Kans., Miss Eliz. Foth, N. Y. Needy children, $5.00; Jr. Miss. Band, Berne, Ind., Rev. J. B. Wiens, Vancouver, B. C. car, $10.00; Same, Rev. J. H. Janzen, Waterloo, Ont., "Briefe an mein Volk," $10.00; Jansen-Watson Sew Soc., Watson, Sask., Christmas Fund, $5.00. Total, $174.83.

Grand Total, $1,043.71. Gratefully acknowledged,

Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Treas.

RECEIVED FOR HOME MISSIONS COMMITTEE OF W. D. CONFERENCE, FEBRUARY, 1940

Friedensfeld Ch., H. B. Regier, $9.36; New Hopedale Ch., Alpha J. Unruh, $12.00; Lorraine Ave. Mennonite Ch., J. B. Muller, $30.00; Bethel College Ch., Helen Penner, $19.57; Hebron Ch., C. L. Wall, $18.00; Sychar Ch., H. S. Ratzlaff, $1.72; Second Mennonite Ch., Beatrice, Nebr., J. P. Jantzen, $11.30; Gruenfeld Ch., David Schmidt, $13.80; Kidron Ch., F. W. Koehn, $3.00. Total, $118.75.

G. A. Linscheid, Treas.

Note: Our treasury was emptied at the end of last month, and only a little over a hundred dollars have come in to replenish the same; just how we are going to pay something like $500.00 at, or towards the end of this month, I am not able to figure out at this time! I am hoping that more contributions will come in at once so that we can give our workers their meagre support.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA.

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Business Office, Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kans.
Editor .... J. R. Thierstein, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.50 .... Foreign, $2.00

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges, to J. R. THIERSTEIN, or the MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS.

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LIV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, MARCH 28, 1939 NO. 13

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class mail matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

Meditations for 'Passion' Time

In following the closing events in the life of our Savior, we are rapidly approaching the time when He drank the cup of woe for our sins and transgressions. No human being can begin to fathom the terrible suffering and agony that the Lamb of God suffered in our stead. No earthborn individual can begin to understand the full meaning of the work he wrought in our behalf. The thing that before Christ unknown millions of human beings tried to do, namely to get rid of their burden of sins, and other unknown millions have tried to do since His days, He accomplished with that one supreme effort, His death on the cross. And now it is as the apostle John puts it so tersely, "The blood of Jesus Christ, (the Son of God) cleanseth us from all sins."

No more meaningful a statement, no greater truth than this has ever been uttered. It will take all eternity to reveal the full import of it. What is it that takes away our sins? It is not silver or gold. It is not through chastisement, nor fasting (though this may have its place), nor through self-inflicted tortures, as lying on a bed of upturned spikes. It is not through a full bath and scrubbing, for sin cannot be removed from the body like filth, it is part of us, it is imbedded in the flesh, in the heart. For 1900 years this great truth of the sin-cleansing power of Christ's atoning blood has been preached widely, and its actual, though miraculous working power, has been proven by numberless sainted believers, yet, the world as such, including much of Christendom, carelessly passes this remedy by or is blind to it. Indifference, lack of faith, love of the world's allurements stand in the way. As we think and meditate upon the priceless work of salvation, should we not pray, as never before, for a great spiritual revival in Christendom and a mighty working of the spirit of God in the hearts of men that they may see their sinful ways. The more we do this and go into mourning concerning it, the more we will enjoy Easter. Yes, a Christ that has poured out his life blood to take away our sins and a risen Christ that has conquered death, furnishes the remedy for the world's ever increasing ills. "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him, should not perish but have everlasting life."

"Father Forgive"

Read: Matth. 27:39-44; Mark 15:32;
Luke 23:34, 35-37.

MEDITATION FOR 'PASSION' TIME

by J. J. Balzer

We are approaching the most horrible and dark night of the world's history during the passion week of our beloved Christ. That Good Friday of more than nineteen centuries ago was surely a turning point of time, when even the sun hid its face for three hours during noonday and an earthquake tore the rocks asunder. But there was another darkness that made the darkness really dark. Two statements of our Lord express this fact: a) "This is your hour and the power of darkness." b) "They have done unto Him, what they could." All the forces of Sin and the Powers of Satan exemplified their power. Things more serious could never have happened on this globe. Sin here established itself as most sinful.

But these facts are really not drawing men to Calvary. It is not this that deeply grips my heart, no, no! What draws me to Golgatha is the most beautiful ray of light and hope that pierces through the darkness of sin. The glorious sunray of the Grace of God, which arrayed the world since the memorable day. The intercessional prayer of the suffering and bleeding Christ upon the Cross gives this ray of light and hope its real brilliancy. By this prayer: "Father forgive them," He throws the "First-Fruits" of His Salvation into our bosom.

Three questions shall briefly lead us in our meditation of this prayer: I. What is the substance or sum of it? II. Upon what authority does it rest? III. What are the boundaries within which this prayer is answered?

I. What is the substance of this prayer?

Horrible things are going on on Mount Calvary! A corps of a mob from the underworld is storming the hill. The Power of Darkness is foaming blasphemy and hatred against the Holy One, the Christ, their Messiah. And, foremost, men who should be servants of holiness and righteousness are the principal leaders of mob-rule. But, my dear readers, without knowing it, they glorify the One on the cross instead of defying him. They think of pulling the King's crown from his bleeding head, but instead are lifting the veil from his majesty. Listen to their cries one by one! "He has helped others," they begin "but himself he cannot help." A better and truer testimony they could not have expressed. "He has helped others." Yes, thus we know him. Just so the nation experienced him. He helped where no one could help, where all human help and means failed. He opened the eyes of the blind, even the born-blind. He cured the lepers and the maimed, and even resurrected the dead. He was the great Physician and Helper and never failed. Yes, they extended a Noble prize to him by saying: "He has helped others."

"He has trusted God," they continued. Even this they had observed in him, when they saw him in devotional fellowship with God. Further they continue: "He has claimed to be the Son of God," thus testifying to the truth of his testimony which even the Demons expressed in their cry: "We know who thou art: the Holy One of God!" "Thou art breaking down the Temple and rebunlding it in three days, help thyself now," they cry. Even to the resurrection of their Christ, which Jesus had predicted, they thus testify. And not less they must admit to the fact that Jesus had entitled himself to be the "King of Israel," when they cry: If thou art the Christ, the King of Israel, so step down from the cross."

What have they accomplished through these terrible blasphemous accusations? They have broken the most beautiful "Jewel," to make its pieces more beautiful and establish its everlasting glory. Jesus hears it all. Oh, that we could at that moment see what moves his loving heart! But listen! His lips are moving! He begins to speak. What will we hear? "Woe unto you?" or "may God curse you!" Men might say this. But listen! "Father, take this cup from me" or "ease my pain." Does he say that? No, NO! He does not think of himself, He desires to empty the cup which the father has given him. He thinks of his murderers and prays: "Father, forgive them!" Mercy, compassion and forgiveness he prays for them. Shall we not at this moment bow our heads and hearts and worship?" Alas! What words from the cross, "Father, forgive them!" Not words only, no, what an act! More precious than all of the miracles of his active ministry. His face was radiant at the moment of transfiguration, but here it shines in God's personal glory. Father forgive! With these sacred words he takes his murderers to his heart, carries them to his father's throne and lays them down into his bosom to assure them grace. But this prayer, dear readers, does not only embrace the murderers present on Calvary, but it is uttered for you and for me and all the human race. It is the Mediator, the Bondsman, the Highpriest, better than Aaron, who prays on the cross.

II. Upon what authority does this prayer rest?

We read in Scripture: "Righteousness is the step to God's throne." Is this righteousness when he pleads for pardon for these law-breakers? Do we not read, "Cursed is he who does not keep all the words of my laws? Yes, and Jesus came to keep the law and not to break it. But why this authority? Why, do you not know, my dear reader, that Christ upon the cross became the curse for us in that he was made Sin for us, that he took the place of all these guilty murderers: The Righteous for the Unrighteousness, for he bears their sins (Isaiah 53). Abel's blood cried towards heaven, but Christ's blood speaks better than Abel's. He pays the debts for the Race, for he is Authority.

III. What are the limits within which this prayer is answered?

These limits are shown in the added sentence, "For they know not what they do." They did it seemingly consciously, but it was in a state of moral blindness and they could not extract themselves from guilt and punishment. But Jesus looked farther and deeper. If these men had known that the One they condemned was not only a righteous and innocent man but the Lord of Glory, they would not have crucified Jesus. But as they unconsciously sacrifice me they are paying the ransom for themselves, and they are making it possible that thou, father, without offense to thy righteousness, might extend grace and mercy to them. But these bonds of the prayer, father forgive them, for they known not what they do, are widening themselves the more and more, when we consider the Plan of God's Salvation. God's plans are world plans.

The Apostle Paul asks a most serious question in Romans 11:11-12, 15, thus: "Have they stumbled that they should fall? God forbid: but rather through their fall salvation is come to the Gentiles, for to provoke them to jealousy. Now if the fall of them be the riches of the world and the diminishing of them, the riches of the Gentiles; how much more their fulness? - - For if the carting away of them be the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving of them be, but life from the dead?" (Please read verses 25-36 in addition.)

Even you and me Christ had in view when he prayed: "Father forgive them. The Riches of the world! Think! World reconciliation! That is the heritage that lies near the blindnes of Israel for us. And when the fullness of the Gentiles has come in, then the eyes of the blind shall be opened and all Israel shall be saved. Till then this poor scattered nation must bear the guilt of their fathers and their blood has drenched all of Europe through the past centuries. And the real woe of Jacob, their greatest tribulation, is still waiting for them. Praise the Lord! Their dying King, our Lord and Savior shall return and gather his Israel from all the corners of the earth and be glorified among them as King of Kings and Lord of Lords. Shall even we not forget to pray: "Father forgive them and also us? Amen.

"GOD"

Sermon Preached by P. R. Schroeder, Freeman, South Dakota, at the 50th Anniversary of the Founding of Bethel College

Introduction:

The interested visitor at the R. G. LeTourneau Factory at Peoria, Illinois, is impressed with seeing "the largest and most powerful tractor ever made," "the largest earth moving machinery ever made," and the "greatest profit-producing industry of the present national recession period." But infinitely greater than any of these is the subject of this message, "GOD."

We shall listen to the following VOICES declaring "GOD": I. The Voice of the Heavens. II. The Voice of Nature. III. The Voice of Men. IV. The Voice of God's Word.

1. THE VOICE OF THE HEAVENS

First Text: Psalm 19:1-2, "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handiwork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge."

A. Distance to the Sun

a. A bicyclist travelling 100 miles per day—if it could be done—would require 2550 years to travel from the earth to the sun. Beginning in the year 1 A. D. he would be about two thirds of the way to the sun now. b. A railroad train, travelling at 60 miles per hour—if it could be done—would take 175 years to reach the sun. Anyone wishing to buy a ticket for this trip at two cents per mile, would have to pay a fare of $1,860,000.00. c. A cannon shot, travelling at the rate of 2,500 feet per second—if it could be shot from the earth to the sun—would take six years to reach the sun. Any thoughtful person will be overwhelmed by the realization of these vast distances, that DECLARE THE GLORY OF GOD.

B. Size of the Sun

a. If the earth (8,000 miles in diameter) could be placed at the center of the sun, the sun's surface would be 433,000 miles away from the crust of the earth. b. The moon is 239,000 miles away from the earth, so, if the moon were also within the sun and travelling around the earth at its customary distance, it would be only a little better than half way to the surface of the sun. Surely THE VOICE OF THE HEAVENS DECLARES THE GLORY OF GOD.

C. An Illustration of the Size of the Universe

Imagine the earth the size of the period at the end of a sentence, one fiftieth of an inch, equal to one twenty five billionth of its actual size. Then the distance to the sun would be 19½ feet, and the size of the sun would be two and one sixth inches. In the same proportions the distance from the earth to the nearest star would be approximately 1,005 miles. The distance to the Milky Way would be 23,380,000 miles, and the distance to the farthest photographed galaxy of stars would be about 81,830,000,000 miles. And by a bold scientific guess the diameter of the universe would then be 1,402,800,000,000 miles, according to a most illuminating article in the Atlantic Monthly of February 1935. Who can be indifferent to the majesty of the INFINITE GOD, THE CREATOR OF THE HEAVENS AND THE EARTH, in the contemplation of such incomprehensible distances.

D. An Estimate of the Size of the Universe

It is estimated that there are in the starry heavens 500 million million galaxies of stars, like the Milky Way. Each galaxy is probably 800 times larger than the sun. And the sun's volume is estimated at 1,300,000 times that of the earth. The diameter of the universe is estimated at six billion light years, one light year being equal to 5,880,799 million miles. With light travelling at the rate of about 186,000 miles per second we see the sunlight of eight minutes ago. We see the Pleiades (the Seven Little Sisters) of 500 years ago. And we see the Nebula in Andromeda of 800,000 years ago. Surely THE HEAVENS DECLARE THE GLORY OF GOD!

(Other units of the sermon will follow in due time)

Our Choice Should Be Easy

Adolf Friesen

Let us get the proper perspective; let us evaluate fascism and communism for what they are, not for what they pretend to be, or what their devotees claim for them. Most of us reject communism as ungodly and regard it as directly in opposition to our American ideal of democracy. But there are many here in America, especially those with a German background, who are tolerant and sympathetic toward fascism. There are obvious reasons for this which on the surface warrant such tolerance. Here, for instance, is a report by the United Press that "Germany is unable to find sufficient men to carry out the work to be done. Today 6,600,000 more Germans are at work than in 1929, and men in the 70's are coming out of retirement to return to their old jobs . . . " etc. This apparently gives a very favorable picture of Germany's economic condition. Ardent Nazis speak enthusiastically about the wonderful things that Hitler has done for the German people. And has he not resurrected Germany from a downtrodden to a self-sufficient nation?

The German bureau of propaganda is making most of these facts, and we see the results of it here in America. The recent meeting in New York City, where 10,000 members of the "Bund" met to salute the Swastika, is evidence of the success of this propaganda. And the fact that fascism is gaining in popularity in a way that we who are interested in the preservation of democracy feel cause for alarm. But why feel cause for alarm when fascism has wrought such wonders in Germany? Here, precisely, is the danger. We see but part, the favorable part of the picture. Let us consider all the facts and it will not be difficult for us to make our choice.

In the first place Germany has met the unemployment problem, because under her compulsory military and semi-military conscription more than one million men each year are withheld from the labor market. (Is this an actual fact?—Editor). Furthermore, her armament factories work overtime to keep pace with her furious armament drive. Again, thousands of men are put to work to complete her western fortifications. And in fairness, we must add, that the drive for economic self-sufficiency has given jobs to thousands of people in other industrial pursuits.

Here, then, you have a picture of modern, ambitious Germany, tirelessly working toward the goal of unexcelled military strength. Field Marshal Herman Goering summarized it well in a recent speech: "Germany is one of the greatest powers the world has ever known and the German soldier is best of all. The strength of 100 million Germans of the future shall be such as to withstand all fatigues and hardships they may be called upon to bear. Young men will stream in double and three-fold numbers into barracks. We intend to use every one of them. It is up to us to keep and increase our lead."

Can we as Christians indorse a program like that? Surely this is a situation for serious thinking and weighing of values. We do not have to make our choice between fascism and communism as is often assumed. Both are totalitarian in aim and effect. They reject the fundamental decencies and safeguards upon which democratic societies are built. We here in America do not have to express our loyalty to one or the other of these two repugnant alternatives. We recoil from the thought that either fascism or communism might some day become dominant in America. Our choice should be easy.

But let us not judge the people of Germany harshly for they are the victims of circumstance. We must remember that we, too, have our sins and are therefore not in a position to cast stones at others. Let us rather ask God to preserve our democracy by helping us to put our own house in order, so that we as citizens of a great country may have a wholesome and uplifting influence on others less fortunate than we.

— The United States Senate has declared war on the war profiteers. Welcome news! Had it not been for the war profiteers, munition mongers and selfish militarists, the U. S. would sit pretty snug today and much of the present trouble in Europe could have been avoided. If Ex-President Wilson's "fourteen points" had been made the basis of peace after the World War it is hardly likely that there would be any dictators and totalitarian states.

The Church of Christ Goes Forward

The way the cause of Christ goes forward in Indi is both heartening and challenging. The church i growing—growing in grace and number. In our entire field this is evident, but oustandingly so in th Phuljhar area. The recent Hindustani Church conference at Mauhadih, in which church representative from the entire field met, was pervaded by a spiri of venture and brotherliness. This filled our heart with gratitude and gave us a great confidence in th future of the church in India. Nothing particularl stirring or exciting has happened, but the quiet progressive and venturesome spirit was impressive an heartening. In Phuljhar the district church "sammelans," the semi-annual conference of representative from the fourteen district churches in the Basn field, also have given evidence to the fact that th Hindustani church is ready and zealous to go forward with the Master.

In the Phuljhar area 225 people could be adde to the Church of Christ through baptism in 1938 Several more small groups were ready for baptism but the pressure of other things made it impossibl to baptize them before Christmas. A very encouraging fact about this ingathering is that a large numbe of these people were won and prepared for baptism b lay people. Lay men and women, after a short period of training, were sent out to villages where the have relatives who were approachable. For this service they received about 70c-80c a week when awa from home. The Lord has honored this type o evangelism with much fruit.

There is a Christian community of approximatel 1800 in the Phuljhar area. These Christians liv scattered in groups of about 45 villages. They ar grouped in fourteen simply organized churches o congregations. This makes shepherding, teaching an discipline much easier. Several groups of new converts have not yet been organized into churches The leaders of these churches are quite ordinary me who need constant guidance and inspiration, but the are doing a fine service in their humble way.

One of the most encouraging phases of churc building in the district is the daily evening grou worship. At a recent meeting of church and grou leaders it was reported that in 24 villages the Christians meet regularly for daily evening worship wit an attendance of at least 50 per cent of the grou In villages where they have a church building the usually meet there. Where they do not have church they meet in a centrally located courtyar for the evening worship. To worship our Lord together with these humble village Christians has bee an experience which I shall always remember as on of the precious experiences of life.

The doors are opening ever wider for the Gospel and we should not fail to enter where the Lord thu opens the way. The 225 people who have come into the church last year enlarged by just that much the circle of relatives who are approachable. But these new Christians must be guided, inspired and taught how to witness for their Lord, and it is here where the need for more missionaries comes in. Then also, as already mentioned, the leaders of the church are very ordinary men who need constant guidance, inspiration and teaching. To the missionary pastor falls the task of upholding and strengthening these lowly servants of the Lord. Here again the missionary is needed. It is a fact that Christian people need to be guided and inspired even in their daily worship of the Lord. Our Hindustani friends are no exception. The daily evening group worship in the villages must be kept inspired and directed by a worshipping consecrated leader. Thus the wider the door for the Gospel opens in India the greater the need for new missionaries.—W. F. Unruh.

A LETTER WITH WORTHWHILE SUGGESTIONS

From a Veteran Minister, W. W. Miller

Pulaski, Iowa

In view of the fact that I am retiring, at my request, from the leadership of my dear people here in Pulaski, I am writing this little word concerning my ministerial experience, for the benefit and encouragement of those who may be preparing to enter into this greatest of all callings, either here or elsewhere. Since the day that I left the schoolroom, where I spent twenty blessed, and I hope fruitful years of my life, as teacher, for the pulpit, there has never been a time to my recollection when I ever regretted having responded to this high calling. A definite and unmistakable call came to me while acting principal of a High School in Millersburg, Ind., from the Mennonite congregation at Pulaski, Iowa. There are many details that would be interesting but time and space forbids. Early in May, 1897, I preached my first sermon as pastor here. My subject was "Jesus, the Light of the World;" and by God's grace I am still using that subject, in the pulpit and out of it. With the exception of ten years in Chicago, and Goshen, Ind., it has been my privilege to minister as shepherd of this little flock for over thirty-one years: baptizing them, marrying them, and burying them. Our going in and out among them, has been pleasant from the beginning to this hour. Always agreeing upon things fundamental and paramount. "In union there is strength." This has been the secret of our walking together these many years. I bespeak for any young man a blessed experience in the Lord who may be called to stand in the pulpit where I have received showers of spiritual blessings from a responsive people these many years.—W. W. M.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

April 9, 1939

PAUL PREACHES THE RISEN CHRIST

(Easter Lesson)

TOPIC: What It Means to Have a Risen Christ

Introduction

The time of this lesson is about fourteen years after Paul's conversion. He is now on his first missionary tour, Barnabas accompanying him. They have passed through Cyprus and have come north into Asia Minor to the city of Antioch in Pisidia, the home of many Jews. Paul and Barnabas, devout Jews, attended the synagogue worship on the Sabbath day and Paul accepted the invitation to speak. He reviewed the early history of the Jewish nation up to the time of David, and then passed over the centuries to Jesus of the seed of David, and presented him as the risen Christ, the Savior.

Paul Proclaims the Gospel of the Risen Christ vs 16-39

Paul sought the synagogue on the Sabbath for there he could meet the people and present Jesus to them. He came for this purpose and used every possible opportunity to further his mission. Here were assembled the devout Jews and also Gentiles who had come under Jewish influence—"ye that fear God" (v16). These were proselytes who had accepted Judaism, either in its entirety or only in part. All of them believed in the true God.

Paul made it plain that Jesus of the seed of David (v23) is the Messiah, the Savior, the Son of God. He is the one promised by God to the people. This Savior has already come. John, the Baptist, spoke of him as coming after him. God has now fulfilled His promise in sending the word of salvation to his hearers (v26). The Jews of Jerusalem and their rulers rejected the prophesied Messiah and prevailed upon Pilate that he should be slain upon the cross. His dead body was laid in a sepulcher, a proof of the reality of his death. God raised Him from the dead(v30), thus fulfilling the promise made unto the fathers (vs 32, 33). He also was seen by many after his resurrection (v31).

Paul preached a gospel of pure grace (vs 38, 39). Forgiveness of sins and justification can be attained only through the atoning death of Christ. Paul teaches the doctrine of justification by faith and not by the keeping of the Mosaic law. We are justified "in Him," "every one that believeth," "from all things," and as soon as we believe. The responsibility to accept this salvation rests upon each one personally.

The Christian's Triumph Through Christ

1 Cor. 15:19-22

Our Lord's resurrection is the pledge, assurance of the resurrection awaiting all Christians. In it lies our hope for eternity. Our faith is not in vain, nor is our hope limited to this life. Christ rose from the sleep of physical death, the first one. Death came by the sin of man, Adam; the resurrection came by the man, Christ Jesus. All may have eternal life through faith in Him.

What It Means to Have a Risen Christ

Paul strongly emphasizes Christ's resurrection which is the supreme proof that He came from God and is His Son. Paul is speaking of that which occurred recently. Paul had seen the risen Christ on the Damascus road. The risen Christ of the other world had become very real to him. Our salvation from the power of sin in this world depends on the living Christ.

Paul has a lofty conception of the importance of the future world. We are here for but a short time. Eternity stretches out before us. God did not intend that we should be saved for this life only. He promised us eternal life in Christ whose resurrection assures our hearts, gives meaning to God's promise. We too shall arise triumphant over death.

QUAKERTOWN, PA.

Dear Editor: In the last few months there have been several statements directed at the Bible School trained pastor. No doubt such statements are many times justifiable. However, I feel that we as ministers will never succeed in building up the Kingdom of God, if there is a constant feeling of ill will between us, along educational lines. We ought to thank God for every Seminary, College and Bible School pastor who is faithfully proclaiming the Word of God.

A Bible School training has given me a sound, fundamental, and Biblical message to bring to the people.

Secondly, it has given me a "passion" for lost souls.

Thirdly, it has given me a "vision" of lost humanity outside of Christ, who are eternally lost, unless "born again" from above.

As ministers, our chief concern should be to get the "gospel" out to such people, as well as building up the faith of those already "in Christ."

Therefore, if we have a real "passion" for lost souls, we will not be striking at one another, but will thank God that souls are being saved and believers edified, whether it be through a Seminary, College or Bible School trained pastor.

Beloved, let us work together in spreading the Gospel.

I remain, Sincerely yours,
Rev. H. D. Burkholder.

Nothing gives us a greater idea of our soul, than that God has given us, at the moment of our birth, an angel to take care of it.—Jerome.

SERMON SKETCH

THE COMPASSION OF JESUS

Ernest J. Bohn, Souderton, Pa.

"But when he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion for them, because they were distressed and scattered as sheep not having a shepherd." (R. V.) Matt. 9:36.

What was Jesus' attitude towards the great human needs of his age? There was, in Jesus day, perhaps even more so than now, great physical distress and suffering of body and soul among multitudes of people. Disease, suffering, disappointments, and physical wants of all kinds will always be the lot of man on earth. Alongside of this desire within man for physical comfort, there has been another need of even greater significance—the need of the soul which is never at peace until it finds God. How did Jesus meet these two great persistent age-long needs which stand in such close relationship to one another in this life, and which so vitally effect one another?

1. Jesus' Response to Physical Need

Let us first briefly follow Jesus as He comes in contact with some of the many individual physical needs of human life, as they are recorded in the 8th and 9th chapter of the Gospel according to Matthew. Note there, how immediately after the Sermon of the Mount, he comes in touch with some of the practical needs of human life. Crowds follow Him at once. A loathsome leper comes to Him, sure that Jesus can heal him, and Jesus does not disappoint him. No more has He entered Capernaum, when an army captain comes to Him, begging that He should heal his trusted servant whom He has left at home. Next a man of authority approaches Him, telling Him of his little daughter who has just died. On His way thither a woman ill for twelve years finds help by merely touching his garment. Then came two blind beggars whom He sent away rejoicing over restored eyesight. A dumb man possessed with a demon was brought to Him and he too was made "whole." To every one of these coming to him in distress for help he brought happiness.

Notice, that every one of these cases that came to Him for help, came because they had great faith that He could help them.

Then Matthew records that Jesus went about all the cities and the villages "teaching and preaching the Gospel of the kingdom and healing all manner of disease and all manner of sickness." Multitudes followed Him everywhere seeking for help.

II. Do the Multitudes have Faith in the Christian Church today?

Today there are still the multitudes in distress for various reasons. We have splendid charitable organizations, hospitals and clinics, but there still is much physical distress, in the form of disease, poverty, the wretched and destitute millions in the war ridden areas of the world, and the millions of unemployed. Do these distressed multitudes of today have faith in the Christian church that it can help them in their great physical needs? Jesus had the kind of reputation which made people feel that He could do something for them. Is that the kind of reputation which made people feel that He could do something for them. Is that the kind of reputation the Christian church has today? Do the multitudes know it for a compassion that is kind and sympathetic?

III. The Deepest Need in the Realm of the Human Soul

Underneath the great physical distress which Jesus witnessed, he saw something in the faces of the multitudes which told Him there was another and far more important need than that of relieving bodily distress, important as that is. Their greatest problem was that of the soul—a spiritual need. He was deeply moved in compassion toward them, because he saw them as "distressed and scattered as sheep not having a shepherd." This phrase suggests that they had no one and nothing to depend upon. What is more pitiful than to see a man who has no strong faith to lay hold of, to lead him through some of the tragic experiences of life.

There seems to be no panacea for social wrongs. The problem of the human soul can not be solved by only changing the circumstances and the environment of a person. The facts seem to indicate that people of the privileged classes are no better Christians than those of the underprivileged classes. The greatest need is a profound spiritual renewal within. Jesus' compassion went out to the multitudes, because they had found nothing which brought peace and satisfaction to their souls. This is a striking picture of suffering multitudes in the world today. Can we instill a faith in their hearts that we have something to give them which is even more important than bread, although both of these needs are to be satisfied?

CORRESPONDENCE

BETHANY CHURCH, QUAKERTOWN, PA.

Our congregation can report things progressing well since the last correspondence. A catechetical class of nine members is now being instructed, and will be baptized some time in the near future. A series of pre-Easter services has been announced, with the message to be brought by Rev. Olin Krehbiel, pastor of the Grace Mennonite church at Lansdale. The services will run from March 26-31, and the sermon topics are, in order, "Behold the Love of God," "Faith and Works," "The Christian Life," "Being Tested," "The Coming of Our Lord," "Behold Christ Stands at the Door."

Efforts are being made to have as many Sunday School members as possible pledge themselves to daily Bible reading and prayer. Recent promotions in the Sunday School have changed the classes somewhat, but generally for the better. The two largest classes are the Adult Bible Class and the Junior Bible Class, both adult classes, and it is encouraging to see the latter with the largest membership it has had at any time.

The Brotherhood of the church, formed within the past year, is now a going organization, holding regular monthly meetings for the discussion of various topics. The Ladies Aid Society continues active, as is also the Young People's Society, holding its meetings on alternate Sunday evenings. The midweek meetings are currently taking the form of the study of world peace, the booklet "Christian Peace," by Rev. E. J. Bohn, being used as a basis for the study.

The congregation, together with the other churches of the Eastern District Conference, is taking up the penny-a-day mite box project for the support of Bluffton College, and the response has been encouraging. Dr. Lloyd Ramseyer, the new president of the college, brought the message at a recent evening service, stressing the value of the college as an investment. The charge looks forward to the concert on April 11 by the Bluffton College a cappella choir of sixty voices, which is touring the East during the Easter season.

It is news when a couple reaches its fifty-eighth wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thatcher, formerly of the Flatland charge, and now of this congregation, celebrated that event on March 5.

* * *

EAST SWAMP CH., QUAKERTOWN, PA., 3-13-39

This past Sunday Rev. Addison Horn from Atlanta City, N. J., a graduate of the Moody Institute, started a two-week evangelistic meeting in our church. Due to icy roads and a light rain the regular attendance was not present. A wonderful spirit was shown by those who came. Rev. Horn used as his text I Cor. 9:19-22. Last evening the Junior C. E. celebrated their anniversary. Mrs. Rev. Burkholder gave a "chalk talk." The topic discussed was, "Laying a Good Foundation."—Preparatory and baptismal service will be held on Good Friday night, April 7, followed by the communion service on Easter Sunday.—We are also looking forward to the Good Friday memorial service of Christ's suffering on the cross, held in Quakertown, from 12 noon to 3 p. m., sponsored by the Ministerial Association.—On Easter Sunday morning the Sunrise service will be held at West Swamp church, at 6 a. m.

BUHLER MENN. CHURCH, BUHLER, KANS.

Winter has come to an end again. It is March and spring has begun. At present we enjoy nice balmy, spring weather, but this month has a very bad reputation. You can't trust it. It may smile at you in the morning, cloud up an hour later, drenching you with icy rain or biting sleet before night.—There are a lot of people in the world who are just like the month of March, they are not dependable. May we, who call ourselves Christians, always be dependable to walk straight and honorable, and do what is right. In meeting temptations we are constantly called upon to make decisions in order that we may be kept from drifting with the current of the world. May the Lord depend on us.

For the past few months our church has been without a standing minister. The former pastor, Rev. J. M. Suderman, had to leave on account of ill health. Missionary August Ewert from Newton has very faithfully served us during this time on Sunday mornings with very inspiring sermons, and also teaching catechism.

Feeling the need of having our own minister, many a prayer has been sent to the throne of God to help us find a man that would be willing to become our leader. Our prayers have been answered. Rev. J. F. Schmidt from Council Grove, Kans. is willing to come in June to be our minister. We are looking forward with joy to greet Brother and Sister Schmidt. May the tie of Christian love bind us together, that, by working with him, we may lighten his tasks. May God bless us and make us a living church for Christ only. —Mrs. N. D. Esau, Corr.

* * *

SALEM ZION CHURCH, MARION, S. D.

Once more our thoughts turn to that season of the year, when nature awakens to a new life, and spring comes forth in all its beauty. Would that our hearts too, might feel a new awakening, to the all important things in life.

Winter here has been exceptionally mild and due to that, roads and weather conditions permitted regular church services throughout the year. If this mild weather continues, spring work will soon begin which is a very busy time for all.

This community was privileged to hear a splendid musical program, given by the joint men's clubs of the Salem church, the city of Freeman, and the Salem Zion church, at the college auditorium, on the evening of March 12. The chorus consisted of forty six voices under the able direction of Prof. Toews of the college. There were many in attendance.

Rev. A. P. Waltner accepted a call and has been serving the neighbor (Bethesda) church since Jan. 1st. We are confident that he will serve that congregation as efficiently as he did ours.

Ten young people are enrolled in the catechism class this year. Since January they have met regularly with the minister for instruction during the Sunday School period.

An influenza epidemic is prevalent in this community with many sick, but no serious complications thus far. There also have been several appendicitis operations recently, but we are happy to report that there have been no deaths in the new year.

Our church holidays will soon be here, when we shall again commemorate our Savior's suffering, death, and resurrection. We trust that its observance will tend to draw us ever closer to the Christ who died upon that cross. —Mrs. J. J. Saner, Corr.

* * *

WEST ZION MENN. CHURCH, MDGE., KANS.

For the fifth consecutive year the World Day of Prayer was observed in our church on Friday, Feb. 24. Nine churches were represented on the program. The morning service, beginning at 10:30 was under the leadership of Mrs. Bradbury, wife of the Methodist minister. Mrs. Walter Gering, wife of the pastor of the Eden Mennonite church, was leader for the afternoon service. Missionary and Mrs. August Ewert were guest speakers in the afternoon. A number of local people furnished musical numbers and short talks.

During the noon hour a covered dish was served in the church basement. Guests were seated at four long tables, which were decorated to represent the four seasons. At least 150 persons were served, the larger number of course were women, but a number of men were present. Each year a council is elected to prepare for the next year's meeting. Each church in the vicinity is represented. The attendance has been increasing year by year. It is an inspiring thing to join hands in prayer with folks of other churches and denominations. Moundridge hopes that other communities will follow her example.

On the evening of Feb. 16 the Mission Workers met in the church basement. Husbands and friends of the members were guests. The program consisted of several musical numbers, a book review and a reading. This was followed by a social hour, during which time appropriate contests were enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Rev. Fast, field secretary, visited our church on Feb. 26-28. His messages bring us a larger realization of the worth and dignity of the Mennonite church and inspire us to help further the cause of the kingdom. His visits also serve to link the various churches together. We need to be impressed with the largeness of the task set before us.

Mrs. August, Ewy, Corr.

— Rev. G. T. Soldner with Mr. Curraus is in the Eastern District, at present, in the interest of the endowment campaign for Bluffton College.

EDITORIAL
STAFF
Senior Department
R. Weinbrenner
Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers
Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.

William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

GRACE CHURCH, ENID, OKLAHOMA

Greetings to all readers:

After the cold snap we are enjoying the beautiful weather which tells us that spring is near and reminds us of the Easter season.

The work on our church has commenced; for this we are very thankful. The basement is nearly finished. The neighboring churches are also taking quite an interest. On the day of pouring the concrete, seven men from the Meno Mennonite Church donated some labor.

Yesterday, March 12th, a group of thirteen young folks motored to the Cheyenne and Arapaho Indian Mission stations near Canton, Okla. Rev. H. N. Harder and Mr. N. P. Klassen, Newton, each took a car. First we gave a program consisting of songs, sermon, reading, and story telling at the Canton station at 1:30 p.m. At about 3:30 we gave the program at Fonda, the Cheyenne station. After our program the interpreter gave Rev. Harder's sermon in their own language.

A group of about fifteen Indians happened to be there from the Thomas Church near Clinton where Missionary Ediger is at work. This group rendered a number of songs which had the old Indian melodies which they love best. It was very inspiring to us to see our brethren in Christ working in much the same way as we are. We invited the Indians and Missionary Toews' to pay us a return visit as soon as we could offer a church. They responded favorably. We are looking forward to the time when they will come. —Elda Ewert, Correspondent.

A Horse And Some People

When I was a small boy I was in love with a big white horse. He hauled the old-fashioned one-horse hose wagon from the station near my home.

If ever a fire horse looked the part, old Dick did. He always galloped, being hitched alone, his long mane flying in the air, his huge hoofs smiting the pavement as though they would dig right through it. His nostrils breathed fire. He was the beau ideal of a fire horse. All the small boys loved and admired him.

There was something else about old Dick which the boys liked. He was so slow that we could run beside him and watch him perform, exactly the right word. There was a team of lean unhandsome bays which pulled the ladder truck from the same station. They were nothing much to look at. But they always got to the fire first. When Dick finally hove into sight the conflagration was usually all out.

I can still see old Dick coming down the street. Everything about him was perfect except his ability to get to a fire quickly. That had to be left to others.

Since I have grown up I have met quite a few men who reminded me of old Dick. They are men with the best of intentions. They are men who are confident that they are doing great work, are irreplaceable, in fact. I have seen them arriving when there was a serious problem to be solved. They came on the gallop and with metaphorical manes flying in the air. You could almost hear them say, "Don't worry! Here I come! Everything is going to be all right! Just get out of my way and let me solve this! I know all about everything!"

But these men never settled anything and they have never done anything important. They are so interested in how they look arriving at a fire that they forget that there is something more to solving problems than just looking impressive. They never get down to cases and clear up the difficulty. They simply do not know how. Other persons, quiet men and unimpressive, alway get there first and do the real work.

Old Dick always went away from the fire with the air of a conqueror. Nobody was ever cruel enough to tell him that he was a lovable old fraud. So also with the men I know who remind me of Dick. Never, never will they realize that they are chiefly show. Like Dick, they are all mixed up and think it is more important to make an impression than to put out a fire.

Most of the world's work is done by quiet people who are not very sure of themselves. They do not get much applause but they have, or should have, the satisfaction of knowing that the world cannot get on without them. — George Ross Wells.

Man is greater than a world, than systems of worlds; there is more mystery in the union of soul with the physical than in the creation of the universe.—Henry Giles.

Favorite Items

Question 3 presented 18 different items which might be used in the Y. P. page. The possible ratings for each item were, "very important," desirable," and "not important." In evaluating these ratings a positive 2 was allowed for each "very important" rating, a positive 1 for each "desirable" rating, and a negative 2 for each "not desirable" rating.

A summary of points revealed that editorial comment, poetry, and stories were the paramount choice. Each had 21 points. News and daily meditations each had 20 points. Peace notes and Mennonite historical sketches received 19 points apiece. Holiday specials received 18. C. E. programs elicited 17 points. The following, listed according to order, were next in line: question box, song stories, and "wisdomisms."

I am trying to secure material which conforms to these choices. However, this material is hard to get, and the readers will have to practice patience. Furthermore, it would be very helpful if they would practice contributing. Share the good, true, and beautiful which you experience. — R. W.

Church Member's Belief

Ex. 20:13-17; Matt. 5:1-12

Young People's Topic for April 16, 1939

Meditations:

M. Apr. 10. Brotherly Love. I Jn. 4:20, 21.
T. Apr. 11. Prayer to a Common Father. Matt. 6:9-13.
W. Apr. 12. Power of God's Word. Heb. 4:12, 13
T. Apr. 13. Mystery of Godliness. 1 Tim. 3:16.
F. Apr. 14. Jesus Christ, the Foundation. Matt. 16:15-18; I Cor. 3:11.
S. Apr. 15. World Evangelism. Mk. 16:15-20.

Selections of Hymns:

A brief word in connection with the announcing of the hymns will help in the recognition of the contribution of each hymn toward developing the theme:

Consecration of Self.—"Have Thine Own Way, Lord." (The necessity of so living in our own communities "till all shall see Christ only always living in me.") "Lord, Speak to Me."

Carrying the Message.—"I Love to Tell the Story." ("I tell it now to thee" also indicates that we are demonstrating our Christian belief in action right where we are.) "We've a Story to Tell." (Note the four emphases, a story to tell, a song to sing, a message to give, a Savior to show.) "O Zion, Haste." (Stanzas 1, 2, 4, and 5.

Suggested Topics:—

1. What are church members to believe? If they believe that God is their Father, that Christ is their Savior, that all men are brothers, is that enough?

2. The difference "what a man believes" will make in his "way of living."

He will not live for self, but for "others."
He will be meek, merciful, pure in heart,
A peace-maker, hunger and thirst after righteousness, etc.

3. Do church members find the world's "Thou shalt not" helpful? Ex. 20:13-17.

4. How do you like the following stories:

A Boy's Conviction.—A mother was shocked one day to find her boy seated at a table with a big Bible in front of him and a big knife in his hand. She anxiously asked him, "What are you doing?" The boy replied, "Why, Mother, I have been reading about that poor father who came to Jesus and said, 'If thou canst do anything, have compassion on us, and help us;' and I thought he ought not to say 'if' to Jesus, and so I have scratched it out."

A Lacking Faith.—Not long ago a private in a United States army airplane school was taking his final examination in parachute jumping. His instructions were to count ten after leaping clear from his plane before pulling the cord of his parachute. He lost his nerve, and pulled it too soon. The silk parachute was caught in the propeller blast and got fouled, leaving the unhappy soldier dangling between heaven and earth until rescue plans could be perfected. What was the matter with that boy's faith?

What a church member believes will make a difference in what a church member does, or does not do. "The Christian faith is a living faith, a faith intended for living, a faith that can and should be lived." If you believe in Jesus you will walk, talk, and act like Jesus. You will not do the things which he disapproves of. You will be against sin. Your faith will prove itself by what you are and by what you do.

Food for thought—

"A wide rich heaven hangs above you, but it hangs high. A wide, rough world is around you, and it lies very low."

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

Questions and Answers About the Bible

Intermedite Topic for April 16, 1939

For Daily Reading

Apr. 10. The book for rulers. Deut. 17:18-20.
Apr. 11. The book for religious workers. 2 Tim. 3:14-17.
Apr. 13. A defense in temptation. Luke 4:1-12.
Apr. 14. The way to life. John 20:30, 31.
Apr. 15. The guide for the young. Ps. 119:9-16.
Apr. 16. Topic: Ps. 119:105; Luke 2:46, 47.

Call to Worship

The Living Book

The Bible lives! Its truths are flames so bright
Their radiance can never once grow dim;
Their deathless splendor are the smiles of Him
Whose glowing face gives heaven wondrous light,
They quick dispel the gloom of sin's black night,
Revealing beauty that no brush can linn,
And melodies without an interim,
That tell of grace that ends man's woeful plight.

The blackest pall that sorrow's night can hang Fades quickly when its healing glories shine
Into the crimson soul, forlorn by sin.
The breaking heart can never know a pang
Too great for soothing at its cleansing shrine
Where penitents find heavenly joys begin.
William James Robinson.

Opening song—"How precious is the Book divine"
Sentence prayers expressing thankfulness for the Bible
Scripture reading—Ps. 119:105; Luke 2:46, 47
For the Leader: Why God Gave the Bible.

God gave men the Bible because he knew there would never be a time in man's life when he would not need it. Accordnig to historical records God had other ways of revealing himself to men. When his full and complete revelation had been committed to writing these former methods were no longer needed. Now in the written Scriptures we have "the faith which was once for all delivered unto his saints."

"It was necessary for men to have a divine and infallible revelation from God in an objective form; so that it would not be subject to the opinions, inner leadings, and fallacies of men."

Song—"Break Thou the Bread of Life"

If possible, have all your members study the following questions before your meeting. Ask your superintendent to follow these with a very informal discussion of any questions or comments about the Bible which anyone may have. Let us have as our aim these two weeks the fact that we want all intermediates to have a greater personal appreciation of the Bible. To accomplish this the discussion must be personal and informal.

1. What does the word "Bible" mean?

2. What is the purpose of the Bible? "That we may have a true idea of how God revealed Himself to His ancient people and prepared the way for the fuller manifestation of Himself in Jesus Christ." (Have members add further personal opinions).

3. Is there any other way for men to know the truth about Jesus Christ? No, the written word of God is our only authoritative source.

4. Why should we believe the Bible? The greatest reason is the fact that the son of God when he became the Son of Man believed it.

5. How long did it take the Bible to be written and compiled? A period of about fourteen centuries.

6. How many men had a part in the writing of the Bible? About 40.

7. What type of men wrote the Bible? Prophets, priests, kings, fishermen, a tax-gatherer, sheep-master, etc.

8. How has it been possible to adapt the Bible to so many new languages and peoples? By a never ceasing process of revision and translation.

9. When was the King James version completed? 1611.

10. Questions of interest about odd Bibles:

a. How large is the largest Bible?—"The largest Bible is said to be in the Royal Library of Stockholm. The covers are made of solid plank four inches thick, and the pages, which are made of parchment, are a yard in length and number 309."

b. How small is the smallest Bible? "The famous thumb Bible in the theological seminary at Washington is the smallest complete Bible ever printed."

c. A shorthand Bible. "A shorthand Bible is exhibited in London, the work of an apprentice of the days of James II, when even to possess a Bible was an offense."

d. An American woman owns a Bible which an ancestor of hers baked in a loaf of bread when a house-to-house search was being made for copies of the Scripture."

Offering and Announcements

Song, "Wonderful Words of Life"

Make sure every member has a copy of the following poem and use it as the closing prayer.

Influence of the Bible

Lord, make me godly, lift my soul from earth,
And do it by that book of priceless worth—
The Bible.

Lord, make me pure; save me from lust of men;
And do it with the writings from Thy pen,
The Bible.

Make me unselfish, teach me how to live
For others, as Thy words instruction give—
The Bible.

Let not time always captivate my thought;
I have Thy guide how glory may be sought—
The Bible.

May faith in Christ and seeking other's good
Show in my life that I have understood—
The Bible.
William Olney, London, England.

—Dimitri Shostakowitch, a young Soviet composer, is complaining that the Godless have produced no music. No wonder! For what is there in atheism to sing about. He wants an anti-religious opera. But what could the theme possibly be?

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Program for April 16, 1939

"Jesus showed himself again to his disciples." John 21:1.

I. Worship Service

Setting: Picture: "Light of the World," Hunt.

1. Quiet Music: "Immortal Love, forever full" played softly while Juniors take their places.

2. Sing in unison first two verses of above song.

3. Sing: "I think when I read."

4. Leader reads scripture: "Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me." Rev. 3:20.

5. Leader's Prayer—All heads bowed.

6. Poem, by a Junior.

"O Jesus, Thou art standing
Outside the fast closed door,
In lowly patience waiting
To pass the threshold o'er;
Shame on us, Christian brothers,
His name and sign who bear,
O shame, thrice shame upon us,
To keep Him standing there.

"O Jesus, Thou art knocking;
And lo! that hand is scarred,
And thorns Thy brow encircle,
And tears Thy face have marred:
O love that passeth knowledge,
So patiently to wait!
O sin that hath no equal,
So fast to bar the gate!

"O Jesus, Thou art pleading
In accents meek and low,
'I died for you, my children
And will you treat me so?'
O Lord, with shame and sorrow
We open now the door;
Dear Savior, enter, enter
And leave us never more!"

7. Song: "The Best of Friends, I Have in Heaven"—Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 364, verses 1, 4, 5.

II. Mission Minutes:

The March "Missionary News and Notes" has served letters from both China and India which contain items of interest for Juniors. Let the Juniors read these after they have been selected and marked by the leader. Follow this with a short discussion of the item read.

III. Study Period. Aim: To help the Juniors to realize that although Jesus is not on earth now, He is with His followers always, our ever-present Friend.

To the Leader: Our lesson today is a continuation of the lesson planned for Easter Sunday. Recall to mind, by means of question, the stories of the resurrection, and thus lead to the lesson for today. Use a large map of Palestine, and point out the places which our Lord visited after His resurrection. They were the familiar places where He had prayed and preached and labored and suffered. The Galilean mountains, the beloved lake, the Mount of Olives, Bethany and Jerusalem. Recall the five appearances of that first Easter Sunday.

1. Leader's Heart-talk.

There were forty days between the time of Jesus resurrection and His ascension. (Find the third verse of the first chapter of Acts). During these forty days He was seen by many of his friends, one time even by five hundred at once, I Cor. 15:6 and once by His brother James, 1 Cor. 15:7, and a number of other times that we have not studied about yet.

Jesus appeared so many times for several reasons. He wanted the disciples to be very sure that He had risen from the dead; He wanted to talk to them about the Kingdom of God, and the work that they should do after He had ascended to His Father, but above all He wanted them to learn that although He would not be visible to them, He would always be with them and help them, if they gave their whole heart to Him and trusted and obeyed Him. Jesus wants us all to be His children and He has promised to be with us always. Let us reverently repeat this prayer:

2. "Come into my heart, Lord Jesus
The door I throw open wide,
Come in, blessed Friend of sinners,
And ever with me abide."
Mrs. C. H. Wieand.

3. Solo—"I've Found a Friend; O Such a Friend"—(Mennonite Hymn Book, number 210.

4. Juniors discuss the following:
   a. Jesus proves to Thomas that He is the crucified risen Lord. John 20:26-29.
   b. Jesus tells Peter what to do. John 21:1-17.
   c. Jesus tells His friends that He is with them always. Matt. 28:16-20.

5. Repeat in unison the verse of the month, Matt. 6:33a.

6. Sing song of Month: "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name."

7. Leader's closing prayer.

—A prominent Mohammedan expresses himself thus on the present day situation of Christianity: "I can declare with definiteness, that Christianity is stronger today than ever before in history. I am surprised at the large number of heathen and non-heathen people that are of the opinion that Christian ethics has the only answer to the present day world chaos."—Exchange.

Announcement

The ordination of Rev. Harold D. Burkholder as Elder of the East Swamp Mennonite Congregation, Quakertown, Pa., will take place on Sunday afternoon, April 2nd, at 2:30 P. M. The ceremony will be in charge of Rev. J. J. Plenert, President of the Eastern District Conference. Rev. D. J. Unruh, of Pandora, Ohio, will give the charge to the Pastor. Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, Quakertown, Pa., will give the charge to the congregation.—J. Walter Landis, Sec.

Itinerary of Bluffton College Choir

April 1—Sugar Creek, Ohio
April 2—Dalton, Ohio
April 3—Tentative
April 4—Damascus, Ohio
April 5—Roaring Springs, Pa.
April 6—Grantsville, Maryland
April 7—Fairfield, Pa.
April 8—Lansdale, Pa.
April 9—Morning, Lansdale; afternoon, Allentown, Pa.; evening, Souderton, Pa.
April 10—Schwenksville, Pa.
April 11—Quakertown, Pa.
April 12—Radio City, New York City, New York
April 13—Philadelphia, Pa.
April 14—Deep Run, Pa.
April 15—Bally, Pa.
April 16—Morning, Bowmansville, Pa., evening, tentative.

The choir is composed of 36 young women and 24 young men. It has already given various concerts at Lima, Leipzic, Bluffton, and Paine, Ohio. Others are to be given at Columbus Grove, O.; Nappanee, Goshen and Berne, Ind.

IN MEMORIAM

HENRY MAST, son of David and Magdalena (Wenger) Mast, was born March 28, 1866, in Washington county, Iowa, east of Noble. On May 10, 1889 he was united in marriage to Marry Rittler. To this union were born three sons, Gladden, Louis, and Paul.

Upon his confession of faith in Jesus Christ as his Lord and Savior, he was baptized by the Rev. H. G. Allebach February 9, 1897, and taken into the fellowship of the Eicher Emmanuel Mennonite church. In the later years of his life this membership was transferred to the Wayland Menn. church.

On Friday morning he became ill and on Sunday morning, Feb. 12, he was called to his eternal abode.

He is survived by his wife Mary, and sons Gladden and Paul. Louis preceded him in death.

—by Mrs. D. E. Welty.

PETER P. UNRUH, the son of Peter Unruh and Sara Schroeder Unruh, was born in Nicolaidorf, South Russia, November 11, 1852. He was educated in the home village school. In America he had one month of English school. He acquired a knowledge of the English language so that he could express himself well on the general problems of life and also on spiritual matters.

He was baptized upon the confession of his faith in Jesus Christ as his personal Savior June 4, 1872, by Elder Jacob Buller, and joined the Alexanderwohl church, where he was a faithful member till his end. In 1874 he, his parents, and all his brothers and sisters, except one brother, joined the great exodus to North America. Here they settled in the eastern part of McPherson Co., Kansas. The first years of hard pioneer life had a very beneficial influence upon him and many others, as it revealed to them how to correctly evaluate the material and spiritual things. Characters were developed which were firm and settled, not to be moved by the changes and storms of life.

On February 10, 1880, he married Anna Klassen. To this union were born four sons and five daughters. Of these 1 son and 2 daughters died in infancy. Feb. 12, 1901, his dear wife was called to her heavenly rest after 21 years of wedded life. Days of deep sorrow followed for father and children. The ever present help of the Lord was keenly felt. In the fall of 1921 he moved to Newton, Kansas. Here he lived with his three youngest children and enjoyed a quiet and happy sunset of life.

Father was healthy and strong. In the night of Feb. 6 and 7 he had a heart attack, which left him very weak, yet he was never fully bedfast. The last day he became sick with broncho-pneumonia. At 12:45, March 7, he peacefully and quietly went home to be with the Lord, whom he loved, at the age of 86 years, 3 months, and 26 days. During the days when he was healthy and the days of his last sickness he gave testimony of an unwavering life of faith which the Lord blessed with the quiet, peaceful hope of the saved.

He leaves to mourn his departure his children, Rev. and Mrs. Peter H. and Susie Unruh, Goessel, Kansas; Rev. and Mrs. Henry T. and Anna Unruh, Bluffton Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Carl and Sarah Unruh Schmidt, Newton; Misses Augusta and Louise Unruh, Newton; Mr. and Mrs. John W. and Wilma Unruh, Newton; 9 grandchildren and one great-grandchild; also two sisters, Mrs. Anna Regier, Buhler, Mrs. Katherina Regier, Hesston; one brother, Mr. and Mrs. David P. and Justina Unruh, Goessel; and many friends and relatives.

The funeral services were held March 10 at the Alexanderwohl church, conducted by Rev. C. C. Wedel and Rev. J. J. Banman, who used as texts, Hebr. 12:2 and Rev. 3:21, and Numbers 23:10 b respectively. Rev. P. H. Richert conducted the services at the grave.

VICTOR MERLIN GINGRICH, son of Otto C. and Clara Augspurger Gingrich, born near Trenton, Ohio, January 10, 1906, died February 25, 1939. Very early in life he associated himself with the activities of the Mennonite Church and Sunday School, serving as pianist and organist for a number of years, and an active member until he took up his residence at Riley, where he became active in the Riley Presbyterian Church, serving as Sunday School Superintendent at the time of his death.

October 19, 1929 he united in marriage with Nople Hurley of Riley, and to this union were born two children. Dale and Doris Jean. He is survived by his wife, two children, his mother and father, three brothers and a large number of relatives and friends.

Dr. Clark of the Riley Presbyterian Church spoke briefly to the bereaved family and friends, followed by Rev. J. E. Amstutz, who based his remarks on Rom. 8:28, closing his remarks with the poem, "The Lost Chord."

* * *

LENA LEISY NEE KREHBILL was born Feb. 15, 1864, in Lee county, Iowa. In her 14th year she accepted the Lord Jesus as her personal Savior and was baptized by Christian Schowalter. In Jan., 1887, she was married to Emil A. Leisy of the same place. The couple's first venture was to go west and settle near Moundridge, Kans. where they lived for 25 years. During their stay in Kansas, 12 children have come to them, of which 11 are still living. In 1912 the family moved to Oregon and made their home near Pratum. In 1918, on Good Friday, father Leisy was called to his reward. The home place was then sold and the mother with the younger children made their home in Salem. The last years they lived at 4911 N. E. 30, Portland, where six of her children have their own homes and their vocations.

The departed one was an ideal mother in Israel. While yet in Kansas the Leisys were counted among the pillars of the Garden Church. The same may be said of their stay here in this church and she was also one of the charter members of the Alberta Community Church in Portland. She was of a Christlike disposition. She had a way to eliminate grief without hurting unnecessarily. Although her health was impaired for some time, she was active in some good work to her last day. She was happily surprised with the many, many greetings and gifts she received on her 75th birthday, on the Feb. 15 last, and she answered them, 67, appreciatively either in person or by letter.

Thus she leaves her blessed memory with seven sons and four daughters, 28 grandchildren, one great-grand child, two sisters, four brothers and friends. Her sons are: Ernest of Dallas, Texas; Edmund, Harvey, Elmer, and Weldon, of Portland; Homer of Salem, and Walter of Sweethome, Oregon. Her daughters are Olga Logenbill, of Woodburn; Linda Steffen of Silverton; Elsie Bartel, and Helen Warren of Portland, Oregon.

"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord for the Spirit says they rest from their labors and their works shall follow them."

Funeral services were held on Feb. 27, at the Pratum church, in which the Rev. J. M. Franz, S. S. Baumgartner and Edmund Miller participated, together with a mixed quartet. Rev. Miller's words of comfort were based on John 11. Her body was laid to rest in the Mennonite cemetery by the side of her husband. —Sent in by S. S. Baumgartner.

* * *

MOYER, CHARLES H., son of William D. Moyer and Susan Moyer, was born May 18, 1850, at Zionsville, Lehigh County, Pa. His wife and two children have preceeded him in his death. He passed to his eternal reward on January 22, 1939, at the home of his son Eugene.

He joined the First Mennonite Church in Philadelphia early in life and remained a faithful member until his death. During 1875 he was elected General Sunday School Superintendent of the Church School in which capacity he served for 23 years and taught an adult class till he was 85 years old. For many years he served on the Board of Trustees in the First Church. His church life was an active issue during his whole career. Until physical strength failed he was regular in his place on Sunday morning, both in Sunday School and worship service.

He has left a rich heritage to all that knew him and to all the members of the First Church.

He leaves to mourn two sons, Eugene of Philadelphia, Howard of Detroit, Michigan, their families, and a host of friends and relatives. His mortal remains were laid to rest January 25th with Rev. J. J. Plenert in charge of the services. —J. S. Bechtel.

* * *

MRS. BARBARA KRAEMER, daughter of Jacob and Margaret Bergdolt, was born near Summerfield, St. Clair county, Illinois on January 4, 1870. For some time Sister Kraemer had been suffering with asthma. This ailment was aggravated by bronchitis which caused her death on Feb. 26, 1939. She attained the age of 69 years, one month and 22 days.

On Oct. 28, 1884, she was baptized by Rev. J. E. Krehbiel and received into the fellowship of the Summerfield Mennonite Church, of which she remained a faithful member until her death. On Dec. 17, 1902, she was united in marriage with Henry Kraemer who preceded her in death two years ago. This union was blessed with four children, two of whom are still living.

She leaves to mourn her departure a son and a daughter, four grandchildren, two brothers and one sister, and many other relatives and friends. Funeral services were held at the Mennonite church, March 1, conducted by the pastor. Interment was made in the Summerfield cemetery.

» » JOTTINGS « «

—Sermon Sketches.—Two years ago THE MENNONITE featured a series of sermon sketches or sermonettes, furnished through the generosity of some of our ministerial brethren. Last year we discontinued that line, not fully assured that it met the approval of our readers. Recently voices have been heard that indicate a revival of interest in such sketches. So we have approached twenty-five mostly of the younger group of ministers in our Conference, with the question, if they might be willing to serve the readers of this paper by furnishing one sketch each, at stated dates during the year. Though not all have been heard from at this writing, the response has been very gratifying. Rev. Ernest J. Bohn, Souderton, Pa. furnishes the sermonette for this number of the paper. He will be followed through April, including May 2, by five other pastors from Eastern Conference churches. May God graciously bless these efforts!

—Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, pastor of the Reedley, Calif., church, has very kindly started to send us their Sunday bulletins. From these we glean that their Monthly Workers Conference is well attended and that the interest is good; that at the California Mennonite S. S. and C. E. convention at Shafter, their Young People will present a Missionary Service with the theme, WHITE UNTO HARVEST; that on March 5, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Unruh with their three children, Gilbert, Quentin and Tivila, and Mr. and Mrs. John A. Kroeker have been received into the church by letter. Pre-Easter services are being held every Wednesday noon.—In a letter he says, "I appreciate very much the efforts which you put forth to improve our English church paper. That is a task which is not appreciated by all."

—From Sunday Bulletin, First Church Philadelphia. The Menno-Friendly Beneficial Association has been in existence thirty-six years for the protection of its members in time of disability and death. It has paid to January 1, 1938, $23,750.00. The organization meets the second Tuesday of each month.—Rev. and Mrs. Plenert, pastor and wife, express their appreciation for the kind remembrances of members and friends on their third anniversary with the church.

—Rev. John F. Schmidt, a graduate of Bethel College and of Hartford Theological Seminary, and a son of the Gnadenberg church near Whitewater, Kans., has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Buhler, Kansas, Mennonite Church, his service to begin June 1, when he has finished his year of service with a Congregational church at Council Grove, Kansas. Mssionary August Ewert has substituted at Buhler, since the former pastor, Rev. J. M. Suderman, left the charge.

—Missionary G. A. Linscheid now living at Newton, Kansas, has undertaken to serve the Johannestal Mennonite Church for three months, both with preaching service and catechetical instruction. This church has been without a regular minister since the death of the former pastor, Rev. S. M. Musselman.

—The Emmaus Mennonite Church near Whitewater, Kansas, whose two ministers, Rev. B. W. Harder, elder, and Rev. Henry Thiessen resigned some months ago, has decided to call a minister. We hear that one call has been extended, but are not informed as to its outcome.

—Reverend and Professor J. J. Voth of Bethel College continues to preach for the Gnadenberg Mennonite Church, as he has done for the past two years. They, too, are looking for a minister. Rev. G. N. Harms, who has served the church for about half a century, still functions as elder.

—Mrs. Alfred Habegger of Busby, Mont. has gone to Berne, Indiana to be at the bedside of her father, Sam Hirshy, who is seriously ill with pneumonia at the Elmer Winteregg home.—Later: Brother Hirshy passed away Saturday evening, after an illness of three weeks. Funeral services took place Tuesday afternoon, March 21, at the First Mennonite church, with Rev. C. H. Suckau in charge. The deceased attained the age of 84 years, 10 months and 20 days.—Berne Witness.

—Mennonite Church, Lehigh, Kansas.—"The Ladies' Mission Circle and a few other friends of this church went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Ewert of Elbing, Kansas, March 10, to celebrate Mother P. J. Krause's 79th birthday. Mrs. Krause has her home at the present time with the Ewert family. She is the oldest member of the Lehigh Mission Circle. The celebration was enjoyed by all those present.

—Bethany Church, Freeman, S. D.—Sunday, March 26, at 2:30 p. m., Rev. Norman Harrison, sponsored by the Ministerial Ass'n, gave an address in the College Auditorium.—The S. S. Teacher Training Class meets every Wednesday at the home of Mrs. S. P. Preheim.

—First Church, Bluffton, Ohio.—The Junior Department of our S. S. has 38 pupils, two classes for boys and two for girls. For a special missionary project they gave, $5.00 for Mount Lawn, a country vacation home for children from the city; $5.00 for Faith Orphan Home and $9.83 to China for Orphan relief.—Bulletin.

—Hanston Mennonite Church, Kansas.—We had Bro. H. A. Fast with us March 21-22. Sunday, March 26, Missionary W. F. Unruh brought us messages direct from the Indian Mission field. We in these outer edges have so few opportunities to hear workers from the field, so we took advantage of his being so near for the time being.

— Bethel College Church, North Newton, Kans. — This church will join the other protestant churches in the city of Newton, on Good Friday from 12:00 to 3:00 p. m., in a service commemorating Christ's suffering on the cross, with addresses on the Seven Last Words of the Master, suitable music and prayers. These meetings observed for a number of years, have come to be blessed hours of meditation during the time when the Savior hung on the cross.

— J. J. Balzer, Mountain Lake. — Our son is studying in a Chicago medical college, and we are lonesome in our big home. But on Feb. 24 we had 44 friends for lunch, at Mrs. Balzer's 78th birthday.— The world, especially Europe, is in turmoil. What will happen when our Administration in Washington actually assumes the policing of the world. Is France still a democracy? Is England? Servitude will soon be our lot, the way it begins to look.

— Grace Mennonite Church, Albany, Oregon — "Arrangements are underway to have the Young People of the Dallas Church present a program at one of our evening services. — Mr. Elmer Widmer, who underwent an operation for appendicitis a few weeks ago, is back on duty as Sunday School superintendent. We are grateful to God for his successful and speedy recovery.—A three-hour Good Friday union service is being planned by the Albany Ministerial Association. Rev. W. R. Augsburger is to be one of the speakers."—Correspondent.

— Zion Mennonite Church, Souderton, Pa. — Rev. (Prof.) A. C. Schultz has been very well liked as a Bible teacher at Bluffton College. Let us make our plans right now to attend all the meetings he is to hold in our midst, from April 9 to 16 inclusive. Will you often think of these meetings in prayer? Our Brotherhood is planning a meeting with the Lansdale chapter.—"How many of our members have a church paper in their homes. There should be one in every home."—The Bluffton College A Cappella Choir will be with us Sunday night, April 9.—Bulletin.

REPORT OF EX. COM. OF MISSION SOCIETIES FOR FEBRUARY 1939

Nordheim Sewing Society, Winnipegosis, Man., $20.00; First Mennonite Senior Christian Endeavor, Mountain Lake, Minn., $15.00; Neu-Anlage Sew. Soc., Hague, Sask., $10.00.—Total, $45.00.

For India: St. John's Ladies Aid, Pandora, Ohio, Orphan, $20.00; Christ. Menn. Sew. Soc., Moundridge, Kans., Orphan, $30.00; Rosenort Miss. Soc., Rosthern, Sask., Orphan, $30.00; Miss. Soc., Aberdeen, Idaho, Champa Hospital and Station, $2.50; San Marcos Miss. Soc., Paso Robles, Calif., Do., $10.00; Miss. Soc., First Ch., Paso Robles, Calif., Do., $2.50; Miss. Soc., Colfax, Wash., Do., $5.00; Miss. Soc., Dallas, Oreg., Do., $5.00; First Menn. Miss. Soc., Bluffton, Ohio, Do., $10.00; Batasna Girl's Miss. Soc., Sugar Creek, Ohio, Do., $5.00; Ladies Aid and Miss. Soc. and Young Women's Miss. Soc., West Swamp, Quakertown, Pa., $10.00; Miss. Soc., Aberdeen, Idaho, Basna Hospital and Station, $2.50; Miss. Soc., First Ch., Paso Robles, Calif., Do., $2.50; Miss. Soc., Colfax, Wash., Do., $5.00; Miss. Soc., Dallas, Oreg., Do., $5.00; Miss. Soc., Albany, Oreg., Do., $2.50; Miss. Soc., Upland, Calif., Do., $7.50; Miss. Soc., Los Angeles, Calif., Do., $5.00; Sew. Soc., Pretty Prairie, Kans., Wards, Basna Hospital, $15.00; Sr. Miss. Soc., Ebenezer Ch., Gotebo, Okla., Basna St. Clothes, $10.00; Miss. Soc., Newport, Wash., India St's., Where Needed, $40.00.—Total, $225.00.

For China: Eden Ladies Aid and Miss. Soc., Moundridge, Kans., Biblewoman, $37.50; Miss. Soc., Pratum, Oreg., Biblewoman, $40.00; Swiss Sew. Soc., Whitewater, Kans., Biblewoman Work, $10.00; Miss. Soc., Arlington, Kans., Evangelist, $5.00; St. John's Ladies Aid Soc., Pandora, Ohio, Kai Chow Hospital, $10.00; First Menn. Miss. Soc., Bluffton, Ohio, Do., $20.00; Miss. Soc., First Menn. Ch., Napanee, Ind., Do. $10; Jr. C. E. Soc., Brudertal Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., Do., $4.64; Ladies Aid and Miss. Soc. and Young Women's Miss. Soc., West Swamp, Quakertown, Pa., Do., $10.00; Miss. Soc., Los Angeles, Calif., China Missions, $10.00; Miss. Soc., Aberdeen, Idaho, Do., $10.00; Miss. Soc., First Ch., Paso Robles, Calif., Do., $8.00; Miss. Soc., Colfax, Wash., Do., $12.00; Miss. Soc., Dallas, Oreg., Do., $5.00; Miss. Soc., Albany, Oreg., Do., $2.50; Miss. Soc., Upland, Calif., Do., $7.50.—Total, $202.14.

Expenses of Ex. Com. and "Miss. News and Notes:" St. John's Ladies Aid Soc., Pandora, Ohio, $5.00; First Menn. Miss. Soc., Bluffton, Ohio, $10.00; Miss. Soc., Arlington, Kans., $1.80; Sew. Soc., Morden, Man., $1.00; Miss. Soc., Trenton, Ohio, $3.00; Ebenezer Ladies Aid, Bluffton, Ohio, $8.00; Alexanderwohl Ch., Sew. Soc., Goessel, Kans., $2.00; Dorcas Soc., Wayland, Iowa, $11.25; Mrs. H. W. Entz, Inman, Kans., $.50; Mrs. H. J. Waltner, Marion Jct. S. D., $.25; Mrs. Benj. J. Waltner, Hurley, S. D., $.25; Mrs. Peter Loewen, Alsen, N. D., $.25; Sister Hillegonda van der Smissen, Newton, Kans., $1.00; Sew. Soc., Newport, Wash., $1.40.—Total, $45.70.

Miscellaneous: Ladies Aid, Hanston, Kans., Retired Miss. Pension Fund, $13.22; Newhopedale Ladies Aid, Meno, Okla., Do., $13.52; Mission Friend, Whitewater, Kans., Do., $1.04; N. E. Alexanderwohl Sew. Soc., Hillsboro, Kans., Chicago Branch Mission, $5.00; Do., East Freedom, Pennsylvania, Mission, $5.00; Bethel Sew. Soc., Mountain Lake, Minn., Home Miss. Work, Canada, $10.00; Miss. Soc., Aberdeen, Idaho, Typewriter, Clinton, Okla., Mission, $1.00; Miss. Soc., First Ch., Paso Robles, Calif., Do., $2.00; Miss. Soc., Colfax, Wash., Do., $3.00; Miss. Soc., Dallas, Oreg., Do., $3.00; Miss. Soc., Albany, Oreg., Do., $1.00.—Total, $57.78.

Grand Total $575.62

Gratefully acknowledged,

Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Treas.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA.

Devoted to the interests of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Business Office, Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kans.
Editor .... J. R. Thierstein, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.50 .... Foreign, $2.00

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges, to J. R. THIERSTEIN, or the MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS.

~~1001 EAST BROADWAY~~
NEWTON, KANSAS
Key
52

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, APRIL 2, 1940 NUMBER 14

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

"I Know Whom I Have Believed"

We are living in a world full of uncertainty and confusion. In some places it almost has the appearance of a madhouse. God the Allwise alone knows what tomorrow may bring. The best we can do is to say, if it be God's will, we will do this or that. How true the thought of the poet, "Change and decay in all around I see." But in such a world of unrest and instability, Christians have the God-given privilege to live in certainty. In proof of that we have God's Word and the testimonies of sainted children of His. They know beyond all doubt: "We know whereof we speak," "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God . . .," "We know that if any man be a worshipper of God, and doeth his will, him he heareth," "We know that thou art a teacher come from God, for no man can do these miracles, that thou doest, except God be with him," "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God—not made with hands, eternal in the heavens," "We glory in tribulations also, for we know that tribulation worketh patience," "I know that my Redeemer liveth," "I know that—our Lord he is above all gods," "O Lord, I know that the way of man is not in himself . . .," "I know whom I have believed and that he is able to keep that which I have committed to him against that day." —T.

* * *

IS GIVING an inspiration or an irritation? Does the support of the church and its benevolences give you joy or is it a burden to you? The answer depends upon your motive in giving. If you give because you love God and His Kingdom, it will be an inspiration. God gave. Jesus gave His all. It is of the very essence of the Christian faith to give. The spirit of the world is to get; of Christ is to give. But if one gives under compulsion—because we are asked to give, because we are expected to keep up with someone else's giving, because the Budget must be raised—then giving may easily become an irritation. Giving brings great blessings to those who have learned how. Giving must be learned. If it hurts, keep on giving until it doesn't hurt anymore. For the Lord loveth a cheerful giver.—Lester Hostetler in "The Herald."

LOYALTY TO ONE'S OWN.—We are living in a time when the movement of evangelism is gaining momentum. Our own Mennonite Churches have caught the spirit and one hears of such meetings in many places of our Conference. Evangelistic meetings are intended to awaken new fervor and to arouse new determination to live a truer, more consecrated Christian life; to revive the faith and inner life of such followers of Christ who once surrendered to Him, but who have become indifferent; to intensify and deepen the interest in the study of the Word, the Bread and Water of Life. Ordinarily the character or type and manner of such meetings depends a good deal on the character, attitude and purpose of the person conducting them, but also to some extent on the attitude of the church. Prayerful care and foresight is necessary in making the choice of the worker. Unless that is done, it is possible that his efforts may be productive of more harm than good. For have we not seen instances where a congregation was all torn up by dissentions and strange illusions after such meetings? Generally speaking, it would appear to be much safer and should also be an object of loyalty to our church, to select the speaker from the members of our own ministry. For are there not those among that group whose faith is well grounded and who are adequately equipped by training, study and experience to serve our people well and with blessings? Men of whom we need have no fear of spreading strange doctrines or erroneous ideas. Does it not then appear that our churches should, as a matter of loyalty and devotion to our denomination, make due effort to use our own talent, or at least such of the Mennonite faith? —T.

* * *

Announcement and Invitation

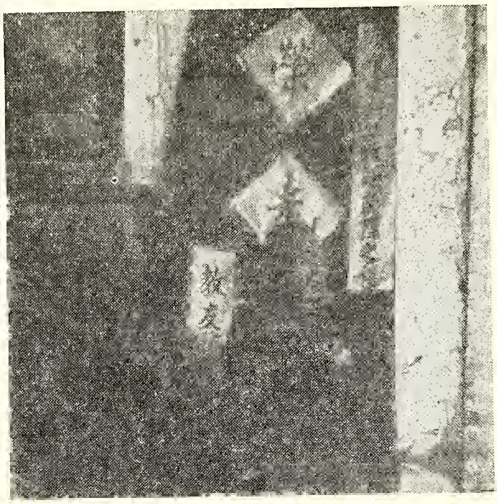
Since Rev. Walter H. Dyck has accepted the call of the Wehrlose Mennoniten Gemeinde, Beatrice, Nebr., the congregation is planning reception and installation services to be held Sunday, April 7. We hope that many friends will remember our new pastor as well as his new charge in prayer and intercession.

All correspondence in behalf of the Wehrlose Mennoniten Gemeinde, Beatrice, Nebr., may be addressed to Rev. Walter H. Dyck, 1408 North Ninth Street, Beatrice, Nebr.

With sincere greetings, Franz Albrecht.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary



Sun Chung Sheng, of Lung Wang Miao
Ordained Dec. 24, 1939

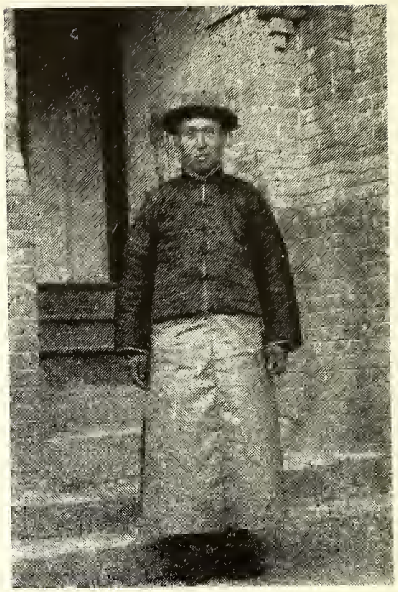
Tamingfu, Hopei, China, February 7, 1940

Dear Brethren and Sisters in the Lord:

Today we would like to greet you briefly with just a few lines. Some brethren and sisters have inquired whether it was still possible for us to go out. How glad we are and grateful to the Lord to be able to say that the Lord is giving us open doors for the Gospel and great opportunities to be active for Him. It is true, we live in the city but we are frequently out in the villages. The relief work in the churches is now organized and we already have investigated 117 villages. In these there are 11,421 homes, and of them 1725 have been accepted for relief. Of course, we can help only as much as money comes in for the purpose. So far about a bushel of grain has been designated for each family, that is not much, but it helps along a bit. We pray for the poor. If brethren and sisters should send in more money, then we could also help another time before the wheat harvest. We owe the brethren and sisters much thanks for all the means that have been sent. May God bless our efforts!

Above two pictures show us the photographs of the two first elders to be elected from among the Chinese. Brother Sun Chung Sheng was ordained by me as elder on the 24th of December in the Lung Wang Miao Church, and Brother Liu Ching Hsuan by the Pannabecker brethren, Brother Ewert and myself on the 31st of December, as elder in the Kai Chow city church. Other churches want to follow. Thank the Lord with us for this progress in the church work on the China mission field!

With greetings, H. J. and Maria Brown



Lin Ching Hsuan, Kai Chow City
Ordained Dec. 31, 1939

General Conference Certificates for the Ministers of the General Conference

At its last session held at Saskatoon, Sask. the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of N. A. by resolution 17 instructed its Executive Committee to offer certificates to its ministers.

Toward this end some time ago "Information Blanks" were sent to such ministers of record. They were requested to fill them out and return them to the secretary of the conference within thirty (30) days, thus indicating their desire to receive such certificates.

Most of the Blanks were returned to the secretary and about 40 were sent to the president.

It is possible that a few ministers did not receive Blanks because of change of address or oversight or for other reasons. In that case such ministers are kindly requested to notify the conference secretary:

Rev. Phil. A. Wedel, Aberdeen, Idaho, who will gladly supply them. In the service of the Master and His Church, C. E. Krehbiel, Conference President.

— BLUFFTON COLLEGE.—An all-day conference of Ohio educators held at the University of Toledo recently, on the subject of Audio-Visual Aids in Teaching, was opened with an address by President L. L. Ramseyer on "The Influence of Documentary Films on Social Attitudes". The talk was supplemented by the showing of "The River", a documentary film produced by the government. Dr. Ramseyer also led a panel discussion on "Problems of the Classroom Use of Visual Auditory Aids", in which several leading high school superintendents and teachers of northern Ohio participated. —B. C. Bulletin.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

PERSONAL EVANGELISM

by H. D. Burkholder

Acts 8:27, 28: "And behold a man of Ethiopia was returning, and sitting in his chariot read Esias the Prophet. Then the Spirit said unto Philip, go near, and join thyself to this chariot."

Personal work is something every believer can be engaged in. "Not every one can use the net, but every one can use the hook." The ministry of Christ was more with the individual than the masses. His chief desire was to save men and women from the depth of sin; its penalty, power and, thank God, some day from its very presence. Many of the souls brought to Himself were hand-picked. We are living in an age, that if men and women are to be brought to the Savior, they too must be hand-picked, in personal work.

Some time ago I was informed that a discouraged family, Catholic in faith, was seeking Christ. After spending much time in prayer, I went forth having the assurance that God the Holy Spirit would go before to prepare the hearts. Upon my arrival, I found myself in a similar position as Philip did when he came to the Eunich from Ethiopia; for here was a mother with open Bible searching the scriptures and, like the Ethiopian, unable to understand them.

Under the guidance of the Spirit of God I endeavored to open the Word unto her. In the course of conversation a seventeen year old daughter came into the room, and entered into the discussion with unusual interest. I did not attempt to bring to them a social gospel, but rather the true gospel of Jesus Christ, which when received in faith will bring a change in life, including the social life. Both mother and daughter, having seen their need of a Savior, (Rom. 3:23) and seeing that Christ had died for them, (I Peter 2:24; Isa. 53:5, 6) got on their knees and confessed their sins to God, received Christ into their heart and, when standing on their feet, stood firm on the solid Rock Christ Jesus. Upon the authority of God's Word they were now Children of God, John 1:12, whereas, before this they were children of the devil, John 8:44.

Since the day of that decision, they have been attending our church. It was a joy to see them grow in grace. Proving from their lives that Christ was real to them, they were baptized this Easter and received into the fellowship. The joy of leading souls to Christ knows no bounds.

Today we find the world in arms. It is therefore expedient that every believer arm himself and herself more adequately, Eph. 6:12-18, and become a faithful soldier of Christ, that many souls may yet be won for Him.—Let us be faithful Evangels for Christ.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

THE METHOD AND CHALLENGE OF CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

by J. H. Langenwalter

The favorite method of Jesus to develop the capacity for finding others is His disciple. He was always finding somebody Himself and those who understood Him best became great finders. We need think only of Andrew who "found" his brother Peter, to whom he had played second all his life, and brought him to Jesus. He was also the one who found the little boy with his little lunch in the presence of thousands of hungry people. Philip, also, gave remarkable evidence of the kind of finding which is developed in those who have caught the purpose of Jesus' desire to educate people.

Another method which Jesus employed was, "Follow Me!" He gave very real direction to the men who looked to Him to be led out into greater realms. He gave information, but He also gave direction by setting an example. This is only another way of saying that He was leading people to God or, as someone has expressed it, "Loving people to God". This expression was used neither as a theological nor as a sentimental phrase. It meant something real that those understood well, who had sat under the teaching of the author. To them it seemed a most practical way of helping people to find their way. That is exactly what Christian Education means in the light of what Jesus taught and did.

The whole approach of Jesus carried within itself a tremendous challenge for anyone who was really learning from Him. "The harvest indeed is plenteous, but the laborers are few. Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that He send forth laborers into His harvest." Matt. 9:37b, 38. Well, what happened? They prayed and became workers in their Lord's harvest! What more effective and challenging method can be found anywhere? That was real leading out from a realm of bickering fear into realms of great achievement. That is Christian Education in its working clothes.

Missions in the Time of War

by P. H. Richert

Missions are affected by war in many ways. While some good may even come through war by the Lord's overruling, the effect as a whole is bad. The greatest of all missionaries, Paul, who was not easily distracted by all kinds of hindrances, emphasises the need of quietness for missions in 1 Tim. 2:1, where he urges intercessory prayer for all men, but especially for kings and all in authority. Why this singling out of kings? The context shows that he wants quietness that God's will to save all men may be fulfilled, in other words, that missions may continue and prosper.

With two wars going on at present, there is hardly a mission field that is not affected by them. Even certain areas of Africa, which is so far from the scene of war, feel the effects. For instance the Evangelical Paris mission has lost 50 of its 100 male missionaries, who have to serve in the army. Of its three secretaries only one is left, the other two are in the army of France.

But the German missions are hit the hardest of all. In India nearly all German men have been interned; in central Africa also, not so many in southern Africa. But all of these missions are going on, either under the control of the native churches, as most of them in India, or by being turned over to neighboring missions. That this could be done so well now is due to the lessons learned in the World war No. 1. At that time the World's Missionary Council created a commission to regulate this shifting of control from belligerents to neutrals.

A noteworthy shift of interest in the home churches has taken place during the last ten years while the east has been disturbed. In Africa the total number of missionaries has increased by over 2000, but in Asia, i.e., in India and China the number of missionaries has decreased over 2000. This makes Africa at present the most favored country as far as missions are concerned. So much so, that for every one million of people in Africa there are now 56 missionaries, while for every million in Asia there are only 13 missionaries. Not only that, but in Africa of every 28 people one is a Christian, while in Asia there is one Christian out of every 184 people. In China only one in 800.

During the last decade the number of unmarried women missionaries has greatly increased in proportion to married missionaries. In war time it becomes doubly difficult for missionary families with children. Our Secretary of State Hull during the past two years has repeatedly answered us upon inquiry, that no married missionaries are permitted to go to the interior of China. The last family which our Board sent to China was August Ewerts, who went last fall. But they agreed to leave the family near the coast, and Brother Ewert went alone into the interior.

How dangerous it has been, and still is also on our field, can be seen from Brother and Sister Brown's experience in being attacked by bandits, who robbed them and threatened to kill them. Other attempts were made by robbers when some of the sisters were alone on the station. The Canadian and British missionaries have been compelled to evacuate. But in spite of all this, the work is progressing, and in many instances even faster than ever. Both the missionaries and the young Christians have shown much of the martyr spirit of the first church, and that has impressed the Chinese nation so favorably, that not only the president and his wife, who are Christians, but also non-Christians, even former communists, have again and again expressed their admiration and gratitude. How much the Chinese have appreciated the fact that so many missionaries remained on the field in spite of danger, and helped care for the sick, the hungry, and the thousands of fearstricken fugitives, is seen from practically all reports to the various Boards, and even to secular papers like the New York Times.

A specially hopeful sign is the large proportion of Christian students in high schools and colleges, namely ten per cent. So while there is only one per cent of Christians in China as a whole, there are 10 per cent of the educated class, the future leaders of the country, in Christian schools. All Christian colleges are functioning, with 6000 students. This is 2000 more than before the war. What such leadership means for a country can now be seen in the president of China and his wife. Both have recently succeeded in repealing the law which forbade religious instruction in registered schools. The president's wife made a notable speech on that occasion, from which we quote here one paragraph:

"It gives me great pleasure to tell you that because our people and the governemnt have come to appreciate the results of your efforts and the spirit that underlies your work, the Generalissimo has found it possible to have the law amended, so that now the Bible can be taught in registered mission schools. You have all had a leading share in making this change in the law possible."

Other good results of the war are: 1) The increased influence of the mission hospitals, as can be seen also from sister Goertz's recent report in our papers, in which she says that they have "the time of their lives" in this work.

2) The trek westward by millions of fugitives from the west, the very cream of the nation, containing a large per cent of Christians and intellectuals, who carry Christianity and civilization into the backwoods of China. It is much like it was during the first persecution of the church in Jerusalem, when they all fled to regions where Christ was not known, and made him known.

3) The churches are more filled by seekers than ever before, and more baptisms take place than before. More Bibles than ever are being bought and read, so much so that not enough Bibles can be printed.

4) For both the missionaries and the Chinese it is a time of testing in courage and faith.

Among the bad effects of the war on mission work may be mentioned:

1) First the many lives lost and the suffering from wounds and famine. Some 30,000,000 in China face starvation.

2) Much mission property has been destroyed.

3) The income from the home churches has decreased by from 30 to 50 per cent.

4) The total number of missionaries in Asia has been decreased by 2000.

5) Much unrest even in India.

6) The growing power of Japan, with its attempt to force Shintoism, a semi-religious worship, upon all its subjects, including the mission schools. This makes the War in China a semi-religious war, and history shows that they are the worst wars of all. In Germany such a war lasted at one time 30 years. Many mission teachers in Korea have already closed their schools for conscience sake.

One of the Chinese leaders, Dr. P. C. Hsu, of the University of Shanghai criticizes the first missionaries, because they forced the "toleration act" upon China in 1842 by threat of war, and so started missions right from the beginning as a religious war.

While the American missionaries are still being well treated by the Japanese, the Canadian and British missionaries recently had to flee from many places.

Of all the serious effects of the war, that upon the home churches seems to be the most discouraging. War has had a very detrimental effect on both mission interest and mission ability at home it appears.

1) Germany can do very little now by way of financial support of missions.

2) France is in the same position. One half of its male missionaries have been called home into the army.

3) Even America is going backward in mission contributions. The income for all religious work in our country was—

In 1930—$23.00 per church member
In 1931—$22.00 per church member
In 1933—$19.00 per church member
In 1938—$13.00 per church member

This is for all church work and missions. For foreign missions alone the figures are still more discouraging: Last year it was only about .75 cents per member, while it used to be $1.25 for the church as a whole. For our conference it has always been better. During the best years after the war it came up to over five dollars per member. Even now it is about $2.25 in 1938 ($2.50 in 1937.)

And this drop took place here while the national income increased 79 per cent. The expenditure for war has increased 31 per cent, while that for missions has decreased about that much. How terrible the result of war! O how the world needs the Gospel of Pace, and the messengers of Peace!

—Don Smucker, Fellowship of Reconciliation, N. Y. "In the past six weeks I have traveled nearly 6,000 miles as far north as Minnesota and as far south as Alabama. There are splendid Christian pacifists everywhere, though their number is small. I hope the Mennonites maintain the non-resistant principles as well as some of the Episcopalians, Methodists and Congregationalists I know.

Chances of Success of European Belligerents

"The Christian Century" in a splendid article on "After Finland What?" compares the possibilities of the two belligerent camps in Europe in winning the present War. We believe a summary of this discussion would be interesting to our readers.

In answer to the question, how the Allies may win the struggle, three strategies are mentioned: (1) An attack upon Germany through her unfortified neutral flanks, as by way of Holland, Rumania, Hungary. But this would make the attackers responsible for spreading the war area and for dragging inoffensive neutrals to the slaughter, thus imposing a serious moral strain on Allied propaganda. (2) Fall back on their blockade, build up their army and air strength for an offensive attack in two or three years, which, however, would only give Germany a chance to build up her strength likewise. It would also enable her to develop the resources of Russia and the Balkans and thus strengthen her to withstand the blockade indefinitely. (3) A direct assault on the west wall which, on a break-through of twenty to thirty miles, would cost the lives of about a million men.

The question, how Germany could win the war, gives rise also to three possible strategies: (1) Germany can continue to sit tight on the present front, and develop her economic advantages in Russia and the Balkans. Doing that she might wear out the Allied resources (for England is already spending $26,000,000 daily), and thus bring their morale to the breaking point. But could Germany stand the strain? (2) The Germans might make an attack by way of Holland and, gaining air bases there, launch a combined air and naval attack on England. But such an attack would give Germany the black eye for this unprovoked assault on a small neutral state, and would open up for the Allies a better front for counter attacks than they now have. (3) A direct assault on the Maginot fortifications, which would entail a similar ghastly slaughter of human lives, as would the Allied break through the Siegfried line.

Balancing these prospects, the article states, "It can be seen that neither side has any assurance that it can win this war short of years of hideous sacrifice, and that it is by no means certain that victory can be gained even at such cost."

If only the leaders or governments on both sides would let reason speak to them to see that, if they persist in their haughty, hateful attitudes, they will wreck the country and turn it into a graveyard which will offer no reward to the victor. It appears that the semblance of a just peace could be worked out at this juncture, but will they humble themselves to the point where they can get together to talk things over to save themselves from utter ruin?

Might this not be brought about if the Christians in the neutral nations would unitedly implore God? T.

SERMON SKETCH

CHRIST'S SPIRIT THE ESSENCE OF THE BELIEVER'S LIFE

by William Penner, Wayland, Iowa

Text: Ephesians 5:18b "-- Be filled with the Spirit."

The human soul is endowed with a capacity to enter into a conscious, personal fellowship with the Spirit of Christ. The way of life is not attained by holding on to good religious opinions, nor by a mere knowledge of the Bible, not even by the mental acceptance of the right teaching about Christ. It is the Spirit that creates life as the believer responds and yields.

I. The Approach of the Spirit of Christ

The Spirit's approach to man's soul may be likened to a good friend knocking at the door waiting to be admitted. The scriptural picture of Christ knocking at the door is a symbol of spiritual reality. It is not with violent thrusts that the Spirit of Christ seeks entrance into heart and mind, but rather with gentle, persuasive touches.

Our attention to the approach of the Holy Spirit may be attracted by an inner restlessness which is quite characteristic of a life not adjusted to the Divine Spirit. It may also happen that a definite awareness of a dissatisfied, empty life asserts itself. Perhaps strong reverberations of a troubled conscience, becoming more and more insistent, making their impact on a Christian not filled with the Spirit.

II. The Receptive Soul

With more or less struggle and wavering between the weakness of the flesh and the willingness of the spirit the sincere soul will yield, by the grace of God, and receive his divine caller as a more intimate companion. In the lives of some believers it may take years after a faint and half-hearted decision to follow Him, until He finally gains admission to create a more abundant life within.

As one lets Christ enter more fully something transpires between Him and the soul. After some reproving and admonishing the teachable Christian will make acknowledgement of his weakness and sin. He will feel unworthy in the presence of Christ, but such confession is a most necessary and wholesome experience for the growing child of God. Thus will Christ comfort and strengthen and inspire the receptive soul.

III. The Spirit Filled Life

The degree to which the believer will allow himself to become enlightened and responsive through continued felowship with the indwelling Christ his life, in all its aspects, will reflect Christ. This life will become more and more a spiritual training for the true Christian. He will then find himself and his place in the Kingdom of God.

In the Spirit filled Christian the love of God is able to express itself in all his dealings with mankind. What is more needed in the church and in the world than the love of God? Let church members be filled with the Spirit and this love will be supplied.

The child of God filled with divine life will gain a Christ-like understanding of the will of God. He will be ready to struggle and pray through till he lives, not according to his own will, but according to the Father's will. Like a fruit-bearing tree he will show forth the fruits of the Spirit.

PRAYER

"Breath on me, breath of God,
Fill me with life anew,
That I may love what thou dost love,
And do what thou wouldst do."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

April 14, 1940

HOSEA TELLS OF GOD'S FORGIVING LOVE

Hosea 6:1-7; 14:4-9

Introduction

The Book of Hosea is said to be one of the most evangelical books of the Old Testament. The chapters from the fourth on, give the prophetic messages and the climax is reached in the beautiful picture of God's forgiving love in the last chapter. In chapters four and five we read the dire results of the withdrawal of Jehovah's favor. Ephraim prefers his idols to God and He will leave him to his own desires and devices (4:17). Having rejected Jehovah, they seek Him in vain (5:6). The sinful heart which rejects God's goodness must taste of His severity (Rom. 11:22). It is the only way that stubborn sinners can be brought to realize their condition (6:15). This is what happened to Israel.

Repentance after Punishment vs. 1-3

The faithful remnant calls upon the people to "return unto the Lord" (v1). In the last two verses of chapter 5, God is pictured as a lion attacking Israel and then withdrawing until the people acknowledge their sin and seek His face. The people now speak and encourage each other to return to God, repent of their sins. God who chastizes for sin, will heal them when they repent. The wounds caused by His judgments will be healed by His grace. God does not deal with us after our sins (Ps. 103:10). Repentance accomplishes much. A trio of blessings—the result of repentance: a revival, a spiritual resurrection(Eph. 2:1) and a new life (2 Cor. 5:10) are indicated in verse 2. These were promised to decadent and wicked Israel. These may be promised to sinners today.

Verse 3 links directly with the first clause of verse 1. Israel shall know God's goodness when they repent and return to Him. He will bless them and the land in a material way. Large material blessings from God usually follow in the wake of a real religious awakening.

Jehovah's Reply vs. 4-7

Jehovah's reply runs from 6:4 to 13:8. He shows how Israel has gone against His expressed will with deliberate intent. He is deeply disturbed (v4) because their good intentions are so fleeting. He has sent the prophets to predict disaster as the result of their sin (v5). The moral and spiritual condition of Israel was deplorable. There was no truth nor goodness in the land (4:12). Hosea stresses the backsliding of the people (11:1-7). Israel rejected God, turned away from Him. How many are doing the same today? God desires genuine piety and loyalty, springing from an inner devotion, rather than outward observance of religious forms (v6).

God's Forgiving Love 14:4-9

In spite of Israel's treachery against God, His heart yearns for His people (11:8). Hosea makes a final plea to Israel to return unto the Lord and make a full confession (vs. 1-3) and then Jehovah promises healing and forgiveness (vs. 4, 5). This prayer for forgiveness was not offered by Israel and God's pardon was never actually given.

God's longing after wayward sinners is beautifully revealed here and also the fact that He is waiting to be gracious to all who will repent and turn to Him. Beauty, strength, growth and fruitage await the penitent and returning sinner (vs. 5-8). Hosea uses wonderfully beautiful language to portray the beauty, fragrance, perennial freshness and fruit-bearing of the devoted Christian life.

Hosea's message is full of comfort for us. Apart from God's forgiving grace, there is no hope for any one. The revelation that God is love and will forgive, gives inspiration and hope. His forgiveness and cleansing hinge on our confessing our sins (Golden Text). No one may trifle with sin and temptation for that would be imposing on God's love and mercy. He will not excuse our deliberate wrongdoing and we are not certain of having time to repent.

CORRESPONDENCE

BETHESDA CHURCH, MARION, SOUTH DAK.

Rev. A. P. Waltner, our pastor, has given us reports of the Mission Board Meeting held in Newton in February. We as a congregation are very much interested in these mission reports. Becoming acquainted with the work that our missionaries are doing in the fields makes us realize more fully that our task is to pray and give financially for them.

Rev. Waltner is conducting an outline study of the Bible series on Thursday evenings. We had a heavy snowfall this past week and because of blocked roads no meeting was held on Thursday. On March 7th, a large congregation gathered in our church to hear Dr. H. A. Fast tell of his trip to South America. We thought that the pictures he showed were very educational.

Special worship services with special music were held during this glad Easter time. Rev. J. A. Schrag gave us a special message on Easter Sunday.—Susan Deckert, Corr.

GOESSEL MENN. CHURCH, GOESSEL, KANS.

3-25-40

The Easter message of the Resurrection still fills our hearts. We are grateful indeed that we may worship a Savior who lives. "Because I live ye shall live also."

The membership of our church at present is 291. During the past year 6 new members were received into the church by baptism and one by letter, but death also came into the homes of two families. Mrs. Helena Schroeder and Mrs. Helena Richert both passed on to their eternal reward.

At the annual church meeting everything was reorganized for another year. The Sunday School is under the capable leadership of Menno and John F. Schmidt. The Senior C. E. is lead by Martin P. Wedel, while the Junior C. E. has several sponsors. These different organizations afford many opportunities to labor and to testify for our Lord. We have two mission societies, the one is composed of the older ladies; while the younger women and girls make up the "Mission Friends' Circle." These societies sponsored a mission sale on March 8. — Due to unfavorable weather, the Prayer Week was observed the week preceding Easter. The themes were followed as given in the MENNONITE and BUNDESBOTE. — We are sorry to report that Mrs. P. P. Buller, our dear pastors' wife, still remains confined. She suffered a stroke in September and has been in the hospital ever since. It is the prayer of our whole congregation that the Lord will keep her in His care and provide strength and courage for her, in her great struggle. May the Lord bless the entire family. — Missionary and Mrs. P. W. Penner have visited our church at different occasions. We are very thankful for their visits, because they draw us closer to the misison work. — The church choir rendered the Easter cantata "Easter Memories" on Good Friday evening. May the memories of that first Easter inspire all of us to rededicate our lives and our all to our Risen Savior; and may we all follow more closely in the way that He walked before us. — Hilda Woelk, Corr.

Our faith in God asks of Him a risen Redeemer, and the faith is answered in a Savior raised from the dead. —Bishop Fallows.

GRACE MENNONITE CHURCH, PANDORA, O.

"What Christians Believe" was the theme of the annual Pre-Easter services brought to us by Dr. Edmund G. Kaufman, President of Bethel College, during the week of March 10-17. For sometime we have been looking forward to the coming of Dr. Kaufman. He has come and gone. We have been deeply impressed by his profound messages. To be privileged to enjoy such fellowship is a real benediction. The attendance was good, even though we had some blustery weather while the services were in progress. A few thoughts from Dr. Kaufman's messages follow:

God, in whom we live and move and have our being, was proclaimed. "In the beginning God," with a purpose back of all nature, creation and history, was presented to the audience that was present at each session to hear more of the great truths portrayed each time.

Man, who is the crown of God's creation, has a part to perform. In partnership with God much may be accomplished. We were challenged to submit ourselves to the will of God. It is through prayer that we may do this. Prayer is nourishment to the soul. It is more important to know what prayer does than what it is. In Jesus' life prayer was power. The law of gravity is down, but the law of prayer is up. Through real search of the Scriptures we may learn the laws of God and as a result better serve Him.

The Bible is the biggest book, and the church the biggest institution. We need the Old Testament to reveal the New Testament, and the New Testament to reveal the Old Testament. The Bible is a record and interpretation of God's revelation to man. The Bible is the servant to make Christ known to us as a Savior. The pivot of the Bible is Christ. "Search the Scriptures . . . they testify of me." — The Christian has a Gospel to share. What is the gospel according to each of us?

Jesus said, I will build my church. His work is to be carried on through the church. The church began on earth but will not end here. The church is the extension of the life of Christ in this world.

Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness . . . There is only one Kingdom of God. The Kingdom is within—peace with God. The Kingdom of God is a spiritual Kingdom. God is interested in the world and the individual. God so loved the world . . .

Dr. Kaufman told us that "Death is the surest thing of the future for us all". Let us have our chart and compass and anchor, for all the seas have their storms sometime or other. To the Christian "death is a friend." "Death is a green light." "Death is going home." May we at all times be ready that when the death angel comes to call us home that it will be a real joy.

In his messages Dr. Kaufman was evangelical throughout.—Mrs. Selma C. Sommer, Corr.

Our Colleges and a Troubled World

The real trouble with our world today lies in the attitudes of men. To overcome the troubles of the world we must produce right attitudes with men. There is no institution that so deeply effects and properly directs the attitudes of men and women as the Christian College. It is more powerful than even the Christian Church in developing desirable attitudes toward life and things.

I can truly say Bethel College has shaped my attitudes toward life and the world to a greater extent than the Church. Observation tells me what is true of myself is true of others. I am struck by the difference of attitudes on the part of the young people who go to State Institutions and those who go to a Christian College. From this follows the conclusion that a Christian College plays a more important part in solving the problems of the world by developing the right attiutdes in our young people than does the Christian Church.—P. E. Frantz, Geary, Okla.

Fourth Quarterly Conference of the Eastern District

Bethel Mennonite Church, Perkasie, Pa., April 8, 1940

Afternoon Program—2:30 o'clock

Song Service—Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander
Devotions—Rev. A. M. Fretz
Conference Business: Reading of minutes.—Treasurer's Report.—Prof. Lantz' Chorus Committee.—General Conference Special Committee.—Reading and Discussion of Home Resolutions.—Peace Committee. — Evangelization Committee. — Retreat Ground Committee.—Resolutions.
Closing meeting at 5:00 o'clock

Evening Program—7:30 o'clock

Song Service—Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander
Devotions—Walter H. Temple
Paper—"A Message from the Book of Amos"—Rev. Howard T. Landes
General Discussion of Book of Amos
Special Music during the evening program
Closing at 9:00 P. M.

The Ladies of the Church will serve supper.

Attached to the above program, as it came to the editor, is an exhibit indicating the budget of the Eastern Conference, showing that the twenty-four churches are requested to raise a budget of $3425.00. Of this amount $1877.06 or a little over 55 percent has been paid in. The amounts asked from the different churches range from $23.00, Perkasie Church, to $475.00, Zion Church at Souderton. First Church, Allentown, Howard G. Nyce, pastor; Bowmansville, Pine Grove, Raymond V. Stubbs, pastor, and East Swamp, Harold D. Burkholder, pastor, have paid a little more than their quota. The remaining churches are shown in arrears.

R. Weinbrenner
Editor
Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen
Intermediate
Department.
Huldah E. Myers
Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

Our Share

And we ourselves? Are our hands clean?
Are our souls free from blame
For this world-tragedy?
Nay, then! Like all the rest,
We had relaxed our hold on higher things,
And satisfied ourselves with smaller.
Ease, pleasure, greed of gold—
Laxed morals even in these—
We suffered them, as unaware
Of their soul-cankerings.
We had slipped back along the sloping way,
No longer holding First Things First,
But throning gods emasculate—
Idols of our own fashioning,
Heads of sham gold and feet of crumbling clay.
If we would built anew and build to stay,
We must find God again
And go His way. —John Oxenham

BIBLE STUDY AT BLUFFTON

(Harvey Bauman, the writer of this article, is a Junior at Bluffton College and is studying for the ministry. He is deputation chairman of the college Gospel Team and is a member of the West Swamp (Penn.) congregation of which Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander is the pastor.)

Bluffton College offers splendid opportunities to students interested in Bible study. Besides providing scholarships to help financially, the college offers a good program of study with the well-qualified, Rev. Arnold C. Schultz as instructor.

Two introductory survey courses, "A Historical Survey of the New Testament" and "Hebrew History and Religion" give a social and historical background of the scriptures and their content. About fifteen hours of Biblical subjects are offered each semester to the various classes. Some are survey courses as the above, and some are exposition such as the courses in the Pauline and General Epistles. Biblical Greek is offered for those who are interested in further pursuing a scholarly study of Biblical literature.

In the two and one-half years that I have been here at Bluffton I have observed a marked revival of interest in Bible study on the Bluffton campus. The group of Bible students has increased until it now consists of twelve students. This group has organized, and as a first channel of expression it has scheduled a regular date at the Lima City Mission. Lima, an industrial city, gives many opportunities. The group having started activity is bound to become ever more active.

This and That

The KANSAS INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS will meet June 11-21. The theme for this year is: "America's Opportunity to Build a Durable Peace." Some of the speakers are: Clarence Streit, author of Union Now; Ben Gerig of the League of Nations secretariat; Arthur Holt, professor of social ethics at the Chicago Theological Seminary; G. H. C. Macgregor, noted Scottish clergyman; S. G. Inman, Ambassador of Good Will to South America; P. W. Martin, chief of International Labor Bureau in Geneva, Switzerland; Heinrich Bruening, chancellor of Germany from 1930-33, and Hachir Yuasa, past president of a Christian College in Japan.

Allentown, Penn.—As an effective climax to Christian Endeavor week, our three C. E. societies took full charge of the Sunday evening church service of Feb. 4th. It was an outstanding service in many ways.

Among the highlights of the program, in charge of the Senior president, Mr. Leroy Weidener, was special music by a girls' trio from a neighboring church; a very apprapriate playlet, "For the Better Things of Life," presented by our recently organized Intermediate Society; and an excellent and inspiring message by Mr. Walter Temple.

The entire program was very uplifting, giving us new goals for which to strive.

Shafter, Calif.—The Christian work in the Labor Camps, under the direction of Rev. Pietsch, is growing. It will soon require an additional worker in each camp. There is a need for Gospels, Testaments, and old S. S. papers. The California S. S. and C. E. Conf. has been helping along by contributing $5.00 per month through the churches for the support of the work. The need is great and this field presents an opportunity for increasing our usefulness.—Workers Exchange.

Helen Lichti, Sanger, Calif., attends the Presbyterian Church, because there is no Mennonite Church near. She keeps in touch with Mennonites, however, by reading, "Our Youth Says," the Pacific Workers' Exchange, the Western District Tidings, the Vine Press, and the Eastern District paper.

Current Financial Needs of the Young People's Union are:

Field secretary	$95.00
Salary of editor of "Our Youth Says"	9.00
Letter heads and mailings	15.00
Swift Current Project	1000.00
Support of Ernest Harder	500.00
Return of Missionaries	1000.00

Senior Department

CHRIST'S WORK IN MISSION FIELDS

Senior C. E. Topic for April 21, 1940

Main Topic: Sowing the Seed. Matt. 13:18-32, 37-43.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Christ for the World We Sing," "From Greenlands Icy Mountains," "O Zion, Haste," "Rescue the Perishing."
2. Reading of main topic and prayer.
3. Mission News from the field. Let 6 to 8 members give a news item each.
4. Offering for mission work.

II. Leader's Introduction

Some one asked Toyohiko Kagawa as he was about to embark for his native country, Japan, after a visit in the United States, "What do you think of America?" He replied, "I've found two distinct Americas: A heaven America and a hell America." A heaven is created anywhere in the hearts and lives of men, in any country through the power of the gospel of Christ—if men accept the Christ. Bringing the gospel to others, "sowing the seed" is the work of missions.

A western college professor, and a Christian, engaged his Hindu friend, also a professor, in a discussion of the relative merits of their respective religions. Each set down the merits of his own faith. The Christian professor was overawed at the claims made for the Hindu religion, and felt that he was failing to show the superiority of his own religion. But he chanced to ask, "What does your religion do for the individual who has failed, who is down and out?" The Hindu meditated a moment, then answered, "Nothing!" This gave the Christian professor an opportunity to show the power of his religion. And thus the Hindu was won over to Christianity.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. John, the Baptist, a sower. Mark 1:1-8.
2. Philip sows in Samaria. Acts 8:4-8.
3. Harvesters needed. Matt. 9:35-38.
4. Seventy sent to sow seed. Luke 10:1-9.
5. The ready harvest. John 4:34-38.
6. Grace to the sower. 2 Cor. 9:6-15.

IV. For Discussion

1. Why do sincere Christians want to share their religion with all people everywhere?
2. What moves men and women to accept the Christian faith?
3. Is agricultural mission work as important as medical mission work?

V. Facts for Study

A great fund was freely given by the people of a large Midwestern city to engage fearless men to prosecute crime. The man principally charged with this duty stated in one of the newspapers that he was "greatly cheered by the heartiness of the response in money, but more cheered by the thousands of letters accompanying the gifts telling him that so large a part of the city stood behind him in his efforts." This should be a valuable suggestion for C. E. workers in regard to their gifts to missions, and missionaries. A kindly thought, better yet a friendly word or letter may double and triple the value of your gift.

VI. Illustrations.

Can You Do It?— "That is beautiful!" exclaimed a heathen as the missionary had finished telling what the Christian life means: and then he added a searching question—"Can you do it?" Religion must stand the test of life. It must be "done."

Dr. T. Z. Koo, a Chinese gentleman, analyzing the Japo-Chinese situation for a labor group said, "I hope that you in America will not allow yourselves to hate the Japanese people. They are not responsible for the present situation." He further displayed his Christian spirit and his willingness to forgive when he used, throughout his speech, the expression, "Our friends, the Japanese."

Superstition in the Congo.—One night, as I lay awake, I heard a drum ringing out from the direction of the settlement of the Nbombes. After a while the beating ceased. A short interval and then some one beat out a return signal. I surmised that some news was being conveyed, since this is their method of "wiring." The next morning I asked the reason, and learned this: About a fortnight previously a death had taken place in a Nbombe village, a death attributed to witchcraft. Suspicion fastened upon a woman. The poor creature, knowing the cruel fate awaiting her, fled to the forest and remained in hiding ten days. Before I heard the signaling she had been captured. That was the news given, with this in addition that she was forthwith put to death. This is one example of untold numbers whose lives are sacrificed at the altar of these fearful superstitions—superstitions believed in as firmly by those people as the Gospel is by us. God alone knows the number of those who fall victims to these cruelties, and the number will go on increasing until we replace superstition by the faith of Jesus Christ, and teach men a respect for human life based on the estimate of God.—W. R. Welch in A Missionary on the Upper Congo.

VII Food for Thought

The gospel reports that "Jesus went about doing good." Let us beware lest we be only "going about."

Mission work needs the love which today "goes about doing good."

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

"I'VE DECIDED NOT TO SMOKE"

Intermediate C. E. Topic for April 21, 1940

For Daily Reading:

Apr. 15. Servants of the one obeyed. Rom. 6:16-18.
Apr. 16. Members to be yielded to God. Rom. 6:19-23.
Apr. 17. The true standard. Prov. 16:1-3.

Apr. 18. "Ye shall be holy; for I am holy." I Pet. 1:13-20.
Apr. 19. "The good which I would I do not." Rom. 7:14-25.
Apr. 20. Cleansing from all defilement. 2 Cor. 6:16-7:1.
Apr. 21. Topic. 1 Cor. 3:16-20.
Opening Song: "Jesus Calls Us"
Scripture Reading: 1 Cor. 3:16-20.
Prayer by Superintendent
Prayer Song: "My Soul, Be On Thy Guard"
Poem

God Wants a Man

God wants a man—honest and true and brave;
A man who hates the wrong and loves the right;
A man who scorns all compromise with sin,
Who for the truth courageously will fight.

God wants a man—in lowly walk or high,
Who to the world by daily life will prove
That Christ abides within the yielded heart,
Fitting that heart for service and for love.

God wants a man who dares to tell the truth,
Who in the market-place will stand four-square;
Whose word men trust—a man who never stoops
To hurt his fellow or to act unfair.

God wants a man of action and of faith,
Whose life is something more than cant and talk;
Who lives each day as though it were his last,
And proves his faith by a consistent walk.

—Anonymous, F. H. Revell Co.

Song: "A Charge To Keep I Have"
Discussion:

1. Is it always easy to do right?
2. What is the only harm that comes to us when we dare to do right? Is it not the jeers of others? Are we able to "Take it"?
3. Whose opinion should we care about most? Our companions or God's. Is not the fact that God loves us for doing right enough inducement to do right in spite of the fact that some may make fun of us?

One of the hardest things that young people have to resist today is the cigarette habit. Somehow they get the idea that they will not have friends unless they indulge.

1. Is it true that we must smoke to have friends?
2. Is it not better to have Jesus for a friend than to make friends with the whole world and lose the love of Jesus?

Daniel stood out against the king and all of his noblemen, but Daniel won out in the end;—with God's help.

1. Will you dare to be different than all your friends? If your feet are planted firmly in the footsteps of Jesus you will be able to do it. If Daniel was not afraid of the fiery furnace why should you be afraid of the opinion of people?

Abraham Lincoln said: "Stand with anybody that stands right; stand with him while he is right, and part with him when he goes wrong."

Conclusion. Reading of the Daily Readings. We think it would be a very profitable conclusion to your meeting to have these read very carefully. Is not God the one to whom we want to go for instruction?

Song: "Take the Name of Jesus With You."
Sentence Prayers
Mizpah Benediction

Suggestion (If possible have your local Doctor speak to you about the bad effects of tobacco.)

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

"I AM THE VINE"— John 15:5

Program for April 21, 1940

To the leader.—If possible bring a part of a grapevine, showing the Juniors from it, how the branches grow from the vine, and the clusters of grapes hang on the branches. Also have some colored pictures of a grapevine bearing its ripe fruit. If possible have some one tell in a few minutes about grape culture.

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude: Quiet Music
2. Call to worship: "I was glad when they said unto me, "Let us go into the House of the Lord."
3. Song season: Suggested songs: "I've Found a Friend," "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart," "I Love to Tell the Story."
4. Scripture—John 15:1-10, read by a Junior boy.
5. Leader's opening prayer.
6. Reading of the song. "Rock of Ages." While this song is read aloud by a good reader the pianist should play the melody very softly, all the Juniors following the reading in their books.
7. Solo from the rear of the church. "Jesus Is All the World to Me."

II. Study Period.

Aim. To create in our Juniors a desire to abide in the Vine, by helping them to realize that although we have accepted Jesus as our personal Savior we can do nothing without Him.

1. Introduction. Today we are studying the last of the seven great "I Am's" of Jesus found in the gospel of John. (In a short discussion recall the other six). In all of these "I Am's" Jesus tells us what He is to us and for us.

In John 13:33a Jesus had told His disciples "goodbye." They felt that Jesus and they would be separated. But that is not true and Jesus by telling them this parable helps them to understand that although they would be separated bodily, for soon after His resurrection Jesus ascended into Heaven, there was and is a spiritual connection between Jesus and those who know Him, love Him, belong to Him. This connection is like that of a vine and its branches. In this parable Jesus is the vine, His disciples are the branches and the Father is the husbandman.

2. All open their Bibles to John 15 and again read the scripture verse by verse. (Verses 1-11).

3. Discussion by two Juniors.

Without the vine the branches can do nothing.

a. They cannot cleanse themselves. v. 3. Jesus alone can forgive our sins and give us pure hearts. Ps. 51:10.

b. They cannot bear fruit. v. 4, 5, 11. He says, "Ye are the branches," to His disciples, so we must belong to Jesus before we are branches. And then we must bear fruit, for that is the reason for branches. Jesus went about doing good and being in Him we too shall do good. Paul says, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

4. The fruit of the Spirit. Write Galatians 5:22, 23, on the blackboard, and if possible illustrate by drawing a vine with branches bearing as fruit the nine graces. Fill in the names as they are discussed.

Nine Juniors come forward, each carrying a card upon which one of the nine graces is written in large letters. Each in turn steps forward, holds up his card and in a few sentences discusses the "fruit" on his card.

5. In unison sing: "I Need Jesus."

6. Talk by an older Junior.

Jesus says, "Abide in Me," v. 4, 5, 7. Apart from the vine, the branches can not grow, no not even live: He is the source of nourishment and strength and of all spiritual life. He says if we abide in Him our prayers will be answered, the Father will be glorified, and we shall have a fullness of joy.

7. In unison sing: "I Need Thee Every Hour."

III. Mission Minutes

This week let us remember in a special way our missionaries in India. Each Junior bring a slip of paper upon which he has written the name of one of our workers in India. (These slips should have been collected early). They are now passed out, not to the ones who brought them. If possible the Junior tells something about the person whose name he has, if not, just a prayer will do. Let each one pray for the person whose name he has.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Repeat in unison verse of the month, Phil 2:9-11.
2. Sing—Song of the Month.—"Blessed Assurance Jesus is Mine."
3. A Junior girl prays the prayer of the month. Psalm 139:23, 24.
4. Leader closes meeting with prayer.
5. All sing first verse of "I Need Thee Every Hour," softly and prayerfully.

About the Selection of Books

Dear Editor: Just received the Mennonite and read there about the Western District Loan Library. A fine undertaking. We are not all in a position to buy many good books on the market today and, besides, what do we call good books? In buying a book, shall I first find out about the character of the author, then try and dig into his record as to his accomplishments, or shall I select a book by its title. Here is my experience of late. I bought a book, Title "These Forty Years," Read it and was well satisfied with it. I had heard the author of the book speak in 1920 at Winona Lake. I showed the book to a friend of mine and offered to let him read it. When he saw who the author was, he said, "I used to like the man but now I don't." Well, what's wrong about him?" "He divorced his wife and married his secretary." "Well what about it?" In the foreword of the book, Morgan and Ironside praise this man for his great work as rescue missionary. Should I put this book in our Church library? What do our readers think of asking such ministers to speak at our conferences or schools? The author of the above named book is a regular speaker at the Moody Bible Institute. Here is what we find at the close of the book "He has stood as an honored leader in his home city of Grand Rapids for thirty-two years without a stain upon his character."

Sincerely yours, A. W. Friesen.

LIST OF NEW BOOKS
in Western Dist. Conference Loan Library

The Education Committee of the Western District Conference herewith presents to our constituency a list of new books which have been added to our Loan Library. It has taken a great deal of time and care to make this selection and, considering the fact that the persons who compose the Committee are very busy with their regular professional duties, it will be understood why the list was rather long in coming.

We hope that the books will all be found wholesome, instructive and uplifting, as they should be, and that they will prove to be a blessing to their readers.

We are sorry to report that there is not enough money in the treasury of the Committee to pay for all of these books, and we therefore seriously petition the churches of this District to help replenish it as early as possible. There is a considerable list of other books that the Committee would like to order, but we shall not order any more until the money is on hand.

NOTE CAREFULLY: Since the Committee published a Book List of the Loan Library in 1938, at considerable expense, it does not feel justified to publish a revised list now. But if all those who have that List will kindly clip this new list given below and paste it in the old List, this will answer the purpose almost as well. Those who do not have copies of the 1938 List may get one by addressing a card to Dr. A. J. Regier North Newton, Kansas, Secretary of the committee.

Prof. E. E. Kaufman, Buhler, Kansas.

The W. D. C. Education Committee

LIBRARY BOOK LIST

BIOGRAPHY

71. Adams, Elmer C., & Foster, Warren D., Heroines of Modern Progress
72. Axling, William, Kagawa
73. Bacheller, Irving, A Man for the Ages
74. Bolton, Sarah, K., Lives of Girls who Became Famous
75. Brown, Margaret H., "Heaven Knows"
76. Carnegie, Andrew. Autobiography of
77. Charnley, Mitchell V., The Boys' Life of the Wright Brothers
78. Curie, Eve, Madame Curie
79. Day, Clarence, Life With Father
80. Day, Clarence, Life With Mother
81. Epler, Percy H., The Life of Clara Barton
82. Grenfell, Wilfred T., Adrift on an Ice-Pan
83. Hagedorn, Hermann, Boys' Life of Theodore Roosevelt
84. Holmes, M. D., Joan of Arc
85. Irving, George, Master of Money, A. A. Hyde of Wichita
87. Keller, Helen, The Story of My Life
88. Lindbergh, Charles A., "We"
89. Meadowcroft, William H., The Boys' Life of Edison
90. Pickering, Hy., Twice-Born Men
91. Roome, Wm. J. W., Aggrey, The African Teacher
92. Taylor, Mrs. Howard, Borden of Yale '09
93. Washington, Booker T., Up From Slavery
94. West, James E., The Lone Scout of the Sky
95. Wilson, J. Turner, Every Inch a Man

EDUCATION

50. Addams, Jane, The Spirit of Youth and the City Streets
51. Angell, Norman, The Great Illusion 1933.

52. Bailey, Carolyn S., The Story-Telling Hour
53. Bernays, Edward L., Careers for Men
54. Bixler, William Allen, Chalk Talk Made Easy
55. Bowman, Warren D., Home Builders of Tomorrow
56. Boyscout Handbook
57. Chapman, Frank M., What Bird is That?
58. Chase, Stuart, Men and Machines
59. Chase, Stuart, The Tragedy of Waste
60. Coss, Millicent M., Girls and Their Problems
61. Dawber, Mark A., Rebuilding Rural America
62. de Kruif, Paul, Microbe Hunters
63. Dupuy, William Atherton, Our Bird Friends and Foes
64. Fagerburg, Frank B., This Questioning Age
65. Ferris, Helen and Moore, Virginia, Girls Who Did
66. Girl Scout Handbook
67. Githens, Harry W., One Rehearsal Pageants for the Church
68. Hayward, Percy R. and Myrtle H., The Home and Christian Living
69. Hollingworth, Leta S., The Psychology of the Adolescent
70. Jones, Mary Alice, The Church and the Children
71. Lester, Muriel, It Occurred to Me
72. Lester, Muriel, Kill or Cure?
73. McPherson, Imogene M., Educating Children for Peace
74. Nall, T. Otto, Youth's Work in the New World
75. Naylor, Charles W., The Secret of the Singing Heart
76. Page, Kirby, Living Courageously
77. Page, Kirby, Living Creatively
78. Rowe, A. T. Ideals for Earnest Youth
79. Sherrill, Lewis J., and Purcell, John E., Adult Education in the Church
80. Slattery, Margaret, One in Seven
81. Van de Wall, Willem, The Music of the People
82. Weatherhead, Leslie D., Psychology and Life

FICTION

312. Abbath, The Modern Prodigal
313. Alter, D., Emmet, Man of the Border
314. Anderson, A. M., Nkosi
315. Applegarth, Margaret T., Friday's Footprints
316. Bacheller, Irving, In the Days of Poor Richard
317. Bird, Zenobia, The Return of the Tide
318. Brown, Charles Ewing, Dawn on the Mountains
319. Byrum, Isabel C., The Pilot's Voice
320. Churchill, Winston, The Crisis
321. Churchill, Winston, The Crossing
322. Churchill, Winston, The Inside of the Cup
323. Daring, Hope, Harvest of the Years
324. Douglas, Lloyd C., Forgive Us Our Trespasses
325. Gill, D. M. and Pullen, A. M., Adventures of Service
326. Halliburton, Richard, The Flying Carpet
327. Ingraham, J. H., The Prince of the House of David
328. Kent, Agnes Scott, Rachel
329. Kilpper, C. G., My Robber-Captain
330. Kuipers, C., Chant of the Night
331. Ludwig, Minnie E., At the Crossroads
332. Ludwig, Minnie E., The Call of the Pines
333. Maltzahn, Elizabeth von, Erich Ohlson
334. McGraw, Louise Harrison, Glorious Triumph
335. Mitchell, Margaret, Gone With the Wind
336. Moore, Bertha B., Joyous Judy
337. Moore, Bertha B., The Rock of Decision
338. Moore, Bertha W., The Girl of the Listening Heart
339. Pearson, B. H., The Lost Generation Returns
340. Peple, Edward, The Littlest Rebel
341. Porter, Gene Stratton, Freckles
342. Porter, Gene Stratton, The Song of the Cardinal
343. Twain, Mark, Following the Equator
344. Wiggin, Kate Douglas, Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm
345. Young, Gloria, Storm in Her Heart
346. Zeigler, Earl F., Toward Understanding Adults

FICTION FOR CHILDREN

137. Child's Story of the Bible, A
138. Dodge, Mary Mapes, Hans Brinker or The Silver Skates
139. Hale, Mabel, Stories of Home Folks
140. James, Hartwell, Uncle Jim's Stories from the Old Testament
141. James, Hartwell, Uncle Jim's Stories from the New Testament
142. Kipling, Rudyard, Collected Dog Stories
143. Ludwig, Minnie E., Living for Jesus
144. McCreary, Tressie Fern, Bob's Red Letter Days
145. Pritchard, Virginia Cole, A Christmas Story
146. Smith, J. Russell, Home Folks
147. Smith, J. Russell, World Folks
148. Wyss, David, The Swiss Family Robinson

RELIGION

89. Allen, Cady H., The Message of the Book of Revelation
90. Archer, John Clark, Faiths Men Live By
91. Ball, Elsie, The Greatest Name
92. Bounds, E. M., Power Through Prayer
93. Boyd, Charles Arthur, Stories of Hymns for Creative Living
94. Brown, William Adams, Church and State in Contemporary America
95. Browne, Lewis, Stranger Than Fiction
96. Carman, John Spencer, Rats, Plague, and Religion
97. Cavert, Samuel McCrea, The Church Faces the World
98. Charles, John D., Present Day Religions
99. Child's Life of Christ, A
300. Cox, Norman W., Youth's Return to Faith
301. Cressy, Earl, China Marches toward the Cross
302. Dana, Malcolm, Christ of the Countryside
303. Egermeier, Elsie E., Friends of Jesus
304. Elliott, Margaret, Upward Borne
305. Faris, Lillie A., Standard Bible Story Readers, Books I-VI.
306. Fletcher, Lionel B., After Conversation—What?
307. Fletcher, Lionel B., Life Quest and Conquest
308. Fletcher, Lionel B., The Pathway to the Stars
309. Fosdick, Harry Emerson, A Pilgrimage to Palestine
310. Gill, Emma Williams, Home Life in the Bible
311 Glegg, A. Lindsay, Life With a Capital "L"
312. Haddad, Anis Charles, Palestine Speaks
313. Herriott, Frank W., Christian Youth in Action
314. Honors, Mildred Olive, Bible Quizzes
315. Honors, Mildred Olive, Bible Quotations
316. Huffman, J. A., Building the Home Christian
317. Huizenga, Lee S., John and Betty Stam: Martyrs
318. Huizenga, Lee S., Unclean! Unclean!
319. Hunting, Harold B., Hebrew Life and Times
320. Johnstone, William J., How Lincoln Prayed
321. Johnstone, William J., How Washington Prayed
322. Jones, Rufus M., The Double Search
323. Kagawa, Toyohiko, Meditations on the Cross
324. Keith, Marian, Glad Days in Galilee
325. Lea, John W., The Unified Gospels
326. Leiper, Henry Smith, World Chaos or World Christianity
327. Looney, Myrtle Owens, Guilding Junior Boys and Girls in the S. S.
328. MacBeath, John, The Face of Christ
329. Maier, Walter A., Christ for Every Crisis
330. Maier, Walter A., Christ for the Nation
331. Mathews, Basil, The Jew and the World Ferment
332. Metcalfe, M. D., Reality, Profession or Possession—Which?
333. Morrison, John A., The Preacher of Today
334. Morton, Richard K., A Book of Prayers for Young People
335. Murray, Andrew, Like Christ
336. Murray, Andrew, The Power of the Blood of Jesus
337. Paine, Silas H., Stories of the Great Hymns of the Church
338. Pearce, Joseph, Life-Changing Evangelism
339. Perkins, Jeanette E., As Children Worship
340. Price, Lawrence S., Outstanding Women of the Bible
341. Riddle, T. Wilkinson, Christian Science in the Light of Holy Scripture
342. Rimmer, Harry, The Evidences for Immortality
343. Rimmer, Harry, The Harmony of Science and Scripture
344. Schick, Herman J., Jesus of the Twentieth Century
345. Shannon, Mattie B., Religious Dramas for Worship and Service
346. Shields, Elizabeth McEwen, Guiding the Little Child in the S. S.
347. Shoemaker, J. S., The Ideal Christian Home
348. Watson, Sidney, Scarlet and Purple
349. Weatherhead, Leslie D., Jesus and Ourselves

350. Weatherhead, Leslie D., It Happened in Palestine
351. Weatherhead, Leslie D., The Transforming Friendship
352. Weatherhead, Leslie D., Why Do Men Suffer?
353. Weaver, Rufus Washington, The Christian Faith at the Nation's Capitol
354. Weir, Forrest Cleburne, The Quest Begins
355. Wilson, Dorothy Clarke, The Lost Church
356. Wood, Frederick, P., Studies in Soul-Winning
357. Yeaple, Whitney S. K., Your Money and Your Life

CORRESPONDENCE

WINTON, CALIFORNIA

There are times in the service of the Lord when our hearts rejoice and then again there are times when we feel depressed. When we have cause to rejoice then we feel like "Calling Back" to those who, at the time we rejoice, are not in such a joyful mood, words of encouragement. For the encouragement of all in the Service of the Lord we send the following poem:

"Calling Back."

If you have gone a little way ahead of me 'Call Back'
'Twill cheer my heart and help my feet along the stony track;
And if, perchance, Faith's light is dim because the oil is low,
Your call will guide my lagging course as wearily I go.

Call back, and tell me that He went with you into the storm,
Call back, and say: "He kept me when the forest's roots were torn."
That when the Heavens thundered; and the earthquake shook the hill,
He bore you up and held you where the very air, was still.
Oh, friend 'Call Back' and tell me for I cannot see your face;
They say It glows with triumph, and your feet bound in the race.

So, if you'll say He heard you when your prayer was but a cry,
And if you'll say He saw you through night's sin-darkened sky.
If you have gone a little way ahead, Oh, friend 'Call Back'
'Twill cheer my heart, and help my feet along the stony track.

We can truly say that "Our feet do bound in the race, and that He does hear our every prayer:" The group with whom we worship in the morning, do not have any services in the evening, so this time was set aside to visit and worship with other churches in the community; however since New Year Rev. Hess has been requested to deliver the evening message in the Koehn Church who have stood for a number of years unorganized.—Rev. Hess has been ill with influenza, combined with an attack of bad appendicitis and so we have been deprived of the preaching for several weeks. —Friday, March 9th, we observed the World Day of Prayer in the Presbyterian Church (where we worship) with all the Churches co-operating with the exception of the Church of God (Holdeman).—Easter morning we gathered at a beautiful nook in the community for Winton's first Sunrise Easter Service about 90 people responded to the call of Rev. Hess who planned and led the program. In connection with the morning service we observed Holy Communion in which 47 souls partook. The morning service was attended by 32 Adult Mennonites and 17 Mennonite children, 25 adults from other Denominations with 5 children making a total of 79 in attendance. Rev. Hess spoke on the Theme: Christ Calming Troubled Hearts. using as a Scriptural Basis the story of the two, on the Road to Emmaus. —Mrs. A. E. Heppner

« « JOTTINGS » »

— Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minn., 3-25-40. After several months of intense sufferring Mrs. H. R. Quiring was called to her eternal home on March. 9. Funeral services were held on March 12, with the Rev. John Bartel in charge. The Rev. E. J. Neuenschwander conducted a short series of inspirational meetings from March 17 to 22. On Easter morning the customary sunrise service was observed with Ferdinand P. Schultz, son of Mr. D. D. Schultz, from the University of Minnesota as special speaker. Ernest Harder, from South America, who is now a student at Freeman College, also spoke at this occasion.—Mrs. D. H. Fast.

Rally to be held at Ebenezer Church, Bluffton, Ohio. The Young people of the Ebenezer Church, Bluffton, Ohio, are sponsoring a rally April 4-7, with Dr. Ray L. Brown at Attadena, California, as guest speaker. Dr. Brown is one of America's most able Bible teachers and Young People speakers.—The Committee, Mrs. John Nussbaum, Chairman.

Mennonite Church, Hanston, Kansas, 3-25-40. We are expecting Bro. J. H. Epp with us next Sunday morning in the general pulpit exchange throughout the Conference. We far western pastors were not asked to go anywhere because of the distances, so we can remain at home and enjoy having company. We so seldom can enjoy hearing another man in our pulpits, part of the price we have to pay for being so isolated. —A. S. Bechtel.

— "The Church Visitor." Menn. Church, Inman, Ks. When a sinner starts out on a journey he never buys a return ticket. We who want peace must write it in the hearts of children. The fellowship of the Church is the best fellowship in the world. A great use of a great day makes a great soul. The merry-go-around of life stops just where it started.

PLAN FOR FELLOW-UP WORK

To help solve the problem of tracing Mennonites, who are moving from one place to another, the "Workers Exchange" of the Pacific Conference again calls attention to the plan advocated by the General Conference Young People's Committee, Which briefly is as follows: On an "Introduction Form" a formal notice is sent from one pastor to another that a member of his church is moving to that city or community. When the other pastor receives the notice and contacts the party, he notifies the first pastor accordingly. This makes it possible for churches to welcome new members moving into their community and helps the newcomers immediately find their place in church life.—Louise Richert.

—MENN. CHURCH, PASO ROBLES, CALIF.

—MARRIED: Melba, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Schroeder, and Mr. Lawrence Dee Powell of Los Angeles were married March 20 at this church. Refreshments were served at the Women's Club House. A fine program was enjoyed by all. Our young people plan to go to a mission in the Kentucky mountains in the near future.—Fred Smiley.

—Menno Mennonite Church, Lind, Washington.

We thank Mrs. Edmund Miller, the pastor's wife, for copies of their church bulletin, fruit of her artistic talent. The Menno Choir presented the Easter Cantata "Chirst Triumphant "at the local Methodist Church, also at the Mennonite Church, and in the Presbyterian Church at Nepal.

—Eden Church, near Moundridge, Kansas.

Before a record making audience the large Church Choir, under the able direction of Mr. Ben Zerger, rendered Handel's Messiah Easter Sunday evening.

—Freeman Junior College mourns the loss of a student, Erwin Hofer, by a sudden and untimely death. The young man's funeral at the Salem Mennonite Church, near Bridgewater, South Dakota, was attended by many from the college. A loud speaker had to be used to enable the large assembly to hear the services.

—Another change of Name to English.—The "Rundschau Publishing House" of Winnipeg announces that their name and address is now: "The Christian Press, Limited, 672 Arlington St., Winnipeg, Manitoba.

—The First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas.

On "Good Friday" evening the Senior Choir sang Stainer's "Crucifixion" under the direction of Prof. W. H. Hohmann, while on Easter Sunday evening the Young People's Choir rendered a program of favorite Easter selections, directed by Mr. Orlando Andres.

—The Oldest Cow in this Country.—A cow owned by Effie and John Hedrick of near Berne, Indiana, born in 1898, is now 42 years old. And, since it is doubtlessly the oldest cow in the land, it has been suggested that the name Methuselah be given her.

--Jews Welcome a Sainted Rabbi in New York.

Recently a crowd of 500 rabbis and 500 Jewish layman assembled at a New York dock to greet an incoming Swedish-American liner, to welcome the arrival of Rabbi Joseph Isaac Schneersohn, one of the world's most revered religious leaders. As the bearded, fur-hatted man walked down the gangplank, the welcomers broke through police lines, chorused a chant and began dancing along behind the patriarch, whom his people regard as an actual saint. He expects to make New York his permanent headquarters.—Newsweek.

—The Zion Church, Souderton, Pennsylvania. On "Good Friday" evening this church received into its membership 18 young people through baptism and two by letter. On Easter Sunday evening the Senior Choir rendered the Cantata "Resurrection" by C. F. Manney, under the direction of Mrs. Henry Alderfer. On April 9, at 8 p. m. a group of Bluffton College students touring the east will present the Mennonite play, "Let My People Go," written by Mr. H. J. Williams, a graduate of Bethel College.

—Bethel College Church. On Easter Sunday eight young people were baptized and received into the church, also nine by letter, which brings the total membership of the church up to 367.

—Dr. Amos Rensser, Physician of Berne, Indiana, Celebrates His Forty-fourth Anniversary of Service. Forty-four years ago Dr. Rensser, carrying a swell black satchel, began his notable career as a country doctor. His first patient was Mr. Fred Rohrer for many years manager of the Berne Witness Co. The beloved Rev. S. F. Sprunger was a teacher of his. He started life on the farm, then served as a millhand and for some years as a rural teacher. While a student in the medical school he spent his summers in Berne teaching German school to obtain funds for further study. "No one knew," he says, "that I went to medical college until I wrote my parents from Chicago, telling them that I had enrolled and was going to be a doctor." Dr. Rensser has not only been a good, popular doctor, but he also served his community and wider circles in civic and professional capacities well. Of a jolly, happy disposition his health at 71 is still good, and he expects to continue his practice.

—Second Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebraska. The Annual Bethel College Fellowship meeting arranged for a pulpit exchange this spring. The pastors are requested to bring a message on "Christian Higher Education and Bethel College." The pastor of this church will serve in the Henderson Church on March 31st, and Rev. A. W. Friesen of Henderson will bring the message in this church on that Sunday.—Church Bulletin.

—Hutchinson, Kansas, Leadership Training School. Rev. C. H. Dirks, pastor of the Mennonite Church teaches a course in "Guiding Youths Approach .to God."

Wholesome, Helpful Books by Zondervan Publishers for the Family and Church Library

G. T. Studd, Athlete and Pioneer

by Norman P. Grubb

Charles T. Studd was a man who gave up his entire world to serve his Lord and the less privileged of mankind. Gentleman, scholar, famous athlete, best of all a good soldier of Jesus Christ, he stands out as a Rock of Gibraltar against the skyline of time. In his life of service on the foreign mission field, he was the personification of the heroic spirit, and apostolic abandon. Courage, determination to never sound a retreat, his conviction that he was in God's will, were his outstanding qualities.

"A biography which no Christian can afford to miss reading and few will consent to lay down unfinished after once beginning. Probably nobody in modern times has more nearly resembled Paul. In China, India, and especially in Africa he wrought so well that great numbers of missionaries and throngs of native converts are today extending the work he originated and giving their all to save others."—Moody Monthly.

266 Pages Price $1.00

How I Know That God Answers Prayer?

by Rosalind Goforth

Missionary for nearly forty years in China

An inspiring, fascinating account of answered prayers that positively stimulate faith. Some who have read these testimonies have asked, "How could you write such personal and sacred incidents in your life?" So touching and personal are some of these remarkable answers to prayer.

The chapter headings are: Getting Things from God, Early Lessons in the Life of Faith, Go Forward on Your Knees, A God-given Field, Our Deliverance from the Boxers, Proving God's Faithfulness, The Story of One Furlough, Our God of the Impossible, To His Praise, Victory Found.

142 Pages Price, cloth $1.00; Paper, 65c

The Revived Roman Emqire

by W. D. Herrstrom

Author of several widely-read books

The Christian who is a careful student of prophecy will not be alarmed at the developments of the present hour, but will see in them the beginning of the fulfillment of some of the greatest prophecies of the Bible. The author builds up his treatise around the facts: First, the prophecies two thousand five hundred years old predict the revival of the Roman Empire after its first collapse. Second, that Mussolini has actually revived the Roman Empire, and evidently has ambitions to enlarge it to include the territory it once occupied.

Price, paper 25 cents

Events of the Last Days

by John E. Finney

Evangelist and Bible Teacher

It is notable that there is new and increased study of prophecy. It appears to be almost universally so. More has probably been written in the last twenty years on prophecy as related to the second coming of Christ than was written in two hundred preceding years. There are two causes of this: First, during these trying days of world-wide disturbance and unrest, days of catastrophic happenings throughout the universe, many have gone to the Word of God, seeking answers to their questions and comfort for their hearts. Second, it is likely that the Holy Spirit has revived interest in this very important teaching of the Scriptures, and to some these prophecies are unfolded.—In twenty-two mostly short and interesting chapters the author covers the subject from "The World's Last Four Great Empires" to "The New Heaven and New Earth."

161 Pages Price, $1.00

The Christian Reader's Digest

Editor-in-Chief, Dr. Herbert Lockyer, Preacher Teacher, Author, supported by six competent associate editors

A monthly publication of about fifty pages, the size of the popular widely-read "Reader's Digest."

The motto, "The Best in Current Christian Literature" seems to be quite fitting, for month after month a staff of associate editors closely scrutinize and cull the cream from some 50 or 60 religious magazines for inclusion within this Christian Reader's Digest.

In the current April number we find the following among the most interesting articles: The Resurrection; Does Christ Live Here; "A Cure for Heart Trouble"; Joseph's Rise to Power; "Two Died for Me"; The Bush that Burned; Should Christians Bear Arms; Prayer Changes Things; For He Was a Jew.

Single copies, 10 cents Yearly subscription, $1.00

World Jewry and Modern Anti-Semitism

by N. I. Saloff-Astakhoff

Author of Christianity and Communism, and other treatises

The headings of some of the thirteen interesting chapters are: Anti-Semitism in Ancient Times, Anti-Semitism and Its Cause in Our Days, The Truth about the Protocols, The Jews—Hitler—The Protocols, The Evil in the World Comes from the Jews, The Jews and Communism, Three Classes of Anti-Semitism, Anti-Semitism and Christianity, The True Cause of Anti-Semitism.

56 Pages Paper, 35 cents

Order any of the above books and anything in the book line from MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN Berne, Indiana

1091 ~~EAST BROADWAY~~
NEWTON, KANSAS
JA 41
Code 54

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, APRIL 9, 1940 NUMBER 15

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

Man's Extremity is God's Opportunity

"And Naaman was a great man, but he was a leper."

With these few words the Bible tells us much about this Syrian, namely that he was a man with almost unlimited power but held in bondage by an incurable disease. With men there was no help for him, and the God who could cure him he did not know. Thus God takes him into His school, thereby to reveal to his heathen people that the God of Israel is above all others. Sickness, disease is one of God's means of bringing men to their senses, so that he can deal with them. Warriers like Naaman are by nature proud, self assertive. Is his trouble apt to humiliate him? It does not so appear. But he is willing to pay almost anything for a cure, if it can be effected in a manner befitting his high station.

Meanwhile God has brought a Hebrew girl slave into Naaman's palace. She suggests that her master go to the Hebrew prophet in Samaria who, she is sure, could effect a cure. Equipped with a glowing letter of introduction to Joram, the king of Israel, with large gifts of silver and gold, and surrounded by a large retinue of dignitaries and servants, he proceeds to Samaria. But the king has no suggestion for help; instead he is seized with fits of fear that behind all this there is an intrigue against his land. So Naaman proceeds to the home of the prophet Elisha. He is now going through a school of humiliation according to a recipe planned by God. For, instead of being welcomed by the prophet as was befitting, and possibly having his trouble removed by the laying on of the prophet's hands, or being led personally by him to the healing waters, Elisha merely sends word to him, "Go, wash in Jordan seven times, and thy flesh shall come again, and thou shalt be clean." This was more than the general could stand. Angrily he gives orders for the return to his country. His still lingering pride is about to spoil the object of his mission, when servants humbly appeal to him thus, "Father, if the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, wouldst thou not have done it? how much more then, when he says, Wash and be clean?" This helped. Naaman went to the Jordan, took the prescribed bath, and his flesh became like that of a child. Thus the man was cured in body and soul, and was convinced that "there is no God in all the earth, but in Israel." Furthermore he begged Elisha to let him take along to Syria enough of the earth in the place, on which he might build an altar at home and worship the newfound God. The foregoing is a fine example of Gods' healing. He cures from the inside out. Down, down! is his recipe for beggar and general. But as in Naaman's case, it is hard for some people to accept this recipe.—T.

FACES MAY CHANGE

An American tourist in Europe had on his program a visit to the studio of the German painter and sculptor, Albrecht Duerer, who was famous for his paintings and models of Christ's face and person. The American arrived at the Duerer studio early in the morning, before the artist, and thus had opportunity to observe the productions of Christ. When Mr. Duerer appeared the tourist was greatly astonished in noting the wonderful similarity between the Christ faces and the artist's own facial expression. What might be the explanation for this? Mr. Duerer in his intensive study of the life and character of Christ through the years, thinking His thoughts, entering into His spirit, and imaging His deeds, had gradually come to appear like Him in face and demeanor, and it is asserted that Duerer's painting of himself is one of the best, if not the best, representations of Christ. In contrast with this instance of a face that experienced illumination, there is a story of a man who once posed for a portrait of the Christ and many years later was selected to pose as Judas, in the great painting, "The Last Supper." The years lived in sin had changed the man's face from a semblance of divine expression into one of criminal features. So, as Christians it may not be amiss for us, figuratively speaking, to look in the mirror occasionally to note if there are any indications of deterioration of the inner life, due to sinful thoughts and habits that have crept in, and that can be removed only by a thorough house-cleaning, with prayer and repentance and forgiveness by Him who can make all things new. "If we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

YU JEN SCHOOL OF NURSING, CHINA

Dear Members of the Mission Board:

On July 1st we had entrance examinations and 10 students were accepted as probationers. This was just during the rainy season and because of the floods everywhere the students came straggling in as soon as they could find boats.

Class work for the year 1939-40 was opened on September 1st. In all we have 25 students—16 boys and 9 girls. With the coming of the new class our teaching staff is not sufficient. A trip to Peking and constant correspondence has to date not brought a full-time teacher. This is in large part due to unsettled conditions.

Hospital work is increasing rapidly and the work of bedside nursing is heavy. One new large ward was lately occupied by patients; our older students are not enough to go around, so that probationers need to help with night duty.

During the year it was decided to turn the Ladies House back to the Mission, so that left the School of Nursing without dormitories for the women students. At present they are crowded into the former home of a doctor where they sleep four in one small room on "double deckers". It is hoped that this is only a temporary arrangement and that permanent quarters can soon be secured.

We feel we have a great opportunity in helping to train young people for such benevolent service, and desire your constant help in support and prayer.

Very sincerely, James C. Liu
Chairman, Board of Yu Jen School of Nursing.

Kai Chow Hospital Serves

Last week I was called 8 miles out into the country to see an Italian Catholic priest who was very sick. Three days before he had a little swelling of his thumb and now his whole hand was red, swollen, and they said he had high fever and trouble in his lungs.

I found the Father as they had said, in very bad condition, sitting up to get his breath—they had thought twice he was about to die. He had a streptococcic infection of his hand (blood poisoning), further complicated by pneumonia. I gave him an intra muscular injection of Prontosil—the modern life saving antistreptococcic discovery, and the same thing by mouth. The next morning they brought him to the hospital in a Chinese wedding chair—a very sick man.

Here he made very satisfactory progress; the third day his temperature dropped, the swelling in his hand went down, a very small amount of pus discharged and now he can move his fingers nicely.

So here am I, an American doctor, with a Chinese nurse, taking care of an Italian Catholic Father, who has a Hungarian Brother as an attendant! I have often wished I could talk to patients in English, but even here our communication has to be in Chinese as it is the one language we have in common; however, we are all pleased and have become good friends.—C. L. Pannabecker.

MINISTER'S CONFERENCE

Program for the Minister's Conference of the Western District in the Mennonite Church, Buhler, Kansas

Tuesday, April 23, 1940

Morning Session, 9:30-12:00

1. Opening Service, J. N. Smucker
2. Special Music, Buhler
3. Conference Sermon, P. R. Lange
   Congregational Hymn
4. Topic: "The Funeral Service," Herbert Miller
5. Special Music: Buhler
6. Topic: "What Approach Can We Make in Assisting our Aged Ministers and Widows of Ministers?" A. S. Bechtel.

Afternoon Session, 1:30—4:30

1. Devotional Service, Clyde H. Dirks
2. Special Music, Buhler
3. Topic: "What can Missionaries do to Help the Ministers in their Work?" D. C. Wedel
4. Topic: "What can Ministers do to Help the Missionaries in their Work?" Rev. P. W. Penner
5. Report of Resolution's Committee
6. Close

J. N. Smucker, Chmn. John F. Schmidt, Sec.

INVITATION

The Buhler Mennonite Church of Buhler, Kansas, cordially invites all ministers and deacons and their wives of the Western District Conference to the spring session of the Ministers' Conference, April 23rd.

H. B. Buller, J. B. Regier, Deacons
John F. Schmidt, Pastor.

THE KANSAS MENNONITE SONG FESTIVAL

The Mennonite Song Festival Committee has met and tentatively arranged the program and the date for June 2, 1940. The district organization idea has been abandoned this year, and in its place organized groups from each community have been selected to represent each district. Those who are on the program have been notified, so practices can begin immediately. The place for the festival will be announced later. Anyone wishing information concerning the song festival may write to one of the officers who are: Mr. Paul Baumgartner, North Newton, Pres.; Mr. Alvin Reimer, Inman, Vice President; Miss Esther Ratzlaff, Hillsboro, Secretary; Rev. David C. Wedel, Halstead, Treasurer.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

YOUTH SEEK GOD

In 1937 a study was made of the denominational affiliations and preferences of the students then registered in the colleges and universities of America. Of the 1458 educational institutions, 1171 or 80.13 percent returned usable data. In these schools were registered 828,071 students of whom 730,632 or 88.3 per cent expressed a definite religious preference. Of the others, only 5.5 per cent had no preference and the institutions had no information on 6.2 per cent. Even at state and municipal colleges and universities, 85 per cent have a church preference, while at church colleges 94 per cent expressed church affiliation. These figures are in contrast to those reported for 1824, when in 25 colleges with 3011 students only 628 or 20 per cent acknowledged belief in God. Today youth seek God.

A minister was asked to visit a state university to speak to a certain group of boys. They thought they wanted him to speak on sex, war, and economic security. During the course of the dinner, some asked to be excused at 8 o'clock on account of dates. The minister frankly confessed his ignorance on the subjects suggested by the boys and declared they could learn more in the classroom than from him. On the other hand, he definitely stated that he had come to discuss with them God. On that subject they remained until nearly 2 o'clock in the morning, and not one of the boys left. Today youth seek God.

The chaplain of a great university acknowledged in our presence a few years ago that several of his students had left his services and were attending a Roman Catholic church. He went on to confess that he had been trying to give youth social security when what they want was spiritual security. Today youth seek God.

It is reported that a boy lay in a hospital bed near death. He called for a certain minister. When the minister entered the room, he recognized the young man as one who had been attending his services, and asked, "What may I do for you?" In reply the boy said, "You may do nothing for me." "When I came to your city," he went on, "I was attracted by your preaching and admired you for the manner in which you could quote the philosophers and the great literary writers. I had been taught to read the Bible and to pray regularly. Now, as a result of the influence of your preaching, I no longer read the Bible and I have given up prayer, and—feel lost. Pastor, tell the people about the God who loves them, who died for them, and who grants them eternal life." Today youth seek God.

Youth are not satisfied with the philosophical arguments for the existence of God. With the arguments from analogy, causality, identity and purpose they are familiar. After all the conclusions to arguments are ideational unless there is an existential reference, the reality of which there can be no doubt. Youth seek the living personal God.

The Church offers to youth the God of revelation, not of reason.

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God—All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made. In him was life; and the life was the light of men. And the light shineth in darkness; and the darkness comprehended it not. . . .

That was the true Light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world. He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not.

He came unto his own, and his own received him not. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become sons of God, even to them that believe on his name; which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.

And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth. John 1:1-14.

Here youth find God.

The youth at the Amsterdam Conference wrote, "Many of us have discovered the Bible afresh and insofar as we have allowed God to speak to us, He has become a living God, declaring a living message for our lives and our generation."

Some youth have found God.

From "Christian Education."

THE ENLARGED HEART

by Edna R. Brown

Every now and then we come to know people whom we can describe in no better way than to say that they are big-hearted. Certainly there are no finer people to know than those who are big-hearted Christians, for after all, a justified soul is the first requisite for real big-heartedness. It is the foundation upon which growth must proceed.

The "big heart" can be recognized by its humility. Self cannot be haughty or proud, while nurturing a growing heart. The big-hearted soul likewise is marked by increasing unselfishness. "Jesus first; others next; yourself last" is the creed-in-practice that results in the heart becoming larger and larger. It is a natural consequence, because interest in others always tends to enlarge the boundaries of one's heart-interests. Just as selfishness is sure to shrivel the heart, so unselfishness is sure to enlarge the heart.

Many are the identifying qualities of the big-hearted soul, but all of them may be summed up in the word "godliness." The larger the heart, the greater will be the desire truly to become more and more pleasing to God. The Psalmist said: "I will run the way of thy commandments, when thou shalt enlarge my heart" (Ps. 119:32). By depending upon God to enlarge the heart, one finds that the heart thereby is keenly desirous of obeying God and living closer to *H*im.

The "fruit of the Spirit"—"love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance"—all become more manifest and have a noticeably greater place in the life. The capacity to sympathize with others in an ever-widening field of circumstances; the capacity to forgive others more readily and thoroughly; the capacity to pray earnestly for more and more people outside of one's own narrow sphere of interest—these and many other capacities are the direct result of praying and seeking for a larger heart, a heart that may bring more glory to its God.

A spiritual heart is much like any part of the body in that it needs exercise to keep it in a fit condition. An unused limb in time becomes a useless limb. A heart that receives no exercise soon becomes shrivelled and incapable of the heart-duties it should perform.

Surely there is an extensive field to be embraced by those who sincerely pray for enlarged hearts. The world presents a tremendous weight and variety of needs, which no fervent Christian can ignore. Certainly there is a far-reaching need today for more people who can look over the high fences which enclose their little lives—out at the needful world beyond. Perhaps the way that Edna St. Vincent Millay phrased the thought expresses it best: "The world stands out on either side, No wider than the heart is wide."

The enlarged heart for which every Christian should pray finds a growing heart-interest in a daily-widening world.

—A Word from the European War Scene.—The Canadian reporter Woodside in Europe, who writes extensively for Canadian papers, recently wrote: "There can be no doubt but that the Munich settlement of the Finnish War is a severe blow to our cause and will be exploited as a great victory by Hitler. A valiant and resourceful nation which would gladly have allied itself with us and occupied one of our enemies has been eliminated. The whole balance of power in northern Europe has been tilted sharply towards Germany and Hitler, assured of supplies which we might have cut off, but which will now help him to beat the blockade. Russia is freed to work for Germany if she chooses, or to make mischief elsewhere. One of our new openings for getting at Germany has been closed. —Exchange.

A Tribute to Dr. S. K. Mosiman

By H. O. Bentley, Attorney, Lima, Ohio

(Radio address over Station WLOK, Lima, Ohio)

As the years swiftly slip away, we are more and more often called upon to mourn the passing of someone whom we have known intimately and whom we admired and loved for outstanding qualities of heart, mind and character. To be invited to say a word about such a friend, in this Bluffton College hour on the airwaves, through the mysterious magic of radio, is a command which cannot be denied.

For more than three decades, it has been my privilege to know Dr. Mosiman, and during most of that time to have been associated with him in professional duties having to do with Bluffton College. The fact that it was located in Bluffton made it peculiarly interesting to me, and made me much concerned as to its success and perpetuation. It may be said, and no one will deny the statement, that Bluffton College is what it is, and is still carrying on with brighter prospects than seemed possible a few short years ago, because of the untiring efforts and boundless energy of Dr. Mosiman. Depression took its toll, with institutions of learning as with almost every other business; and a very few years ago it seemed as though Bluffton College would not survive the storm. No one who was present, will ever forget that meeting in Musselman Library on the campus, when the Board of Trustees, the officers, and the faculty and others gathered in solemn conference to discuss what, if anything, could be done. Dr. Mosiman, with others, took the position that the institution could be saved, that its creditors, and they were many, would cooperate, that its supporters and those upon whose generosity and interest the College had to depend, would still stand by and help as theretofore, and that there just could be no surrender and admission of defeat! That viewpoint the Board of Trustees finally agreed to adopt, and the lines were drawn and the forces marshalled for the battle. It is history now that that battle has been won; the plan of refinancing worked out, has been put into effect; public support of the College is growing, and its debts are being paid; and through that stormy period of financial difficulty and lowering morale and lessening confidence in the future, the old ship has come safely into the harbor, while many of those whom we may call passengers didn't even know that it was storming! Those who were trying to help work the ship, and keep it from swamping in the rolling waves of financial stress which were rough and high, know and will admit that it was the indomitable courage, the unselfish willingness to work and sacrifice, and above all the unfailing faith of the Captain, which wrought the miracle and saved the institution for the future.

Sometimes the bigness of a tree is not fully appreciated until it has fallen. Words are poor things at the best, and neither time nor circumstance will permit extended review of Dr. Mosiman's activities since he came to Bluffton, more than thirty years ago. A student, a scholar in the highest meaning of the term, a minister, and educator holding many degrees from colleges and universities, he could have commanded high position and compensation in many an institution of learning, but instead he chose to guide and direct the destiny of a small college in a small town, conceived originally for the promulgation of the doctrines of his own religious faith. Quiet, determined, untiring, unafraid, with his beloved wife, herself a gallant soldier, ever by his side as counsellor, advisor and mental sparkplug, he fought the fight and kept the faith! That is the tribute I would lay upon his bier; that is the feeling in the hearts of his friends on this sad and solemn day; that is the spontaneous sentiment which will emanate from the hundreds of Bluffton College students, his boys and girls, scattered all around this planet, when they hear of his going: "He kept the faith." May we not on this occasion grasp a little of that faith for ourselves by the certain knowledge that characters such as that of Dr. Mosiman live forever? May we not rejoice that long months of pain and suffering could not shake his belief and conviction that God is good, and that evil can never win in the end? And may we not feel sure, with a little of that faith in which he lived and died, that as his fading eyesight in his last hours gazed upon a wintry January afternoon, he felt already upon his fevered brow the breath of the Eternal Morning? And so, dear friend, as the Spanish say to one departing on a journey, "Go with God, and goodby."

"Evangelizing Our Neighdorhoods"

A brief word, answering several inquiries:

This is not another new movement; I only feel the urge, as an old Mission worker, to encourage many to do much more than is being done by Christians, for their often neglected neighbors. Without doubt Christians are "debtors" to them, in a high degree! Just look and see where things are drifting to!

No organization is sponsoring this. And no local organizations are intended; those especially interested in such service should work together in an orderly manner. That is all.

I have a number of invitations already, from churches, Bible schools, and Sunday Schools, C. E.'s etc. to come and present the matter. Mostly in Kansas.

Nothing very new; only an encouragement to work of this kind being done in places, on a small scale; and to urge others to start such work.

Greetings, J. B. Epp.

P. S. I shall not be able to go out very far; may many all over the land get busy in this kind of service for the Master! Write to me for literature about such work.

A LETTER

Upland, Calif., 841 N. Sec. Ave.
March 30, 1940

Dear Brother Thierstein:

As you are aware we are out in this part of our great country. A great country, indeed, it is. For days we traveled in desert regions in New Mexico, Arizona, parts of Nevada and in California. We took in the site and the sight of the Hoover, alias Boulder, Dam. Both the desert and the dam are impressive, the latter, however, is at a disadvantage being wedged in between natures' stupendous works it loses much in comparison.

Impressive as these things are I was more deeply impressed with the change we found among a people—rather some of the people, I should say—that are dwelling in the desert of Arizona. I refer, of course, to the Hopi Indians. It was my privilege to visit these people 38 years ago. There is a vivid picture in my mind of how I found things at Oraibi village up on the Mesa at that time. Comparing that picture with what we were privileged to see now in our stay of over two weeks among these people I cannot but feel deeply that something has been wrought in these years which is far more marvelous and transcending than Hoover dam, yea, than nature itself. Through the efforts of the Lord's faithful servants and by His grace there have been born from above these Indians sons and daughters of God—such who in ignorance and superstition worshipped devils are now worshipping the true and living God in Christ Jesus their Savior! That is so marvelous an accomplishment that even the angels are mystified. We enjoyed our stay with the Sudermans, our missionaries at Oraibi, very much, indeed. The interest shown by the Christians in the study of the Bible, their singing under the direction of Bro. Suderman, their ardent prayers for each other, and especially for their own people who are yet in sin, their testimonies to the saving grace of the Lord Jesus Christ—these are things never to be forgotten, never to fade away. But that does not mean that the victory is won and that henceforth there will be smooth sailing. Indeed, our workers there and the handful of Christians are waging a valiant battle against a very stubborn, a very much wrought up and overwhelming foe—they are on their knees wrestling—let us strengthen their hands in whatever way we can. It pays.

Our dear people here in Upland are making us feel quite at home, so much so that we feel a little fearful that we will feel homesick for Upland after we leave to go back home. Fraternally, G. A. Linscheid.

He drew a circle to shut me out—
Heretic, rebel, a thing to flout—
But love and I had the wit to win;
We drew a circle which took him in.
—Edwin Markham

SERMON SKETCH

UNAVOIDABLE ISSUES

by A. S. Rosenberger

Matthew 27:24. Pilate—took water and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this righteous man: see ye to it.

There are certain issues in life that no man can avoid. He must make a choice. Even though he seek to evade the issue, such evasion is in itself a choice. Pilate could not evade the issue of what to do with Jesus by washing his hands of the matter. In so doing he made his choice against Jesus.

1. One of the issues in life which no man can avoid is that of a standard by which to live. There are high standards and low. Each one must choose.

> To every man there openeth
> A way, and ways and a way.
> The high soul climbs the high way
> And the low soul gropes the low,
> And in between on misty flats
> The rest drift to and fro.
> But to every man there openeth
> A high way and a low,
> But every man decideth
> The way his soul shall go.
> —John Oxenham.

We are also responsible to some degree for others' choices of the standards in life. Parents, teachers, ministers and friends all have influence and responsibility. It was a tragic story the father of John Dillinger told over the radio the other evening of how with the boy's mother dead, he himself had been too busy to pay any attention to his son. So although the father was a Christian and a church member, the son drifted into wrong company, and in time became the nation's number one criminal.

2. Another issue that cannot be avoided is that of one's attitude toward religion. Shall one believe in religion—or not? Is the universe chance—or God created? Is religion an opiate—or helpful to man? We must choose.

Some who choose not to accept religion seem so sure of their choice. Such a one was Clarence Darrow. Yet it is rather surprising to learn through a recent newspaper article that he made arrangements that if there were a future world he would contact a friend at a certain place exactly two years after his death. The attempt was carried out with no result; and we who know our Bibles know there could not be any. But it would seem as if Darrow was not entirely sure. On the other hand the experience of many with the Christian religion is such of great positive conviction of its reality and eternal quality.

3. The greatest issue of all is that of our relationship to Jesus Christ. Not only Pilate faced the issue of "What shall I do with Jesus?" but so do all who hear the gospel. Eternal destinies depend on the answer. We must choose for him or we are against him. Jesus is the only Saviour. In him is life eternal. Without him we are lost; with him we have found the true way of life.

May God grant that the Gospel may be so presented that as men face the issue they may not seek to avoid them as Pilate did; but may rather choose the highest standards, the religious life, and the only Saviour, Jesus Christ.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

April 21, 1940

MICAH'S VISION OF PEACE

Micah 4:1-5; 5:2-5

TOPIC: The Way to Peace

Introduction

Micah was a country prophet who lived in a town bordering on Philistia. He was a man of literary ability and prophecied chiefly to his native land, Judah. He was the champion of the poor who were oppressed by the rulers and the rich. Our lesson is quite appropriately chosen to study about peace. It shows that universal peace will come when people learn the ways of the Lord and acknowledge His word.

Zion, the Capital of the Messiah's Kingdom vs. 1, 2

"In the last days" (v1) is used in Scripture as a general expression for future time, and with special reference to the time of the establishment of the Messiah's kingdom (Is. 2:1-3). Micah uses highly poetical language in saying that the future glory of the kingdoms of this world shall center in the temple mountain in Jerusalem which is pictured as raised above all other hills (v1), giving it unique preeminence. "People shall flow into it," a picture of the triumph of the true religion of the future.

Verse 2 gives a clear and very significant statement of the glorious coming days (see Is. 2:2-4, Zech. 8:20-23). Jehovah incarnated in the Messiah, will be the teacher of the nations who will come to Zion to be taught in that day (v2). Through the law and the instruction of the prophets, Jehovah spake to his people.

Messiah's Reign of Peace vs 3-5

The Messiah shall be the judge among the nations (v3) (Is. 11:3-5, John 5:22, 23). He will "rebuke," R. V. "decide concerning many peoples. Micah sees the time when the nations will govern their conduct according to Jehovah's instructions, precepts, and commands. He then will settle their disputes, and wars will cease and the implements of war shall be converted into implements of peaceful husbandry.

With the coming of peace there will be prosperity and security (v4). This glorious prophecy is sure of fulfillment for it is God's word. This peace shall be enduring forever (v5).

The King of Peace 5:2-5

Micah here draws our attention to the coming King. He blends his humiliation with his triumphs. He shall be born in an obscure place but shall become a ruler in Israel; "shall be great unto the ends of the earth" (v4). Through Him peace shall come to the nations (v5) when they accept Him. Micah thinks of the Messiah as a great ruler, as a shepherd who will take care of his people and because of his care, they will remain in peace in their own land. Christ, the Messiah gives peace of soul to his people and delivers them from all spiritual foes (v5).

The Way to Peace

"Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord." Micah pictures the nation going to the temple in Jerusalem for religious instruction in the ways of the Lord. The need of religious instruction continues and such teaching makes for peace. Dictators who cultivate the war spirit, attempt at the same time to eliminate religious instruction for it cultivates the spirit of love for others. When people and nations learn to know God's ways and walk in His paths, they will accept God's judgments concerning their affairs with others and will settle all differences peaceably. True religion changes people from within and makes them peaceful. True heart Christianity is pre-eminently the way to peace. War is ALWAYS an evidence of a lack of true religion and of genuine Christianity in the hearts of the leaders responsible for wars. If these leaders of our day were sincere Christians, they would settle all their differences in the spirit of Christian justice. We need to educate our youth for Christian peace.

FELIX J. SCHRAG ORDAINED TO MINISTRY

Mr. Felix J. Schrag, son of Rev. and Mrs. John J. A. Schrag of Parker, South Dakota, was ordained a minister of the gospel on Sunday afternoon, March 31st, 1940, at the Salem-Zion Church southwest of Marion. The ordination was in charge of Rev. Albert Claassen, pastor of that church. The church was filled to its capacity by people from far and near who came to witness this important event.

Special music was furnished by a mixed quartet of the Salem-Zion Church and by the Men's Quartet from Bethel College. Ministers who assisted at the ordination were Rev. A. P. Waltner, now of the Bethesda Church; Rev. A. E. Boell of the Marion Presbyterian Church; Rev. J. A. Tieszen, of the Bethel Church; and Rev. John J. A. Schrag, father of the applicant. In all of the talks the privileges, the importance and the heavy responsibility resting on a minister were stressed. In his response the newly ordained minister gave a masterful brief address in which he outlined his program. Among many other reasons advanced for entering the ministry Rev. Schrag emphasized that he was moved by a desire to help make the world a better place to live in.

Rev. Schrag is a product of the Marion vicinity and received his early religious training in the Salem-Zion Church of which his father was a minister for more than a quarter of a century. He is a graduate of Freeman Junior College, Bethel College and of Hartford Theological Seminary, Hartford, Connecticut. He also did some pioneer religious work in the vicinity of Pasco, Washington, under the auspices of the Congregational Church.

With Mrs. Schrag, the former Lois Landis as helpmate, Rev. Schrag enters the ministry with an excellent religious background and the best of training. This together with his fine personality, exceptional speaking ability, rare sincerity, deep religious convictions and honest desire to serve his fellow-beings, qualify him eminently for his chosen work. At present he is serving as Field Secretary of Bethel College, with residence at Newton, Kansas.

By courtesy of Bro. J. J. Gering, Attorney, Marion, South Dakota.

Institute of International Relations

Under the heading, Recruits for "America's Task," "The American Friend" in its issue of March 26 published a valuable article concerning the current peace sponsoring activities of The Friends, with special emphasis upon the Institutes of International Relations which are to be held under their auspices in different parts of this country during the summer.

The themes set for these gatherings all center about peace as follows: "America's Task in a World at War," "America's Opportunity to Build a Durable Peace," and "America's Contribution to a Durable Peace."

There will be eleven institutes, with time and place as follows: At the University of Oklahoma, in Norman, June 9-14; at Bethel College, North Newton, Kansas, with Wayne Lewis as Executive Secretary and Dr. E. L. Harshbarger as Dean, June 11-21; at Grinnell College, Iowa, June 13-21; the Pacific Northwest Institute at Reed College, in Portland, Ore., June 16-26; the Midwest Institute at Manchester College in Indiana, June 18-28; the Institute for Student Peace Service volunteers from all over the U. S., at Dennison University, Granville, Ohio, June 22 to July 2; the North Carolina Institute at Chapel Hill of the University of N. C., June 23-29; the Mills Institute at Mills College, Oakland, Calif., June 23 to July 3; the New England Institute at Wellesley College, Mass.; the Whittier Institute at Whittier College, Calif., June 27 to July 7; the Middle Atlantic Institute, at Muhlenburg College, Allentown, Pa., June 28 to July 7.

THE INSTITUTE AT BETHEL COLLEGE has chosen for its central theme, "America's Opportunity to Build a Durable Peace." The more definite themes and speakers as published in a recent bulletin are:

Basis of a Durable Peace.—Lecturers, Benjamin Gerig and Clarence Streit. Mr. Gerig was a member of the League of Nations Secretariat and Co-founder of the Geneva Research Center. Mr. Streit is the author of the popular, widely read book, "Union Now," and has been foreign correspondent of the "New York Times" since 1920.

American Democracy Points toward Peace.—Lecturer, Arthur Holt. A penetrating analysis of the underlying principles of American democracy, most adequate methods to preserve it, and its service to durable peace. Mr. Holt is professor of Ethics at Chicago Theological Seminary and author of the notable book, "This Nation Under God."

Religion's Contribution to Durable Peace.—Lecturer, G. H. C. MacGregor. An evaluation of the great ethical, moral and religious principles which help to build and guarantee a durable peace. Mr. MacGregor is a noted Scottish clergyman and author of many valuable books.

The Western Hemisphere and Durable Peace. — Lecturer, Samuel Guy Inman. A critical but sympathetic, analysis of sources of accord and discord between the U. S. and Latin America. Mr. Inman is America's leading ambassador to Latin America, with twenty years of experience.

Building a Durable Peace in Asia. — Lecturer, Hachiro Yuasa. First hand information on affairs in Asia and a discussion of Christian internationalism as a basis for a durable peace. Mr. Yuasa is a prominent Japanese educator, now touring this country extensively.

NOTE: It now appears that Mr. Yuasa cannot serve, and Miss Anna Seesholtz will replace him on the program. She is a Y.W.C.A. worker and will come to the Institute directly from China where she has been for some time.

The Psychology and Economics of a Durable Peace. —Lecturer, P. W. Martin. An enlightening survey of the political myths and economic realities which drive nations into war, and the psychology of building a durable peace. Mr. Martin was for many years chief of the International Labor Office in Geneva, and is authority on psychology pertaining to international relations.

The Democracies in Europe will probably be the theme on which Ex-Chancellor Heinrich Rruening of Germany, who has recently been induced to come to the Institute will speak.

Besides the lectures there will be Round Table Discussions by such groups as: Parent-Teacher Group, Community Organization Group, Historic Peace Church Group and Combined Groups.

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, ALLENTOWN, PA.

The joy and happiness of Easter day for many in our church began in the early hours of the morning. The Dawn Services which we have at Christmas and Easter time are highlights for many in our congregation. Walking to church in the crisp coldness of early morning, meeting only a very few people, and then enjoying a beautiful service in song and words greatly warms one's heart.

The choir under the direction of Mr. Thomas Glose, organist, rendered an inspiring message in anthems and solos. Rev. Howard Nyce spoke on "The Empty Tomb" in a beautiful, forceful manner which makes us rejoice that He is alive for evermore.

The conclusion of Easter day was very nice too. The Upper Milford Church of Zionsville, which is Rev. Nyce's other charge, joined fellowship with us and their choir rendered the special music. A large number were present and I am sure went home with a happy feeling of a day well spent.—Mrs. Reuel de Turk, Corr.

* * *

MENNONITE MISSION CHURCH, LIMA, OHIO

The Sunday evening following Easter we enjoyed the Easter cantata, "The Crucifixion," rendered by the womens' chorus of the St. Johns Church of Pandora. We are always glad when the neighboring churches assist in our services. On Easter Sunday evening the children of the Wednesday Bible School gave a program of the work they have done during the winter.

We had a week of very inspiring meetings beginning the 26th of February. Mr. Feigert, a business man and a very able speaker from Van Wert, Ohio, was the speaker for four evenings. On Friday evening The Berean group of Young Ladies from Van Wert gave an excellent program consisting of special music, a short talk by a Missionary, and a message from the Word of God by their leader. Our Mission Society has enjoyed the various missionaries who have been at our meetings during the winter.

On Palm Sunday eight boys were baptized and taken into the Church membership. Two members were taken in by letter.—Correspondent.

—Kansas has recently been treated to attacks by old-fashioned dust storms. At times the sun was hardly visible and auto travelers found visibility greatly reduced. The menacing dust found its way into every part of the homes and other buildings. In some fields a good deal of the wheat was blown loose or damaged by sand. Thus one sees again that nature the beneficient producer can also be a pitiless destroyer.

R. Weinbrenner
Editor

Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen

Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers

Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

How Can the Church Reach the Young People?

(Mr. Eldon W. Graber, the author of this article, graduated from Bethel College in 1938. He is now teaching in the mathematics and speech department of the Whitewater, Kansas, High School. At the same time he is doing graduate work in English at Kansas University. Editor).

Churches today are faced with the problem of getting a larger percentage of young folks to attend church services.* Youth of today is not interested in the work of the church; it does not appeal to them. Empty churches are a proof of retreating youth. Furthermore churches are likely to remain empty unless something is done to reconcile the young people and the church.* Often the remark is made that when students go to college, they drift away from the church. Now if this is true, who is at fault? Is the teaching of the church incomplete? Is it the schools, or is youth just indifferent?

(*The above is probably true of many churches the country over. But will the majority of our Mennonite churches, who have to build larger to accommodate their audience agree to these statements?—T.)

In attacking a problem of this nature we must analize it to determine who is at fault. All young people have a home of some kind. In the early, formative years home training is all-important. Here the religious training must begin. The parent should take the responsibility of first introductions, and the responsibility of making the child available for church teaching. The attitude of the parent toward church attendance helps most to form the attitude of the child. Even still more important is the fact that parent attendance will put an example before the child.

As the child grows older his attendance is primarily a church problem; perhaps we ought to examine the program of the church. The church has a very vital truth to present. Its place is important. But could it be that the church is failing to stress the right phase of its teaching? What, basically, should the church teach? The one great standard that all churches ought to have is Jesus Christ. But it is the interpretation of the values of such a standard that the church is failing. In speaking of the values we mean the spiritual and social teachings of our Master.

Space will not permit a full listing of all such values, but certainly personal redemption or conversion must head the list. Then follow in quick succession the social values that every church should teach: service to mankind, the Golden Rule, forgiveness and brotherly love, faith, hope, worship, and a certain high moral standard based on religious grounds. Our Mennonite churches must not forget to teach our historic peace stand and other great truths set forth in the Sermon on the Mount.

Yes, those are the items on the church's teaching program. But the problem is one of presentation so that youth can understand it. What methods should the church use? To begin with, young people as well as old must be taught the Bible and the Bible's precepts. Young people cannot learn to know Christ without some knowledge of God's word. Such teaching cannot begin too early. This is a duty that belongs to both parents and the church. There ought to be some undertsanding between church and parents as to just what is the responsibility of each. Parents sometimes say that the church or the school should teach morals; the church dodges it by saying that it is the responsibility of the school and the parents. The schools, likewise, deny any guilt in the matter.

Young people's activities are good means of interesting them in church work. If young people have an organization of their own in which the may express their ideas in their own programs they will do much to help themselves to religious teachings. Adult guidance or help from adult leaders should not be withdrawn, but should be tactfully applied when and where needed.

Further, it is the duty of the church to reinterpret its teachings so that it means something to the young people. They must be given some opportunity to see its practical application. We must make scripture mean something vital, dynamic, and forceful. To illustrate: "Love thy neighbor as thyself" as interpreted by Italy when she "civilized" Ethiopia is not the interpretation we should like our young people to have. In this world of conflicting philosophies something should be done to help our youth make the right choices. The church ought to be a light to youth in these matters.

Finally let our teachers be prepared. Let them understand the problems of youth. Creative teaching and the personality of the teacher may do more good than all other things. Let them speak to our young folks in their own language and on their own level—Jesus would have done so.

The only way the church can get the confidence of the young people is to show them what is to be gained, and to help them to undertsand the great truths for which the church stands.

Senior Department

MAKING LIFE COUNT

Senior C. E. Topic for April 28, 1940

Main Topic: True Happiness. Lk. 12:15-21; Matt. 6:19-21

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "There's Sunshine in My Soul Today", "Lord, for Tomorrow and Its Needs", "The Lord Is My Shepherd", "We Praise Thee, O God."
2. Reading of main topic and prayer.
3. Special music—"Shepherd of Israel"
4. Offering for missions.

II. Leader's Introduction

Object Lesson

A blotter, a sheet of paper, a candle, and a match. While blotters serve a definite purpose, they never give anything away; they grasp and soak up whatever they can get. This blotter gave nothing to the paper; it merely soaked up an ink spot, and is still stained with the ink. Some people are like this blotter. They never give anything of themselves to others, but only seek to get, and their lives bear the marks of their greed. This candle is closely associated with the flame. (Light candle.) There is nothing selfish about the candle, for it slowly and steadily gives itself to the flame. Then as the flame receives this melted tallow, it transforms it into a radiant light. If you give to others freely of your time, interest and effort your lives will be transformed so that they will shine with true Christian beauty and happiness.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. A pleasure-mad son ruined. Lk. 15:11-16.
2. Beware of love of money. 1 Tim. 6:6-10.
3. Beware of love of the world. 1 Jn. 2:15-17.
4. Beware of wrong emphases. Rom. 14:16-19.
5. Steps to true happiness. Col. 3:12-17.

IV. For Discussion

1. What shall we go after in life to get the most happiness, wealth, fame, power, or what?
2. Make a list of people who have found happiness. See where and how they found it.

V. Facts for Study

Happiness comes by way of loving and serving. Some people have a marvelous power of attaching others to them. They possess a kind of magnetism for kindred souls who gather to their heart, as steel filings to a magnet. Paul excelled in this sort of magnetizing. He loved as few have loved, and he was loved in return. Timothy, his "beloved son"; Tychicus, "a beloved brother"; Titus, "mine own son after the common faith"; Luke, "the beloved physician"; Aristarchus, who contrived to become his fellow prisoner, that he might be able to minister to him; Jason, who sheltered him at the risk of his life; Priscilla and Aquila, who would have laid down their lives for him; his beloved Epaenetus; Persis, the beloved.

Paul's ever present desire was to serve his own race and the Gentiles. He worked tirelessly, traveled from city to city, that he might be of service. Anyone who has given himself in true service to others has experienced that in that way true happiness is found.

VI. Illustrations

When Jesus Came to the Alley

"Where," said a teacher to his class of ragged boys gathered from the crowded streets of a great city, "where is Jesus Christ?" Quickly the answer came from a bright-eyed little fellow, as though there were no manner of doubt about it: "Oh, he lives in our alley now." The alley had been the abode of poverty, dirt, and misery. The women quarreled, the men drank, the children were neglected. However, a Christian woman who came to reside in the neighborhood went into that forgotten part of the city with the simple and old story of the One who came to minister to the poor, the sick, the broken-hearted, and the sinful. It was not long before she, with the help of the Holy Spirit, brought about changes in the lives of the alley folk. Her smiles, her kind words, and her loving attitude won many hearts to the work of the Savior.

That We May See

In his recent book, "Courage For Today," Dr. Preston Bradley tells the following incident: "One evening Lorado Taft, the great sculptor, called in a few friends to the porch of his summer home down East so that they might look out to the western sky and see the sunset in all its glory. As they stood and looked, Mr. Taft pointed out the infinite variety of colors, changing and shifting on the horizon, his trained tastes and sense enabling him to perceive more than the average man would have seen in this masterpiece of nature.

"The maid who had been serving them interrupted after a few minutes to say, 'Mr. Taft, may I run down the road? I want to go home a minute.' 'Bless your heart,' replied Mr. Taft; 'what do you want at home at this time?' 'I want to show Mother the sunset,' was the girl's explanation. 'Your mother has lived here a good many years,' Mr. Taft said; 'she must have seen many sunsets.' 'Oh, no,' was the earnest reply, 'we never saw the sunsets until you came.' " Can we add to our own happiness by sharing what we see with others?

VII. Food for Thought

"Turn your face toward the sun, and the shadows will fall behind you."

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

KNOWLEDGE QUIZ—OLD TESTAMENT

Topic for April 28, 1940

Song, "How Firm a Foundation"

Leader's talk—(This is one of two meetings this year which are arranged as quizzes. The next one in July will be on the New Testament. Make these meetings as worthwhile as possible). You as leader might start the ball rolling by quoting your favorits Bible verse and asking the rest to follow suit.

Song, "Holy Bible, Book Divine"

Scripture Reading, Acts 8:30-40; Luke 24:44-48.

Prayer Song, "Take Time To Be Holy"

Bible Drill

Song, "Take the Bible With You"

Hymn of Consecration, "Have Thine Own Way"

Benediction

Advertisement.—Make miniature scrolls of linen or muslin. Sew a match or a toothpick at each end. Print announcement of meeting on goods and roll up.

For the meeting make small Bibles out of pill boxes. This is done by covering them with black paper, shaped like the cover of a Bible. Inside the box you may put some questions.

Or conduct the drill in the form of a contest with the boys against the girls or permit the members to chose sides. It might be interesting to chose a certain number to act as a board of experts and permit the members to try to stump them with the questions from their Bible boxes.

Bible Drill:

1. Who was the first man?
2. Who was Adam and Eve's third son?
3. Who was commanded to build the ark?
4. Who was called the "man of faith"?
5. Who was the father of the twins, Jacob and Esau?
6. Who worked seven years for Laban that he might win his daughter Rachel for a wife?
7. Who was given a coat of many colors by his father ?
8. Who, when a baby, was hid in an ark of bulrushes?
9. Who was Moses' successor in leading the Israelites?
10. Who was the strongest man that ever lived
11. Who began to serve God, when a little child, by waiting on Eli, the priest?
12. Who is known as the most patient man?
13. Who was the first king of Israel?
14. Who was David's nearest friend?
15. What prophet was fed by ravens?
16. Who gave the animals their names?
17. Who was willing to offer as a sacrifice his beloved son, if it were the will of God?
18. What good man was sorely afflicted with boils?
19. What damsel found favor with Boaz as she gleaned in his fields?
20. Who slew the giant Goliath with a sling and a stone?
21. What Bible book is named after a queen?
22. What prophet answered God's call by saying, "Here am I; send me"?
23. Who, because he prayed to God, was cast into a den of lions?
24. How many books in the Old Testament?

Questions to which the answers are to be found by reading the Bible references.

25. Upon what mountain did the ark finally rest? Gen. 8:4.
26. From what mountain was the law given? Exod. 24:13-17.
27. Who was the oldest man who ever lived, but who died before his father? Gen. 5:27, 24.
28. What great leader did the Lord bury? Deut. 34:5, 6.
29. Who is the first foreign Missionary mentioned in the Bible? Jonah 1:2; 3:3-10.
30. What building cost nearly two and one-half million dollars? 1 Kings 5:1 - 6:38.

Song, "Take the Bible With You"

(Tune, "The Precious Name")

Take the dear old Bible with you,
Men of toil, where'er you go.
It will strength and comfort give you;
Read its truth and you shall know.

Take the dear old Bible with you
As a shield from every snare;
When dark clouds begin to gather,
Read this Book, then bow in prayer.

How the precious story thrills us!
How it lightens every care!
With this manna daily feed us,
With thy yoke our burdens share.

Chorus:
Precious Book, sacred Book,
Word of God,
And guide to heaven. (Repeat.)

For Daily Reading:

Apr. 22. He wholly followed Jehovah. Josh. 14:6-14.
Apr. 23. Winning a new name. Gen. 32:22-32.
Apr. 24. A man after God's own heart. 1 Sam. 13:8-14.
Apr. 25. Israels' leader into Canaan. Josh. 1:1-6.
Apr. 26. Judah and Israel separated. 1 Kings 12:12-20.
Apr. 27. Planning for the temple. 2 Sam. 7-13.
Apr. 28. Topic. Acts 8:30-40; Luke 24:44-48.

(Helps for this topic were taken from the book "Intermediate Expressional Services by Nevava Miller Whitwell by permission of the Standard Publishing Company.)

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

"I AM ALPHA AND OMEGA," Rev. 22:13

Program for April 28, 1940

To the leaders: Arrange a collection of pottery vases, large and small of various shapes on a high pedestal or where all will be able to see them. Have on hand enough modeling clay to make at least one later in the program.

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude "The Lord is in His holy temple" by group of girls on the front row.
2. Scripture reading by Junior boy, Ps. 19.
3. Prayer by leader.
4. Sing in unison: "Come Thou Almighty King"

II. Study Period

Aim: To cause Juniors to worship and adore our Wonderful Lord and Savior with their lives.

1. Introduction. Men are ever beginning new things. When you boys and girls are older, you'll begin others, and the old will no longer be used. Only in the lost ten years we have streamline trains, television, plywood stronger than steel, airplane passenger service across the ocean, glass building blocks, wonderful new medicines to kill deadly germs. Man is constantly finding something new, but think, back of all this is a Great Lord who made all these comforts and blessings possible. He it is who says, "I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last." Let us look at some of the Beginnings of God, and see how they are all for our blessing and do not change or become out of date. Instead since He was the Beginner, He shall also be the one to have the last word. In Ecclesiastes 3:14, we read "I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be forever: nothing can be put to it nor anything taken from it and God doeth it, that men should fear before Him." Hallelujah! For everything man makes goes to pieces sooner or later.

2. Talk by Junior boy: Beginnings in Creation. Gen. 1. (1) For our comfort, blessing, and understanding. (2) All things made by Him. John 1:3, 10. (3) Upholds all things. Heb. 1:3. (4) By Him all things consist. Col. 1:17.

3. Group sing, "O Worship the King"

4. Talk by Junior girl: Thy Word is true from the beginning. Ps. 119:160. (1) Exposes everything wrong. (2) Supports everything true. (3) Tells of the past, present, and future. (4) Scriptures that I like, and know are true.

5. Talk by Junior boy: The beginning of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Mk. 1:1. (1) Our salvation; a. All about the Savior shedding His precious blood at Calvary to pay the debt we owe. b. Describes the stainless life God will impute to me, if I trust the Lord Jesus. c. His coming again.

6. Reading by four or five year old

"A Little Child of Seven"

A little child of seven
Or even three or four,
Can enter into heaven
Through Christ the open Door.
For when the heart believeth
On Christ the Son of God,
'Tis then the child receiveth
Salvation through His blood.

7. Talk by Junior girl: These things saith . . . the beginning. Rev. 3:14. (1) New Heaven and new Earth. Rev. 21:1-7. a. Only righteousness. b. No sighing or crying. c. With the Lord Jesus forever.

8. Solo, "The Holy City" with violin obligato.

9. Leaders Heart Talk. Our lives are just beginnings. It was our blessed Lord Jesus who gave us our first breath of life and surely he wishes that life to glorify Him; for He says "Son, give me thine heart", while we are yet very young. He has gone ahead and made everything ready for you. Remember, He left His home in Glory to come down here as a little babe, and grew up very much like you and me. He knows the way, and we may safely trust our hand in His lovely, nail-pierced hand, as we travel on through life. (Pianist plays softly "Have Thine Own Way, Lord" as you mold a clay vessel continuing.) If we allow our hearts to grow full of other things, and hard from the wind and sun of life (as these vessels you see on the table or around the room) we will not be able to change them, so let us put ourselves in the hand of our Wonderful Lord, and let Him mold us and make us what He would have us be. (Describe size, and sort—each have their place.)

10. In unison sing softly "Have Thine Own War, Lord", vs. 1, 2, 4.

III. Mission Minutes

Let all Juniors bow their heads and pray for any one whom they would like to see come to the Lord Jesus, especially their school mates or little ones in far away Africa.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Repeat in unison the verse of the month. Phil. 2:9-11.
2. Sing song of the month, "Blessed Assurance Jesus is mine."
3. Review—volunteers give one of the "I am" verses that we have learned the past two months.
4. Junior Boy prays the "Prayer for the Month." Ps. 139:23, 24.
5. As Juniors leave pianist plays "O How I Love Jesus."

Mrs. Ted E. Claassen for Mrs. J. E. Entz

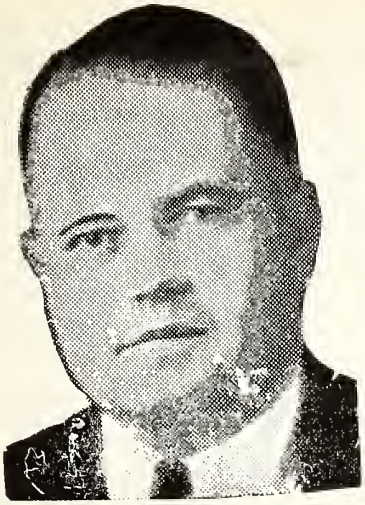
HOME MISSIONS COMMITTEE W. D. CONF.

Receipts during March

Pretty Prairie Ch., Jacob B. Graber, $22.78; H.M.B. General Conf., J. J. Plenert, $25.00; Zoar Menn. Ch., Arthur Pekrul, $10.00; Hanston Menn. Ch., Ed. Miller, $7.60; Hoffnungsau Ch., A. B. Reimer, $22.58; Hebron Ch., C. L. Wall, $19.66; First Menn. Christian Ch., John E. Goering, $64.50; Ebenfeld Ch., Abe Unruh, $13.25; West Zion Menn. Ch., Fred D. Meyer, $50.00; Buhler Menn. Ch., J. B. Regier, $22.70; Cornelius Jantzen, Nebraska, $25.00; Montezuma Menn. Ch., Leonard Johnson, $3.50; Zoar Menn. Ch., Arthur Pekrul, $2.37; Ransom Menn. Ch., Elmer Huxman, $120.00; Bergtal Menn. Ch., H. C. Schultz, $15.75; Pleasant Valley Menn. Ch., David H. Koehn, $17.12; Herald Menn. Ch., J. A. Harms, $2.95. Total, $444.76.

G. A. Linscheid, Treas.

—Sichar Menn. Church, Cordell, Okla.—Beginning Sunday evening, March 31, and continuing through Monday and Tuesday, the Mennonites of this section had a series of blessed Bible studies, of which the theme was, "Be ye fishers of men." Rev. J. M. Regier of the Johannestal, Kansas, Church and Bethel College, was the main speaker, using as his subjects, Christ's great "I Am's."



Rev. Theodore Epp, Evangelist

ANNOUNCEMENT

The "Back to the Bible" broadcast, by Evangelist Theodore H. Epp, is making a great stride forward. It can now be heard from South Dakota and Southwest Minnesota, down to Oklahoma, and from Iowa to Colorado. Every week-day morning at 9 o'clock, over KMMJ, Grand Island, Nebr. (740 kc.).

Readers living within this district please ask for permission to have this announced in your church, etc., and cutting out the above announcement, please put it on the bulletin board in church and other public places. And—try to get it into your local paper. The "cut" can be had from me. Our thanks.

J. B. Epp.

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, NAPPANEE, IND.

Our church has been richly blessed during this Easter season. At our pre-Easter services, Rev. E. A. Sommer of Middlebury was the speaker for the first three evenings and Rev. G. S. Stoneback of Goshen on the following four evenings.

On Thursday evening, March 21, we had baptismal services at which time twelve young people were received into the church by baptism and five others by letter.—On Easter morning there was a sunrise service at 6 o'clock. The Bluffton College Gospel Team visited the Mennonite Churches in this community over the week end and one group gave the program on Friday evening, another on Saturday evening. On Sunday morning the entire group, eleven young men, took charge of the regular worship service and gave a very inspiring program to a well filled house. One group also had charge of the Sunday evening service. There were several quartet numbers, a vocal solo and Lawrence Burkhalter of Mussoorie, India, rendered several violin solos.—Anna Mullett.

DEEP RUN MENNONITE CHURCH, PA.

We as a congregation are passing through a period of mixed emotions. Whole heartedly we express our appreciation and gratitude for the loyal leadership of our beloved paster Allen M. Fretz who after 56 years of faithful service requested to be relieved of his pastorial office.

Accordingly a call was extended to Russell L. Mast, a senior at the Hartford Seminary Foundation, Hartford, Conn. He accepted the call and we anticipate his arrival and ordination as our assistant pastor following his graduation in June. Rev. Fretz will continue serving as elder.

Sunday, April 14, 1940, we expect to commemorate the Lord's Supper, at which time Mr. and Mrs. Mast will transfer their memberships from their native congregation of Ohio.—Deep Run Correspondent.

« « JOTTINGS » »

—Missionary August Ewert writes us from Peking, China, under date of February 27, 1940, "Enclosed please find check No. 2238 for $6.00 to apply on renewal for The Mennonite. We are thankful that conditions permit the family to go to the interior. Tomorrow, the Lord willing, we leave Peking for our station, Kai Chow, where our home will be for some time."—This is encouraging news. God be praised. And we hereby gratefully acknowledge receipt of the check.—Editor.

—First Church Reedley, California.—On account of impaired health the pastor, Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, has been advised by the doctors to rest up a few months, and Rev. Edgar Toews, who has been attending a seminary at San Anselmo, Calif. has kindly consented to act as substitute. According to the March 31 Bulletin he has already started to serve.

—Rev. J. B. Epp asks us to announce that his address has been temporarily changed from Beatrice, Nebr. to 305 West 5th Street, Newton, Kansas.

—Emmaus Church, near Whitewater, Kansas.—"On March 24 our choir, under the direction of Mrs. Gustav Dyck, rendered the cantata, "The Lord of the Eastertide." In our weekly Prayer and Bible Hour meetings we continued the study of the Book of Genesis, and we understand better than ever before that prayer will make us lay aside our sinning, or sinning will make us lay aside our praying. The two cannot dwell in the same house together."—E. E., Corr.

—Eighth Street Church, Goshen, Indiana, reports a series of "Spiritual Renewal Services" recently held, at which the following themes formed the bases of the sermons: "The Presence and Power of the Spirit," "The Prayer Life of the Christian," "The Fullness of Joy," "God-guided Lives," and "How to Study your Bible."

—East Swamp, Quakertown, Pa.—Six churches in this neighborhood, East and West Swamp, Flatland, Bethany, Great Swamp Reformed and St. John's Lutheran joined in a dawn service on Easter Sunday at the East Swamp Church. Missionary John Thiessen conducted the devotion and spoke on "Easter in India." Rev. Harold Burkholder led the singing, while Miss Huldah Myers, missionary secretary of the Eastern District gave the main address.—A crowd of East Swamp young people attended the monthly meeting at the Christian Rescue Mission in Bethlehem, Rev. Burkholder giving the message. On April 21 he will serve the members of the Springfield Church with holy communion.

—The Zion Kingman Church.—The past year has been one of blessings and not entirely without trials. Many have been a blessing to our gatherings, among these are: Dr. H. A. Fast, Dr. A. Warkentin, the Bethel College Quartet, Rev. J. B. Epp, Rev. Titcomb, Rev. Zimmerman; our neighbors, Rev. J. E. Neuenschwander, Rev. P. P. Tschetter, Rev. Means, Mr. John Ediger, and many others. Rev. Theo. Epp served this church as pastor till April 30, 1939. Then we were without a pastor till Sept. 17, when Rev. J. R. Barkman came and has been serving us since. Twelve members have been added to the church by letter and baptism. Communion was held twice. We covet your prayers.—The Correspondent.

—Gnadenberg Church, near Whitewater, Kansas.—During the recent pulpit exchange in this territory, Rev. C. C. Wedel spoke to our congregation. This was to create interest in the Bethel College Fellowship campaign about to be launched. In his unassuming way, Rev. Wedel showed us that Christian higher education is worth our greatest sacrifices.—Mrs. H. B. S., Corr.

—Second Church, Philadelphia.—"An anonymous donor has presented to the Church and Sunday School 120 new chairs . . . which are equipped with special cushion glide tips that make them less noisy in handling. The chairs cost $3.15 each. This gift is greatly appreciated and the spirit in which it was given is certainly commendable."—There are people in many of our churches who are so situated that they could and should emulate this deed and thus help to improve the equipment, the appearance and the spirit of their house of worship.—Editor.

—Rev. A. R. Keiser, formerly pastor of the Salem Menn. Church, Dalton, Ohio, now serving the Bath Church, Ira, Ohio, sends us their Easter Bulletin which, among other things, contains the following interesting data: Membership June 1, 1938, 134; gain in membership to date, 134; loss by death, 4; membership on March 24, 1940, 264. Rev. Keiser also writes, "We are quite happy here in our work. We moved into a beautiful, spacious new parsonage last Thanksgiving. I had a catechetical class of 25 and also baptized some adults."

ERROR! In last weeks "Jotting" relative to the venerable Dr. Amos Reusser of Berne, Indiana, the linotypist changed his name to "Rensser" and still left it that way after proof had been corrected. Such errors are aggravating.

—Flatland Church, Quakertown, Pa. had a period of Bible Studies, April 2-6, with Rev. H. G. Nyce of Allentown as speaker. General Theme: "Sin and its Cure," the particular themes: "Origin and History of Sin," "The Nature of Sin," "The Result of Sin," "Sin and Grace," "The Believer and Sin."

—St. John's Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio.—The ladies chorus of the church presented "The Crucifixion" of Stainer to a large audience Easter Sunday night. The soloists were Wilson Jones, bass of Lima, Freeman Burkhalter, tenor of Berne, Indiana. Pianist: Susie Welty; Solo Pianist: Ruth Bixel. The rendition was under the direction of Miss Henrietta Schneck. The same chorus repeated the rendition at the Mennonite Mission where Rev. Dick is pastor, Sunday evening, March 31.—Mrs. M. H., Corr.

—Attorney and Brother John J. Gering writes from Marion, So. Dak., "Of late we had considerable snow and a very fine shower last Friday. So that there is now actually moisture in our suffering soil. Hope we may have more and can harvest a crop this season."

—First Church, Allentown, Pa.—The Bulletin reports that on Palm Sunday eleven young people were received into the church by baptism and that several persons were to be received on confession of faith and the right hand of fellowship.

—An Opportunity for Young Mennonite Farmers.—Mr. F. H. Reeves, agent for the Great Northern Railroad Company, St. Paul, Minn. is busy trying to find settlers for a tract of land not far from Fargo, North Dakota, located in the rich Red River Valley. The land is owned by an insurance company which is anxious to dispose of it to individual owners, which the laws of the state make mandatory upon companies by January, 1942.

—Bulletin, First Church, Philadelphia.—"We are very thankful that it was possible to have the interior of the church painted. What a difference it does make! The Custodians of the Building and Contingent Fund gratifully acknowledge receipt of $200.00, a bequest to our church by the late Miss Emma Landis. This is a good deed, worthy to be followed."

—Bethel College.—The Goshen College A Cappella Choir which is touring this part of the country is scheduled for a concert here on April 16.—Between April 1 and 12 fifty-one seniors are slated to take their oral comprehensive examinations. These with thorough-going written comprehensive tests are intended to help determine the student's fitness for his claim to a degree.—For the booster banquet which is to be held May 14, and for which the ticket as usual will be ten dollars, Governor Payne Ratner of Kansas is scheduled as speaker.

— Bluffton College A Cappella Choir on a Concert Tour.—Starting April 4, this mixed choir of 45 voices is now on a tour through the states of Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, and Minnesota, covering an area of approximately 2000 miles. Concerts will be given at Grabill, Ind.; Meadows, Congerville, Carlock, Normal, Washington and Morton, Ill.; Pulaski, Wayland and Goldfield,.Iowa; Mt. Lake, Minn., then back to Sterling, Tiskilwa, and Chicago, Ill., Middlebury and Goshen, Ind. and Berne, Ind., on April 21.

— Notes from "The Witmarsum."—When Pres. E. G. Kaufman of Bethel College held a series of Pre-Easter services at Pandora, he visited Bluffton and gave a morning chapel address on the subject, "Remembering." He and Mrs. Kaufman had dinner at the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Smith.—Mr. D. W. Bixler, financial agent of the college, and Mrs. Bixler, are on a business trip in the interests of the school, through the states of Pennsylvania, Connecticut, New Jersey and New York.

— Mennonite Church, Geary, Okla.—On Easter Sunday evening the choir of the First Mennonite Church of Geary and singers from two other cooperating churches rendered an Easter Cantata, "Dawn of Easter" in the High School auditorium, under the direction of Mrs. Otto Krehbiel.—The ladies of the church are making plans for an all church dinner to be held in the near future.—Mrs. Frantz.

HOME MISSION BOARD TREASURER'S REPORT FOR MARCH

A Friend, Tacoma, Wash., $150.00; First, Chicago, Ill., $11.64; Pacific Conference on Note, $20.00; Mennonite Church near Lind, Wash., $10.86; Inman Church, Inman, Kans., $3.79; Germantown Mennonite Church, Germantown, Pa., $7.00; Johannesthal S. S., Hillsboro, Kans., $9.84; Bethany, Kingman, Kans., $21.47; Bethel S. S., Hydro, Okla., $3.97; First, Mt. Lake, Minn., $26.13; A Friend, Hillsboro, Kans., $3.03; Marie K. Fast, Red Wing, Minn., $20.00; First, Berne, Ind., $143.85; John A. Swineford, Port Treforton, Pa., $20.00; Buhler Mennonite Church, Buhler, Kans., $22.70; First, Paso Robles, Calif., $6.95; Emmaus, Whitewater, Kans., $171.10; Zion, Elbing, Kans., $90.50; Bethel, Fortuna, Mo., $9.35; First, Aberdeen, Idaho, $95.34; S. S. Union E. Dist. Conf., Mission project, for Itinerant work in Canada, $137.23; First, Chicago, Ill., $8.00; Salem, Freeman, So. Dak., $100.00; Deer Creek Mennonite S. S., Deer Creek, Okla., $15.73; Mennonite Church, Medford, $10.00; Balance of Woodlake, Calif., S. S., $20.00; Salem, Dalton, Ohio, $13.75; Mennonite Church, Pulaski, Iowa, $7.15; Mennonite Church, Kismet, Kans., $5.00; First, Chicago, Ill., $10.39; Herald, Clinton, Okla., $8.03; Bethesda, Henderson, Nebr., $59.18; Hopefield, Moundridge, Kans., $7.40; Flatland, Quakertown, Pa., $8.00. Total, $1,256.38.

Disbursements:

Vouchers drawn for salaries, rent, taxes, projects, etc., $1,649.37.

All receipts gratefully acknowledged.

J. J. Plenert, Treas.,
429 Knoor Street, Phila., Pa.

REPORT OF THE TREASURER OF THE BOARD OF PUBLICATION

from January 1, 1939 to March 27, 1940

Treasurer's Report on Receipts for General Fund

First Church, Upland, Calif., $7.33; First Church, Philadelphia, Pa., $5.17; A friend, $25.00; Bethel S. S., Mountain Lake, Minn., $25.00; Lorraine Ave. Church, Wichita, Kans., $2.00; West Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa., $12.40; Missionary Society of Trenton, Ohio Church, $5.00; First Church, Upland, Calif., $6.89; Deer Creek, Okla. Church, $5.82; Henry Fast, $2.50; St. Johns Church, Pandora, Ohio, $3.55; Dr. and Mrs. S. F. Pannabecker, China, $5.00; Two Friends, $10.00; 1st. Church, Philadelphia, Pa., $4.82; Lehigh, Kansas Church, $3.91; First Church, Reedley, Calif., $32.72; Buhler Church, Buhler, Kansas, $10.58; Bethel College Church, $13.51; Bethel Church, Mt. Lake, Minn., $20.00; Summerfield, Ill. Church, $5.37; Goessel Church, Goessel, Kans., $14.10; Bethel Church, Mt. Lake, Minn., $25.00; Lorraine Ave. Church, Wichita, Kans., $2.00; First Church, Upland, Calif., $5.65; Mennonite S. S. Lind, Wash., $8.50; First Church, Aberdeen, Idaho, $18.61; Hopefield Church, Moundridge, Kans., $7.45; West Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa., $10.40; Burrton, Kans., Church, $3.73; Alexandervohl Church, Goessel, Kans., $22.07; Gnadenberg Church, Whitewater, Kans., $9.20; Medford Church, Medford, Okla., $5.38; West Zion Church, Moundridge, Kans., $18.00; Bethel Church, Fortuna, Mo., $5.53; Salem-Zion Church, Freeman, S. Dak., $24.53; Hoffnungsau Church, Inman, Kans., $8.75; Johannestal Church, Hillsboro, Kans., $17.00; Ebenezer Church, Bluffton, Ohio, $10.96; Eden Church, Moundridge, Kans., $58.20; Richey Church, Richey, Montana, $7.64; Eden Church, Inola, Okla., $6.59; First Church, Newton, Kans., $7.18; Bethel Church, Lustre, Montana, $3.16; First Church, Upland, Calif., $9.30; Bruderthal Church, Hillsboro, Kans., $10.25; First Church, Philadelphia, Pa., $4.90; West Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa., $14.52; Bergtal Church, Pawnee Rock, Kans., $10.00; Lorraine Ave. Church, Wichita, Kans., $1.00; First Church, Berne, Ind., $122.52; First Church, Philadelphia, Pa., $4.07; Inman Church, Inman, Kans., $2.35; Bethel College Church, N. Newton, Kans., $26.16; Zion Church, Elbing, Kans., $31.30; Hoffnungsfelder Church, Pebaisen, Sask., $1.26; Buhler Church, Buhler, Kans., $10.58; Bethesda Church, Marion, S. Dak., $4.00; Hoffnungsau Church, Inman, Kans., $10.16; First Church, Reedley, Calif., $9.66; Buhler Church, Buhler, Kans., $12.84; West Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa., $7.36; Bethany Church, Quakertown, Pa., $10.20; First Church, Upland, Calif., $7.68; First Church, Philadelphia, Pa., $6.44; Bethel Church, Mt. Lake, Minn., $25.00; Hebron Church, Buhler, Kans., $10.58. Total received, general fund, $858.33

Received for Printing Press Fund during the same period: Rev. E. J. Neuenschwander, solicitor, $49.05.

Contributions Received by Churches and Individuals for the new Hymnal

W. P. Rempel, Pasadena, Calif., $5.00; Second Church ,Beatrice, Nebr., $11.40; Grace S. S., Lansdale, Pa., $12.46; Mrs. O. E. Schmidt, Gotebo, Okla., $1.00; Bethel Church, Mt. Lake, Minn., $40.00; Rev. D. D. Eitzen, $5.00; First Church, Hillsboro, Kans., $19.06; First Church S. S., Bluffton, Ohio, $10.89; Rev. C. v. d. Smissen, $5.00; Alberta Community Church, Portland, Oregon, $2.50; Emmaus Church, Whitewater, Kans., $14.50; Marie K. Fast, Red Wing, Minn., $5.00; Zion Church, Souderton, Pa., $50.00; Summerfield, Ill. Church, $7.64; Mennonite Church, Madrid, Nebr., $4.16; Mennonite Church, Wadsworth, Ohio, $18.00; Helen M. Beidler, Allentown, Pa., $20.00; Garden Township Church, Hesston, Kans., $9.50; Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebr., $38.20; First Church, Reedley, Calif., $29.83; Bruderthal Church, Hillsboro, Kansas, $10.25; Pulaski, Iowa Church $11.10; Wayland, Iowa Church S. S., $10.00; First Church S. S., Allentown, Pa., $25.00; Bergfelder Church, Mt. Lake, Minn., $18.00; Lorraine Ave. Church, Wichita, Kansas, $3.00; A Friend, Halstead, Kans., $5.00; First Church S. S., Nappanee, Ind., $15.00; First Church, Sugar Creek, Ohio, $10.00; Buhler Church, Buhler, Kans., $25.00; St. Johns Church, Pandora, O., $4.82; Emmanuel Church, Pratum, Ore., $27.63; First Christian Church, Moundridge, Kans., $34.50; San Marcos Church, Paso Robles, Calif., $3.00; First Church S. S. class, No. 50, Berene, Ind., $20.00; Elizabeth Wirkler, Los Angeles, Calif., $10.00; Trenton, Ohio Church, $5.00; A friend, $10.00; Dr. Isaac P. Thieszen, Marion, S. Dak., $17.00; First Church S. S. class, No. 6, Bluffton,Ohio, $6.75; A friend, Beatrice, Nebr., $5.00; Lydia Amstutz, Lima, Ohio, $2.00; A Member of Bethel College Church, Newton, Kans., $100.00; Sister H. v. d. Smissen, Newton, Kans., $3.00; Tabor Church, Goessel, Kans., $4.90; Newport Church, Newport, Wash., $7.10; Karl Friesen, Newton, Kans., $2.00; L. J. Horsch, Upland, Calif., $1.50; First Church, Halstead, Kans., $10.18; John C. Dester, Long Beach, Calif., $8.00; Mennonite S. S., Medford, Okla., $15.73. Total received, $739.60.

Report on Advance Orders for the Hym Book with Prepayments

Zion Mennonite Church, Donnellson, Iowa, $33.00; First Church S. S., Nappannee, Ind., $25.00; First Church, Newton, Kans., $19.32; Grace Church, Lansdale, Pa., S. S. account. $75.00; Dr. Isaac P. Tieszen, Marion, S. Dak., $8.00; Mennonite Deaconess Hospital, Beatrice, Nebr., $25.00; Hebron Mennonite Church, S. S., Buhler, Kans., $150.00; H. E. Suderman, for Bethel College Church, $37.50; West Zion Church, Moundridge, Kans., $300.00; Eden Church, Moundridge, Kans., $300.00; Winifield Fretz, Chicago, Ill., $2.00; John C. Dester, Long Beach, Calif., $2.00; Total, $976.82.

With sincere gratitude,
E. W. Baumgartner, Treas. of Board.

Instructive Observations on Above Reports

It should be noted that all reports are for 15 months, all of the year 1939 and three months in 1940. By conference resolutions our churches are asked to take at least one collection each year for the work of publication. There are about 140 in the group that might be counted on to do their part. A check-up reveals the following facts:

1. Of the total number of congregations only 65 or about 46 per cent have made contributions during the 15 months.

2. (a) Of the 24 churches of the Eastern District, 6 have given. Of these the First Church of Philadelphia sent in 5 collections, West Swamp, 4.

(b) Of the 20 churches of the Middle District 12 have given, of these First Church of Berne, Apost. Church of Trenton, and St. John Church, Pandora, each twice, Sunday School gifts and Miss. Society gifts being counted with church gifts.

(c) Of the 25-27 churches of the Northern District 8 have contributed, the Bethel Church of Mt. Lake five times.

(d) Of the 57 churches of the Western District 31 have sent in collections. Of these the Buhler Church has given four times, Lorraine Ave. at Wichita, Hoffnungsau at Inman, Medford, Okla. and Bethel College Church each twice.

(e) Of the 14-16 Pacific District congregations 8 have contributed, Upland four times, Reedley and Alberta Community Church at Portland each twice.

As may be seen from above totals, $858.33 came into the General Fund and $739.60 as outright gifts for the hymn book. In both accounts gifts from individuals were counted in. The two totals amount to $1597.93. Dividing this by 65, the number of contributing churches, we obtain an average of $24.58, a pretty good gift. If all churches had done that much, our treasury would have received a total of $3445.00 which is about the amount of cash the Board of Publication estimates there should be on hand to begin the manufacture of the new hymn books.

It can be noticed that $976.82 have come in as advance payments for preorders for the hymn book. Taking $600 of the General Fund (the rest will have to be retained for current expenses) we have $600 plus $739.60 plus $976.82 or $2316.42, approximately the money available for the hymn book. To bring this up to $3000 or above four persons (we hope one or two more may be found) have very kindly expressed their readiness to loan us couple or $300 each for five years without interest. This is a great encouragement for our Board. May God reward these persons for their generosity.

A little comparison may help a good many of our people to see the need of supporting the work of the Board of Publication more adequately. During the 15 months' period in which our treasurer received gifts amounting to $1597.93, our people gave for the support of Foreign Missions, by actual count, $95,946. Does it not seem that the work of publication which is also a type of mission work, and a very necessary one without which our conference and church activities could not be carried on, should receive a little larger share of our people's giving?

J. R. Thierstein, Chm. Bd. of Publ.

ORDER BLANK

MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE
Newton, Kansas

Place a cross in the order used.

☐ I wish to become a new subscriber of THE MENNONITE, and am enclosing the special price of $1.00 for the first year.

☐ I hereby renew my subscription to The Mennonite and enclose $________, for which credit me as far as it goes. Regular price is $1.50 a year.

Kansas subscribers shoul add 2 per cent. for taxes.

Old subscribers paying to 1941 or beyond get the YEAR BOOK free. This very valuable book may be had by anyone, postpaid, for $.25.

Name ______________________________________

Street or Route ______________________________

City _______________ State __________________

REV. G. A. LINSCHEID
~~1001 EAST BROADWAY~~
NEWTON, KANSAS
JA 41
Code 57

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, APRIL 16, 1940 NUMBER 16

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

EVE EXONERATED

Through the centuries there has been considerable sentiment to place the guilt of bringing sin into the world upon Eve, for "she saw that the (forbidden) tree was good to eat (from), and fair to the eyes . . . ., and she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave to her husband who did eat." Adding to this Adam's charge against Eve, "The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat," one can readily see the reason for such a sentiment. And what wonder that woman came to be labeled as the "weaker sex". More thoughtful people, however, and with them theologians generally, seem to have held the pair equally guilty. There has been a general feeling that Adam as head of the pair and of the race could have prevented the awful deed, if he had asserted himself as was due his position.

The Catholic church which is known to give its people definite interpretations on such matters, in the catechism of 1885 plainly implies that Adam and Eve were equally guilty of the "original sin". It says, "On account of the disobedience of our first parents, we all share in their sins and punishment." Four years ago, however, a committee of 150 churchmen was appointed to revise this catechism and, along with this, correct "definite theological inaccuracies". The first week in April, at the National Catholic Education Association in Kansas City, Rev. Francis J. Connell of New York, one of the authors of the revised catechism, revealed that on this subject of original sin the new version read thus: "On account of the sin of Adam we came into this world deprived of sanctifying grace. This privation of grace is called original sin." Continuing he said, "Adam alone was the moral head of the human race, and he alone by his disobedience brought about the loss of sanctifying grace for all mankind." While Eve also sinned by eating of the fruit, he explained her sin was a personal one. Thus the Catholic church has settled this problem. Might not their action hold a lesson for us. We too, as a Conference, have some puzzling problems, some of which we thought we had settled, and yet they are not. If we should let, say, not 150 but fifty leading brethern study such problems for a couple of years and then come before the Conference with a solution, should we not be willing to accept their findings or conclusion. T.

* * * *

The Coming Miracle of the Conversion of All Jews

What hope is there for the Jews? There seemed to be high hope when, in 1922, Great Britain accepted from the Allied Powers a Mandate for Palestine, making herself responsible for putting into effect the Declaration of 1917 "in favor of the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people." For some years the most amazing things began happening in the Holy Land, — agricultural transformations, business and financial prosperity, and Zionism flourished. Then came jealousy of the Arabs, riots, bloodshed, and it looked as though the prophecy of "Jerusalem a burdensome stone" (Zech. 12:3) was beginning to be fulfilled. Now, after increasing riot and bloodshed, Britain has abandoned her pledge.

But God's Word stands. He has promised Israel to bring her people back to the Land from the whole world. And the miracle of the conversion of all Jews is coming. Pastor William John Scott, President of Vancouver Bible School, has written a remarkable article for the Sunday School Times showing that at the coming of the Lord, all Jews will be converted,—both those who are then out of the Land and will return to the Land in belief, and the multitudes who will have already returned to the Land in unbelief; all will be converted: not one solitary one shall be left unsaved. Think what it will mean to the world when all Jews are to be saved and become the greatest evangelists of the unsaved nations the world has even seen. Pastor Scott's article is a most unusual study. —Sunday School Times.

* * * *

"Faith is the key that unlocks the cabinet of God's treasures; the king's messenger from the celestial world, to bring all the supplies we need out of the fullness that there is in Christ." — J. Stephens.

"A lively faith will bear aloft the mind, and leave the luggage of good works behind." — Dryden.

"Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." — The Bible.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

NEW VICTORIES

On Christmas morning, Missionary Rodolphe Petter baptized two Indian girls. On Easter Sunday he baptized three more Indians. Other candidates for baptism at Lame Deer and Birney are on the waiting list. Of the three baptized on Easter morning, one was a likeable young man, son of the murderer now in Billings' jail awaiting trial. However Buster, as he is called, was raised by a former wife and avoided his father, who has served terms at Federal Prisons.

Sometime after his release, Stanley Whiteman's deaf and dumb wife gave birth to a fine baby boy, who grew to be a great pet at the hospital until he was dismissed. But Stanley never recognized Johnny as his son, and at the beginning of November last, the wife disclosed that the father had killed the child more than a year before. FBI men were quickly summoned, and the body was actually found where the woman signed that it had been buried.

All Lame Deer was in commotion while investigations were going on. It was considered by the officers as a most horrible murder case. When Mary, the young daughter of Stanley was questioned, she gave testimony, but on second questioning refused to talk. Suspicions were aroused that she had been hushed and, naturally, close relatives like Milton Whiteman Sr., and Frank Whiteman who are both brothers of Stanley, and Buster who is a son by a former wife were suspected. At the time Buster was painting a building just opposite the Agency offices, and Milton Sr. was in the basement attending to his janitor duties.

Both were ruthlessly seized, and together with Frank thrust into the local jail, but before night were rushed to the Mardin jail for a preliminary trial, and later were placed in the Billings jail, although all three protested that they had not talked to Mary.

Bond was placed at $2,500 for each. Every effort to meet this bond, at least for Milton Sr., was fruitless. Every one was fearful of being involved in a murder case, and, besides, the sum was prohibitive for such who were otherwise willing. Thus it happened that Milton Whiteman Sr., well known through our church papers, thru his presence at Saskatoon, at Colfax, at Bloomfield and otherwise, was held on the charge that he had with "corrupt intent willfully, unlawfully and erroneously endeavored to influence one Sadie Mary Whiteman, a witness in a criminal case".

The situation was distressing in the extreme, and not only the immediate families, but all Cheyenne church Indians, and we their missionaries suffered with the prisoners and our only confidence was in God, to whom unceasing prayers were offered in their behalf. We were, however, buoyed up by the power that kept the prisoners brave, patient, with a conduct that won the jailer and all the fellow-prisoners. Milton continued to preach the Christ he had accepted in 1926, and cooperated with the lady missionary who visited the jail regularly, and also with Salvation Army representatives. Letters travelled back and forth, and such who could visited them, though visiting hours were restricted. Also people in Billings who had known and respected Milton, visited him, and ministered to him. My piano tuner said, "If it comes to trial, Milton will have plenty of character witnesses."

God be praised, it did not come to trial. The Grand Jury which convened in Great Falls, finally, on Feb. 19, received testimony on the case. Sadie Mary was called before them and we are told she said the FBI men had so frightened her that she signed statements whose contents she did not know. At least, whatever testimony was given there, we know that before the day was over, word had travelled to the jailer at Billings to release all three men at once. Who can fail to note the coincidence mentioned in the Acts, "Peter therefore was kept in prison, but prayer was made earnestly of the church unto God for him."

Our joy knew no bounds! The relief was great. We had suffered more keenly than we had realized. Buster and Milton Sr. at once planned a feast of thanksgiving at the church for the following Sunday. It was a joyous occasion. One cake was decorated with the lettering, Acts 12:5. Prayer and praise was offered by all. The deliverance was great!

While in jail, Buster whose real name is Milton Whiteman Jr. resolved that upon his release, he too would request baptism and join the church, though he had been told he was baptized as a Catholic in infancy. Instructions followed. On Easter Sunday he made his confessions and received the holy baptism in the presence of a church well filled, together with the two others. Mrs. Jennings, wife of the Superintendent of the entire reservation, was also present, and at the close also welcomed the new converts. It was a service when one thought of the angelic hosts rejoicing even over "one sinner that repenteth".

We also rejoice in the record attendance that day as 140. The white people's class was the largest, and there was scarcely standing room for the two classes in the rear of the church. We gladly share these victories with our mission friends throughout the churches, who faithfully pray and give for this work. Ever since our return from Europe last October, we noticed in the welcome our Indians gave us, a new rallying for the message we were bringing. Less opposition has been offered, and many who have drifted have expressed a desire to return to the church. One woman said, "It was foolish for me to leave the church. I had no real grounds. I recognize my mistake with deep regret".

Last Sunday evening we had a quiet, blessed communion service with our Christians that again lifted our hearts in prayer and praise for the triumphs of the gospel among a heathen people. We were reminded of the Word that "goes forth conquering and to conquer". We rejoice in the faithfulness that is commendable. They are fluent readers of the Word of Cheyenne, and give its message regularly to their people here and in Birney, also occasionally in Ashland. Through the Tuesday evening Bible class with them, they have had courses throughout the entire Bible, so that there is scarcely a teaching that has not been presented to them.

Yours in His Service, Mrs. E. K. Petter

The Field Secretary Work of the General Conference

Brother H. A. Fast, Field Secretary of the General Conference, has now given the Conference three and one-half years of faithful service. In order not to tax the liberality of the churches unduly, the Executive Committee of the Conference originally engaged Brother Fast only till the Conference met at Saskatoon. Later it was possible to extend the time to June 1, 1940. Since the treasury now is almost empty, no further commitment has been made beyond June 1, 1940. If this is to be done, it will be necessary for the churches at once to take offerings and send them in to the conference treasurer, Karl A. Richert, Newton, Kansas.

Whoever has definite wishes along this line is therefore urged to give them material expression and to send contributions to the treasurer named above. Such wishes are commands to your officers. Complimentary words and even resolutions do not suffice here.

It is well known that several of our boards and committees are asking for funds to be able to do the work assigned to them. Make that possible by helping them first. Let us not divert what has been entrusted to us to outside organizations or individuals —no matter how worthy—to the detriment and discouragement of our own work and workers and hence for the displeasure of our Lord!

Your officers are solicitous lest the churches be burdened to the point of giving grudgingly and thus forfeit the blessing of giving cheerfully; but they are also concerned lest something be done or left undone which might quench the spirit of love for the great work entrusted to our churches in His vineyard.

May the Lord richly bless your gifts, whether large or small, and all contributors and recipients more than we are able to ask or think.

In the cause of our Master, your servant,

C. E. Krehbiel, Chairman, Executive Com.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

MY MOTHER KNEW THE STARS

Lucia Mallory

"The Child's First School is the Family"—Froebel

Why is it that so many mothers magnify little faults and grievances out of all true proportion?

What if Joan did get her new shoes muddy? The little shoes can be repolished much more quickly than the child's blithe spirit can be healed from hurt of her mother's sharp rebuke.

What if Dick does keep his playthings scattered all over the kitchen on his mother's baking day? Doesn't she know that the little fellow likes to be with her—that he is much more contented there than if he were by himself in the playroom?

I was thinking about little Joan and Dick and their mothers when I spent an evening, not long ago, with my friend, Ellen Norris, so I put those questions to her.

More than all of the other women I know, Ellen Norris keeps her life serene and steadfast. Her days are crowded with caring for an invalid husband, companioning two growing daughters, and being to a large extent, breadwinner for the family. Many of the world's woes find their way to her desk in the office of City Welfare Director.

Ellen pondered the questions a long time before she answered me. "I think, Lucia," she said at last, "those mothers need to stop and look up at the stars. That was my mother's refuge from many of the petty vexations of life.

"We were a big family, growing up on a Kansas farm. Mother's days were filled to overflowing with cooking, cleaning, sewing, and mending, yet she often found time in the evenings to go out of doors and look up at the stars. They were her friends, steadfast and true, and she made them ours.

"I can feel the sense of awe and vastness that came over me when I placed my little mittened hand in hers and gazed at the great figure of Orion. In March, we watched for the ruddy face of Arcturus, and knew that spring had come. We saw the two Dippers and the Northern Crown, the bent-backed chair Cassiopea and the great sickle in the Lion.

"We learned the brightest stars by name and knew where to look for them in winter and summer. We followed the planets and learned to recognize them by their steady light.

"Something of the immense size and distance of these heavenly bodies Mother told us, for she never tired of their study, but more important than that, they became our friends.

"I know now that their calm serenity lifted my mother out of the pettiness and sordidness of everyday life. They were her 'candles on the altar of God.'

"Now that I am a woman grown, I find in them the comfort and relief from strain, that Mother felt. I hope that I can pass on to my daughters the same life-long companionship with the stars and the God that made them and the whole universe with all the wonders contained therein!"

Furnished by the "National Kindergarten Association", 8 West 40th Street, New York City.

THOUGHTS ON MUSIC

by Ella M. Wiebe

Let all my life be music,
Where joy and pain are blended harmony!
And when the Great Musician plays,
Then let my heart respond!

When we think of activity in the presence of God in the future life, we think of music. In this life we need words for beauty of the dawn, the rising of the mists at the rising of the sun, the towering of the hills into the clouds,—the budding into life of a rose or a child . . . and so we have the mighty Chorals which have lived throughout the centuries, and the great symphonies which tell of human suffering and triumph. We then realize anew, that destined for immortality, all that is not eternal is too short to satisfy the human heart; all that is not Infinite, too small.

Music breaks through our shell of mortal living and gives us glimpses of greater things. Sir Arthur Sullivan tells of this in his song, "The Lost Chord." He was weary and troubled that day, and playing he knew not what at the organ, he suddenly struck a chord which seemed as an answer from heaven, a great "Amen", which flooded his soul with peace. So the eternal breaks thru our mortal shell in moments of great living. I think of death in that way. It will liberate our spirits from the fetters of this body. In a material sense, music is a range of sound waves. This range of sound frequency extends into the infinite into either direction, up or down. The human ear can perceive only a small fragment, about equivalent to two keys in a six-octave piano, and many are not trained to hear even that much. Children hear more; the shell around their souls is not yet hardened, and all things speak to them. Persons at the gates of death hear voices and music; others are present, but hear nothing. In the Bible, there are many instances recorded where those who lived close to God heard and saw that which others did not see nor hear. We call this "the spiritual" for it is not perceived through the senses. As we live the life of the spirit, and come into the presence of that which we cannot express in words, we turn to prayer, to worship, to stars, to beauty in sunsets, in flowers, in great paintings and symphonies where some of that for which we have no words, is expressed.

If all of life shall be music we must be instruments in the hands of God, tuned to the key of the universe. Only in human beings is there enmity, and out of the heart come evil thoughts and envy and hate. Because we are at enmity, we are afraid, and so build walls of defenses around us that we shall not be hurt. It is this fear of suffering that causes us to miss the best in life. It keeps us poor and small. Open wide your heart to God, and life will open wide its doors to you, and all of life will be a song of the inexpressibly blessed freedom of the children of God who have lost fear. If fear is gone, then hate is gone, for we hate and dislike that of which we are secretly afraid. Why do we sing so spiritless the song of our redemption? Is it perhaps, that there are areas in our lives where we still have not yielded the many strings of our natures to the Great Musician?

Let joy and pain be blended harmony. This is the peace that passeth all understanding. In other countries where people have time to listen, there are Aeolian harps in the gardens, thru which the winds play gentle melodies. So life would play a song of trust and triumph in you and me.

"Play over me, O God, your cosmic melodies;
The gusty overtures of spring's caprice and wayward April's mirth;
The senseous serenade of summer,
languid in the alder glade;
The wistful symphonies of autumn;
And winter's rhapsodies among the drifted dunes . . ."
This is the rhythm, the rhaphsody of life.

LUTHER'S GIFTS

During the Luther anniversary of a few years ago admirers of the great reformer compiled the following list of contributions which he made to the world directly or by furnishing the impetus. What a pity, yea tragedy that the country that gave us this man of God and has enriched the world through so many channels should now be on the road to paganism.

1. The open Bible.
2. Supremacy of the Bible in religion.
3. Justification by faith.
4. A spiritual religion.
5. Right of individual conscience.
6. Freedom of thought, speech and press.
7. Religious emancipation from the state.
8. Civil liberty.
9. Direct approach to God—priesthood of believers.
10. Popular education.
11. Recognition of public opinion.
12. Nobility of life and labor.
13. The evangelical parsonage.
14. Worship in the native tongue.
15. Congregational singing.
16. A treasury of hymns.
17. The Catechism—a summary of the Bible.

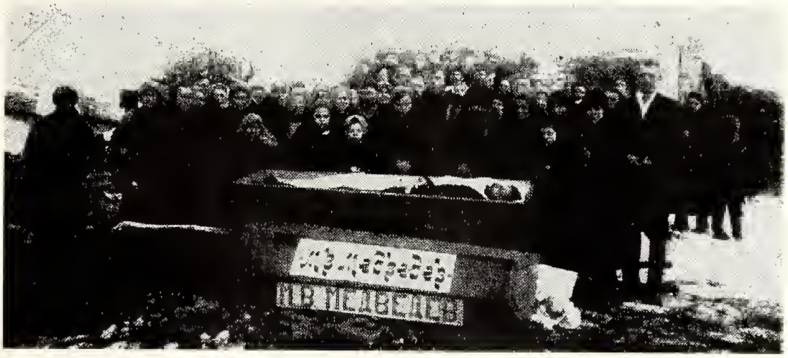
A LETTER FROM CHINA

Translated from German

Nunkiang, Manchou Kuo, January 10, 1940
Min. H. P. Krehbiel, Newton, Kansas.

Dear Brother in the Lord:

The year 1939 is ended. At the beginning of the past year it seemed rather problematic what the future would bring us. But with the help of the Lord we got along. We were well and were able to do much work. With that purpose we again have entered this year. With the Lord's approval we intend to enlarge our farming activities.



A Funeral at Nankiang, Manchou Kuo, China. At the right of the coffin stands Rev. H. J. Eckert, leader of the small flock in the place, a fugitive from Siberia and writer of this letter. The deceased: M. W. Medwedjew.

The harvest, the first in this new settlement, was quite small. From the Government we received seed grain in the fall without paying any interest. I am intending to sow a larger acreage in the expectation that in the year 1941 the beginning can be made to repay the borrowed sum. We earnestly beg that you do not become impatient. Our gratitude to your Aid Society (Mennonite Settlers Aid Society. H. P. K.) is unbounded. Our dear heavenly Father recompense you richly for the great benevolent deed, in extending to us the loan of money which has enabled us to make the beginning at farming.

Our farm equipment at present consists of two horses, a third one I intend to buy; six cows and heifers, three of them giving milk; one wagon; one grass mower; one harvester. Farm machinery here is at present excessively high in price, almost beyond reach. The land, though there is no bush on it, is hard to cultivate. It requires much horse power to prepare it for sowing. Much sickness among stock has hindered progress of farming. During the past year cattle suffered seriously in this region from the so-called "Siberian Epidemic." The weather in the past year was nice and favorable. Not over much rain. Vegetables grew luxuriently. We garnered plenty of everything in the garden. Especially fine were the "Arbusen" and melons. Then too I was able to make an abundance of hay, even could sell some hay.

We cannot complain about spiritual life. The Lord so led that in the year 1939, less than a mile from my home I could gather a Christian Church, which I serve as leader. This task at the beginning was beyond my strength. But the Lord supported and strengthened me so later on it became easier for me. I was no speaker. But on bended knees I implored the Lord to supply what I lacked. My prayer was heard, and thereafter speaking became easier. I have passed through trying hours, yet the Lord rested his blessing on our work. At the Beginning of the year only six souls shared in the work. At the end of the year there were 20 church members. In Sunday school there were 20 to 23 children and there was a choir and a Young People's society working to the glory of God. However, the attending on the many meetings, going there in the evenings and remaining there late at night, then in daytime be intensively occupied as the only worker on the farm—that I will not be able to carry through in the future, as the condition of my health is not equal to the task.

Near the end of the year we had a funeral. A brother in the church, Medwedjew by name, after a serious illness passed away. He died happy in the Lord. I visited him quite often. Toward the end he said, "I shall soon go home to the Father." Not long afterwards he was permitted to pass over to his heavenly home. It was his deepest longing to go home soon. We have often sung and prayed at his home. He was very gratefully appreciative for these comforting services.

At the funeral I spoke words of comfort to the bereaved family based on Luke 7:11-17, where Jesus says "Weep not." Jesus not only comforts, He also helps. Do not be discouraged, look steadily to Jesus, He ever helps if we only believe. I enclose herewith a picture of the funeral. My wife and children could not be present because of the intense cold. We continue to read the papers with great interest. I regret that I am behind on the payment Bundesbote, Herold and Rundschau. My family are enjoying good health. Our two boys are making good progress in the school here. May the Lord bless you and your family, and all the readers of the Mennonite papers.

With cordial greetings and happy in the Lord here in Manchou Kuo.

H. J. Eckert.

SERMON SKETCH

WE WOULD SEE JESUS

by Paul E. Whitmer, Pandora, Ohio

Text: We would see Jesus, John 12:21.

Toward the close of Jesus' earthly career he raised Lazarus from the dead. This occurred near Jerualem. Lazarus' family celebrated the event with a great feast which was attended by many. The Feast of the Passover was near at hand. Large multitudes came to Jerusalem to attend this feast. Interest in Jesus and his works were at a high pitch. Probably many came to this feast with the hope of seeing and hearing Jesus. They had heard of the wonders of his healing and the works of grace wrought in the souls of the sinful and outcast. They were eager to see this Jesus, to hear him, and to share in the blessings which he was imparting to many.

Among those who were interested in Jesus was a group of Greeks, probably Grecian Jews who lived abroad in Greek speaking countries. They may never have seen nor heard Jesus. But his fame was reported to them. They were eager to meet him face to face. They made their desire known to one of the disciples who arranged an interview with Jesus. They said: "We would see Jesus." This was a sufficient reason why they should be brought to Jesus.

There were many others in the crowd who also wished to see him. Jesus did not always insist that the motives of seekers be the highest and best. Some may have come out of curiosity. One man, at least, came to get Jesus to help him to secure his full inheritance. Others may have heard so much about Jesus that they wanted to see him for themselves to make sure that he is as great and good as reported. Many, no doubt, had seen and heard Jesus before but desired a deeper understanding and appreciation of him and his good news.

Evidently every one who was sufficiently interested to see Jesus had an opportunity to do so. Jesus was available to all who really desired him. If a sincere desire for the presence of Jesus was the only essential requisite in the past, it is also the only essential requisite today. Whatever the occasion may be Jesus is available if people want him, really and sincerely. A home circle can be blessed and beautified every day by the presence of Christ if he is wanted. In the devotional hour when the family gathers for the morning or evening worship, Christ is sure to be present there if he is accorded a real welcome. Why are some worship periods so sacred and why are other similar periods so barren and unfruitful? The best explanation is that Christ felt welcome to be present at the one and not at the other.

In my boyhood I knew a shoemaker who had Christ with him in his shop every day. It was natural for him to speak of Christ and what he means to him. People never resented it to have him speak of the blessings of the presence of Christ in his every day life and work. There was reality and simple sincerity in this man's religious life that made it attractive even to the indifferent and irreligious.

In our public worship there are times when every requisite for a blessed hour of worship is present except the witness of the Spirit. Perhaps we forget to make sure that the presence of Christ was really desired and a proper invitation given, not in words merely but in a sincere hungering and thirsting after the bread and water of life.

The communion of the Lord's Supper is an occasion when the presence of Christ is especially desired and necessary for a helpful service. Much has been said and written about the proper consecration of the bread and wine but that is less important than a desire that he be present. No doctrine of the presence can compare for one moment with the desire and wish for the spiritual presence of Christ. "We would see Jesus" by faith and hungry hearts.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

April 28, 1940

ISAIAH COMFORTS AN AFFLICTED PEOPLE

Isaiah 40:1-11. Read entire chapter

TOPIC: God Our Help in Trouble

Introduction

Isaiah 40, our lesson for today, is one of the great chapters of the Bible, probably the most majestic and inspiring chapter of the Old Testament. Isaiah begins a message of comfort to a people greatly oppressed by their enemies. We have the atmosphere of the captivity in the message of the lesson. This captivity had its beginnings in Isaiah's day. Israel, the northern kingdom, had come to an end, and Judah was severely crippled and over two hundred thousand were carried into captivity in 701 B. C., by Sennacherib and his Assyrian hosts. Jerusalem had barely escaped and this message of comfort was much needed at this time.

The Coming Day of Comfort, vs 1, 2

God has a message of comfort for His people. He is "the God of all comfort" (2 Cor. 1:3) and speaks through his prophet Isaiah. He commands all His people to comfort one another (I Thess. 4:18). Jehovah gave to Isaiah a message of comfort and assurance to the down-trodden, distressed and brokenhearted people of Jerusalem. Deliverance from the hands of the enemy was certain to come, their iniquity would be pardoned, the time of chastisement would be ended (v2). Captivity shall continue for a time, then Jehovah will bring His people back to their native land after enduring ample penalty for their sins. His mercy will doubly reward them.

Jehovah's Glory Shall be Revealed vs 3-5

Isaiah hears a voice crying to the people (v3) to prepare the way, the figure based on the well-known Eastern practice of preparing the roads for a royal journey. Jehovah will lead His people through the wilderness from their exile and reveal His glory so that all may see it. The people must prepare a way for Him in their hearts. The only sure preparation lies in the forsaking of sin and turning the heart to God. God's glory is revealed today in spiritual revival

God's Word is Eternal vs 6-8

"All flesh," man himself, his knowledge, science, art and skill is like grass, beautiful for a brief period, then withers and passes away (v 6). It is so transitory. The "Spirit of the Lord bloweth upon" human pomp and wisdom and it withereth and fadeth (v7). In contrast with this, God's Word endureth forever. All that is earthly and human is temporary and changeable. Affliction will end. God's Word, love and mercy are endless and immeasurable.

Jehovah will Come to His People vs 9-11

These verses contain much of comfort for the discouraged people. Jehovah will come as a mighty one, stronger than all the forces of the enemies. He will reward His people and will tenderly care for them. God's faithful people need not lack in comforting assurance of His help, protection and care.

Things appeared hopeless to Judah in Isaiah's day. His message to the people was "Behold thy God" (v9). He pictures the majesty and might of God, in whom they should trust, in verses 12-26. From His throne in heaven, He looks down and sees His people. He is the Creator of all things. He understands your needs and conditions. He will deliver you. The nature of the comfort God gives depends upon the need. There is no crisis in life in which He cannot provide comfort and help. In times of material need, we can rejoice in heavenly riches. In sickness we can intrust ourselves into His hands. When death enters into our midst, we find comfort in Him for the present and for eternity. They who believe in God and in His promises, have peace of mind and soul under all conditions. God is able to give comfort and help in every time of need.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA.

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Business Office, Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kans.
Editor .... J. R. Thierstein, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.50 .... Foreign, $2.00

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges, to J. R. THIERSTEIN, or the MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS.

DOCTRINAL - DEVOTIONAL

"WHERE IS MY FEAR, SAITH THE LORD."

(Mal. 1:6)

by Mrs. W. H. Vickers, Robstown, Texas

From the time that I first read the article in The Mennonite entitled "Swiss Mennonites of Two Centuries Ago," I have been determined to live up to the very faith that I profess. And I "set my heart to understand" what was lacking and prayed that God would point out to me the defects in my faith, because I strongly felt it inadequate to meet such a crisis as shown in Revelation.

The answer was not long in coming, but the subject was one which required a great deal of seeking, as it is found only "here a little, there a little, precept upon precept, line upon line" throughout the entire Bible. The greatest thing in the O. T. for us and the second greatest in the New Dispensation. It was established clean and enduring forever and should be just as alive in our hearts today as the Risen Christ. And we should be just as unashamed to make full use of it as we are unashamed to show Christ in our lives.

These ancestors of mine put God first and taught their children to do so. They knew that to please God one must hearken unto His own beloved Son. The laws and commandments did not bother them because they feared God and thereby kept them. That was what God insisted on teaching his people through Noah, Abraham, Jacob, Moses, Samuel, Job, Daniel and all His servants. It was the only way and became necessary after Adam's transgression. Buffeted by Satan, this great blessing became a "thorn in the flesh" and seems to be at the present time. But we are taught to let the pricks of this thorn remind us that it is for our own good and be forewarned of the evil before us. Perhaps this generation has been taught the fear of God by the "precepts of men" (Isa. 29:13). Perhaps they do not realize that this Father and Son relationship made possible by divine atonement includes the respect that only Godly fear can produce. Well we know that Christ needed strengthening in "His last hour" in Gethsemane and that "He was heard in that He feared." Matt. 5:7, 17. We know that when we are walking in the fear of God that there is no terror in this fear, because our love is very near perfection. But we do not know the dangerous temptations before us and that is the purpose of Godly fear, to preserve us from evil. It is an element of the Holy Spirit, (Is. 11:1, 2, 3) therefore a grace of God and obtainable to all whosoever will accept Christ. Perhaps ignorance of the purpose of Godly fear is someone's trouble today and causes them to quench this spirit. That is where Satan is able to make such progress.

He cannot break through Godly fear, he learned this in his experience with Job. And here we also learn that it is something which we ourselves can depend upon. Because Job was driven to the point where he sought to be relieved of this powerful hold of God upon him. (Job 9:34, 35) (Job 13:21). "In the fear of the Lord is strong confidence and His children shall have a place of refuge."

Today we need this necessary adjunct to beget in our souls a greater reverence of God, His Word, His ministers and the Churches of Christ, to keep us from grieving the Holy Spirit which is to seal us unto the day of redemption. The sins of God's servants are shown us to teach us how God hates evil, and we should fear to condemn or ridicule any of them. Remember Aaron and Miriam. "Ought ye not to walk in the fear of our God because of the reproach of the heathen of our enemies?" "Be not high minded, but fear, for if God spared not the natural branches themselves, take heed, lest He also spare not thee." "I will give them one heart and one way, that they may fear me forever, for the good of them. And I will make an everlasting covenant with them that I will not turn away from them to do them good, but I will put my fear in their hearts that they shall not depart from me." (Jer. 32:39, 40).

History of the Mennonites of the Franconia Conference

John C. Wenger

(A Book Review)

There has been a growing interest in recent years in the history of the Mennonite denomination both in America and Europe. Numerous regional studies have been made within the past ten or fifteen years of certain limited areas of Mennonite settlements, or in special phases of educational or mission activities of the church. The latest of these regional studies, and one of the most interesting, is that of John C. Wenger, now of Goshen College, and published in a book called "History of the Mennonites of the Franconia Conference." The Franconia Conference here spoken of includes the Mennonites of southeastern Pennsylvania east of Lancaster county.

From the historical point of view this region is one of the most interesting and important because it includes the first Mennonite settlement in Germantown, and such other early congregations as Skippack, Franconia, Salford and others. The story of Germantown, which is not only the first Mennonite, but also the first settlement of Germans in America, is told here in full and accurate detail, with the story of the first protest against slavery in America, their educational efforts and other matters of interest. Fully described also is the work of Christopher Dock the early Colonial Mennonite school master, and extracts from his writings on school teaching, as well as other interesting material.

The book includes a wealth of genealogical information of all the branches of the church in this area, the names of many of the first settlers, and other details of family and religious life of concern to their descendents in all parts of the country.

It should be of special interest to members of the General Conference branch of the church, because this was the field of John H. Oberholzer's work, and the area now covered by the congregations of the Eastern District Conference. Up to 1847 all the Mennonites in this region had a common history, and all share alike in all developments of the church up to that time. Dr. Wenger takes up the story of the different branches of the denomination since that date separately, and treats them all and completely. Silas Grubb for many years contemplated the writing of the complete history especially of the early part of history of the Eastern District Conference but never succeeded, due to ill health, in finishing his task. The section of Dr. Wenger's book dealing with Oberholtzer's part in the organizing of the Eastern District is authentically and satisfactorily told. The appendix contains a lengthy letter written by Oberholtzer in 1849 to friends in Germany, in which he tells his own story of the separation of 1847. This letter was discovered only a few years ago.

The book has many excellent pictures, is well indexed, contains 523 pages, and is published at Scottdale, Pennsylvania, but may be ordered from the Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana. It is perhaps the last word for a good many years on this particular Mennonite region. —C. Henry Smith —Bethel Church, Langdon, North Dakota, 4-8-40.—Due to mild weather and open roads, we have been able to hold our Sunday School and church services all through the winter, for the first time in a number of years. Fortunately our minister also was able to come every Sunday. We also had a very good Easter program which was well attended. Every Tuesday night prayer meetings are held in the different homes and still it seems there is so much more to be done for our Master that will bring someone back from the road of sin.—On April 2nd we had rain and snow with some thunder and lightening which is rather unusual for North Dakota.—Mrs. I. Veer, Corr.

—Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio, 4-8-40.—On Good Friday evening our choir, assisted by soloists, rendered "The Seven Last Words" by Dubois.—On Easter Sunday six young people were received into the church by baptism and one by letter. Communion was observed the same day.—April 7 a reception was held at 7 p. m. in the church besement for the new members.—During the past week Rev. Witmer spent some time in Chicago in the interest of the Mennonite Seminary.

—Grace Church Corr.

R. Weinbrenner
Editor
Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen
Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers
Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

C. E. Leaders Met to Speed Projects

North Newton, Kans., April 2.—The invitation of the Inman C. E., to hold a peace rally on April 28 in the Inman Mennonite Church at 7:45 p.m., was accepted by youth leaders in a meeting here today. Dr. E. L. Harshbarger has been secured as speaker.

Edwin Stucky, convention peace secretary, outlined plans for this year's peace and mission oratory contest. Any person between 15 and 30 years of age who is a member of a Christian Endeavor society in the district is eligible to enter. The oration is to be 10 minutes in length and must be given by the contestant in a sectional elimination. Each C. E. society may have two entries one in the peace division, the other in missions. All entries must be sent to Edwin R. Stucky, Moundridge, Kansas. The entry deadline is fixed at May 30.

Offer Free Retreat

A free ticket to the Mennonite young people's retreat to be held in the fall will be awarded to the winners of the oration contest. Lillie Krehbiel of the Eden Mennonite C. E. won the mission award last year, and Paul Becker of the First Mennonite C. E. in Newton won the peace oration. It is the third consecutive year that it has been held. A free trip to the retreat will be given to the C. E. society that sends in most money to the convention secretary-treasurer for the mission projects of the convention. This will be awarded, however, on the basis of receipts per member. The C. E. that has the largest per member contribution will receive the ticket and will then have the privilege of sending one of its group to the retreat. This gives small C. E. groups the same chance to win as larger groups.

Back Union Projects

The support of Ernest Harder, the newest project of the Young People's Union, was discussed. Young Harder is from Fernheim Colony in Paraguay, South America, and is now studying in Freeman Junior College. The project was approved.—Florene Krehbiel, secretary-treasurer of the convention, reported that half of the pledge to the Swift Current Dormitory project was sent in and that the remainder would be sent as soon as all C. E.'s send in their quota of $2.00. A number of groups have sent in larger contributions. Unless foreign mission receipts are earmarked otherwise they are being used for the fund to return missionaries to foreign fields. The mission board of the conference announces that they have seven missionaries ready to return.

The proposed follow-up system was presented and details were further discussed. Onieta Tiahrt of the Bethel College C. E., outlined the work of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, a national organization including peace workers of all denominations, and told of its active work to bring Christian pacifist ideals into practice. Her C. E. has organized a peace team. She recommended this type of effort to other groups.

The Western District C. E. Convention is supporting the Kansas Institute of International Relations, June 11-21, in line with its resolution of the last convention. A representative of the committee is scheduled to take in each of the round table discussions of the Historic Peace Church Groups which is scheduled to meet from two to three o'clock each afternoon. It was recommended that each Christian Endeavor society send such a representative. The Southland Singers, a famed Negro chorus, will appear on the evening of June 19. One of the leaders of the Institute will be Heinrich Bruening, former Chancellor of Germany.

C. E. leaders were present from the following societies: Inman, Eden, Halstead, Bethel College, First Mennonite, Newton, Tabor, Hopefield, including also William Juhnke, Convention President; Hans Regier, Vice Pres.; Florene Krehbiel, Sec., and Edwin Stucky, Peace Sec.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

The recent spring vacation was a busy one for various Bluffton groups. The Choir, the Gospel Team, and the Peace Action club all served in a helpful way. The choir of 43 voices, under the direction of Professor Russell A. Lantz, gave concerts in various Mennonite communities in Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, and Minnesota. It also sang in various high schools

The Men's Gospel Team sent a deputation group to churches in Indiana for Easter week-end services. Two groups were selected for the trips, thus permitting both quartets to serve. One group consisting of Alvin Beachy and the quartet composed of Robert Sommer, James Habegger, Leonard Metzker, and John Boehr, served at the Goshen Eighth Street Mennonite Church, the Middlebury Mennonite Church, and at the Nappanee Mennonite Church. The second group consisting of Lawrence Burkhalter and the quartet composed of Lorrel Mullett, Harvey Bauman, Stanley Fretz, and Donald Gundy appeared at the Nappanee Mennonite Church, the Goshen College dining hall, and at the Silver Street Mennonite Church in Goshen.

The Peace Action club of Bluffton presented the play "Let My People Go" at various places in Ohio and Pennsylvania. This play was written by a graduate of Bethel College and depicts the Mennonite struggle to remain loyal to their historic peace stand. The play contains several tabloids of Mennonite history and standards of belief. Students who made this trip were: Betty Keeney, Lucile Tschantz, Irwin Graber, James Habegger, John Boehr, John Elwood, Richard Weaver, Bertran Smucker, and Leonard Metzker. These tours were made with the knowledge that the Mennonite churches and the Mennonite colleges need each other.

THIS AND THAT

Rev. Olin Krehbiel, president of the Young People's Union has sent out copies of the constitution for the Y. P. Union. It will appear on this page in the near future.

The Western District Retreat Committee have sent out cards for advance registration. Camp facilities will not permit more than 180 young people to attend. So if you are interested in going, sign up early. Rev. Walter Dyck, Y. P. representative of this district has recently been meeting with various Y. P. groups in interest of the coming retreat.

Senior Department

MAKING LIFE COUNT

Senior C. E. Topic for May 5, 1940

Main Topic: Vocational Detours. Acts 16:6-10

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "He Leadeth Me," "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," "I Would Be True," "My Faith Looks Up to Thee."
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer.
3. Special music: "Jesus Savior Pilot Me."
4. Offering for missions

II. Leader's Introduction

This is the second of two topics on the timely and important theme, Making Life Count. Here we are concerned with the problem of finding a satisfactory vocation.

The phrasing of this topic is timely. It reminds us of the fact that most young people today find the road to vocational satisfaction full of detours. So far from being free to make a choice of several satisfactory vocations, young people today are driven by circumstance in most cases to take the first job that comes along. It takes grace and courage to see in such circumstances an opportunity to grow in character, and to trust that "All things work together for good for him who loves God."

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Success by way of slavery. Gen. 39:1-5; 41:38-43.
2. A life of no detours. Acts 10:36-43.
3. A costly detour. Jonah 1:1-3, 15, 17.
4. Detour by captivity. Dan. 1:3-6; 6:1-3.
5. A repented-of detour. Luke 22:54-62.

IV. For Discussion

1. How can we learn what is God's will when we are choosing a vocation?
2. Is lack of opportunity to do what we would like to do a hindrance in our religious life?
3. What is included in living "the abundant life?"

V. Facts for Study

It is strange how long it takes some folks to discover a life purpose; and stranger still, in how many lives things just happen, all is mere accident or coincidence. In the genuinely Christian life there is distinct purpose and meaning.

As followers of Jesus Christ, we must be more concerned with maknig a life than with merely making a living or having a good time. We make life count when we tie it up to great and worthy goals. In choosing any vocation it is well to remember the words of Jesus: "I came not to be ministered unto, but to minister." Phillips Brooks left this priceless advice: not to "pray for tasks equal to our powers, but for powers equal to our tasks."

VI. Illustrations

"The Dreamer"

"The man's a dreamer!" Yes, that places him
In close relationship with God. For down
In the most wretched quarter of town
God stands and dreams his dream
Amid the grim old bottle wreckage—in the dim
Cold twilight where old superstitions frown
And where the mutterings of race hatred drown
The sacred cadence of Love's fond hymn.
Today I met him on an uptown street
Calling for dreamers—plodding in the heat
Of holy passion for more dream-swept hearts
To hold in all the world's discordant parts
The Torch of Brotherhood, that its Love gleam Might speed the progress of His gracious dream.
—Author Unknown.

O Master workman of the race,
  Thou man of Galilee,
Who with the eyes of early youth
  Eternal things did see;
We thank thee for thy boyhood faith
  That shone thy whole life through;
"Did ye not know it is my work
  My Father's work to do?"

O Carpenter of Nazareth,
  Builder of life divine,
Who shapest man to God's own law,
  Thyself the fair design.
Build us a tower of Christ-like height,
  That we the land may view,
And see like thee our noblest work
  Our Father's work to do.

VII. Food for Thought

Our Father, we know that for each one of us
Thou hast a great and glorious future in store,
If only we will permit thee freedom
To work out that future in us.
Take our hands, and use them,
Take our hearts, and take our minds, O Lord,
That we may become masterbuilders in thy Kingdom.
In Christ's name and for his sake, we pray, Amen.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

THE GOAL OF MY DREAMS

May 5, 1940

For Daily Reading:

Apr. 29. Destiny foretold before birth. Luke 1:8-17.
Apr. 30. Training in childhood. I Sam. 1:27, 28; 2:11; 3:19.
May 1. Fitting for service. Gen. 39:1-6, 20-23.
May 2. God's hand seen in events. Gen. 45:4-11.
May 3. The call of a leader. Acts 7:22-35.
May 4. God's choice of the weak. I Cor. 1:26-31.
May 5. Topic—The goal of my dreams. Luke 22:24-26; Prov. 24:30-34.

A Moment of Time

In a moment of time the tempter showed
The Son of God an easier road
Than the blood-stained path He came to tread.
"All the kingdoms of the world," he said,
"And all their power I'll give to Thee,
If Thou wilt but bow and worship me."

In a moment of time the Saviour might
Have bartered away his royal right
So save the world from its sin and woe,
And vanquish fore'er its dreaded foe.
But He would not yield, though at its close
A cross loomed up in the way He chose.

In a moment of time the tempter may
Entice the soul from the narrow way
To the broad highways of earthly fame
Which lead at last but to death and shame.
In just a moment—though strange it be—
Men barter away eternity.

Bertha Unruh Cooley

Song, "The Way of the Cross Leads Home"
Scripture Reading, Luke 22:24-26; Prov. 24:30-34.
Prayer by Superintendent
Prayer Song, "Saviour, Teach Me Day by Day"
Vocal Solo, "My Task"

Discussion:

1. Have you a definite idea as to what type of work you should like to engage in as your life work?
2. What was the inspiration that led you to think very definitely about a certain type of work?
3. Should we carefully consider the earning power of our life work?
4. When should we begin to train for our life work?

Training Time:

Psychologists have found that the early training in a child's life is what counts most; that a child's character is definitely formed by the time he is four years old.

Musicians tell us that a child makes more progress in music before he is twelve than at any other period.

Jesus is our example, so let us see what preparation He made in youth for the game of life.

Luke 2:52—And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man.

1. Increased in wisdom—He must have gone to the schools and studied his lessons.
2. Increased in stature—He did a man's work in the carpenter shop. Surely He must have had a strong physical body to enable Him to live the strenuous life during His three year's ministry.
3. Increased in favor with God—When he was only twelve He said, "I must be about my Father's business."
4. Increased in favor with man—He was a most popular man and was invited to many social affairs.

"So looking to Jesus as our pattern we want first to grow in wisdom and knowledge; then physically, and as our physical growth diminishes, our spiritual growth should increase. We should study God's word that we may grow 'in favor with God,' and be kind and courteous to our friends that we may grow 'in favor with man.'"

Song, "Jesus Is All the World to Me"
Song of Consecration, "I'll Live For Him"
Offering
Silent Prayer
Benediction

(Have the pianist play "Lead On, O King Eternal" while the intermediates leave.)

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

Program Suggestions for May 1940

May 5. A study of the first, second and third commandments. Exodus 20:3-7.
May 12. A study of the fourth and fifth commandments. Exodus 20:8-12.
May 19. A study of the sixth, seventh and eighth commandments. Exodus 20:13-15.
May 26. A study of the ninth and tenth commandments. Exodus 20:16, 17.

Song of the month. "Yield Not To Temptation." Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 257.

Verse of the month. 1 John 5:3. "For this is the love of God that we keep His commandments: and His commandments are not grievous."

Prayer of the month. Psalm 143:10. "Teach me to do Thy will, for Thou art my God." (The Junior leader may wish to use verse eight of this with the above.)

Program for May 5, 1940

A Study of the first three commandments. Ex. 20:3-7

Setting

If a copy of Taylor's picture "When I Consider the Heavens" is available display it advantageously on an easel. Also have a good, large globe in evidence.

Bring with you pictures of idols or secure an idol if possible. These should not be seen by the children until the "Study Period."

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude by pianist, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God"
2. Call to worship. Psalm 95:1, 3. "O come, let us sing unto the Lord: let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation, for the Lord is a great God, and a great King above all gods."
3. Song, "We Praise Thee, O God," Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 56.
4. Scripture reading by three Juniors. (All should follow with open Bibles.) First Junior, Exodus 19:1, 3-7. Second Junior, Exodus 19:8-11. Third Junior, Exodus 19:16-20; Exodus 20:1.
5. Leader's prayer
6. Solo, "O How Love I Thy Law," Service Hymnal,

No. 134.

7. Poem by a Junior girl.

"Almighty God! direct us
To keep Thy perfect Law!
O blessed Savior, help us
Nearer to Thee to draw!
Let Sinai's thunder aid us
To guard our feet from sin;
And Calvary's light inspire us
The love of God to win."—John Hay.

8. In unison verse of the month. 1 John 5:3. For this is the love of God that we keep His commandments and His commandments are not grievous.

9. Song in unison, "Wonderful Words of Life"

II. Study Period

Aim. To help our Juniors know the commands, to arouse a desire to obey God and keep the commands and to help him to realize that in his own strength he can not.

1. Introduction. In John 3:16 we read that God so loved the world that He sent His only begotten Son, our Lord Jesus into this world that we might be saved. Jesus loved us enough to die for us on the cross. He said "I am the good shepherd," "I am the door," "I am the way." Only by believing and accepting Him as our very own Saviour can we truly be God's children. But a long time before Jesus came God gave to His chosen people the law. Paul calls this "Our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ."

Let us read the verse Gal. 3:24. Because Jesus has saved us from our sin we love Him and want to obey Him in all things. Again Paul says in 2 Cor. 5:14 "For the love of Christ constraineth us". This month we want to study that part of the law that we call "The Ten Commandments." The first eight of these are rules about actions, the ninth is a law about words and the tenth is a law about our thoughts. Sometimes we divide the ten commandments by saying that the first four tell us about our duty to God and the last four our duties toward our fellow men. The first words we read are "I Am."

2. Three Juniors, each read the first, second and third commandments.

3. In unison read the first commandment again.

4. Discuss: "Thou shalt have no other Gods before me." (a) We must put God first. (b) If we truly love Him we will put Him first. God wants first place in our hearts. (c) What do people sometimes put as "other gods" before Him?

5. Silent prayer, all heads bowed, asking Jesus to help us to always put God first in all of our life.

6. In unison read the second commandment.

7. Discuss. "Thou shalt not make unto thee a graven image . . . ." (a) Many people worship idols. God forbids that. Do we worship idols? (b) Is there something that sometimes makes us forget God? Are there any graven images that we may find graven in our thoughts? (Do we sometimes hurry home from Sunday School to look at the Funnies, rather than stay for church?)

8. In unison read the third commandment.

9. Discuss. "Thou shalt not take the name of Jehovah thy God in vain." (a) This does not only mean using ugly swear words, and cursing. (b) Can we use God's name in vain by telling a joke or a story? (c) God's name stands for all that is wonderful and beautiful and good, and we cannot imagine using so precious a word in anger, or in silly joking.

10. Heads bowed in silent prayer asking for forgiveness for not always keeping or helping to keep God's name holy.

11. Junior's Talk. "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." Joshua 24:15a.

12. Leader's Heart Talk.

III. Mission Minutes.

1. Talk about the idols of heathen people.
2. How can a Junior help the heathen to know the one true God?
3. Pray that we may all keep God's name holy.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Sing the song of the month, "Yield Not to Temptation."
2. Pray in unison the prayer of the month.
3. Sing "Into My Heart" softly as the Juniors leave.

CORRESPONDENCE

EDEN CHURCH NEAR MOUNDRIDGE, KAN.

Scarcely has talk about the New Year ceased when we awaken to the realization that one-fourth of the year has already passed into eternity. Have we made it count for the Lord and His Kingdom?

We have encountered many unfavorable weather and road conditions the last few months. However, meetings were held, on every Sunday except Feb. 18, when the roads were so badly drifted that not enough people found it possible to go to church.

Our pastor, Rev. Gering, helped conduct a Bible course at Meno, Oklahoma, for one week, beginning Feb. 8. He was scheduled to participate in a Christian Worker's Conference at Cordell, and also for meetings at Medford, but due to badly drifted roads he was forced to give up the meetings and return home.

There has been some sickness and several accidents in which some of our members were involved but as yet the Lord has not called any Home. Surely He has a purpose in keeping us so graciously.—After having been forced to postpone our Prayer Week Services twice, due to the weather and road conditions, we were finally permitted to have them during the week of March 3 to 8. The services were well attended and proved a great blessing.

We have again been reminded of the death and resurrection of our Lord. Easter was a day of much activity in our group. At 5:45 a.m. a sunrise service, sponsored by the C. E. society, was held in the Church which was very inspiring. Another special program was rendered in the evening. Our choir of about a hundred voices presented "The Messiah" by Handel under the direction of Ben Zerger. Our hearts were again thrilled as the "Hallelujah's" rang forth.

Rev. John C. Kaufman and Brother Ralph Kaufman have been our visiting ministers since Easter, bringing their messages on the 25th and 31st of March, respectively.

May the Easter greeting "He is Risen" sound forth from our hearts and lives until He appears.

Richard Schrag, Corr.

THE ROARING SPRINGS MENN. CH., PENNA.

This is the first year at Roaring Spring for our new pastor, Rev. Willard Claassen and his wife, who came to us last summer from Kansas. They have led a busy life here, dividing their time between the Roaring Spring congregation and the Napier congregation. This past winter has been a severe one here, with very extreme weather which has made travel between the two churches difficult. We feel that our prayers for a pastor were certainly answered when Rev. Claassen and his wife came into our midst; the results of their labors can be seen in many ways.

Rev. Claassen visited the St. John's church at Pandora, Ohio, last February for a series of evangelistic services. While there he visited Bluffton college, speaking to the student body in chapel and to the Men's and Women's Gospel Teams. Three students from the Roaring Spring church are attending Bluffton College.

The Aid Society is doing fine work in helping to support the church, the home and foreign missions. The Young People's Group, too, has carried out several projects during the past year in addition to paying the church pianist. The group presented a Christmas pageant last December, and collected over 100 gifts for the Indian children at the Oraibi Mission in Arizona.—Communion services were held last Easter Sunday. Ruth Havens, Corr.

IN MEMORIAM

HAROLD SCHMIDT, son of Benjamin and Anna Schmidt, was born Dec. 11, 1926 at Hillsboro, Kan. He died March 31, 1940 at 11:45 a.m. in the Salem Hospital after an illness of 9 days of intense suffering and pain, caused by a blood infection, at the age of 13 years, 3 months, and 20 days.

Our beloved son had a desire for knowledge and study, and would have completed the seventh grade at the end of this school term. He was dearly loved by all who came in contact with him; especially was this true of his school companions.

It was always a great joy to him to attend Sunday School and services every Sunday. His favorite verse in God's Holy Word was "The Lord is My Shepherd." We have the assurance that he is resting in the arms of the loving shepherd, Jesus, his Savior.

At home in Heaven! with streets of gold,
With all the beauty to behold—
A mansion there for you and me,
　A happy home we all may see.
No more sickness, sorrow or care
　Will rob us of our loved ones there.

He leaves to mourn his departure his beloved parents; one brother, Richard; 3 half brothers, Cornelius and Herman of Hillsboro, and Ben C. of San Francisco, California; 2 half sisters, Marie at Bethel Hospital and Emilia Heppner of Mercer, California.

—The Bereaved Family.

« « JOTTINGS » »

A WORD ABOUT OUR PEACE WORK

In this issue of The Mennonite the readers will find a financial report of the treasurer of our General Conference Peace Committee. In a recent note he says, two more churches have just made contributions, the Zion Church, Souderton, Pa., and the Lorraine Ave. Church, Wichita, Kans. And here are some interesting observations that Brother L. J. Horsch, the treasurer makes. 1) Contributions in the main are small which would indicate that there is but little enthusiasm for the work of the Peace Committee, or more fundamentally, a lack of appreciation of one of the basic doctrines of our denomination, the doctrine of non-resistance.—As a denomination we seem to have become indifferent to the peace teaching of our church. 2) As to sources, contributions are scattered throughout the major portion of America, which suggests that there is no unanimity of support as is the case with Foreign Missions for example. It seems that we need an educational program reaching into every church and Sunday School in the denomination to revitalize, to rekindle our faith in the principles of peace of Jesus, so that as individual church members we can identify ourselves with the cause of peace as we do with the cause of missions. 3) Scattered though the sources of contributions are, they are centralized in the Eastern and Western District Conferences, with the former as the center of the largest total. Does this mean that the further we are removed from the European conflict, the less concerned we are in an active peace program? 4) The record shows that only one church has made any sort of regular contributions to the treasury of the Peace Committee. We Americans pride ourselves in our efficiency. Efficiency in the financial support of any cause can be achieved only by means of a systematic method of contributing. Many, if not most of our churches, contribute to mission work systematically, also many individual members, with the result that our mission program, relatively speaking is flourishing.

—Second Church, Beatrice, Nebr.—"Yesterday (Sunday, Apr. 7) we had Holy Communion in our church. About 178 partook of it. Our membership is 182, including non-resident members. In the evening the Second Church participated in the after-installation services at the Country church.—A beautiful and serviceable family communion set and twenty-five dollars for furtherance of the church library have been given to this church in memory of William E. Penner.

JUST WHAT YOU ARE LOOKING FOR

Ministers, Leaders of Young People, Study Groups here is something that you have been looking for, a rather comprehensive outline of Mennonite History. That our people, generally speaking, are quite ignorant of the history of our church, cannot be contradicted, neither the fact that its study throughout our churches would greatly help to enhance the interest in our denomination and the contributions it has made to the building of the Kingdom. One of the main reasons why this study has been neglected is that suitable text-books are rather difficult to get. Couple of the really good ones are like Smith's "The Mennonites" out of print or rather high in price. Others are so short as to lack in many ways. So what has been greatly needed is a good outline with which any book or books or resources may be used.

Dr. A. Warkentin, Instructor of Mennonite History in Bethel College and ardent student of the subject, has prepared and published such an outline entitled

"EXTRACTS FROM MENNONITE HISTORY IN OUTLINE FORM"

The outline which is remarkably comprehensive, treats the subject in eleven chapters, in a handy booklet of 6½ x 4½ inches and 48 pages. Under two general headings: INTRODUCTION and THE MENNONITES he treats the subject under the following major topics: The Church and the Apostolic Ages, The Church of the Fathers, Christianity, the State Religion.—The Mennonites: Anabaptists (Taeufer) in Switzerland, Anabaptists in South Germany, The Moravian Brethren, The Mennonites in North Germany (incl. Menno Simons), The Mennonites in Germany since the Days of Menno, The Mennonites in Moravia—The Huterites, The Mennonites in Galicia and Poland, The Mennonites in France and Alsace, Mennonites in the Netherlands, Mennonites in America, South America. The booklet can be ordered directly from Dr. A. Warkentin, North Newton, Kansas. The price is 25 cents.

—Rev. A. S. Bechtel, Hanston, Kans., representative from the dust bowl region, writes: we have been having several light rains out here the past week, and now it snowed, too. All is white this morning and it is much colder. We need much moisture to make up the deficiency.

—Friedensberg Church, Avon, S. Dak., April 7, 1940. We had a day of blessing on Sunday, April 7. Seventeen middle-aged and young folks were baptised and added to the church, after which the Holy Communion was observed. Rev. J. Tiesen of Marion, S. D. was the guest speaker.—John E. Unruh, Corr.

—The "WORKERS' EXCHANGE", monthly messenger of the Pacific District (April number) has just reached us. Decorated with a beautifully colored front page, likely the work of Mrs. Ed. Miller of Lind, Wash. and full of items about the activities of the W. D. people, it is indeed a welcome visitor. It reports that the date of the Pacific Conference will have to be postponed to a later date, because the schools are still in session in some parts on June 6-9. The Ex-Committee is considering the matter and a definite date is to be announced later.—It chronicles, among other things, that in the Aberdeen Church, Idaho, every member of the Ladies' Bible Class has pledged herself to read the Bible THROUGH in a year. There are 35 members in the class and A. D. Wenger is the teacher.—The building of the church at Pratum, Oregon, is progressing well. The foundation is completed and the frame work begun.

—The Editor had to go to the Bethel Hospital again last Saturday morning for another operation on his ailing leg. While he is lingering there for a week or longer, Miss Mary Becker, senior student at Bethel, who has been typing for him and is somewhat familiar with his work, will edit The Mennonite for at least the issue of April.

—Second Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—Bulletin reports that fourteen new members have been taken into the church on Easter Sunday. During April the pastor preaches a series of Growth sermons: "How Lillies Grow," "How Weeds Grow," "Growing in Heart and Mind," "The Full Grown Man."—WEDDINGS in the church: On February 14, Mr. and Mrs. John Gugerty; on March 30, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stover.

—Bulletin, First Church, Bluffton, Ohio. — Do you want rest, strength, a cure for care, help to carry the load, something worthwhile to think about and live for? Come and join in our worship at this church and you will carry a blessing with you. Start a good week in a good way by attending church services every Sunday.

—Lorraine Avenue Church, Wichita, Kansas.—This church is making a unique use of the Western District Loan Library. It gets an assortment of books from that source, puts them in its own library and lets readers check them out for two weeks. Thus the use of the Loan Library is greatly enhanced.—This received seven new members Easter Sunday.

—Twentieth Annual California C. E. and S. S. Convention is to be held April 12-14, with the San Marcos Church of Paso Robles as host. The place of meeting, however, is the Atascadero Community Church, 11 miles south of Paso Robles on U. S. highway 101. The convention theme is, "The Ready Christian," 1 Peter 3:15, and is to be emphasized by the following messages: "The Christian's Readiness to Serve Christ," Rev. P. Pietsch; "The Christian Readiness to Sacrifice (Bible Study', Rev. D. B. Hess; "The Christian's Readiness to Obey Christ," Rev. D. D. Eitzen; "The Christian's Readiness to Answer and Witness for Christ," Rev. C. Hege. The program certainly looks rich and interesting and, with God's help, should bring an abundance of blessings to our friends in California.

—From Bulletin, St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio.— The Ministers of Pandora, together with the Superintendent of Schools, are planning some Bible instruction for the first six grades of the public school, each of the four churches to provide one teacher. They are: Mrs. Milford Haas, Mrs. Donald McDowell, Miss Esther Hilty and Mrs. Inez Basinger.—This is a very practical and feasible way to enlarge the scope of Bible instruction for our children. Would that it could be used more extensively in Mennonite communities especially.—Ed.—At the recent Men's Fellowship meeting, the men decided to organize into a more permanent organization.

—Immanuel Mennonite Church Los Angeles, Calif. The sudden Home-call of Wilfrid Anderson, on Feb. 29, was a schock to all. He filled an important place in our church by his consistent Christian life and his faithful service as deacon. To fill his unexpired term of office, the church council appointed an equally devoted Christian servant from among our senior young people, Mr. Herbert King. A further step was taken when the congregation voted to enlarge the Board of Deacons to four, in recognition of a pressing need for more help to be given our pastor, Rev. Wilbert A. Regier, in the spiritual ministry of our growing church. Mr. Chris. Ummel was elected to the new office. Corr.

EASTERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE is scheduled to be held May 2-5 next in the First Mennonite Church, Philadelphia. About thirty people from this church motored to the Home of the Aged at Frederick, Pa., Sunday afternoon, March 31, and rendered a program.

—The Kansas Mennonite Teachers Convention will be held at the First Mennonite church of Newton, Kansas on Sunday afternoon, April 28, beginning at 2:30. Hilda Voth, Secretary.

—Medford Mennonite Church, 4-10-40. Easter night about forty of our young people rendered a very inspirational Song Service Program. March 31, at 2:30 p. m.., a group from the Wichita Mennonite Church gave the Easter cantata, "Life Eternal," which was greatly enjoyed. The wedding of Alvin Pjesky of Goltry and Anna Janzen of Medford took place April 7 at 2:30 p. m. at the church. The ceremony was followed by a short program at the church and a reception and program at the bride's home. A new member was added to our church in march. Pete Neufeld Corr.

—Women's Association of Bethel College. Dr. E. Guy Cutschall of Lincoln, Nebraska who has recently joined the Bethel College staff, will speak to the Bethel College Women's Assn of the College, Monday April 22 at 8 p. m. in the Kansas Gas and Electric Room of Newton. Dr. Cutschall has served for many years as a church college president, and is an outstanding lecturer. The women of the surrounding communities are very cordially invited to attend Dr. Cutschall's lecture and to remain for a social hour afterwards.

AN OPEN BANK — "My God shall supply all your needs according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus." (Phil. 4:19).

The Banker: "God"—Divine relationship.

The Promise: "Shall supply"—Always sure to cash.

The Amount: "All you need"—Spiritual and temporal.

The Capital: "According to His riches"—Infinite resources.

The bank: "In glory"—It never fails; is never robbed; is always accessable (Heb. 4:16).

The Signature to each check: "By Christ Jesus", so must be honored when presented (John 14:14).

Illustrations and Incidents.

REPORT OF EX. COM. OF MISSION SOCIETIES

For March, 1940

For India:

Miss. Soc., Burrton, Kans., Evangelist, $40.00; Chr. Menn. Sew. Soc., Moundridge, Kans., Biblewoman, $30.00; Boy's S. S. Class., Medford, Okla., Tents, Basna St., $13.50; Bethesda Sew. Soc., Langham, Sask., Moving Boy's School, $51.50; Same, Salary for Indian Doctor, $25.00; Sew. Soc., Lowe Farm, Man., Moving Boy's School, $13.55; Sew. Soc., Glidden, Sask., Indian Doctor's Salary, $20.00; Sew. Soc., Abbotsford, B. C., same, $10.00; Herold Girl's Sew. Soc., Morden, Man., Leper Asylum, Champa St., $15.32; Sew. Soc., Mission City, B. C., Medicines for Poor, $6.00; Rosenort Ladies Aid, Rosthern, Sask., Clothing, Basna St., $10.00; Girl's Sew. Soc., Laird, Sask., Girl's School, Janjgir St., $10.00. Total, $244.87.

For China:

"Out and Out for Christ" Circle, Gotebo, Okla., Native Teachers, $12.00; Zion Miss. Soc., Donnellson, Iowa, Biblewoman, $5.00; Miss. Soc., Pratum, Ore., Biblewoman, $20.00; Deep Run Sew. Soc., Bedminster, Pa., H. J. Brown, work, $5.00; Miss Pauline Wiebe, Ness City, Kans., A. Jantzens, work, $5.00; Sew. Soc., Goessel, Kans., Electric Light Plant, $15.00; Zoar Sew. Circle, Waldheim, Sask., same, $62.65; Sew. Circle, Lymburn, Alta., same, $40.00; Sew. Circle, Superb, Sask., Kai Chow Hospital, $10.00; Rosenort Ladies Aid, Rosthern, Sask., Clothing, $10.00. Total, $184.65.

Oklahoma and Montana Stations:

Miss. Soc., Grace Menn. Ch., Albany, Oreg., Rev. B. Toews, Okla., $2.00; Worthwhile Circle, Reedley, Calif., same, $3.00; Garden Township Sew. Soc., Moundridge, Kans., same, $10.00; Miss. Soc., Grace Menn. Ch., Albany, Oreg., Mrs. R. Petter, Mont., $2.00; Worthwhile Circle, Reedley, Calif., same, $3.00; Miss. Soc., Grace Menn. Ch., Albany, Oreg., Mrs. V. Petter, Mont., $2.00; Worthwhile Circle, Reedley, Calif., same $3.00. Total $25.00.

Expenses of Ex. Com. and "Miss. News and Notes":

Zion Miss. Soc., Donnellson, Iowa, $5.10; Alexanderwohl Ch., Sew. Soc., Goessel, Kans., $2.40; Miss. Soc., Wadsworth, Ohio, $3.75; S. O. Circle, Upland, Calif., $0.40; Sew. Soc., Altona, Man., $3.40; Miss. Soc., First Menn. Ch., Bluffton, Ohio, $10.00; Miss Mae Gross, Doylestown, Pa., 0.$50; Ladies Aid Alsen, N. D., $2.05; Young Women's Sew. Circle, Lowe Farm, Man., $1.10; Tabor Sew. Soc., Goessel, Kans.,

$0.50; Miss. Soc., Lind, Wash., $1.20; Helping Hands Sew. Soc., Hillsboro, Kans., $1.00; Sew. Soc., Burrton, Kans., $1.00; Herald Publ. Co., Newton, Kans. (Donation), $2.45; Miss Maria T. Kehn, Dolton, S. D., $1.00; Mrs. B. Neuman, Geary, Okla., $0.25; Mrs. B. B. Neuman, Marion, Kans., $0.25; Miss Selma Schmidt, Newton, Kans., $0.25; Mrs. H. D. Hiebert, Newport, Wash., $0.25. Total, $36.85.

Miscellaneous:

Miss. Soc., Perkasie, Pa., Foreign Miss. Gen'l. Treas., $5.00; Bethel Ladies Aid, Perryton, Tex., same, $40.00; Same, Home Miss. Gen'l Treas., $30.00; Rosenort Ladies Aid, Rosthern, Sask., same, $25.00; Friendship Circle Menn. Ch., Wichita, Kans., Traveling Exp. of Missionary, $5.00; Miss. Sew. Soc., Pretty Prairie, Kans., same, $25.00; Coll. Joint Meeting of Goessel and Alexanderwohl Ch. Sew. Societies, P. W. Penner's return, $21.73; Newhopedale Ladies Aid, Meno, Okla., Retired Miss. Pension Fund, $10.40; Miss. Soc., Pratum, Oreg., same, $25.00; St. John's Miss. Soc., Pandora, Ohio, same, $3.44; Jr. Miss. Soc., First Menn. Ch., Reedley, Calif., Arizona Sts. Bibles, $3.00; Deep Run Sew. Soc., Bedminster, Pa., Canadian Transportation Debts, $6.62; Saron Miss. Soc., Orienta, Okla., Peace Com. Work, $6.00. Total, $206.19.

Grand Total, $697.56.

Gratefully acknowledged,
Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Treas.

FOREIGN MISSION RECEIPTS FOR MARCH, 1940

Bergtal Ch., Pawnee Rock, Kans., $14.71; John Epp Jr., Whitewater, Kans., $50.00; Jacob H. Schroeder, Canton, Kans., $12.00; Inman Menn. Ch., Inman, Kansas, $5.43; A Friend, Tacoma, Washington, gier, Newton, Kans., $24.00; P. D. Dirks, Burrton, Kans., $10.00; B. R. Regier, Elbing, Kans., $100.00; Menn. Ch., Butterfield Minn., $47.84; C. W. Claassen, Newton, Kans., $25.00; First Menn. Ch., Monroe, Wash., $12.04; Bethel C. E. Soc., Hydro, Okla., $25.00; Emmanuel Ch., Galva, Kans., $4.52; First Menn. Ch., Aberdeen, Idaho, $250.94; First Menn. Ch., Butterfield, Minn., $13.98; Grace Ch., Dallas, Ore., $13.01; San Marcos Ch., Paso Robles, Calif., $35.41; Emmanuel Ch., Pratum, Ore, $30.98; Friend, Beatrice, Nebr., $25.00; Young People's Comm. of Gen. Conf., $160.00; Ebenezer S. S., Gotebo, Okla., $30.00; Hebron Ch., Buhler, Kans., $19.12; First Menn. Ch., Mt. Lake, Minn., $17.00; Bethel Ch., Mt. Lake, Minn., $100.00; Sychar Ch., Cordell, Okla., $6.18; Johannestal S. S., Hillsboro, Kans., $19.68; First Menn. Ch., Hillsboro, Kans., $27.87; Bethel College Ch., No. Newton, Kans., $32.51; West Zion Ch., Moundridge, Kans., $125.00; Christian Ch., Moundridge, Kans., $70.00; Menn. Ch., Lind, Wash., $29.15; Zoar Ch., Goltry, Okla., $4.00; First Menn. Ch., Upland, Calif., $50.00; East Swamp S. S., Bally, Pa., $16.00; First Menn. Ch., Berne, Ind., $431.58; Menn. Ch., Halstead, Kans., $28.83; Bruderthal S. S. Hillsboro, Kans., $53.44; Menn. Ch., Newport, Wash., $10.15; Menn. Ch., Burrton, Kans., $12.92; Bethel S. S., Hydro, Okla., $3.97; John and Henrietta Roth, Salem, Ore., $6.00; First Menn. Ch., Mt. Lake, Minn., $32.58; Emmaus S. S., Whitewater, Kans., $25.00; Friend, Beatrice, Nebr., $10.00; First Menn. S. S., Mt. Lake, Minn., $360.00; Bethesda Ch., Henderson, Nebr., $57.66; First Menn. S. S., Reedley, Calif., $50.00; First Menn. Ch., Pretty Prairie, Kans., $125.00; Menn. Ch., Ransom, Kans., $2.57; First Menn. S. S., Philadelphia, Pa., $58.96; Cheyenne Ch., Clinton, Okla., $20.62; Cheyenne Ch., Hammon, Okla., $17.23; Cheyenne Ch., Thomas, Okla., $12.73; Cornelius Jantzen, Plymouth, Nebr., $25.00; S. S., Pretty Prairie, Kans., $50.00; Menn. Ch., Buhler, Kans., $54.82; Calvary Ch., Mechanics Grove, Pa., --20.29; Mrs. Joe J. Wedel, Moundridge, Kans., $100.00; Gnadenberg Ch., Whitewater, Kans., $10.64; Pleasant Valley Ch., Kismet, Kans., $5.00; Christian S. S., Moundridge, Kans., $67.86; Gdn. Twp. Ch., Hesston, Kans., $48.00; Bergtal Ch., Pawnee Rock, Kans., $16.34; Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Toevs, Wolf Point, Mont., $200.00; S. S., Deer Creek, Okla., $57.80; Menn. Ch., Deep Run, Pa., $9.06; Menn. Ch., Medford, Okla., $10.00; J. E. Entz, Newton, Kans., $20.00; Salem-Zion C. E., Marion, S. Dak., $150.00; A Friend of Missions, $65.00; D. R. Winsinger, Moundridge, Kans., $40.00; Dundurn Soc., Dundurn, Sask., $42.65; Gerbrandt Legacy, Drake, Sask., $286.38; J. J. Doerksen, Swift Current, Sask., $10.00; David Dalke, Morden, Man., $20.00; Jacob Klassen, Crystal City, Man., $5.50; Upper Milford Ch., Zionsville, Pa., $54.00; Deep Run Sew Soc., Plumsteadville, Pa., $30.00; Ex. Com. of Miss. Soc., Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Treas., $404.80; Ex. Com. of Miss. Soc., Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Treas., $508.58. Total, $5,437.33.

Balance on Hand, March 1, 1940		$1102.01
Gifts for General	$4614.92
Gifts for Special Support	605.00
Pension	14.17
Sundries	203.24	5437.33
		$6539.34
Paid Out on Orders	$4504.36
Paid Out Direct	364.53	4868.89
Balance on Hand, April 1, 1940		$1670.45

Respectfully submitted,
J. E. Regier, Treasurer.

TREASURY OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE PEACE COMMITTEE, 1939

Receipts

By Rev. H. T. Unruh, $7.00; Lorraine Ave. Mennonite Church, Wichita, Kans., $1.00; Gardentownship Church, $6.95; By Rev. H. T. Unruh, $4.65; Church at Lena, Manitoba, $1.50; Second Church, Beatrice, Nebr., $7.26; First Christian, Moundridge, $10.00; Church at Newport, Washington, $5.57; Mr. J. Boschman, Langham, Saskatchewan, $3.00; Lorraine Ave. Church, Wichita, $1.00; Mrs. E. W. Franz, Santa Monica, Calif., $5.00; Eastern District Young People, $85.00; Bethany Church, Kingman, Kans., $5.00; By Rev. H. T. Unruh, $3.90; Sunday School, First Church, Bluffton, $13.60; Zion Mennonite Church, Souderton, Pa., $15.00; First Church, Reedley, Calif., $10.00; Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Ind., $119.00; By H. T. Unruh, $3.47; First Church, Upland, Calif., $4.47; Collection, Peace Rally, Bethel College, $29.39; Lorraine Ave. Mennonite Church, Wichita, $3.00. Total, $344.76.

Receipts during 1940, to April 1st

Bethel College Church and Sunday School, N. Newton, Kans., $86.96; Zion Church and Sunday School, Souderton, Pa., $44.10; Bethany Sunday School, Quakertown, P., $10.00; Gen. Conf. Executive Com., by K. A. Richert, $85.00; Second Church, Beatrice, Nebr., $5.00; Mennonite Church, Buhler, Kans., $12.08; P. A. Pankratz, Hillsboro, Kans., $5.00; Sunday School, First Church, Philadelphia, $14.12; Mr. A. F. Toevs, Wolf Point, Mont., $10.00. Total, $272.26.

Grand total, $607.02.

~~1001 EAST BROADWAY~~
NEWTON, KANSAS
JA 41

Code 61

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, APRIL 23, 1940 NUMBER 17

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

PALMS AND WILLOWS

Palms are a symbol of joy and gladness; willows a symbol of grief and sorrow. As we journey through this life we carry a palm branch in one hand and a willow branch in the other, joy and grief alternate. It is easy to thank God for our joys, although often we forget to thank Him when we sit in the shade of the palm tree; but there is no one for whom it isn't hard to thank God for the grief that comes under the drooping willows of the brook. Not until we can really thank God for griefs and sorrows, for affliction and loss, are we really triumphant.

Job is an example of one who learned to thank God even for the willows by the brook. When in his deep adversity his wife advised him to curse God and commit suicide, he answered her: "What? Shall we receive good at the hand of God, and shall we not receive evil?" (Job 2:10). And later he voiced his deep trust in his God when he said: "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him" (Job 13:15). That is indeed a faith that does not shrink, and that thanks God for both palms and willows!

Rev. George Matheson, whose beautiful hymn "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go" is loved by all, learned to thank God for both the palms and willows in his life. A brilliant student with the future brightly before him, he was told that before he would finish his university course he would be blind. Out of his struggle he came out triumphantly so that he could write "O love that will not let me go, I rest my weary soul in thee . . . O light that followest all my way, I yield my flickering torch to thee, etc."

Gladness and sorrow were also the inseparable companions of Jesus throughout His life. Only five days after the people waved palm branches and shouted "Hosanna", He walked the Calvary way when the crowds shouted "Crucify."

Are you sitting in the pleasant shade of the palm tree today? Then be careful how you walk. Remember they have been planted by the hand of God, therefore do not forget to give Him praise. Are you sitting by the willows of the brook today? Do not murmur or complain. Remember the Divine Gardener never makes a mistake and He has a definite purpose in planting a willow in the garden of your life. Permit the Spirit of God to have full sway in your life, so that you can say with Job: "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in Him", and He will transform the drooping willows into stately palm trees.—Thoughts from Dr. Lockyer's sermon, First Mennonite Church, Newton, April 14, 1940. —M.B.

MORALITY

The columnist has an influence in our land far beyond his—or her—deserts. When, therefore, a writer who stands as high in public approval as does Dorothy Thompson makes such statements as were made by her in a recent article on Bertrand Russell, it is most regrettable. She says: "We are far past the stage of regarding 'morality' as encompassed by the catechism of any church, or as primarily related to the sexual behavior of healthy people. Even the various churches do not agree on the matter. And our youth will not suffer from exposure to an honest mind in the person of a man of integrity." We disagree emphatically. Our standard of morals comes not from the catechisms; it comes direct from the Bible, which declares, "Thou shalt not commit adultery"; from the word of Christ, who laid down anew the law of marital fidelity in no uncertain terms: Matthew 19:3-6. And when Miss Thompson declares that "we had far better worry over the fact that . . . there are teachers in our schools who cannot multiply five times three," her words shock us beyond expression. Is this "a matter for real social indignation," while the elevation of Bertrand Russell, apostle of the anti-Christian theory of marriage, to a professorship in a great college is something of no importance? The beliefs of Bertrand Russell shock us because they attack the divinely built foundations of marriage as the home. It is infinitely more important for our college youth to learn properly to reverence marriage and sex than it is to learn how to multiply three by five. Now that the courts have vindicated the American standard, it is our earnest hope that this judicial decision will stand the attacks that are sure to come. Bertrand Russell appears to believe in immoral license; America believes in moral liberty.—D. D. B. in "The Presbyterian", April 11, 1940.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

Mauhadih via Champa, C. P., India,January 13, 1940

Dear Brethren of the Foreign Mission Board,

The Missionary Conference early in October at which time we celebrated our 25th Wedding Anniversary was for us the big landmark of this quarter. The Lord be praised for His goodness and longsuffering in preserving our lives and prospering us so that we could experience the joy of a happy Christian family life for full 25 years and also spend this life in the service of the Lord Jesus Christ.

For Mauhadih station the Missionary Conference was important in that it confirmed the removal of the Boys' Middle School from here to Basna Mission station. The institutional work of this station will be less. There will be no boarding establishment. The few orphan boys we have will also be transferred to the new place. The Primary School will continue here, presumably with a smaller staff. The few acres of garden and farm will be in charge of the present supervisor of this department who will try to operate it for profit.

The evangelistic work will go on as strongly as ever. Most of it is on the south side of the Mahanadi river. I propose to strengthen the small groups in the villages on that side. The statistical report will show a decrease of church membership, this is due not so much to the changes of institution as the culling out of some names of persons who have disappeared. (By Mr. Thiessen before he left.) Six young people were baptized during the Christmas season. One non-Christian family had also prepared for this step but failed to appear at the last moment.

After observing the Mauhadih church for ten months I feel constrained to say that the work done here by Wiens, Thiessen, and Duerksen has been well done. It is a joy to carry on this work. May God help us to build right on the foundation already laid.

Sincerely yours, F. J. Isaac

—Paganism has made many efforts to disrupt the Christian faith, but never a more insidious effort than it is making today. There are three possible attitudes which you may take in the present conflict. In the first place you may stand for Christ. That is best. In the second place, you may stand for anti-Christian modernism. Thas is risky. In the third place, you may be neutral. That is perhaps the worst of all. The worst sin today is to say that you agree with the Christian faith and believe in the Bible, that you believe in the Church and its mission and then make common cause with some who deny the basic facts of Christianity. Never was it more obviously true that he that is not with Christ is against Him."—

Prof. J. Gresham Machen

A Christ-Centered Education in a World-Wide Crisis

In this time of tragic upheaval and confusion, if we are to find any defense whatever against the collapse of human hopes, we shall have to find it in religion.

The great ideals through which the nineteenth and early twentieth century hoped to achieve the perfect society have nearly all become bankrupt. The advances of science, the victories of the machine, the spread of democracy, the development of education may have transformed life. But they have transformed it only in a superficial way—only in externals. They have not been able to give it depth and meaning, nor to present its values in any true proportion. They have not been able even to save the world from a widely-spreading tidal wave of barbarism.

Again our Savior's word is proving its truth. "The Kingdom of God cometh not with observation." The Kingdom of God dwells in hearts that have found Christ. The Kingdom of God comes through souls transformed by Christ.

If there is going to be any salvation for civilization, it will be, as it must be for the individual, salvation by grace through faith. The faith that is essential is infinitely more than an acceptance of the fact that God's Word is truth. Rather it is a laying hold of the eternal, living truth . It is a transforming experience in which, through contact with the infinite resources of the spiritual world, life gains meaning and purpose and courage and strength.

Such a vivid, living, dynamic faith in Christ is the greatest need of humanity today, and it must be the key-note of true education. This faith is the light which illumines every aspect of human life and learning. It is the principle which gives life order and significance. It, and it alone, is the power which turns knowledge and intelligence to the advancement of God's great invisible Kingdom of righteousness.

In Christian education lies the hope of a better world. Here lies the promise of happy and brave lives for individual men and women. And Christian education must in very truth be Christ-centered education. That must be its unique distinction. Therein lies its value, and its source of power for its students, for the Church, and for humanity.

To the end that our schools may be more and more fully centers of such life and power, we who are leaders in education must rededicate ourselves to the service of this fundamental aim.

We shall of course be concerned about our place in the academic world. We desire our schools to continue to be schools of high standards and assured prestige. But we need to be much more concerned about the place of these schools in the Church, about their loyalty to the things that endure, about what they mean to the Kingdom of God.—From the address of President R. E. Tullos of Wittenberg College, at National Conference of Church-Related-Colleges.

A Word About Anabaptists

By a Veteran Mennonite Historian

Are the Baptistminded (now generally called Mennonites) Anabaptists? It hurts an old historian very much, when our papers: Bundesbote and Mennonite, yes, even The Mennonite Quarterly Review called us Anabaptists. Sure the state church, Lutheran or Reformed church historians, who hated and persecuted our forefathers, because they did not acknowledge infant baptism, and baptized only believers, called us Anabaptists. The name Anabaptist was hated and despised because of the immoral, revolutionary, warlike, cruel Anabaptists of Muenster. To them belonged Menno's brother, and Menno preached and wrote against them.

When I was baptized after my confession of faith, there knelt beside me Jakob Thomsen. After baptizing me, my dear father wiped his hands on a towel, blessed Jakob and accepted him as a member of the congregation. At home I asked my dear father, why he did not baptize Jakob. He said: "The police took Jakob, when he was a small boy baby from his mother's lap, brought him to a Lutheran pastor, who baptized him. If I would have baptized him, I would have been an Anabaptist, and as such I would have been condemned to several years in prison.

The name "Mennonite" or "Mennist" was not liked at all by our forefathers. The government called them "Mennonites" and the congregation had to answer as such. In Holland they are the "Baptistminded", in Switzerland "The Baptizers". My dear father said to me: "We are not Mennonites, we are Baptistminded (Taufgesinnte). Menno was a very earnest, faithful, influential, efficient, popular preacher and writer, who joined our denomination in 1536 and for years was a great blessing for many, after having been a Catholic priest for years. But Menno would never have permitted that a Christian congregation would call itself by his name. That is entirely against all custom and practice of our forefathers, to accept the name of a man. We are Christian Baptizers or Baptistminded. The name "Mennonite" or "Mennist" is not a nickname, but was used in an honorable way, to distinguish our forefathers from the revolutionary Anabaptists as a peaceful sect, which was permitted to remain in East-Friesland in 1541, when the Anabaptists were driven out of the country.

Would it not be better, if our papers and historians would avoid the hateful name of Anabaptists for our denomination?—C. H. A. van der Smissen.

"Watchfulness and prayer are inseparable. The one discerns dangers, the other arms against them. Watchfulness keeps us prayerful, and prayerfulness keeps us watchful." — Alexander Maclaren.

Lack of Leadership a Danger to the Church

A. H. Leaman

Those who are in close proximity with the movements of the church have a feeling of alarm as to the problems of her future. Will she still continue to function in the future as she has in the past? Will she be able to meet the alarming situations as they arise from time to time? Will she still retain her interest in the lost and hold to the faith of our fathers? These problems are before us and demand our careful attention.

Our missionaries from the foreign field feel the weight of the situation and offer their solution. We as home missionaries feel the force at work. Our educators feel alarmed, and it is right they should, in order that they may plan and pray for the best solution of the problem.

Everywhere today, in all phases of Christian work as well as in business and politics, with one consent men are calling for leadership. Not long ago the Chicago Tribune wrote as the headlines for a dispatch from one of its special correspondents in China, "FOUR HUNDRED MILLION PEOPLE WAITING FOR ONE LEADER," and what is said of China may be said of other nations as well.

Strong Leadership Unites

Bible readers will recall how difficult a thing it was for the old Jewish tribes to lay aside their differences, their jealousies, and their deeply rooted feuds in order to unite under one head. But the thing became necessary and it was accordingly done. They believed themselves to be the rightful owners of the land, and when the enemy entered the land they determined to gather their forces in order to deal one last and final blow. It was then that the Jewish tribesmen discovered how helpless they would be against such a force as Sisera and his well drilled forces. Deborah saw all this and was able to bring Barak to see it also, as well as other leaders in the tribes.

This serves as a lesson for our church to learn anew. We must rediscover the lost philosophy of leadership. We must learn how to select, develop and to follow leaders. While our church believes in congregational government, yet we must not ignore the principle of leadership as if it were something foreign to the spirit of democracy.

Strong Leadership Needed

In these critical times we need strong leaders. Lack of strong leaders explains the weakness of Christendom. A weak church cannot claim a strong leader, while a strong leader can make a weak church strong.

We are thankful for strong leaders in our church, but we do not have enough of them. For us to make light of our leaders or refuse to support or to spread among our membership a cynicism that would call the whole leadership into question would indeed be harmful. But we need many more leaders. The development of leadership in our church must come by educating the whole rank and file of the church and her membership from the top down, so that every member will know what the church is and what it is doing, and what it is going to do and how it is to be done. Then our members will know whom to select for their leaders, how to remove false leaders and whom to train to become future leaders.

Home Influences

One of the factors in solving the problem of leadership is the home. Do parents want their boys and girls to be leaders? Do they want them prepared for special work of the church? It seems it is high time for parents to take their responsibility seriously. We depend upon conferences, Bible meetings and other meetings to present to our children the Christian's life callings. It ought to begin in our own home by our own fireside.

The Church and Her Responsibility

Perhaps the church is not giving the vision to our young people as she should. Perhaps our margin is too narrow. One minister said not long ago, "Nothing less than that this church within the next five years should have at least one and if possible several of its young people in training for Christian leadership, and that the church should back them with encouragement and financial help if necessary." If other churches should have a like vision and program, within the next ten years we would have a steady leadership that would be an irresistible force to stand against the enemy. Our young people will rise to the call if they hear it in the right way. It is our duty as a church to train them for service. Wrong education brought on the recent world war. Wrong decisions will bring disaster to the church.

Our Schools

The time has come when the church must face the problem of Christian education. The only true education is Christian education. A Christian school makes itself indispensable to the highest efficiency of the church. It makes a great difference who our leaders are. One recalls the saying of Napoleon, "An army of deer led by a lion is better than an army of lions led by a deer." Our schools are called to train men for leadership in the ministry as well as leaders in other lines of Christian service. Let there be no pagan ideals in our Christian schools. But let them be as a flaming evangel and allow Christ to take precedence over their program.

Let us all move forward for a greater church by training more leaders through our homes, churches and schools. Parents, teachers, friends, ministers, let us train our own leaders for the next generation and begin now.

DOCTRINAL - DEVOTIONAL

PRAY IN THE TIME OF TROUBLE

By E. E. Wordsworth, Pastor, Ashland, Oregon

There is no promise in the Word of God that sinners and saints will be always free from trouble. Trouble belongs to the present state of man upon earth. "Man that is born of a woman is of few days and full of trouble." There is no exception to any age, clime or station. The rich and poor alike, the schoolman and the untutored, the high and the low, the favored and the underprivileged—all must be subjected to severe trials, temptations and sorrows.

There are three words in the Bible that set forth the processes of divine discipline, temptation, trial and trouble. In practical matters they are about the same and yet there is a distinct difference between them. Temptation is really a solicitation to evil arising either from the devil or inborn carnal nature. Trial is testing. Trouble usually refers to the painful, sorrowing and grievous events of human life.

Trouble belongs to the disciplinary part of the moral government of God. It is God's servant to drive us nearer to Himself. Not that He directly orders and arbitrarily sends every unpleasant affliction and sorrow of life, but He permits trouble for the development of the Christian character of His child.

There are two attitudes we can assume when passing through the flames. One is, rebellion and opposition to the chastisement of God. The other is, sweet, beautiful and Christlike submission to a kind heavenly Father. "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth." Trouble is not penal in its nature. It is only sin that is punished. But trouble is intended for our correction, discipline and perfecting. Trouble is no evidence whatsoever of divine displeasure. "Many are the afflictions of the righteous." Job is a case in point. Yea, every true saint of God down the centuries has most surely known and felt the waters of trouble surrounding him, but thank God, they shall not overflow.

Alas! trouble does not always drive men to God. Many chafe, murmur, whine, complain, grumble and get sour under trouble. They become bitter toward God, the church, the cause of Christ; they may even completely backslide and ultimately go to hell in their bitterness. It is exceedingly dangerous to harbor a wrong feeling, even for a moment. Dispel it at once. Seek refuge alone in God!

We are told in the Bible, "Call upon me in the time of trouble; I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me." Prayer is the most appropriate thing to do when in distress and perplexity. Instead of resorting to gossip, slander, ridicule, fault-finding and trouble-making—adding to your bosom grief by being an unscriptural and an un-Christian busybody—"Take your burden to the Lord and leave it there." Prayer recognizes God in the day of trouble. Prayer sees God's hand in trouble and flees to Him for refuge and strength. Prayer in the time of trouble brings soul comfort, rest, quietness, peace, help, blessing, guidance and submission. It enables us to see the wise ends involved. It drives away unbelief, saves us from doubt, and delivers from vain and foolish questionings of the providences of God. "In all this Job sinned not, nor charged God foolishly."

Many so-called troubles are purely imaginary. We anticipate them. We cross the bridge before we come to it. They exist only in the mind. Others are in the past, and it is utter folly to worry about the past. Present real troubles are the only ones requiring attention and earnest prayer. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." Many troubles are of human origin. We sometimes create our own. Again others may cause them for us. These are part of life's incidents. But whatever the cause and occasion we must not carry hurt feelings in our bosoms. We must learn to suffer wrongs and privations with grace. "Our light affliction, which is but for a season, worketh out for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory."

Perhaps one underlying purpose of all our troubles is to fit and prepare us for heaven. Trouble makes earth undesirable and causes heaven to loom up large before our vision and fills the horizon with hope. There is a world where trouble never comes and the path of tribulation leads to that blessed City of Light. There will be no thorns on our roses over there. No harrowing circumstance will circumvent us beyond this vale of tears. "Sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

"Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth understanding, shall keep (garrison) your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus" (Phil. 4:6, 7). It has been truly said, "You must bother the Lord with everything, or else everything will bother you." So it behooves us to take our burdens, heartaches, and sorrows directly to Jesus, and like John the beloved, lean hard upon the bosom of Christ and He will comfort, bless and sustain us in all our tribulations. Then ere long we shall be at home forever with God, and "God shall wipe away all tears from their (our) eyes."—From the Herald of Holiness, March 23, 1940.

"WHAT HAVE YE DONE."

Not myself but the truth in life I have spoken,
Not myself but the seed in life I have sown,
Shall pass on the ages —all about me forgotten
Save the truth I have spoken, the things I have done.

So let my living be—so be my dying,
So let my name be emblazoned, unknown—
Unraised and unmissed I shall still be remembered
Yes—but remembered by what I have done.

SERMON SKETCH

THE DUTY OF SELF-CONTROL

by A. W. Friesen, Henderson, Nebr.

Text: Prov. 16:32. He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city.

Anything in life that is successful is well controlled. The mere possession of power is not enough; the proper use must be taken into consideration. Lightning, what a vast amount of electric energy, yet it is wasted. The same amount of electricity brought under control, lights the homes and turns the wheels of industry. Powers are only useful when they are properly controlled. Life, in order to be useful must be controlled also.

Self-control is essential to our highest development. For want of self-restraint many men are engaged all their lives in fighting with difficulties of their own making, and render success impossible. Self-control will soon lead to selfdenial and selfexamination. One never knows himself until he has denied himself. The very act of faith by which we receive Christ into our lives is an act of utter renunciation of self, as a ground for salvation.

The child of God will watch over himself when he is alone and not only when he is watched. Every night he calls himself to an account: What infirmity have I mastered today, what passion opposed, what temptation resisted, what virtue acquired? If we see anything in our lives which may cause us to feel proud, let us look a little farther and we will find enough to humble us.

Selfcontrol and selfexamination are essential to happiness. There was a time when the writer of the Proverbs did as he pleased and denied himself nothing, but note what he says, "Vanity of vanities vexation of spirit." Happiness does not consist in doing as we please, and getting what we want. The Word of God and experience teach just the opposite. There are many men and women whose living and dying testimony is that in the life of humble selfrestraint and crossbearing they found peace and happiness past all understanding.

The strifes and disorders that enter into our social circles as well as into the churches, and into national relations are due to the unguarded passions, the unbridled tongues, the unrestrained ambitions.

The highest form of selfcontrol that has been revealed is that control which is manifested in the life wholly given to God, wholly controlled in its desires and actions by the Spirit of God. An uncontrolled life can never be fully at peace with God. If He possesses us and fills our hearts with His divine love, selfcontrol becomes God control.

A number of ministers were once dining together after an ordination, and when one of them seemed unduly attentive to the good things before him, he met with the approval of the host, who said, "That is right, to take care of self is the first law of nature." "Yes," said an old minister, sitting near, in reply, "But to deny self is the first law of grace."

Every Christian must reach that place where he can say, that obedience to the will of God is a badge of true discipleship. It still remains for Christians to learn that the greatest test of love for Christ is obedience to His will. Nothing less than the Calvary love will be sufficient if we are going to help the poor, lift the fallen, minister to the sick, and save the lost. The way a man lives determines largely the way in which he gives. Sacrificial living and giving must be Christ centered.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

May 5, 1940

ISAIAH GIVES GOD'S INVITATION

Isaiah 55:1-11

Introduction

Our lesson is one of the great passages from the Book of Isaiah. This chapter is spoken of as "the gospel according to Isaiah." It is a revelation of the merciful heart of God. the Great Inviter. The gospel of grace is offered to every one who will meet the simple conditions. Forgiveness, free salvation is offered as a free gift to all who will turn to the Lord and accept these. This free salvation is founded upon the suffering Savior of chapter 53, by whose stripes we are healed.

The Invitation Given vs. 1-5

The invitation is to all believers, "every one" (v1), all who thirst and hunger, even though they be penniless, may buy and eat. Thirst and hunger symbolize the longings of the soul for that which truly satisfies. God has provided spiritual food and drink for the deepest longings of the heart. God invites all in this standing invitation which He has never cancelled nor recalled. God's grace supplies every spiritual need and without any money price. God remonstrates with His people for spending money for something inferior which gives no lasting profit and satisfaction (v2). People strive and toil so much for the things of lesser value which fail to satisfy. God wants us to have the best for heart and soul satisfaction. His advice is to hearken to Him and eat His good spiritual food and the soul shall delight in the most satisfying blessings. Hearkening to His Word brings abundant blessings. Every need of the soul is met in His spiritual feast. To those who hear and obey God's Word, He promises soul life and He will make an everlasting covenant with them, to be fulfilled in the Messiah. When He shall lead Israel then nations shall be attracted to her because of the Messiah's rule and leadership. God will glorify the nation.

Conditions Imposed vs. 6-9

God's gifts are freely given, yet certain conditions must be met by those who wish to receive them. Many—very many—are not ready to accept the offered grace. They ignore the invitations. We must believe His blessings are for us, must incline our ears, come to Him and hear (v3). We must seek the Lord, call upon Him (v6) and be willing to forsake evil ways and thoughts (v7). The difficulty lies here with many. They are unwilling to renounce the sinful things of the world. To seek the Lord is to seek His favor and help (Amos 5:4-6). The most precious things of life must be sought. The only true time to find the Lord is the present. The first step in seeking Him is giving up that which is contrary to His way and wishes. It means substituting God's thoughts for our own. Upon such He will have mercy and will abundantly pardon. God's thoughts are infinitely higher than man's (v9). His thoughts are good and righteous altogether. His goodness far exceeds all man's standards. They have to do wth His great redeeming love for mankind.

Certainty of God's Promises vs. 10, 11

God's Word is sure and effective. This is another reason for taking His thoughts. Just as certainly as the rain and snow coming from the heavens fulfill a good purpose. so surely will God's Word accomplish what He purposed concerning His people. His Word will always be fulfilled. It bears fruit in redeemed lives, in redeemed people and nations. The reference here is particularly to God's promise to bring the Israelites back from captivity to their own land. Nothing can void this promise. God's gracious invitations are for all, but only those profit by them who turn from their evil ways and accept them. The terms of salvation must be accepted by faith.

Mennonite Teacher's Association

On Sunday, April 28, at 2:30 p. m., the Mennonite Teacher's Association will hold its annual meeting in the First Mennonite Church at Newton, Kansas.

The program is as follows:

Chairman ------------------ Rev. Milo Kaufman Devotions
Music ------------ Bethel College Male Quartet
"The Peace Testimony of the Mennonites in Europe and America" -------------- E. L. Harshbarger
Music ------------ Hesston College Ladies' Chorus
"Problems Facing Our Youth as a Result of Present World Conditions" -------- Dr. H. W. Lohrenz
Business—
1. Election of Officers
2. Brief discussion of aims and objectives of this organization.
Music -------------- Buhler M. B. Men's Chorus

An offering will be lifted.

Relief Notes of the Mennonite Central Committee

Compiled by O. O. Miller and Abram Warkentin

Reports from Amos Swartzentruber indicate that he spent the first two weeks in February in London, England. We quote from a February 6th air mail letter: "There are, however, so many refugees in England from Austria, Poland, earthquake refugees from Turkey, Jews from all over, that there are lots of places to help. There are many different organizations at work, each dealing with a particular branch of this need or class of refugees. The need will be great for a long time to come, but for this winter it is perhaps greater during these cold and damp months."

A shipment of seventeen bales—of new clothing and bedding valued at $1719.50—was forwarded by the Ontario Non-Resistant Relief Organization on January 25th for distribution among the needy refugees in England. A remittance of $5.00 was also cabled by Brother Bearinger, treasurer of this organization, early in February directly to London. Arrangements for the clothing distribution and the use of these funds, and for the further use of $400 monthly, were made by Brother Swartzentruber before he left England.

A February 14th cable from Paris advised of his being there, and of having met brethren Hershey and Bennett from Spain. Later messages seemed to indicate that larger relief needs were found in France than had been the case in England, the last word being:

> February 23, 1940.
>
> "Planning children's colonies France. Starting home for thirty-five. Send $500 for March. Details air letter."

Arrangements have been made for the return of Swartzentruber and Hershey from Genoa, Italy, March 25th. In line with previous planning, Brother Swartzentruber is probably now engaged on his visit to Spain, and probably plans for another visit to London and Paris before returning.

January 23rd cabled report from Commissioner Lehman in Berlin follows: "Negotiations here nearly complete. Main points our agreement with government authorities within few days by cable. Written reports later." Further word from Brother Lehman under date of February 6th states that the final agreement for relief work was reached with the German government on that date. The main points in this agreement are help for Poles detained in Germany and parts of former Poland. Immediate gathering of clothing and funds is further suggested. Further details of the agreement and suggested arrangements for undertaking the relief itself are en route via air mail, which letter, however, has not yet been received.

The full membership of the Mennonite Central Committee met in all-day session at the Mennonite Home Mission, 1907 S. Union Avenue, Chicago, Ill., on February 17th. Representatives from the Non-resistant Relief organizations of both eastern and western Canada were also present, as well as several representatives from the Brethren in Christ.After receiving reports of developments thus far in the organization of the Committee's European war sufferers' relief program, it was unanimously voted to make available a war sufferers' relief budget of $15,000 for use during the coming Spring and Summer months. The Executive Committee was further authorized to appoint and send an additional relief Commissioner to continue the work begun by Brother Swartzentruber. According to the expression of the several representatives present, it is evident that all the cooperating groups of the Central Committee are interested in vigorously carrying forward the war relief program in Europe as had been earlier outlined. The meeting noted with regret the absence of Brother M. H. Kratz, who had served as its Vice-Chairman from the Committee's organization, in 1920 until his passing a few months ago. In the Committee's reorganization, Brother Abram Warkentin succeeds Brother Kratz as Vice-Chairman, and Brother Allen Yoder of Goshen, Ind., was added to the Executive Committee as its fifth member.

J. A. Braun, leader of the Canadian Mennonite colony in the Chaco, Paraguay, writes under date of December 28th, "The outlook for the coming year's crops is at this date very good. Fields all around are green, and so far there has been no damage from insects. Because of early rains this year's harvest begins earlier than it has for four years past. Melons, onions, cabbage, beans, and sorghum are already being harvested. Peanuts will soon be ready also. The cotton fields look promising."

From the prospects at the time of Brother Braun's letter, indications would be that the new year will result in much better harvests than had been true the year previous.

DISTRICT CONFERENCES

The Eastern District Conference is to be held May 2-5 next, at the First Mennonite Church in Philadelphia, Rev. J. J. Plenert, Pastor. Dr. A. Warkentin is to give a series of addresses.

The Northern District Conference is scheduled for June 2-5 and will convene at the Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebr., Rev. A. W. Friesen, Elder. Rev. H. A. Fast, field Secretary is to be the special speaker.

The Pacific District Conference. Meeting date is not yet definitely determined. The session will be held at the Immanuel Church in Los Angeles, Calif., Rev. W. A. Regier, Pastor.

—The Middle District Conference is to meet on August 15-18, at the Zion Mennonite Church, Donnellson, Iowa, Rev. Adolf Friesen, Pastor.

Halstead Church Celebrates Sixty-fifth Anniversary

When some good work has prospered, the people are inclined to congratulate themselves or better, as Christians do, celebrate the event in a festival of thanksgiving to God. This is what the people of this church and their friends did on Sunday, April 7. At the forenoon service greetings were read from former pastors of the church, J. H. Langenwalter, J. E. Amstutz and H. T. Unruh. Rev. J. N. Smucker of Bethel College preached a sermon in English, Rev. C. E. Krehbiel of Newton gave a short address in German and the church choir sang. After a fellowship luncheon in the church basement at noon, the afternoon program followed, with an historical sketch of the church by Rev. C. E. Krehbiel, a native son, addresses by Rev. Arnold Funk of Hillsboro on home missions and Rev. P. W. Penner, foreign missionary on furlough, on foreign missions.

Late in 1873 and early in 1874 some Mennonites from Summerfield, Ill. made arrangements for the purchase of land in the Halstead locality. They held their first worship services in the public school and in the homes of members. On Easter Sunday 1874 they organized and Rev. Val Krehbiel was elected and ordained as minister. Because of the growing and widely scattering membership, the group in the north united as the Christian Mennonite Church, built, and in March 1877 dedicated a church building near what later became the town of Moundridge, Kansas. The group around Halstead followed with a small building, dedicated Jan. 1, 1878.

In March 1878, the two groups met and peaceably agreed on two independent churches, the church to the north with Val Krehbiel as pastor and the one in Halstead with Reverends Christian Krehbiel and David Goerz as their ministers. This congregation then was for a number of years the church home of the students attending the Mennonite Seminary at Halstead and, with its fine services and efficient organization, made its impression on them.

The present church building was completed and dedicated Easter Sunday 1885. In the sixty five years the church has had the following ministers: Christian Krehbiel 1879-1909, with David Goerz as co-pastor till about 1892; J. H. Langenwalter, 1910; J. E. Amstutz, 1911-21; H. T. Unruh, 1922-36; and D. C. Wedel since the summer of 1936. The name it now bears is: First Mennonite Church, Halstead, Kansas. It has a membership of very nearly 300.

— The Bethany Messenger, Freeman, S. D. reports the Ladies' Mission Society of the church has purchased a very beautiful pulpit lamp and is also sponsoring and financing the redecoration of seven rooms in the parsonage, for which kind deeds the pastor and family offer hearty thanks.

CORRESPONDENCE

MENN. CHURCH, PRETTY PRAIRIE, KANSAS

Greetings with Psalm 103:1-4: Bless the Lord, O my soul, etc. We were all glad to have Rev. and Mrs. P. W. Penner from India in our midst the 10th of March. They spoke to us three times. It was very interesting to hear of their work, the dangers and their hardships among the India people. The Lord makes his promises true and protects them. We have a Lord that can help.-On the 31st of March we had Rev. J. N. Smucker of the Bethel College Church with us. It was the Sunday when they exchanged pulpits. I believe it is a good thing to exchange pulpits and get acquainted with other people and their thoughts. —Then April the 10th, 11th and 12th we had a Bible conference. Brother A. H. Unruh from Winkler, Manitoba, was the speaker, the theme being "The Sermon on the Mount", Matt. 5-7. It was indeed very interesting to listen to his teaching in these three chapters. But I think a Bible conference should last at least a week, and should be held once every year in every church. During the day it was all in German, for most of the people of our church still understand the German. In the evening Rev. Clyde Dirks of Hutchinson preached in the English language. Our church can never say that they did not hear the gospel clear and plain. —Our preacher P. P. Tschetter brings us the word of God every Sunday, and during the week we have prayer meeting, young people's Bible class, teachers' meeting and choir practice. May the Lord help us to prepare for eternity as we draw nearer every day!—Jacob J. Graber, Corr.

* * *

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, WADSWORTH, IHIO.

During Lent our pastor, Rev. Shelly, preached a series of sermons on the word "COME," as it is used in Scripture in relation to an invitation to enter into the Kingdom of God.—Special services were held during Holy Week. On Thursday Rev. A. Rosenberger of the Salem Church, Dalton, brought us a very inspirational message and on Thursday evening our pastor did. On Friday evening fourteen new members entered into the fellowship of our congregation, some by confession of faith, some by letter.—Easter morning we had a very interesting sunrise service, with over 100 people attending, and later we enjoyed a breakfast together. At the regular worship hour a large number attended and partook of Holy Communion.

At our anual fellowship supper on April 10, 135 persons were present and enjoyed a fine meal and interesting program. Music was furnished by a group of students from Bluffton College, and President Ramseyer gave an instructive talk about the College. —Correspondent.

R. Weinbrenner
Editor
Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen
Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers
Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference
Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

SEVEN LETTERS

RETREAT that's the word that we think can't be beat,
For it has helped us solve the problems that we meet,
And we shall sing it and sing it again.

Time marches on! Twelve years have passed and during that time RETREAT has become dear to the hearts of many. Lives have been changed! Green Lane RETREATERS who have caught the vision have scattered to various parts of ths continent and even across the waters to the foreign mission field. Who alone can tell, but our Heavenly Father, of the seed that has been planted?

Perhaps we sometimes question the value of RETREAT? If we stop and think, something that is not practiced greatly today, of the purpose, our questions will most certainly vanish. Is it necessary that young people draw apart for a time for the development of spiritual growth and training of Christian service under the supervision of consecrated Christian leadership today? I think we all agree that it is, if the youth of today will be the stalwart nation of tomorrow.

"Spring has sprung" and the thoughts of the young people of the Eastern District Conference are once again turning to RETREAT.

Our RETREATS this year are under the direction of Rev. Ernest J. Bohn of Souderton, Pennsylvania.

The theme for the thirteenth annual RETREAT is: "CHRIST PRE-EMINENT — YESTERDAY, TODAY, FOREVER." Hebrews 13:8.

WHERE? University Boy's Camp, Green Lane, Pennsylvania.

WHEN? June 14, 15, 16, (Senior Retreat—approximate ages 17 and above). June 21, 22, 23, (Junior Retreat—approximate ages 14 to 17).

WHO? WHAT? Main Course—The Message of the Minor Prophets (for their day and our day) to be taught by Rev. A. E. Kreider of Bethel College.

Senior Elective Courses: 1. Mennonite Church History, Dr. E. E. S. Johnson, Professor at Hartford Theological Seminary. 2. Training for S. S. Work, Rev. E. Waltner, Pastor of Second Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. 3. Peace, Rev. J. J. Plenert, Pastor of First Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Junior Courses: Course A—This will be the same as the main course of the Senior Retreat applied to this age group. Course B—Youth's Problems, Mr. Andrew Shelly, Student at Hartford Theological Seminary.

This is a glimpse of the 1940 RETREAT program. At both of these RETREATS there wlil be directed Christian recreation for all.

Keeping in mind the theme, the 1940 RETREAT committee has chosen the following theme chorus. May we all not the words for there is much truth in them.

Yesterday, today, forever,
Jesus is the same.
All may change but Jesus never!
Glory to His name,
Glory to His name,
Glory to His name,
All may change, but Jesus never!
Glory to His name,

Yours very truly,
Emma M. Vansworth, Secr. of 1940 Retreat Com.

AMONG MY SOUVENIRS

While cleaning house, as one is likely to do these spring days, one comes across many possessions and keepsakes, some old, others recently acquired. Some of these recall interesting memories and provoke thought!

On a Valentine was the verse:

"Tell me dot you love me now
Don't vait till I am dead
Ven I'm in the cold, damp ground
I can't hear vot you said!"

It's something to think about, isn't it? So many times we leave our love, our thanks, or our appreciation unexpressed. Or perhaps we delay expressing it, in some cases, much to our regret. How much happier we can make others by a kind word or a word of praise or appreciation at the appropriate time. It gives one a "lift" to know that some one else has noticed your effort and appreciates it. Let us forget the slights we get but let's not forget to say that word of appreciation. We take too much for granted. We have "eyes that see not."

A little boy was holding a prism just right so that the sun shone through it and made rainbows on the wall. "If we hold our hearts just right God's love will shine through and make things about as beautiful too."

These Things I've Seen

By Nellie Zacharias

"I've seen encouragement,
Like sunshine,
Open the bud of a poet's thought;
Kindness,
Like a flame,
Melt to softness a heart of stone;
Gentleness,
Like a magician,
Turn discord into harmony;
And love,
With mystic alchemy,
Change ugliness to beauty."

Helen A. Penner

THIS AND THAT

The Y. P. representative of Washington is working out a scheme whereby the membership of the Washington C. E. societies may be able to carry on a systematic correspondence with ALL of our missionaries. Each society in the state will be presented with the plan for its consideration in the near future by Harry Albrecht.—Workers' Exchange.

Recently the young people of the Buhler Mennonite Church showed some religious movies and served refreshments in order to raise money for the Camp Wood Retreaters.

The TEACHER TRAINING class of the Reedley S. S., which has increased from 3 members to 12, has renovated the class room by giving it a thorough cleaning and a coat of calcimine. They meet during the S. S. hour and no members are taken from the class for substitute teaching until they have completed their course. C. F. Mueller is the teacher.—Workers' Exchange.

Senior Department

OUR PARENTS

Senior C. E. Topic for May 12, 1940

Main Topic: Young People in Relation to their Parents. Ex. 20:12; 1 Jn. 2:12-14.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Fairest Lord Jesus," "Take the Name of Jesus With You," "O Happy Home, Where Thou Art Loved the Dearest."
2. Reading of main topic and prayer.
3. A word by the pastor.
4. Offering for mission work.

II. Leader's Introduction

One of the closest, the most intimate of life's relationships is that between parents and children. No one will be more concerned about the welfare of the children than their parents. No one will rejoice more in their accomplishments than they. A man like John says: "I have no greater joy than to hear that my children walk in truth." To lead and guide their children into this way "The High Way" that is the big job of parents.

Happy is that child who feels himself understood by his parents, who confides in them, and whose parents can appreciate his view point. There is nothing more beautiful, more heaven-like here on earth than a Christian home.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. A trustful son. Gen. 22:1-8.
2. Fate of a rebellious son. 2 Sam. 18:9-17.
3. Pleasing parents. Prov. 23:24, 25.
4. A good son of a good mother. 2 Tim. 1:3-5.
5. Obedience advised. Eph. 6:1-3.
6. Jesus, our example. Luke 2:51, 52.

IV. For Discussion

1. What can parents do to understand their children?

2. What can children do to understand their parents?

3. Are parents the best friends that children have? In what ways?

V. Facts for Study

Where Christ spoke of God as a Father, he glorified and dignified the place of a Father for all time. God was a Father, some one whom one could trust, some one who was always willing to listen and help, who loved in spite of failure, and forgave as he taught in his parables and other teachings and proved by his own relationship to Christ.

Mary was his mother, to whom he was obedient, whom he loved, for whom he cared even when in the midst of the terrible suffering on the cross.

Jesus was the Son of whom Mary thought a great deal, in whose ability she believed. "Whatsoever he saith to you, do it," she says. She is concerned about him, as the story shows where people tell Jesus that his mother has come to see him. She loves him dearly, and stays close to him in his hours of suffering on the cross. Can we learn from the relationship of Jesus to his parents, and of the parents to Jesus?

VI. Illustrations

The little boy was only six. One cannot soon forget the complete and peaceful security that dwelt in his hazel eyes as he cast up a dazzling smile at his nurse, saying, "I said my prayers before supper—out there by the garden wall. Mother told me God hears me prayin' wherever I am, if I stand up or if I kneel down." As he grows up may he continue to know that prayer does not have to be saved up for occasional, carefully timed, formal use, but that it is something to carry around with one always useable, constantly enriching the user, intellectually as well as spiritually. His mother's word has been a help to him in his spiritual life.

Busy and happy in his task as a professor in the Theological Seminary in Virginia, Wilbur Crosby Bell was stricken with a heart attack when in the prime of life. He had but a short time to live, the doctors told him. Then he began to talk to his wife concerning life, and especially the future life. To the young men he taught he dictated this message: "Tell the boys that I've grown surer of God every year of my life, and I've never been so sure as I am right now . . . I'm so glad to find that I haven't the least shadow of shrinking or uncertainty . . . I've always thought so and now that I'm right up against it, I know."

A poorly clad young man matriculated at one of the universities of the South. When he had paid for his board, room, and tuition, and the price of second-hand books, he had just five dollars left. At the end of the fourth year he took the Bachelor of Arts degree, and the next year his Master's degree. To carry him through th fifth eyar his poor, old, widowed mother had sold one of the plow horses. At the end of that year, though he sat up with the graduates, dressed in plainest and cheapest of clothing, he was nevertheless the honor student, at the head of his class. When a beautiful gold metal was handed to him, he stepped from the rostrum and walked straight to the back of the room, where, near to the door, sat his mother. To those near by, she was just a faded old woman in black; to him she was a beautiful lady, to whom he owed everything. He tied the blue ribbon suspending the medal around her neck, while she buried her wrinkled face in her drawn, horny hands, and wept like a child. It seemed the applause would never die away. The rewards of her labor of love that later came to her in the form of comforts and little luxuries were never more cherished than that moment when her son showed his gratitude for her part in his formal education.—W. S. Bowden.

VI. Food for Thought

Father, Mother, Son, Daughter—these words encompass so much of privilege and of responsibility.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

MY FRIENDS, MOTHER AND DAD

Program for May 12, 1940

Part 1

Our Mothers

Song, "Mother's Doxology"

Praise God for mother, home and love;
Praise Him for Bible from above;
Praise Him for church and country dear;
Praise Him for Christ throughout the year.
King's Builders.

Scripture Reading, Prov. 31:10-15, 19-23, 25-31.

Vocal Solo, "Mother Machree"

Quotations:

1. For Boys:

a. Mother is the truest friend we have." W. Irving.

b. "My mother was the making of me. She was so true, so sure of me; and I felt that I had someone to live for, someone I must not disappoint." Thomas A. Edison.

c. "I remember my mother's prayers and they have always followed me. They have clung to me all my life." Abraham Lincoln.

d. "Let France have good mothers and she will have good sons." Napoleon.

e. "The greatest possession which can bless and sanctify a boy's life is the memory of a praying Christian mother." J. A. Garfield.

2. For Girls:

a. "I am more indebted to my mother than to all others except my God." Mary Lyon.

b. "I owe to my mother's loving wisdom all that was bright and good in my long night." Helen Keller.

c. "In the memory she stands apart from all others, purer, doing more, and living better than any other woman." Alice Cary.

d. "Mother! Her love and mindfulness have never failed me. I am as sure to have them as I am to have the sunshine, air to breathe, or God's mercy." Frances E. Willard.

Vocal Solo, "Mother of Mine"

Part 2

Our Fathers

Song, "Faith of Our Fathers"
Scripture Reading, Luke 15:11-32
Prayer Song, "My Faith Looks Up To Thee"
Sentense Prayers
Duet, "Homage" (Tune, "Whispering Hope")

The world pays its homage to great men—
Many the praises they sing;
Those who have fought life's great battles—
Statesmen and soldiers and kings;
But I will sing my glad praises
For one whose form is bent low;
Who never won fame or fortune,
One whom the world does not know.

His hair has grown gray at the temples,
Step not so swift in the race;
Eyes have grown dim through the long years,
Wrinkles have lined his dear face;
But he was so kind and noble,
He taught me to live true alway;
That is the reason I love him,
And honor my father today.
(Chorus to second stanza)
Honor him now;
Honor your father,
Making his heart with great gladness rejoice.
Rose Weaver Clevenger

Song, "Saviour, Like a Shepherd Lead Us"

Hymn of Dedication, "I Would Be True"

Offering

Benediction (By a father)

For Daily Reading:

May 6. A son's appeal to sons. Prov. 4:1-9.
May 7. Jacob and his youngest sons. Genesis 44:18-31.
May 8. Saul and Jonathan. 1 Sam. 20:1-3.
May 9. David's charge to Solomon. 1 Chronicles 22:6-13.
May 10. Givers of good gifts. Luke 11:11-13.
May 11. The heavenly Father. Ps. 103:13-18; Isa. 66:13.
May 12. Topic: My friends, mother and father. Prov. 6:20-23.

Helps from "Intermediate Expressional Serviecs" by permission of Standard Publishing Co.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

Program for May 12, 1940

A Study of the fourth and fifth commandments. Exodus 20:8-12.

To the leaders: Let us combine the study of these two commandments with the thought of "Mother's Day." For the fourth commandment if known and kept is a stronghold for family life, and the fifth commandment is surely the basis for having a "Mother's Day" and a "Father's Day." Why not then send a special invitation to mothers and fathers to be guests of the Juniors at this time?

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude, "Come, We That Love the Lord"

2. Call to worship. Psalm 95:1-3. "O come let us sing unto the Lord: let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation, for the Lord is a great God, and a King above all gods."

3. Song in unison, standing—The above song.

4. Scripture Reading by a Junior girl, Deuteronomy 6:1-7, 17. (All Juniors should have a Bible with good, clear print in which they can follow the Bible reading.)

5. Prayer by the Junior leader.

6. Song by the Juniors, "The Best of Friends I Have in Heaven," Mennonite Hym Book, No. 364.

7. Poem:

"Again returns the day of holy rest,
Which, when He made the world, Jehovah blest,
When, like His own, He bade our labors cease,
And all be piety, and all be peace.

Let us devote this consecrated day
To learn His will, and all we learn obey;
So shall He hear, when fervently we raise
Our supplications and our songs of praise."

8. In unison the verse of the month. 1 John 5:3. "For this is the love of God that we keep His commandments and His commandments are not grievous."

9. Solo. Solo voice sings the words and the Juniors hum the accompaniment of "Wonderful Words of Life."

II. Study Period

Aim: To help our Juniors learn the fourth and fifth commandments by memory and "by heart".

1. All turn to Exodus 20:8-12 and read these verses in unison.

2. Study the fourth commandment.

(a) A Junior boy read it again, Exodus 20:8-11.

(b) A short introduction. The Old Testament Sabbath is our Sunday. This one day in seven is a special gift from God to His children. He gave it to us to help us to grow in knowledge of Him, in love for Him and for all about us. We also need it to keep strong and well. This commandment which God intended for our physical and spiritual good is broken more often, even by Christians, than any other commandment. The consequences are that God's children, even, do not know Him and love Him as they should and are not as happy as He wants them to be.

(c) Reading of Exodus 31:13-17 by a Junior girl.

(d) Discussion by three Junior boys: "How should we keep the Sabbath?" (a) By resting from our daily work and play. (b) By prayerfully using God's word in worship both in the home and in the church. (c) By doing good.

(e) Discussion by two Junior girls: "Why should we keep the Sabbath?" (a) Because God tells us to. (b) Because we honor God by obeying Him.

3. Study the fifth commandment.

(a) A Junior girl read it again. Exodus 20:12.

(b) A short introduction. We have now studied the four commandments which speak of our duties to God. They tell us how we may live close to God and how we can honor Him with our lives. The six commandments yet to be studied explain how we may best live with others, for they tell us of our duties toward those about us. The first one of these tells us about our duty to our parents. This is the only commandment that also has a promise.

(c) Scripture reading by a Junior boy: Ephesians 6:1-3; Colossians 3:20.

(d) Discussion by two Junior girls. "How can we honor our parents?" (a) By loving them, (b) By obeying them.

(e) A memory period. (All Juniors should take part.) Let each one tell something that their parents do for them. There should be no repetition of loving deeds done. How many different things can we think of?

4. Duet, "O Happy Home," Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 359.

III. Mission Minutes ____ ____ ________ ____ ____

1. Each child name a missionary family, telling where they are stationed and if possible naming the children of the family.

2. With bowed heads pray for our Missionary Mothers and Fathers.

V. Closing Moments

1. Sing the song of the month, "Yield Not To Temptation."

2. Repeat the verse of the month. 1 John 5:3.

3. Pray in unison the prayer of the month. Psalm 143:10.

4. Sing softly one verse of "My Jesus I Love Thee."

5. In unison repeat benediction: Numbers 6:24-26.

CORRESPONDENCE

TABOR CHURCH, NEWTON, KANS., APRIL 15

January and February brought us cold stormy weather. Church attendance was poor. On three Sundays services had to be called off per phone on account of impassable roads. Some of our church members live 10 to 15 and even more miles from the church. Those that live closer have the privilege to attend regularly. Even if the gatherings were small we were blessed.

Rev. H. A. Fast visited us on January 5th in the evening. He reported about his South American trip and showed pictures. We hope he can come again sometime later, as not everyone could attend on account of cold weather and sickness. The following week the Prayer Week was observed.—On March 10 the Goessel and Walton Hi-Y clubs gave an instructive program. They explained the purpose of the clubs which is serving the communities.

Palm Sunday our pastor preached a preparatory sermon for the Lord's Supper, held on Good Friday. Monday, Tuesday and Friday evenings of the Passion Week Rev. Theo. Roth of the Swiss Mennonite Church near Whitewater served us with three inspiring messages. His themes were: "Remembering the Prophecies of Christ," "Looking unto Jesus" and "The Cries from the Cross." Easter Sunday the choir sang several selections under the direction of Bro. William Voth. Easter Monday Rev. Lester Wuethrich served us with a mission sermon on the text, Philip and the Eunuch. He emphasized especially the witnessing for Christ. In the evening Rev. W. C. Voth showed us the pictures of the China Mission Field, and on March 31 he preached on schools and education.

Bro. Schmidt our emeritus deacon is still sick. Sister Mrs. D. A. Schmidt was very sick this winter. She is better now.—The church has planned a three weeks' Bible school.—D. S. Thiessen, Corr.

MENNONITE CHURCH, HILLSBORO, KANS.

Our church is experiencing losses. The death of Harold Schmidt, 13 years old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Schmidt, brought sadness to both church and community. Last Tuesday the body of our senior member, J. J. Friesen, was laid in its last resting place. Mr. Friesen's departure was a peaceful passing from this life into the next. Mr. A. D. Schmidt, our retired deacon, has been critically ill for some time. Miss Marie Siemens, whose condition required two weeks of hospital care, is at home again with her sister, Mrs. D. P. Ewert.

Dr. A. K. Ratzlaff, our deacon and doctor in the local hospital, will take charge of the Bethesda Hospital in Goessel in May. The Ratzlaffs will make their home in Goessel. This change will be a distinct loss to our church and hospital. Our regrets and best wishes go with our friends.—Correspondent.

IN MEMORIAM

ISAAC HARDER, SON OF PETER AND MARIA FAST HARDER, was born in Mountain Lake, Minn. on October 3, 1879; where he spent his childhood days and attended the public schools from his parental home. He was baptized upon confession of faith by Elder H. H. Regier and united with the Bethel Mennonite Church.

He came to Aberdeen, Idaho in 1913 and homesteaded west of town. Later he went into the garage business in company with one of his close friends, Mr. Calvin Moser of Aberdeen. In later years he became owner of the tourist camp ground and two gasoline filling stations in American Falls.

Although the departed was blessed with a strong physique, yet in the past seven years his health has been failing. He entered the American Falls hospital in 1937, and soon apparently recovered from his ailment. About 12 days before his death, he again entered the hospital for treatment, but in spite of all medical care this proved to be his final illness and he died early in the morning of February 5, 1940, after having been unconscious about 10 days. He reached the age of 60 years, 4 months and two days.

One brother, Henry Harder of Loveland, Colo., and one sister, Marie F. Harder of Mountain Lake, Minn., were at his bedside until the end came. He leaves to mourn his departure the brother and sister above mentioned, and many friends.

Funeral services were held in the American Falls Methodist Church, under the direction of the Rev. Philip A. Wedel of Aberdeen. Funeral services were held again from the First Mennonite Church in Mountain Lake Saturday afternoon, in charge of the Rev. I. J. Dyck. Interment was made in the Mountain Lake cemetery.

HEINRICH D. SCHMIDT, SON OF DAVID AND MARIA NACHTIGAL SCHMIDT, was born in Alexanderwohl, South Russia, on Nov. 13, 1861. In Waldheim where he went to school for six years, he received a good Christian training. In 1874 he came to America with his parents. They settled in Marion County, Kansas, where he learned to know the meaning of pioneer life.

He gave his heart to his Lord, was baptized by Elder Jacob Buller and became a member of the Alexanderwohl Church in 1861. On Feb. 7, 1882, he was married to Margaretha Baerkmann, daughter of Heinrich and Justina Bearkmann. They made their home on a farm in Kansas till 1898 when they and their four children and one foster son, came to Oklahoma, where they decided to make room for another child in their home, and adopted a little girl.

They joined the Sichar Church, and in 1890 he was chosen as its minister, but felt that he could not accept the call. In 1904 he received a call from the Salem congregation and served it for five years, when it disbanded. In 1911 he received a call from the Sichar congregation where he toiled for his Master for 17 years, until his resignatiion in 1929. Realizing that farm life was becoming too strenuous for them, they moved to Cordell in 1929, where he enjoyed attending services at the various churches.

In August 1939 he became ill, after some treatments his condition improved somewhat, but generally his only hope for complete recovery lay in a major operation. He decided against it because of physical weakness and his old age. During the winter months he began failing again and the last two weeks brought great suffering to him. His release came on March 13, when he was permitted to go to his Master whom he had served faithfully for many long years. He reached the age of 78 years and 4 months.

He leaves to mourn his wife; three sons, Henry of Cordell, Peter of Walton, Kansas, David of Cordell; one daughter, Margaret (Mrs. John Schmierer) of Cordell; a foster son, Henry S. Ratzlaff of Cordell; one son-in-law, four daughters-in-law; fourteen grandchildren; eight great grandchildren; one brother, B. D. Schmidt, and many other relatives and friends. His adopted daughter, Marie(Mrs. Frank Kliewer) passed away in 1927.

We mourn, but not as though we had no hope meeting him again, because we know he has gone to be with his Lord and Master in Glory. "So the blessed Saviour—Took him by the hand—Led him gently homeward—To the promised Land."

—The Bereaved Wife and Children

— The editor's operation mentioned last week turned out to be less serious than it might have been. The doctors found it possible to dismiss him from the hospital in less than a week.

LEWIS H. AUGSPURGER, SON OF CHRISTIAN AND CATHERINE SCHERTZ AUGSPURGER, was born Aug. 9, 1869 at Collinsville, O., and died suddenly of a heart attack on March 27, 1940, at the age of 70 years, 7 months and 22 days. On January 8, 1902 he was united in marriage with Katherine M. Schallip.

In his youth he united with the Trenton Menn. Church, where he remained an active and faithful member, and where his presence will be greatly missed.

He leaves to mourn his bereaved widow, two sons, one daughter, and one sister, Miss Matilda Augspurger. A large number of friends and relatives gathered at the home for the last sad rites on March 30, where Rev. J. E. Amstutz conducted the services. Burial was made in the Trenton Mennonite Cemetery.

* * *

MRS. ANNA B. CASSIDY, was born Feb. 5, 1853 on a farm near Carlisle, Ohio and died April 1, 1940, after an illness of four days. Mrs. Cassidy was a faithful member of the First Prebyterian Church of Middletown, Ohio, however, after making her home with her daughter, she attended the Mennonite Church, taking an active part in the Women's Society, where she will be greatly missed. She is survived by three daughters, one son, one brother and four grandchildren.

Rev. J. E. Amstutz conducted the funeral services from the residence, April 5, where a large number of friends and relatives gathered to pay their respects. Burial was made in the Miltonville Cemetery.

« « JOTTINGS » »

AN EXAMPLE WORTHY OF IMITATION

The Bethesda Church at Henderson, Nebraska, adopted a resolution of far reaching significance at its last annual meeting on January 1, 1940. The resolution recognizes Christian Education as a part of mission work and provides that a monthly offering be taken in its behalf. The offerings are to be divided between Bethel College, Freeman College, and their own local educational work on a percentage basis. Herein lies one of the greatest possibilities for Christian Education among our people. One can hardly visualize how much more effectively our Bible schools, academies, and colleges could serve their constituencies if all the churches in our various conferences would recognize Christian Education as a part of mission work and support it with a monthly offering similar to what now obtains for the Mission Boards. All possible efforts should be expended to make the Henderson example universal among our churches. Apparently a percentage basis for distribution could readily be worked out by conferences or local congregations. —Freeman Jr. College Bulletin —Spring Financial Campaign at Bethel College.— As has been the custom for some years, Bethel College through its fellowships and special efforts on the part of the Administration, is again trying to raise funds which it sorely needs to continue to grow and to maintain its enviable standing. Since 1935 the following amounts have been raised through these spring drives: 1935, $5,985; 1936, $47,205; 1937, $27,381; 1938, $25,875; 1939, $10,275. This spring the goal is set for $60,000. Of this $20,000 are needed to balance the current budget and $40,000 to put the large Memorial Hall under roof, thus making it at least partly serviceable to meet immediate crying needs and to keep it from deteriorating. Groups, such as the Alumni Association and the Letter Club are planning to raise several thousand dollars each and the fellowships will do what they can. Dr. E. G. Cuttshall, successful as a church college president and in campaigns of this kind, has been secured to assist President Kaufman in finding some larger sources. It is prayerfully hoped that the efforts made will bring fairly good results.

—"Church Messenger", Eden Church., Schwenksville, Pa., Easter Dawn services were held for Lower Perkiomen Valley at Ursinus College at 6:00 a. m. The sermon was preached by Rev. Freeman Swartz. Missionary P. J. Boehr filled the pulpit Sunday, April 7. The pastor went to Saucon to give communion. On Monday, April 15, he was the speaker guest of the Allentown Ministerium. Missionary P. J. Boehr and family—the number is still undecided—are to sail for China this fall.—The Missionary Rally in the Flatland Church, Sunday, April 7, brought a full house. Mrs. Erland Waltner of the Second Church, Philadelphia, a missionary's daughter was the speaker.

—The Bible Conference at Newton, Kansas, held under the auspices of a group of Mennonite laymen, April 14-21, was well attended. Dr. A. H. Unruh of Winkler Manitoba, spoke in the First Mennonite Church each morning. His topics were taken from Revelation 3:14-22 and were conducted in the German language. The main speaker of the conference, Dr. Herbert Lockyer, internationally known Bible expositor of London, England, gave very inspirational and timely addresses every afternoon and evening. Some of his subjects were: The greatest Text in the Bible; The Vision Splendid; Newton's Greatest Need; The Hands of Jesus; Will the European Crisis Result in the End of the Age? Beginning Wednesday evening Rev. D. E. Young of Winfield, Kansas, the song leader of the conference, conducted meetings for young people following the main event of the evening.

—Second Church, Beatrice, Nebr. The pastor, R. Weinbrenner, is urging all those who wish to attend the Young People's Retreat, July 23-28 at Camp Wood, to register early, for the reason that only 180 young people can be accomodated. Retreats are blessings that have come to stay.

—The Goshen College A Cappella Choir which made a tour through several of the central states, Sunday, April 14, visited Hesston and Tabor Colleges. Monday they made a trip to Hanston, Kansas, for a concert there, and Tuesday morning they gave a concert in the Bethel College chapel and in the evening at the Newton city auditorium preceding the evening address of the Bible Conference. Their concerts were greatly enjoyed.

—The E. D. Quarterly Conference met at Bethel Church, Perkasie on Monday April 8. Heavy rains fell all day, but attendance and interest were good. We regretted the rainy day as it made it hard to make all comfortable in our small building. Wet top coats and umbrellas were much in evidence. By mistake someone got the umbrella of Nelson Weiss, Richlandtown, with N. W. scratched in the handle. He would be glad to have it returned to him. The one left can be called for or sent to the owner if notified.
Fannie E. Landis, Corr.

—Zion Mennonite Church, Soudertown, Pa., at a recent special congregational meeting has voted to erect a Sunday Shool building, for which a fund of $10,700 already is on hand. This new building with the basement of the old building will make available 18 class rooms for Sunday School, 11 of which will be soundproof. The rooms for the nursery, beginners and primary department, wash rooms and choir room will be on the second floor. With remodeling of the pulpit platform the addition of new windows, etc., the whole project will cost about $25,000.

—Missionary John Thiessen is making his round among the Mennonite Churches in South Dakota, between April 14 and 28, giving illustrated talks about the mission work in India. Beginning Sunday, April 21, he will speak each evening in the Freeman Junior College gymnasium, where a loud speaker purchased by the Ministerial Association, is to be installed and used. The instrument is for use by any affiliated church and the college.

—Mennonite Church, Halstead, Kansas. On Easter Sunday sixteen new members were received into the church by the right hand of fellowship. Our prayer is that they may be a blessing to us and we to them. Communion was observed. As a fitting climax to the Easter festivities the community choir of 85 voices rendered the annual Easter cantata to a capacity house. Katie Schmidt, Corr.

—Menno Mennonite Church, Lind, Washington.—Easter Sunday was witnessed by a large group at this church. Before the Easter message was given by the pastor, seven babies were consecrated to the Lord. This was an occasion long to be remembered by the parents. After the message nine members joined the church through the right hand of fellowship. At present twelve young people are taking a course in the "Christian Life" which is given by the pastor, in preparation for baptism later in fall.

—From the Bulletin of St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio.—In Jesus is America's only Hope. The World's Christian Fundamentals Association is conducting a National Crusade in the interest of a revival in America. It is hoped that enough interest can be awakened to pray for an awakening among Christians and to win souls for the Lord Jesus Christ. You too can help and covenant with God to pray that the churches of America may be revived and that souls may be saved. Let's Go Back to the Bible. Pray.

—Mennonite Church, Reedley, Calif., The following is a sample of the busy time that this church with others has during the week. Monday at 7:15 p. m., Meeting of the Pioneers. Tuesday at 7:00 p. m. Father-Son Banquet. Wednesday at 7:00 p. m., Young People's Choir; at 7:30, Gebetsstunde; at 8:00, Men's Chorus. Thursday at 6:30 p. m., "Friendly Indians." Friday at 6:00 p. m., all girls interested in the junior Missionary Society will have a pot luck dinner.

—A Good Venture. The Community Bible School of Mountain Lake, Minn. is conducting a Kindergarten during the months of April and May. Twenty-five children are enrolled.

ORDER BLANK

MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE

Newton, Kansas

Place a cross in the order used.

☐ I wish to become a new subscriber of THE MENNONITE, and am enclosing the special price of $1.00 for the first year.

☐ I hereby renew my subscription to The Mennonite and enclose $________, for which credit me as far as it goes. Regular price is $1.50 a year.

Kansas subscribers should add 2 per cent for taxes.

Old subscribers paying to 1941 or beyond get the YEAR BOOK free. This very valuable book may be had by anyone, postpaid, for $.25.

Name ____

Street or Route ________________________________

City __________________ State ______________________

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA.

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Business Office, Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kans.
Editor .... J. R. Thierstein, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.50 .... Foreign, $2.00

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges, to J. R. THIERSTEIN, or the MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS.

Wholesome, Helpful Books by Zondervan Publishers for the Family and Church Library

Spiritual Lessons from Literary Masters

by E. L. Weaver

All lovers of good literature know how many valuable and lasting lessons can be found there and what pleasant and profitable hours can be spent with the master writers. It is particularly fortunate that the author of this book makes his selections from the literary storehouse on the basis of their spiritual worth. So in each chapter we find not only fine literary merit but nurture as well.

Following are some of the chapter headings: "In the Beginning", Cadman; "Diligence Rewarded", Longfellow; "The Charm of Old Things", Irving; "The Charm of Common Things", Wordsworth; "Calm Woods and Still Waters", Bryant; "Conquering Through Patience", Alcott; "Beauty Invisible", Hawthorne; "The Consecration of Talent", Beecher Stowe; "The Art of Loving God", Rolle.

This interesting and valuable book should be made available to young lives wherever possible, to help give them an intelligent sense and a healthy taste for good literature.

145 pages Price, $1.00

The Gist of the Bible

by Alvin E. Bell

A brief but very readable analysis of the Bible in which the meaning and messages of each book are compressed into a few hundred words. A splendid book for Bible classes, high schools, colleges, Bible Institutes, and those interested in a personal study of the Word. Special features: At the end of the analysis of each Biblical book is a lucid statement of its relation to Christ. The book gives a delightful bird's-eye-view of what the Bible tells, who does the telling, and under what circumstances.

xi plus 169 pages Price, $1.00

Wine, Women and Song

by Sam Morris

"The Voice of Temperance", Radio Speaker, Bible Teacher and Evangelist.

This pamphlet is an array of competent arguments against strong drink, wild women and hilarious living. Just one of the illustrations: "'Mr. will you give a poor fellow a quarter to buy something to eat? I haven't had anything to eat since day before yesterday.' Recognizing the bum, the man said in astonishment: 'My God, man, what has happened to you? The last time I saw you, you were not in this shape.' The bum looked off, looked back, rubbed his dirty sleeve across his mouth and said: 'Liquor and wild women.'"

20 pages Price, 25 cents

Daniel's Prophetic Image

by Rev. A. Sims, Fourth

With actual illustration of Daniel's great vision as a basis, the author in this pamphlet shows that the kingdoms passed in procession, each inferior to the preceding one; that present day conditions answer exactly to the feet of the image. Studied in the light of the European War, and the great upheavals taking place, the prophet's interpretation of "that great and terrible image" shines out with amazing clearness and power.

42 pages Price, 25 cents

Proximities of Calvary

by Robert G. Lee, D.D., L.L.D., Litt.D.

Pastor, Bellevue Baptist Church, Memphis
Author of several valuable books.

Dr. Lee's work in Memphis has been singularly blessed. 6700 new members have been added to the church, or a net gain of 3,575 during his twelve year pastorate.

This book contains a series of unique, original, dramatic, gripping gospel messages. The chapter headings are: The Last Week, The Two Processions, The Two Weepings, The Two Thieves, The Two Hatreds, The Two Nights, The Two Rendings, The Two Loves.

104 pages Price, $1.00

Dark Mountains

by Dorothy Bryant

Here is a genuinely good Christian novel, by a young author, with a wholesome, uplifting vein running through it.

Marjorie Holcomb has tried various short courses in business school, interior decoration, and what not, until her father tells her, "You never finished any of them—and now you want to be a missionary. Well, if that young preacher has fired you with some worthwhile objective, I'll back you up, but only if you get down to hard work. Now, mind you, if you don't stick this year out, you will come back and work in the store—from nine to six." In the mission school which Marjorie now attends, she is apparently converted, but, lively and attractive girl that she is, she thinks she can still enjoy things that are of the world and also follow Christ. The struggles between her new found faith and the assaults of temptations from without that now follow, her growth in grace and her final victory, when she and a fine missionary candidate sign up to go to the African field as Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Scott, are full of suspense and food for thought. The book is especially adapted to place in the hands of some troubled and discouraged person, but is commendable to any one to strengthen the faith of Christ's power over people's souls. 223 pages. Price, $1.00.

Order any of the above books and anything in the book line from MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN Berne, Indiana

EAST BROADWAY
NEWTON, KANSAS

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS APRIL 30, 1940 NUMBER 18

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

Man's and God's Estimate of Men

"Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart." Many examples of the truth of this statement can be found in sacred and secular history and in the life of today. When Saul was about to be chosen king of Israel, even Samuel the "seer" agreed with the people in the sentiment, "On whom is all the desire in Isreal but on thee?" And why, because they were captivated by Saul's outward appearance. For he was "a choice young man . . . . and there was not among the children of Israel a goodlier (better looking) person than he: from his shoulders and upward he was higher than any of the people." Later when Samuel was bidden to select a successor to the ill-fated Saul, when under God's leading he stood in the presence of the six older sons of Jesse, all handsome, stalwart young men, when he looked at Eliab he said, "Surely the Lord's annointed is before him," what did God say? "Look not on his countenance nor on the height of his stature . . . I have refused him: for the Lord seeth not as man seeth . . . . he looketh on the heart." It was to be the youngest, smallest son, the shepherd lad David, "a man after God's own heart." Much as the man of God, Samuel, and worse we judge men by their stature, their power, physical and mental; by their knowledge, their social charms, their art of persuasion, their wealth, their prestige, and what not. This is serious enough in the secular affairs of life, but how much more serious when such qualifications determine our choice of workers in God's kingdom? Our attitude and action then fits pretty well into the picture given us by James: "If there come into your assembly (or may we say home) a man with a gold ring, in goodly apparel, and there come in also a poor man in vile raiment, ye have respect to him that weareth the gay clothing, and say unto him, Sit thou here in a good place, and say to the poor, Stand thou there, or sit here under my footstool." Isn't the modern social world full of attitudes and practices after this pattern?

Soon we are going to face the election of local, state and national officers to represent us in our government. What a wonderful change would take place in the affairs of our commonwealths if the Christian people could unite their choice on men that are right at heart, that will work for peace, justice, fair treatment of the poor, the alleviation of suffering, and not for weapons of destruction and ever-increasing navy and army powers. Why don't we do it? Why do we let the politicians select the candidates for us whose aims are so often tinged with selfishness rather than a will to work for the common good, men who have a regard for the things of God? T.

* * * *

Moral Rearmament

In these times when the world is torn by killing hatred and Satanic wars, and seems to be going the road of self-destruction, people are sacred and are trying to find refuge in such slogans as "Back to God", "Back to the Bible", "Moral Rearmament". Plainly they cannot go back to God unless they have known and served Him before, nor can they go back to the Bible if they have not lived by it before. But these slogans are innocently used and may serve their purpose. Our objection is on the word REARMAMENT. The Treaty of Versailles pledged the European nations to disarm. But when the Allies made no attempt to conform to the pledge, Germany began to rearm. And then followed the mad race of rearmament that has resulted in the present war. Had there been a nation that had never armed before and now joined the rest of them, we would have to call its action "initial armament", not rearmament.

Now, how about moral rearmament? Plainly, a person cannot experience religious or moral rearmament who had not alligned himself with religion before. This term serves as a sort of "catch phrase" fostering an attempt that can get the average person nowhere. The gist of an apt illustration which we have recently read should make this clear: A naked man is standing in the midst of No Man's Land. On its edge stands Satan disguised as an Angel of Light and is repeatedly calling and urging the poor nudist to come forth, who finally cries out, "How can I reclothe myself, when all my clothing was taken away from me when I fell from the pinnacle of sanity, purity, and innocence."

As the nude man could not clothe himself, because he lacked the wherewithal, so a person cannot have moral or religious rearmament, unless he has actually possessed "armament". In other words, he must have had the experience of a new birth of heart and mind to start with, whereupon he may be assured of clothing in the armament of God. This armament comes to him as a gift following the regeneration of his nature and his whole life. It's useless to call those who have never been born again or "spirtually armed" to rearm. What the people of today need is a genuine regeneration of their hearts, a complete submission of their wills to God's will and consecration of their lives to His service. T.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

STUDENTS READY TO HELP

Inquiries have come from our two larger Schools, Bethel and Bluffton, whether the Home Mission Board had any places open, so that they might help some churches.

Some of the students have had some preaching experience, while others are willing and ready to help in some Summer Bible School work.

Are there any churches anywhere within reach of these two colleges, which are planning on Summer Bible School, that could use any of these students?

Should some ministers plan on a trip or vacation, it would be greatly appreciated and it would render a real service, if some of our college, Seminary or Bible School students would be given a chance to help.

Medical Doctors are required to spend a year as interns in some hospital. There these young doctors need to work under the observation and guidance of older doctors. In the past we have had a few cases of internship in church work, and in every instance it has been very helpful both to the churches and the interns.

If anyone has an opening, please communicate with the Secretary of the Home Mission Board, A. J. Neuenschwander, Quakertown, Pa.

MISSIONARY RETURNS TO TEACHING

Canton, Okla., 4:24-40

Dear Friends,

Since my dear wife is not strong enough for this work, and because my former profession, teaching, is more along my line, we have sent in our resignation, such to take effect on May 21.

It is our intention to continue to serve our Master, and feel that this is also possible in the teaching profession.

We thank you very much for the kindness shown us, and solicit your further prayers for us as well as for the new workers who will take our place.

Sincerely yours, Benno Toews

We are sorry to assent to the step announced above that Brother and Sister Benno Toews have found necessary to take. This letter which gives their reason speaks for itself. We wish them the Lord's blessing in their new work. — P. H. Richert, Sec. F. M. Bd.

A Statement of Purpose

The Evangelization Committee, which was recently appointed by the Home Mission Board, wishes herewith to make a statement on what it considers to be its task. It is none other than to encourage the Church to give herself more faithfully to the unfinished task of spreading the Good News in the local community as well as in the uttermost parts of the world.

The Church needs to give herself with new resolve to her God-given task of witness-bearing. She should summon all her members to be witnesses to the truth and salvation in Christ Jesus. Christian people everywhere should definitely accept the privilege and duty of witnessing to Jesus Christ among the people with whom they live. Too often Christians think that in America people who desire to know the way may find it, for there are many churches to go to for help. But we should remember that the Church has been called to carry forward the redemptive work of Christ on earth and must give herself to seek the lost as her Redeemer did. Pastors and church leaders should make sustained efforts to help all Christian people to realize this. And as soon as possible the entire membership of the church should be mobilized for the task of making the truth and the way of life in Christ known to all people of the community. Every church should undertake some carefully planned evangelistic work in its community as a regular part of church activity. The Church surely fails her Lord unless she gives herself with resolve to this task which has been entrusted to her by Him Who redeemed her. This may appear like a gigantic task; but all power is given to Him Who gives the Church her marching orders, and we may safely trust Him to guide and bless His people who give themselves to obey. This is a cooperative undertaking—men working together with God. Prayer will be the means of revealing God's salvation and glory among men. To encourage the churches to pray for the unsaved will need continual emphasis.

Our work for the present, at least, will be confined largely to writing articles and letters in order to inspire and encourage the churches to pray for the unsaved and to undertake plans to seek and win all people of their respective communities to Jesus Christ. How our work will develop in the future we trustfully leave to the Lord's guidance. If churches should feel the need of asking this committee for help and suggestions on how to carry on evangelistic enterprises in the community, we pledge ourselves to give our best in the way of giving assistance and direction. We ask all who love God to pray for this committee that "utterance may be given" to us so that we may speak as we ought to speak.

John J. Plenert, Chairman,
Erland Waltner, W. F. Unruh.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM?

When in Rev. 13:3 we read: "And all the world wandered after the beast, and they worshipped the dragon which gave power unto the beast: and they worshipped the beast saying, who is like unto the beast? Who is able to make war with him?" and when we realize that the world is fast leading to that terrible day, we need not be surprised at some subtle attempts at the preaching of the Word of God, even in our day.

The Indian and his native religion has been commercialized to the extent that he is keenly aware of it and resents it strongly. In recent years, under pretense of protecting him and his religion, he is in danger of being barred from the sound of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, lest all "these Indians be converted, and his ceremonies, dances, and traditions will be lost." Under the present policy, the Indian is to direct his own destiny, follow his own desires, live his own life and follow his native arts, crafts and traditions. Much protest has arisen from the Hopi, for he wishes his children to learn the things which the white children learn; he wants an equal chance with the white man. How terrible that we, who have come to this land, should try to keep him down in ignorance and to let him direct his own destinies, when we have the Light of the world, knowing "it is not in man that walketh to direct his steps," Jer. 10:23.

Just recently an ordinance was drafted for the Council to pass on. The proposed ordinance was in substance: "That anybody who wishes to hold meetings aside from those in the schools or the health department must first secure the permission of their respective village governor or chief." Not one of these villages has a Christian governor or chief, hence, if it had passed, all the church services, Sunday Schools, sewing classes, vacation Bible schools, and prayer meetings would have been placed under the mercy of the village officials. This ordinance was not even drawn up by the Indians themselves! The prominent Hopi Christians of Oraibi, Toreva, and Polacca and I were invited to be present at a meeting of the council on Mar. 1. (One of the council members, who is a Christian, told us about it.) Quite a debate took place on the question which was finally tabled, until the next meeting. A letter was sent to Mr. G. E. E. Lindquist in Lawrence, Kansas, who wrote to our agent or Superintendent of the reservation, pointing out the unconstitutionality of such an ordinance. Before the special council meeting on March 30, the ordinances were revised and the clause concerning any religious meetings was dropped. Both Christians and missionaries were much in earnest prayer to God during that month, and God has marvelously answered.

We would plead with you to pray very definitely that the door to bring the Gospel to the American Red Man may be kept open. Satan will attempt perhaps even in a more subtle way to thwart the preaching of the Gospel. Where in times past, the Indian has been suppressed by the white man, we have a greater duty and obligation towards him in bringing to him Jesus Christ, who alone can satisfy the longing of the heart for peace.

Yours for the Salvation of the Indians,
John P. and Mabel Suderman.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

A. S. Rosenberger

TEACHING THE SAINTS

(A Suggestion for Christian teachers anywhere. Ed.)

Some teachers seem to be afraid to make their pupils too pious; they do not make them aim high enough in the spiritual life. This is a sad mistake. Children are by nature generous, courageous and enterprising. They are ready to do anything for God when their action is properly directed. This is where the teacher plays his part.

It is likewise wrong to picture the saints as supermen, beings that seemed to live in an entirely different world. The average child is not at all moved at the sight of St. Aloysius in ecstasy or lacerating his body with a cruel discipline. He simply shrugs his shoulders and leaves such practices to those who want to become holy.

We must make the children realize that the saints were frail human beings like ourselves; that they experienced the same trials, the same temptations, the same sorrows and joys as ourselves. They did the same common things which we ourselves do; the only difference is, that as is related of John Berchmans, they did these "common things" in an "uncommon" way.

When we shall have convinced our pupils of these facts, and given them correct ideas about ecstasies, austerities, visions and miracles, we shall have already achieved much in the way of emulating them in the love and imitation of God's heroes. Once the child realizes that sanctity is within his grasp, the greatest obstacle thereto is overcome.—Journal of Religious Instruction, February, 1940, by Brother Cassian Ephrem, F. S. C., Las Vegas, N. M.

(Continued on next page)

It is more to the honor of a Christian, by faith to overcome the world than to retreat from it; more for the honor of Christ to serve Him in a city than in a monastery. — Matthew Henry.

For Our Church School

Thou, Who art the source of wisdom and of grace,
Be with this School to direct and bless it.
Establish it in love,
Carry it forward in the service of truth.
May it ever rest under Thy gracious care.
Use this School for the glory of Christ,
Make it a fountain of courtesy, and godly learning.
Bestow upon those who teach
Knowledge, patience, and a loving spirit.
To those who are taught
Give a receptive heart and aptness to learn.
Help us to be studious, truthful, pure and temperate
So that by Thy grace,
The mind of Christ may be in us and
Our character formed in His holy likeness.
Prosper Thou, O Lord, our labors,
That we may honor Thee
Not only with our lips but with our lives.
May all we learn of the courage, love and faith of Thy Son
Be lived in us this coming year;
Through Jesus Christ, Our Lord.

*From "A Face to the Sky". A Book of Prayers by George Stewart, Association Press, New York

NEW BOOKLET SPONSORED BY OUR GENERAL CONFERENCE PEACE COMMITTEE

Possibly the most insidious and subtle force which destroys a well intentioned peace purpose of a people is that of planned war propaganda. It catches peace-minded people off their guard and injects poisonous ideas into their minds, so that they are blinded to what is the truth.

A very fine booklet, which has already received high praise by certain people who have had an opportunity to examine it, has been written by Dr. E. L. Harshbarger of Bethel College on "The Deceptive Devices of Modern Propaganda." It should be a great aid to our Mennonite people, as well as to many people of America, in recognizing all sorts of propaganda in just such times as we are in now. This little book will shortly be off the Press and will sell for the nominal sum of ten cents, at the MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, BERNE, INDIANA.

Dr. Harshbarger has been making a special study of this subject for the past few years, and is well qualified to write on the topic. It is a booklet which should be read by every member of the Mennonite Church. It would make an ideal book to use in study classes where there is a desire to become acquainted with the forces which in an innocent way lead people into war, or for churches to distribute among their people.

Ernest J. Bohn, Secretary.

PUBLICATION

THE NEW HYMN BOOK

A good many of our conference churches are anxious to know how the new Hymn Book is coming. Those whose old books are badly worn are growing impatient waiting for the new book, and no one should blame them.

But, in connection with this hymn book project, it should be definitely remembered: First, that the task of selecting the hymns and of compiling the manuscript is a work of charity. The brethern who have spent days, sometime into the nights, in making the general selection are all busy with their own professional appointments as ministers, teachers, etc. and their work had to be done at times which they could manage to snatch away from their regular duties. The same is true, and even more so, of the editors, Rev. L. Hostetler and Prof. W. H. Hohmann and those who have tried to assist them. That naturally made progress slow. If the Board of Publication had been financially able to hire these persons to devote all their time to the task, and if they could have been released for it, the manuscript could have been prepared in a comparatively short time.

Secondly, to compile and edit a book of such far reaching consequences as a church hymn book is a piece of work that requires concentration, meditation and prayer. It cannot be done hastily. In addition, repeated checks by different persons are necessary, and that takes time, especially when they live in widely scattered parts. In this case, after the editors had the hymn manuscript in fairly complete form, it was painstakingly gone over more than once by the President of the General Conference, the chairman and members of the Board of Publication, two professors of music from Bluffton College, and one or two other interested persons. Then it had to be circulated among the firms who are likely to do the plate-making, printing and binding, for their examination and final quotations. It is now on the last leg of this tour, and we expect its return to Newton every day. Meanwhile the several different indices had to be checked over and corrected. Extensive correspondence concerning copyrights, some as far as Europe, had to be carried on. The task is truly a many sided one.

All this has taken time, much time, and nobody should be blamed for it. All concerned did the best they could and as expeditiously as they were able. But the old saying, "Was lange waehrt, kommt endlich gut" (A task that takes a long time, will finally come out well) inspires the hope that, because of the delay, the result will be that much better.

Meanwhile the undersigned has endeavored to look after the business part of the project. Since early summer last year, he has been in correspondence with about fifteen different firms, engaged partly or wholly in the song-book manufacturing business, to find the most reliable and competent and, at the same time, the most reasonable in their terms. One after another had to be eliminated for reason, until the number has been reduced to four. Their final terms are now becoming by next fall. And we sincerely hope and the Board in condensed form and, upon its decision, contract for at least the plate-making can then be let. The work will be done by what we judge to be outstanding firms in their line, with first class material and workmanship.

So there is now hope that the book should be forthcomnig by coming fall. And we sincerely hope and pray that all of our congregations may remain loyal to this cause and patiently wait until then.

The book will have a few over 600 hymns and songs, some of them of course short, of such a variety that should lend itself to the use of all Church, Sunday School, Young People services, the home, and the many festivities connected therewith.

What will be its cost? That is difficult to determine. The cost of a first edition, with all auxiliary expense pertaining thereto, will be close to two dollars per copy. But competition will have to be faced, so the initial price will have to be considerably reduced, $1.25 has been suggested, though the old book, with only 412 hymns, sold for that and higher. May we all remember that the lower the price is put, the more money the Board of Publication will have to borrow for the first edition.

It is hoped that the book will take and sell so well that other editions will be necessary, through which the deficit caused by the first edition may then be covered.

May God bless the book in its mission among our churches and make it a spiritual influence reaching into eternity.

Western District Conference Loan Library

Since the Committee on Schools and Education has placed about 200 new books into the Library, the reading has been much more lively than before. From April 1 to 15 the Library has checked out 90 books to individuals and churches. Most of the books have been read in Kanses, but the neighboring states Oklahoma and Nebraska have also been served. Requests for information have also come from other parts of the country.

The Committee is very happy to serve our churches in this manner, but we urge the churches also to send in their contributions so that additional books may be purchased.

For the Committee, A. J. Regier, Secretary,
North Newton, Kansas.

SERMON SKETCH

THE LIVING WORD

by I. J. Dick, Mountain Lake, Minn.

Hebr. 4:12a; John 6:63b; I Pet. 1:23; Acts 7:38

Men of letters, such as Shakespeare, Coleridge, Walter Scott have said, "There is but one book, The Bible."

Many books have been written on the Bible, such as Bible commentaries, concordances, dictionaries, expositions, etc., their number being about 200,000. The Word of God has friends and enemies "to some it is a saviour of death unto death, to some it is a saviour of life unto life." The Bible is a much used book but also a very much neglected book.

The Living Word has a Living Author. — God Himself. It was written over a period of 16 centuries, it contains sixty-six books and was written by about 35 writers. The author was God. "All scripture is given by inspiration of God", 2 Tim. 3:16. "Prophecy came not in old times by the will of man; but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost", II Pet. 1:21. The writers, whatever their profession, age or nationality, were moved by the same spirit, wrote towards the same end — to bring man and God together — all pointing to the same Saviour Jesus Christ the Lord.

About 2601 times we read, "And God said", "God said", "Thus saith the Lord", "The word of the Lord came to me", and similar expressions. Jesus says: "Verily, verily I say unto you" and "The words that I speak they are spirit and they are life." In the Bible we find Words of God, quotations by men, good and bad, by angels, by demons, yes, by Satan himself. The author undoubtedly wanted all of these recorded.

The Living Word has Power to Create new Life. — Peter says, we are born again by the Word of God, and are partakers of the divine nature by the exceeding great and precious promises, I Pet. 1:21; II Pet. 1:4. Jesus says, the seed is the Word of God. Luke 8:11. That means that the Word of God, if received into a warm heart, will grow and produce new life. The Words of Jesus at Jacob's well brought new life into the Samaritan woman. The Ethiopian eunuch reading Isa. 53, being encouraged by Philip, became a believer in Jesus Christ. "Blessed are they that hear the Word of God and keep it." Luke 11:28.

The Living Word is Immortal. Jesus said, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away", Matt. 24:35. And the Psalmist says, "Forever, O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven." There are eternal truths in the Bible that can not be destroyed, eternal statements and promises that God will always hold before mankind as long as the earth will last. We should think of God's divine plan of salvation which he had before the foundation of the world, Eph. 1:4, that the Lamb of God was foreordained before the world and slain from the foundation of the world, I Pet. 1:19-20 and Rev. 13:8.

God's Plan is Far-reaching. As long as the world stands and people will be there, the Gospel will be preached. In the very end of time, John even sees an angel proclaiming the everlasting Gospel: "To fear God and give glory to him, for the hour of Judgment is come", Rev. 14:6-7. The Bible will always be there, not because people take good care of it, but because it is God's own Word.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

May 12, 1940.

Habakkuk Fights Through Doubt to Faith

Habakkuk 1:12-2:4 Read entire book.

Topic: Trusting God Regardless of Anything.

Introduction —

All that is known about Habakkuk is what may be inferred from his short book. Considerable is known about the historical situation of his time. He prophesied before the exile of Judah and at a time of great national apostasy. His time marked the overthrow of the Assyrians and the rise of the Babylonian empire. In 612 B. C. Nineveh was captured and Babylonia became the dominant world power. The time of our lesson is around 600 B. C. This was shortly before the Chaldeans actually invaded Palestine.

The prophet sees the sufferings of his people at the hands of the Chaldeans. He can not see why God remains silent in the face of the wickedness, oppression and lawlessness in Judah. He cries out to God (1:1-4). Here is the age-old question: Why is God silent in the midst of wrong and wickedness? Why does He permit so much wrong and oppression today by stronger nations?

Jehovah's answer follows in verses 5-11. God is working a work which the people — Judah — will not believe until severe punishment is upon them. He warns them (v6). He will use the Chaldeans to discipline sinful Judah in the coming exile in captivity. They will be the instrument of God's judgment upon Judah.

Habakkuk's Complaints to God vs 12-17.

A serious moral question arises in the prophet's mind. He sees the sins of his people, Judah. He knows about the Chaldeans. He cannot understand why God should use these people, who are more wicked than Judah, as His agent. How can God use the cruel Babylonian nation to execute judgment upon His own, His chosen people? How can He, the just God, hold His peace while the wicked nation destroys the more righteous one (v13)? This is a very modern, present day problem.

The prophet recognizes God as from everlasting, and he believes that, though He chastises His people, He will not permit them to perish. Visiting judgment upon them will not mean extermination. The holy God cannot look upon evil with pleasure, how then can He look upon the cruelty of the Chaldeans, who make men as helpless as the fishes which they catch in their nets (vs 14, 15). The Chaldeans trusted in their weapons (net) and did not at all recognize God. How long will He permit them to go on in their course of plunder and oppression (17)?

Jehovah's Reply 2: 1-4.

The prophet is sorely perplexed. Confusion is all around, going from bad to worse. He is in doubt. As a watchman watches from a tower, so he is alert in spirit to receive a message from the Lord (v1). His soul's ear is attuned to God's revelation which will be the answer to his complaints. The answer came in a vision which was to be preserved for instruction in future times. It will surely be fulfilled though not in the immediate time (vs 2,3). The Chaldean nation is doomed because it is proud and trusts in its own strength (v4). God will use the Chaldeans for a time, yet because of their wickedness they will in the end be rejected. Under God's plan, an arrogant and cruel nation can not long survive. The future belongs to the righteous, not to the arrogant oppressors. We need a strong faith that will hold us steady in the trying hour. "The just shall live by faith", is the great message of Habakkuk. It is easy to hold faith steady when all is going well. The righteous shall survive if they are steadfast in their faith under all circumstances. Faith is triumphant over all conditions and sings in days of darkness.

ANNOUNCEMENT AND INVITATION

The Evangelization Committee of the Pacific Conference and the Mennonite Church at Deer Park, Wash. announce and invite everyone to the ordination service of Bro. A. J. Wiens to the ministry of the Gospel, on the 12th day of May. An all day service. Your prayers are solicited.

S. S. Baumgartner, Sec. of Ev. Com.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA.

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Business Office, Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kans.
Editor .... J. R. Thierstein, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.50 .... Foreign, $2.00

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges, to J. R. THIERSTEIN, or the MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS.

DOCTRINAL - DEVOTIONAL

NOTE

Upon request by young people that The Mennonite bring articles explaining Pre- and Post-millennialism, the editor asked the veteran Bible student and teacher, J. J. Balzer, if he would not kindly serve our readers by making these contributions, and he has generously consented to do this. We bring here his first essay, that on Premillennialism.

Premillennialism and Its Results

J. J. Balzer, Mountain Lake, Minn.

The words of Jesus, "This gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come," involves the main facts of premillennialism. They identify the present age with the dispensation of the Church; they suggest the mighty changes that are to come over the earth at the end of this age, when the Church shall have completed its witness, when the Master shall have returned and the Millenium shall have come.

Our Christ employed language with precision. When He said, "This gospel of the Kingdom," He did not mean, "This gospel of grace" or "This gospel of personal salvation," but He meant what He said. There is a "Kingdom Gospel"—Premillennialism.

What about its historical ministry? There are two tests to which theological facts and fictions should alike be subjected that the one may be distinguished from the other, the latter rejected and the former retained. The first is the test of Biblical teaching. If it speak not according to this word, reject it. The second is the test of personal experience or practical Christianity. If it bless not the individual, if it aid not the Church, if it honor not Christ, then it is not of God.

The establishment of the Kingdom, predicted by Old Testament prophecies, anticipated by New Testament apostles, and denominated by the peerless Paul as "that blessed hope," has played so conspicuous a part in the roll of human history that we ought to be able to trace its course and determine with fair accuracy whether it has wrought benediction or bane for the Church of God.

We often speak of "Apostolic Faith." The truth is that the New Testament apostles originated no faith; for they accepted, confirmed, elaborated and propagated Old Testament revelations as these writings were the text for their teaching.

Premillenialism was not even born with Jesus of Nazareth, much less with Paul or Peter or John but originated in Old Testament scriptures. The moment we open these Scriptures we find an anticipated picture of the Second Coming in Adam, exalted to headship, dominion, glory and power, as the "figure of Him who was to come." Enoch, the seventh from Adam, prophesies that the Lord is coming in glory. Abraham rejoices as he sees His day and the City with everlasting foundation. Jacob had a vision of the Epiphany and splendor, when surrounded by the angelic host, the Lord God looked down from on high of the golden ladder. Moses sees that revelation of Him in the burning bush, as the Yahweh, the Coming One as Redeemer, coming in triumph. The Psalms are full of praise and music when they portray His kingly descent and hear the praises of the universe. What shall I say of the visions of Isaiah, of the righteousness and splendor and blessings the coming King is bringing down upon Jerusalem, his people and the nations. And what shall I say of Jeremiah's vision of the King and His Kingdom people Israel, as visioned in chapter 30 and 31 and others, and the establishment of His blessed rule over all Gentile nations b judgment and salvation. My heart is rejoicing when I read of the coming King and His Kingdom in Ezekiel and Daniel whose historic prophecies are so vivid and minute that a child must rejoice over them. And the 12 minor prophets? Why the last one, Malachi, sums their visions up in his closing proclamation "He is coming!"

And what of our Master and Savior, Jesus Christ? He addressed Himself to this theme more often than He laid His tongue to any other. Whole chapters in Matthew and many parables He uttered refer us to His second coming as the King of the Throne of David. The 23rd, 24th and 25th chapters of the gospel of the Kingdom speak for themselves, and what of Luke 1? O what a testimony! The epistles of the apostles are filled with the gospel of the Kingdom and John closes the book of Revelation with the prayer: "Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly."

But what of the early Church fathers? It was the faith of Justin Martyr, Ireneus, Tertullian, Methodius and Victorinus, and we may add to them Barnabas and Clement, Hermas, Ignatius, Polycarp, Papias, Nepos, Lactantius and others.

The premillenial advent of our Lord Jesus Christ was the common heritage of both Jewish and Gentile Christian churches precisely in the way the Gospel passed. It was as fragrant at Antioch as at Jerusalem, at Rome as at Ephesus, as a unanimous gospel.

And what was and is the Spirtual Effect and Result?

1) It had and still has the deepest effect upon the study of sacred Scriptures. All our great men of the past and present declare it to be the consummation of the age, the goal of the Church—the crowning of Christ Himself—the only hope of the world's redemption.

2) It has always deepened the spiritual life. Every man that has his hope set on the coming of the Lord purifieth himself, even as he is pure. As to "watchfulness and prayer" it is natural to those that know not what hour the Lord will come that they will look up like the men of Galilee at the Lord's translation and remind themselves of the assurance of the two men that this same Jesus would return.

3) They will gladly discharge their practical duties. They will and always have carried on the blessed mission work, preaching and teaching and distributing Christian Literature and Scriptures. The return of our Lord has always been the inspiration of the Christian world and "the power of any life lies in its expectancy." Paul could "fight a good fight, finish his course; keep faith" at any cost, because he knew there was laid up for him "a crown of rejoicing which the Lord, the righteous Judge, should give to him AT THAT DAY." This is the confidence of premillennialism.

Tasks of Churches in Time of War

The churches should demonstrate in their own life and relationships a community more closely approximating the ideal of the family of God. This would require that they

1. Maintain the integrity of their fellowship in spite of the antagonisms and cleavages which set men over against each other in war. This is first of all a matter of the attitudes with which Christians regard one another, —— preserving the "unity of the spirit in the bond of peace" which is in Christ. It may find expression in the common prayer life of Christians, in ecumenical groups and in correspondence and visitations. We recommend the continunace of conferences between Christian citizens of neutral and belligerent nations and visitations of individuals.

2. Seek to create a true ecumenical understanding of the issues which divide the peoples. The distortions resulting from censorship, the pressure of official propaganda and the whole system of psychological mobilization make it difficult to arrive at a just and accurate estimate of the needs, motives and purposes of nations.

3. Make their prayer, preaching and conversation truly Christian. Prayer must not degenerate into a means of national propaganda, but must be for peace and justice among nations. God's will is the most important factor in every problem. To seek to know that will and receive power to perform it, Christians must constantly turn to God in prayer. While we may not forget our own sense of solidarity with our own people and our respective nations, preaching must not seek to create hatred of other nations, but to cultivate goodwill towords all, not only to those within but also to those without the Christian fellowship; to spread the spirit of forgiveness and trust; to increase the habit of charitable judgment; to widen knowledge and understanding of the causes of conflict —— these things help to remove the psychological roots of war and are characteristic fruits of the spirit of Christ. War should not be presented as a holy crusade, but preaching should call men to repentance for a common sin, and urge the righteousness of God's kingdom. We rejoice that, after six months of war in Europe, the churches in the belligerent countries have not generally become the agents of national policy in propaganda.

4. Bear one another's burdens. Some churches are much more heavily burdened by the war than are others, —— spiritually, financially and in responsibility for pastoral and preaching service. One of the most difficult strains is that of a sense of loneliness in the face of agonizing perplexities. This loneliness is aggravated by the difficulties of communication resulting from war. The ecumenical movement should therefore promote the exchange of greetings, encourage correspondence and arrange for visitations of deputations and individuals across national frontiers. The churches with available material resources should undergird those that are especially hard-pressed by assisting them with their problems at home and on the mission field.

5. The churches as an ecumenical movement should energetically promote their common ministry of preaching and healing to the victims of conflict. They should

   a. Provide an adequate sacramental, pastoral and preaching service to prisoners of war and to interned alien civilians.

   b. Provide practical helpfulness and relief to refugees and other victims dislocated by war.

6. The churches, which have a concern for the welfare of all peoples, have a responsibility to contribute to the establishment of such a world order as will more effectively serve the ends of justice, liberty and right, and promote peace. In addition to demonstrating community in their own life and binding the world together by their ecumenical activity, the churches should therefore,

   a. Study the bases of a just and durable world order.

   b. Induce among their own people and in the wider community in which their influence is felt a willingness to pay the price of justice and peace, which will involve concessions of immediate self-interest in terms of exclusive national sovereignty and economic advantage.

   c. Urge statesmen to apply the principles of reconcilation and goodwill in the practical affairs of international relations.

   d. Encourage and facilitate steps toward an early negotiated peace in the wars now in progress.

Quotation from A Message from the National Study Conference of the Churches and the International Situation.

Sent in by E. L. Harshbarger

R. Weinbrenner
Editor

Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen

Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers

Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.

William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

Freeman Junior College Notes

Much fine talent was shown in the programs given by the vocal students during the week from April 8 to 11. The first program, on Monday evening, was a joint recital given by Miss Mildred Waltner, soprano, and Elmer Friesen, tenor. Miss Susanna Lehman, contralto, and Wilbur Friesen, bass, rendered the program Tuesday evening. On the third evening the recital was given by Miss Orpha Schrag, contralto, and Ruben Friesen, tenor. At each evening's program vocal solos and duets were rendered by the previously named students. Between vocal numbers, piano music was furnished by the Misses Violet Miller, Mildred Waltner, and Belva Waltner, all three of which were also accompanists for the vocal numbers on different evenings.

On the fourth evening a joint recital was given by the College Ladies' and Men's Quartetts which concluded the series of programs. All of these programs displayed much work in preparation on the part of both the students and their instructor, Prof. Gerhard Toews; they were well rendered and enjoyed by all who attended.

During this school year the Music Department is taking part in the Inter-Collegiate Series of Programs in which five colleges are participating. These programs are broadcasted over the radio station at Yankton, South Dakota, Freeman Junior College giving a program every fifth Sunday. The College Ladies' and Men's Quartettes and several other students, all of which have been under the direction of Prof. Gerhard Toews, Instructor of Music, have taken active part in these broadcasts.

The last program, given on Sunday, April 7, consisted of musical numbers by the Ladies Quartette. According to our schedule our next program will be given on May 12 from 4:30 to 5:00 P. M. over WNAX at Yankton, South Dakota.

Margaret Ruth Tieszen and Luella Thomas,

— From Bulletin, Second Church, Philadelphia, Pa.— PASTORAL MESSAGE: Balance is important in Christian Growth. Peter tells us to "grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ." Grace without knowledge may lead to radicalism. Knowledge without grace leads to spiritual pride. Christians are expected to grow in both heart and mind.

Proposed Constitution for Y. P. U.

ARTICLE I. Name and Purpose

Section I. Name. This organization shall be known as the Young People's Union of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America.

Section II. Purpose. The purpose of this Union shall be to realize, "A United Mennonite Youth in Christ" (a) by a deepening of the spiritual life of young people, (b) by organizing for more effective work, (c) by bringing various young people's groups into a closer relationship with each other through, conference sessions, Y. P. conventions, retreats, publication, correspondence, united work and study projects, etc.

ARTICLE II. Relation to the Conference

This Union is an auxiliary of the General Conference.

ARTICLE III. Membership and Representation

Section I. Membership. Any Young People's Society in harmony with the aims and purposes of this Union is eligible for membership.

Section II. Representation. Each society is entitled to one vote at the business meetings and should therefore make every effort to be represented by a delegate or proxy. No person shall have more than five proxy votes.

ARTICLE IV. Administration

Section I. Union Board.

Paragraph (1). This board shall be composed of nine members: A president, a secretary-treasurer, the councillor from the Board of Education, and six district representatives.

Paragraph (2). The business of the Union between sessions shall be carried on by the Union Board.

Paragraph (3). The executive committee of this board shall consist of: The president, secretary-treasurer and the councillor from the Board of Education.

Section II. Elections

Paragraph (1). The President and the Secretary-treasurer, shall each be elected at the Union business meeting for a term of six years. Terms to expire alternately.

Paragraph (2). Elections are to be by ballot. No member of the executive committee with the exception of the councillor shall hold the same office for more than one term, unless he has not served a full term.

Section III. Officers and their Duties

Paragraph (1). The president shall preside at Union business meetings and see that all resolutions be carried out. He shall have authority to appoint temporary committees.

Paragraph (2). The secretary-treasurer (a) shall keep the minutes and conduct the correspondence of the Union; (b) shall receive and book all contributions as designated; (c) shall make disbursements only on written order of the president; (d) shall submit books for audit at the end of each triennium.

Section IV. District Representatives

Paragraph (1). One representative from each of the six district conferences shall be elected or appainted by the district organization for a term of three years in the year when the General Conference convenes.

Paragraph (2). Each district representative shall promote the program of the Union in his own district. He shall submit an annual report of work done to the president.

ARTICLE V. Meetings

Section I. The business meeting shall be held once every three years in connection with the session of the General Conference. A program of the meeting to be published in advance.

Section II. All young people or young people's workers in attendance shall have the privilege of discussion.

ARTICLE VI. Miscellaneous

Section I. Vacancies. The executive committee shall appoint persons to fill vacancies until the next regular meeting.

Section II. Field Secretary. The executive committee shall have the authority, if funds permit, to employ a field secretary.

Section III. Rules of Order. On all points not covered by this constitution, Robert's Rules of Order shall be authority.

ARTICLE VII. Amendments

Section I. The constitution of this Union may be amended at any regular meeting by a two-thirds vote of the societies represented.

Section II. Proposed changes must be submitted in writing to the Union Board at least two months before the business session, and shall be published in our papers.

(Note.) The Y.P.U. Constitution has been condensed and revised in accordance with views expressed at Saskatoon and is now being submitted to the societies for further consideration and final adoption at the 1941 Conference.

Olin A. Krehbiel

Senior Department

PEACE ON THE MARCH

Senior C. E. Topic for May 19, 1940

Main Topic: Peace on the March. Ps. 120; 1 Chron. 22:7, 8

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "The Son of God Goes Forth to War," "O Zion, Haste, Thy Mission High Fulfilling," "Come We, that Love the Lord."
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer
3. Talk of the Work done by the Friends.
4. Offering for peace work.

II. Leader's Introduction

This seems a strange topic in a world which knows so much of violence. The major nations of the world have for years been engaged in an armaments race that was bound to bring them into war.

It is against this dark background of "wars and rumors of wars" that the growing sentiment for peace stands out like a Rembrandt portrait. The future belongs to those who believe in and labor for a warless world. "Thy will be done on earth"—that prayer is prophetic. The Church of Christ will lead the way. Christian young people, devoted to Christ and to the Church, will have a great deal to do in ushering in an era of peace.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. The reign of peace. Isa. 55:12, 13.
2. Trust Jehovah for peace. Isa. 26:1-4.
3. Peace within. Phil. 4:4-7.
4. Steps toward peace. Heb. 12:12-16.
5. Peace of rulers sought. 1 Tim. 2:1-4.
6. A peaceful settlement. Gen. 13:8-12.

IV. For Discussion

1. How can our young people help the cause of peace?

2. Should our Mennonite youth join the Friends in their work in war-torn lands?

3. What value is our affirmation of believing in the way of peace if we do not work for peace?

V. Facts for Study

The Friends have been able to get into needy areas to lend a helping hand because of their reputation. They have done a very large amount of work although their group is small. They seem to be capable to gain cooperation wherever they work. They also seem to have the people in their own group who are willing to make the sacrifices which such selfless service demands.

Do we as a Mennonite people have that same sense of responsibility toward those in need because of war, or other catastrophe? What can we do to train our young people to serve in such ways? Should we join hands in a large way with the Friends in such work?

VI. Illustrations

The Vision of Opportunity

The men of vision may be called dreamers, if you will, but they are not merel dreamers. The true prophet is he who sees the door of opportunity opening and springs to enter. Such a man was Moses. He saw a vision and put off his shoes, for the place whereon he stood was holy ground, but he did not sit down to spend the rest of his life in contemplation of the vision. To him the vision was a call and he immediately began planning his life in obedience to it.

What would have happened to Moses had he remained in the king's palace? Would he ever have been heard of? Would his character have been as great, as thrilling? An answer to that question has come to light within the last two or three years. For the answer to that question is Tut-ankh-Amen. If Moses had chosen selfish privileges instead of unselfish service he would have been for the last forty centuries a mummy, merely a dried-up skeleton, rather than one of the greatest abiding influences which has ever been felt in the world. For Tut-ankh-Amen was a young prince, just as Moses was. He lived the conventional life of the Egyptian monarch. He left no influence whatever on human affairs, and after centuries passed in absolute obscurity he emerges as an interesting mummy. So that, without knowing it, Moses made the decision that, instead of being a mummy, he would be one of the great creators of human society.

VII. Food for Thought

"Christ has no hands but our hands, to do his work today."

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

May 19, 1940

BOYS AND GIRLS WANTED!

(World Goodwill Day)

For Daily Reading:

May 13. Young men the first victims. 2 Sam. 2:12-17.
May 14. Jews sold as slaves. Joel 3:4-8.
May 15. Hardships of young captives. Lam. 5:13-18.
May 16. The promised peace. Isa. 2:1-4.
May 17. Love your enemies. Matt. 5:43-47.
May 18. At peace with all men. Rom. 12:18-21.
May 19. Topic—Boys and Girls Wanted! Matt. 18:2-6.

Song, "The Star-Spangled Banner"

Scripture Reading, Matt. 18:2-6.

Questions and discussion

Song, "In Christ There Is No East or West"

Prayer Song, "God Bless Our Native Land"

Sentence Prayers (That we may act with goodwill toward those of other races and remember that Christ loved them as well as us.)

Benediction

Questions and discussion:

1. What does it mean to have a land of liberty?
2. Name ways in which you think our country might help its foreign people.
3. What are some ways that we as young people may help to give the foreign people in our town a chance that is fair?
4. How may we help foreign boys and girls in our school to have a fair chance?
5. Do you think that God loves the foreigner as much as He loves us? Gal. 3:27, 28.
6. Do foreigners contribute anything to the good of our country?
7. Name some Bible characters who were foreigners.

N. M. W.

Suggestions for preparation of this meeting.

Have the American flag displayed in the front of the room.

Also have foreign flags if possible or have pictures of these flags which can be shown.

Have peace posters displayed.

Have foreign travel posters displayed. (Flags and peace and travel posters can be rented from The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom).

Have posters of any foreigners who made a great contribution to our country such as Marconi and Pasteur.

If you have members or friends of your society who are foreigners ask them to appear in their native dress.

If any of your members are corresponding with foreigners ask them to tell why they enjoy it.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Program for May 19, 1940

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

A Study of the sixth, seventh, and eighth commandments. Exodus 20:13-15

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude, "Here is My Heart!" Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 222.

2. Call to worship: Psalm 95:1-3. "O Come, let us sing unto the Lord: let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation, for the Lord is a great God and a great King above all gods."

3. Pianist plays the melody of "Here is My Heart" again very softly while the leader reads the words of the song.

4. Then children stand and sing verses 1, 2, 3 of the song.

5. Scripture reading (responsively)

Junior Boys: John 14:21—"He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him."

Junior Girls: John 14:23—"If a man love me he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him."

Junior Boys: John 15:10—"If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love, even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love."

6. Leader's prayer.

7. Story telling by a Junior boy:

"The Boy and the Bird"

"Turgenieff, who became a great writer, lived in far-off Russia many years ago. When he was a boy of ten his father took him out one day bird-shooting. As they tramped across the brown stubble, a beautiful golden pheasant rose with a low whir from the ground at his feet and, with the joy of a sportsman throbbing through his veins, he raised his gun and fired, wild with excitement when the creature fell fluttering at his side. The poor bird's life was ebbing fast, but she had a nest of fledglings near, and the instinct of the mother desired to protect her young brood. With a feeble flutter of her wings the mother bird reached the nest, then with such a look of pleading and reproach—that his heart stood still at the ruin he had wrought—the little brown head toppled over, and only the dead body of the mother shielded her nestlings. Oh, how cruel and guilty he felt! "Father, father," he cried, "what have I done?" "You have done well, my son, for your first shot. You will soon be a fine sportsman."

"Never, father, never again shall I destroy any living creature. If killing, poor helpless birds for fun is sport I will have none of it. Life is more beautiful to me than death, and since I cannot give life, I will not take it."—Howard Chidley.

8. Song, "Yield Not To Temptation." All stand to sing.

II. Study Period

Aim: To help our Juniors learn the sixth, seventh and eighth commandments. To help them realize that all these commandments test one's love to one's neighbor.

1. Study the sixth commandment. (a) All read it in unison, Exodus 20:13. This is a very short commandment, and we will perhaps never be tempted to kill anyone, but God was thinking of more than murder when He gave us this commandment. By the way in which God created man He gave to human life a very high value. Man was created in the image of God and God breathed into his nostrils the breath of life that made him a living soul. A soul for which our Lord Jesus Christ died on the cross. If some one is killed that may rob him of the time and maybe opportunity to accept Jesus as his Savior. If anyone endangers the safety of another by careless handling of dangerous articles, gun, etc., or if a boy or girl dares someone else to do something that is dangerous to life they may be guilty of disobeying this commandment. (b) Bible Drill: Matt. 5:21; Luke 18:20; Mark 10:19; Gen. 9:6; Rev. 21:8; 1 John 3:15; Matt. 5:44, 45; Luke 23:34; Acts 7:59; 1 Peter 2:23. (c) A short talk by a Junior on "Life is the most valuable earthly gift of God."

2. Study the seventh commandment. (a) All read it in unison, Exodus 20:14. The seventh commandment is very important. God gives this commandment especially to the grown ups. He gave it that the life of the family might be protected. That hard, ugly word "adultry" (isn't the sound of that word ugly? It speaks of an ugly sin) means for one man to take another man's wife, or for a woman to take, yes steal, another woman's husband. To commit adultry then is to break up a home. And God wants every child to live in homes under the loving care of the parents. We never do an ugly thing unless we have thought that thing. If boys and girls think bad thoughts they may be guilty of breaking this commandment. Sometimes hearing nasty stories or seeing vile pictures bring bad thoughts into our minds. Then we should pray to the Lord Jesus, asking Him to create a clean, pure heart in us. (c) A Junior recites from memory 1 Cor. 3:16.

3. Duet by Junior girls: "Take My Heart, O Father." Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 304.

4. Study the eighth commandment. (a) Read it in unison, Exodus 20:15. To steal is to take or keep something that does not belong to you. Some think that means only the taking of money or things. It may also mean the taking of time, or perhaps somebody else's opportunity, or it may be to buy things that one can not afford and then not pay for them. Even betting and bribing is stealing. (c) Bible drill: Habak. 2:9; Eph. 4:28; Ps. 37:21.

III. Mission Minutes

Can you answer these questions?

1. What is a Biblewoman.
2. In what countries do Biblewomen assist our Missionaries?
3. Do they get any pay?
4. Who pays their salary? Could we do that?

Pray for the Biblewomen and their work.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Repeat in unison verse of the month, 1 John 5:3.
2. Solo voice sings verse of "Yield Not to Temptation". All Juniors join in the chorus.
3. Junior boy prays prayer of the month. Psalm 143:10.

Mennonite Central Committee Relief Notes

Introductory Thoughts by the Editor

Several important letters from the Mennonite relief representatives in France bring to our attention great need, particularly among the Spanish refugees in southern France. Most of those people are splinters of families, orphans, widows and others, and are not in a position to earn their living. The Mennonite Central Committee has started a very important work in that area as a testimony of Christian love and good will. The following relief notes bring this to the attention of our churches. They also show that other Mennonite groups are taking this matter seriously and are graciously furnishing the means wherewith this Mennonite relief or rescue work is carried on, while our Conference has done very little thus far. We definitely feel that our gratitude toward God for peace, home and prosperity should express itself in our help toward war sufferers. Any one who wants to make a contribution to this worthy cause should send his gift to the treasurer of the Emergency Relief Board, Rev. P. H. Unruh, Goessel, Kansas with the designation "for war sufferers."—Editor.

WAR REFUGEE NEEDS IN FRANCE

(The M.C.C. Relief Project)

Relief Commissioner Bro. Amos Swartzentruber in reporting his French contacts finds that as of March 1st, there were at least twenty-two Relief organizations working among French evacuees and present War refugees, and concluded that the present needs of these groups were quite adequately met.

Left over from last years Spanish Civil War, however, there are still an approximate 250,000 Spanish Refugees on French soil. "Many of them cannot return to Spain or emigrate elsewhere. Many of them are orphans. Most of them are scattered fragments of families. All of them are homeless wanderers without kindred, helpless victims of bitter hatred."

The International Commission for Relief to Child Refugees under whose sponsorship our Relief to Spain was organized, continues the one organization interested in this particular French Refugee group. The Mennonite Central Committee now supports a Colony of 35 to 50 of those orphan refugees at a total monthly cost of about $350.00. In five villages in South France, near this colony, ekeing out a miserable existence, as they can, are 650 other Spanish Refugees for whom a total of $750.00 monthly from May 1st on for several months would provide minimum living essentials.

Bro. Ernest Bennet is now directing our work in France. Liberal contributions thru your local Treasurer to the Committee's European War Sufferer's Relief Fund are urged. The service will expand as these gifts warrant. — (The Mennonite Central Committee by O. M. and A. W.)

BRO. SWARTZENTRUBER'S RELIEF INVESTIGATION IN ENGLAND

Our Canadian brethren were particularly interested in any unmet needs among England's three-million evacuee children. The Mennonite Central Committee wanted specific information concerning Refugee groups from other countries stranded in England because of the present War. Bro. Amos Swartzentruber, who arrived in England the last week of January, first contacted the Secretary of the Friends' Service Council in London, and through his kindness was introduced and directed to the many Relief organizations interested in and serving these several groups.

Among all these, our brother was particularly impressed with the extensive and effective work of the "Save the Children Fund" and the Christian character and attitude of this organization's leadership. A newly organized "British Refugee Committeee" with inadequate funds, but the only Committee interested in aiding a group of 3000 penniless and stranded British refugees from Europe's war areas also appealed to him as most worthy. $900.00 in cash and 6 bales of clothing have been forwarded for distribution through "Save the Children Fund", and an additional like cash sum promised through June, July and August. $300.00 is being distributed through the British Refugee Committee and $500.00 through the Friends' Service Council. The remainder of the clothing was allocated to Turkish, Finnish and Jewish refugee groups—total value of clothing $1719.00.

The foregoing gifts were all forwarded through Treasurer N. M. Bearinger of the Non-resistant churches of Canada. Mennonite Central Committee appointee, Bro. Ted Claassen, will direct the further efforts in England from June 1st on. Expansion of the Relief Service in England is dependent on the offering from our Canadian Churches and the relative need in Allied areas as found and reported by Bro. Classen.— (Mennonite Central Committee, by O. O. Miller and A. Warkentin.

—From Bulletin of Menno Church, Lind, Wash.— John Wesley preached a sermon on money. First, he said, "Get all you can." Second, "Save all you can," and third, "Give all you can." A farmer was delighted with the first and second parts. These were just what he had been doing. But the "Give all you can" didn't please him at all. "There," he said, "He has gone and spoiled his whole sermon."

—First Church, Mountain Lake, Minn.—The report has reached us that the congregation of this church has presented their beloved pastor of many years in its service, Rev. I. J. Dick and his family with a 1940 de luxe Plymouth Sedan car, complete with license, gass, oil and a year's insurance all paid. This is a very commendable deed that brings well-earned, tangible recognition, joy and new inspiration to a faithful servant and his loved ones.

CORRESPONDENCE

SAN MARCOS CHURCH, PASO ROBLES, CALIF.

The California Mennonite State C. E. and S. S. Convention was held, as scheduled, on April 12, 13 and 14, at the Memorial hurch of Atascadero, because our church which acted as host to the convention, was too small for such a gathering. There were 225 delegates registered, but the attendance was over 500 at some of the sessions. On Sunday afternoon the Men's Glee Club from Reedley, Calif. gave a fine musical program. This was the twentieth annual State Convention. The next one is to be held at Reedley.

On April 21, in the forenoon, Dr. Richart Jantzen and wife were ordained for mission work in the Sudan of Africa, at our church. Then in the afternoon the congregation gave them a farewell reception and the Ladies' Missionary Society gave them another one the next day afternoon, with a token of remembrance. Rev. F. F. Jantzen, father of Dr. Jantzen, had charge of all these services.—Fred Smiley, Corr.

* * *

MT. LAKE AND DELFT BERGFELDER CHURCHES, MINNESOTA

Spring also seems to awake one spiritually. Sunday and one seems to go about one's work with more vim and vigor than at any other time of the year. Spring has also come to Minnesota with all its grandeur. As yet we have had very cool days, but we are thankful for the rain which we received this week.

Spring also seem to awake one spiritually. Sunday evening, April 21, a group of Bible School students from Moody Institute, Chicago; the Northwestern Bible School, Minneapolis; and our own Bible School, Mt. Lake; rendered a very inspiring program of music and messages in our Delft Bergfelder Church. I believe we all went home after the program with a greater desire to serve God and our fellowmen. There is much work to be done.

Rev. Philip Wedel from Aberdeen, Idaho, served in our churches at Mt. Lake and Delft with very inspiring mesages from March 27 through April 3. During the morning sessions we studied I Peter. We were truly blessed through Rev. Wedel's preaching.

Eleven young people have joined the catechism class conducted by Rev. H. H. Quiring each Sunday afternoon. We are thankful for these young people, and their desire to learn of God.—On Sunday evening, May 12, our two churches unite to give a joint Mother's Day program in the Mt. Lake Church.

Mrs. Abram P. Baerg, Corr.

« « JOTTINGS » »

—First Church, Newton, Kansas.—A number of our people attended the Benefit Supper given by the Missionary Society of the Bethel College congregation in the basement of our church, April 15. Prof. A. E. Kreider spoke at the gathering and the College Choir sang. Chinese, Indian and Russian foods were served. Our last Fellowship Hour was held May 25, with Dr. A. Warkentin as leader. The purpose of these meetings is to acquaint people more with Mennonite History. Topic for the next meeting is "Mennonite Principles". Exchange programs are being fostered by our three C. E. Societies with others. On April 7 the Bethel College Intermediate and Junior groups gave a program here, and the Emmaus society gave one recently. Our senior society is planning for three exchange programs.

—First Church, Upland, Calif.—Rev. Hostetler recently gave a sermon on, "What is Strongest?" a question asked and answered in one of the books of the O. T. Apocrypha. He gave an introductory talk on the Apocryphal books. What are they? Why are they found in many German Bibles and omitted from most English editions? What is their value?—Bulletin.

—Mennonite Church, Roaring Spring, Pa.—"For the first time a bulletin from this church has reached us. Among other things it says, "Our S. S. statistics show that attendance is irregular. This can be partly explained by the fact that many have to work on certain Sundays. It also shows that some are too easily kept away from the House of God. Regular attendance at Church and S. S. is one of the best habits you can build."

—Eli Baumgartner, a prominent citizen of Berne, Indiana, a staunch Christian and Mennonite, died suddenly April 19 at the age of 70. He was by nature very industrous, early engaging in such work as clearing forest, making tiles, saw milling, engineering, painting, carpentering, etc. and since 1893 he served his community as a builder, probably building more houses than any contracter around. He leaves behind his wife, the former Louise Lehman, one son and two daughters, besides other relatives. His funeral was held, Monday, April 22, with Rev. C. H. Suckau, his pastor, in charge.

—From a private letter by Dr. P. R. Schroeder, Freeman, So. Dak. we conclude that he is pretty well his old self again, vigorous, ever active, deeply concerned about things spiritual, defending the faith, and opposing anything that does not tally with the Word of God. His many friends will be glad to hear with us that he is getting along so well.

Prayer is a powerful thing, for God has tied himself thereunto. —Luther.

—An Appreciated Visit.—The other day we enjoyed a visit from one of our former Bluffton students, Miss Dora Sprunger. Prof. Sprunger has been teaching foreign language at Wheaton College, Illinois, for a number of years. At present she is teaching only German. She has three beginners' classes, with a total of 90 students, two good-sized second year classes, and three higher classes. How does that compare with Bethel and Bluffton with large numbers of students of German extraction?

—An Unexpected Change.—It is now an established fact that the Allied War Council at a meeting held in London about a month ago, the first that the new premier of France attended, not only decided to carry on the war against Germany with greater vehemence, but to launch attacks upon her from the north by way of Norway. In some strange way, though, Germany had wind of this and got in ahead.

—Our young Friend, Mr. Ted Claassen of Newton, Kansas has been appointed by the Central Mennonite Relief Committee to proceed to Europe for relief work. Rev. Amos Swartzentruber who has visited Europe at the request of the committee, to ascertain where relief work is most needed, reports that there is great need in England, among some of the many refugees from all over Europe. The Committee is already doing work among Spanish war orphans in France. Mr. Claassen left Newton Friday, April 12, and is scheduled to sail early in May by way of Genoa, Italy. He leaves behind his wife and three small children, who all are in need of our prayers and intercessions before the throne of God.

—Mennonite Church, Buhler, Kansas.—On April 14 the young people of the Hutchinson Mennonite Church visited our young people. After the program they had a nice social hour together. In this way our youth has an opportunity to make friends with Christian young people of other churches.—We also had the privilege of entertaining the Ministers' Conference in our church on April 23. Many important problems were discussed in a kind and loving way. Our Ladies' Sewing Societies served the noon meal for the ministers in the church basement.—Mrs. N. D. E., Corr.

— Bluffton College.—The following members of the Bluffton College Peace Society: Betty Keeney, Lucile Tschantz, John Boehr, James Habegger, Betram Smucker, Irwin Graber, Leonard Metzger, John Elwood and Robert Wagner: made a tour of some Eastern churches to present the play, "Let My People Go," which depicts the struggles of our Mennonite brethren in Russia against military service. They visited the following communities: Dalton, Ohio; Roaring Springs, Napier, Quakertown, Lansdale, Souderton, Philadelphia, Fairfield and Penncraft, Pa. and Sugar Creek, Ohio. Prof. John Klassen, college art instructor, accompanied the group with samples of his work that fit into the theme presented.

Mutual Helpfulness

(GEGENSEITIGE UNTERSTUETZUNG)

by J. J. Eymann, Reedley, Calif.

Recently at the meeting of the Triannual Conference of the Mennonite Aid Plan (fire insurance) of the Pacific Coast held at Pratum, Oregon, the question was raised, why not organize a Mutual Aid Society on the Pacific Coast which cares and provides funds for our loved ones at time of death? The discussion of this matter resulted in a unanimous approval of such a movement and the chairman was instructed to appoint a committee from the Conference to work out a plan and present it to the membership of the Pacific Coast Aid plan and all Mennonite members on the Pacific Coast which is approximately 6,000 in number.

This has been done and the committee is now at work and I trust that the final outcome will be the organization of another Mutual Aid Society such as we have at Mountain Lake, Minn., which has been in existence for over forty years and I am grateful to have had a small part in its growth and development thus far, as I have been a member for just about forty years.

In my contact with various factions of our Mennonite membership, I feel that I am safe in the statement that fully fifty percent of these members do not know that there is such an institution in existence. It is a regrettable fact that we have, so to say, hidden this benevolent institution, supported by most Mennonites regardless of their various beliefs, under a bushel.

Can any one deny the fact that our young folks in these days are, so to say, driven to buy insurance which is good, bad and indifferent and resultant in all kinds of monetary losses. Besides this, they are offered Lodge inducements to afford them family protection. Do we wonder why they are being misled, as they have a right and feel the necessity for this protection, when they view life in all its relationships and difficulties, and becoming still more complex in these disturbed times? These facts being outstanding, as they are, then it seems to me we should be very definitely concerned about furthering a cause which is so much needed, especially by the younger generation; and for which we do not have to go into any experiments, but have an outstanding proof in our own proven Society at Mountain Lake, Minn. We have had a lot of well meaning folks in the past, and still have some, who throw up their hands in horror, so to say, when we propose this Mutual Helpfulness, and shout Life Insurance (what a misnomer), there is not such a thing as life insurance or the ability for the human race to insure its life, and the sooner we lay this idea aside the better for us. When I make the above statements I am not depreciating the fact that the business that is being carried on by our so called Life Insurance companies does not have its wrongs and pitfalls. This, however, should not depreciate the fact that along this line of mutual helpfulness, we have a fine opportunity to serve each other.

Quite a few folks think that our "Unterstuetzungsverein" should be more liberal in taking on members and should include everyone whether well or sick and not discriminate against the folks with malignant ailments, etc.,saying that they are more needy than the hale and hearty folks. I quite agree with this idea, providing the well folks want to and are willing to pay the price, because there is no argument against the fact that our assessments or dues, whatever we call them, would be a great deal higher and we would have to broaden our benevolent ideas considerably, because this would very definitely enter into the program.

I fear also that most of our folks would consider this a hardship in place of a beneficent help. Therefore when paying time came along they would drop out and not stay with the ship. So we would defeat our own purpose, and so, for the great majority who are interested in this work and must perpetuate it, this would be out of the question.

I want to reiterate the fact that I mentioned before, that our youth, in whose present and future well being we are certainly very definitely concerned, and the fact that they are lured into all kinds of schemes to protect themselves and their families, and the enormous amount of money that they lose from all kinds of unscrupulous men, should prompt us older ones, to put this kind of a plan into operation as soon as possible, and make this opportunity available for them and thereby help them and also help our own institution in Mountain Lake, and not in any way hinder its work.

It may be interesting to all to note here that at our Pratum, Oregon General Conference we had represented something like five or six different factions of our Mennonite faith. Yet there prevailed a very fine spirit of brotherly helpfulness for our mutual fire protection. And when this matter was presented an almost unanimous expression was given, favoring the promotion of this helpful institution among our Mennonite membership.

As I see this matter, and have over a period of years, is there any reason why this problem should not be a matter of concern and discussion and have a place on our Mennonite District Conference programs, as well as a place on the program of our General Conference? If not, why not?

—The Empty Pew: "Thou wilt be missed because thy seat will be empty" (I Sam. 20:18). The empty pew has an eloquent tongue. Though its message is unpleasant it is one that all may hear. To the preacher, the empty pew says, "Your sermon is not worth while." To the visitor it whispers, "You see, we are not quite holding our own." To the treasurer it shouts, "Look out for a deficit." To the stranger who is looking for a church home it suggests, "You had better wait a while." The members who are present it asks, "Why don't you go visiting next Sunday, too?" The empty pew speaks against the service. It kills inspiration and smothers hope. It dulls the fine edge of zeal. The empty pew is a weight. The occupied pew is a wing. —Selected.

Wholesome, Helpful Books by Zondervan Publishers for the Family and Church Library

Rainbows

by Edith M. Beyerle

Missionary and Bible Teacher

Constance Rockford, the child of wealthy parents living in a southern mansion, feels a call to the mission field. Her parents emphatically refuse to give their consent. Her father even threatens to disinherit her. Ralph Randolph, her fiance, will hear nothing of her notion. In bitter disappointment Constance leaves for the Bible training school, after an affectionate farewell by the villagers.

The account of God's marvelous guidance through times of bitter waters and struggles makes this a touching narrative, a story of tender love and romance beautifully portrayed, a tale of God's wonderful care in the life of the heroine.

The manner in which Constance is reunited with her parents and loved ones is richly fascinating.

348 Pages Price, $1.00

A Man on the Run

by Douglas M. White

Pastor, First Baptist Church, Clarksville, Ga.

Here is an array of eight fine sermons on Biblical Characters, in true expository style. "Truly expository sermons," Rev. White says, "seem to be few and far between, especially in print." He learned to appreciate exposition while under the teaching and preaching of the Rev. L. E. Maxwell, who is said to be outstanding in this field. He suggests, in order that the reader may get the very best from these messages, he should read the Scriptural portion on which they are based. He treats the following subjects: A Man on the Run, Jonah; Rest in the Lord, David; Quality, not Quantity, David; Deliverance, Gideon (two sermons); The Integrity of Job, Job; The Burning Question, Moses; Paul's Thorn, Paul.

116 Pages Price, $1.00

Old Testament Types of New Testament Christians

by Basil Holt

Professor, Johnson Bible College, Tennessee

A very instructive and helpful series of studies of such types as The Priest, The Nazarite, The Bondservant and The King, with a beautiful portrayal of comparative characteristics as found throughout the New Testament.

34 Pages Price, paper, 25 cents

God's Answer to Man's Sin

by Hyman Appleman

Author, "Ye Must be Born Again"

A series of evangelistic and revival sermons that the Lord has used in the salvation of tens of thousands of souls, Jews and Gentiles, young and old. "Every message was preached and written in the presence and the drive of evangelistic service. Earnest prayer accompanied their verbal delivery and their being put into print.

"Rev. Appleman, formerly an orthodox Jew, had been a successful attorney before his conversion. He is a man who spends more time in prayer than any one I have ever known."—One who knows him well.

"These sermons reveal a clear knowledge of the gospel, a love for souls, and a true preaching gift . . . every message holds the interest of the reader, and issues a challenge to devoted living and zealous service." —Moody Monthly.

150 pages Price, $1.00

Heart Throbs from the Heart of the Bible

by Roy M. Allison, Missionary to China

Heart throbs come from the depths of the human heart. The Psalms contain the finest and most comprehensive expressions of them. These "Heart throbs" of the author are exerpts from the one hundred fifty Psalms of confession, prayer, petition, praise, thanksgiving, intercession and meditation upon God's Word and works, and are a beautiful tribute to the Christ Whom they exalt.

This is a pamphlet that every lover of the Psalms should possess and enjoy, and that will help anybody greatly to enrich his spiritual life.

64 Pages Price, paper, 25 cents

TANGLED THREADS

by Paul Brockhaus

"A thrilling touching story of a sweet Jewish girl who had become a Christian and refused the love of one of the city's most promising and prominent young men, because of her steadfast faith in the Lord. How they were divinely led and gloriously brought together after many thrilling incidents, makes an interesting romance. Woven into the story in simple and yet unaffected manner is the Gospel way of salvation. If you have enjoyed books like Rachel, David, Zonya, etc., you will be delighted with this one."

A splendid book especially for young people, particularly for any who are perplexed about the way of salvation.

189 Pages Price, $1.00

Order any of the above books and anything in the book line from MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN Berne, Indiana

~~1001 EAST BROADWAY~~
NEWTON, KANSAS
5
Key
64

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS MAY 7, 1940 NUMBER 19

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

MOTHER

The light, the spell-word of the heart,
Our guiding star in weal or woe,
Our talisman—our earthly chart—
That sweetest name that earth can know.

We breathed it first with lisping tongue
When cradled in her arms we lay;
Fond memories round that name are hung
That will not, cannot pass away.

We breathed it then, we breathe it still,
More dear than sister, friend, or brother;
The gentle power, the magic thrill,
Awakened at the name of MOTHER.

Fanny J. Crospy

A PRAYER FOR MOTHERS

These are the ones for whom I pray tonight:
The mothers, everywhere, who lie awake
With troubled hearts, with eyes that pierce the dark
Anxious for some child's sake.

"Like as a mother pitieth her child,"
How great that pity is, God understands;
O come tonight, dear Lord, and touch their hearts
And take hold of their hands.

"The promises are unto you," we read,
"And to your children." Help them Lord, to cling,
To this great living truth, and may they be Comforted, remembering!

Comforted to know Thy word unfolds
Each wayward child, each hurt child, and distressed
Then lay Thy hand upon their waking eyes
And bid them sleep and rest.

— Grace Noll Crowell

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

A. S. Rosenberger

MOTHER'S PART IN CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

P. R. Schroeder

Some reflections on Abraham Lincoln's bringing up were recently given in the Universal Leader. They are so penetrating, both in behalf of his mother and also in their evaluation of some of our present day secular education, that they deserve pondering. Here they are:

"What would modern educational experts have made of Lincoln if, as a baby, he had been put in their care? They would probably have started him on sterilized milk, clothed him in disinfected garments, sent him to kindergarten where he would have learned to weave straw mats and sing about the 'Blue Bird on the Branch.' Then the dentist would have straightened his teeth, the oculist would have fitted him with glasses, and in the primary grade he would have been taught by pictures and diagrams the difference between a cow and a pig, and, through nature study he would have learned that the catbird did not lay kittens. By the time he was eight he would have become a 'young gentleman'; at ten he would know more than the old folks at home; at twelve and fourteen he would take up manual training, and within two years make a rolling pin and tie it with a blue ribbon. In the high school at sixteen, where in four years more he would learn that Mars was the reputed son of Juno, and to recite a stanza from 'The Lady of the Lake.' Then to college, where he would have joined the glee club and a Greek letter fraternity, smoking cigarettes, and graduated, and then become a clerk in a banker's office; and never, never do any one any harm! Well—perhaps—we don't know and can't tell what might have been, but we can't help feeling thankful that Lincoln's training and education were left to Nancy Hanks—and God."

After Christian mothers have woven a foundation pattern into the receptive souls of their children, no finer compliment can be paid to them than to have college instructors pick up the shuttle and finish the pattern where they have left off. This is the purpose of Christian education.

MOTHER'S DAY

It is almost here. We wonder if it serves a commendable purpose. The cynic may argue against it and say with a measure of truth,"The day has become hopelessly commercialized. Through high pressure advertising it simply puts money into the hands of the florists." There's something in that. A vivid modern translation of Lamentations 1:10 is, "The Devil has put his hand on every pleasant thing." If he has commercialized Christmas and Easter, to some extent he has done the same with Mother's Day. Yet it doesn't break us up to pay a quarter, once a year, for a carnation to wear in honor of mother. High pressure liquor advertising these days makes the florists look like amateurs. Little, however, is said about that. It's better to spend your money for flowers than for "booze."

Mr. Cynic informs us further that the average Mother's Day service is soft and even silly. Lachrymal glands are overworked. Emotional tears flow copiously. In some cases the wet cheeks mean weak souls. As a matter of fact, the worst handicap of many children is the mother. Many thousands of our American mothers can swear as lustily and drink intoxicants as swinishly as crowds of our American fathers. The superintendent of a George Junior Republic said to the writer a year or two ago, "With many juvenile delinquents we have no trouble whatever. We have wondered why they were placed under our care. After several weeks the parents came to see them, then we understood the reason. An even greater problem than the delinquent child is the delinquent parent." The probabilities are that the superintendent is right. — The United Presbyterian.

MOTHER'S DAY

Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia is given the honor of having founded Mother's Day. It was very early this century. When Miss Jarvis' mother died her daughter felt that in some way her "mother spirit" should be carried on, and decided this could best be done by having a day set apart to honor all mothers and, through them, motherhod generally. "When I thought," said she, "of the daily work that countless millions of mothers are performing every day, quietly, unobtrusively, unheralded, I felt that a day set apart in their honor would be the most inspiring and expressive recognition that could be afforded them."

In 1912 Congress placed its stamp of approval on the observance of such a day by passing a bill that the flag should be displayed on it. The second Sunday in May was designated as Mother's Day, and the white carnation was chosen as an emblem. Of this flower Miss Jarvis said, "Its whiteness is to symbolize the truth, purity, and broad charity of mother love; its fragrance, her memory and prayers. The carnation does not drop its petals, but hugs them to its heart as it dies, and, so too, mothers hug their children to their hearts, their mother love never dying."

In her determination that the movement should succeed, she spoke of her plan to her friends and neighbors, wrote to prominent men in public life, educators, and heads of organizations. Newspapers readily took up the matter. So the idea soon spread all over the United States and on to foreign countries. She insisted on this simple plan: 1. Designate it as Mother's Day (not Mothers') to make it personal with each family. 2. Let it be observed the second Sunday in May. 3. Use white or red carnations as the emblem.

Not all people favor Mother's Day, among these are many modest mothers who feel they are honored beyond their desert. Thus one of them says, "What I have profited from my lessons of patience, my sacrifice for the children's best good, and my love for them, I cannot measure. My recompence for my labor and my thought on their behalf comes many times a day in the pleasure of their presence with me, and their thanks in their own childlike way. I do not feel the need of a special day of thank offering." Some people think that instead of setting aside June 16 for Father's Day we should celebrate it with Mother's Day and call it Mother's-Father's Day. T.

The Stress of War and We

Every newspaper report from the war scene should move our hearts to gratitude that we can still live in peace. Every war is attended with indescribable disstress and suffering. In order to meet this exigency in a Christian spirit, eight Mennonite conferences have united in the Central Relief Committee and have sent two rejresentatives to Europe. The work in Poland is being carried on by Brother M. C. Lehman, with the help of B. H. Unruh, Germany. In France and England Brother Amos Swartzentruber has organized relief work.

On April 1 this brother returned from the field and has made an exhaustive report concerning the work. As his successor the M. C. C. has appointed Brother Theodore Claassen of Newton, Kansas, a son of the widely-known C. F. Claassen who has been active in relief work for years. Brother Ted Claassen is a cheerful worker for the Lord and well-fitted for the important work assigned him. His task is to bring help to those whom the war has mercilessly reduced to the state of orphans, fugitives and starvation, and to counteract war hatred with Christian love.

Brother Claassen left Newton April 20 and, after stops at Goshen, Ind. and Akron, Pa. in preparation for the trip, he plans to attend the Eastern District Conference, May 2, and to embark for Europe, May 4. He will see much suffering.

Out of gratitude for the quiet and peace that we enjoy let us eagerly help to relieve the distress across the waters. All gifts for this purpose should be sent to the treasurer of our Emergency Relief Board, REV. P. H. UNRUH, Goessel, Kansas. A. W.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

AN IMPORTANT VISITOR

From a shack made from bamboo, costing less than $1.00 the B. L. Home has under the blessing of God and the sympathetic interest of thousands of friends and well-wishers, grown to a good sized village. This at one time housed as many as 615 lepers. The shacks have been replaced by 55 substantial brick built, well ventilated buildings. The credit for the type of buildings, as well as the arrangement of these on our 30 acre plot is due to Mrs. Penner. On April 27th, of this year 38 years will have gone by since the first two lepers were housed in the first shack. And during these years many, very many visitors have seen the Institution, among these were Government officials such as Civil Surgeons, Deputy Commissioners, Commissioners and at one time also the Inspector General of Civil Hospitals. But we have never had up till last week, such a distinguished visitor as His Excellency the Governor.

On February 10th we had the privilege to welcome into the B. L. Home His Excellency the Governor of the C. P. and Berar Sir Francis V. Wylie and his Aide-de-camp. On the 9th at 4 p.m., a telegram arrived saying that on the following day at 5 p.m. His Excellency would pay our Leper Home a visit. He would again leave at 6 p.m. the same day. That meant: Do not get excited but get busy and busy we were. I immediately went to the Leper Home, ½mile away, and told the entire Indian staff and all lepers that the Governor would be here the next day; get busy. The next day the roads were swept, garlands made, simple welcome arches erected, hospital beds supplied with clean linens, etc. etc., (Miss Pauls was on her feet all day and she did have her part of the Institution in most wonderful order. She always has this in good condition, but who would not put on extra touches when a distinguished visitor is expected?) Our caretaker was here and there and everywhere. In fact the entire Indian and European staff was, as you may imagine, busy. At 4 p.m. all lepers that were not bed ridden 550 of them, were lined up on either side of the main road on which His Excellency would walk. Mrs. Penner and her flock of untainted children were also in line with the lepers.

Promptly at 4:57 the Governor's special train consisting of five coaches stopped at Champa Station. By special arrangement His Excellency was to meet us in the Leper Home. On the carpet in front of my office were Mrs. Penner, Dr. and Mrs. Bauman with all their children, Miss Pauls, the Indian staff and some Government officials. As his car drew up, out stepped a tall smiling man, His Excellency the Governor of C. P. and Berar. After the S. D. O. had introduced me to him, I in turn introduced him to Mrs. Penner, Dr. and Mrs. Bauman, Miss Pauls and the children, and the officials. I think he was particularly pleased when Mrs. Pauman said "Our children so much wanted to see a Governor." He shook hands with all of them.

Then the inspection began. As we walked between the two rows of lepers, I pointed out to him this and that leper and made some remark about the disease. Arriving at the hospital and dispensary, Dr. Bauman took charge of him and answered his questions. He was keenly interested in all that he saw. He took a special interset in the tainted children. These performed a few simple games in His honor which seemed to please him. After the entire inspection of the Home including the Church, I took him aside and pointed out to him one main need of this Home, namely an adequate and up-to-date water supply system. He was at once interested and gave me his unofficial reply that he would see what could be done to meet this need.

All visitors whether official or not are asked to write in the Visitor's Book. His Excellency also wrote in it. I am quoting His Excellency's words to show what a Christian official in High position thinks of work among lepers:

"On Saturday the 10th. of February I paid a short visit—I am afraid at very short notice as well—to the Bethesda Leper Home at Champa. On my arrival I received a most cordial and friendly welcome from Mr. and Mrs. Penner, Dr. and Mrs. Bauman and the staff of the Home. I was then shown over the whole place.

"Every one knows the usual lot of the leper in India—shunned and dreaded by all and surely the most miserable and also the most pathetic of all God's creatures. In Champa, thanks to the devotion of Mr. Penner and of the band of helpers whom he has gathered around him, those who suffer from this dreaded disesase find themselves treated with the most loving care in the midst of practically ideal surroundings. Where the malady has not taken too much of a hold the leper—with Dr. Baumans' skill at his disposal—may dare to hope that one day he will be completely cleansed, while those who are beyond cure have a chance of living a life of peace—and I dare say almost happiness—under the selfless care of these noble people. I cannot remember that in all my life I have ever been so impressed by anything I have seen as I have been by the work which Mr. Penner—first himself but also those who help him—is doing in Champa. By his own—in the beginning practically unaided—efforts and driven by one ideal only of service to suffering humanity he has built up an institution which must be almost unique of its kind in this whole wide world. I am told that my own hurried visit to Champa was the first to be paid by a Governor of the Central-Provinces and Berar. I am grateful for the privilege which I have enjoyed of being permitted to visit the Home and I would like, on behalf of the Provincial Government, to thank Mr. Penner for all that he has done and all that he is doing for these suffering outcasts of our Province.

During the whole of my time at the Home and after I left it one principal thought was in my mind, viz., in what way could I myself lend a hand in this fearless fight against leprosy. I hear that the Home needs an adequate water supply. I am having this looked into and we shall see what can be done.

I hope that Mr. Penner and his helpers will accept from me an expression of the high admiration and respect which I feel for them after my visit to the Bethesda Leper Home.

Nagpur, Sd. Francis V. Wylie,
The 17th. February, 1940 Governor
Central Provinces and Berar."

Now contrast this with what a non-Christian says: "Give rice to you for lepers without profit? Never, these people are cursed of the gods and should not be helped." In 38 years this Hindoo has never stepped into the premises of the Leper Home though he lives less than a mile away. —P. A. Penner,
March 2nd, 1940.

MOTHER'S LOVE. — A young soldier was mortally wounded and saw eternity before him like a great gulf, ready to swallow him up with his sins like weights sinking him deeper and deeper. Suddenly a lesson which his mother had often taught him, as a little boy, stood before him in shining letters. In the gayety of life he had lost his hold of it, but it had not quite lost its hold on him. It was, "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life." He caught its meaning and cried to heaven, "Lord, I believe, save me, or I perish." Repeating this until he could no more, he passed away in peace with God.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF ORDINATION

Since Brother Arnold Regier, Elbing, Kansas, feels called of God to enter the Christian ministry and has been chosen by the Home Mission Board of the General Conference with the approval of the Alberta Community Church, Portland, Oregon, to serve this church as Pastor, we commend him and his wife to the prayers of our churches. The ordination is to take place in the Zion church of Elbing, Brother Regier's home church, on Sunday forenoon, May 19, 1940.

J. M. Regier, Pres., Home Mission Board.

INVITATION

The Zion Church of Elbing herewith extends an invitation to the Ordination of Br. Arnold Regier, to be held on May 19, beginning at 10 a. m. The service will continue in the afternoon.

H. J. Dyck, Pastor.

Problems Facing Our Youth as a Result of Present World Conditions

Exerpts from an address on this subject given at the Mennonite Teachers' Association, Newton, Kansas, April 28, 1940, by Dr. H. W. Lohrenz of Tabor College

This subject refers largely to the youth of Mennonite parentage. To get to the core of it, brief questionnaires were prepared and sent to pastors, Sunday School leaders and three Mennonite colleges, to obtain from the young people themselves as well as from parents and teachers definite statements on the problems. As a result 299 replies with 503 statements were received. These are the basis of this discussion.

1. Subjective Symptoms

Before dealing with the specific problems, a brief reference to a few general problems which may be called "Subjective Symptoms" is in place. Among these symptoms are:

1. Are we as Mennonite people suffering from Indifference? War, famine, poverty, floods and earthquakes are far away. So why should we worry. Has this security made us indifferent?

2. Do we suffer from Indefiniteness? Most of us are conscious of the fact that some things are wrong. But have we taken time to study the situation to know definitely just what the problems are?

3. Are we afflicted with a spirit of Individualism? We know that the problems are world-wide and that they affect all people, not merely individuals here and there. To find a solution it is necessary that we think, plan and act together. Are we willing to do this or are our sympathies limited to the four walls of our own domicile? If these subjective symptoms are in evidence, let us arouse ourselves and act to dispel them. Then only as we think, plan and act together will a solution to our problems be found.

2. The Specific Problems

Practically all of the 299 that answered the questions were facing problems or were aware of them. For convenience the 503 statements have been arranged in five main groups:

a. The War Problems: The new war now on may bring us as serious consequences as the World War. Many of our people, young and old, are conscious of this danger. 142 made mention of this as one of the major problems, while others considered it so obvious as not to mention it. The problem is viewed from various angles. Many are concerned with the peace principle. They are endeavoring to construct a philosophy in harmony with the teachings of Jesus, which is the very heart of Christianity and will stand the test of time.

Others deal with the practical side of the problem. If we should be drawn into the war, what course should they follow? How and to what extent cooperate with the government? What provision has Congress made for pacifist groups? Are we united as to what action or stand should be taken? How can we keep the U. S. out of the conflict? A very gratifying touch in the replies is the general desire for true patriotism and a neutrality that is born of love to friend and foe alike.

b. Social Work. Some thirty statements may be classed under the heading Social Service or Reconstruction Work. War brings untold suffering. Many of our young people are ready and willing, if opportunity opens, to give of their time and energy, to aid in relieving the suffering of those who have been stricken. Will the Mennonite groups provide the opportunity, or will they have to look to others?

c. Economic Problems. Wars will come and wars will go, but there are other problems that remain. One large group of these may be designated as Economic Problems. Even in Jesus' time it was true, "Ye have the poor with you always." Mk. 14:7. Since the time of Christ economic problems have become so acute that many of our people, both old and young, are painfully conscious of them, as a total of 168 replies showed. This is more than the number of war problems mentioned. Two economic problems seem to be outstanding: The problem of choosing a vocation, or life work, and the preparation for life's work and duties.

Of course, the problem of choosing a calling has been present in every age. But the multiplicity of types of work created by the endless division of labor has made the choice of a proper and suitable niche in which one might be employed a difficult one. In our day and age it was only a question of preparation, and the man or woman who could qualify was practically certain of a job. Nowadays when the young people have decided on a vocation and have made the necessary preparation, what are the probabilities that they will find employment? The number of replies that touched upon these two problems exceeded those of any other set of problems and were shared by many older people.

But here, too, the people are thinking not only of themselves. Many extend their vision to include the whole nation and raise such questions as, How will the U. S. ever pay its national debt? They crave economic stability for the whole world, so that all the people might live contentedly. But the problem? How shall such conditions be established when the nations of the world are continually at war?

d. Problems of Ethics and Christian Living.—Another group of problems may be assembled under this title. They are age-long problems. We need to remind ourselves only of the emphasis that the apostle Paul placed upon social purity when writing to the churches he had founded. And the problem is as acute today as ever, and in multiplied and accentuated form. Many parents and educators are well aware of this. In several replies the auto, the radio, and other inventions were named as menacing, though they may serve noble ends when put to rightful uses. Many of the young people deplore the fact that others of their own age take such a lenient attitude to the social dance, the use of tobacco and of beverages that formerly were illegal in the state of Kansas. Most of them wish to steer clear of shoals to which the modern way of fast living exposes them, and emphasize the need of standing up for one's conviction. Difficulties in the way are seen in low social ideals, dishonesty, selfishness, unwillingness to work, lack of courage, want of a sense of responsibility, late hours, and other similar dangers.

e. Religion and the Church.—Closely related to the aforesaid problems are those that may be assembled under the heading Religion and the Church. Some of the parents complain that their children do not appreciate the full value of the Church and the Sunday School. In some cases they see the cause of this in modern trends in the high schools or in the general social atmosphere that prevails in their community. Some of the young people find it difficult to see any practical value in religion. Others fail to experience the sense of reality claimed for it, while a few seem to be ready to throw it overboard. But a very large percentage of our young people is awake to the value of religion. They deplore the fact that their Biblical knowledge is so limited and express the desire for greater spirituality in their own life and that of their associates. Of the 86 returns that make mention of the Church and Religion, less than six per cent indicate that religion has lost its appeal to our youth.

f. Miscellaneous Problems.—We have spoken of five major groups of problems. There were others not mentioned so frequently, but nevertheless real. To mention a few of them, some are face to face with the problem of establishing their own home. But they hesitate because of a sense of obligation which they assume thereby; and, with the future so uncertain and the economic conditions so unstable, they do not know what to do. Others are troubled by what may be designated as personality problems. They deplore the lack of courage, complain of doubts, feel the need of greater self-confidence, etc.

3. The Solution

To offer a solution of these problems is not a part of my subject. My only task was to attempt a diagnosis. It is up to the doctors to prescribe the medicine. However, incidentally a few of the returns contained hints at a remedy of one kind or another. Here is a list of them:

1. The need of Christian teachers in our public schools.
2. Maintain our Mennonite schools and educate our own youth in the true doctrine.
3. Be a genius in whatever you do. Evidently this means that Mennonite youth ought to excel in whatever vocation he chooses.

4. Present to Mennonite youth in a clear way the manner in which Jesus met and solved the problems of His day.

5. Christianity, when actually put to practice, contains the solution.

6. Supply the right kind of reading material to our young people and thereby direct their thinking into the right channels.

7. Devote more time to Bible study and the nurture of the spiritual life.

SERMON SKETCH

"THE IDEAL CHRISTIAN"

by Walter H. Dyck

Each one of us has, no doubt, an ideal Christian after whom we are silently patterning our lives. Involuntarily Christians, who are admonished to be perfect, look for evidences of Christlikeness in fellow Christians. Of course, we want to see progress in our own lives. When can young Christians know that they are filling a God- appointed place? What is the least that God expects of them? Can I be my best for Him right here and now?

For the encouragement of those we feel that they have little, if any, part in the work of the church I wish to show that God requires no more than anyone is able to render Him.

Henry Ward Beecher, a lover of horses, said to the livery man: "That is a fine looking animal. Is he as good as he looks?" "Mr. Beecher," the answer came, "that horse will work in any place you put him, and do all that any horse can do." Beecher's answer came quickly, "I wish he were a member of my church." Well, what does God require of an ideal Christian? Nothing more than he can perform—that is, if he does his best with the talents God's mercy affords. "What doeth the Lord require of thee?" (Micah 6:8).

1. An Ideal Christian, of course, has the assurance of salvation. He has confidence in Christ. He gets satisfaction from his Christian experience. Church members may be unsaved. Remember—Judas went into eternal darkness from the Lord's table.

2. An Ideal Christian believes that the church has a message to a lost and dying world. Christians are not perfect but He who is at the heart of their message is. "Him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not to him it is sin." (James 4:17). An ideal Christian lives up to his light, then gathers more light.

3. An Ideal Christian has joy in the fellowship of fellow-believers. He does not have to be urged to attend services at which the Word of God is proclaimed, where God is worshiped "in Spirit and in truth." Probably we can't preach. But interest is help—the least any one can show.

4. An Ideal Christian has the conviction that the church of Christ must move forward. There is no such thing as "holding our own." Saints must be refreshed, sinners must be saved. Only growing churches will interest others.

5. An Ideal Christian has a spirit of sacrifice. Each one stands on his own feet. No father can be steward for the son. God wants your contribution. Without it His work will suffer.

6. An Ideal Christian has as high a regard for life as for unity. Remember—being frozen together is not being united.

7. An Ideal Christian has a desire for separation. "Love not the world." "Come out from among them, and be ye separate."

8. An Ideal Christian does not judge the church by its poorest members. In 27 objections listed against the church, "not one was against our Master." We need tolerance toward those whom we sometimes misunderstand. All are potential saints.

Lord, give us the passion of the Christ. Show us that we can be our best through Thy grace. May we not rest on the accomplishments of others nor on their ideals. And when these days of imperfection are past, may we be like the Lord and Savior in whose name we pray. Amen.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

May 19, 1940

JEREMIAH DENOUNCES FALSE PROPHETS

Jer. 23:21-32. Read chapter 23

Topic: False Propaganda

Introduction

Jeremiah, one of the great Hebrew prophets, was outstandingly the prophet of the human heart. He was of priestly descent. His home was at Anathoth, close to Jerusalem. He lived during trying times, and began his work early in life. He prophesied for over forty years, from probably 626 B. C. until after the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 B. C. He had a deeply emotional nature and is very frequently called the "weeping prophet." He lamented much over Judah's doom. He felt certain that God called him to bring His message to the sinful nation. This message of impending doom angered the national religious leaders and made them his enemies.

Prophets not Sent from God vs 21-25

The false prophets proclaimed the things which the people desired to hear. They proclaimed peace, but their vision did not come from God (vs 16, 17). He declares, "I have not sent these prophets." God had not spoken to them. They led the people astray by their unwise counsel. They had little or no conscience, no restraint and no sorrow. They held out false hopes for peace to the nation when it was on the verge of ruin. Had they heard God's message and spoken it to the people, they would have left their evil way (v22). The messages would have been different and the results also. A nation's life and history is definitely shaped by its leaders. This is also true of the Church.

God declares that He sees the false prophets and the existing evils (v23). They could not hide themselves nor their deeds from God (v24). This is a sobering thought for each one of us. The false prophets declared that their messages were revealed to them in dreams (v 25). They did not proclaim God's holiness and His demand for righteousness, indeed they did not understand God's ethical standards. Jeremiah proclaimed God's demand for loving obedience to His law and wishes.

God is Against False Prophets vs 26-32

The false prophets taught their own fancies as being divine revelations from God to them. Their motives were evil. They misrepresented God and actually turned the people away from Him (v 27). The faithful prophet has God's Word and speaks it faithfully (v 28). God's Word is like a fire and stern and powerful, like a hammer (v29). The false prophets flattered their hearers. They were hypocrites, stealing words, using messages they had heard true prophets speak (v30). They professed to be what they were not (v31). Some of them, at least, were guilty of gross sins (v 14).

God's severe condemnation falls upon the prophets who abuse their office, who mislead the trusting people v32). Jeremiah had warned them, both the prophets and the people (vs 12, 15). He declared that God would cast them off and bring reproach and shame upon them (vs 39, 40). So it came to pass. God's woe is upon people today who trust in leaders whom He has not sent and who have no spiritual life and power. Men who do not speak in accordance with God's revealed Word, should not be heeded.

NUGGETS FOR MINISTERS AND OTHERS

OUR TASK—"Though our task is not to bring all the world to Christ, our task is unquestionably to bring Christ to all the world," wrote the late Dr. A. J. Gordon. "One of the most fatal errors of the time is that ministers undertake to be feeders of men, instead of fishers of men. One cannot be fed upon the gospel until he has been renewed. Let us not neglect the evangelistic gift."

HOW TO PREACH THE GOSPEL—"(1) The gospel is a fact; therefore tell it simply. (2) It is a joyful fact; therefore tell it cheerfully. (3) It is an entrusted fact; therefore tell it faithfully. (4) It is a fact of infinite love; therefore tell it pathetically. (5) It is a fact difficult of comprehension to many; therefore tell it with illustration. (6) It is a fact about a Person; therefore preach Christ."

—Robert Lee.

DOCTRINAL - DEVOTIONAL

What Do Scriptures Teach About Postmillennialism

J. J. Balzer, Mountain Lake, Minn.

It is well for every Bible reader to remember that all the answers to questions concerning an age to come must be drawn from the Scriptures. If there is to be yet another age, or period of time marked off for a special dealing of God with the human race, our only possible source of knowledge is the Bible.

The traditional teaching, in which Protestant theology follows that of Rome, affirms a complete conversion of the world in this present age, through the preaching of the Gospel by the church, followed by the return of Christ, the resurrection of the dead, the judgment of the "great white throne," and the eternal state.

But this present age is described by our Lord in terms which absolutely exclude the possibility of a universal conversion. Wheat and tares grow together till the harvest, and the tares are not merely unsaved men in the world, but unsaved men within the very sphere of profession—"among the wheat." So like to true believers are they that the "servants" cannot be trusted to "root them up," good fish and bad fish are together in the very gospel net. And it is distinctly stated that the "harvest is the end of the age," (Matt. 13:28-30, 37-43, 49, 50). Christ pictures the present age and its end in the parables of the end-time, which is likened to Sodom and Gomorrah, and to the flood. Please read also the Olivet discourse (Matt. 24:1-30).

Now, for the sake of those who look forward to a Postmillennial return of Christ what they term the "general judgment," which is to occur at that time, let us pause to briefly consider some essential distinctions between the Premillennial and the Postmillennial crises as they were given to the Apostle John. These differences are so marked that it is difficult for some to see, how they can possibly refer to a single judgment period. Note carefully the following differences:

1. They differ as to the Place given to Christ.

In the events which consummate the Premillennial crises, Christ is the prominent figure and the chief actor. He comes forth from heaven, followed by heaven's armies and personally directs the attack against the hostile armies which were against Him and His chosen people—Israel.

But in the Postmillennial crises Christ is not only not the leading personage, but is not even mentioned. It is assumed, however, that He is still King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

2) They differ as to the Agencies of Wrath.

In the Premillennial crisis judgment is inflicted by Christ Himself. He executes wrath, smiting the nations with His sharp sword (Rev. 19:15). There are also the armies of heaven and the birds of prey (Rev. 19:17-19).

But in the Postmillennial crisis the sole agency of wrath against the living is the fire from heaven (Rev. 20:9).

3. They differ as to the Thrones.

The thrones seen in the Premillennial crisis are occupied by the Apostles and the victorious saints unto whom judgment is given. They live and reign with Christ (Rev. 20:4). These thrones are for the administration of government.

But the throne seen in the Postmillennial crisis is "a great white throne," and its occupant the indiscribable and awesome "HIM" (Rev. 20:11). This is purely a throne of judgment.

4. They differ as to the Parties Judged.

The people judged during the Premillennial crisis are the living nations, especially the allied armies under the Beast and the Fase Prophet who made a covenant to destroy even the remembrance of the Kingdom people—Israel (Rev. 19:17-21).

But in the Postmillennial crisis not only are the living nations judged who again rebelled against the Kingdom after a 1000 years of peace and righteousness (Rev. 20:8, 9) but also all of the dead who have been resurrected after the millennium (Rev. 20:12, 13). Dan. 12.

5) They Differ as to the Punishment meted out to Satan.

In the Premillennial crisis Satan is merely bound and consigned to the abyss for a thousand years (Rev. 20:2, 3). But in the Postmillennial crisis Satan is cast into the Lake of Fire, there to be in torment (Rev. 20:10).

6) They Differ as to the Resurrection Scenes

The resurrection that precedes the millennium is called the "first," in distinction from the resurrection that follows the millennium. They who share in the first are the members of the Body of Christ and all martyrs of the Premillennial crisis. These live and reign with Christ. (Rev. 12:13). But those raised after the Millennium are the nations of all preceding centuries and ages, who were raised only for the final judgment and reward. (Rev. 20:12,13).

7. They Differ as to the City of Jerusalem.

Prior to the millennium, Jerusalem in Palestine, after being given over to the nations to be trodden down for a dispensation, becomes the capital ctiy of the Kingdom with Christ upon the Throne of the World. But the Jerusalem that is seen after the Postmillennial crisis is a totally different city. It is a "HOLY CITY, NEW JERUSALEM" which has come down out of heaven from God (Rev. 21:2).—After having briefly scanned these essential distinctions, can we lightly do away with a millennial reign of Christ upon the earth as King of Kings and Lord of Lords? A student of Scriptures would not nor could he. Christ, not men will establish the Kingom, for we have failed these 2000 years.

CORRESPONDENCE

Grace Mennonite Church, Enid, Oklahoma

God has given much grace for the various meetings and undertakings in our church. Considering weather conditions, attendance at the services was very good. The Mid-week Prayer and Bible Study meetings on "The History of the Children of Israel" are also very well attended. Many blessings and worthwhile instruction have come to us from these hours of study and prayer. The class taking catechetical instruction showed a fine interest. Three of them were baptzed April 14, on which day we were also happy to receive two new members by letter. This brings our mebership to 33. Two members left our fellowship at New Year to join the Pentecostal Holiness Church. The choir and the C. E. society have been very active in preparing worthwhile songs and programs. For Easter Sunday the young people prepared a program of songs and a play, "Burden Bearer", under the direction of Rev. Harder. It attracted a large and appreciative audience.

On Good Friday evening the choir of the Orienta church rendered an Easter cantata here and on April 14, the young people's choir of the Meno church rendered a splendid musical program, attended by approximately 300 listeners. We are thankful for such visits. How grateful we are for this new church where we can comfortably accomodate larger audiences. Many children and adults of the neighborhood attend our services regularly, others on Sunday evenings. It has also been the privilege of our minister to serve other congregations. Thus he was asked to give a series of sermons at the local Westminister Presbyterian Church. He also served the West Church of the Meno community with a series of four sermons during the Lenten season. Since December our minister has been able to bring comfort to many sick and bereaved, having conducted six funerals during that period of time.

On April 1 the Enid Ministerial Alliance met in our church for their monthly meeting with 23 ministers present. These meetings are for the purpose of becoming better acquainted with the various denominations. At such occassions the entertaining minister is asked to talk on the historical background and the outstanding principle of his church. We are convinced that our congregation here in Enid is serving a great purpose. May the churches of our conference never tire of supporting city missions until they can stand on their own feet, which we are confident the Grace Church will sooner or later do. Corr.

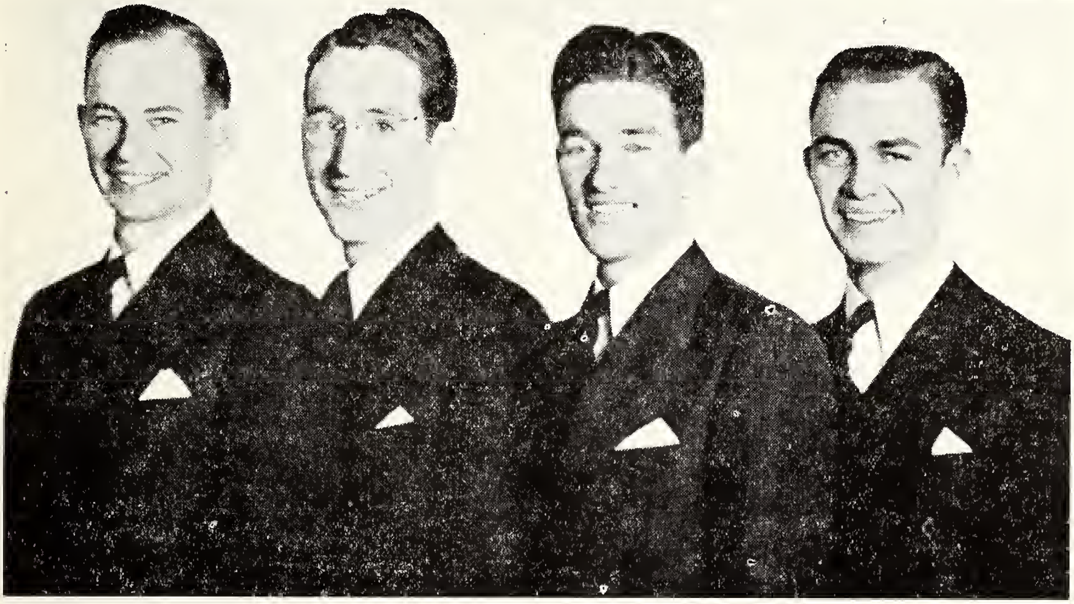
R. Weinbrenner
Editor
Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen
Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers
Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.



Robert Senner Donald Bumgarner Arthur Wenger Elbert Koontz

Bethel College Male Quartet Returns from Extended Tour

Accompanied by Rev. and Mrs. Felix J. Shrag, the Bethel College Male Quartet returned to the campus after a 2800 mile tour through seven states. They left Newton on March 19 and returned on April 3,

The personnel of the quartet consist of Robert Senner, first tenor, from Freeman, South Dakota; Donald Bumgarner, second tenor, from Attica, Kansas; Arthur Wenger, baritone, from Aberdeen, Idaho; and, Elbert Koontz, bass, from Coffeyville, Kansas. All four boys are Juniors and have been members of the quartet for three years. Within the last three years they have traveled more than 25,000 miles through twenty-four states and Canada. Their songs have cheered many an eager worshiper. Aside from their ability as songsters, they are known in school, church, and community circles as a group of perfect gentlemen.

The group visited churches at: Beatrice, Aurora, and Henderson, Nebraska; Donnellson, Wayland, and Noble, Iowa; Chicago and Meadows, Illinois; Berne, Indiana; Mountain Lake and Butterfield, Minnesota; and Freeman, South Dokota. They received a very cordial welcome in all of these places. Besides singing in the above-mentioned churches, which included congregations from the General, Central, and Defenseless conferences, the quartet also sang in high schools, Bible schools, and homes.

Every undertaking has a purpose, and so had this. In a general sense the object of this tour was to better acquaint Mennonites with Mennonites. In a special sense, however, it was a good will tour in the interest of Mennonite youth and higher Christian education.

The present world calls for a unified Christian front. It also calls for united Christian action—first as a denomination and, secondly, as denominations. In order to attain the first we must make it a point to visit our various Mennonite communities. It is only as a result of our contacts with each other, our knowledge and understanding of other Mennonite churches, schools and conferences, that each of us as a unit will find our place within a denomination which really and truly believes in the cause of peace and in the pre-eminence of Christ.

Modern youth must participate in a counter-attack against the movements of a present, war-torn world. This attack can best be waged through a wider and more wholesome training in Christian idealism.

TOURS MADE BY BLUFFTON STUDENTS

During April two groups of Bluffton College students made trips to various Mennonite localities east and west. The A-Cappella Choir toured the states of Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, northwest to Minnesota. The Bluffton College Peace Society visited churches east and presented the play, "LET MY PEOPLE GO". Such trips are valuable to the students as well as to the churches and people they contact. Since Bluffton is a church school, it is advantageous for its students to become acquainted with the people who support it; while the constituents, through such visits, can see the type of work accomplished in the school. Thus a better understanding and a deeper interest is fostered. In addition these school excursions enlarge the general knowledge of the students. Insight is gained in the geography of the states traversed, their commercial aspects, and even the intellectual and spiritual life of the people living there.

Senior Department

Senior C. E. Topic for May 26, 1940

QUIET LEADERSHIP

Main Topic References: I Cor. 12:27-31; 13:1-8

1. Worship Service:

1. Songs: "Take My Life and Let It Be"
   "Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life"
   "Somebody Did A Golden Deed"
2. Reading of main topic references, and prayer.
3. A playlet in line with the main topic, or a poem or reading.
4. Offering for mission work.

Eight hundred Japanese boys voted Christ as the man who has exerted the greatest influence in the world. In a questionnaire to French students, whom did they vote the greatest Frenchman of all times? Pasteur and Victor Hugo came first and second, and our fighting friend Napoleon came about fifteenth!

Those who have been true leaders have always been people who were not interested in what they could get for themselves but in what they could do for others. They have often been people who worked unknown and unnoticed for a long time; the mothers the teachers, good friends, but they have been an uplifting and steadying force in the lives of others. Sympathy, kindness, understanding, drawing out the best that is in others these are qualities of leadership. They are not out of the reach of anyone—each one has a chance to become a leader. "The best way to have a friend is to be one"—and the best way to be a leader is to forget about self and think of others.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Achieving Quiet Leadership, Ps. 37:1-11.
2. A Quiet Woman Leader, Ruth 1:12-22
3. A Quiet Leader Who Became Great, Neh. 2:11-18.
4. A Humble Leader, Luke 7:1-10.
5. A Helpful Leader Restored, Acts 9:36-41.

IV. For Discussion.

1. What made Naomi's life so influential?
2. What were Nehemiah's qualifications for leadership?
3. What made the centurion a man of influence?
4. Is a quiet helpful life like that of Dorcas as much a life of leadership as a public life like that of the centurion?

V. Facts for study:

A leader will have to have courage to stand alone, the kind of courage that many people never have at all. The thing which many people fear more than anything else is that of being regarded as queer and of being subjected to ridicule. But the great contributions to the world's progress have been made by those who have taken a position by conviction and then have said, "This is what I believe and this is what I will do though the heavens fall."

A leader will have to get out of his easy chair and help to get the thing done that he knows ought to be done. He will not sit back and say: "Let George do it." He will not try to find excuses for a thing which he is too lazy or too timid to do.

A leader will have the patience to stick to the job he is tackling til it is done. He will have the faith in the eventual results which keeps his courage up during those days and months and years when nobody is on the cheering line, and it all seems to be a terrible grind.

And a leader will remain humble in days of glory and achievement. He will not become puffed up and vain when good days come. His mind and heart will be set on the hill beyond which is still unclimbed.

VI. Illustrations

Robert Browning has a striking phrase, "Life's terrible choice." That phrase describes the choice of one's whole attitude toward life, and, of course, that is never one's individual choice made at one particular time but the sum of many decisions in small things extending over years.

The adjective "terrible" is a fitting one in that our choice has such great consequences not only to the usefulness but to the happiness of our lives. Most young people are very conscious of the question, "What shall I do?" It is a question vastly important. But the question of which some young people are never conscious, "What shall I be?" is vastly more important. When Moses made his decision to put aside the luxuries of life as a pampered pet at court and take his lot as one of the depised and oppressed Hebrews, he not only answered the question of his vocation, "What shall I do?" but he also made a glorious answer to the more important question, "What shall I be?"

A Life of Quiet Leadership

A cowboy who had gone to the northwest to mend his broken life, stepped into a grocery store one Saturday night and saw a tall, handsome man come in with a basket which he had filled with an assortment of groceries and go out into the darkness. The cowboy noticed him, was interested, and followed him unobserved to a little cabin on the edge of town, where he left the basket at the door and went away without knocking. The cowboy knew that the cabin was occupied by a widow with four little children. He went back to the store and on inquiry found that the man with the basket was pastor of the little church. The next day the cowboy went to church. Then he knew that he had seen a vision of Jesus in the compassion of the young pastor. He went to the altar and confessed his faith, and years later the formerly profane and reckless youth, become the church's most useful deacon.

VII. Food for Thought

To every man there openeth
A way and ways and a way,
And the high soul climbs the high way
And the low soul gropes the low.

And in between on the misty flats
The rest drift to and fro.
But to every man there openeth
A high way and a low,
And every man decideth
The way his soul shall go.
—John Oxenham

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

May 26, 1940

THE PRINTED PAGE

For Daily Reading:

May 20. Unprofitable reading. Tit. 3:9.
May 21. Lessons from history. 1 Cor. 10:1-11.
May 22. Lives of the great. Heb. 11:8-16.
May 23. Noble poetry. Ps. 91:1-16.
May 24. Truths for the home. Deut. 6:1-9.
May 25. Life-giving words. John 5:39,40.
May 26. Topic—The printed page. 2 Kings 22:8-13.

Happy is he who has laid up in his youth, and held fast in all fortune, a genuine and passionate love for reading.—Rufus Choate.

Song, "Purer Yet and Purer"
Scripture reading, 2 Kings 22:8-13.
Prayer by Superintendent
Reading of daily references. (These readings should be assigned previously to the meeting so that they will be read very well. The leader might emphasize the thought that in the discussion of this topic we are attempting to find the different types of reading that we need.)
Song, Beautiful Words of Jesus"
Discussion

1. Have a report on a Biography someone has recently read and enjoyed and ask them to state why they enjoyed it.
2. Have one of the boys report on an exciting book of adventure he has read.
3. Perhaps one of your members is especially fond of humorous stories. Ask to have a report from him.
4. Ask your Superintendent to give you a talk about the best devotional books which he has used.
5. Have an open discussion concerning newspaper reading.

Quotations:

1. Books are lighthouses erected in the great sea of time.—E. P. Whipple.
2. Some books are to be tasted; others swallowed; and some few to be chewed and digested.—Bacon.
3. A good book is the best of friends, the same today and forever.—Tupper.
4. When I get a little money, I buy books; and if any is left, I buy food and clothes.—Erasmus.
5. He that loves not books before he comes to thirty years of age, will hardly love them enough afterward to understand them.—Clarendon.

Song, "Serve the Lord in Youth"
Offering
Benediction

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Program for May 26, 1940

A STUDY OF THE NINTH AND TENTH COMMANDMENTS, Exodus 20:16, 17

I. Worship Period

1. Quiet music by the pianist
2. Call to worship. Psalm 95:1-3, "O come, let us sing unto the Lord: let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation, for the Lord is a great God and a great King above all gods."
3. All stand and sing the first three verses of "O Worship the King"
4. Scripture Reading by a Junior boy. Matthew 22:35-40; Philippians 4:8.
5. Leader's Prayer.
6. Duet, "My Jesus, I Love Thee." Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 215.
7. The Commandment given by memory. Ten Juniors.
8. Song by Juniors, "O How Love I Thy Law," Service Hymnal No. 134.

II. Study Period.

Aim: To help our Juniors to learn the ninth and tenth commandments. To create in them the sincere desire to keep all of the commandments.

1. Introduction by an older person. "The first eight commandments that we have studied were rules about actions. The Ninth commandment is a law about words. Two commandments out of the ten have to do with the sins of the tongue, the third and the ninth. The Tenth commandment is about our thoughts. Perhaps you have thought that what we think and say is not nearly as important as what we do. But what we do comes from what we think, or what we think about. Let us then pray that our thoughts be pure. No matter how hard we try, we can not keep all of these commandments perfectly, but if we pray to our Lord Jesus and ask Him to help us, then we can keep them.
2. A Junior boy read James 3:1-10.
3. In unison repeat from memory, Exodus 20:16.
4. Discussion of the ninth commandment by two Juniors. (a) What is meant by "bearing false witness." When we say something about our neighbors, whether friend or enemy, that we know is not true we are "bearing false witness." Lies may be acted as well as spoken, and any sign or action or even silence, if it is intended to deceive some one is a falsehood. (b) We should love the truth. Ephesians 4:20-25.
5. Bible Drill. Prov. 22:1; Ps. 5:7; Zech. 8:16, 17; Matt. 15:19; Isaiah 5:20; James 5:12; 1 Tim. 5:22; 2 Cor. 1:17; Luke 6:37; Prov. 19:5; Lev. 19:6; Matt. 5:37; Ps. 34:13-14; Matt. 5:34; Ps. 50:19-21; James 4:11.
6. All stand and sing in unison, "Yield not to Temptation."
7. In unison repeat from memory Exodus 20:17.
8. Discussion of the Tenth Commandment by two Juniors. (a) What is meant by "covet?" To covet means the thinking of the wrong kind of thoughts, of being envious, or jealous or of having an inward desire or wish which is sin. So the tenth commandment does not speak of an outward sinful act which is a crime, but it speaks of a heart sin. It's root lies in selfishness. Covetousness is wanting to have that which is not ours. (b) Covetousness makes us forget God. Luke 12:15-22. Evil desires draws us away from God. The heart is set on the world and the things of this world. Only when the old, natural heart has been replaced with a new one born of God is it possible for us to seek God and to delight in Him.
9. The story of a covetous man. 1 Kings 21:1-19 as told by a Junior boy.
10. Leader's heart talk. (Bring out the truth that the blood of Jesus Christ cleanses us from all sin.)

(Concluded on page 15)

Northern District Conference Program

To be held in the Bethesda Church, at Henderson, Nebraska, June 2 to 5.

Conference Motto: Ye also, as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, an holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ, 1 Peter 2:5.

Saturday, Ministerial Conference

Leader, Rev. I. J. Dick, Mountain Lake, Minn.

The afternoon session at 5:00. In connection with a lunch served by the local church. Especially arranged for ministers and deacons.

Subject: Round table discussion of problems and issues confronting ministers and churches. All ministers come prepared to state their problems.

Saturday Evening, 7:30

Leader, Rev. I. J. Dick.

Thema: Die Aufgabe des Predigers zur Belehrung der Glieder bezueglich seiner Pflichten in der Gemeinde, Rev. J. F. Sawatzky, Madrid, Nebraska.

Thema: Die Berufung und Einsegnung des Kandidaten fuers Predigtamt, Rev. Alfred P. Waltner, Marion, S. D.

Sunday Morning, 9:30

Local pastor leader

Home mission sermon, Dr. H. A. Fast

Foreign mission sermon, Missionary P. W. Penner

Singing in charge of the local church

Mission offering

Sunday Afternoon, 2:00

Conference sermon, by the Conference president, Rev. J. A. Tieszen, Marion, S. D. Appointment of committees.

Observations from the mission field, Dr. H. A. Fast.

Children's meeting during the afternoon of Sunday In charge of local congregation

Special singing

Sunday Evening—Sunday School Program

Leader, Edwin P. Graber

Theme: Suggested plans for Sunday School—memory work, North Dakota

Music: Bethel S. S., Mountain Lake, Minn.

Discussion: Sunday School problems and their solutions. The problems are to be presented by a representative from each state of our district. (Limited to 5 minutes each).

Solutions for the above problems open for discussion.

Peace Talk: Rev. Walter Dyck, Beatrice, Nebraska

Music by the various choirs of the Conference.

Monday Morning and Afternoon

Introduction. Prayer hour. Five minute quiet meditation. Season of prayer.

Leader, Herbert Widmer, Bloomfield, Montana.

Communion sermon, Missionary P. W. Penner

Communion sermon, Mrs. P. W. Penner

Geschaeftliches: a. Entgegennahme der Delegatenzeugnisse. b. Verlesen des Protokolls der vorigen Sitzung.—c. Bericht des Ehrenstimmenkomitees.—d. Bericht des Werbekomitees. — e. Bericht des Schatzmeisters.—f. Bericht des Komitees fuer Schule und Erziehung.—g. Bericht des Pruefungskomites. — h. Bericht des Evangelisationskomitees.

Theme: New tasks for our Northern District Conference. A comparison with the other District Conferences, Dr. H. A. Fast.

Young People's meeting during business session.

Monday Evening Young People's Meeting

Topic: Young peoples' work in our Northern District Conference. How does it compare with the work in the other Districts of our conference? Bethel C. E., Mountain Lake, Minn.

Open Discussion of the above theme.

Music: Bethany, Freeman, S. D.

Retreat pictures. Rev. Walter Dyck, Beatrice, Nebr.

Tuesday Morning—Education

Devotionals in charge of Rev. Helmut Ortmann, Munich, N. Dak.

Theme: Building a spiritual priesthood through our Christian education. To be brought by a members of the Educational Committee.

Unfinished business

Tuesday Afternoon—Women's Missionary Program

General singing

Roll call. Each society respond in any way they wish

Music: Salem Mennonite church, Freeman, South Dakota

Thema: Was ist meine Aufgabe als Glied des Naehvereins? Mary Bargen, Mountain Lake, Minn.

Duet, First Mennonite, Madrid, Nebr.

Recitation, Bethlehem Mennonite, Bloomfield, Montana.

Theme, How can we awaken more interest for the mission society? Swiss Mennonite society, Alsen, N. Dakota

Reading: Wisner, Nebraska

Music: Bethel, Mountain Lake, Minnesota

Talk: Our India Mission, Mrs. P. W. Penner (German)

Talk: The Indian mission in Montana, Miss Marie Buller

Offering

Tuesday Evening

Bible lecture: Dr. P. R. Schroeder (German)

Evangelistic Sermon: Rev. Jacob A. Friesen, Doland, S. Dak. (English)

Special singing before and after the speakers.

Wednesday Young People's Day

Motto: The Christian in the Modern World

Forenoon

Devotionals, Rev. Ed. Duerksen, Alsen, N. Dak.

Peace Talk: Rev. Walter Dyck, Beatrice, Nebr.

General discussion at close

Social Hour at noon for all young people

Talk: Our South American Mennonite Youth, Dr. H. A. Fast

Recreation in charge of local committee

Wednesday Evening

Chairman, Rev. Albert Schultz, Butterfield, Minn.

Evangelistic Sermon, Rev. P. W. Penner

Consecration Meeting.

Please notify A. W. Friesen how many are expecting to come to the Conference from your church.

Program for Nebraska All-Mennonite Sunday School Convention

To be held May 26th, 1940, at the M. B. Church, Paxton, Nebraska

Forenoon Session

10:00-10:15—Devotions led by Rev. Adam Ross, Culbertson

10:15-10:20—Musical Number by M. B. Sunday School, Paxton

10:20-10:40—Sermon on John 21:50 by Rev. Dueck, E. M. B., Henderson

10:40-10:45—Musical Number by Bethesda S. S., Henderson

10:45-11:05—Model Class (elementary) — Mrs. David Hooge, Henderson

11:05-11:15—Discussion of lesson taught

11:15-11:20—Musical number, First M. Madrid by Jr. Choir

11:20-11:30—Appointing of necessary committees and announcements

Afternoon Session

Topic: Spiritual Growth in the Sunday School

1:00-1:10—Opening exercises, First M. Sunday School, Beatrice

1:10-1:15—Song by M. B. Sunday School, Jansen

1:15-1:35—Theme: Spiritual Growth as concerning the Teacher

The Teacher should have:

a. A vision leading into gospel truths

b. A way of importing these truths to the pupil

c. Practical method of application, by

H. B. Kliewer, Henderson.

1:35-1:40—Musical number by E. M. B. Sunday School, Jansen

1:40-1:50—Discussion of theme presented.

1:50-2:10—Theme: Spiritual Growth in regard to the pupil.

The pupil should be willing:

a. To accept the truths presented.

b. Should grow mentally, morally and spiritually

c. Should be prepared for future service

by Abe Lowen, Culbertson

2:10-2:15—Trio by M. B. Sunday School, Culberteson.

2:15-2:25—Discussion of theme presented.

2:25-2:45—Theme: Spiritual Growth in regard to the Sunday School as a whole.

a. The Superintendent's aim to develop the school spiritually

b. Cooperation by patrons and parents

c. Growing step by step, year by year

by J. J. Friesen, Henderson

2:45-2:50—Musical Number by Pleasant View S. S.

2:50-3:00—Closing Exercises.

Evening Session

7:00-7:10—General Singing led by H. Dick, Henderson.

7:10-7:20—Opening by leader J. F. Sawatzky

7:20-7:35—Business and reports of committees

7:35-8:00—Songs by the different S. S. represented

8:00-8:10—Reading by M. B. Sunday School, Eldorado, Nebr.

8:10-8:15—Musical number by Second M. Sunday School, Beatrice.

8:15-8:35—Message: The value of church music. G. H. Jantzen

8:35-8:40—Musical number by M. B. Paxton Choir

8:40-8:55—Remarks and closing by Rev. H. Flaming, Paxton.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, CHICAGO, ILL.

God is still blessing our work. People are interested and find a joy coming to our church. While a change of pastors is contemplated, we feel our work will go on unhindered. Recently a visiting minister was with us and we all enjoyed his message. The Congregation is getting ready (in connection with the cooperation of the Mission Board) to take steps to call a pastor to begin his work the 1st of August this year. We ask our readers to pray that the man who comes will be of God's choice.

Our church has been recently decorated and a new lovely carpet laid in the aisles and the platform. This has been brought about by the faithful membership of the church.

As pastor of the church it has been my privelege to fill a number of pulpits in and around the city. At one place where I had preached for a week, there were 22 who took the stand for Christ and the Church. We praise God who has seen fit to honor His word.

When I am relieved as pastor of the 1st Church I will give my time wholly to the unfortunate children of our great city. This work calls for prayer and help. Let me right now thank the Women's Missionary Societies of the church for their support in this work. They have been kind in remembering us in this work. Perhaps at a later date we might speak more along this line. We thank you for your prayers on our behalf. —Rev. A. H. Leaman.

A New Philosophy of Religion by Barth Karl

No doubt some of our ministers as well as others have heard, read and are interested in the new conception of religion as advanced by the German theologian Karl Barth. Using the excellent article by Rowena Kesler, entitled "Barthianism and Student Christian Work" in the April number of CHRISTIAN EDUCATION as a basis, we wish to make a few comments.

Miss Kesler relates that in the midst of religious fervor shown by the students from America at the World Conference of Christian Youth in Amsterdam, they received a sudden jolt when a European student of Barthian leanings asked, "Why should YOU presume to build a better world? Only God can do that." While it is very difficult to give the substance or definition of Barth's philosophy, the writer of the article referred to, has admirably succeeded in the following paragraph:

"Barthianism, as a sort of Calvinistic revival, asserts the supreme authority of God. Though God is unknowable and indefinable, He is infinite, transcendent, supernatural, revealed to man through faith. Man, made in God's own image, is subject to God; but he is depraved and sinful, and receives redemption only through the grace of God. Man discovers God's will by 'listening' for the Word of God which is received individually by man as God speaks to him. The Word of God is not the Bible nor is in the Bible. The Bible is important but it is the secondary word of God, relating the experiences of men in and through whom God spoke His Word. The Bible is, therefore, not infallible and can be subjected to modern scientific and historical criticism. Jesus, as both human and divine, is a revelation of the Word of God. The Church is the 'community of believers' in Jesus Christ, a spiritual fellowship of those seeking the Word of God. For Barthianism, the source of religious knowledge is revelation; the authority for religious truth is external to man—in God only. All dogma, all churches as either authoritarian organizations or as sociological institutions, all codes of ethics, all ecclesiastical orders and traditions are man-made—therefore irrelevant. Only the Godward elements in life are important. Hence, in spite of all man's efforts to improve society, the Kingdom of God cannot be brought to pass on earth. Man's ideas of progress and growth are illusions. The Kingdom of God is not encompassed by time and can only come, if at all, through the cataclysmic mercy of God."

We can probably agree with many of the tenets above set forth with some exceptions, and underscore a number of them, as with the supreme authority of God, that He is infinite, transcendent, supernatural, revealed to man through faith, but certainly God is knowable though only in part. Man is depraved and sinful and may have redemption only through the grace of God, but Barth makes no mention that this is only through the redemptive work of a Savior, Jesus Christ. Strange is his view that "the word of God is not the Bible nor is in the Bible" . . . that "the Bible is the secondary word of God . . . is not infallable and can be subjected to modern scientific and historic criticism." Could it be possible that the church of Christ which has been steadily teaching that the Bible is the inspired, infallable word of God in so far as He has seen fit to reveal it to sinful man is wrong and that what we consider to be the Word of God is a book of only secondary rank? Does not the Book itself, all through its pages, give undeniable proof of its inspiration and infallibility? We agree that Jesus is a revelation of the word of God or rather of God, that the authority for religious truth is in God only; that dogmas, all codes of ethics, etc. are largely man-made; that in spite of man's efforts to improve society, it appears quite impossible that the Kingdom of God can be brought on earth in that way.

How does the Barthian philosophy tally with Education? According to our type of education, man's possibility of development is limitless. Humanism has practically deified man and education. Barth's concept of man, that he is sinful, depraved and utterly dependent on the will of God, makes an education dealing with the whole man purely a factor of human events. Education as it goes is secular and therefore of no major importance. Beyond education lies the supreme reality and end of man — faith in the Word of God.

Toward "Christian Education" Barth is even more severe. Religious education, wrongly named, is not religious, it is merely another human offshoot. On the Protestant side it is absorbed in liberalism, and has become an "emotionalized social education." It is "a deadly poison that is falsifying the faith, selling the distinctive realities of the faith out to mere 'character education' which aims to make a moral and decent person with some aesthetic appreciations and idealistic thoughts."

Place of the Bible in Barthian philosophy. — It would make the Bible more central than in modern Christian education, with stress on meditative Bible reading as a means of discovering the Word and Will of God. The main purpose of Bible reading would be inspirational, to know the judgments of God upon man and His divine will; while the purpose of Bible study would be to concentrate on facts of secondary matter, such as human relations in the Bible, its bibliography, literature and ethics. "God revealed Himself to men in years past as recorded in the Bible. He reveals Himself to men today. So the Bible is not the only proof of His revelation. J. R. T.

It is a fact that the Bible can go the round of the world, and carry with it, in all its travel, its own mighty credentials.

(Concluded from page 11)

III. Mission Minutes

1. There have been very interesting letters from our missionaries in the "Junior Messenger." Ask a Junior to read one of these, selecting it himself.
2. What two Chinese teachers have been ordained as ministers? Refer to "The China — Home Bond."

IV. Closing Moments

1. Repeat in unison verse of the month, 1 John 5:3.
2. Pray in unison prayer of month. Psalm 143:10.
3. Sing softly one verse of "My Jesus I Love Thee"
4. In unison repeat the benediction. Numbers 6:24-26.

« « JOTTINGS » »

ATTENTION, WESTERN DISTRICT PEOPLE

The radio program to be given over station KFH, Saturday, May 4, from 10:15 to 10:30 a. m. is of necessity postponed by the manager to Saturday, May 11, from 10:00 to 10:15. Rev. J. N. Smucker will speak.

— Rev. Edward D. Schmidt, Wichita, Kansas, asks for this INTERESTING ANNOUNCEMENT: "Just received a call from Council of Churches asking us to take time on K.F.H. at 6:30-6:45 next week, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 9-11. We plan good programs and would be glad to have our church people listen in."

— From a private letter by Miss P. A. Penner we take liberty to share excerpts with our readers this and next week. Here is one: "One or two articles in English are in the course of preparation. There are so many demands for articles that, although I have a steno-typist, yet, it is impossible to meet all requests. Two typewriters are kept fairly busy. You will hardly believe this because so very little appears in the papers. Yes, but England, Australia and New Zealand get their share, to say nothing of private and business correspondence. Well we don't complain but simply state facts." Here is a missionary that does the work of two or three persons. It is a case of a man fully consecrated to the will of God, hence the seemingly impossible becomes possible. May He continue to sustain our senior missionary.

— GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY of couple of St. John congregation, Pandora, Ohio. On April third it was fifty years that Mr. and Mrs. David Wherly have been married. The occasion was properly commemorated on Sunday, April 7th. About fifty relatives and friends met with the couple for a sumptuous golden wedding dinner. An informal program in the afternoon featured the singing of the hymns, "Great Is Thy Faithfulness", "Lead Me Saviour", by a quartet, "Under His Wings", by Rev. and Mrs. D. J. Unruh. The pastor, Rev. Unruh, then spoke briefly on II Sam. 7:16. A great number of people accepted the invitation of "open house" and called to extend their congratulations and best wishes. We pray God's blessing upon the couple and that much happiness be theirs in the years to come. — Church Bulletin

EBENEZER CHURCH, NEAR BLUFFTON, OHIO

In February our congregation had the privilege of hearing a returned missionary, Miss Mary Haas. She is on furlough from her missionary work in Africa.

Our Christian Endeavor societies sponsored the Fifth Annual Young People's Rally, April 4 to 7, at which time Dr. Roy L. Brown, a business man of Altadena, Calif., was the speaker. The theme of the rally was: "That I might know Him." Phil. 3:10. The messages were extremely inspiring and brought an abundance of blessings to many.

On April 11 and 12 this community had the rare treat of hearing Dr. John Zoller, Detroit radio preacher, at the high school auditorium in Bluffton.

— Hanston, Kansas.—Rev. A. S. Bechtel, pastor of the Menn. Church there, writes, 4-29-40: We had a fine rain during Saturday night and another nice one on Sunday evening, around an inch and a half all told. That changes the picture in this section greatly.

— From a Young Reader in South Dakota.—We are having cold weather and may have a frost tonight, April 29. We had 2½ inches of rain in one week. The people who have suffered so much from drouth are so glad and thankful for the abundant moisture. It fills our heart with hope for a good crop.

— Freeman Junior College.—That this school, the smallest of our Mennonite Colleges, has the courage and will to undertake big things, is shown by its announcement of a full-fledged correspondence course.

The reasons given for doing this are: To help serious minded teachers in their professional advancement; to help teachers meet state requirements: to meet the needs of teachers in service. The following courses are to be offered: English: Literature, 9 hours. Composition, 9 hours; Speech, 1 hour; Elementary German, 9 hours; Prin. of Economics, 3 hours; Survey of Biol. Sciences, 3 hours; Psychology: General, 3 hours; Child, 3-4 hours; Educational, 3 hours; History of Education, 3-4 hours; Prin. of Teaching, 3 hours; Rural School Management, 2 hours; Methods of Teaching, 3 hours; Rural School Music, 3 hours; Art, 3 hours.

— Bethel College.—Dr. A. E. Hertzler, nationally known surgeon and physician, and author of "Horse and Buggy Doctor", has agreed to be speaker at this year's commencement, at which 51 seniors are to be graduated.—Dr. E. L. Harshbarger, Bethel debate coach, was elected governor of the combined Kansas, Nebraska and Colorado district at the National Pi Kappa Delta convention held at Knoxville, Tenn., March 25-29. Over week-ends and practically every Sunday, the A Cappella Choir under the direction of Prof. Hohmann is out singing for communities nearby and for miles out. Friday, May 3, they sang before the United Mennonite Churches at Beatrice, Nebr., and from there they continued this trip into South Dakota.

— Mrs. Edith Graham Mayo, widow of the noted surgeon, Charles Mayo, Rochester, Minn. has been elected by the "American Mothers' Committee of the Golden Rule Foundation" of New York, American Mother as representative of the best there is in woman hood, the voice of inarticulate millions of mothers throughout the nation." Mrs. Mayo is the mother of eight sons and daughters, each of whom is said to be making his (her) life worthy of the honor bestowed on their mother.

— Bluffton College.—Dr. Wilson M. Compton, Washington, D. C., is the commencement speaker for this spring. Dr. Compton has been secretary and general manager of the National Lumber Manufacturer's Association since 1918 and is professor of economics in George Washington University. He has served on numerous governmental and business advisory boards. His mother was a Mennonite from the Trenton, Ohio area. Four representatives from the college faculty attended a meeting of alumni in Illinois last night, April 28, and are speaking in Illinois churches this morning and evening. Next week-end the college will be represented at the Eastern District conference in Philadelphia.

— First Church, Allentown, Pa.—The Mothers Class has presented an additional Communion Tray for the Church.—The illustrated talk on India, recently given here by Missionary John Thiessen was very enlightening and greatly appreciated.—Miss Grace Moyer has been appointed correspondent to The Mennonite in place of Mrs. Reuel De Turk who with her husband are moving to Warren, Mass.

— Rev. D. P. Eitzen, Mt. Lake, Minn.—One of our Mennonite ministers, for the second consecutive year holds the record of the first corn planted in that vicinity, which was on April 22. The seed used was a cold resistant hybrid variety. —Mt. Lake Observer.

— A Worthwhile Entertainment.—Eigth Street, Menn. Church of Goshen, Ind.— The Women's Association invites everybody to attend a book-review meeting in this church. Mrs. John Plank will review "Abe Lincoln of Illinois".—Those who have heard this excellent review say that one cannot afford to miss it.

— Mennonite Church, Pretty Prairie, Kansas.—It is reported that this church has ordered a supply of "Gospel Hymn"s for its use. An appeal to wait until our own new Hymn Book is ready didn't seem to take effect. It is discouraging to see one of our largest churches take this course. It would help unify the services in our churches to use a book that has been prepared with the view of serving Mennonite churches in particular.

Missionary G. A. Linscheid writes from Upland, Calif. that they plan to start on their return trip May 6, via Oklahoma to tend to some matters before getting back to Newton. They have been asked to take care of their old mission station for a while before new workers can be found to take the place vacated by Bro. and Sister Benno Toews.

Received by the Home Missions Committee Western District Conference

April 1940

Home Mission Board, Gen'l Conf., J. J. Plenert, Treas., $25.00; Tabor Menn. ch., H. B. Schmidt, $16.40; Mennoville Menn. ch., Mrs. O. C. Wehmueller, $13.75; Lehigh Menn. ch., R. Weinbrenner, $8.64; Lehigh S. S., R. Weinbrenner, $8.54; Fredonia, Kans. group, Marvin Schmidt, $4.00; Friedensfeld Menn. ch., H. B. Regier, $40.00; Montezuma Menn. ch., Leland Johnson, $2.74; Vona Colo. group, D. J. Tanner $3.15; Bruderthal S. S., P. F. Funk, $53.55; First Menn. Beatrice S. S., Henry W. Penner, $50.00; Meadow Menn. ch., Edward D. Goossen, $70.56; Garden Township ch., Paul E. Vogt, $31.25; Bethel College ch., Helen Penner, $23.07; Hebron Menn. ch., C. L. Wall, $17.43; First Menn. ch., Pretty Prairie,—Jacob B. Graber, $11.41. Total $379.49.

Gratefully acknowledged,
G. A. Linscheid, Treas.

Every impulse and stroke of missionary power on earth is from the heart of Christ. He sows, and there is a harvest. He touches nations, and there arises a brotherhood, not only civilized by his light, but sanctified by his love. — Bishop Huntington.

ORDER BLANK

MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE

Newton, Kansas

Place a cross in the order used.

☐ I wish to become a new subscriber of THE MENNONITE, and am enclosing the special price of $1.00 for the first year.

☐ I hereby renew my subscription to The Mennonite and enclose $________, for which credit me as far as it goes. Regular price is $1.50 a year.

Kansas subscribers should add 2 per cent for taxes.

Old subscribers paying to 1941 or beyond get the YEAR BOOK free. This very valuable book may be had by anyone, postpaid, for $.25.

Name ____

Street or Route ____________________________________

City __________________ State ______________________

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA.

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Business Office, Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kans.
Editor .... J. R. Thierstein, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.50 .... Foreign, $2.00

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges, to J. R. THIERSTEIN, or the MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS.

1001 EAST BROADWAY JA 41
NEWTON, KANSAS
Key
66

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS MAY 14, 1940 NUMBER 20

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

COULD IT BE DONE?

Would it be possible to have the European War come to a stop now, before the rest of that country is engulfed. Thinking people shutter with horror at the thought of seeing the carnage go on, with steadily increasing destruction of precious human lives, and property. If some prominent, outstanding leader or leaders, perhaps among the neutrals, could get the attention of the war-crazy belligerent leadership just long enough to think some sober thoughts as to whither this war is going to take them, the seemingly impossible might become a reality. Is there a man anywhere of the type of Martin Luther, who could stand and defend the right against a world of enemies? This arbiter or this group of arbiters of peace, if several could be found, would have to press both of the warring factions for concrete proposals of conditions under which a fairly just peace might be arrived at. President Roosevelt has been mentioned as a likely arbiter. And in some respects he would appear to be the logical man to advance this peace mission and, if necessary, to organize and head a peace commission to issue the appeal. He has behind him the prestige of a powerful nation which has not yet committed some of the sins chargeable to the European belligerents. He has the good will of the other nations of this western hemisphere and would get their cooperation. Thus he wields a stick of influence and power, bigger than the other Roosevelt did. He has evinced a good deal of interest in the subject of peace and peace movements. But he is sold to the Allies as may be plainly seen, hence he is naturally not in good graces with the German people. But if he could get the consent of his mind and will to consider it his holy duty, under God's leading, to ask the Allies and Germany frankly: "Under what conditions would you be willing to help make a reasonable peace, now, and stop the carnage which is bound to lead to the final destruction of your countries?" Who would want to deny that he wouldn't find listening ears? It is quite sure that the people of our nation would stand behind him in the effort to work for a peace based on justice and reason. And if the President would then assure those nations that America is prepared to take the lead in true disarmament, convinced that the use of the weapons of wholesale destruction can never bring peace nor happiness, this might be a further inducement.

What could we as Christians do to help such a movement along? In Old Testament times the people used to get down on their knees to implore God for help, when they were faced with destruction; yes, they even fasted in sack and ashes; and God would hear their petitions. Might we not expect God to be ready to listen again, if the true Christians in our land would unite in a season of prayer and pray this thing for peace in Europe through, in support of such efforts as were indicated above, or any serious efforts in that direction. The time has come when the leadership of the Christian denominations in America should get together and agree on a period of united prayer of all true Christians within their membership. If man does his part, God has always been found to do His.

* * * * * *

May 18, Saturday, Peace Day

On this day it is supposed that at least the Christian forces of the land seriously meditate on and pray for peace. Having no suggestions from our peace headquarters pertaining to a possible observance of the day, we hope that we may be pardoned for giving the following hints:

Whether in meetings or in private, our membership has every reason to engage in serious meditation. For one thing, should we not pray to God to forgive us that we, who make the peace principle our main doctrine, have split up into so many branches? And should we not humbly admit that critics may justly point their finger of scorn at us for our failure to be at peace among ourselves?

Again should we not fervently pray that God's spirit would so powerfully move the hearts of us Mennonites that the sentiment for an approach to union might induce the leadership of the different groups to begin looking for ways and means of bringing us closer together? What might have been the result if the Mennonites of America and Europe, instead of just standing for peace and passing resolutions about our adherence to Christ's teachings of peace, had given force to these principles in united action! T.

Laborers With God

"We are laborers together with God," 1 Cor. 3:9. Comparatively few people rightly estimate the real meaning and import of church work. What a glorious privilege, though, to have a part in the noblest task in the world, that of helping men to lead godly lives! What a depth of meaning advanced by the apostle Paul in this challenge: We are co-laborers with God." It is marvelous! God, the Almighty, the All-wise, the Omnipresent, creator and preserver of, and ruler over all things! Man, puny man, the mortal, the sinful, the shortsighted, the most helpless of all living creatures, called into direct partnership with God. It is "God and Company," against which all human venture, associations, companies, corporations, and even governments are as nothing, though they may serve a purpose. And what are silver and gold, material success and worldly honor, as compared with the business of leading souls to God? Beholding Christ, steadily going about doing good, praying and mending sinners' lives, hanging on the cross, bleeding, suffering, dying, should help God's coworkers to estimate the value of human souls and the share that they may have in getting men to know, to love and to serve God, and thus to find eternal life.

What does God require of colaborers with Him? In the first place, that they be His children, born again in the image of Christ. 2. That the work that they do must be grounded on the foundation other than which no man can lay, which is Jesus Christ. 3. That they be vitally concerned about the spiritual weal and woe of their fellowman, young and old, rich and poor, black or white. 4. That they study and pray for a true understanding of the vastness of this work with God. "Christ died for all," to save all. The whole world is the field of labor to be encompassed by this partnership. 5. That after all we may do, or try to do, it is God, all in all, that gives the increase. He has prepared the salavtion, he furnishes the tools, the Word, the means of grace, the great Comforter, the power and the will to work. It is He who crowns the work with succes if faithfully done. T.

A PREACHER'S FAVORITE PRAYER—

Almighty God, Thou Helper of those who proclaim Thy Word,

Help me to be patient in committees; true in statistics; honest in details; exact in finance.

Defend me from the sin of a roving mind; a lazy pen; a yawning mouth; and a thoughtless preparation.

Keep me steadily at my desk; at my book; at my message; at my work in my parish.

Give me according to my ability, thoughts to think; deeds to do; lives to lift; souls to save.

Be Thou the Horn of my salvation, and thus may I be able to preach deliverance to the captive, joy to the joyless, hope to the hopeless; salvation to the uttermost; in Jesus' name and for His glory. Amen.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

CHRIST IN INDIA

During the past six months various statements have appeared in the press, including our own church papers, concerning the state of affairs in India. We need to think deeper than some of these statements would indicate.

First of all, it is not true that our Christian activities in India have been curtailed since the outbreak of the war. Any statement which would tend to make any one believe that your work and our Christian and Mission Work in India has had the doors of opportunity closed since Sept. 1939 is false. The glorious Gospel has full play and hearts are strangely warmed and transformed as heretofore. Whatever the future may bring, it is a lie to believe that our Christian work has been restricted during the last twelve months. In our area, peace reigns. We go and come without being hampered. Our work continues as always.

As for complete "self-government" for India, the ruthless rule of "self-government" of those in the saddle in non-Christian lands of Russia, Japan, Turkey, Afaganistan and elsewhere is enough of an indication of what will happen here, if, in this non-Christian land, a non-Christian group as the "Indian National Congress" attains complete self-government. The "Indian National Congress" we must remmember is a political party, even as in the U. S. A., the Communist", the "Socialist", and "Democratic" and "Republican" parties. The term "Indian National Congress" is not at all synonomous with the term "U. S. A. Congress".

After Mr. Gandhi, Mr. Jawaharlal Nehru is next in command. He is reported to have openly said, "I have put religion and God on the shelf". If India attains complete "self-government", there is enough cause to permit us to believe that the communist hordes back in Afaganistan, and the Hitlerism of Congress Leaders will turn this fair land into desolation even as has been done in Russia and amongst the Japanese Masses where non-Christian blocks have their undisputed sway.

Let us not forget that when we call for complete "self-government" for India, that complete "self-government" in Japan has driven peasant farmers to such depths of despair that their best way out seems to sell some of their fine daughters into the geisha, and the remainder as prostitutes. Let us not forget what complete "self-government" by a non-Christian party has done to Mennonites, Lutherans, and Baptists in Russia. If Christ means anything, what can we expect of a bloc ruling this land, or any land, without the power of Christ?

The doors are wide open. If these times mean anything, they mean, — evangelize! EVANGELIZE!!

EVANGELIZE!!!! NOW for India is the way of salvation. Night may come when no man can work, — But NOW is the watchword for Christian Forces in India. Are you with us in Prayer? in Heart and Mind? In Stewardship? Shall India be amongst the Five Virgins with oil in their lamps, or amongst those without oil? S. T. Moyer

---

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

A. S. Rosenberger

CHRISTIAN vs. SECULAR EDUCATION

By P. R. Schroeder

I

1. There is a difference between an enlightened and a benighted people. Examples of the two are the Ancient Egyptians and the present day Hottentots.

2. There is a difference between an intellectual and an imperialistic people. Examples of the two are the scholarly Greeks and the militaristic Romans.

3. There is a difference between the Godly wise and the worldly wise. Examples of the two are the Puritans who settled in North America for religious convictions, and the Spaniards who settled in Mexico and South America for the purpose of getting rich.

II

1. The nature of the educational agencies of a nation will determine the character of the people. There are two great agencies of education in our own country.

a. There is a secular agency—the government.

b. There is a Christian agency—the Church.

2. The government learned from the Church. But the Church has long since, even before the colonial days came to a close, surrendered her first right to educate its children, to the government.

3. Secular education is for this life, Christian education is for the whole of life.

4. Secular education ends in materialism. Christian education ends in eternal life.

5. Secular education ends in final moral failure. Christian education assures moral success.

III

Christian education is similar to secular education in the following:

a. It covers all the ground of secular education.

b. It demands the whole mind of man, the same as the other.

c. It prepares for this life, just like secular education tries to do.

d. It promises satisfaction, like the other.

But Christian education differs from secular education in certain marked aspects; all of them are listed in a classical Bible passage on "higher" education, Ephesians 1:17-23.

a. Christian education has an additional fountain of truth, beyond all sources of knowledge that are available to secular research. That additional fountain is "God." See Ephesians 1:17.

b. At best secular education has only partial insight into man's nature and purpose. Christian education has a completed view of the why and wherefore of man, indicated by "the hope of his calling," in Ephesians 1:18.

c. Because secular education has an incomplete and therefore a distorted measure of relative values, as between human life and other life, Christian education stands out above it, in that it has a corrected measure of values, "the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints," Ephesians 1:18. It learns to measure all values in their relation to the "riches of the glory."

d. Christian education has resources of power unknown to secular education, "- - the exceeding greatness of his power to usward - - " Ephesians 1:19-21.

e. Christian education builds on a fellowship of kindred souls entirely strange to secular education. This fellowship is "the Church, which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all." Ephesians 1:22, 23.

IV

A glance at results:

1. Christian education knows, where secular education guesses.

2. Secular education neglects God and exalts man in preparation for his downfall. Christian education exalts God and humbles man in preparation for his glorification.

3. Secular education builds on the sands of time. Christian education builds on the Rock of Ages.

"THE KIND OF PREACHER I LIKE—enunciates clearly. Speaks with authority, as God's ambassador. Does not rant. Is not sarcastic. Speaks earnestly, as though he were saying the most important thing that could be said at the moment. Shows he knows and feels the burdens of the hearers. Aims to bring God to men and men to God. Lives in accord with the gospel he proclaims. Reveals an outline, but does not bore me with it."—A. D. Hill.

When a fountain pen begins to flow too freely it is a sign it is getting empty. "There may be a moral in this for the clergy," says Rev. H. Cowly Carroll.

WHY PEOPLE GO TO CHURCH

Some go to church to take a walk,
Some go there to laugh and talk,
Some go there to meet a friend,
Some go there, their time to spend,
Some go there to meet a lover,
Some go there, their sins to cover,
Some go there for observation,
Some go there to seek salvation,
Some go there to sleep and nod,
The wise go there to worship God.
— Selected

Mennonite Principles Must Be Declared

By Edmund Miller

No denomination can be better than its principles. Since this is true, the Mennonite Church has a glorious future if these principles will be declared to our people.

That there is a definite need in declaring them was revealed when our men, refusing to bear arms in the last war, were asked to give the "reason for that hope that was within them." Many of them knew little or nothing of that hope. Embarrasing incidents like these ought to challenge the Mennonite Churches to declare more thoroughly their beliefs. But have they?

Do our young people, as well as the older ones, know what our denomination stands for, and what its teachings are? The Fathers of Mennonitism lived and died for certain principles because they believed that they were not only for their immediate group, but for all Mennonites for all time. Yet Mennonites of this generation have, in many instances, lost sight of the real spirit of Mennonitism and its wonderful principles. It would seem that our Church needs a new baptism of self-respect.

If we were asked, "Why are we Mennonites?" what answer could we give? This topic about which to write was given to a group of Mennonite youth of high school age. Most of them gave these reasons: "Because my parents are Mennonites;" "Because I was taken to a Mennonite S. S., C. E., and church service;" "Because I was born a Mennonite;" "Because my Grandmother changed from ——— to the Mennonites." Only a few mentioned two, or at the most, three Mennonite principles which had become a part of them. One paper could have been entitled, "Why I go to Church," instead of the given subject. What is true of this group, I believe, is a fair example of many other groups in our denomination. The reason for this? . . We have failed to declare.

I am aware of the fact that we have too many so called Mennonites who do not agree with, and believe in, our principles. A Mennonite who does not believe in the Mennonite principles is as much an anomaly as an American who does not believe in democracy.

The Mennonite principles must be declared by every Mennonite . . . . declared in such ways as may be possible to him. They must be declared in SPEECH, in LIFE, in ACTION. They must be declared in every enterprise of the Mennonite Church. They must be declared in opposition to every social evil and in sacrificial promotion of every social good, not to further ecclesiastical ambitions, but to spread throughout the world that spirit which is peace, happiness and the brotherhood of man.

"Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you."

Relief Workers and Relief Funds

by Mennonite Central Committee

On December 1, 1939 Bro. M. C. Lehman landed at Genoa, Italy, and proceeded direct to Berlin, Germany for the purpose of organizing the Committee's Relief Service to Poland, and continues there.

From January 19th to April 4th Brother Amos Swartzentruber visited England and France and formulated the beginnings of War Sufferers' Relief projects in these two countries.

Bro. Ernest Bennett, worker in Spain since late 1938, is directing the projects begun by Swartzentruber from Paris as headquarters and is staying on until Bro. Claassen reaches the field.

Bro. Ted Claassen, Newton, Kansas was appointed April 13th to continue the service in France and England, and sailed May 4th, S. S. Washington for Genoa, Italy.

A total of $7,488.14 in cash and clothing valued at a total of $3,968.75 have been forwarded to Europe for Relief purposes since Dec. 1st, making a total of $11,456.89 or an average monthly expenditure of $2,291.38. With the channels now open for this service to War's innocent victims, and the distribution directed by our own Mennonite workers, liberal gifts to those needy ones are solicited and urged.

A BRIEF FAREWELL MESSAGE

April 29, 1940

"And whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him."

As a brief farewell message before sailing for Genoa, Italy, thence to France and England, I would like to express my appreciation to the M.C.C. for the opportunity of being a channel through which they and the entire Mennonite Church may continue to be a blessing in offering relief to those in need in the war-torn areas of Europe.

After conferring with Brethren Swartzentruber and Hershey, I am beginning to realize at least in part the great task and responsibility that lies ahead.

I would covet your prayers that the work, which is to be done may not only offer physical relief to those who suffer and are destitute, but that through it all, God may be glorified and His name magnified.

Cordially yours in Christian Bonds,
Ted E. Claassen

Minister: "Others may be allowed to succeed in making money, or may have a legacy left to them, but it is likely God will keep you poor, because he wants you to have something far better than gold, namely, a helpless dependence on Him, that He may have the privilege of supplying your needs day by day out of an unseen treasury." G. D. Watson.

Latest Lawsuit Against the Bible

You can have $1,000 if you will prove that there is any scientific mistake in the Bible. This offer was made to the public last October by the Research Science Bureau, Incorporated. The offer still holds good. The President of the Research Science Bureau is Harry Rimmer, Sc. D., D. D., and when the offer was published as an advertisement in the New York Herald Tribune, within two days Dr. Rimmer received a personal letter setting forth certain alleged errors in the Bible. Forty-eight hours later the writer of the letter brought suit against Dr. Rimmer for the $1,000 which had not been paid.

In due time this lawsuit against the Bible was tried in court. The plaintiff was William Floyd, publisher of a magazine called the Arbitrator. He said he had furnished 51 inaccuracies to be found in the Bible, and that Dr. Rimmer had refused payment.

The major contention of the plaintiff was that, according to the Bible, God sent too many quail for the people of Israel to handle, and that the record in Numbers 11 was a scientific fallacy.

Still another contention of the plaintiff was that, in one account of Genesis, Noah was directed of God to bring into the ark two of every sort of animals, and in another place was told to take seven.

After several weeks of legal skirmishing, the case came to trial. James Bennet of New York, the eminent lawyer who, like William Jennings Bryan, is a staunch Fundamentalist, defended Dr. Rimmer and the Research Science Bureau and the Bible in this now famous suit. The court proceedings were interesting! Some humorous incidents occured during the trial, as when the judge told the vice-president of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism not to let his ego run away with him! Mr. Bennet's wit is inimitable, as his friends well know, and his brilliant intellect and life-time study of the Bible came into play.

On February 16, 1940, the Municipal Court Justice before whom the case was tried dismissed the suit on the ground that a prima facie case had not been established. This result was a complete victory for the defendents, and, as Dr. Rimmer puts it, "The Bible emerged from this unique trial with shining glory undimmed by the venomous attacks of unbelief."

Dr. Rimmer is well known for his brilliant lectures and writings in the field of science and the Bible, in which he has massed convincing scientific material showing beyond denial the truthfulness of the entire Bible as the inspired and inerrant Word of God. The story of the lawsuit is unique as a narrative of present-day attack against God and the divine vindication of the Scriptures. It will appear exclusively in six or more articles in The Sunday School Times beginning in the issue of May 18, and it offers a priceless opportunity to both believers and unbelievers, to pastors, laymen, Sunday school workers, college and university students and professors, in its true account of both sides of the famous lawsuit.

Sunday School Times, May 2, 1940

War Propaganda Revives Here

"As was inevitable, pro-Ally newspapers are launching a fresh propaganda campaign to take us into the war. Because of the recognized opposition to involvement, the propaganda usually stops with an emotional appeal for a decisive victory for the Allies. This means for the United States that when we realize that the Allies cannot win a decisive victory without us, we shall be expected to go into the war with our entire resources including several millions of our youth. For the British have now started conscripting millions of infantry, expecting that it will no longer be a sit-down war. The war slogan now is that we must 'save civilization'. But this cannot be done by the war method. The inescapable fact is that the entrance of the United States into the war could only hasten the destruction of Europe. We pointed this out last month. The airplanes we send to Europe to overcome Germany's great superiority in the air will start the active bombing, on both sides, of munition plants, railroad centers and other military objectives. Hitler will not wait until air superiority has been definitely given the Allies. From his new bases in Norway his planes are within easy striking distance of Great Britain. A dog-eat-dog process will start and, since civilians are sure to be killed, atrocity stories can all too easily inflame hatred on both sides to a pitch where the 'all-out' war of extermination will start. The utmost that the United States can do for the Allies by going in with our entire resources is to hasten the black-out of all western Europe, while our country will be so exhausted by the effort that we shall not be in position to contribute to Europe's rehabilitation when the war is over. The whole western world will be flat. In that condition, every country that participates in the war will be an easy prey to revolution or to a ruthless dictatorship. There is a better way to save civilization than war. What President Roosevelt wrote Hitler and Benes some two years ago is true now and forever: 'I am persuaded that there is no problem so difficult or so pressing for solution that it cannot be justly solved by the resort to reason rather than by the resort to force. And force produces no solution for the future good of humanity.' The great virtue of mediation is that neither side 'surrenders'. Both sides 'win', and they win in a real sense, just as they 'lose' in a real sense if they go on with the war, as is shown conclusively on page 4 of this issue of PEACE ACTION. There will be little if any difference in the living of 'victor' and 'vanquished' at the end of a five-year war of exhaustion, but a negotiated peace this year,if properly followed up, can be the beginning of better international feeling and ultimately a new world." Peace Action, April, 1940

SERMON SKETCH

"THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN SUFFERETH VIOLENCE"

by H. A. Claassen, Freeman, S. D.

Matthew 11:12.

This statement comes from the lips of our Lord when John was imprisoned and sought an explanation concerning such experiences permitted by God. John who had faithfully prepared the way for the ministry of the Messiah, was suffered to perish in prison. After three years of even a more marvelous ministry on the part of Jesus, Himself suffered violence as king of the Kingdom of heaven. Within four more decades all except one of the twelve Apostles of the Lord suffered violence. During the two Milleniums of the ministry of the Holy Spirit in and through the Church the Kingdom of Heaven has suffered almost continuous violence until now.

The first book of the Bible records that after the union of the sons of God with the daughters of men a great civilization sprung up, "and the earth was filled with violence." Of the two men who in those days walked with God and by the Spirit of God ministered a restraining influence striving, witnessing, preaching against sin, one was taken; the other left to build the ark and be a type of salvation through faith in Christ to us who live in these days of violence. When Noah had finished the ark, at the word of the Lord, he and his family went in and God shut the door behind them. The judgement of God fell upon a highly civilized race, destroying all but those in the ark.

"As it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be in the days of the coming of the Son of Man."—Ours is a day of a great civilization. Science, arts, inventions, industry, commerce, society and a union of children of God with the children of the world flourish as never before. But God looking upon the earth, would not He then say, the earth is filled with violence, and the day of man's rule over men must end in judgment.

The violence of our day is not confined to the battle-fields of Europe and Asia. Within the nations, ours not accepted, the race- and class-hatreds rage. Was there a day since the dark middle ages when the waves of antisemetism went so high, when industrial strife, carnal lust crippled not only production, but homes and families, institutions and laws of God with ruthless disregard.

However, the Lords statement in this text indicates something more vital than a prophecy which we behold as an historic fact and present reality. Violence on the part of such who enter the Kingdom is necesstary. Ours is an age of pleasure loving ease. People care little for perishing souls. Neither do we find many who are concerned for their own soul's salvation. We lack conviction of our lost condition. God who is love cannot punish man forever. Many expect a second chance after death. Jesus says, "The violent take it by force." He would have us know that force is required on the part of the sinner seeking salvation. We must sell all that we have and follow Him. We are to take our cross upon us and follow Him. We must practice self-denial and mortify our flesh. This requires violent determination not toward others but to ourselves. The power working such conviction, strong and unwavering desire to make our calling and election sure is the Holy Spirit. He works faith and a new life in the believer as we follow His promotings. Let us watch and be sober. Awake my soul, stretch every nerve and press with vigor on; A heavenly race demands thy soul, and an immortal crown.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

May 26, 1940

JEREMIAH ANNOUNCES THE NEW COVENANT

Jeremiah 31:31-37. Read Chap. 31

Introduction

In today's lesson Jeremiah is trying to inspire his people with a new hope. It was late in Zedekiah's reign and the fall of Jerusalem, much predicted, was near at hand. Jeremiah's message was built on the real character of God. He emphasizes the idea of God as the Father of His people. The prophecy of our lesson has to do with Israel's coming restoration to glory, when the people shall be greatly increased and Jehovah will watch over them (vs 27, 28). The "coming days" refers to the time when Jehovah shall come to earth in the person of Jesus. Each one shall suffer for his own sin (vs 29, 30).

The New Covenant vs 31-34

God is promising the new covenant. He is speaking and He will establish the new religious order of things when He comes in the person of Jesus (v31). Man could do nothing by himself. While Jeremiah is speaking directly to Israel, it is clear from Jesus' words that this new covenant to be established through Him, is for all people (see also Gal. 3:29). The new covenant will be of a higher order than the one made with Israel through Moses. In that God pledged to take Israel as His people and they in turn pledged themselves to take Him as their God. He led them out of Egypt, protected them and provided for them (v32), yet they were disobedient to Him. Israel had ratified the covenant with the blood of the sacrifices which was sprinkled upon the altar and the people. The rebellious people constantly violated their solemn pledge to Jehovah and Jeremiah proclaimed the dire judgments sure to come as a result of sin.

There is hope and assurance. God's patience and love are not exhausted. There shall be a restoration of Israel. God will make a new covenant after the days of verse 31 have fully come. There shall be a new spiritual order of things. The new covenant is to be spiritual in character and give all persons direct access to God. This law is to be written in their hearts, working a spiritual transformation and creating an inward desire to do right and to be obedient to God. The new covenant is personal and the keeping of it is by personal choice, the fruit of a spiritual birth. Each one shall have direct access to God and the privilege of knowing Him (v34) and He will pardon and forgive.

God's Assuring Grace in the Covenant vs 35-37

The glories of nature are the handiwork of God (v35). They are evidences of His power and grace and all people should believe Him. Captivity was imminent, but there shall be a restoration from it. God's covenant is valid and Israel shall survive as a people, saved, not on its own merits but because of God's covenant promise (v36). Israel has been preserved as a distinct people since they rejected Christ, an evidence that the eternal God is guarding His covenant people. The new covenant made in Christ, brings to us abundant spiritual blessings, made possible by what He has done. Through Him God has established a spiritual covenant with man.

DOCTRINAL - DEVOTIONAL

PEACE AND SAFETY

When a navigator leaves port he begins at once to chart his way across the ocean. At the end of each watch he takes his bearings, estimates the distance his ship has sailed, and marks his position on a chart. A navigator must know at any time where he is. If he does not know and has lost his bearings, then he is in danger, particularly if he is close to shore in foggy weather or in a stormy sea. Once the ship is in the breakers she is in grave danger, and the chances are that she will be wrecked.

A study of international affairs convinces even the most optimistic student, that America is at the crossroads and that unless humanity experiences another visitation of Supernatural Power, the present civilization will not be able to survive. If we dishonor God he will dishonor us, if we honor God he will honor us. One thing startling about the present situation is, that our own nation is without sufficient leaders. Most of them are materialistic, having been trained in the logic of materialism, having attained success in the accumulation of material things. They have become the leaders of a civilization which is positively materialistic, and consequently, they are naturally bewildered at a time when all material things are losing their value.

No, we can not expect better results of our politicians and statesmen, our financiers and captains of industry, of our lawyers and professors of economics, but we do expect it of our clergy, the spiritual leaders of our country and the shepherds of their flocks. The present silence of the theologians is perhaps the strangest of all the strange phenomena that startled the world in those days. Modernistic and rationalistic theology does not concern itself with prophetic interpretations of the Holy Scriptures except to scoff.

Mr. H. L. Mencken, one of the leading editors of the country, cynic and agnostic, brought a scathing charge against the modern clergy in the April 1932 number of the American Mercury for their falure to enlighten the people on the meaning of the present day crisis and its outcome. Mr. Mencken points out the ridiculous position of modernistic preachers against the Inspired Teachings of the Scriptures. He said, "If the Bible is inspired, then the modernistic clergy has no right to change the least jot or tittle of it, and if they can not change it they must swallow everything that the fundamentalists find in it." Mr. Mencken then points out the condition the world is in at present, that it is clearly predicted by Scriptual Prophecy; yet the subject of prophecy is never mentioned from modern pulpits, and the congregations are kept completely in the dark concerning it. He also refers to the 21st chapter of Luke which lists a number of signs that are clearly visible today, and speaks of the distress of nations with perplexity, men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things that are coming on the earth. Such a challenge coming from such an iconoclast as Mr. Mencken is, who has done his share in destroying people's Faith in the Word of God, is that much more remarkable; and we hope that his honesty of purpose will help to undo the harm that his destructive criticisms has done in the past and will arouse the clergy of our land to study the Bible prophecies concerning the present day and present them to their congregations.

When all human efforts are failing is it not time for America to stop and investigate? All through the Old Testament we can see the Promise of the Messiah gradually unfolding before our eyes. God's great plan, program and purpose is unfailing. Paul had been asked by the Thessalonian Christians what would be the sign of Christ coming at the end of this age? Paul described the end of this age to be one characterized as a great Peace movement.

Peace posters adorn the churches; Peace movements of every description clamor to attract the attention of the masses, that are kidding themselves into a Fool's paradise. Thus the word Peace has been printed billions of times in thousands of press articles during the last few years. Dr. Goebbles launched a Peace campaign not so long ago throughout Germany saying, "The peoples of the world want Peace." What a hypocritical cry. When they cry for Peace, sudden destruction shall come upon them. This world cry for Peace is the very feature which Paul foretold characterizes the days of Armageddon, also the Scriptures plainly says that there will be no Peace until the Prince of Peace Comes. Thus John in a spirit projected into the future, witnessed the close of the present order and the ushering in of a new and better day with all Creation acknowledging the righteousness and justice of God, paying homage to His Son as they proclaim Him King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

Mrs. Earl O. Edwards,
Member of St. John Menn. Church, Pandora, Ohio

The Mennonite Song Festival

The Mennonite Song festival, which has become an annual institution, will again be held June 2, in the Bethel College Kidron Bowl.

An innovation from previous years will be tried. Whereas in the past years the churches have been divided into District Choirs, this year established organizations, such as quartets, mixed choruses, ladies' choirs, men's choruses, and orchestras will be employed. It is hoped that this arrangement will eliminate the rehearsals that are so hard to get in during the busy spring weeks, and that otherwise it will stimulate interest because of the natural interest in existent groups.

The program will be ready for publication after a few minor details can be arranged. The afternoon program will begin at 2:30 o'clock and the evening program at 7:00. It is planned to unite the various groups appearing on the program together with EVERYONE else who is interested in choral singing, in one grand chorus both in the afternoon and in the evening. We want the bleachers packed for the singing of these old beloved chorals. The rehearsals for the grand chorus will be held Sunday, May 26, at 2 p. m. in the College Chapel and also Saturday evening, June 1, at 7:45.

Last year a band was organized which appeared on the evening program. Our aim this year is to enlarge this band to 250 pieces. If you are playing an instrument whether you are old or young, may we ask you to come and join us? Pack your instrument and music stand and meet with us in rehearsal May 19 at 2 p. m. and again May 26 at 3 p. m. at Bethel College. The music scores will be furnished to those that cannot bring their own.

We plan to use the following numbers: Seeds of Cadmus—Johnson; Travel Overture—Buchtel; Morning Festival Overture—Monger; Hall of Fame—Olivadoti; Manitou Heights—Christiansen.

Chorals: Grant Us to Do with Zeal—Bach; O Light of Life—Bortniansky.

Come and enjoy the festival with us.

The Women's Association of Bethel College will again serve lunch on June 2.

Music is the only art of Heaven given to earth, the only art of earth that we take to heaven. It is for us to unfold and develop it by instruction and cultivation. — C. W. Landon.

IN MEMORIAM

ANDREW DAVID SCHMIDT, son of David A. and Helena Teske Schmidt, was born October 25, 1862 in Heinrichs Dorf, Russia. In 1874, at the age of 12 years, he came to America with his parents. They arrived at Yankton, S. D., but later moved to Freeman. This was his home until 1931 when he and his wife moved to Hillsboro, Kansas. The pioneer days in South Dakota were full of suffering and struggle, but constantly their voice of thanksgiving was raised to God for their new home in America.

At the age of 18 he was baptized and received into church membership. On the 28th of October, 1884 he was united in holy matrimony to Anna J. Graber. To this union were born nine children. After many years of suffering his wife fell asleep in the Lord on November 25, 1915. In April 1920 he was united in his second marriage to Mrs. Anna Mosiman and thus also assumed the father's attitude to her two children.

He was active in the church circle. With his family he was found in church every Sunday except when sickness prevented. He served the church in several official capacities. Both in Freeman and Hillsboro churches he served faithfully in the capacity of deacon.

He always enjoyed the best of health until 1938 when he began to suffer from hardening of the arteries and heart ailment. More recently he was confined to his bed, getting up only occassionally and gradually even that privilege was denied him. He became weaker and weaker and apparently without suffering or pain he quietly fell asleep, Friday, April 19, at 1:23 a. m.

He leaves to mourn his departure his wife and her children and families, Mrs. Rosella Bartel and Reuben Mosiman of Hillsboro; his children, Mrs. Helen Toews of Grand Forks, N. D., Mrs. Eda Bose of Chicago, Mrs. Lydia Kaufman of Freeman, S. D., Rev. Edward D. Schmidt of Wichita, Albert A Schmidt of Freeman, Mrs. Tillie Schrag of Freeman S. D.. Dr. Henry A. Smith of Chicago and Mrs. Ann Schroeder of Yankton, S. D., 21 grandchildren, 3 great grandchildren, two sisters and a great number of other relatives and friends.

Proverbs 13:22: "A good man leaveth an inheritance to his children's children." He called his family to the bedside and, naming them one by one, he spoke a blessing upon each one personally. He longed to go home and be with his Maker. God granted his wish. Now he rests in peace. He reached the age of 77 years, 5 months, and 24 days. At the funeral in Hillsboro, Rev. J. M. Regier, assisted by the Reverends P. W. Penner and J. H. Epp, conducted the services. At Freeman, S. D., where the body was taken for burial, the Reverends A. P. Waltner and Albert Claassen officiated.

R. Weinbrenner
Editor

Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen

Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers

Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.

William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

CALIFORNIA SUNDAY SCHOOL AND CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION

"The Ready Christian" was the theme of California's 20th annual Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention. Representatives of the six Mennonite churches in California met April 12 to 14 at the Atascadero, California Memorial church, the host being the San Marcos, Paso Robles church.

Featured during the Convention were two forums on Sunday School and Christian Endeavor methods. Three speakers presented "The Sunday School in the Church Program" by discussing attendance, teaching methods, and the vacation Bible school. Likewise, "The Christian Endeavor in the Church Program was handled, with practical suggestion on the planning of C. E. programs, the significance of the pledge, and the improvement of our music. This was followed by a stewardship presentation by the young people of the Reedley church.

Juniors too, had a part in the Convention. During the business session, a Junior Conventionette was held for the youngsters. Here they could sing and listen to talks especially for them. Then, too, on Sunday forenoon, the Juniors were responsible for the closing exercises of Sunday School. Your representatives from the various churches served by singing or recitation.

One of the greatest projects facing this Convention was the challenge of Christian service in the migratory camps in and about Shafter. Rev. Paul Pietsch, who has been working in this capacity, spoke to the Convention Friday evening, illustrating his message with pictures of the work. It was decided that we accept the challenge and consider it a missionary enterprise.

During the banquet Saturday evening, a short celebration was held, this being the 20th anniversary of the Convention. Mr. C. F. Mueller, one of the originators gave a short talk, linking the spirit of the past with the hope of the future. A short skit about the California Retreat was also presented, and Miss Emma Ruth showed some moving pictures taken at the past two Retreats.

"The Christian Ready to Obey Christ" was the topic of a message given by Rev. D. D. Eitzen, Saturday evening. Everyone faces conflicts in life, and the only way to overcome them is to yield oneself to the Lord, and we will be drawn closer to each other as well as to Him. Sunday forenoon, Rev. C. Hege, of Paso Robles, presented the message on "The Christian Ready to Answer and Witness for Christ." A transformed life and renewed spirit, as referred to in Romans 12:2, are neccessary to the Ready Christian; then his life will be a witness in itself.

The Convention was afforded a special treat by a concert presented by the Reedley Men's Chorus Sunday afternoon. Many a favorite sacred selection was well rendered by this group, and their testimony in song rested as a benediction on the events of the preceding days of fellowship and inspiration. Thus our Convention came to a close. We praise the Lord for the blessed experience He has given us, and may we all be found "Ready Christians!" —Louise Richert.

CONVERSION AND PEACE

We believe whole-heartedly in the conversion of heathen peoples to Christ. For it we give hard earned money. For it we pray. Must our missionary activity, our zeal for converting people to Christ stop there? No, we can reap even greater blessings by becoming aware of a task at our doorstep, namely, the conversion of Christians to the Pacifist stand.

When we think honestly and clearly we realize that men are not converted to the fulness of Christ in an instant. The fulness of Christ can never be exhausted. But when men open their hearts unto Him, they ever attain unto a larger meaning of Christ. So came the conviction that slavery and the drinking of hard liquor constitute sin. So must come the conviction that the use of all violence is sin.

Our task is to present by life and by word the message of peace, and to support others who are so doing. The following are a few suggested steps that we can use: (1) Strive to know more fully the Christ of Peace as revealed in the Bible. (2) By prayer cultivate the peace within you. (3) Delve into the political and economic facts connected with the peace problem. (4) Utilize and support the Institute for International Relations which is held in your state. There will be such institutions in the following states where Mennonites live, Oklahoma, Kansas, Iowa, Oregon, Indiana, California, Ohio, and Pennsylvania. (5) Participate in peace teams which carry the messages of peace to others who do not share our convictions. (6) Engage in the active expression of Christian goodwill. (7) Contribute to the work of our Peace Committee.

May 18th is to be observed as World Peace Day. On that day millions of Christians will be arrayed in arms against each other. Certainly here is a field ripe unto harvest. Shall I be true to the mission task at my hands? Let me, this day, decide on some concrete, definite way in which to bring the Christ of Peace to those who know not such a Christ. R. W.

BLUFFTON NEWS-BITS

Leonard Metzker, from Roaring Spring, Pa., will be president of the Men's Gospel Team next year. The Women's Gospel Team elected Jean Kolb from Fairview, Michigan, as president. Kenneth Tapke, junior of Weston, Ill' succeeds Karl Schultz as president of the Y. M.

The Ohio Students Conference on Public Affairs will convene on the Bluffton campus, May 17 and18. The nature of the conference is purely academic, with panel discussions in the political, economic, and social fields. James Griffith of Bluffton is the president of the conference

"Let My People Go" was presented by the Bluffton Peace Action Club at a District Young Peoples conference, held at the Grace Mennonite church in Pandora.

Three Bluffton college students, Karl Schultz, Kenneth Tapke, and Gaylon Thomas, represented the Y. M. C. A. at the annual Leadership Training Conference, held at Bowling Green University, April 19-21.

Senior Department

Senior C. E. Topic for June 2, 1940

THE POSSIBLE YOU

Main Topic References: Isa. 40:28-31; I Cor. 1:26-29

I. Worship Service:

1. Songs: "Rise up, O Men of God"
   "Lead on, O King Eternal,"
   "I'm Pressing on the Upward Way"
   "Earthly Pleasures Vainly Call Me"
2. Reading of main topic and prayer.
3. Special music — women's trio.
4. Offering for mission project.
   (It might be well to chose some definite project for some special mission station — the Mission News and Notes brings various needs to our attention from time to time).

II. Leader's Introduction

The externals of life change, but the human heart still swings through the full gamut of human emotions. Love, joy, sin, sorrow, remorse, punishment, forgiveness, faith, restlessness, sacrifice, vicarious suffering, patience, tolerance—all the things that go to make up the sum of human life remain the same throughout the ages.

Your emotions may make or break you. They should become a mighty force in the making of the possible you. They should strike down to the hidden sources of the streams of the will, rousing the spiritual forces that not merely change momentary conduct but remake the essential quality of life. It is the emotion that transformed Paul from one sort of fire to another. It is the sort of thing that shook the lives of Huss and Calvin, of Knox and Wesley, of Luther and Zinzendorf. It is the sort of deep, eternal fire that made Jesus Christ so truly warm in the hearts of those who met him.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Good advice to youth. Eccl. 12:1, 13, 14.
2. A youth with possibilities. I Sam. 16:11-13.
3. Wisdom is vital. Prov. 8:10-17.
4. Every man, his own task. Rom. 12:3-8.
5. Understanding God. Jer. 9:23, 24.
6. A well-trained young man. Acts 22:1-3.

IV. For Discussion

1. What ideals must we cherish in order to keep on growing?
2. What kind of people will be a help to us to become finer and nobler?
3. How may we lay hold of God's help to become more Christlike?

V. Facts for Study

Who was the great musician who said, "If I miss practicing one day, I notice it; two days and my audience notices it; four days and all the world notices it." Must we too continually "practice" our Christianity if we are not to lose it?

A few years ago a visitor to the campus at the University of Southern California made a never-to-be-forgotten plea to the student body. He said that a man who was planning to become a lawyer should become a lawyer plus; that the one who was to be a doctor should be a doctor plus; and the musician should be a musician plus. Such individuals would be those who fulfilled the technical requirements of their respective professions, but he added certain other qualities. The really successful man must be able to perceive and appropriate not only life's ordinary values but life's greatest values as well.

What is true of doctors, lawyers, musicians and other professions is just as true of those who are Christians and would become more Christlike. They must not fulfill only the letter of the law, but must become imbued with the Spirit of their Lord and Master.

> Who knows what call the voice of Jesus brings
> To youth who look brave-eyed into the heart > of modern life!
> Do modern lepers need release from sin?
> Do some bear burdens, poverty and want? . .
>
> Is there the easy path of good enough
> Which keeps one from the best?
> In all these things God calls.
>
> He needs young hearts, young minds, young > hands,
> To fashion out the world that is to be.
> Who hears?
>
> —John Irvin.

The way to become "the best possible you", is to forget yourself and live for others, to lose your life that you may save it.

VI. Illustrations:

The Growth of Habits

An old teacher was once taking a walk through a forest with a student at his side. The old man suddenly stopped and pointed to four plants close at hand. The first was just beginning to peep above the ground; the second had rooted itself pretty well in the earth; the third was a small shrub; while the fourth was a full-sized tree. The tutor said to his young companion: "Pull up the first."

The boy easily pulled it up.

"Now pull up the second."

The youth obeyed, but had to grasp it with a firmer hold.

"And now the third."

This time the boy had to put forth all his strength before he succeeded in uprooting it.

"And now," said the master, "try your hand upon the fourth."

But lo! the trunk of the tall tree, grasped in the arms of the youth, could not be budged.

"This, my son, is what happens with our habits. When they are young we can do with them what we will. When they are deeply rooted, they are part and parcel of the person.

I grew up in a home where the fires of religion were always kept burning. We had very few "things," but we were rich in invisible wealth. We never ate a meal that was not begun with a word of thanksgiving. We never began a day without a family gathering at which was read a chapter of the Bible, after which there would follow a period of silence. These silences, during which all the children were hushed with a kind of awe,. were very important features of my spiritual development. There was work inside and outside the house waiting to be done, and yet we sat there hushed and quiet. I very quickly discovered that something real was taking place. We were feeling our way to the place from which living words come, and very often they did come. Some one would bow and pray so simply and quietly that God seemed close indeed. The words helped to explain the silence. We were now finding that for which we had been searching. When I first began to think of God, I did not think of him as very far away. In these simple ways my religious disposition was unconsciously formed, and the roots of my faith deeply planted. —Rufus Jones, Ph.D.

VII. Food for Thought

God send us men of steadfast will,
Patient, courageous, strong and true;
With vision clear and mind equipped,
His will to learn, his work to do.
God send us men with hearts ablaze,
All truth to love, all wrong to hate;
These are the patriots nations need,
These are the bulwarks of the state.
— F. J. Gilman.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

June 2, 1940

THE PRICE OF FRIENDSHIP

Song: "Saviour, Like a Shepherd Lead Us"
Scripture Reading: John 15:8-15; Prov. 18:24.
Song: "I've Found a Friend, O Such a Friend" Solo: I Choose Jesus"
How to win friends.

1. By kindness. (Acts 28:1-10).
2. By helping them. (Mark 2:1-12).
3. Win friends by love. (John 15:12).

Prayer Hymn: "Saviour, Teach Me Day by Day"
Sentence Prayers:

How to keep friends.

1. By being friendly. (Prov. 18:24).
2. By serving them. (John 19:25-27; Luke 22:24-27).
3. By being faithful (Ruth 1:16).
4. By being sympathethic (John 11:1-46).

Quartet Number: "What a Friend We Have in Jesus"

Questions:

1. What kind of a friend are you?
2. Are your friends able to trust you?
3. How can we be better friends?
4. If we are friends of Jesus, what will we do?
5. How should we choose our friends?
6. Name the good qualities that you want your friends to possess.
7. Do selfish people generally have friends?
8. Should loyalty to a friend and a desire to shield or to please him cause you to do wrong?

Song of Consecration: "I Would Be True".
Quotation to be read by Leader:

A faithful and true friend is a living treasure, inestimable in possession, and deeply to be lamented when gone. Nothing is more common than to talk of a friend; nothing more difficult than to find one; nothing more rare than to improve by one as we ought. A friend should be one in whose understanding and virtue we can equally confide, and whose opinion we can value at once for its justness and its sincerity.

He who has made the acquisition of a judicious and sypathizing friend, may be said to have doubled his mental resources. —Robert Hall.

Song: "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" (Have all rise and join hands during the singing of this hymn and use it as a Benediction. The pianist should continue playing this Hymn as the members leave).

(Helps for this topic were obtained from the book "Intermediate Expressional Services by N. M. Whitewell by permission of the Standard Publishing Co.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Program Suggestions for June 1940

THE BEATITUDES. Matthew 5:3-10

June 2: "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven." Matthew 5:3; "Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted." Matthew 5:4.

June 9: "Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth." Matthew 5:5; "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled." Matthew 5:6.

June 16: "Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy." Matthew 5:7. "Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God." Matthew 5:8.

June 23: "Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the Children of God." Matthew 5:9; "Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven." Matthew 5:10.

June 30: "Ye are salt." "Ye are light."

Song of the Month: "Blessed Assurance Jesus is Mine."

Verse of the month: James 1:22, "Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only."

Prayer of the month: "The Lord's Prayer."

Program for June 2, 1940

"Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven." Matthew 5:3.

"Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted." Matthew 5:4.

For the worship corner, use Hofmann picture of "The Sermon on the Mount."

To the Leaders—

There are some parts of the Bible that every child who goes to Sunday School knows. One of these is "The Beatitudes." Most children of Junior age can say them by heart, but many do not know much about what they mean. Our work with the Juniors should be meaningful and constructive, helpful to every day living. If we keep this in mind during this study it should prove worthwhile.

Spurgeon says, "The Beatitudes before us which relate to character are seven; the eighth is a benediction upon the persons described in the seven Beatitudes when their excellence has provoked the hostility of the wicked."

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude. Quiet music.
2. Call to worship. Sing in unison, all heads bowed. "The Lord is in His Holy Temple, Let all the earth keep silent before Him." Habakkuk 2:20.
3. Song. "Blessed Assurance Jesus is Mine."
4. Scripture by a Junior girl. Luke 6:20-31.
5. Prayer, by the leader.
6. Talk by a Junior boy.

True Happiness

"Every day that we live we ask God to bless us. Without his blessing we can never be happy for God's blessing is the only happiness that is really worth having. A man once purchased a ring. He bought it for pure gold, but it was only plated. After a short time the gold wore off and he found that the ring was not worth anything. It was brass. There is plenty of happiness in the world like that ring. It looks like the real thing, but it des not last, it wears off and leaves us unhappy. The only real happiness is that which comes from Jesus. Only if we are His purchased by His precious blood can we be truly happy. In the Beatitudes Jesus was talking to those who belonged to the kingdom of God.

7. Girls Chorus. "Oh Happy Day."

II. Study Period

Aim: To help the Juniors to understand what is meant by the "poor in spirit" and they that "mourn." To help him to true humility and repentance.

1. Introduction:

The word beatitude is not found in the Bible, but it means blessed and blessed means happy.

2. Junior girl may read Matthew 5:3-10, using the word happy instead of "blessed".
3. In unison repeat from memory: Matthew 5:3.
4. Talk by a Junior boy.

"What is meant by the poor in spirit"?
   a. To be gentle and humble.
   b. To feel how much we need God.

5. Talk by a Junior Girl.

"What is the promise given to the poor in spirit"?
   a. The kingdm of heaven. If we realize that we are nothing at all, that we can do nothing, but need our Lord Jesus, and ask God to forgive our sins for His sake, then we will enter the kingdom of heaven.

6. All boys repeat from memory: Matthew 5:4.
7. Talk by a Junior Girl:
   "Who are they that mourn"?
   "How can mourning bring happiness"?
8. Talk by a Junior boy:
   "What is the promise given to those who mourn"?
9. In unison read: 2 Corinthians, 7:10.

III. Mission Minutes:

1. "A Mission Spell-Down". The Juniors line up. the leader names a missionary, the Junior responds quickly with the name of the field in which that missionary labors. If incorrect he is seated. Object: To see who remains standing the longest.

IV. Closing Moments:

1. Repeat in unison verse of the month.
2. Sing in unison the Song of the Month.
3. Pray in unison The Lord's Prayer.
4. As the children leave the pianist plays, "O Happy Day".

CORRESPONDENCE

IMMANUEL MENNONITE CHURCH LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

We want to ask you, dear friends, who have so faithfully upheld the work in Los Angeles by your prayers, to join with us in thanksgiving and praise to our Heavenly Father for another blessing. Recently it was possible to purchase the vacant lot next to our church property, on 79th Street. As this street is in the business zone, we had long feared some undesirable business might locate there and become a hindrance to the church services. Furthermore, the steady growth of the church work has seemed to make it imperative that we enlarge our facilities to meet the needs. So our hearts are full of praise to God that He has kept this lot available for our use and has provided the means to secure it. Now we are looking to Him for guidance and provision that this added blessing may be a means to hasten the spread of the Gospel in this district and to bring glory to His name. All the departments of the work seem to be in a healthy spiritual state.

Another need was met recently when the church trustees arranged for a Mother's room under the balcony in the rear of the auditorium. This was brought about so quietly and speedily that we were all surprised, one Sunday morning, to find a lovely convenient little room all ready for the mothers and the babies. It is accessible both from the auditorium and from the vestibule, and while the little ones sleep or play there, the mothers can sit just outside the door and join in the service. It also makes a nice room for one of the Sunday School classes.

Last Sunday evening, April 28th, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Jantzen were our guest speakers. The Lord willing, they will leave New York May 29th for their new work in Africa. Dr. Jantzen is the third son of Rev. F. F. Jantzen, of Paso Robles, to go to the foreign mission field, one brother being at Kai Chow, Hopei, China and the other at Korba, C. P., India. All three were active in our work here while they attended the Bible Institute, and we have a warm spot in our hearts for them.

Arrangements for entertaining the Pacific District Conference at our church in June are well under way, and we expect a blessed time of fellowship.

Anna G. Stauffer, Correspondent.

"A Cure for Heart Trouble"

Ralph W. Neighbor

Whenever I have the blues; whenever I am unhappy; whenever I am worried; whenever I face problems that I cannot meet, I invariably turn to John 14 and read these words: "Let not your heart be troubled." A recent discovery of a great physician disclosed the fact that the human body has a brain in the solar plexus that is the seat of all affection and emotion. This brain is more sensitive than is the brain of the head. God is not only a cure for wrong thinking, but He is a cure for all worry. The words "let not," in the original Greek of our text, are in the imperative. God commands that you do not permit your heart to be troubled. He has given us a definite remedy for heart trouble.

Are you troubled this morning? Quit worrying friend, believe God.

First, you must believe in His existence. There is no joy and happiness for the man who does not believe in God.

A dear friend of mine, a few years ago, asked me to assist in the burial of his father. As the benedicwas offered at the grave, I put my arm around this Georgia boy and said, "Bob, you don't need to be so broken hearted, you can see your dad again." His face was white; he trembled; tears crept into his eyes; he bit his lips, and turned away. Bob did not believe in God.

When my own precious mother was buried, the undertaker said, "It is different when you bury one who has hope, than when you bury one who does not believe in God." Yes we have sorrows; but we also have hope.

We must believe in the character of God. Of all the marvelous attributes of God, I would call to your attention the foremost characteristics of God. Namely, that God is love. In the City Mission in Cleveland, a few months ago when I gave an invitation, a poor fellow came to the altar broken hearted.I heard the personal worker say to him as he put his arms of love around him, "God loves you."

This boy looked up with tears streaming down his face and said, "What did you say?"

The worker repeated, "God loves you."

"How do I know that?" questioned the boy. "My wife has died; my baby has died; I've lost my job; I've lost my home; I've lost everything and now you tell me that somebody loves me. I wish I knew that somebody did love me."

The worker replied, "I know that God loves you. 'For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son.' "

The boy looked up and said, "He must have loved me much, and if He loved me that much, I'll take Jesus as my Saviour." Yes, God loves you.

You must believe in His promises. You must claim every one.

You must believe that His character is so perfect that He could not deceive you or go back on a single promise He has made.

You must believe Him when He says that He gives you eternal life; that He forgives your sins, that you shall not perish.

You must believe that He is everywhere, that He knows all things, and that He is all powerful. Quit worrying about the future. A little girl one day riding on a train for the first time was frightened when she saw the train dashing out into the midst of the lake. But somebody had put a bridge there and the train went over the lake. Soon they crossed a river, once more she was frightened. She thought the train would jump into a great precipice, but the train went over the river bank— it was all right, someone had built a bridge. Soon she looked up with a smile and said, "I guess I might as well quit worrying, somebody has built a bridge in front of us everywhere we go." Now my friend, Jesus has brought you thus far safely, won't you quit worrying? For Jesus has built a bridge in front of you that bridges every trial and trouble—just believe in God.

The Lord said, "Believe also in me." Believe that Jesus is Deity; believe His promises; believe His works; believe His miracles. He is your faith. The only way you can believe in the Father is through the Son because the Father has sent His Son as the messenger of God to you. He is the revelation of God to you. You couldn't see God, know God, or talk to God, except through the person of a living Christ. Jesus stands between you and the Father. He said, "I go to prepare a place for you." And He said, "That where I am, there ye may be."

An old river boat Captain was dying one day, and a preacher was trying to help him to God, but somehow or other he could not explain the plan of salvation to the old Captain. Finally he said, "Listen here Captain, you have been through many a stormy sea haven't you?"

"Yes said the Captain.

"You remember, Captain, there were times when you came upon rivers where you didn't know the channels, and you had to take a pilot on board to carry you through?" "Yes," the Captain said.

"Well, Captain," said the preacher, "you are going into a new channel now, you are dying. You don't know the water. You had better take Jesus on board —He will be the pilot for your ship." A smile crept over the Captain's face. "Yes, I understand now," he said, "I will take Jesus on board and He'll pilot me right through to Glory." Jesus has gone ahead and blazed the trail to Glory. He died for your sins. "Let not your heart be troubled, ye believe in God believe also in me; in my Father's house are many mansions, if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." — Christian Readers Digest,3-40

« « JOTTINGS » »

EAST. DISTR. CONFERENCE ECHOES

An excellent spirit existed at our Conference held in the 1st Church Philadelphia, Thursday afternoon, May 2nd to Sunday afternoon May 5th. The Bible Lectures on the Theme "A Vitalized Lay Life" by Dr. A. Warkentin, of Bethel College Bible Department were most inspiring and spiritually uplifting. The Conference officers for the next year are as follows: President, Rev. Olin A. Krehbiel, V. President, Rev. John J. Plenert; Secretary, Rev. Howard G. Nyce; Treasurer, Mr. Alvin H. Alderfer.

The Eastern District Conference Retreat will again be held at University Boys Camp, at Green Lane, Pa. The Chairman is the Rev. Ernest J. Bohn. The theme will be the "Unchanging Christ".—The First Quarterly Conference for the year will be held in the East Swamp Church, Monday, June 17th, with afternoon and evening sessions.

Prof. Russell A. Lantz will again conduct a large Conference Chorus during the summer with the concert to be given about July 21st, with afternoon and evening programs. — Howard G. Nyce.

AN URGENT NEED

— An urgent call has come to our churches in America to help the Emergency Relief Board pay the immigration indebtedness of Russian Mennonite Immigrants to Canada. This sum is that which is uncollectable because of illness, death, and other reasons pertaining to some immigrants. If each church could and would make serious efforts to contribute its quota, this debt that will have to be paid sooner or later, could be disposed of.

— First Menn. Church, Upland, Calif.—The Intermediate C. E. of this church were the first group to use the new parsonage for a religious service. They met around the fire place, before the house was completed, to discuss the topic, My Church, My Pastor, and My Life. A beautiful Guest Book was presented by them to Rev. and Mrs. Hostetler. — Worker's Ex.

— WEDDING.—We are in receipt of a splendidly composed and complete Report of a wedding, such as are usually published in newspapers. But we regret that our church papers, like those of other denominations, cannot spare the space for such write-ups. However, to show our good intentions, we give here the main facts of the Report:

FUNK-RIESEN

On Thursday afternoon, in the Brudertal Church, Miss Elda Marie Funk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolf F. Funk, became the bride of Mr. Karl Riesen, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Riesen. The Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Funk, grandparents of the bride, and parents of both bride and groom preceded the couple to the altar, being attended by Rev. and Mrs. P. W. Penner, granduncle and aunt of the bride. Short messages were given in German and English by Rev. Penner and the pastor of the church, Rev. Arnold Funk. The happy couple are making their home on the Riesen farm not far from Hillsboro, which has been the family home for forty years.

— Second Church Philadelphia announces "A Church Workers' Training Institute" of four weeks, the sessions to be held on Tuesday evenings. Part of the hour will be given to lecturing and part to questions and discussions. Some of the subjects are: Characteristics of Children and Young People, The Special Problems of City Young People, How to Prepare a S. S. Lesson, How to Present a S. S. Lesson, How to Keep Order, How to Tell a Story to Children, etc.

— Three Jantzen Brothers in Mission Work.—Three sons of Rev. F. F. Jantzen, pastor of the San Marcos Menn. Church at Paso Robles, Calif. are now missionaries. Albert Jantzen, the oldest, is stationed in our field in China, another one, Aaron Jantzen, has found his place of service in our India Mission, and a third one, Dr. Richard Jantzen, has just been ordained by his father as a medical missionary in Africa. After taking unto himself a helpmate, the couple sailed for the dark continent from New York, April 29.

— Grace Mennonite Church, Lansdale, Pa.—From the Year Book of this congregation we copy the following interesting data: The pastor, Rev. Olin Krehbiel, who is in his fourth year of service, has delivered 91 sermons during 1939, conducted 3 funerals, made 322 visits, 68 of which were sick calls. The membership consists of a total of 229 on the roll. But 22 of these have been placed on the inactive list, leaving an active membership of 207. Jacob R. Fretz and Isaac F. Gehman are the deacons; Wm. Yost, John Melchoir and Wilmer Smith the trustees. Under "Summary of Financial Statements" the following are of interest: Congregational Expenses, $2850; Debt Reduction, $750; Foreign Mission (Gen. Conf.), $465; Home Missions (Gen. Conf.), $229; East. Distr. Conf. Budget, $165; Home for the Aged, $91; Bluffton College, $103; Elsie Pfitser, Ky. Mt. Mission, $114. Total expenditures, $5,276.

OVERHEARD IN THE ORCHARD

Said the Robin to the Sparrow:
"I should really like to know
Why these anxious human beings
Rush about and worry so?"

Said the Sparrow to the Robin:
"Friend, I think that it must be
That they have no heavenly Father
Such as cares for you and me."

— Elizabeth Cheney.

— Rev. Albert Claassen, pastor of the Salem Zion Church, near Freeman, S. D. visited in Kansas recently. On Friday, May 10, he participated in the wedding of one of the members of his church, Miss Louise Stucky, with Herbert Stucky, son of Mrs. Ben Stucky, of McPherson, Kansas.

— Dr. P. R. Schroeder Makes a Change.—Rev. A. Claassen also reported that Dr. P. R. Schroeder, now pastor of the Salem Menn. Church, near Freeman, S. Dakota, had accepted a call to the pastorate of the Bethel Church at Mountain Lake, Minn., his home church.

— More from a letter by Missionary P. A. Penner.— "Our furlough and our retirement is due in the spring of 1941. If this world does not again come to normal living conditions, then who knows what will be the outlook a year hence. Perhaps all travel will be a thing of the past. Or, if travel by ocean becomes impossible, is the time here to travel by air? There are at this writing little prospects for peace. God pity this prodigal world of his.

— Errors in last week's Mennonite.—Under Notes from a letter of Missionary P. A. Penner, the period (.) after the abbreviation Miss. was omitted, so the good brother was labeled as MISS P. A. Penner.—In the Program of the Northern Distr. Conf., instead of the statements: "Communion services. In charge of Rev. J. A. Thieszen" and "Communion Sermon . . . Miss. P. W. Penner, Rev. Thieszen's part was omitted and Mrs. P. W. Penner was connected with a Communion Sermon. Such errors should not occur.

— Immanuel Menn. Church, Los Angeles, Calif.— From a folder full of interesting data about this church, our space permits mention of only a few: Rev. W. Regier, the pastor, is just finishing the second year of service; A. J. Richert is moderator; Rev. H. B. Dirks, S. H. Smith, Herbert King and Chris Ummel, deacons; Herman Meyer, Frank Regehr, Jr. and A. F. Bergthold, trustees. The present membership of the congregation is 199. Starting as a small mission church, its growth has been quite remarkable. The following have served it as pastors since its inception in 1909. E. F. Grubb (8 years), M. Horsch, P. W. Penner, D. B. Hess, D. G. Dyck, A. Claassen (10 years), H. B. Dirks, D. D. Eitzen (4 years), Albert Jantzen. Sister Lavina Burkhalter as church worker during the years, did much to help build up the church. She went to her reward some months ago.

LOST POWER

I do not have any fear of being "cast out", but I do have fear of being "cast away".

MARVELOUS GRACE

Grace is God's mending material for broken articles. No article is broken beyond the repair of God.

BE OF GOOD CHEER

Discouragement is usually the root of defeat. Jesus said some hard things but never once did he discourage anyone unless it was sickness, sin or the devil.

SPRING-TIME.

The same God who teaches the trees to grow beautiful and tall, who inspires the birds to build their nests and through the mystery of instincts leads all living things along their way, is also present in my life, calling me to be true, to be honest, to be steadfast and unafraid. My life is not isolated and alone—God's power and wisdom move it; I therefore will walk bravely as His child. He said: "I will never leave or forsake thee." I will trust in Him.

— Bulletin, First Church Bluffton, O.

FOREIGN MISSION RECEIPTS FOR APRIL, 1940.

Tabor Ch., Goessel, Ks., $60.41; Friend, Donnellson, Iowa, $5.00; Menn. Ch., Wayland, Iowa, $100.00; Flatland Ch., Quakertown, Pa., $19.50; Fred Rilling, Hesston, Ks., $30.00; Alexanderwohl Ch., Goessel, Ks., $162.19; Emmanuel Church, Galva, Ks., $8.94; East Swamp Ch., Quakertown, Pa., $13.50; First Menn. Ch., Newton, Ks., 285.65; Bethel Ch., Inman, Ks., $28.00; Herald Ch., Clinton, Okla., $6.00; Menn. Ch., Arlington, Ks., $5.67; East. Dist. Menn. S. S. Union, $274.46; Salem Ch., Dalton, Ohio, $25.00; Menn. Ch., Deer Creek, Okla., $25.19; Menn. Ch., Pulaski, Iowa, $7.15; First Menn. Ch., Sugarcreek, Ohio, $50.00.

First Menn. Ch., Upland, Cal., $60.16; New Hopedale S. S., Meno, Okla., $11.75; Grace Ch., Lansdale, Pa., $61.28; Menn. S. S., Lehigh, Ks., $8.54; Menn. Ch., Lehigh, Ks, $8.62; Hereford Ch., Bally, Pa., $102.45; Wilh. Hamm, Black Creek, B. C., $5.00; First Menn. S. S., Monroe, Wash., $7.12; Bethel C. E., Marion, S. Dak., $16.45; Zion Ch .,Souderton, Pa., $100.00; Friedenstal Ch., Durham, Ks., $10.83; Hereford S. S., Bally, Pa., $30.00 Immanuel S. S., Los Angeles, Cal., $20.78; Salem Zion S. S. Young Ladies, Freeman, S. Dak., $38.58; West Swamp Ch., Quakertown, Pa., $68.00; Arapahoe Ct., Canton, Okla., $2.02; Cheyenne Ch., Longdale, Okla., $0.64; Cheyenne Church, Fonda, Okla., $0.91; Cheyeene Ch., Cantonment, Okla., $1.01; Emmanuel Ch., Pratum, Ore., $24.98; San Marcos Ch., Paso Robles, Cal., $24.08; Grace Ch., Pandora, Ohio, $45.90; Johannestal S. S., Hillsboro, Ks., $17.38.

First Menn. Ch., Bluffton, Ohio, $137.40; Christy Lauver, Richfield, Pa., $13.21; First Menn. Ch., Lima, Ohio, $20.00; Ebenfeld Ch., Montezuma, Ks., $10.00; Hebron Ch., Buhler, Ks., $25.85; First Menn. Ch., Butterfield, Minn., $39.19; Herald Ch., Clinton, Okla., $12.10; Bergthal Ch., Corn, Okla., $8.03; West Zion Ch., Moundridge., Ks., $19.00; Eden S. S., Moundridge, Ks., $426.00; Ladies S S., Delft, Minn., $15.85; Bethesda S. S., Henderson, Nebr.,$20.15; Pine Grove Ch., Bowmansville, Pa., $10.00; Rev. Aron Wiens, Deer Bark, Wash., $18.00; Zion Ch., Elbing, Ks., $100.43; Friend, Hillsboro, Ks., $5.00; Bethel Church, Perkasie, Pa., $3.38; Salem Zion Ch., Freeman, S. Dak., $75.00; New Hopedale Ch., Meno, Okla., $14.19; Christian Ch., Moundridge, Ks., $110.50; First Menn. S. S., Beatrice, Nebr., $150.00 First Menn. Boy Scout Troup, Bluffton, Ohio, $1.75; Hebron Ch., Buhler, Ks.,

$25.85; Menn. Bible Miss., Chicago, Ill., $26.49;

Bethesda Ch., Henderson, Nebr., $68.31; Bethel College Ch., No. Newton, Ks., $28.44; Second Menn. S. S., Beatrice, Nebr., $125.00; First Menn. Ch., Paso Robles, Cal., $22.84; First Menn. Miss. Soc., Phila., Pa., $10.00; Friend, Phila., Pa., $15.00; First Menn. Ch., Geary, Okla., $7.00; Zion S S., Donnellson, Iowa, $34.81; Bethel Ch., Mt. Lake, Minn., $100.00; Elizabeth Wiebe, Delft, Minn., $50.00; First Menn. Ch., Butterfield, Minn., $49.33; Bethel Ch., Dolton, S. Dak., $13.38; Friend, Eden Ch., Moundridge, Ks., $100.00; Mission Friend, Mt. Lake, Minn., $15.00; Eden Ch., Inola, Okla., $15.70; Bethel S. S., Mt. Lake, Minn., $60.00; Bergfelder Chs., Mt. Lake, and Delft, Minn., $102.08; First Menn. Ch., Pretty Prairie, Ks., $60.00; Eli Baumgartner, Berne, Ind., $100.00; First Menn. Ch., Berne, Ind., $425.36; Immanuel Y. P. C. E. Soc., Los Angeles, $15.00; Bergtal Church, Pawnee Rock, Ks., $15.22; Menn. Congr., Colonsay, Sask., $30.00; Elim Ch., Grunthal, Man., $10.00; Ensz St. Menn. Group, Scottsburgh, Sask., $30.00; S. S., Leamington, Ont., $20.00; Blumenorter S. S., Gretna, Man., $20.00; Eigenheim Ch., Rosthern, Sask., $6.00; Bergthaler S. S,. Gretna, Man., $9.50; Friend, Altona, Man., $20.00.

H. P. Lepp, Reesor, Ont., $2.50; Bergthaler S. S., Altona, Man., $8.06; Menn. Group, Halbstadt, Man., $60.00; Menn. Ch., Pulaski, Iowa, $3.32; Int. and Rent $108.25; Ex. Com. of Miss. Soc., Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Treas. $203.73. Total $4,998.49.

Balance on hand, April 1, 1940, ------------		$1,670.45
Gifts for General,------	$4,410.89
Special Support, ------	257.85
Interest and Rent, ----	108.25
Pension, --------------	48.43
Sundries, -------------	173.07	4,998.49
		$6,668.94
Paid out on Orders, --	$4,862.36
Paid out Direct, ------	217.06	5,079.42
Balance on hand, May 1, 1940,		$1,589.52

Respectfully submitted,
J. E. Regier, Treasurer.

Report of The Ex. Com. of Mission Societies for April, 1940.

For India:

Mrs. J. E. Baughman, Bloomfield, Iowa, Orphan, $15.00; Rosenart Sew. Soc., Rosthern, Sask., Orphan, $30.00; Sew. Soc., Goessel, Kans., Native Teacher, $20.00; Bergtal Sew. Soc., Corn, Okla., Native Worker, $23.00; Miss. Soc., Bedford, Pa., Biblewoman, $25.00; Sew. Soc., First Ch., Beatrice, Nebr., One Biblewoman and Three Orphans. (Bal). $45.00; Same, Champa Station, where most needed. $15.00; Oakleaf Miss. Soc., Mountain Lake, Minn., Champa St. Telephone, $10.00; Miss. Soc., Reedley, Calif., Touring Equipment, Champa St., $10.00; West Swamp Ladies Aid and Miss. Soc., Quakertown, Pa., Bauman Auto, $50.00; Zion Sew. Soc., Elbing, Kans., Korba St. where neede. $11.60; Miss. Sew. Society, Berne, Ind. Houses for Bible School Students, Janjgir St. $150.00; Woodland Miss. Soc., Warroad, Minn. Bibles, Tracts, etc. Janjgir St. $10.00; First Menn. Miss. Soc., Mountain Lake, Minn. Bibles, Tracts,, etc. Birra St. $10.00; Onecho Miss. Soc., Colfax, Wash. Indian Doctor's Salary, Basna St. $10.00; Dorcas Soc., Wayland, Iowa, Do. $20.00; Miss. Sew. Soc., Berne, Ind. Do. $20.00; Hebron Ladies Aid, Sand Beach, Sask. Do. $5.00; New-Anlage Sew. Soc., Rosthern, Sask. Do. $20.00; Miss. Soc., Reedley, Calif. Do. $10.00; Sew. Soc., Waterloo, Ont. Do. $11.25; Miss. Soc., Reedley, Calif. O. B. Room, Hospital, Basna St. $10.00; Miss. Soc., Eicher Emmanuel Ch., Noble, Iowa, Moving Boys School, $5.00; Sew. Soc., Ebenfeld Ch., Herschel, Sask. Do. $15.00; Sew. Soc., Aberdeen, Sask. Do. $15.00; Miss. Soc., Reedley, Calif. Do. $50.00.

Total $615.85

For China:

Eden Ladies Aid and Miss. Soc., Moundridge, Kans. Biblewoman, $37.50; Miss. Soc., Pratum, Ore. Biblewoman, $20.00; Bergtal Sew. Soc., Corn, Okla. Native Worker, $30.00; Dorcas Soc., Wayland, Iowa, X-Ray and Electric Light Plant, $15.00; Miss. Sew. Soc., Berne, Ind. Do. $50.00; Miss. Soc., Eicher Emmanuel Ch., Noble, Iowa, Do. $5.00; Ladies Aid, Medford, Okla. Do. $5.00; Ladies Organization of Eastern District Conf. Do. $100.00; Miss. Soc., Trenton, Ohio, Do. $5.00; Sew. Soc., Ebenfeld Ch., Herschel, Sask. Do. $19.50; Sew. Soc., Vancouver, B. C. Do. $37.50; Sew. Soc., Laird, Sask Do. $5.00; Miss. Soc., Reedley, Calif. Do. $20.00; Sew. Soc., First Ch., Beatrice, Nebr. Do. $50.20; Sew. Soc., Waterloo, Iowa. Do. $11.25; First Menn. Miss. Soc., Mountain Lake, Minn. Bibles, Tracts, etc., $10.00.

Total $420.95

Expenses of Ex. Com. and "Miss. News and Notes":

Sew. Soc., Goessel, Kans., $4.50; Miss. Soc., Eicher Emmanuel Ch., Noble, Iowa. $3.10; Mrs. Fred Fuhrman, Success, Sask. $0.25; Herold Publ. Newton, Kans. (Donation), $2.00; Mrs. M. Boschman, Carrot River, Sask. $0.50; Miss Clara Vogt, Reedley, Calif. $0.50; Katherine M. Berger and Augusta Leisy, Los Angeles, Calif. $1.75; San Marcos Miss. Soc., Paso Robles, Calif. $2.20; Bergfeld Miss. Soc., Delft, Minn. $0.50; Ladies Aid, East Freedom, Pa. $0.70; Tabitha Miss. Soc., 2nd Ch., Beatrice, Nebr. $5.25; Mrs. E. D. Voth, Fredonia, Kans. $0.25; Mrs. A. F. Schmidt, Fredonia, Kans. $0.25; Mrs. H. G. Frey, Fredonia, Kans. $0.25; Ladies Aid, Geary, Okla. $1.50; Sew. Soc., First Ch., Beatrice, Nebr. $7.10; Bergtal, Sew. Soc., Corn, Okla. $3.00. Total $33.60

Miscellaneous:

Oakleaf Miss. Soc., Mountain Lake, Minn. Foreign Miss. Gen'l Treas. $20.00; Miss. Sew. Soc., Berne, Ind. Do. $75.00; Miss, Soc., Trenton, Ohio, Do. $7.50; Sew. Soc., Ebenfeld Ch., Herschel, Sask. Do. $25.00; Miss. Sew. Soc,. Berne, Ind. Home Miss. Gen'l Treas. $25.00; Miss. Soc, Trenton, Ohio, Do. $7.50; Woodland Miss. Soc., Warroad, Minn. Do. $10.00; Sew. Soc., Sardis, B. C. Retired Miss. Pension Fund, $15.00; Mary Martha Soc., Sardis, B. C. Do. $14.15; Hoffnungsau Sew. Soc., Buhler, Kans. Do. $11.45; Miss. Soc., Wichita, Kans. Miss. Furlo Home, $27.01; Ladies Aid, Medford, Okla. Do. $10.00; Ladies Aid, Geary, Okla. Do. $10.00; S. O. Circle, Upland, Calif. Rev. B. Toews, Okla. Work where needed. $3.00; Do. Rev. R. Petter, Mont. Work where needed. $3.00; Do. Mrs. V. Petter, Mont. Work where needed. $3.00; First Menn. Miss. Soc., Mountain Lake, Minn. Gen'l Conf. Peace Com. Work. $10.00; Miss Katherine Mueller, Halstead, Kans. South American Student. $5.00; Mrs. P. W. Penner's Birthday Collection per Brudertal and 1st. Ch. Sew. Societies, Hillsboro, Kans. Rev. and Mrs. P. W. Penner's Return to India. $65.75.

Total $347.36

Grand Total $1,417.76

Gratefully acknowledged,
Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Treas.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA.

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Business Office, Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kans.
Editor .... J. R. Thierstein, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.50 .... Foreign, $2.00

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges, to J. R. THIERSTEIN, or the MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS.

~~1001 EAST BROADWAY~~
NEWTON, KANSAS
5 JA 41

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS MAY 21, 1940 NUMBER 21

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

Importance of Child Memory Work

One of the weaknesses of our public schools is that the children obtain so meagre an amount of memory treasures to take with them through life. Our school curricula are crowded with so much stuff, some good, some medium, some poor that there does not seem to be enough time left for memorizing morsels of literary and thought gems thoroughly enough that they become part and parcel of the child's moral equipment. The human mind is constantly busy feeding upon something. If the outside world, occupation, reading, study and such like do not keep it going and if there is little in its subconscious strata on which it can draw, then it can readily become the devil's workshop. Before the advance of Nazism, Germany excelled in the habitude of sending its children and youth out into the world with their memories stocked with Bible verses and passages, church hymns, psalms, worthwhile folk songs and the like. Switzerland still does that. An old uncle of the editor who was afflicted with that tiresome disease dropsy of the heart that bans a person to a sitting existence, once wrote: "What do you think I am doing now, as I sit here day and night in my grandfather's chair, when my good wife is asleep or too busy to read to me? Well, in my school days we had to memorize a good deal from the Bible, also Gellertlieder, Kirchenlieder, Psalmen, etc. Happily, these now recur to my mind, furnish food for my soul, keep me in touch with my God and Savior, and help make my thoughts purer and nobler." If such wholesome material is intelligently taught and reviewed until it "soaks in," what a boon may it become to the soul life of a child.

Memory work thus carried on can make the child Bible conscious. Long before it can read it can gradually be taught to love the Bible and God, through stories and short memory verses that it can understand. Here the mother has the wonderful opportunity of laying the foundation to a Bible-loving life. Naturally such work of memorization must then be faithfully continued to develop a Bible consciousness that the individual, when grown up can hardly lose.And with increased mental grasp many of the verses and passages will take on new and deeper meaning. Actual memorization requires frequent, intelligent repetition. Too often we stop short of that. The Sunday School, as well as the Junior and Intermediate C. E., Vacation and Weekday Bible schools offer splendid opportunity for that purpose. Here consecrated teachers and sponsors can do much to train the child in true Christian nurture. The home, the mother, must make the start, and the church auxiliaries must continue the work that the public schools fail to do. What a blessed opportunity for those who have a part in bringing up the child the Bible way!

Another Dark Spot in the U. S.

Recently Elkton in Maryland has come to be the Little Reno of the East. For a number of years easy and quick marriages have been the principal industry of this little town of 3,600 people. In 1938 the marriages performed here numbered 16,054. Long rows of people would occasionally stand in line at the county clerk's office to get their license, then to be rushed by the taxis to the parsonages, to be coupled together. It is even reported that at the height of the season some of the overworked parsons performed curb service or employed assistants. A rural pastor residing on a road leading to Elkton displayed this sign, "Get your license here and save money." Easy marriages are the chief cause of divorce. Countless betrothals frivolously hatched at drinking taverns or road houses along the highways contribute to the growing evil. And the sad part of it is that since the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment divorces have increased alarmingly, the average for the states having risen to one divorce to every three marriages according to statistics. This brands our nation with a record the worst of any nation in the world. It is the result of loose laws, an education seriously lacking in religious essentials and knowledge of the Bible, with its teaching of the sacredness of marriage. It is high time that a remedy be found. The best thing would be a thorough-going national revival to change the heart of our people, if this were possible. However, for immediate application the passage of a pretty tight uniform marriage and divorce law for the entire country, to take the place of the forty-eight varieties, could be made to stop the scandal perceptibly. A proviso could be inserted that those states which felt constrained to place the bars higher could do so, in others the national restrictions would stand. Should we not influence our representatives in Congress to work for such a law?

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

A. S. Rosenberger

SCIENTISTS AND MIRACLE

P. R. Schroeder

As an explanation of miracle by an eminent scientist, we may give here the summary of an address by Dr. J. William Dawson (afterwards Sir William Dawson) to an assembly of students. While principal of McGill University in Montreal for thirty-eight years, his continued lecturing and writing on Geology, Botany, and Zoology afforded him a wide outlook. It is helpful when a mind so thoroughly trained in Natural Science, points out the harmonious relation of the miracles of the Bible to the general laws governing God's universe as follows:

"As used in the Bible, and with reference to God, the term 'miracle' is restricted to the putting forth of divine power, superhuman in its nature, and with some spiritual end as its purpose. Miracles are not, therefore, infringements of either natural laws or spiritual laws: for both of these are included in God's kingdom under His dominion, and His kingdom is not divided; yet spiritual law overrules natural law. Miracles are special combinations and associations of these laws for special purposes.

"Miracles are thus under laws of their own, some of which can be learned from the revelation given in the Scriptures. These laws are such as the following:

"(1) Miracles depend on the exercise of knowledge and power higher than those of man.

"(2) God Himself and spiritual beings under His control employ in miraculous acts natural energies.

"(3) Higher laws and energies control and supercede lower laws and energies in such operations, just as the vital forces in plants and animals modify the laws of non-living material.

"(4) Miracles appear only at critical times in the career of peoples or the life of individuals in the furtherance of God's great program of salvation.

"(5) Although miracles are entirely subject to divine control, they may be influenced by human faith and volition under the limitations mentioned; for faith can remove mountains.

"The Scriptures also speak of the latter days, in which prophecy points to events that would seem to be altogether miraculous, in so far as we know beforehand. The great crisis at the end of the age may be characterized by such events; and the Second Coming of Christ will be a great miracle. We may be sure that the miracles of those days will be suited to the time, though different in kind to any which preceded them, and probably greater in scope and magnitude."

—From an article in the Jewish Missionary Magazine by W. Bell Dawson, D.Sc., F.R.S.C. Laureate of the Academy of Sciences, Paris.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

CHINESE NEW YEAR

The Chinese New Year season affords abundant opportunities for sowing the Gospel seed. From the first day of the year until the sixteenth, practically all work is suspended, shops are closed and the festive spirit prevails. At this time folks have time to listen, and missionaries have learned to avail themselves of this opportunity.

My first Chinese New Year at K'ai Chow station made lasting impressions upon me, and in order to give you a more intimate glimpse of Chinese life and customs, I would like to share a few of these first impressions with you.

The Chinese are all eager to see the home of the "foreigner," and it holds much of interest and amazement to them, no matter how simple it may be. That is easy to understand after visiting the homes of the Chinese. So a custom has been established here on the compound, of opening one or two of the homes and permitting everyone who is interested, to enter our home. Careful plans are made for this day, with the aid of the Bible women, so that the best possible use is made of the opportunity to witness on that day. It was decided to open the S. F. Pannabecker home, having the women enter that home, with the Bible women to preach to them, and to have the children assemble in the house occupied by Miss Goertz and myself.

The day dawned bright and pleasant. An early breakfast was eaten, furniture rearranged, benches carried over from the church to provide seats for everyone, and then we were ready. The first group entered and for a half hour, with the aid of pictures and songs, the Gospel story was told to them. Then they were led out a side door and the next group brought in the front door. It was impossible to get an accurate count of the number who were in our home between 8:30 and 2:00, but 500 would be a fair estimate.

A peanut scramble for the children was also a part of the program, and was my contribution to the day's activities. A glimpse into our home at the end of the day would have filled you with horror and disgust, for the amount of dirt and mud which can be carried into the house by the cloth shoes which the Chinese wear, is almost unbelievable. I'll confess that to a new missionary it was not an altogether welcome sight either, but when one features that many hear the Gospel story for the first time in this way, and that it has been proved that much of the seed sown on this day bears fruit, one soon forgets the dirt and inconvenience.

Another method which is used to spread the Gospel during this season, is to take the Gospel tent into certain villages and preach for several weeks. During the school vacation, the tent was pitched in a village about 8 li from us and some of the Bible School students carried on the work there. I had the opportunity to walk out to see the work that was being done and I rejoiced to see the number of interested listeners. And as usual, there was a large crowd of children, who were eagerly learning the choruses and Bible verses taught to them. As a result of the tent preaching, there were 30 who expressed their desire to know more about the "Jesus doctrine," and a large percentage of them are now attending the instruction class. Praise His Name!

At the Chinese New Year season I was also impressed with the friendliness of the people and their eagerness to have us come to their home to share a meal with them. When one considers their poverty you are quite reluctant to eat their food, yet cannot deny them the pleasure they derive from it. For five successive days I struggled with chopsticks, eating Chinese food in some humble home, sometimes with the doorway crowded with curious neighbors, to add to my embarrassment. But even that was used as an opportunity to witness for Christ, for Miss Goertz, whom I had accompanied on such occasions, would lead in some chorus, talk to the pepole and have prayer before we left the home.

Many of the customs and practices at Chinese New Year seem as "queer" to us as our celebrations appear to them, but we as missionaries rejoice because of the abundant opportunities which this season of the year brings to us. Please pray that the Holy Spirit may water the seed which has been sown, so that it may bear fruit to His honor and glory. Etta R. Davis

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

EVANGELISM

"THE GOSPEL AS NEWS"

by W. F. Unruh

The Gospel as News. Although it has been known for nineteen hundred years it is still news in a very real sense. The Old Gospel becomes fresh and new with each fresh set of people to whom it is presented because of its application to their particular situation and need. The time and circumstances to which the news are related contribute to make it fresh and vital. Under certain circumstances the Gospel message will be just what people want to hear because it promises help. "Good News" they call it. It is in this sense that the Gospel is preeminently good news. Some person, for instance, may have been brought into a distressing conflict of mind through the war news propaganda. He loves peace and would give anything for it, but the war news makes him feel that people are bleeding for the ideals which are his own. For him to hear somebody simply quote the sayings of Jesus on how to overcome evil and conquer the world for God will come to him as "good news", because it gives him the assurance that help is on the side of the Eternal Victor when he suffers for peace rather than fight for it. Another person though well situated in life may be extremely unhappy because he finds no challenging purpose in a life which urges him on to make the most out of life. He finds life drab for lack of impelling loyalty. To such a one it will come as "good news," indeed, when he hears a Christian friend say with a ring of jubilant satisfaction that from the day that he gave his life to Christ, life has become one great venture which holds ever new experiences with God. Still another person may be struggling under the fear of eternal condemnation not knowing how he may obtain assurance of God's forgiveness. To such a person a friend's testimony that he found release and an abiding peace with God when he put his whole-hearted trust in Christ's Atonement for sin and surrendered himself to the Lord, will come as "good news" because it shows the way out. And thus the circumstances and needs of various people make the old Gospel fascinating and living "news".

A COLLEGE STUDENT'S MEDITATION ON Psalm 103

David opens his song with this desire: I want to think about the great Creator of this world. I want to think about the opportunities that He has given to me.

He does not hold my misdeeds against me. He forgives me and allows me to get again in right relationship with Him.

When sick, if in body, mind or soul, He gives me a touch which gives me a new perspective on life.

He gives meaning to life and gives me the opportunity to find this meaning. Life is not just living from day to day, and living only for self. It is something great, far reaching and real. He has given me a life, a mind to think, and a world of great opportunities. Can I ask for anything greater?

He does not hold our wrong deeds against us. God is not like we who so often take revenge in harsh words and actions. He is willing to forget these and look at us as personalities, worthy of doing better. He is willing to separate us from our sins, as far as the east is from the west.

To Him our lives are very short. Just like a flower that blossoms in a meadow, and with a breath of breeze is gone, never to be seen again.

But God is everlasting. His loyalty and interest do not stop with one life, but go on for all generations.

God is the great Thinker of this universe. He has orderly laws which rule the world. I want to think about God's rules, and I want to obey Him. I want to think about the Eternal-all of his works, everything He has done, in every sphere of this universe.

Frances Ewy—From "Worker's Exchange"

The Church and Church Membership

J. H. Langenwalter

Our word church comes from a word which means to be called out of. When anyone was called or invited to become a member of some special group, he was said to have been called from the larger group to the smaller and this then became his Church.

When people became Christians, they were said to have been called from the spirit of the world to follow the Spirit of God. All who did this were called the Church of Jesus or the Church of Christ.

We sometimes speak of the invisible Church. That means all people who have chosen to follow Christ instead of living for themselves. That is the real Church. It is a movement and not an organization. Jesus caused the Church to come into being but He never organized what we would call a visible Church.

A place of worship or service to God is also called a Church. This naturally follows when there are at least a few who want to lead a Christ-centered life. They want and need to get together for worship.

People need the Church. They need companionship which tends to develop the best which is within them. They also need the encouragement of a group of worshipers in order to face temptations more successfully and to meet the obligations of life more satisfactorily. The visible Church most nearly represents the invisible Church, also called the Kingdom of God. For that reason it can be of great help and encouragement to those who unite with it. The work of the Church affords some of the finest training for life which can be found anywhere. The fact that there are those who belong to some organization called the Church but do not give evidence that they belong to the real Church is to be regretted, but it does not diminish the value of the Church to those who really are called away from the spirit of the world to the Spirit of God.

The Church needs people. Jesus left all of His work to people. That was taking a great risk. If they did not do the work, it would not be done—the work which He had come to establish! He seems to have thought that there would be those who would understand His motive sufficiently to really look upon His work as a challenge to them to such an extent that they would take it as seriously as He had undertaken it and had presented it to them. What greater challenge can there be? That is the great work and opportunity of the Church as Christ thought of it. Does that not make the Church worthy of the best that we can be and do and give?

The Church teaches men to live through words, deeds and the example of the lives of those who have really been called away from the spirit of selfishness to the Spirit of Christ, Everyone who loves Christ has a share in this. We are teachers in reality if not in name and probably do not know more than a small percentage of those whom we teach.

From Reedley Menn. Church Bulletin.

SERMON SKETCH

CHRIST OUR EXAMPLE

"Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus" (Phil. 2:5).

All examples suggest perfection, a something worth following or worthy of consideration. Christ is the standard of man's living. He is worthy of our best efforts to be like Him. We are not saved by following His example but He becomes our pattern after we are saved. He is not only an example; but He is our life, and indwells by His Spirit.

He is our example in obedience. "My meat is to do the will of Him that sent me" (John 4:34).

"Put up thy sword into the sheath, the cup which my Father has given, shall I not drink it?" (John 18:11).

"For as by one man's disobedience many were made sinners, so by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous" (Rom. 5:19).

Obedience is essential to salvation. It is highly pleasing to God.

He was faithful in that he faithfully carried out the plan of God. He never sought approval, He did his duty and desired faithfully to fulfill all righteousness. "He was a merciful and faithful high priest" (Heb. 2:17).

"If we confess our sins he is faithful to forgive our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (I John 1:7).

Then He also was prayerful. He was a living example of prayer. He would leave his best friends and retire to the desert to pray. Sometimes He took some with him. He was known to spend whole nights in prayer.

He was diligent. "In the morning rising up a great while before it was day, he went out and departed into a mountain to pray" (Mark 1:35).

"Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business" (Luke 2:49).

He never was idle, always busy.

He was pure. The only sinless man that ever lived, demands justly that we shall be like Him, "As he was, so are we."

The purity of His life is an incentive to holy living. Man strives to meet the demands of God. "Without holiness no man shall see the Lord."

He was steadfast. Sin and suffering had no effect on Him. Many tried to go with Him but failed. He never faltered, murmured nor complained of his lot. He wept over others.

Then He gives the Spirit of enduement. The spirit of the Lord was upon Him. He depended on the Holy Ghost in His ministry. If He needed the Holy Ghost in His ministry, how much more are we in need of Him? Man fails with anything else.

—From "Gospel Banner"

A Valuable Pamphlet for Study Groups

The Department of International Justice and Good Will of the Federal Council of Churches has recently published a very valuable pamphlet of thirty-two pages, entitled: THE CHURCHES AND INTERNATIONAL SITUATION, which is to be "A Guide for Study and Discussion of—

The Ecumenical Movement and the Peace and War Problem.

The Churches and American Policy

Missions and the World Crisis

The Conscientious Objector in War Time

Responsibility of the Churches in Relieving Suffering Caused by War

The Local Church and the World Crisis

A fair though brief example of the nature of the contents of the pamphlet is one of the subtopics of the division "The Church and American Policies" which is as follows:

COLONIES

"Many hold that the time has come for the churches to declare their commitment to the principle of freedom for subject peoples which involves the ultimate freeing of colonies and the drastic modification of the whole colonial system. The abolition of chattel slavery was one of the great steps forward in human society. Should not this same principle be applied to groups of men? Many believe so.

The Philadelphia Conference concurred in the judgment of the Geneva Conference of ecumenical leaders (1939) that 'the lack of colonial government is no longer one of exclusive national concern or national interest. . .' 'We believe,' said the Philadelphia Conference, 'that the principle of eventual freedom for all peoples is not only the recognition of an essential right but is also a prerequisite to the creation of that sense of justice and goodwill without which we cannot hope to rid the world of war.'

QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION

1. Is the possession of colonies an aid ora hindrance to world peace? State your reasons.
2. What effect has the present colonial system on national prestige?
3. To what extent do you think today's wars are motivated by a desire to acquire colonies?
4. How has the mandate system of administering colonial areas worked out in practice? Is a new system desirable? If so, what are your suggestions?
5. If the colonial system were to be abolished would or would not this action remove the incentive and excuse for war?
6. What bearing has the Christian Gospel on the question of subject peoples?

AN EVER PRESENT HELP

A purple dusk is on the lake of Galilee
A boat, a net . . . some fishermen appear to be
At humble toil, they cast and cast most patiently,
No draught of fish throughout the night spent on the sea.

Rose dawning breaks, and from the distant shore they hear
A voice across the waters ringing full and clear
"Cast forth your empty net upon the other side"
How quickly all obey . . . all weariness they hide.

The catch of fish is so immense that weak nets break
And their reward is greater than frail boats can take
How often do the boats of men come back unfilled
Because a voice they failed to heed. . . at last was stilled.

Mrs. Amanda Friesen, Doland, S. Dak.

MENNONITE SONG FESTIVAL

Plans for the Mennonite Song Festival which is to be held June 2, in the Bethel College Bowl are progressing nicely. There will be two mass choir rehearsals, one May 26 at 2 P. M. and the other June 1, at 7:45 P. M. in the Bethel College Chapel. At this time the chorals under the direction of Prof. W. H. Hohmann will be practiced. The following chorals are being submitted for those choirs or individuals who wish to sing them over before the combined rehearsals:

Gesangbuch:

"Allein Gott in der Hoeh' sei Ehr' ". No.13, verses 1 and 2.

"Ich Bete an die Macht der Liebe" No. 305, verses 1 and 2.

"Mir Ist Erbarmung Widerfahren" No. 258, verses 1 and 5

"Wachet Auf, Ruft uns die Stimme" No. 540, verses 1 and 2

Mennonite Hymn Book:

"How Brightly Shines the Morning Star" No. 134, verses 1 and 4

"Now Thank We All Our God" No. 383, verses 1 and 3

"Leave God to Order All Thy Ways" No. 226, verses 1 and 4

"The Duteous Day Now Closes" No. 22, verses 1 and 2

All singers are invited to take part in the singing of these beautiful old hymns, regardless of participation in any other part of the Song Festival. If you enjoy singing, come and join us.

Arrangements to use the Lindley Hall in Newton have been made in case of rain.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

June 2, 1940

TESTING CONDUCT BY ITS USEFULNESS

(A Principle of Temperate Living)

Ezekiel 15:1-6, Matt. 5:13-16; 7:16-20, I Cor. 10:6,7

Introduction

It is very fitting that habits and actions be tested by their usefulness. If they do not serve any beneficial purpose, they should be left undone and useful ones cultivated instead. Many have cultivated distinctly harmful habits of conduct which may give temporary pleasure, but in the long run they are a definite injury. The formation of good habits has much to do with advancing our physical and spiritual well-being. Good habits are most easily formed in youthful years. However a person can break a bad habit and form a good one at any time in life with divine help, and honest determination. We should never regard ourselves as utterly helpless under the power of habits. Christ will help us if we ask in good faith.

Christians to be Useful vs. 1-6

Ezekiel uses the vine tree as a parable to show the uselessness of Israel apart from a manner of life and conduct that glorifies God. Vine wood is unfitted for usefulness in comparison with other trees. It is crooked, brittle and soft. Its only use is fruit-bearing. The wood itself is good only for fuel (vs. 2-4). A piece rescued from the fire is even more useless than before (v 5). Israel had merit in the beginning, being planted of God and ordained to bring fruit. Here the prophet pictures Israel after miserably failing, and being burned at both ends. Even before the days of the separation and captivity, Israel was a disappointment to God and was fruitless. Their conduct was unfruitful in good works and God gave them into captivity.

Christians as Salt and Light vs. 13-16

Christians are like salt in keeping human society from spoiling, and giving a proper savor to it. They exert a wholesome influence over the whole life of the community. A Christian who loses his savor by compromising with the world, becomes useless as a good influence (v 13). Christ has imparted some of His light to His followers and He expects them to shine so that men can see the light. We are not to parade our virtues but simply to manifest them to God's glory, not to ours.

True and False Prophets vs. 16-20

Jesus cautions us to beware of false prophets who masquerade under the guise of truth. Their fruits are the evidence of what they really are. People are judged by their actions, by the fruits of their lives. When the fruit is good, the life must be good. A holy,godly life is always the fruit of a regenerate heart. The corrupt tree is worthless, may be injurious, and is cut down, cast into the fire. Evil institutions, like the saloon of our day, should be destroyed. God will cut down the person who continues to bear evil fruit in his life.

Harmful Habits—

No sane person will contend that the alcoholic drink habit is helpful to any one. Nor can the cigarette habit lay any claim to being helpful. Much of pure "bunk" appears in the cigarette ads as we see them. Gambling easily becomes a mania. It is not a productive business. Whether it be gambling on the Board of Trade or in some other form, its general effect is more harmful than helpful.

Helpful habits are all such that help to promote our spirituality and help us to use our time and talents to self and to others and such should be cultivated. Habits of daily devotion minister to our spiritual well-being. All habits that help to produce useful fruit in life-conduct are helpful. The supreme test of a life is its usefulness.

Pacific District Conference Tentative Program

June 6-9, 1940

Immanuel Mennnite Church, Los Angeles

Thursday, June 6

Forenoon - Ministers' Retreat

8:30 - 9:30 Prayer and Praise Service
Leader: Rev. W. A. Regier, Los Angeles
9:30 - 11:30 Round Table Discussion
1. The Effective Mid-Week Service
Leader: Edgar Toews, Reedley
2. The Program of Evangelism
Leader: Homer Leisy, Dallas, Oregon
3. Pastoral Calling
Leader: John Glanzer, Shafter, Calif.

Afternoon - Workers' Retreat

1:30 - 4:00 Round Table Discussion
1. Dealing with the Personal-Problems of Individuals
Leader: D. D. Eitzen, Los Angeles
2. Outstanding Experiences in Religious Work During the Past Year (Volunteer three-minute talks)
Leader: Lester Hostetler, Upland

Evening - 7:50

Song Service
Scripture and Prayer
Address of Welcome—W. A. Regier, Los Angeles
Response—Harley King, Colfax, Washington
Announcements
Certification of Delegates
Special Music
Conference Sermon—P. A. Wedel, Aberdeen, Idaho.
President of the Conference
Appointment of Committees—Adjournment

Friday - June 7

Forenoon

8:30- 9:00—Prayer Service
9:00-11:30—Business

Reports of Committees and Officers
Complimentary votes
Secretary—Homer Leisey, Dallas, Oregon
Treasurer—J. C. Jantz, Odessa, Wash.
Field Secretary—Emma Ruth, Reedley
Bethel College—L. J. Horsch, Upland
Evangelistic Committee and Portland Mission—S. S. Baumgartner
Educational Committee—Chairman of Ed. Com.
11:30-12:00—Address—M. M. Lehman, Monroe, Wash.

Afternoon

1:30-2:00—Song Service and Devotions
Scripture and Prayer—J. M. Franz, Albany, Ore.
2:00-3:15—Unfinished Business
Special Music
3:15-4:00—Address—Edmund Miller, Lind, Wash.

Evening

7:30-9:00—Women's Missionary Program
Chairman: Mrs. Edgar Toews, Reedley

Saturday - June 8

Forenoon

8:30-9:00—Prayer Service
Leader: P. D. Unruh, Deer Park, Wash.
9:00-11:30—Unfinished Business—Budget for 1940-41
11:30-12:00—Address - The Church and Peace - L. J. Horsch, Upland

Afternoon

1:30-2:00—Song Service
Scripture and Prayer — David Schultz, Paso Robles
2:00-3:00—Unfinished Business
Adoption of Budget
3:00-5:30—Recreation (Local Church in charge)

Evening

7:00-8:00—Saengerfest—Leader: Lester Hostetler, Upland
8:00-8:45—Address (Speaker to be selected by the local church.)

Sunday - June 9

Forenoon

Sunday School
Special Classes for Conference delegates
Those interested may visit classes or departments of the Immannuel Sunday School
Morning Worship—Arrangements by the local church

Afternoon

Sunday School and C. E. Program, arranged by the Field Secretary, Emma Ruth.

Evening

7:00-8:00—Christian Endeavor Program
8:00-8:45—Consecration Service — Homer Leisey, Leader
Closing Remarks by the President, P. A. Wedel

—A Word to Correspondents: This is the time of the year when correspondence is apt to be lagging due to the busy time people have or, possibly also, to slips in memory. May we suggest that more of our correspondents make use of the cards sent them, particularly those in rural churches. Take a card, jot down a statement or two, reporting happenings that may be of interest or of some value to readers at a distance as well as nearer home. Use the envelopes for larger reports.

Eastern District Retreat

at University Boy's Camp, Green Lane, Pa.

THEME: The Unchanging Christ

For the past twelve years a group of young people from the churches of the Eastern District Conference have come together for a retreat. Every year, since the first retreat was held at the University Girl's Camp with 54 retreaters in attendance, has shown an increase in attendance and interest.

Last year, for the first time in the history of our retreat, two retreats were held, one for the older group of young people and another for the high school age group. This arrangement worked out so satisfactorily that we will again pursue this method this year. Each group of young people will meet on a week-end one week apart.

Many of the young people of our district who have seen the vision of a day when we may have our own retreat ground beautifully developed, have been putting forth time and effort in that direction. An age old truth is, the things we have worked hard for will be the things which are most appreciated. Most assuredly this will be true of the new Retreat Grounds when further developed by our young people.

Retreat Committee:

Rev. Ernest J. Bohn, Chm.; Emma M. Vanworth, Sec.; DeWitt Temple, Treas.; William H. Shelly, Clara Bishop, Norman Bergey.

SENIOR YOUNG PEOPLE'S WEEK-END

RETREAT — June14-16, 1940

For Whom? For those above high school age and any interested adults.

Cost: Five dollars total—registration fee, $0.75; board and lodging, $4.25. Payable to your local booster.

Leaders

Prof. A. E. Kreider, Professor of Bible, Bethel College; Dr. E. S. Johnson, Professor of History at Hartford Theol. Seminary; Rev. J. J. Plennert, Pastor, First Menn. Church, Philadelphia; Rev. Erland Waltner, Pastor, Second Men. Church, Philadelphia; and Rev. W. C. Voth, Missionary, Tamingfu, China.

In Charge of Singing: Mr. Wm. H. Shelly, (office worker).

In Charge of Recreation: Mr. Ernest Leitzel, (teacher).

Camp Directer: Walter Temple, (railroad man).

Girls' Counsellor: Mrs. Erland Waltner, (pastor's wife).

Course A

"The Prophets and their Message," Prof. A. E. Kreider

Course B—Electives

No. 1 Mennonite History, Dr. Johnson.

No. 2 The Doctrine of Non-Resistance and its Application, Rev. Plennert.

No. 3. Training for Sunday School Work, Rev. Waltner.

HIGH SCHOOL YOUNG PEOPLE'S WEEK-END RETREAT — June 21-23, 1940

For Whom: For those of high school age and others interested.

Cost: Same as for Senior group.

Leaders

Prof. A. E. Kreider, Professor of Bible, Bethel College; Andrew Shelly, Student, Hartford Theol. Seminary; W. C. Voth, Missionary, Tamingfu, China; Rev. Erland Waltner, Pastor, Second Menn. Church, Philadelphia.

Song Leader, Recreation Leader, Camp Director, Girls' Counsellor same as for Senior group.

Course A

"The Prophets and their Message," Prof. A. E.

"The Prophets and their Mesage," Prof. A. E. Kreider.

Course B

Religious Problems, Andrew S. Shelly.

Oklahoma Convention

to be held May 26 and 27, 1939

in the H. S. Auditorium at Clinton, Okla.

Convention Theme: The Abundant Life of the Christian

Sunday Morning

Services will be arranged for and led by the Bergthal Church of Corn.

Sunday Afternoon

Leader—Rev. Herbert Miller

Every church is asked to be represented by a choir or musical organization. Rev. Miller has definite plans for the program. The order in which the different groups will appear is as follows: 1. Bergthal, 2. Perryton, 3. Carnegie, 4. Deer Creek, 5. Inola, 6. Gotebo, 7. Enid, 8. Goltry, 9. Topic: "The Value or Fruit of Music in Christian Service," Rev. Albert Schmidt, 10. Hydro, 11. Herold, 12. Medford, 13. Meno, 14. O. B. A., 15. Orienta, 16. Sichar, 17. Turpin, 18. Taloga, 19. Geary, 20. Combined Choirs.

Sunday Evening

Maine Theme: "Is the Christian Life a Successful Life?"

Chairman: Ernest Schmidt of Bergthal.

1. Song Service, 15 minutes—Selma Jantz, Inola.
2. Song—Bergthal
3. Theme: "The Source of Christian Living" (10 minutes) - Marvin Eck, Goltry.
4. Solo—Lillian Ratzlaff, Meno
5. Reading—Enid.
6. Song—Geary
7. Theme: "How Can We Make the Christian Life a Success" (10 min.)—Carnegie.
8. Song—Gotebo
9. Sermon (20 minutes) — Convention Speaker
10. Closing Prayer—Albert Unruh, Meno.

Monday Morning

1. Opening—Rev. Menno Kliewer
2. Song—Herold
3. Convention Sermon (20 minutes) — Rev. Solomon Mouttet.
4. Song—Sichar
5. Sermon—Convention Speaker.—6. Song—Meno
7. Business Meeting (Order of business to be announced.)
8. Sermon (20 minutes)—Rev. P. E. Frantz.

Monday Afternoon

1. Opening—H. N. Harder
2. Song—O. B. A.
3. Talk: "Religious Education" — Rev. H. Hege
4. Report from O. B. A. — 5. Song—Inola
6. Sermon—Convention Speaker
7. Report of the Resolutions' Committee

Monday Evening

1. Song Service—Mrs. Adam Mueller
2. Opening by Leader—Bergthal
3. Roll Call by Societies
4. Song—Sichar Society
5. Topic: "Various Ways the Sewing Society Can be of Service in the Community"—Mrs. P. E. Frantz, Geary
6. Selected Playlet — Herold
7. Talk by Missionary (to be arranged).
8. Song—Mission Circle, Meno.
9. Remarks—Mrs. H. H. Wedel, Gotebo
10. Sermon—Convention Speaker

Ernest Voth, Sec'y.

EVERYDAY LIVING

By Joseph Fort Newton

One thing is wise to remember and practice—if you think little of a person, say as little as you think.

A man who has no one to love him is poor indeed; but the man who loves no one is a hopeless bankrupt pauper.

The art of living together is the most difficult of all arts, said Emerson; after ages of trial we have not mastered it.

No matter how long and loudly we pray, not many of us do enough good turns along the way to make ourselves dizzy.

Hitler is the tempermental prima donna of world politics; he believes his own publicity—Goebbels does not.

If pepole were only wise enough and kind enough to keep their own counsel, they would not need to employ one.

"Jest messing 'round," is how Will Rogers used to describe his talks, and alas, that tells the truth about most of us.

We take snap judgment, act hastily, make a bonehead blunder, and, to get out from under, call it bad luck!

In a modern Pilgrim's Progress, if only we had a Bunyan to write it, Mr. Easy-going would be a central figure.

If people would only use half as much brain and heart in their religion as they do in other things, they would be plainer.

"Man, what is this, and why art thou despairing? God will forgive thee all but they despair." wrote a wise poet. —Christian Advocate, April 18.

R. Weinbrenner
Editor
Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen
Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers
Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

CRUCIFIXION

Golgotha's journey is an ancient way
That leads from Rome's outrageous judgment gate
To modern slums and trenches, where we pray
To Him whose heart is breaking with our hate.

We build His crosses now of steel and lead,
And pierce His body with the bayonet;
Behind the trenches watch His blood flow red
In flaming anguish that we soon forget.

Lord Caesar's high tribunal, Martian-wise,
Spits in His face—Rome never was more rude!—
And in the name of freedom still denies
To Christian men the right of rectitude.

For greed and self-enthronement are the same,
And Jesus bleeds in every clan and clime;
All down the ages with its lashing shame
He bears the insult—Love His only crime.
Hugh O. Isbell

ALL RIGHT—THEN WHY FIGHT?

War is the blackest, least excusable, most damnable crime against mankind and God almighty.—American Legion Magazine.

Nothing has ever been decided by war that could not be decided without it; and if decided after the war, why not before? — General U. S. Grant.

It is the business of the churches to make my business impossible.— Field Marshall Lord Haig.

If my soldiers would think for themselves not one would remain in the ranks. — Frederick the Great of Prussia.

Lord Kitchener told me that he had fought with the French in the Franco-Prussian war and had spent most of his life in soldiering, but that he had never seen a war out of which any permanent peace had come; and that while fighting brought out great individual heroism, it was futile in settling great international disputes. — Lady Oxford, "More Memories."

We won some things from the war that were not on the program. For example, we had a complete demonstration of the fallacy of the old tradition that preparedness prevents war. That is worth something. — George Dern, later Secretary of War.

NON-VIOLENCE

To render evil for good, that is to resemble a devil.
To render evil for evil, that is to resemble animals.
To render good for good, that is to be a man.
To render good for evil, that is to resemble God.

Requoted from Fellowship

AN OPPORTUNITY

The American Friends Service Committee work camps provide opportunities for men and women of college age and older to live, work, and study for eight weeks of the summer in America's "distressed" and "problem" areas. Camps will be held this summer at Flint, Michigan; the western Pennsylvania coal fields; Soddy, Tennessee; the Macedonis Cooperative Community in Georgia; the Delta Cooperative Farm in Mississippi; the Merom Institute in southern Indiana; Delano, Calif.; the Fifth Ward in Chicago; North Weare, N. H.; and in connection with cooperative developments at Cooperstown, New York; Scotts Run, West Virginia; and Cloverdale, Mich. Educational leaders will include: Douglas V. Steere, Don E. Smucker, Laurence T. Hosie, Richard Gregg, Homer L. Morris, Kenneth Holland, Clarence E. Pickett, Raymond Winson, Claude Shotts and Elmore Jackson. For further information and application blanks write to: Elmore Jackson, Secretary of the Work Camps, American Friends Service Committee, 20 South 12th Street, Philadelphia, Penn.

Fellowship

NEWS FROM THE EASTERN DISTRICT

The 45th ANNUAL CONVENTION of the Eastern District Mennonite Young Peoples Union will convene Memorial Day, Thursday, May 30th, at the East Swamp Mennonite Church, Quakertown, Penn. The theme is, "Let us go on—Glorifying God."

Officers and members of the E. D. Y. P. Union were well represented at the closing Sessions of the Eastern District Conference on Sunday afternoon, May 5th, 1940, at First Church, Phila. Wm. Shelly the song leader, and William Slimm, who lead in the Devotions, represented Second Church of Phila., while Grace Moyer, with an enjoyable reading and Samuel Reiff, with a vocal solo brought their contributions from Allentown and Schwenksville, respectively. The Retreat work was summed up and Convention date and place announced by the various chairmen. Rev. A. L. Murray, pastor of the Lansdale Baptist congregation delivered the principal address.

The following young folks have been elected as members of the newly established Retreat Grounds Board, of the Eastern District Conference: Norman Geissinger, Upper Milford; Clarence Kooker, Flatland; Rev. Harold Burkhalter, East Swamp; DeWitt Temple, Germantown, Phila.; Rev. Olin Krehbiel, Lansdale; and Alvin Alderfer, Schwenksville. The objective of the Camp, which has been called MENNOLAN, is to provide a suitable place of Retreat for the development of Christian Character and leadership through Retreats, recreational fellowship, Bible Conferences and the various Conference activities.

Senior Department

Senior C. E. Topic for June 9, 1940

LOOKING AT YOUTH AROUND THE WORLD

Main Topic: Youth in World-Wide Fellowship. Rom. 1:8-16

I. Worship Service

1. Song: "A charge to keep I have," "Am I a Soldier of the Cross," "Stand up, stand up for Jesus."
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer.
3. A 15 minute period of group singing by the "Youth," (the whole C. E. group).
4. Offering for mission project.

II. Leader's Introduction

The Christian Endeavor movement, itself, is a world-wide fellowship of Christian youth. There are Christian Endeavor societies in nearly every land.

Now, more than ever before, it is important for Christian youth to be banded together in a world-wide fellowship in the interest of peace, of church unity, of missions, of justice. Local groups should feel themselves to be part of a world-embracing movement.

After all is said, we must realize that permanent peace will not be achieved until youth learn to be sympathetic, understanding, appreciative, forbearing, trustful and trustworthy, in all their mutual relationships. They need, above everything, to have goodwill tward one another. A peace cannot be permanent that is not based upon goodwill.

Missions, when properly carried on, are a means of fostering goodwill among the nations. We can hardly distrust or hate a people among whom our representatives are working as Christ's commissioners.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Youth in preparation, 2 Kings 6:1-4.
2. A peaceful alliance, 1 Kings 5:7-12.
3. First missionaries to Jews, Matt. 10:1-8.
4. First missionaries to Gentiles, Lk. 10:1-9.
5. Fellowship in grace, 1 Cor. 1:4-9.

IV. For Discussion

1. Make a comparison of the general condition of youth in Christian and non-Christian lands. Note the outstanding differences and ask yourself why they exist.
2. What can the "Youth" of our church do to foster and promote "fellowship" in the world?
3. Is there some local need, or some cause, which we as a "group of youth" can tackle?

Facts for Study

The youth of today make the world of tomorrow. All our institutions of society, the home, school, church, state, business, and industry, will soon be in the hands of those who are now young people.

Service wrought with love for him,
"Jesus calls
To a life of fruitful service,
Not to be a passing fancy
Or a changing whim."

"Jesus calls
To a life of consecration
And a passion for the lost,
Thinking not of self or pleasure,
Counting not the cost."

"Jesus calls
To a life of prayer and giving,
Faithfulness and all things true,
To a life of daily blessing,
Do you hear God's call to you?"

Young people have often accomplished the seemingly impossible. By a common purpose, a common loyalty, a united enthusiasm wonders have been wrought. Think of the hay-stack meeting of those young men whose devotion started a big missionary movement. Think of the youth on our college campuses today who develop a feeling of fellowship to build up the Kingdom of God as they go out to work in the various communities. Think of the fine spirit in some of our C. E. groups who unitedly are a force for the uplift in their home community. Think of the youth of our land and of other lands who push the cause of peace through the Youth Peace Movement.

Consecration it takes, and honest sincere work.

There are still causes that challenge the very best there is still causes that challenge the very best there there is in youth, and nothing makes for fellowship like united work for a common cause.

VI. Illustrations

Who is to be included in the world-wide fellowship? Are you famliiar with the dream of an artist, who, after finishing his painting, rested and slept? As he lay asleep he saw a man cross the room, take a brush, and touch the picture here and there. "Stop!" cried the artist, "you are spoiling my work." But it was Jesus himself, and he was making more beautiful the various faces—some yellow, some brown, some red. The artist awoke and said: "Why, I had made all the children white. Jesus did not say, 'Bring little white children to me'; he said in substance, 'Bring all the children to me.'"

How are we going to get it? A prayer which I frequently heard in student days from the lips of an honored teacher has kept echoing in my mind for over twenty years: "Enlarge our hearts, O God, that we may make room for more of thy children!" What most of us need is more friends. Before we can be more Christian we must sincerely care for more people. Larger hearts will lead us to larger lives.

The very continuance of our civilization depends upon the promotion of what is called "world friendship." We yearn for the inclusive brotherhood which Jesus proclaimed. But how are we going to get it?

VII. Food for Thought

"In Christ there is no East or West."

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

How to Be Popular Though Christian

June 9, 1940

For Daily Reading:

June 3. The early church. Acts 2:43-47.
June 4. Peter and John. Acts 4:13-22.
June 5. Ananias of Damascus. Acts 22:6-16.

June 6. Paul in Galatia. Gal. 4:12-16.
June 7. Paul and Ephesian officials. Acts 19:23-31.
June 8. Paul and the Roman officer. Acts 27:1,3, 37-44.
June 9. Topic. John 12:42,43; Matt. 22:37-39.

"Follow Me"

"As Jesus walked beside the sea He gave the call, "Follow me." Although the humble fishermen did not know Jesus, so great was His personality that they dropped their nets and followed Him. How wise they were! Because they followed their Saviour they had the privilege of learning the wisdom of the world's greatest teacher, and their names will be remembered through eternity.

Jesus said "Follow me." If we are following Him, then He is our leader and He knows the way. He has told us the way very plainly in the Sermon on the Mount. He does not ask us to do anything which He has not done Himself. He knows the hard paths of life, for He has traveled them Himself. In His book He tells us how to overcome every difficulty, so it is not hard to follow Him."

Opening Song: "Saviour, Teach Me Day by Day".
Scripture Reading: John 12:42,43; Matt. 22:37-39.
Prayer by Leader
Song: "I Would be True"

The Service of Love

"The happiest people in the world are those who are living for others."

Love never lives for itself. It always wants to serve; it craves to make people happy.

A stranger was once walking down a winding road through a beautiful valley. It was August and he was weary from his long journey. His throat was dry from thirst. He longed for a quiet place to rest. He saw a crudely painted sign. An arrow was pointing to a path leading back among the trees. Under the arrow were these words, "To the Spring."

Following the path, the stranger found a spring. A cup was there and a rustic bench. When he had sat down he observed a basket of apples hanging from the limb of a tree. When he was rested he was determined to meet the folks who were so generous and thoughtful. Following the path, he arrived at a humble home. An old, old man tottering with age came to the door. "Uncle," said the stranger, "I have come to ask who is so thoughtful of strangers down by the side of the road." "Oh, said the old man, "its the story of the spring you want." "I'll call Mother." "Then it was that the stranger heard of a life of service. The couple had been the first to move to the valley. Whenever new settlers came they were down by th road to greet them. They helped newcomers build cabins, held prayer meetings—in sickness, death, adversity or prosperity their hearts went out to their neighbors.

As years passed by their children grew up and left home; and they grew too old to help as in times past. Being hungry to do something for Jesus, they thought of the spring and bench and apples for strangers.

It was all they could do, but in their humble way they tried in that house by the side of the road to be a friend to man.

The stranger who was Sam Ross, was so deeply impressed with this beautiful, humble service that he wrote "The House by the Side of the Road".

(From Intermediate Expressional Services.)

Poem: "The House by the Side of the Road".
Discussion: (You will note that we are thinking of the characteristics of a Christian which will make him popular and loved.)

1. Religion means a life which loves instead of hates. Discuss this thought in relation to popularity in school.
2. Religion means that in life we have an awareness of human needs.
   Discuss this thought in relation to Missions.
3. Which type of personality seems to us the more attractive—the brave or the cowardly; those who love or those who hate; the kind or indifferent; the eager, aspiring individual or the one who is comfortable and smugly satisfied .

Consecration Song: "I'll live for Him".

Concluding thought by leader—"A true follower of Jesus is an attractive person. He does not need to plan to do this or that in order to make his life attractive, because he is so. What he himself is speaks louder than any action, and wins others to his way of living. It cannot be otherwise."

Closing Prayer by Superintednent.
Offering.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

THE BEATITUDES.

Pgram for June 9, 1940.

Matthew 5:5. "Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth."

Matthew 5:6. "Blessed are they which hunger and thirst after righteouness; for they shall be filled."

I. Worship Period:

1. Prelude: Pianist plays melody of "O Have You Not Heard of That Beautiful Stream". Mennonite Hymn Book, 147.
2. Call to worship. Sing in unison all heads bowed. "The Lord is in His Holy Temple, Let all the earth keep silence before Him." Habakkuk 2:20
3. Leader's Prayer.
4. Scripture. 1. Corinthians 13:4—8 (using the word "Love" as the revised version has it instead of "Charity.") by a junior boy.
5. Quartet sings: "O Have You Not Heard of that Beautiful Stream."
6. Story, told by a Junior girl.

"Blessings from Meekness"

"Long ago there lived a saint so good that the angels came down to see how a mortal could be so godly. He went about his daily work. spreading joy, as a flower spreads perfume, without being aware of it.

The angels asked God that the gift of miracles might be given to this good man. The answer was, "Yes, ask him what he wishes." Sothe angels spoke to him about it. Would he choose that the touch of his hand should heal the sick?" He said, "No", He would rather God would do that. Would he want to have the power to convert souls? He answered, "No", that was the Holy Spirits work. The angels asked "What then do you wish"? He said, "Only that God may give me His grace."

But when the angels insisted that he should choose the particular power that he would like to have, he replied, "That I may do a great deal of good without knowing it." Then it was decided that every time the good saints shadow should fall behind or on either side, so that he could not see it, it should have the power to cure disease, sooth pain, and comfort sorrow. So it came to pass that, falling thus out of his sight, his shadow gave health to pale children, strength to those who were weak and joy to sorrowing mothers. But the Saint was never aware of the blessings that flowed from him. And the people respecting his humility even forgot his name, and spoke of him as the "Holy Shadow."

From 5000 Best Illistrations.

7. Song in unison, "Take my Life. v. 1, 5, 6.

II. Study Period.

Aim. To help our Juniors understand the meaning of the third and fourth Beatitudes and to desire that this "meekness" and this "hunger and thirst" be their own.

1. In unison read from the blackboard, Matthew 5:5.

2. A Junior boy discusses:"What is being meek"? To be meek is not to be proud but rather to be humble. To be meek is to be gentle in disposition, not easily provoked, but to be kind and loving. To be meek is to have self-control and not return evil for evil. Moses could face all sorts of insults and wrongs without an angry word. Those who do not think of self are meek. The verses of Matthew 5:38-44 describe a meek man.

A missionary in Jamaica asked a little black boy the meaning of Matthew 5:5. "Who are the meek"? The boy answered. "Those who give soft answers to rough questions."

3. A Junior girl discusses: "Why does Jesus say. "The meek are blessed"? and how are they blessed." Meekness brings us blessing by keping us out of trouble and quarrels, and by giving us opportunities to do good to others.

4. All stand and sing the first verse of "Lord Jesus I long to be Perfectly Whole."

5. Repeat in unison, Matthew 5:6.

6. Talk by a Junior girl. Many times children are undernourished, not because there is no food, but because they have no appetite and so will not eat. Hunger is a mark of health, a healthy body is hungry, a healthy mind is hungry.-Just so there must be a spiritual longing, for as the body needs food and water, so the soul needs spiritual food and drink. We should pray for this spiritual longing, because if we are satisfied with ourselves, we can not grow.

7. Story of, "The women at the Well." John 4:4-14. told in a Juniors own words.

8. Song. "Break Thou the Bread of Life." All stand to sing.

9. Leader's heart talk.

III. Mission Minutes.

Every Junior reports on "What missionary story, letter or poem, have I read since our last meeting." Naming the article, its author and where it appeared.

IV. Closing Moments.

. Each Junior repeat from memory a Bible verse having the thought of either of the Beatitudes studied thus far.

2. Stand and sing in unison, "Blessed Assurance Jesus is Mine."

3. Pray together the Lord's Prayer.

4. As the Juniors leave the pianist plays, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus."

CORRESPONDENCE

HOFFNUNGSAU MENN. CHURCH, INMAN, KS.

May 16, 1940

Death has recently called on three of our church members. P. G. Heidebrecht passed away Feb. 29 at the age of 73 years. He was the first of their family for four generations to pass away. Mrs. Peter Fleming, who spent 10 months in the Goessel Hospital, passed away on March 4 at the age of 74 years. The third was John Clark dying in Sterling on March 12.

Our Christian Endeavor has sponsored several programs given by outside talents. On March 17, Dr. Harshbarger of Bethel College, gave a talk on "Propaganda and a Christian Faces War," before a large audience. On April 21 the local Ladies' and Mens' Choruses furnished the musical numbers and William Juhnke, C. E. prseident of the W. D. Conference, talked on "Young People's Union." Sunday, April 31, Missionary P. W. Penner preached the sermon, and Mrs. Penner talked to the Sunday School. In the evening both spoke at the C. E. meeting. One can't help but rejoice in the fact that God has so richly blessed their work in India. The Inman High School music department under the direction of Alvin Reimer, rendered the C. E. program May 13. There were about 80 students in their A Cappella Choir.

The four Intermediate Sunday School classes invited the young people of the Hutchinson Menn. Church to a social on the evening of April 14. A bountiful supper was served to 100 people, after which the local group entertained with a varied program. Better fellowship and a feeling of union can be fostered by such get-togethers.

There have been two weddings in our church this spring. On April 7 the wedding of Hilda Martens to Pete Froese took place and on May 5 that of Esther Janzen to Irvin Schmidt. Rev. A. J. Dyck married both couples. Another couple was announced Sunday to be married May 26, namely Dora Abrahams to Dan Thiessen.

On Pentecost Sunday Rev. A. J. Dyck baptized 13 young converts and received them into church membership. It is always a day of rejoicing for a congregation when young people denounce wrong and accept Christ as their personal Savior. Communion Services will be observed Sunday May 19. For three weeks there has been Bible School in the forenoon in the church basement. Four teachers instructed the 61 pupils from the surrounding community. Interest for these Bible Schools is increasing each year.

M. U., Correspondent

The doing of things from duty is but a stage on the road to the kingdom of truth and love.

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, HALSTEAD, KANS

The wedding of W. P. Schowalter and Agnes Miller took place at the church, April 24, in the evening. Rev. D. Wedel delivered a short sermon and Rev. Herbert Miller, brother of the bride, performed the ceremony. A reception was held in the church basement for relatives and close friends. The couple will reside at Scott City, Kansas.

Sunday evening Rev. D. Wedel delivered the address at the baccalaureate services for the high school seniors. His subject was, "A Gift to the Graduate." Dr. A. E. Hertzler will deliver the commencement address Friday evening.

Three young people were admitted as members of the church by the rites of baptism Pentecost Sunday. May they remain true to their vows is our wish and prayer.

The Bethel College A Cappella Choir gave a concert in our church last Sunday afternoon, May 12. At the close of the services they gave a short song service at the Hertzler hospital. Both concerts were enjoyed by all who heard them.

One hundred and nineteen dollars were collected for the Bethel College Fellowship drive.

The Garden Christian Endeavor gave a program on Sunday evening, May 5, and on the evening of the following Sunday the young people of the Lorraine Ave. Church, Wichita, gave us a program. We are glad for the opportunity to hear these young folks. Such meetings foster Christian fellowship. Corr.

BETHANY CHURCH, QUAKERTOWN, PA.

While having no full-fledged catechetical class this year, we received three new members on May 12, two by baptism and one by the right hand of fellowship.

On April 24 a splendid sacred concert was rendered, including vocal and instrumental music. The guest soloist was Mr. Norman H. Flores, of Allentown, a concert soloist, who has appeared in this community previously in the rendition of "The Messiah" during the Christmas season. His performance was one of the highest type, and well received by a capacity audience. Our congregation is fortunate in being well supplied with musical talent, who performed ably in filling out the program.

Missionary to India John Thiessen recently conducted a week of services at the West Swamp congregation of this charge, and also delivered the sermon at Bethany church at two services.

The Ladies Aid and Missionary Society on May 7 held a mother-and-daughter supper. The society now holds meetings monthly, on the same evening that the growing Brotherhood of the church holds its meetings. The Sunday School on May 12, had a special Mothers' Day program.

At the mid-week meetings the book of Genesis is being concluded in the series, "Through the Bible."

BETHEL BIBLE SCHOOL, MUNICH, N. D.

NOTE: Unfortunately the copy of this contribution got lost and what is here given is a free translation of the German as found in "Bundesbote" of April 30.—Editor.

As our Bible School has recently come to a close, I shall make a brief report. The time since the last report was mainly taken up with reviews. March 19 to 21 we wrote the examinations.

When we take a retrospect of the last five months, we can say that we cannot thank the Lord enough for all spiritual and natural blessings, and our hearts respond thus: "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly possessions through Jesus Christ" Eph. 1:3.

The Lord so led that we had an unusually mild winter with little snow. The roads were open and the weather so favorable that the students could always be present. The 21st of March was the last school day and the next day we had our closing program in the Salem Church at Munich. It consisted of songs, presented by different groups; a play, "The Nazarene," and short reports of our work in the school and what we did outside for the Lord, as follows: Different groups of students, in company with our teacher, have visited 36 homes, bringing them the gospel. Six visits were made to hospitals and two to old people's homes. Three programs were given in churches, and special music in song was given on different occasions. About 5,000 tracts were distributed. May the Lord bless the scattered seed!

Our school had 27 visitors. Our teacher, Rev. E. F. Walter, gave a farewell address the evening of March 24. The next day the family left for Onida, South Dakota, where they will serve a church the next seven months. May the Lord bless them richly and, if it be His will, lead them back here in the fall, to resume the work in the Bible school.

Alfred T. Eitzen, Student and Corr.

EMMAUS MENN. CHURCH, WHITEWATER, KS,

Our community was richly blessed by the challenging messages that were brought by Dr. Herbert Lockyer of London, England, and Dr. A. H. Unruh of Winkler, Manitoba, who were the speakers of the third annual Bible Conference that was held in Newton from April 14-21. Only eternity will reveal the results from a conference such as this.

On April 21 Dr. Unruh brought us the morning message and we were all truly blessed. Sunday, May 5, the Student Volunteer Band from Bethel College rendered a very interesting program in our church. May 10 the superintendent and some of the children from the Grace Children's Home in Henderson, Nebraska, gave a splendid program.

Eleven young people were received into our church on May 12 by baptism and on confession of faith.

MENNONITE CHURCH, SHAFTER, CALIF.

Sunday evening, April 21, the Emmanuel Male Quartet of Dinuba, gave a musical program. This quartet has for the past several years sung over Station KTKC at Visalia. The program was interesting and inspiring. During the week of April 14 to 21, Eva Dirksen from the African Mission field was here. She spoke to the Church in a special meeting on Sunday morning, April 21. She told of several incidents illustrating the beliefs and customs of the people living in the remote part of the world. Her talks were very interesting and enlightening.—Tuesday night, April 30, Dr. Richard Jantzen and his wife, of Paso Robles, who have since left for the African Mission field, were here speaking about their forthcoming missionary work. May the Lord bless and keep them on their journey as they go to take up their work in a foreign land.

The ladies sewing circle has decided that instead of only making things for sales, and then giving the proceeds to the missions, they would make layettes for the needy people around Shafter and also send some to the mission fields. —The Dorcas Sewing Circle (the young ladies of our church) have decided to have meetings twice every month. Their annual sale will be in July.

Sunday, May 5, Rev. Esau, blind evangelist, gave the message. As one hears him speak, knowing he must have great faith in the one who watches over him, one feels ashamed. We who have sight are not appreciative enough of what God has let us keep! Do we remember to thank Him for it at all?

Donna Gorshing Corr.

MENN. BIBLE MISSION, CHICAGO, ILL.

Dear Friends :

"And when the day of Pentecost was fully come," what a blessed passage of scripture that is to us as children of God. Today we enjoyed many blessings. In our morning service Bro. Herbert Peters brought us a short message on "Mothers," taken from I Samuel, "Hannah as a Model Mother." Then because it was Pentecost, our Pastor John T. Neufeld brought before us the Power of Pentecost, in the unity of the believers, all with one accord in one place. They united in prayer, they spake, the repented, they believed, and the Lord added to the church such as should be saved.

In the evening Service our young people gave a program in appreciation of mothers. Then we had the blessed privilege of having missionaries P. W. Penners speak to us.How we rejoice with them for what the Lord has done for them in far off India, in changing the lives of the native people. How we rejoice with them that God has restored them to health again, so they can go back to the field in the near future. We are again reminded of our part in the carrying on of the mission work; to pray for the missionaries and the native Christians; to give of our time and talents to present the gospel to the people in the home land; and to give of our money, so that others can go whom the Lord calls to the work.

Bro. and Sister Arthur Friesens were bidden goodbye and God speed, at our last service, as they go to other work among the American Indians in Oklahoma. We have enjoyed their help and fellowship while they were with us this past winter, helping us in the S. S. wrok and church services. May the Lord bless them, is our prayer, as they go out to labor for the Master.

Mrs. Catherine Neufeld, Mennonite Bible Mission
4221 So. Rockwell St., Chicago, Ill.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. SAMUEL SHIRK, daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth Shellenberger Shotzberger, died in the Lervistown Hospital, on Thursday morning, following an operation. She was born Sept. 9, 1875, bringing her age to 64 years, 7 months and 27 days. She was for many years a faithful member of the Richfield Mennonite Church.

Surviving are her husband and four sons, Sterl and Merrian of Richfield, Merle of Mifflintown, and Harry of McAlisterville; fourteen grand children and five brothers, John Shotzberger, of Ambler; Charles, of Lewistown, and Walter of Richfield.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday, May 11. from the Richfield Mennonite Church. Rev. B. S. Graybill and O. A. Worner will officiate. Interment will be made in the adjoining Cemetery.

DANIEL GEHRING OF MONROE, WASH.

After only a few hours of illness departed this life on April 16. He had ben in the service Sunday evening and quite content. However, one who knew him readily saw that he was failing rapidly. The deceased was born Sept. 13, 1856. He reached the age of 83 years, 7 months and 3 days. Born in Russia, he came to this country as a lad some 60 years ago and lived in South Dakota for a while. Later he lived in Kansas. About 18 years ago he and his present widow, the former Mrs. Christina Ellenberger from Moundridge, Kansas, moved here. He has been a member and a very regular attendant of the First Mennonite Church of Monroe. Daniel's seat will be empty but his lot is now to be at rest with the Lord. Funeral services were conducted by his pastor, M. M. Lehmann. Text used was John 14:1-6.

Two sons and one daughter; nine grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Maria Schwartz who has since Daniel's death also departed, and his widow are left to mourn the departure of a loved one.

ELLA EDNA STRAWSER GRAYBILL, daughter of Jacob Z. and Mary Derr Strawser, was born April 20, 1885, died April 24, 1940. Aged 55 years and 4 days. On December 25, 1906 she united in marriage with Benjamin S. Graybill. To this union was born one son, Meade. In May 1915 she united with the Richfield Mennonite Church and remained faithful and never murmured or complained, knowing that her disease was incurable, she had put her trust in the Lord. Many Scripture passages were read in her hearing and many prayers were offered in her behalf. This she enjoyed above everything else. She was a great help to her companion in his spiritual life. Surviving are: her husband, son Meade S., and two grand children. Funeral services were held in the Richfield Church, April 29, 1940, conducted by Rev. H. M. Johnson and Rev. E. D. Hess. Interment in the Richfield Cemetery.

MRS. MARIA GEHRING SCHWARTZ OF MONROE, WASHINGTON

In the early morning hours of Ascension Day, Mrs. Maria Gehring Schwartz fell asleep in the Lord after a period of two and a half years of illness and suffering. The deceased was born in Russia, Sept 13, 1859. In the early seventies, at the age of 13, she came to South Dakota with her parents. She was baptized by Rev. Jacob Stuckey in 1874. Nov. 16. 1881 she was joined in holy wedlock to Mr. Jacob D. Schwartz. Fifteen years ago the family moved to Monroe. Her husband preceded her in death, Sept.29, 1932. Her brother Daniel was buried two weeks before her death. Surviving near relatives are 6 sons, John J., Henry and Joseph of Monroe, Jacob and Peter of Hydro, Okla., Daniel of Kingman, Kansas; five daughters, Mrs. Rosie Albrecht of Reedley, Calif., Mrs. Elizabeth Dunn of Colony, Okla., Mrs. P. J. Zerger and Mrs. Lydia Renner of Monroe, Mrs. Mary Hogan of Kent, Wash.; forty-three grandchildren and fifteen or more great grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted by her pastor, May 4, from the First Mennonite Church of Monroe of which she was a consistent member since 1925. Grandmother Schwartz suffered much but bore her suffering with fortitude. She greatly loved to be in the prayer meetings. Texts used at the funeral services were, Psalm 116:15 and I Cor. 15:6b.

« « JOTTINGS » »

—Rev. Henry N. Harder, pastor of the Grace Church, Enid, Okla. has recently made a trip to Pratum, Oregon, to hold a series of meetings in the Mennonite Church there. This church is also looking for a pastor, Rev. J. M. Franz, the present pastor, planning to lay down the work.

—Dr. Rodolphe Petter, Missionary, Lame Deer, Mont. reproves the editor deservedly, thus: I was disappointed to read nothing about PENTECOST in THE MENNONITE in the issue preceding the Sunday on which the Christian Church remembers its birth and the gift of the Holy Spirit!—Was "Mothers Day" more important? I think if "mother's" rememberance was important a word or two of the great deed of God should have been noticed too.

Yours Truly, Rodolphe Petter."

We agree with Brother Petter wholeheartedly, though in shame. It was an unpardonable oversight on our part to pass so important a day in the cycle of church holidays without even a mention of it in THE MENNONITE. We did not forget the day, though, but failed to think of it until it was too late. We humbly and penitently apologize to Brother Petter and all readers of the paper who felt hurt as he did. And we promise that, should God spare our life and we continue as editor, to memoralize the day duly after this. May we now ask Brother Petter to be sure to write a good article on "Pentecost" for the respective 1941 number of the paper and to send it to the editor, whoever that may be, ahead of time.

—Bluffton College.—The following is an interesting classification of Mennonite students attending Bluffton: Middle District, 72; Eastern District 13; Central Conference, 13; Independent (Fairfield, Pa.), Defenseless and Old Mennonite groups, each 4.—An analysis of the Student Work Program reveals that 19 are given work by the N. Y. A., 118 by the College, 9 by industries. The College employs: In Adm. offices, 18; as department assistants, 21; as library assistants, 6; on Campus farm, 21; Dining Hall, 32; as janitors, 20. Industries, in Book Store 6; Chicken project, 3.

From Bulletin, First Menn. Church.

—Rev. E. D. Dirks, Pastor of Hutchinson, Ks. Menn. Church, will conduct Radio Services over KWBG each week day morning at 10:45, May 20 to 25. The subjects are: Mon., "The Christian, Cleansed from Sin"; Tues., "The Christian, Claimed in Temptation"; Wed., "The Christian, Conformed through His Devotional Life"; Thurs., "The Christian, Concerned about His Church"; Fri., "The Christian, Challenged to Service"; Sat., "The Christian, Called to Victory in Christ".

—WEDDING, at the East Swamp Church, Pa., May 4, in presence of the immediate families, Margaret Bleam became the bride of Arthur Yoder, the vows being received by Rev. Harold Burkholder. May God bless the new home, and may it be built on the Rock Christ Jesus.—An Eastern District Y. P. Rally will be held at East Swamp, May 30. Speaker: Dr .E. Schulyer English, and a Christian cartoonist from Phila. —The pastor and family plan to visit parents and friends in Ohio, June 3 to 20. —Church Bulletin.

Love is the Queen of Graces It outshines all the others, as the sun the lesser planets.—T. Watson.

— Aberdeen Students Honored at Bethel. Three students from the Mennonite community of Aberdeen, Idaho, have been elected members of the 1940-41 Student Council at Bethel College. Arthur Wenger, '41, three years a member of the men's quartet and of the a capella choir, has been elected president; Delmar Wedel, '42, vice-president, and Orlando Wiebe, '42, treasurer of the Council. All three young men are members of the S. C. M. (Student Christian Movement) cabinet, Mr. Wedel is president of the sophomore class, and all three are model young men and Christians.

— Freeman Junior College is to have two new faculty members. Rev. J. B. Toews of Portland, Ore. is to be Director of the Bible Department. He had his basic education in Europe, two years at Tabor College, Kansas, has recently completed the work for the B. D. degree at Western Baptist Theol. Seminary, Portland, Ore., and is now working on his doctorate in Philosophy and Religious Education. From 1933-37 he served on the faculty of Bethany Bible School, Hepburn, Sask.—Miss Louise Toews, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. P. R. Schroeder, a product of Freeman Jr. College, who now graduates from Bethel College, has been engaged to teach Home Economics and English in the Academy.—A daily Vacation Bible School Institute is being sponsored by the American S. S. Union and Freeman Jr. College to be held on the College Campus May 22 to 29.

— Berne, Indiana.—Beginning May 29 and continuing for five weeks this community is planning to carry on its 16th Annual Union Bible School. Dr. C. H. Suckau, pastor of the First Mennonite Church, will again serve as superintendent. He will be assisted by a corps of fourteen teachers, among them the pastors of the other local churches, and an office assistant. A large enrollment is anticipated.—The large Berne Men's Chorus furnished the music at the Ohio Annual State Convention of the Gideons, at Lima, O. on Saturday evening and Sunday May 5.—On Sunday, May 12, the Chorus presented a concert at the First Mennonite Church in Bluffton, Ohio.

— One Hundred Seventy-five S. S. Workers Attend Conference. With the Bergfelder Church of Mt. Lake as host, the Mennonite S. S. workers of that section met in an interesting session Sunday afternoon, May 5. After good introductory and devotional exercises directed by the chairman, Henry A Stoesz, the program provided for a series of five-minute talks on the following subjects: The Opening Exercises, Beginners, Primaries, Juniors, Intermediates, Seniors, Adults, etc. which was splenidly handled by members from each of the Sunday Schools represented. After discusson, a question box, and interspersion of some good music Rev. Com. Wall summed up the topics with the main topic of the Convention, "Blessings Received in the Work of the Sunday School." Among other things he said, "It is a tremendous task and carries with it grave responsibility, but also a great privilege and opportunities."

WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION OF BETHEL COLLEGE

The annual business meeting of the Women's Association of Bethel College this year will take place Monday, May 27, at the College Science Hall. As in previous years, this meeting will be prefaced by a covered dish supper, beginning at 6:30 P. M. After an hour of fellowship and of song, reports of the year's work will follow and officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

All ladies who are interested in the welfare of the College are most cordially invited. Bring one covered dish and a few sandwiches. Table service and drink will be provided by a committee in charge.

— Bethel College.—The tenth Booster Banquet, held on the evening of May 14, went over big. More than 600 tickets were sold. The first ticket cost $10.00, additional tickets for members of the family are $1.00 each. Thus about $5,000.00 have been realized from the venture. The governor of the State of Kansas, Hon. Payne Ratner, as the main speaker on the program proved to be quite an attraction. This Booster Banquet serves as part of the financial campaign to raise $45,000 for at least partly completing the erection of Memorial Hall, and $20,000 for current expenses. The following plan to raise the stipulated sum was devised: One $5,000 gift, two $2,500, ten $1,000, ten $500, twenty $250, one hundred $100, one hundred $50, two hundred $25, five hundred $10, one thousand $5, miscellaneous $5,000, which would make a total of $65,000. About $30,000 has been pledged. One gift of $5,000 has been made and another promised. The banquet was held for the last time in Alumni Hall, the gymnasium, which has now been remodeled with a large balcony to receive the Charles Kauffman Museum.

— San Marcos Menn. Church, Paso Robles, Calif.— gave a farewell, May 5, for Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Powell who left for mission work in the Kentucky Mountains. They are going via Oregon to visit his relatives. Mrs. Powell was formerly Meta Schroeder of near here. —Fred Smiley, Corr.

—Tabor Church, Goessel, Kansas.—One Pentecost Sunday, May 12, twenty-one young people were baptized and received into the membership of the Church. On Monday evening, May 13, twelve babies were consecrated to the Lord. The pastor is planning a series of sermons on Stewardship. The Church intends to observe Communion on June 9. —D. S. T. Gorr.

— St. John Church, near Pandora, Ohio.—On May 5 the pastor of this church, Rev. D. J. Unruh, preached at the First Mennonite Church in Chicago, which is a General Conference Mission church, for which the Home Mission Board is trying to find a new pastor, in the place of Rev. A. H. Leaman, who is planning to return to evangelistic work.

REV. G. A. LINSCHEID
01 EAST BROADWAY
NEWTON, KANSAS
~~JA 41~~
List
M

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, MAY 28, 1940 NUMBER ~~21~~ 22

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

EDITORIAL

A HOME OR FAMILY DAY.—There seems to be a growing sentiment among a good many honest Christians that Mother's Day is being over-stressed, that the true significance of the day which grew out of a simple, dignified recognition of the endearing qualities of true motherhood is being lost sight of. It is further noticed that the observance of the day is becoming a sort of a cult, with a growing tendency to commercialize it and to surround it with a sentimentalism that detracts from rather than exalts the true virtues of womanhood. As mother is the heart of the home from which her influence radiates and draws the members of the family to her with her love, a plan to widen the scope of the day to Home Day or Family Day seems to find general favor. As such a day its observance would afford a wonderful opportunity for emphasizing the essential characteristics of the Christian home and those fundamental sanctities which necessarily form an intergral part of it. Such an observance would in no way mininize but rather enlarge the idea of motherhood. Thus a change such as here indicated would seem to be desirable.—The Committee on Marriage and the Home of the federal Council of Churches has prepared valuable material for an expanded observance of the day. A letter with five cents enclosed, addressed to this committee at 297 Fourth Avenue, New York, N. Y. will bring this material. —T.

THE DRIFT OF THE AGE is toward naturalism and materialism. To let the Divine factor drop out of life is to imperil the very existence of the community. Atheism begets anarchism in society. So long as men believe that God is and rules this world they feel motivated to bear patiently wrongs that He will right, either here or hereafter. But, if human history and world conditions are the result of purely human forces, then the only hope of the oppressed is to undertake revolution, then men feel impelled to right wrongs themselves. Hence come anarchists, communists, nihilists, and nazi pagans as the legitimate fruit of denying God. Why should right be forever on the scaffold and wrong forever on the throne, unless we believe that the scaffold does sway the future, that God is keeping watch over all things, that He will adjust conflicting elements and bring cosmos out of chaos? If God and His power to rectify wrongs is denied, those without faith in Him naturally will rectify them for and by themselves. —II Tim. 3:3-6

FOLLOWING HIM

Of the men and women whom history mentions prominently those are the most outstanding of whom it can be said, "They forsook all and followed Him." Their name and their work will not be forgotten. Abraham left Ur in Chaldea and followed God into a strange land, to become the progenitor of a new nation, God's people. Moses forsook the exalted position of a royal prince to follow the call of God to be the leader and deliverer of his enslaved kinsmen, "choosing rather to share ill treatment with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasurers of sin for a season." David forsook the simple life of ease and quiet of a shepherd to follow God's call higher up, even though this meant years of struggle and distress before he got through. A few Galilean fishermen left all to follow Him, Jesus, in a course of training to become fishers of men. The apostle Paul forgot the things which are behind "to press on toward the goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Many of the prophets forsook all to become God's ministers. Martin Luther forsook the life of ease and comfort of a catholic priest to become God's great champion in a much needed reformation. Missionaries like Boniface, Livingstone, Wilfred T. Grenfel and others left all to teach and demonstrate to sinful men Christ's way of living. These lives are shining examples to show us that to follow God's call for service, to be true disciples of Christ, means a forsaking life. And it seems that we Christians of these present times, surrounded as we are by a world of luxury and comforts, have lost the art of forsaking things for Christ's sake. Our imagined needs have multiplied much as those of worldly people, in such a way that, instead of being willing to forsake in order to be able to help build the Kingdom, we must first satisfy these supposed needs. Is not this one of the crying weaknesses of the Christian people of today? —T.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

"A CASTE CONVOCATION"

By F. J. Isaac.

Most of the Hindooes of Mauhadih village belong to the Marar caste. They are gardeners. They raise besides the universal rice, peanuts, sugarcane, and some common vegetables. The other day there was a big gathering of their caste brethern here at Mauhadih. There were cases for discipline in their group which had to be settled as well as caste rules to be reviewed. About 300 older men had gathered, some coming from as far as 25 miles. They borrowed a gas light from us for a night session and some cast-off Christmas decorations for beautifying a large pergola made of bamboos and leafy boughs. They also invited me to be present and to take a picture at some convenient moment. I on my part was anxious for an opportunity to speak to them. Knowing that I would have representatives of the whole caste before me and that the Mauhadih marars had heard the gospel so many years, I prayed that this opportunity might not be lost. When I arrived there with my camera they were just about to open their afternoon session after the midday meal. I asked wether I might be permitted to speak. They gladly consented. So having taken two exposures with the kodak I addressed them. Before I began to speak, Dhukhu, one of the older men here of the caste at Mauhadih, said that I should be sure to sing a bhajan and also offer a prayer. They listened very attenttively while I testified to them of the one and only saviour of men, their's as well as our's. After I had sung and prayed I sat down and listened a while to their business discussions. It was an orderly meeting although there seemed to be no chairman. Several of the oldest men sat in the center (They were all squatting on the ground.) They made remarks when this one or that one made a complaint or gave an opinion and finally these oldest men gave an opinion which ended the discussion on that point.

In my plea to them I invited them to thoroughly consider the claims of Jesus upon them and to make a united as well as individual decision about him.

Here is a concrete subject for prayer namely that the Marar caste in this locality may come to Christ, the Mauhadih marars taking the lead.

Champa, C. P., Jan. 10, 1940

Dear Friends: "Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable Gift." The Christmas Season has passed where we again celebrated the Birth of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. It was a season of blessing. The Christmas week was a busy week with the different programs both here and at the Leper Home, the Day of Thanksgiving etc. On Thanksgiving day such things as money, rice, vegetables, chickens, eggs etc. are brought to the church as a thank offering. After the service these are taken outside and sold. One day of the Christmas week was set aside for a Day of Witnessing. On this day quite a number of the Christians went to a village near by to witness for Christ and preach the Gospel to those yet in darkness. As we arrived in the village we began to sing and tell the Wonderful Story of Love. Quite a few came to listen. Then we divided into small groups and went into the different parts of the village singing, and testifying for the Lord. Many heard of the Love of Christ that day and our prayer is that they may be willing to leave all and follow Him who has done so much for us.

—Eva A. Pauls

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

North Kildonan, Manitoba, April 5th, 1940

Hearty greetings to everyone:

This is the report from the first Quarter for 1940.

I wish to thank the Board and all who made the loan of $200.00 possible, so that the people could continue in the rebuilding of our church here. The members here accept this help with deep gratitude. It is very necessary to enable us to do good work in spiritual ministery, since North Kildonan seems to be a central point for our Mennonites that come to the city. The church at Morris is also very grateful for the loan that was extended, to enable them to continue with their building program.

In addition to our places of worship at Alexander and Ellen streets and in the one in North Kildonan, we found it necessary and essential to begin worship services in the western part of the city in Brooklands, and in the Southwestern part in Kierkfield Park, in these two places we hold worship Services once a month.

During the months of February and March, it has been the practice for many years to hold Bible Conferences in the different places of worship. It was so arranged again this year, and it was my privilege to assist in these Special Bible Studies Sunday after Sunday.

At the end of February we closed our Bible School in Winnipeg. On the following Thursday, I started the Catechetical Instruction for such who desired to prepare for baptism and reception into the Church. This year the class consists of pupils that come from 5 different congregations, all in the city. There are among us many families that move frequently, and because of change of address and location, have not connected with any one Church.

There is grave danger that these might get scattered, and the children in such families ofter make undesirable associations. It is therfore a source of great joy to note that this year some of these are in the instruction class and also that several families have finally decided to link themselves up with a church, either here in the city or else in the country districts.

I also visit the hospitals regularly, especially in "Concordia," to visit our own members who happen to be in these institutions. Yesterday I visited a young man who has pneumonia and was very low, while his wife and children at home were almost without funds. Such a double burden weighs heavily, indeed, and then God's Word is precious.

In our Girls' Home everything is going nicely. Under the leadership of the Sisters Helena and Aganetha Epp, for the last 7 years, the work has developed steadily. More than 80 girls were in the Home this past winter and, through the home, found employment. These girls have regarded the "Home" as their home and have enjoyed its comforts and help.

Now we are already 6 months in the war. Would that just peace might speedily be established, so that we might have a renewal of our relationship with our friends and relatives in Russia and Europe! God alone can grant this.

With affectionate greetings, I beg to remain as ever,

Your co-worker, J. H. Enns.

Have You Missed Him?

Which of these exclamations fits your case? "Oh, that I knew where I might find him!" "Whither shall I flee from thy presence?" How packed with srtong feeling they both are! And how opposite in the experience which they represent!

The first is a cry of a man in distress, a man who has lost God but is hungry for a sight of him again. And its a good thing to long for the divine presence and companionship? Isn't that a sign of a healthy spiritual appetite?

The second is the spilling over of a consciousness of God so immediate and constant that it is impossible to escape him. The author of these words finds God everywhere. And isn't that an evidence of clear-sightedness? And of a heart in tune with God?

Have you seen enough of life to understand how good men could have such differing experiences.

Different as these viewpoints were, they agreed in sensing the value of contact with God. The man to be pitied most is the one who doesn't know where God is and doesn't care. It is bad enough not to have found God but it is much worse not to have missed him. —E. F., in "Gospel Messenger".

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

NOTES ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

One of the most important departments of the church is the Sunday School. Its chief purpose is to teach scriptural truths to the different age groups attending. Organization, opening exercises, rallies, drives for increased attendance, etc. are all secondary to this chief purpose. If those attending have not been taught scriptural truths, no matter how entertaining the exercises have been nor how large the attendance, it is not in the strictest sense a Sunday school. A successful Sunday school is the one in which the pupils have been taught efficiently the truths of the Bible and not the school which has the largest attendance.

Perhaps one of the greatest needs of the present Sunday school is properly trained teachers. Opinions of what may constitute such an equipment may differ, but the supreme essential is a vital spiritual experience and an exemplary Christian life. What a teacher is, has much greater influence than what that teacher says, hence what he is is the supreme essential in a teacher's equipment. Above the knowledge of all other subjects the equipped teacher must be a Bible student, he must know the Bible. Especially must he know to the best of his ability the biblical truth to be taught in any given lesson. A knowledge of teaching methods is important, a working understanding of psychological principlets is helpful, but these of themselves will not give a teacher a proper equipment to teach the Bible to a Sunday school class. A teacher who knows God, who knows the Bible, and who loves his pupils, has the essential equipment, and his love for God and people will inspire him to acquire knowledge of such other subjects as will assist him in making his teaching successful.

There is no phase of religious work where the leadership and anointing of the Holy Spirit is more necessary than in the work of leading a Sunday school or teaching a class. . . . . God, through His Spirit, not only assists the teacher in his preparation and teaching, but also illuminates the minds of the pupils to receive the truths presented. How essential it is that the teacher in the Sunday school be filled with the Spirit and that he consistently seek the leadership and anointing of the Spirit in his preparation and teaching.

The Sunday school presents the greatest opportunity for reaching the unchurched people in our communities. Many individuals, even whole families, have been won to Christ and brought into church membership through first being contacted for the Sunday school. It is a recognized fact that the churches with large Sunday schools provide greater opportunities for salvation results in revival meetings than those schools with attendance largely confined to the church membership or families of the church. There are thousands of people within the reach of many Sunday schools that might be contacted and brought into the Sunday school classes, who because of this contact with the church will be saved and sanctified during the year. Are we doing all we should to reach the large group of unchurched people about us?

—Herald of Holiness

AMERICA

"Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord" (Psa. 33:12).

Students of American history know all about the founding and building of the American nation. It was impelled by the highest ideals. Freedom of religion—a church free from any domineering authority—save God. Freedom of politics—a nation without a crown; incented by the loftiest purposes—freedom from the blood-soaked plains of Europe, and from the hardship and oppression of the old world.

In her foundation was found the confidence of the Huguenots; the confession of the Covenanters; the consecration of the pilgrims, and the conviction of the quakers. She was underlaid by principles—her conduct towards the Jew—kindness; her hope in the future, "In God we trust." She sought the counsel of God, and had confidence in the Word of God; and by her Thanksgiving day acknowledged God as the giver of temporal as well as spiritual blessings.

America has been untrue to her trust. She has lost her faith in God, has apostacised by going into materialistic infidelity, heresay, and abolished the Christian Sabbath. She has robbed God of time, talent and finances.

She has lost her morality. Look at the immodesty in public appearances; the increase in crime amongst the youth; indifference to law; inclination to corruption; the incentives of the divorce.

She has lost he honor by the worship of wealth, her works of wickedness, and her oppression of the poor. She has become a hot bed of cruel avarice. Millions in America are the tools of the greed and grasp of the lordly rich, or would-bes. Money has become the Americans' God, and many think because they are rich that God has favored them, when dishonesty and the use of underhanded godless principles may be the cause.

America needs to repent, sparate herself from the idols, exalt Christ; and pray to God for an old time revival.

—From "Gospel Banners" abbreviated.

—Rev. J. B. Epp who has moved from Beatrice, Nebr. to 305 West 5th Street, Newton, Kansas, is now at least temporarily serving the Hoffnungsfeld Church, near Moundridge, Kans., with preaching and catechetical instruction.

SERMON SKETCH

THE LIFE IS THE LIGHT

P. R. Schroeder

Text, St. John 1:4. Scripture reading, I John 1:1-10.
Text: "In him was life, and the life was the light of men."

INTRODUCTION

There are at least 2,000,000 kinds of living things in the world. Generally speaking, there are three types of life here. They are plants, animals, and man. But there are two distinct types of human life. They are, the natural man and the new-born man.

I. CHRIST IS LIFE

1. He is the source and fountain of all life. St. John 1:3. All kinds and types of life come from Him, and are utterly dependent on Him.

2. But He has special claims upon man, the creature made in His own image. St. John 1:11-12. He made all kinds and types of life for man's benefit, and made man for His own glory.

It is a sad fact that great darkness has overtaken man, this handiwork of Christ. St. John 1:5. 3:19-21. That is the condition of the natural man.

To meet this lamentable condition of man, Christ brought a light into the world, by revealing His Divine life to man. See the text.

II. THE LIFE IS THE LIGHT

1. The Life became the Light of men by emptying itself and taking our form upon itself. " . . the Word became flesh . . . (and we beheld his glory . . .)" John 1:14.

2. The Life became the Light of men by teaching the truth. "Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life." John 6:68. "Everyone therefore that heareth these words of mine, and doeth them, shall be likened unto a wise man, who built his house upon the rock." Mt. 7:24-27.

3. The Life became the Light of men by bringing health to the sick and life to the dead. "Go and tell John the things which ye hear and see: the blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, and the dead are raised up . . . "Mt. 11:4-6.

4. The Life became the Light of men by working out our redemption. " . . . I lay down my life for the sheep." John 10:15. "By the which will we have been sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all." Hebr. 10:10.

5. The Life became the Light of men by conquering death. ". . . ye were raised together with Christ. . . For ye died, and your life is hid with Christ in God." Col. 3:1-4.

6. The Life became the Light of men by producing the Life of the Spirit in all those who submit to the new birth. "That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit." John 3:6. "For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus made me free from the law of sin and death . . . And if Christ is in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the spirit is life because of righteousness." Romans 8:2,10.

His Life is the great marvel of God's revelation of love. It is the answer to man's greatest need. It is the gift supreme. It is the power that conquers all other show of power. And just as all natural life depends on the light of the sun, He is the Sun of Righteousness that has become the absolutely necessary Light of men.

SEVERAL CONCLUSIONS

1. The darkness of man developed out of sin. If you want the light of His Life you must leave sin.

2. The Truth cannot be separated from His Life. Do you desire to know the Truth, then you must receive Him.

3. The Life is the Light of our minds, for it is Truth personified, It is the Light of our hearts, for it is God's Love poured into our hearts. It is also the Light of our wills, for it is the righteousness of God which we must make our own by resolute act of our wills by faith.

4. The Life is the Light of men. Not the Church, neither the State Church nor the Papal Church, is the Light of men. Some would see the hope of the world in a centrally organized, powerful, international Church organization. But the true Church is not a great organization, it is the living organism composed of all of those to whom the Life is the Light.

5. The religion of modern rationalism would elevate the ethical teachings of Jesus, that they be recognized as the summum bonum, the greatest good. But the moment His ethical teachings become separated from Him, they are powerless. Nothing less than Life, the whole Life of Christ, the eternal Logos, the incarnated Christ, the emptied Son, the crucified Substitute, the Risen Christ, the exalted Lord, the coming Judge—constitutes the Light of men.

Peace Program for the United States

The Council of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, 2929 Broadway, New York, has recently drafted the following peace program for the United States:

To proclaim that the best hope for mankind is to stop the war at once and to rally public sentiment for the utmost effort to that end. Those who argue that "this is not the time to stop the war," and there are many such among the Allies and the Germans and their respective sympathizers, mean in effect that they favor stopping the war only when "their side" is victorious "and can dictate the terms of 'peace'." But that is precisely the process which nations have tried, and especially in the last war, which has brought us to this tragic hour, and which threatens to destroy European civilization if we do not abandon it while there is yet time. Obviously the cessation of hostilities must be followed, if the world is not again to be threatened with catastrophe, by shaping of a peace which will remove the causes of war. Accordingly our program goes on.

To point out that a genuine and stable peace, as distinct from a precarious armistice between nations, must be based on fundamental alterations in the imperialist status quo—such as, the recognition of the inherent rights of all peoples,including India, to freedom from imperialist domination; provision of equitable access to raw materials, the control of which is now virtually monopolized by powers which stigmatize as "aggressors" nations which seek to force a change in this situation; lowering of tariff walls; cessation of currency wars; international control of colonies and of waterways such as the Suez and Panama canals; and disarmament. No such proposals have been offered by the so-called democratic nations; those who are convinced that the German people would reject such proposals must answer why the proposals have not been made.

To urge and to keep on urging the President and Congress to take the lead in rallying neutral nations to offer continuous mediation to the warring nations looking toward this kind of negotiated peace. So long as any hope of saving European civilization remains, we must unrelentingly urge this policy.

To support the movement for some form of federal world government on the model of the American Union for the sake of which various nations, including our own, would surrender a measure of their sovereignty. We warn, however, that no seemingly idealistic or advanced political set-up built upon an unsound economic foundation will prove workable or anything but an agency for maintaining the domination of certain powers, as the League of Nations tied to the Versailles settlement proved to be.

To urge the President and Congress to make known in as concrete terms as possible that the United States is prepared to do its full share, by helping in the economic rehabilitation of Europe and in other ways, in the achievement of genuine peace.

To oppose the entry of the United States into the war; point out the danger of such measures as the Administration's policy on sale of airplanes as constituting economic involvement which is bound to lead to military involvement; demand passage of legislation providing for a referendum before the United States enters into any war; and oppose all such measures as conscription and any steps leading toward the militarization of youth and industrial mobilization. Intervention by the United States in the war can only lead to the same kind of results as the last time. Only if this nation steadfastly refuses to be drawn in can we hope to contribute to a true and lasting peace.

To oppose military occupation by the United States of any territory not our own on the plea of military emergency but heartily to support all measures for the relief of suffering and the improvement of economic conditions.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

June 9, 1940

Ezekiel Teaches Personal Responsibility

Ezekiel 33:7-16

Introduction

Ezekiel was carried into captivity by Nebuchadnezzar in 597 B. C. He was of the priestly class and deeply interested in his people's welfare. He looked upon himself as a watchman or a pastor. He preached to the Jews who came to hear him vs. 30-32) but they failed to obey his words. He continued as prophet for 22 years, 592-570 B. C. or probably longer. He sought to strengthen the weak and give new courage to those who had lost heart. He stressed earnestly the doctrine of personal responsibility (see chap. 18).

Responsibility of God's Watchman vs 7-9

Our lesson emphasizes the responsibility of the one commissioned of God to warn the people. God will hold him responsible for failure to do so and for the spiritual death of such who may perish because of his neglect. Read chapters 3:16-21 and 18:21-32 in connection with our lesson. Every Christian is in a sense, a watchman unto his fellow man. God appointed Ezekiel, the prophet, as a moral and spiritual watchman (v 7). God gave him the message of warning to be delivered to the people. He was given the very unpleasant message telling the people of their sins and the certainy of their downfall. If he be unfaithful in this, God will punish him (v 9). Many will not heed the warning message, will not listen to the most faithful preaching, but the faithful watchman will have done his duty and be free from condemnation. It is for us to warn even if men do not heed.

The watchman's unfaithfulness is the ground of his own condemnation. The people's refusal to hear and turn from their wickedness is the ground of their condemnation. The principle set forth in our lesson has a wide application. Every minister and Sunday Schol teacher is a watchman. Every Christian may point some others to Christ and by example and precept warn the ungodly. Parents are watchmen over their children, directing them in their religious and moral training and development. The measure of our responsibility for others depends upon our opportunity to help them. The Christian should feel his obligation to give spiritual assistance to others. The responsibility for our own spiritual experience depends upon our opportunity of knowing our duty and the way of life.

How can we live? vs 10-16

The people begin to see that the prophet's words are being fulfilled and ask how it is possible for them who have sinned, to live and survive as a people while suffering the punishment for their sins (v 10). Hope is held out to them if they will forsake their sins (v11). God wishes them to repent and live. That will give Him joy. Each one must decide personally between living and death spiritually. Past goodness will not save the righteous one if he falls away into sin. The wicked one who turns from his sin in repentance, finds forgiveness (vs 12-14). This is the heart of Christ's Gospel. Righteousness is positive goodness, doing the right and lawful. The prophet makes clear the personal responsibility of each one to God. We must give an account to Him (Rom. 14:12). The sincerity of repentance is shown by the readiness to make restitution, by obeying the laws of God (v 15).

Perseverance in righteousness is essential to winning God's approval. It is fatally easy to trust in past spiritual experiences. Our own deeds will determine our future destiny. We are personally responsible for them. All that is wrong must be repented of and be replaced by that which is good (Rev. 2:5).

A FEW QUESTIONS

(Mainly for thoughtful consideration)

By J. B. Epp

Will they likely be right who believe that the present European struggle and the China-Japan war, may end up in the formation of the two main groups of nations that are to meet in the end-time of this "age" (not the End of the World) in Armageddon? Is there enough evidence of this, so that we should pay attention to such an interpretation of present day happenings in this "world crisis"? That this is a "crisis", seems to be generally believed.

Is it not at least very significant that the "Kingdom of the North", Gog and Magog, Rosh (Russia), with the principal cities: Mesech (Mosc-ow) and Tubal Tobol-sk ("ow" and "sk" are common Russian word-endings), united with Gomer generally conceded to be Germany) is clearly forming?

The small countries northwest of these two principle nations will go along with them. The large nations are "liquidating" the small countries at their will, it seems. Look at Korea, Manchuria, Austria, Poland, Checho-Slovakia, Memel, (Linland, Baltic lands), Denmark, Norway, the Netherlands, Albania, Ethiopia, etc. The Balkan States next?

The "Kings of the East, or "of the Sunrise" for whom the Euphrates is to dry up, are combining too, quite obviously, Japan and China at least (!?) What India may do, when independent, remains to be seen. Some believe that these "Kings of the Rising Sun" will fight (at Armageddon) on the side of GoG and Magog. The smaller countries of Asia will likely share the fate of the small nations elsewhere. And the "King of the South", some leading nation of Africa, possibly a group of nations, will they not be on the side of the great revived "Roman Empire"? ,,

And what about this latter? The "Roman Empire". Will Italy, Rome, keep waiting until the Allies and Germany have sufficiently weakened one another, so that Mussolini can step in and "dictate the peace", as he has repeatedly intimated? For, if the revived Roan Empire is to have about the same boundaries as the "Old Empire" under Ceasar,then England (not all of Briton) and France are to belong to it, at least as allies. And if Rome then can "dictate the peace", will it not be an easy matter for her to "take" what she has asked for already of France and England, in North Africa, and in and around the Mediterranean Sea?—including the two great gateways, Gibraltar and Suez?

Looking up in Bible maps ,the extent of the Old Roman Empire, we find that the Northeast boundary was the Rhine and the Danube, the latter not strictly so, and including all the countries bordering on the "Great Sea", the Mediterranean. And, with Germany being weakened, will it be difficult for Russia, the leading nation of the Gog and Magog set-up (?!) to dictate to Germany?

But where does America come in? Among the "Islands of the Sea"?

Is it worthwhile to entertain such thoughts as these? Is this one of the "Signs of the Times"? Are we not to study diligently these and other "Signs of the Times"? Or, are we perhaps soon to see an "armed peace", such as many have expected, and labored for, for some time? The "Sitz-krieg" (sitting-down war) on the West front and Italy's behavior seemed to indicate this, for a while. Still, is not a "False Peace", a deceiving peace, prophesied in Scripture?—in the midst of "Wars and rumors of wars"? Should we look for such a peace?

Is this conquering of weaker nations by stronger ones, called "grabbing" something new under the sun"? Are not Ancient, and modern, times full of this? See History of modern times, called"History of Civilization" (!?) Is this not a deplorable fact that we are going back, and very fast, too, into barbarism and paganism? are so-called "Christian nations" exceptions to the rule? Which nations?

P. S. This is written at the request of several parties.

NOTICE ORATORS

The Western District Young Peoples' Oratory Contest will be held on June 2nd, in connection with the Mennonite Song Festival. The contest will be held in the College chapel at 5 P. M.—The divisions of the contest are Mission and Peace. The winners will get a free Retreat at Camp Wood this year.—If you have not sent your entry in to Mr. Edwin Stucky, Moundridge, Kansas, please do so at once.

Assistance to Aged Ministers and Minister's Widows

Address by A. S. Bechtel at the Western District Ministers' Conference

"What approach can we make in giving assistance to our aged ministers and widows of ministers?" I shall also quote the paragraph following this question from the letter of the Secretary of the program committee as this will indicate what was in the mind of the committee. Quote—"The committee did not have in mind the pension plan that is now being studied by the General Conference, but rather some form of more immediate emergency help, especially in critical cases." From this standpoint then, we shall attempt to discuss this knotty problem which in our humble judgment is decidedly a laymen's problem to solve.

I think of emergency, critical cases as embracing serious, prolonged, perhaps sudden illness, serious misfortunes, accidents, unforseen emergency expenses because of such occurances, death of the aged minister or wife and all these, in cases where the minister and wife were unable to accumulate and make proper provision for such emergency in old age. The designation "aged ministers and widows" definitely limits the scope of this discussion.

This question before us acknowledges several facts by its very presence—

First—the fact that we have a problem that is as yet unsolved.

Second—the fact that our ministers of today do not so generally as formerly, have an independent income which makes them self-supporting and reasonably comfortably provided for, when old age comes with its possible emergencies.

Third—the fact that this is a newer problem, that the time is ripe to consider it seriously, and that our churches need to make provision for its solution, and that this problem has been too long neglected.

I shall not argue the need of a solution, for I take that to be an admitted fact. Christian love demands a solution of the problem, and the realities as they ARE.

1. From the very beginning of the Christian Church definite emphasis was placed on the care of the poor, those needing help in the Church. The early Church was careful about this and seemingly did it well. Is it saying too much that we perhaps need a re-emphasis on this part of our Church work today in our own fellowship? Our Church teaches Christian love for our neighbors, as Jesus definitely taught that. Surely then, this should include aged ministers, if such should need assistance, as our nearest neighbors.

Let us be more specific. Some congregations have solved this problem in a noble and indeed Christian way. Their pastors had served them for long years and without remuneration sufficient to enable them to accumulate for inevitable old age. Then, when they were no longer able to serve, they gave them a generous allowance until the end of life. I learn that one of our W.Con. congregations did that for its long-time pastor and elder. I think of the First Church of Phila. Pa. of which I was a member for fourteen years. When Bro. N. B. Grubb, for 39 years pastor of the Church, was obliged to relinquish his work in 1921, on account of weakened health, the congregation voted him a $65 a month pension as pastor emeritus, and paid it regularly until his death in 1938. I learn too that the Second Church of Phila. is now helping the widow of her long time pastor who passed away in 1938.

Another fact we need to face. Our ministers, pastors in charge of congregations, are now quite generally expected to devote their full time and strength to the duties of their ministry in the congregation and community. It is quite definitely obvious that they can not engage in a money-making occupation with which to suport their families, and at the same time give their best to the work as minister. Very few indeed are the men with sufficient physical strength to do full justice to their congregations as minister, pastor, and at the same time give the needed strength and attention to making a living for their family. One or the other must inevitably suffer. Neither should suffer.

Our ministers far less generally have a farm income or some other income on which they can live, or largely help them and theirs to live. Our ministry is not limited to the well-to-do, as may possibly much more have been the case in earlier years. The time is passed when, as a brother minister of another branch of our Church said one time, one requirement for being a bishop was the owning of at least two good farms. The time has come when some of our ministers are finding it impossible to lay by a reserve for an emergency or for old age, from the support they are receiving as pastors.

2. I shall offer several suggestions which may possibly be made helpful in the solution of this problem. Generally speaking, it would be better perhaps, to help such who need assistance, to help themselves. Avoid the charity complex, if at all possible. In this way the acute need of emergency assistance might be avoided, and that would be helping in a real way. It is rather difficult to keep one's thinking here from merging into the pension plan for aiding the aged and incapacitated pastors. There is some work which Conference Boards have to do and which our Western Conference Home Mission Committee has to do, which could perhaps be done to some extent at least, by such who may need assistance. A movement seems to be on foot to establish a home for returned missionaries in Newton, where they may live while on furlough if they so desire. Possibly it could be arranged to make such a home a combined home for missionaries on furlough and for aged ministers and their wives, and ministers widows, who may need assistance either permanently or temporarily. The individual congregations or the Conference as such would need to give the needed support. Perhaps an arrangement could be made with the Old Peoples Home in Newton or Goessel to care for needy cases.

Our question, however, calls for aid in more distinctly emergency cases of need. Emergency aid in cases of sickness, accident, misfortune overtaking the aged minister or his wife, or death taking one or the other away. How can we help if and when it is needed? What can our congregations do? What can we as a Conference do? This partakes decidedly of the nature of some form of "Old Age Security." We have been hearing much of this in the past few years as a part of the plans of our government. Shall we let the government take care of those of our number in the ministry who may need assistance?

One way that could be made helpful would be for the different congregations, and possibly the Conference also, to build up a fund to be used for just such a purpose as we are discssing. To help in emergencies and especially so where the support of the aged minister has in past years ben meager and small, making it impossible for him to provide for such emergencies.

Another way that suggests itself is, that the congregations provide for some form of insurance that will provide for death benefits, like the Mennonite Aid Society, to which many of our people belong. In this, both the minister and his wife can be protected against being left in need at the death of one or the other. The congregations could readily pay such assesments from year to year. Another way would be for congregations to provide for some sick or accident benefit insurance, better call it protection, for their pastors. Many of our Mennonite Ministers belong to the "Ministers Life and Causualty Union" of Minneapolis, Minn. If congregations would arrange to pay the assessments, which are not large, for their pastors, it would make some provision for just such emergencies as the question before us indicates. This would be a practical and certainly effective means of helping in the time of life of the minister when most needed, and would not bring any hardship to the congregation.

A well known brother in our Conference writes this in reference to this problem under discussion. I quote "We have in the Western District Conference a Relief Committee. Why should not this committee, in cases where churches are negligent in their duties toward their needy ministers or their widows, assume the responsibility for providing aid for them? That work could be easily expanded."

The chief problem, it seems to me, is not so much, can we devise some way to solve this question,—but much the rather, Will we seriously try to solve it both as congregations and as a Conference?

The best approach to this problem, it seems to me,

(Concluded on page 11)

R. Weinbrenner
Editor
Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen
Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers
Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

Things That Never Happen in Church

Ushers calling for help in carrying the offering. Ministers insisting that the people attend only one service each Sunday in order to make room for others. A dozen people asking the minister for some really definite work to do during the week. A dozen families asking the ushers to place them on the front seats. Every one in the audience reaching for a hymn book when the number is announced and then singing heartily. Every head reverently bowed during prayer. No whispering or reading of papers during the service. The minister saying, "I have rushed from one thing to another all week. I have spent less than three hours in revising this old sermon which is rather out of date, but I will endeavor to make it fit the occasion." The ladies' aid society hoping that the preacher's wife will bring to the next meeting a long list of things that ought to be done in the parsonage at once. The "old-timers" graciously giving way to newcomers, confident that the newcomers will be able to do much better work than they have done. No one getting up or moving about or leaving the room during the service. The middle of the pews filled first. Each one speaking to the person next to him at the close of the service and inviting him to come again. The names and addresses of all strangers handed to the minister at the close of the service. —The Churchman.

What I Liked About the 1939 Retreat

As the Retreat of 1940 is rapidly approaching, I am looking forward to it more than ever. Nowhere in all my experiences have I found such a beautiful combination of Christian fellowship and intimacy with God in His out of doors, under the wonderful teachers who led us.

Never will the memories of the cool, hushed Quiet Hour under the big tree, of the inspired words of the communion Service spoken beside the rippling lake, as of the Vesper Hour with its background of the setting sun, leave me. All these phrases are merely words spoken ineffectivly against the reality of the Retreat itself. It just seems that nothing can express the infinity of the impression received there.

Emmylu Goertz
Western District Retreat '38 and '39

There is nothing greater than Christian fellowship.

"The day was long; the burden I had borne seemed heavier than I could longer bear. And then it lifted—but I did not know some one had knelt in prayer." Grace Noll Crowell.

"YOUR HEAVENLY FATHER KNOWETH"

He asked for strength that he might achieve; he was made weak that he might obey.

He asked for health that he might do greater things; he was given infirmity that he might do better things.

He asked for riches that he might be happy; he was given poverty that he might be wise.

He asked for power that he might have the praise of men; he was given weakness that he might feel the need of God.

He asked for all things that he might enjoy life; he was given life that he might enjoy all things.

He received nothing he asked for, all that he hoped for. His prayer is answered. He is blessed. —Author Unknown.

Contributed by Helen A. Penner.

BLUFFTON NEWS-BITS

Betty Amstutz, who served as treasurer of the Y. W. C. A. during the past year and was a member of the Vesper Choir and the Girl's Varsity "B," was elected president of the Y. W. C. A. for the coming year. Marjorie Bloomquist was the president this year.

Bertran Smucker, sophomore of Bluffton, was re-elected president of the Peace Action club.

Karl Schultz, Bluffton College senior, has been awarded a graduate scholarship in economics for the coming year at Haverford University, Philadelphia, Penn.

Various Bluffton organizations are making plans to have a foreign student on the campus next year.

— "WHAT IS PRAYER? It is a sign of spiritual life. I should as soon expect life in a dead man as spiritual life in a prayerless soul! Our spirituality and our fruitlessness are always in proportion to the reality of our prayers. If, then, we have at all wandered away from home in the matter of prayer, let us today resolve, "I will arise and go unto my Father, and say unto Him, Father . . ."—From "The Kneeling Christian."

Senior Department

Senior C. E. Topic for June 16, 1940.

CHALLENGES TO AMERICAN YOUTH

Main Topic: What Challenges A Youth? I Tim. 6:11-16

I. Worship Service.

1. Songs: "What a fellowship"
   "The Son of God goes forth to war"
   "When peace like a river"
   "Come we, that love the Lord"
2. Reading of main topic and prayer.
3. "I want my life to tell for Jesus"
   Men's Quartette:
4. Offering for Missions.

II. Leaders Introduction.

In other lands, youth have been challenged by naziism, by fascism, by communism, by militarism. In America, it does not yet appear that any large body of young people have been aroused to action by any single challenge. Many causes have their followings. But as yet no one cause has caught up the enthusiasm of a majority of the youth of our land.

What an opportunity for our Mennonite young people to become leaders in the cause of peace. We have held the paece principle as our own for 400 years. Is it not about time we did something to live it more constructively than a good many of us have so far? What can we do to bring peace to men, among men, between men, between nations?

In our war-torn times, can we prove to the world that Christ's way works by living lives of love and service, by refusing to give room to prejudice and to hatred? Should we be ready to work amidst those who suffer terribly through war by caring for their orphans, trying to alleviate hunger and sickness? Would that help the cause of peace?

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks.

1. Challenge of a foe met. I Sam. 17:40-52.
2. Challenge of of a big task. Josh. 1:2-7
3. A challenge of faith. Matt. 17:14-21.
4. The challenge of Christ. Luke 9:23-26.
5. A challenge rejected. Luke 18:18-23.
6. Challenge of spiritual warfare. Eph. 6:10-18.

IV. Facts for Study.

Christian young people ought to have strong convictions. Study of God's word, wide reading, association with people of fine character, diligence in prayer, self-surrender to God's will, faithful daily living, these will be helpful to give strong convictions.

In regard to peace, let us consider that God is at peace. He is "the God of peace." He preached peace. The angles thus heralded Jesus' birth: "On earth peace, good will toward men." Harmony and peace go together. We are told in the modern translation of the Bible. "In quietness and confidence we shall win our lives." The Beatitude says, "Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God"—children of the God of peace.

Second: Peace was the final gift which Christ gave to his disciples and apostles. He said, "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you." He could have given any thing he desired—"All power is given unto me," but his final legacy to those followers was peace. Not gold, not gems, not fame, not fortune, not even friendships and fidelities, but peace.

Third, Peace begins within the hearts of men. When enough individuals really want peace, we will have it within the world. The only foundation for peace that can be abiding must be God's way and the way of Christ.

V. For Discussion.

1. What do you consider as worthy challenges to a youth?
2. What does it mean to live by one's faith?
3. In what relation are faith and deeds?

VI. Illustrations.

As a symbol of the good will existing among the American republics a "Peace Tree" was planted in a park of Havana. The dirt in which it is planted was taken from each of the twenty-one republics. The lock to the gate of the fence which surrounds the tree must be opened with twenty-one keys, each in the hands of one of the nations. It is a symbol of the good will and mutual dependence of the American republics.

After the World War a cannon was brought to a Canadian city just accross the border from the United States to be placed in the park. The authorities discovered, however, that the park overlooked the border and said, "There has never been a gun of any kind on this border. We will not place the cannon here, even though it is only for decorative purposes." And the cannon was not placed in their park.

VII. Food for Thought.

Thou art the man that God would send!
Pray not another soul should be
What thou refusest to become,
Nor do the work God gives to thee.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

Boys and Girls Together

June 16, 1940.

For Daily Reading.

June 10. Children of Light. Eph. 5:1-14.
June 11. Youthful examples. 1 Tim. 4:12.
June 12. Unequally yoked. 2 Cor. 6:14-15.
June 13. True womanly worth. Prov. 31:30-31.
June 14. Rival helpers. Heb. 10:19-24.
June 15. Victory over the world. 1 John 5:1-5.
June 16. Topic. 1 Cor. 9:24-27.

Call to Worship:

Be cheerful. Be courteous. Be a dynamo of irrepressible happiness. Assist everyone. Let your life be like unto a rose; though silent it speaks in the language of fragrance.

God's love is in you and for you. Share it with others through association. Do not court separation from the creatures, but unite with them in love. To know yourself through your fellow men is to know God.

—From a Persian Rosary—M. A. Sohrab

Song: "I Would Be True"
Scripture Reading: 1 Cor. 9:24-27
Prayer by Superintendent
Vocal Quartet: "Somebody"

Discuss the following subjects and how they affect boys and girls working and playing together.

1. Naturalness. "The conceited youth soon becomes the butt of his companions. The young men who put on the 'side' and the young women who are artificial in their manners and atitudes, are soon detected by their companions, and either shunned or ridiculed. —Francis E. Clark

2. Modesty. The modest man does not think "more highly of himself than he ought to think."

3. Consideratness.
4. Ready wit. Do we need the ability to say the right thing at the right time in order to work together?

Song: "Brighten the Corner Where you Are"

Offering:

Do not condemn a single soul. In condemning him you ar condemning yourself. Never for an instant forget that he is also a child of God. Upon the vast sea of spirit there is room for every sail. In the limitless sky of truth there is room for every wing.!

—Persian Rosary

Sentence Prayers

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

THE BEATITUDES

Program for June 16, 1940

Matthew 5:7 - "Blessed are merciful: for they shall obtain mercy."

Matthew 5:8 - "Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God."

I. Worship Service:

1. Prelude: Pianist plays the melody of: " I need Thee Every Hour"
2. Call to Worship. Sing in unison all heads are bowed, "The Lord is in His Holy Temple, Let all the earth keep silence before Him." Heb. 2:20.
3. Scripture reading by three Juniors:
   First voice, Matthew 25:31-40.
   Second Voice, Matthew 25:41-46.
   Third Voice, Psalm 103:1-3, 8-12, 17, 18.
4. Leader's opening prayer.
5. Song, "Somebody Did a Golden Deed", Service Hymnal No. 370.
6. The Story of the "Good Samaritan." (A chalk talk or an illustrated story,) by an older Junior.
7. Solo from rear of church, "A Little Bit of Love," Service Hymnal No. 438.
8. In unison repeat Matthew 5:7.

II. Study Period

Aim, To make the fifth and sixth Beatitude meaningful to our Juniors. This to result in fervent desire and prayer that the qualities of mercy and purity may be theirs.

1. Concert reading of the Beatitudes that have been studied thus far.
2. A Junior discusses "What is it to be merciful?"
3. Short talks on the following:
   a. Show mercy and compassion every man . . . to his brother. Zech. 7:9.
   b. If thine enemy is hungry . . . Prov. 25:21.
   c. Let not mercy and truth forsake thee. Prov. 3:3.
4. Verses from memory by a Junior boy, Matthew 5:38-48.
5. An older Junior discusses, "In what way does God give us mercy?"
6. Bible Drill: Luke 6:36; Rom. 12:20, 21; Matt. 5:44; 1 Pet. 3:8; Prov. 25:21; Zech. 7:9; Prov. 3:3; Ps. 103:8; Jer. 32:18; Luke 6:36.
7. An older person may give a short talk on the fifth Beatitude.
8. All read Matthew 5:8.
9. Sing in unison "Lord Jesus I Long to Be Perfectly Whole."
10. Short talks on the following:
    a. "Keep thyself pure." 1 Tim. 5:22.
    b. Think on "What so ever things are pure." Phil 4:8.
    c. "Thy wisdom that is from above is first pure." Jos. 3:17a.
11. Duet, "Though Your Sins Be as Scarlet", Service Hymnal No. 463.
12. Pastor talks to the children on "How can we receive a pure heart?"
13. All bow heads and pray, "Create in me a clean heart, O God and renew a right spirit within me." Ps. 51:10.
14. Sing in unison, "When He Cometh."

III. Mission Minutes

Discuss together (a) "Why we send missionaries out to the mission field"; (b) "Can we be missionaries here at home?"

IV. Closing Moments

1. Repeat verse of the month from memory.
2. Stand and sing "Blessed Assurance".
3. Pray together the Lord's Prayer.

4. As the Juniors leave the pianist plays very softly "I Need Thee Every Hour."

(Concluded from page 8)

lies in giving to the ministers of our Churches such adequate support that, with reasonably careful management on their part, they may be enabled to make provision, through the years, for themselves and their wives for just such emergencies as we have been thinking of and for a reasonably comfortable security for old age. Paul has something to say along this line and he can certainly not be accused of being in the work of the ministry for the sake of the money that was in it for him. Read 1 Cor. 9:14 and Gal. 6:6,7.

It surely should not be considered out of place nor wrong for the minister to be able to lay aside something for emergencies and old age. The Lord expects them to do this. The minister's needs and his wife's needs are the same as those of the layman. Then too we need to keep in mind that as a rule, ministers' families are expected to make sacrifices frequently.

The time seems to have come when our congregations and our Conference need to plan seriously, need to see the need for such planning, to meet and solve this problem before it becomes a larger and heavier problem. A good many other denominations have made provisions for it in "Ministers Retirement Funds" or similar arrangements under another name. They have arranged for a part salary pension plan for aged ministers and their widows. Such a plan will provide for emergencies before they exist, and that is the most effective provision.

Northern District Conference Program

Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebraska
June 2 to 5, 1940

Conference Motto: Ye also, as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, an holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ, 1 Peter 2:5.

Saturday, Ministerial Conference

Leader, Rev. I. J. Dick, Mountain Lake, Minn.

The afternoon session at 5:00 in connection with a lunch served by the local church. Especially arranged for ministers and deacons.

Subject: Round table discussion of problems and issues confronting ministers and churches. All ministers come prepared to state their problems.

Saturday Evening, 7:30

Leader, Rev. I. J. Dick.

Thema: Die Aufgabe des Predigers zur Belehrung der Glieder bezueglich seiner Pflichten in der Gemeinde, Rev. J. F. Sawatzky, Madrid, Nebraska.

Thema: Die Berufung und Einsegnung des Kandidaten fuers Predigtamt, Rev. Ed. Duerkson, Alsen, N. D.

Sunday Morning, 9:30

Local pastor leader
Home mission sermon, Dr. H. A. Fast
Foreign mission sermon, Missionary P. W. Penner
Singing in charge of the local church
Mission offering

Sunday Afternoon, 2:00

Conference sermon, by the Conference president, Rev. J. A. Tieszen, Marion, S. D. Appointment of committees.

Observations from the mission field, Missionary P. W. Penner.

Children's meeting during the afternoon of Sunday. In charge of local committee.

Special singing

All choirs of the various Conference Churches will be assigned to sing at different occasions.

Sunday Evening—Sunday School Program

Leader, Edwin P. Graber

Theme: Suggested plans for Sunday School memory work, North Dakota

Music: Bethel S. S., Mountain Lake, Minn.

Discussion: Sunday School problems and their solutions. The problems are to be presented by a representative from each state of our district. (Limited to 5 minutes each).

Solutions for the above problems open for discussion.

Peace Talk: Rev. Walter Dyck, Beatrice, Nebraska

Music by the various choirs of the Conference.

Monday Morning and Afternoon

Introduction. Prayer hour. Five minute quiet meditation. Season of prayer.

Leader, Herbert Widmer, Bloomfield, Montana.

Communion service. In charge of Rev. J. A. Thieszen

Communion sermon, Missionary P. W. Penner

Geschaeftliches: a. Entgegennahme der Delegatenzeugnisse. b. Verlesen des Protokolls der vorigen Sitzung.—c. Bericht des Ehrenstimmenkomitees.—d. Bericht des Werbekomitees. — e. Bericht des Schatzmeisters.—f. Bericht des Komitees fuer Schule und Erziehung.—g. Bericht des Pruefungskomites. — h. Bericht des Evangelisationskomitees.

Theme: New tasks for our Northern District Conference. A comparison with the other District Conferences, Dr. H. A. Fast.

Young People's meeting during business session.

Monday Evening—Young People's Meeting

Leader, Selma Dick, Mountain Lake, Minn.

Topic: Young peoples' work in our Northern District Conference. How does it compare with the work in the other Districts of our conference? Bethel C. E., Mountain Lake, Minn.

Open Discussion of the above theme.

Music: Bethany, Freeman, S. D.

Retreat pictures. Rev. Walter Dyck, Beatrice, Nebr.

Tuesday Morning—Education

Devotionals in charge of Rev. Helmut Ortmann, Munich, N. Dak.

Theme: Building a spiritual priesthood through our Christian education. To be brought by a members of the Educational Committee.

Unfinished business

Tuesday Afternoon—Women's Missionary Program

General singing

Roll call. Each society respond in any way they wish

Music: Salem Mennonite Church, Freeman, S. Dak.

Thema: Was ist meine Aufgabe als Glied des Naehvereins? Mary Bargen, Mountain Lake, Minn.

Duet: First Mennonite, Madrid, Nebr.

Recitation: Bethlehem Mennonite, Bloomfield, Montana.

Theme: How can we awaken more interest for the mission society? Swiss Mennonite siciety, Alsen, N. D.

Reading: Wisner, Nebraska

Music: Bethel, Mountain Lake, Minnesota

Talk: Our India Mission, Mrs. P. W. Penner (German)

Talk: The Indian mission in Montana, Miss Marie Buller

Offering

Tuesday Evening

Bible lecture: Dr. P. R. Schroeder (German)

Evangelistic Sermon: Rev. Jacob A. Friesen, Doland, S. Dak. (English)

Special singing before and after the speakers.

Wednesday—Young People's Day

Motto: The Christian in the Modern World

Forenoon

Devotionals, Rev. Ed. Duerksen, Alsen, N. Dak.

Peace Talk: Rev. Walter Dyck, Beatrice, Nebr.

General discussion at close

Social Hour at noon for all young people

Talk: Our South American Mennonite Youth, Dr. H. A. Fast

Recreation in charge of local committee

Wednesday Evening

Chairman, Rev. Albert Schultz, Butterfield, Minn.

Evangelistic Sermon, Missionary P. W. Penner

Consecration Meeting.

IN MEMORIAM

HEINRICH U. SCHMIDT, SON OF PETER H. AND ANNA UNRAU SCHMIDT, was born September 17, 1878 in Marion Co. Kansas. In 1899 he was baptized upon the confession of faith by Elder Peter Balzer and became a member of the Alexanderwohl Mennonite Church, of which he was a faithful member until his death. He was united in holy matrimony with Emma Unruh, on May 3, 1905. To this union were born three children, two daughters and a son. The son, Gerhard, preceded him in death. It was very hard for the father to see his only son taken by death. Later they took two other children into their home. One daughter and a son. The daughter also died. Four grand children called him grandfather. Many ailments came to him. We must say that he loved to sing and he repeated many Bible verses from memory. He enjoyed it very much when others came to sing for him. Last October he got sick and we tried to get for him all medical care possible. But God's way was not our way, but better. Last Easter Pneumonia set in which made him very weak. Then his heart began to fail and he died May 12,1940. He suffered very much during the last weeks, though we did what we could to ease him. We feel assured that we will meet him in the land where there is no parting. He reached the age of 61 years, 9 months and 9 days. He leaves to mourn his early departure, his wife, at Hillboro, Kansas, and Johnny L, and Sarah Lehrman Duerksen, three grand children, Dorothy and Roy Regier, and Donald Duerksen. Also two brothers and two sisters, and many other relatives and friends.

Psm. 89:1. "I will sing of the mercies of the Lord forever. With my mouth will I make known thy faithfulness to all generations."

The bereaved family.

At the funeral Rev. P. H. Unruh spoke on I Sam. 7:12, Rev. B. H. Jantzen on Isaiah 51:11, Rev. J. H. Epp on Psalm 23:2 and 4.

MRS. MARY WITTMER, DAUGHTER OF JOHN AND BARBARA WITTMER, was born near Summerfield, Illinois, on August 11, 1850. She passed away at her late home near Summerfield on Sunday, May 12, 1940, from the infirmities of old age and other complications. She attained the ripe old age of 89 years, 9 months, and 1 day.

On September 13, 1863, she was baptized by Rev. John Schmidt and received into the fellowship of the Summerfield Mennonite church, of which she remained a member untill her death.

On October 26, 1868, she was united in marriage with Henry Wittmer. To this union were born 10 children, 9 of whom passed away in their infancy or early childhood. Since their own children did not survive, they made a home for four other orphans. Brother Wittmer passed away on September 26, 1915.

She leaves to mourn her departure her son, Louis, a daughter-in-law, 6 grand children, many nephews and nieces and other relatives and friends.—Funeral services were held at the First Mennonite church at Summerfield, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Elmer Basinger. Interment was made in the Summerfield cemetery.

CORRESPONDENCE

MENNONITE CHURCH, WAYLAND, IOWA

March 21, we had the rare privilege of hearing the Bethel College Male Quartette, accompanied by Rev. and Mrs. Felix Schrag. They are a group of great ability as singers and splendid all around young folks, whom it was a pleasure to entertain in our homes.— Apr. 11, we enjoyed another spiritual feast, while hearing the Bluffton College Vesper choir sing for us at the H. S. Auditorium. This is also a very fine group of young people.—Apr. 15. Rev. Penner conducted the funeral service of Mrs. Anna Tschantz, a member of our congregation. She had been in failing health for three years.—April. 21, Rev. John Salzman (18) student at Wheaton College, Ill., and a former Wayland boy, brought an interesting message to a crowded house.—Apr. 23-25, Rev. and Mrs. Penner attended our State S. S. convention in Des Moines on its 75th anniversary. The following Sunday Rev. Penner gave us the high points of the convention, sharing their most uplifting spiritual experience, especially their contact with Dr. Hart, a former personal friend.

May 9 and 10, Rev. and Mrs. P. W. Penner were with us and they very vividly and uniquely described the manner of living by the people of India. It is indeed a privilege to have these consecrated workers bring us a word picture of their great work, to inspire us and give us greater zeal for Kingdom work.—May 12th Mother's Day was observed, including a very helpful message from Mrs. Wm. Penner.

Mr. C. K. S., corr.

GERMANTOWN MENNONITE CHURCH, PHILADELPHIA, PA., 5-15-40

The Germantown Mennonite Church had a "Banner Sunday", on Mothers' Day, May 12, by receiving grandmothers, mothers, and an entire family into the church. They were Mrs. Emma Smaley who came by baptism, Mrs. Carrie Bateman and Mrs. Dorothy Seitz who were received on re-confession of faith. Mr. and Mrs. Vincent S. Clymer and son Everett were received by letter from another Mennonite Church. To receive seven new members since January 1st is a large gain for our church.

The services in our church are well attended and each year show an increase over the previous one.

On Easter Sunday the offering for foreign missions was doubled over the past year. This was due to the fact that the Pastor had given definite instruction as to the missionary cause on the two previous Sundays. The membership was thoroughly inspired with the joy of giving for the spread of the gospel.

We urge all Readers of the Mennonite visiting Philadelphia during the summer and fall to visit and worship in our historical "Mother Mennonite Church", which is located on Germantown Ave., above Herman Street.—Howard T. Landes, Pastor.

BETHEL CHURCH, FORTUNA, ME.

The spring of 1940 is late and cool, with many sunless days which has been very unusual. Our vegetable gardens have made slow growth but in the last week have grown rapidly, due to some warm sunny days.

On March 2 our community sensed a shock of the passing of Mrs. Anna Garber. She was sick only a few hours and death was unexpected. Dr. Ella Bauman's reply to the telegram in words of comfort is found in I Thess. 4:14. Rev. Jacob Unruh preached the funeral sermon, using I Cor. 15:51-58 as the text.

On Good Friday evening the choir of the Bethel church, directed by Rev. Unruh, rendered an Easter Cantata, entitled, "The Prince of Life." On Easter we observed Communion services. Many of our members who live out of the community were able to attend the services. On March 25, an exceptionally large crowd assembled to hear Rev. and Mrs. Ray Osterhouse. The traveling evangelist and his wife gave a musical concert. Some of the important numbers included the "Swiss Bells."

At present our pastor is conducting a class in Catechism. There are nine members enrolled. These members are candidates for Baptism.—The Womens Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Unruh, April 25. The topic for study was, "Work in India." The program was both interesting and instructive. Thirty members attended. Our next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Ira Gerber May 30. The topic for study is China.

Plans are in the making for a Children's Day Service, June 2. Everyone appreciates this service since is is wholly given by children.—A two week Daily vacation Bible School is in prospect, beginning June 3,. The approximate enrollment is from 80 to 100 pupils. One School Bus and several individual cars convey the children to school. Many children outside the Mennonite Homes are enrolled.

Mrs. O. F. Baumgartner, corr.

« « JOTTINGS » »

REV. AND MRS. P. W. PENNER KEPT BUSY

—A Note from Rev. and Mrs. P. W. Penner reached us too late for insertion in last week's MENNONITE. It is dated May 5 and reads thus: On April 24th we left Kansas, have since visited the churches around Beatrice and in the city; from there proceeded to Iowa; since then have spent the days in Chicago. During our stay in the city we could attend various churches, and were specially happy to contact with a number of young Mennonite couples and single persons, to possibly interest them in their denominational obligation, above all for the Lord's Kingdom. From here we are going to canvass the churches at Summerfield, Fortuna, proceed onward to the Oklahoma Convention on 26th and 27th inst. Then return to Newton for the Bethel College Commencement occasion. Immediately upon that proceed to Henderson, Nebr. for the Northern District Conference session, from June 2nd to 5th. In every church mission interest meets our approval, if fanned a little and kept up will be a great encouragement to the cause.—Our health holds out wonderfully and we look hopefully into the future. The day of our sailing for India next fall is looked forward to with joyful anticipation. Would that the war clouds of Europe and the Occident might soon lift to remove the depressing feelings!

—Mennonites around Newton, Kans. serve at H. S. Exercises.—The following served as baccalaureate speakers: Dr. P. H. Richert at Walton, Rev. Ted Roth at Goessel, Rev. P. K. Regier at Moundridge, Rev. J. E. Entz at Newton before a graduating class of 179 and a large audience. Dr. E. L. Harshbarger delivered the commencement address at the Walton high school.

WEDDING

Invitations are out to the wedding of Jacob J. Regier, Jr., member of the First Menn. Church, Newton, Kans., and Miss Betty Catherine Kinzie, member of the Immanuel Menn. Church at Los Angeles, Calif., the event to occur June 14, at 8 p. m. at this church, whose pastor W. A. Regier, brother of the groom, will officiate. The groom is the son of Jacob J. Regier of Whitewater, Kans., and the bride the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Fred V. Kinzie of Kelsey, Calif., home missionaries in the gold mining districts of that locality, Mrs. K. also being a graduate nurse of the Bethel Hospital at Newton, Kans. The prospective couple expect to enter the Lord's service wherever He places them.

—Rev. John M. Franz, Pratum, Oregon, writes: The time has come when we are moving to our new field of service, The Grace Mennonite Church at Albany, Ore. Please change our address to 1114 Santiam Road, Albany, Oregon, after June 1, so that I may regularly receive THE MENNONITE. Also put this notice in the paper. Sincerely, John M. Franz."

—The Mennonite Orphanage of Henderson, Nebr. had a good audience at a program given in the First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kans. by members of the group one Sunday in April. Miss Myrna Gage and Miss Anna Fast, matrons of the home, and several of the children gave an inspirational message of song and testimony. The orphanage deserves to be remembered in our prayers.

—THE BERGFELDER CHURCHES OF DELFT AND MOUNTAIN LAKE, MINNESOTA, have just observed the sixtieth anniversary of their church, and we have an interesting account of it, which is already set. But we asked the correspondent to send us a cut of the church to be used with the article, which we expect to bring June 4.—The churches had baptismal services Sunday, May 12. Eleven young people were received into the church by baptism and two by letter from another church. —Corr.

—Echoes from the Eastern District.— The newly elected officers of the District are: President, Rev. Olin Krehbiel; Vice Pres., Rev. John Plennert; Secretary, Rev. Howard G. Nyce; Treasurer, Mr. Alvin H. Alderfer. The next meeting place will be Lansdale.—The meeting place for the 1941 General Conference is still undecided. Ursinus College, Soudertown, and Allentown were suggested.—Ten of the 24 conference churches in the District are being served by eight men who have been in this Conference less than five years. There are 18 active pastors. This represents a 44 per cent turn-over, the largest in this century.—Rev. Freeman Swartz, pastor of the Schwenksville Church assisted the Schwenksfelder Young People in their course in Leadership training. He taught "A Survey in the New Testament."

—Schwenksville Church Messenger

—Song Festival Practices.—Practices for the Kansas Mennonite Song Festival will be held Sunday, May 26, at 2 p. m. and June 1, at 7:45, in the Bethel College Chapel. The chorals from the Mennonite Hymn Book and the Gesangbuch will be practiced.—Anyone who loves to sing is welcome and invited to come.

—Esther Ratzlaff, Secretary

—Rev. Carl J. Landes, Pastor of the Mennonite Mission Church at 720 W. 26th St., Chicago, writes: It might be well to insert a note in THE MENNONITE concerning my appointment as Widwest Secretary of "The Fellowship of Reconciliation," until October 1, when Mr. Don Smucker will become the secretary. I would like to urge our Mennonite young people to lead out in the present crisis. One of the peace leaders in Chicago, a Presbyterian, said to me the other day, "The biggest contribution the Mennonite, Quakers and Brethren can make, is to stand fast, to give the rest of us, who have not been pacifists long, something to hold on to." I hope they will do their share in this testimony.—Carl J. Landes.

—Mennonite Church, Wadsworth, Ohio.—Recent activities at our church were: A Mother and Daughter banquet, Tuesday evening, May 6, with about 70 in attendance. A committee of men from the church prepared and served the banquet.—Mother's Day was observed with a special program during the Sunday School hour, May 12.

—Rev. A. S. Bechtel, Pastor Menn. Church, Hanston, Kans. writes on May 20: "This west country—out in the Dust Bowl—is feeling quite encouraged since the two fine rains we had last week. We had between two and three inches, all told, and were very nice and steady rains, so that almost all of it soaked into the ground."

—Canada's newly appointed Governor-General says, "British-French success may be very doubtful unless active participation of the United States is made effective at an early date. Every day the United States delays in joining the allies, will only prolong the war and increase the effort and the sacrifice that the United States may be called upon to make to save herself from the fate that now threatens all the democracies of the world." —Freeman Courier.

—Bethel College.—This week is commencement week at Bethel. A brief review of the doings will appear next week.—The Newton-Bethel College Community Chorus, with Prof. Hohmann as director, sang the oratorio "Elijah", Friday, May 18 in the evening. Three students of the music department sang the solos as follows: Soprano, Vera Friesen; Contralto, Gladys Graber; Tenor, Ed Willems; O. Smith of Wichita the baritone parts.—The Senior play, "Minick" was splendidly performed. The story centers around an old man who comes to live with his son and wife. His desire to give the young couple the benefit of his experience produces scenes both pathetic and humorous. There is a steady moral tone throughout the play.

— PASTORAL MESSAGE: In the presence of grave world crises, the cry of America seems to be: WE MUST BE PREPARED. The prophet Amos, who also lived in a day of world crises, also advocated PREPAREDNESS. He tried to promote the highest type of preparedness, not to meet human enemies, but to meet Divine Judgment. "Prepare to meet thy God" was the campaign slogan of Amos. Is it not true that America needs moral and spiritual PREPAREDNESS more than any other kind? We must be PREPARED to meet God.—Bulletin, Second Church, Philadelphia.

— THRIFT.—Do we as a people here in America today look upon thrift as a virtue? Screaming from the pages of every magazine in the land are advertisements in artistic display, which tempt both young and old to buy luxuries which outrage the teachings of Benjamin Franklin; luxuries which cheapen the character of mankind and fasten the shackles of slavery around his ankles. —From "The Romancer" — Bluffton College.—Karl Schultz, Bluffton senior and son of Dean and Mrs. Schultz, has been awarded a graduate scholarship in economics at Haverford University, Philadelphia.—Dr. C. H. Smith, Professor of History at Bluffton, is completing another book on Mennonite history, entitled " The Story of the Mennonites". The book will cover the European and American experiences, wanderings and settlements of the Mennonites, their church life and facts about their institutions, customs, characteristics, etc. Dr. Smith's books are painstakingly written as to facts and are fresh and interesting. Many are anxious to see this new history.

— Freeman Jr. College.—School has closed. Rev. J. E. Sippel of the Evangelical Church at Parker, gave a very interesting and instructive baccalaureate sermon.—The men's quartet, with Prof. Toews as director, will tour the states of Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana and Nebraska, singing at about twenty places.—At commencement Rev. C. E. Krehbiel of Newton, Kans. gave the address to a large and appreciative audience.

— Attorney C. M. Enns, a man of Mennonite extraction and rather remarkable in his professional practice, died recently in Los Angeles, Calif. Dr. J. H. Enns and Mr. P. W. Enns of Newton, Kans. are brother and nephew, respectively of the departed. Attorney Enns declined to use his profession to get rich. He preferred to serve those who had been unjustly wronged, to obtain justice for their grievances. In such cases he asked little or nothing for his help. How different this from so many lawyers who try to grow rich on the misfortunes of others! Would that we had more of this Enns type. In Los Angeles Mr. Enns belonged to the Society of Quakers.

—From "Der Herold"

— Rev. C. H. Dirks of Hutchinson, Kans. justly complains that in last week's Jottings his name was distorted to E. D. Dirks. It is C. H. DIRKS.

Program of Mennonite Song Festival

To be held Sunday, June 2, at Bethel College

(Not quite complete at time of going to press)

Afternoon Program — 2:30

General singing
Worship service -------------- Rev. A. E. Funk
Eden Choir -------------- Jacob J. Goering
Pretty Prairie Ladies' choir -- Miss Lillian Pauls
"Remember Now Thy Creator"
Guhr Brothers Gospel Quartet ----- Tabor Church
"Just a Little Talk With Jesus"
Hoffnungsau Men's Chorus ------ John Reimer
Halstead Community Chorus ---- Howard Farrar
Inman Ladies' Choir ---------- Mrs. C. C. Wiens
"No Evil Shall Befall Thee"
Choral Singing ------------ Prof. W. H. Hohmann
Alexanderwohl Men's Chorus ---- Herbert Franz
"A Mighty Fortress is Our God"
Wichita Choir -------------- Mr. Floyd Craft
"Wake the Song of Jubilee"
"Sweet Sabbath Evening"
Newton Male Quartet
"Hold Thou my Hand"
Hoffnungsau Ladies' Choir ---- Mrs. Wm. Buller Johannesthal Choir ---------- Mr. Wesley Bartel
"Sing unto God"
Emmaus Choir -------------- Mrs. G. H. Dyck
"The Lord is my Sheperd"
Offering
Newton First Mennonite Orchestra
"Gloria" from "The Farmer's Mass"
Benediction

Evening Program — 7:00

Band program ---------- Prof. David Suderman
General Singing — Devotionals
Newton First Menn. Young Peoples Choir
Mr. Orlando Andres
"Praise Ye the Name of the Lord"
Lehigh Men's Chorus -------- Mr. G. F. Friesen
"Guide Me O Thou Great Jehovah"
Christian Ladies' Choir -- Mr. Edward C. Schrag
"Praise Ye the Father"
Inman City Four
Hillsboro First Menn. Choir ---- Mr. Jake Bartel
"O Sing unto the Lord"
Bethel College Church Men's Chorus
Mr. Paul Baumgartner
"Praise the Lord O my Soul"
Hebron Choir -------------- Mr. P. R. Lohrentz
West Zion Ladies' Choir ---- Mr. Nelson Krehbiel
Buhler Men's Chorus -------- Mr. Herbert Buller
"The King of Love"
Offering
Xylophone solo ---------- Miss Alida Mae Vogt
"Largo" by Handel
Choral Singing ---------- Prof. W. H. Hohmann
Benediction

WANTED! FIVE HUNDRED PEOPLE TO SING CHORALS

Everybody who can sing, old and young, come, join in singing the old, favorite chorals at the Song Festival. Come to the practice, if possible, June 1, at 7:45 p. m. in the Bethel College chapel. You old timers surely want to take part in singing those grand German chorals. Come! Help make it a grand chorus of five hundred at least!

Rev. G. A. Linscheid Ja 41 List
Canton, Oklahoma M

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, JUNE 4, 1940 NUMBER ~~22~~ 23

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

EDITORIAL

This is the time of graduation. Tens of thousands of young people are being turned out by our schools into a world that looks menacing. Much of what they learned in twelve to sixteen or more years in school is already or will be forgotten. But the memory of the lives and influence of their teachers will be largely retained. Would that these, from grades through college, might all be real Christians who in their instruction and their daily contact with the pupils might pattern after the Great Teacher! It is a serious, yes, a dangerous thing to place our children and young people into the care of teachers whose lives are not aligned with God and His purpose for the amelioration of mankind. —T

THE WAR GOES ON UNABATED.—The bloodiest, the most reckless, the most destructive, the most unholy of wars in all history is still going on with unabated fury, with no end in sight. It seems as though the demoniac forces of the underworld are let loose in an herculean effort to destroy mankind and all that he has wrought, by butchering numberless innocent lives, precious to God; by destroying the places dear to men, their homes, and depriving them of all else that was near and dear to them, themselves to be left wandering in no man's lands, with no aid nor succor in sight; and all this with weapons and engines of destruction so terrible that the design for them must have been devised by the arch enemy and lodged in the minds of men to do his bidding. Who would have thought of the possibility of such armaments if they had not become a reality? The cost of engines and tools of war, the loss in ships and other craft, with their material cargoes, that have been sunk, or otherwise destroyed, is incalculable and will mean impoverishment for coming generations. However, the worst part of the struggle is the element introduced by Hitler in invading and using neutral countries, in order to further his purposes and objectives. No Christian, no upright person can possibly give assent to this cruel practice. What guilt this Fuehrer and leaders of other nations have loaded upon themselves, just for the murder of numberless innocents, if for nothing else! What will be the verdict pronounced upon them, when they appear before the judgment throne of God? One involuntarily thinks of some youngsters who think they have grievances against each other that can be settled only in locked combat, when a bit of reflection would be apt to bring out their smiles. Thus the grievances which these "mad" leaders harbored against each other, for their countries' sakes, could have been ironed out in conference, if their bullheaded minds had given their consent. They must by now see the error of their ways. But will they confess their guilt and eventually come to such equitable terms that will give Europe some sort of lasting peace? May God have mercy on them and put it in their minds to do the right thing! And may He from heaven grant to give us the peace which we crave! —T

EXPERIENCING SEPARATION FROM God—What serious minded person, even Christian, has not some time or other felt like crying with Jesus on the cross, "My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" However, anyone who is constrained to utter this distressing note is not yet forsaken by God. Only He has withdrawn His presence. One might say that there are three kinds of abandonment by God. If a person persistently resists the wooing of God's Spirit, a hardening of his heart will eventually reach the point where it is impervious to all spiritual influence, and the Divine presence is entirely withdrawn. Instances of this kind are the Pharao of the time of Moses and Judas Iscariot. Again a feeling of separation from God may be experienced when the conscience has been seared by sin and this condition may continue until the person cries with the Psalmist, "O Lord, how long?"The remedy here lies in an honest confession of the sin or sins and the offer of penitent prayers for forgiveness, when the light of mercy will again return. David's downfall with the wife of Uriah is a rather outstanding instance of forlornness of this kind. Lastly, it is possible that God of his own accord may withdraw His Divine presence to strengthen our faith, as he did in the case of Job and Elijah. The man of God Terstegen is reported to have been denied the sense of the presence of God once for a period of five years. But he did not relinquish his faith. And, after this comparative absence of Divine favor, God revealed His glory to him afresh. Thus how true these words, "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation, for when he has been approved, he shall receive the crown of life." —T

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

"WHAT CAN MINISTERS DO TO HELP THE MISSIONARIES IN THEIR WORK?

Paper read by Missionary P. W. Penner at the Western District Minister's Conference, published upon request.

The ministers largely constitute the faculty of the churches. What they teach and preach eventually will mold the outward and inward expressions of the attitude and activities of individuals and churches. There is hardly anyone present who could not trace his religious conceptions back more or less to what was once aired by the respective ministers. What is presented by the ministers is, therefore, of vital importance in shaping the future tendencies in the various fields of activities.

We have in John 3rd chapter some "Spiritual Imperatives." Thus may it be the case to have some such imperatives along mission lines:—

1. The greatest farewell words of our Lord are these: "Go ye!" and "Ye shall be witnesses unto me!"
2. The Christian is not a "Reflector" of Christ; but a "Radiator!"
3. The Christian's test of his "BIG" sentiment finds manifestation in what is done to fellowman.
4. Christianity is the world religion; Missions is "THAT" channel through which it must be disseminated.
5. The condition of the world spiritually, intellectually and physically with the resultant war tendencies increases not only the need for Christianity, but urges the far-reaching demands for Christian missions.
6. Missions are absolutely essential to the life of every church, because a church is not a "cistern," but must be a "bubbling fontain!"
7. The results of missions justify the efforts, and call for augmented action in view of the fact that at each breath we draw four souls perish, never having heard of Christ.
8. To say that all Christians are missionaries is the same thing as saying "All Christians are Christians." The former "must" be true if the latter is.
9. The one "Calling" not overcrowded is the missionary's.
10. There is no "Home" or "Foreign" in God's missionary vocabulary.

To deal directly with the subject, the following statements may serve, although not exhaustively, to submit suggestions for the discussions to follow.

I. The ministers should believe and preach the fundamentals of the Bible.

Where can the effectiveness of instruction in the proper basis be claimed, unless the above is actually done? A spiritual uplift proves impossible. We probably know of the impressive book "Re-thinking Missions," published by a select committee which has scanned the missionfields for intensive research work. The contents has harmed the cause in numerous instances. The authors on 70 pages discuss four significant topics on missions, not even mentioning the Holy Spirit, furthermore denying the deity of Jesus Christ while enlarging on: a) The missions in the world today. b) Christianity, other religions, non-religions. c) The uniqueness of Christianity; its message for the Orient and elsewhere. d) The scope of the work of missions.

II They should be moved with passion (suffering, feeling, ardor) for souls.

As self-pity is most dangerous to a person's career, so is self-satisfaction to the mission cause.

Has not the apostle Paul called our attention as an introduction to the needful circumspect Rom. I. 14-16, telling us "I am debtor," "I am ready," "I am not ashamed?" In connection with the law of forgiveness, Matt. 18:27, the Lord shows us the debt into which man is submerged and from which someone can lift him. Furthermore the Lord directs our attention to the burdening of our innermost. He draws near to the contagious leper Mark I 41; again by lifting up the eyes to behold the desperate condition of the multitudes, Matt. 9:36-38, certainly wanting us to do at least three things: a) To think; b) to pray; c) to work.

III. They should be evangelistically-minded, evangelistically-conscious, linked with the call for service.

Upon careful investigation we find the messages of our Lord constantly pregnant with this motive. The present day calls from the mission fields are thus geared in, probably more now than ever before outside of the apostolic age. There have convened three International Missionary Conferences since 1910 in Edinburgh; Jerusalem, Madras, India. The first two conferences have not stressed our third point so much. However, the last one in 1938 has buttressed our point in five resolutions most emphatically, viz., a) To deepen the faith of the Church; b) to encourage the witness of the Church; c) to strengthen the inner life of the Church; d) to examine the relationship of the Church to the outer world; e) to constitute a better co-operation within the Church.

There "MUST" be stressed the "GO-GOSPEL," with the "WITNESSING OBLIGATION!"

IV. They should know the necessity of the mission cause.

a) Of the world.—For instance the various non-Christian religions and cults which occupy the minds of the tribes, leading them still more downward. In spite of the huge mission activities, it should be noticed that the Christless population of the world grows each year by 18,000,000; that means four every minute.

b) Of our own General Conference fields.—The people inquire for details of these areas. It is urgent to know the religions prevailing on the various fields, viz., the High Spirit here among the Indians with the practices therewith connected; Confucianism—its home found in China; Hinduism—its home in India; Buddhism—its beginning found in Lndia, has spread to China; Mohammedanism—much of it both in India and China; Animism—gradually spreading in China.

V. They should know the mission fields of the General Conference as to the location, area, workers, work, results.

Do all know where the fields among the American Indians lie? Is there a clear conception in what part of China our workers are busy, or the position of the field in India?

Do all know that the area among the American Indians comprises 8,000 sq. mi. with 4,000 population; China approximately 4,500 sq. mi., with 2,000,000 or more population; India approximately 4,600 sq. mi., with nearly a million people? The entire area embraces a little more than one-fifth of Kansas!

Do all know the names and number of missionaries now on the field and those on furlough? Furthermore the number of native workers with the work they have been entrusted?

Do all know the results achieved and what outlook there is lying before them? What phases are connected with the mission work, which are looked upon to be the most hopeful?

VI. They should preach mission sermons.

It is quite insufficient to know the necessary facts, that alone will not convey the knowledge, but it is urgent to convey what is known duly through sermons, also to decorate the bulletins with what is going on, thereby to bring in the latest reports before the public.

The sermons should embody what happens also in other parts of the world. Then bring the needs of our fields out emphatically. The missionary harping upon the finances is in danger of losing prestige, being stamped as a begger. The recent territorial missionary rally of the Christian Church at Newton stressed the missionary to present only the work and its results, the finances be taken care of by someone on the home base.

VII. The ministers should give ample time to the representatives to present the work.

Because a number of years have intervened since his last visit, the missionary comes generally heavily loaded down with details of what transpired which should be presented. The individuals, the various organizations, the churches supporting the work ought to hear of the work done in answer to the prayers, and what harvests have been secured. There is a yearning for that in general. This all cannot be said in 20 or 30 minutes. Frequently certain preliminaries in the order of service might easily be postponed to some other time. Since there prevails among the general public a deplorable ignorance concerning mission affairs, why not schedule several meetings to touch upon the various phases: set one meeting aside to throw in promiscuous questions on topics seldom or never touched; arrange sectional meetings where men and women are separately served with problems of life, etc. not appropriate for a mixed audience, but would add to show the need of missionary work.

The children and young people will become the leaders of to-morrow. Their interest "MUST" be vitalized, consequently they should be particularly invited and encouraged to attend these gatherings and become acquainted with the activities.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

Mennonite Memorial Church, Altoona, Penna.

We were very happy to have Rev. John Thiessen with us on Mar. 4. He gave a very interesting illustrated talk on their work in India. Mar. 24, we held our sunrise prayer and praise service at six o' clock a. m. Communion service at 10:45, also received one new member by the right hand of fellowship. In the afternoon the pastor had charge of a funeral though not one of our members. In the evening was the Easter program by the children. It was a day of rich blessings for those present. Our Friday night Bible study for the boys and girls closed on April, 5, for the summer months.

April 7-14 we had revival meetings in charge of George Greger, pastor of the Saucon church, Coopersburg, Pa. Mrs. Greger had charge of the children's meetings which were held each evening before the service. Inspirational messages were brought to us in a plain and simple way and many blessings were in store for those who attended. The children also took real interest in their meetings.

April 26 the Ladies Aid Societies of the four Mennonite churches in the western part of Pa. held their second joint service in the Altoona church. The meeting last year was held in the Roaring Springs church. The program included reports of the work of each society during the year, talks on Foreign and Home Missions, special music and the speaker for the evening was Mr. McGinnis who gave an interesting talk on the subject "One For All."

Rev. Amos Martin, member of the "Gideons" (former pastor of the Mechanics Grove Calvary Mennonite Church) was the speaker in the morning service April 28. Rev. and Mrs. Slotterback attended the Eastern District Conference which was held at Philadelphia May 2-5.

May 12 the Mother's Day program was given by the C. E. and The Juniors. Corr.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

A. S. Rosenberger

RESULTS OF CHRISTIAN EDUCATION AND REWARDS FOR THE TEACHER

by Aganetha Fast, Freeman College

The poet Wordsworth when repmimanded by a friend for a half day's seeming idleness answered:

> Nor less I deem that there are Powers
> Which of themselves our minds impress;
> That we can feed this mind of ours
> In a wise passiveness.

In these lines, I believe, we find expressed what happens in the life of a student attending a Christian College. Although the student himself may not be definitely concerned with developing Christian traits, there are Powers which of themselves impress the mind. A girl once complained to her pastor of not being able to remember well during the week the points he brought out in his sermon, no matter how much she set her mind to it. She felt conscience stricken and constrained to apologize both to her pastor and her God. She received this consolation: "My child, you need not worry about this. As the waters of the river continually carry with it the dross that accumulates, leaving the river bed clean, so the words of God as you hear them Sunday after Sunday, even though you do not remember them, carry with them the dross that accumulates during the week and leave you pure for the Master to use." A student, even though he be merely passive, cannot attend chapel daily, attend Bible classes or other classes in which Christian principles are stressed, associate with fellow students, who come from Christian homes, take part in activities that center around character building without receiving some impressions. Unconsciously he is led to think along new lines of thought and to formulate views of his own on some of the more serious issues of life.

One cannot teach literature without touching the moral and spiritual views and obligations of mankind, and certainly it is gratifying to the teacher, when, instead of an indifferent or unperceptive attitude on the part of the class, there shines a light of deeper insight in their faces. How gratifying when the student speaks up with, "I like this line from Coleridge, 'Earth with her thousand voices praises God' or Browning's, 'God's in his heaven. All's right with the world' ".

At the end of a school year a teacher is satisfied only when he sees results, and those results, inspite of the best efforts on the part of the teacher, are often very discouraging, especially in the field of English. But surely a teacher is rewarded when the results of his effort take the form of a deeper appreciation of the every day of life, a deeper sense of love and responsibility toward his fellowmen, and a greater insight into the meaning of life.

SERMON SKETCH

THE GROWING LIFE—PSALM 1:3.

by Clyde H. Dirks, Hutchinson, Kansas.

Among the costly works in which King Solomon exercised his wisdom, and displayed his significance, were gardens rich in fruit trees, watered by channels and reservoirs. Among these were citrons and oranges, with their lustrous evergreen leaves and golden fruit; palms also, which love soil free from decay and rubbish. An ever-green fruitbearing tree is here the bright image of a growing and prosperous soul.

Reading verses like this one, we are constrained to ask ourselves, Am I like a tree planted by rivers of living waters? Is my life fruitful? Am I succesful in whatever I undertake?

A passenger on a steamer going to Australia, after they had gone a few days, asked the Captain, "Where are we?" The Captain bent over a well worn may and said, "There are three routes to Australia from the port we just left. No. 3 is the one usually taken. No 2 is the one I wanted to take. No 1 is the one the company ordered me to take and that is the one we have taken. This is an incident true to life. No. 3 is the world's way, the broad way. No. 2 is my way. No. 1 is Christ's way. If we have taken Christ's way and are living up to it, there is no question but what ours will be a growing life.

I. A PLANTED LIFE. "He shall be like a tree planted."

He is planted, not self sown, not fallen into his place by chance, but planted by God Himself. Convictions settled. Know where to find him.

1. Planted by the will of God. John 1:11-13
2. Planted through union with Christ. Cor. 2:7
   a. Union of life. II Pet. 1:4
   b. Union of love. I John 4:19

II. A PRODUCTIVE LIFE. "That bringeth forth his fruit."

1. The basis for fruitfulness. John 15:5 "He that abideth."
2. Necessities to fruitfullness
   a. Life must contact the source of supply.
   b. Life must go deep.
      There are two ways to increase the value of a thing. By doubling its length, and by doubling its thickness. Its depth.
      The frontiers of life are no longer geographical, but they are no less real on that account. Every Christian is essentially a pioneer..
      If it is denied you to reach out, you can still go deeper and higher. By going deeper you have what others need.

c. Life must reach out like the branches of a tree, Luke 5:1-11.

How catch men? Let Christ into the vessel of your life.

3. Conditions of fruitfulness. "Walk before Me." Gen. 17:1-6.

We have walked before our friends, our neighbors, and the world, very eager to win their approval. Now we have a new center of reference, and that is God. "Walk before Me." II Tim. 2:15

a. A walk presupposes life. "He that hath the Son hath life."

b. A walk suggests activity. Walking is the expression and proof of life.

We know people are alive when we see them walking.

c. A walk involves progress. A Christian life cannot be at a standstill. It either goes forward or backward.

d. A walk implies a destination. A Christian must have a definite goal.

4. The certainty of fruitfulness. Gen. 17:6

III. A PREPETUAL LIFE. "His leaf also shall not wither."

The leaf as here used carries with it the idea of a man's testimony. There are three things, at least, that a man must do to keep his testimony from withering.

a. He must worship God. Worship, if it is real, should do three things for us. It should lead us to think, to feel, and to choose.

b. He must witness for Christ. Acts 1:8

c. He must win souls to Christ. Prov. 11:30. "He that winneth souls is wise." The marginal has it, "He that is wise winneth souls." Every Christian should have a continual testimony for Christ. Of Abel it is said, "He being dead, yet speaketh." Heb. 11:4. Compare Rev. 14:13. We have a great heritage which we should share with others. We have our Mennonite heritage, but most of all we have Christ.

IV. A PROSPEROUS LIFE. "Whatsoever he doeth shall prosper."

You can make your life a round of common things, or you can make it a spiral. You can go round in the same grooves of thought and work, or you can lift upward and forward, going higher each round. A boy didn't like the merry-go-round at the fair because, he said, "It takes you round and round and you never get anywhere."

Prosperity of soul, and a life as is here described, comes only through a vital union with Jesus Christ.

Our Fathers' World and Ours

By Curtis W. Larson, College Senior

This is our fathers' world. They inherited it; they also labor to make it their own.

They work to pay off mortgages and the landlord. They elect the mayor, the councilmen, and other public officials. They are members of the school board, the trustees of the college, and the official board of the church. Most of them have jobs, and support us young people either wholly or in part. They pay taxes.

This is their world. They have invested their lives in it and depend upon it to support themselves and their families.

Yet, part of that small group of youth who are troubled by dreams of a new world have neglected these obvious facts. They forget that the property upon which they would raise the new city is already built up. It is owned by our parents; and we young people find it (bad as it is) rich with memories and, on the whole, a rather pleasant place in which to live.

We turn from the classrooms to our parents with our plans for a co-operative commonwealth, for peace through pacifism and nonresistance, for a religion that never hardens into dogma. All this we announce upon the prefunctory assumption that their world, of course, is to be discarded!

We condemn the system which created millions of homeless, hungry people. But these fathers linger over the thought, "Still it fed you and gave you a strong body and a trained mind." Finally we describe the old-fashioned revival as an outworn religious method, yet that religion sanctified our parents' marriage, aided them in keeping our homes a clean one. And if father does protest that love for one's family is not an ulterior motive we chide him for lacking a world view and the long look.

No wonder the new city is long in coming! What reason do we give our parents for believing that we know anything about humility, love, or sacrifice — we who are so glib with our sweeping condemnations, so egotistical over our intellectual attainments?

Before young people can start on a new city they must understand the older people who have worked for the old one and cling to it now. We must see their reticence as they do, that is, as cautiousness befitting one who has a wife to support and children to nurture. We must see our own enthusiasm as they sometimes do, as youthful and therefore temporary effervescence. Our proposals must be tested by their standards.

This is our fathers' world. They have put all they have into it. We cannot expect them, and should not ask them, to give it up before we have convinced them, that we hold a sympathetic appreciation of their values. Then, together we may begin to raise the shining towers of the heavenly kingdom — a shrine to the aspirations which in their generation, in ours, and in every other, are the expression of the dynamic spirit of God.

—From "Christian Advocate"

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

June 16, 1940

HAGGAI URGES THE BUILDING OF GOD'S HOUSE

Haggai 1:1-12

Topic: The Recovery of Worship

Introduction

Little is known of the life of Haggai. He appears in the history of the Jews in 520 B. C., sixteen years after the first return of exiles from Babylon in 536 B. C. The foundation of the temple was laid the year after they reached Jerusalem (see Ezra 3:8-13). Nothing further was done for fifteen years. During the fifty years of exile they had no temple. Difficulties in Jerusalem delayed the building. Their Samaritan neighbors hindered them. Drought affected their plans, and the wealthier people were more interested in selfish luxury than in worship. They were not interested in the temple. God saw the need of reviving the religious life and led Haggai and Zechariah to stir the people to action. Haggai may have seen the former temple and knew how important it always had been to the religious life of the Jewish people. He encouraged the people and aroused them to action. His prophecy is confined to the rebuilding of the temple.

Neglecting to Rebuild the Temple vs 2-8

Haggai brings God's message of displeasure to the people (v2). They made excuses for justifying their neglect — a common human trait. The time was not opportune, opposition would probably reappear and the financial condition was unfavorable. Haggai appeals to their conscience by using the very pointed question in verse 4. "You" in the Hebrew makes it very pointed. They built fine houses for themselves, while they did not concern about restoring God's house, the temple of worship. Under the conditions of the times, the temple, as a center of worship, was very necessary to maintain the religious life of the Jewish people. This is just as certainly true today among us. A house of worship is much more than a building with four walls, a roof over it and a floor in it and with good seats. It is dedicated to the worship of God, and we should do our best to give it a worshipful atmosphere. There is no special virtue in emphasizing plainness in the house of worship.

Haggai calls on the people to think and reflect (vs 5,) and they will be convinced that they are suffering the penalty for their negligence. He urges them to go to work in earnest. Their spiritual welfare depends on it and the Lord will be pleased and glorified (v8). God blesses those who show a real interest in maintaining their religious life.

God Punishes Neglect vs 9-11

Haggai stresses the importance of worship. Most of our lesson deals with God's punishment for neglecting their worship. They neglected the building of God's house while seeking their own selfish interests. (v9). The temple was the witness of Jehovah's covenant with Israel. God was displeased with His people and He withheld prosperity from them. He visited His judgment upon them (vii). Willful neglect of public worship is a serious matter for any person. It reveals a lack of interest in spiritual matters. Israel's neglect to rebuild God's house registered a low spiritual temperature.

The people gave heed to the Word of the Lord as spoken by Haggai and they were ready to do His will. What a pity that, for so long a time, they disobeyed and that so many disobey God now. The need of every person is for regular fellowship with other Christians in public worchip. Such worship will be a continual source of inspiration and a help in growing in grace. Public worship is a part of God's plan for us, and those who wilfully neglect it will suffer for it.

HOME MISSION BOARD TREASURER FOR MONTH OF APRIL, 1940

Pacific Dis., Conf., (on Note and Int.) $20.00; Grace, Lansdale, Pa., $52.47; Bergtal, Pawnee Rock, Kans., $21.46; Mennonite Church, Wayland, Iowa, $30; First, Upland, Calif., $28.85; First, Monroe, Wash., $3.52; Bethel C. E. Marion, S. Dak., $16.46; Immanuel S. S., Los Angeles, Calif., $20.78; First, of Christian, Moundridge, Ks., $43.00; First, Bluffton, O., $14.41; First, Chicago., $26.11; Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Treas., Women's Organizations, $561.23; West Swamp, Quakertown, Pa., $42.50; Mennonite Church, Newport, Wash., $9.25; Grace, Pandora, O., $45.89; First, Newton, Kans., $39.43; Hoffnungsau, Inman, Kans., $82.28; Johannesthal S. S., Hillsboro, Kans., $8.70; Mission Friends, $60.64; John and Henrietta Roth, Salem, Ore., $5; Salem Zion, Freeman, So. Dak., $25; Mennonite Church, Pulaski, Iowa, $3.32; West Zion, Moundridge, Kans., $35; Garden Twp., Hesston, Kans., $31.25; First, Berne, Ind., $141.79; Young Women's Miss. Soc., West Swamp, Quakertown, Pa., $30; First, Paso Robles, Calif., $16.40; First, Shafter, Calif., (Payment on NOTE) $200; First, Pretty Prairie, Kans., $20; Nichol's Contract, No. 2309, $22.31; Gnadenberg, Whitewater, Kans., $10.11; Bethel, Mt. Lake, Minn., $50; Church, Winton, Calif., $2.50; First, Reedley, Calif., $27.62; First, Halstead, Kans., $34.02. Total, $1726.30.

Special: Middle Dist., Y P.'s Conf., for Swift Current project, $37.60.

Grand Total: $1763.90

Disbursements: Vouchers drawn for salaries, rent, taxes, insurance, etc., $1521.68.

All receipts gratefully acknowledged.

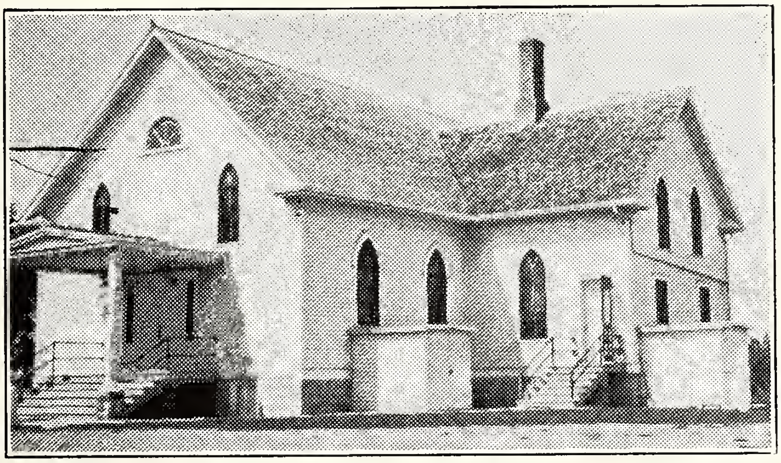
J. J. Plenert, Treas.
429 Knorr Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Churches in Minnesota Celebrate their Sixtieth Anniversary

The Bergfelder Churches of Mt. Lake and Delft, Minnesota, observed their 60th anniversary at Jubilee Festival Services Sunday afternoon and evening, May 19, 1940.

Rev. H. H. Quiring was in charge at the afternoon session. A massed mixed choir and a massed men's choir furnished special musical numbers. Rev. D. P. Eitzen gave a review of the spiritual blessings and changes made, and a history of the church was read by Mr. W. T. Nickel. Rev. J. A. Tieszen of Marion, S. Dak., was the guest speaker, using as his text Ps. 144:9. "I will sing a new song unto thee, O God: upon a psaltery and an instrument of ten strings will I sing praises unto Thee." He pointed out that our feet, hands, ears, eyes, tongue, and heart could be likened to the ten strings, and these should all be consecrated to God that we might live lives of praise and thanksgiving to Him.

Lunch was served and in the evening a massed mixed choir sang seven numbers, two numbers each by a massed ladies' and men's choir, a reading, "Sunshine and Shadow" by Helen Franz, and a History of the choir was read by D. T. Nickel. He brought out the importance of music, and pointed out how the present choir had been developed from the time of the "sing leader" and one book "The Gesang Buch." Lando Hiebert of the Delft Bergfelder Church in a brief message stressed the fact that we as young people must work to get forward, for sooner or later we must take up the work that the older people are leaving behind. He used Ps. 16:6—"The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places; ye I have a goodly heritage."



Bergfelder Menn. Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota

History of the Bergfelder Church as read by W. T. Nickel

In Psalm 26:8, we read these words, "Lord, I have loved the habitation of thy house, and the place where thine honour dwelleth." With this in mind our church is today, May 19, 1940, celebrating a thanksgiving festival, since on May 8, 1940, it was 60 years ago that the first church was dedicated in this community. As Abraham in the Old Testament built an altar and preached the Lord wherever he went in all the strange lands, so our forefathers sought a place to worship their God. This was not so easy at first, therefore, services were held in different homes and in schools. As is stated in one report, Rev. Peter Friesen preached the first sermon to our people in 1875, and he stressed the importance of living as Abraham had when the people said to him, "Thou art a Hero of God among us." In 1876 Rev. Aron Wall was elected elder of the church with the following as helpers: Peter Friesen, Henry Fast, Theodore Nickel, Henry Wall, John Becker, Sr., Peter Schultz, Henry E. Fast, and Henry H. Regier. Services were conducted with the above workers in charge until 1888, when there was a division in the church. At this time three churches were organized, namely, the present Bethel Church, the E. M. B. (Valley Church), and the Bergfelder Church. Rev. Theodore Nickel was elected elder of this church and ordained by Rev. Gerhard Neufeld. He served the church for five years; was taken sick in church on Sunday, and died May 7, 1894. His last words to the candidates for baptism were that they should hold fast the Word of God. The co-workers with Rev. Nickel were Henry Wall, Jacob Harms, Diedrich Walde, Jacob Siemens, Henry Quiring from Lamberton, and Diedrich Peters. After the death of Elder Nickel, Rev. Henry Quiring from Lamberton was elected elder. There were nine families near Lamberton who also belonged to this church. Elder Quiring worked together with the above mentioned ministers, and in 1901 Rev. A. A. Wiebe and Rev. D. P. Eitzen were added and ordained by Elder Quiring. Elder Quiring served the church from 1894 to 1909. During this time the church was reorganized and the name was changed from The First German Mennonite Church to Bergfelder Church and thus incorporated. After the death of Elder Quiring, the church was without an elder until 1911 when Rev. D. P. Eitzen was ordained as elder by Rev. H. H Regier. During this time, 1909, Rev. H. H. Quiring was ordained by Rev. D. P. Eitzen. In 1934 Rev.

D. P. Eitzen resigned the eldership, and Rev. H. H. Quiring was ordained as elder by Rev. John Bartel. At present the co-workers are Rev. D. P. Eitzen, and Rev. Jacob Stoesz.

Deacons that have served during these 60 years are: John Fast, Peter Dick, Peter Quiring, Cornelius Goossen, Jacob T. Nickel and Jacob J. Schultz.

As was previously stated, in 1880 the first church was built. This church was remodeled twice and in 1913 a new building was erected. In the meantime it became necessary to erect a church for the members that lived near Delft, and in 1897 a church was built 1½ miles west of Delft. In 1906 this building was moved to Delft, and in 1920 a new church was built. Rev. A. A. Wiebe served as pastor until his death in Jan. 1938. The past year Lando Hiebert from Dallas, Oregon, has served here.

In the beginning the ministers had a Sunday school class with the children only, but later old and young began to take part, and classes according to ages were formed until today both Mt. Lake and Delft churches have quite a number of classes in Sunday School. Each church has a monthly C. E. program and also a mission society. At present the combined church has a membership numbering 288, and 145 children.

The following have gone out from the church to serve in different fields: Miss Anna H. Quiring, missionary to Africa; Rev. and Mrs. C. P. Klaassen, missionnaries to South America; Rev. D. D. Eitzen, minister in Los Angeles, Calif.; Jacob A. Friesen, minister in Dolton, S. Dak.; Rev. Samuel H. Quiring, minister in a church in the state of Washington; and Marie Lohrenz, a nurse.

We as a church are very thankful to God for those workers who have gone on to their reward and those still with us for their unselfish service to us, in helping to build the Kingdom of God. We are thankful that God has kept us through all these years and we want to remember the teachings of our forefathers, to be faithful to their and our God. "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today, and forever."

DOCTRINAL - DEVOTIONAL

PRAISING HIS FEAR

God has promised us grace sufficient for all our needs. Today, those parents who are putting "first things first" are finding this grace by sticking to their Bibles with the Holy Spirit as their guide. They are finding what God sees fit to reveal unto them and their children so that they may do those things. There are still some secret things which belong unto God (Deut. 29:29). But they have faith in God and believe that "all things work together for good to them who love the Lord and according to His purposes."

They also know that whatsoever God does that is done "that menshould fear before Him" (Ecc. 3:15). Our God delights in "exercising loving kindness, judgment and righteousness in the earth" (Jer. 9:24). He has also promised that, "he that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God" (2 Sam. 23:3). God will fulfill all His promises and His people on earth today are praying for their King and are prepared to meet their Lord's requirements. There are false teachers who are teaching that God is so merciful that He will take these ungodly conditions now prevailing among people who call themselves Christians, into consideration; and will judge accordingly. They say nothing of His requirements that man be just, merciful and humble or that God shows mercy to them who fear Him, nor even of the new birth.

The following notice pretaining to a revival meeting appeared in our paper yesterday. The evangelist was formerly a captain of the police department at Tulsa, Okla., and says: "I am a firm believer in people having fear and respect for the law, but I am more concerned about them having fear and respect for God. People have about lost the fear of God in their hearts which accounts for so much crime, immortality, war and bloodshed in the world today."

"Feeding without Feed" is in evidence today but is the spiritual food lacking in this important vitamin? (Godly Fear). "Oh earth, earth, earth, hear the words of the Lord: "Oh that there were such an heart in them, that they would fear me," (Deut. 5). "They have well spoken these words, "Let me not hear again the voice of the Lord my God, neither let me see this great fire anymore, that I die not," (Deut. 18). "I will raise them up a Prophet from among their brethern and will put my words in His mouth," "Whosoever shall not hearken unto my words which He shall speak in my name I will require it of him."

This Prophet, our Savior Jesus Christ, both lived a life of godly fear and taught it. Hear Him: "And I say unto you my friends be not afraid of them that kill the body and after that have no more that they can do, but I will forewarn you whom ye shall fear, Fear Him which after He hath killed hath power to cast into hell: yea I say unto you, Fear Him," (Luke 12,5).

Our true ministers of the Gospel are lamenting the fact that there are so few parents like the Bible examples they use in their sermons, especially Mother's Day and Father's Day. "O Lord how happy should we be, If we could cast our care on Thee, If we from self could rest, and feel at heart, that One above, In perfect wisdom, perfect love, Is working for the best. "Could we but kneel, and cast our load Even while we pray upon our God, Then rise with lightened cheer, Sure that the Father who is nigh To still the famished raven's cry, Will hear in that we Fear."

—Mrs. H. W. Vickers, Robstown, Tex.

R. Weinbrenner
Editor

Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen

Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers

Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

Western District 1940 Y. P. Retreat

Purpose of Retreat—To provide our young people with an opportunity for study, meditation, fellowship and relaxation under the influence of consecrated Christian men and women.

For whom intended—For the more serious minded young people of high school age and above who are willing to share the inspiration of this five-day period in their home church.

Time of retreat—Tuesday, July 23, 3 P. M. to Sunday, July 28, 3 P. M.

Retreat Grounds—We will again meet at Camp Wood, the State Hi-Y Camp, near Elmdale, Kansas, about 50 miles north-east of Newton, on Highway U. S. 50S.

Leaders & Courses—Bible Course—Reynold Weinbrenner, Beatrice, Nebraska; Bible Course—Walter Gering, Moundridge, Kansas; Evening Messages—John Thiessen, India; Peace—H. A. Fast; Song Services—Gerhard Toews, Freeman, S. Dak.; Boys Problems—Mrs. A. M. Lohrentz, McPherson, Kansas; Quiet Hour—Amelia Mueller, Halstead, Kansas; Vesper Hour—Mrs. Edward D. Schmidt, Wichita, Kansas; Recreation—Otto Unruh, North Newton, Kansas.

Cost—Five day period of $6.50 if registered before July 1. After this date the price is $7.00. Admittance only by pre-registration cards mailed to churches about April 1st. Churches have been allowed certain quotas to be filled by June 1st. Registrations will be closed as soon as camp reservations are filled. Do not rely on late registration. Send your cards in before June 1st (with 50c fee) to Rev. David Wedel, Halstead, Kansas. In the event you cannot come after having registered in advance, you may have your registration transferred, or we will refund your fee if you notify us a week before the retreat opens.

Camp Rules—It is understood that all retreaters will cooperate whole-heartedly with the camp staff and conduct themselves in a truly Christian manner. All cars are to remain parked on the camp grounds for the duration of the retreat.

Special Notice—Retreaters from given communities may reserve certain cabins provided they supply an adult from their home community to accompany them.

Retreat Committee, Walter H. Dyck, Secretary, Beatrice, Nebraska.

ATTEND THE INSTITUTE

Do you read about the war in the newspapers? Do you listen to radio news reports? I you do, you probably are thoroughly disgusted with this avenue of approach to world conditions and the peace question. As an honest man you want a less prejudiced approach to the whole situation. To get such an approach attend the Institute.

Do you feel the need of being strengthened in the pacifist position by realizing in a fresh way the reasons for it, by retracing the full implications of it, and by fellowshiping with others of like faith? If so, attend the Institute.

Do you want to learn more about alternative service for religious objectors to war and about the effect of war on foreign missions? If so, attend the Kansas Institute of International Relations to be held at Bethel ollege, June 11-21, 1940.

WORKING ON YOUTH PAPER

Work on the proposed youth paper for the young people of our General Conference continues to go on. At present the young people's papers of the leading denominations are being examined for the purpose of determining what kind of paper would be most acceptable. Such items as size, number of pages, single and club subscription prices, advertising, use of pictures, and kinds of reading material, are being considered. We are also on the lookout for a name. Perhaps, you have one to suggest. Send any suggestions which you man have to William Juhnke, the secretary of the Y. P. Union, or to the editor.

HOW TO KILL YOUR CHURCH

1. Don't come.

2. If you do come, come late.

3. When you come, come with a grouch.

4. At every service ask yourself, "What do I get out of this?"

5. Never accept office. It is better to stay outside and criticise.

6. Visit other churches about half of the time to show your pastor that you are not tied down to him. There is nothing like independence.

7. Let the pastor earn his money; let him do all the work.

8. Sit pretty well back and never sing. If you have to sing, sing out of tune and behind every body else.

9. Never pay in advance, especially for religion. Wait until you get money's worth, and then wait a bit longer.

10. It is good to tell your pastor's failings to any strangers that may happen in; they might be a long time finding them out.

11. If your church unfortunately happens to be harmonious, call it apathy or indifference or lack of zeal, or anything under the sun except what it is.

12. If there happen to be a few zealous workers in the church, make a tremendous protest against the church's being run by a clique Selected.

Senior Department

DENOMINATION AND YOUTH

Senior C. E. Topic for June 23, 1940

Main Topic: My Denomination and its Youth.
1 Tim. 4:12-16

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: All Hail the Power of Jesus Name," "Rock of Ages, Cleft for Me," "Guide me, O Thou Great Jehovah," "Take my Life and Let it Be"
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer.
3. Talk on origin, and doctrine of denomination.
4. Offering for Missions.

II. Leader's Introduction

One of our specific Mennonite doctrines, if not "The specific Mennonite doctrine" has been the insistence on non-resistance, the belief that God is a God of peace and not a God of war, the emphasis on Jesus own words, "Love your enemies." There is need for emphasis on this doctrine today. There is need for a clarion call to do this positively. constructively. We must think peace, and live peace, pray for peace, and work for peace.

The present day messenger of peace is as one crying in the wilderness, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord." The Galilean is standing in our midst waiting until his prophet can cry, "Behold the Prince of Peace that taketh away the war of the world." When John the Baptist called upon the people at Jordan the conditions were very much as they are today. They stood in need of repentance, in need of a change in their way of living. They were ready for a new messenger. They listened to his words of warning and of promise.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. A worthy attitude Ps. 122
2. Pastoral admonitions Tit. 2:1-8
3. Perfected in love Eph. 5:25-27
4. A spirit filled church Acts 11:19-26

IV. For Discussion

1. What are the marks ofa true disciple of Jesus?
2. Does our denomination emphasize the essential things of Christ's teaching?
3. Make a list of our denominational doctrines and discuss their value.

V. Facts for Study

How different was Jesus from the founders of other religions! Mohammed allied himself with the powerful, the leaders of his people. Buddha appealed to the thoughtful, those with philosophic minds. But Jesus Christ, apostle of love and human kindness identified himself with all needy folks, the poor outcasts who were despised of men, the sick, the hungry, the insane, the lonely souls in prison. He made their cause his cause, and in a wonderful way his spirit of human sympathy and brotherly kindness has taught the world the better way and has gradually been softening the world's heart. His religion is a religion of kindness, of love, of peace, of service, of giving and forgiving.

One evening in the last week of Jesus' life, he talked to his followers of the future. He knew that there was not a great deal of time left in which to talk to them, and so he filled every minute with something important. This time he painted a word picture of the day when men and women should be judged for the acts of their lifetime. He spoke of that day as a time when he should come in glory, and sit on a throne with all the nations of the world gathered before him. And as the people came, they were separated. And the criterion by which they were placed to his right, or to his left was this: Whatsoever ye have done to your fellow men will determine your eternal destiny. Does that citerion also hold for us?

VI. Illustrations.

In Our Master's Footsteps

A white man once spent a winter's night in the wigwam of a red Indian. In the morning the Indian took him outside and asked him how many people had passed in the night. Seeing only one set of footprints, the man said that one person had passed. But the Indian told him that hundreds had gone by; the Indian chief had come first, and the others followed in single file, every man putting his feet into the footprints of the leader. The "author and finisher of our faith" has gone before us; let us put our feet in his steps, so shall we walk aright.

VII. Food for Thought.

Ye call me Master and obey me not,
Ye call me Light and see me not,
Ye call me Way and walk not,
Ye call me Life, and desire me not,
Ye call me wise, and follow me not,
Ye call me fair, and love me not,
Ye call me rich and ask me not,
Ye call me eternal and seek me not,
Ye call me gracious and trust me not,
Ye call me noble and serve me not,
Ye call me mighty and honor me not,
Ye call me just and fear me not;
If I condem you, blame me not.
—Cathedral of Lubeck, Germany.

—St. John Church, Pandora, Kansas.—There is a saying, "Variety is the spice of life." In its bulletin this church offers an idea that will be both profitable and offer variety to groups of young people. It is: An outing on Decoration Day, a trip to Cincinnati. The cost of the trip is $1.50, with admission to the Zoo and Museum. A picnic dinner and an opportunity for real fellowship is in prospect. All young people of high school age are invited.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

Series: Home Missions

Some Forgotten Folks

June 23, 1940

For Daily Readings:

June 17. The needy remembered. Deut. 26:12-15.
June 18. Joseph forgotten. Gen. 40:9-15,20-23
June 19. Daniel forgotten. Dan. 5:5-12.
June 19. The poor wise man forgotten. Eccl. 9:14-17.
June 20. The neglected beggar. Luke 16:19-23.
June 21. Whom God does not forget. Heb. 6:10.
June 23. Topic. Matt. 25:31-45.

Song, "The Star Spangled Banner"

Scripture Reading Matt. 25:31-45.

Prayer by Leader

Song, "America the Beautiful"

Talk by the Leader

"There are in the United States today thirteen million foreign-born Americans, and twenty-six million whose parents were foreign-born."

Why have the American people not been more effective in teaching them American ways?

"Here is a story from a mining section. Life is hard and dull. To the people here, religion has meant "preaching". Their experience with others, including preachers they have known, has taught them that "nobody does anything for nothing." For them, more education or more power has meant that the person could take advantage of others. They have been "bled" by others until they have developed a passive defense, "Don't go out of your way to help anybody." And life continues dull and hard."

Illustrations of conditions among migrants:

A Prune Picker's Story

"We crawl on our hands and knees to gather prunes which are shaken from the trees with long hooked poles. We begin early, for prunes fall better when cool. All the family work at first, even four and five-year-olds. When it begins to get hot, the youngest ones stop unless the family is broke. Older kids are kept at it with promises of clothes or threats of a lickin'. Afternoon, goin' is tough, prunes get soft and sticky, kids begin to get slapped, your knees hurt, your back aches. Next mornin' when you get up, it's cold in the tents, you're awful stiff, but you've got to do the same thing all over again, if there's to be enough to live on, even with all the family workin'.

An Oyster Shucker's Story

"Thirty cents a gallon for oysters! That's what I gets for takin 'em outa the shells. If they's big, maybe there's 50-70 in a gallon, but if they's little, p'raps it'll take 180 to fill a gallon. I wish they'd all grow big! In rush time, 'fore Thanksgiving, Christmas an' New Year's, we can earn as much as $10 or $15 a week. I pays $1 a week for a two-comp'ny lets us stay on 'thout payin' rent when thro' it an' sometimes we think it'll sure tumble down on top of us. Slack times is terrible. The comp'ny lest us stay on 'thout payin' rent when there ain't work but it sure grinds a man down when he can't earn 'nuff to feed his kids."

(Migrants and Menus-Council of Women For Home Missions.)

A few excerpts from a News Letter from Miss Elizabeth Foth,Missionary in the Red Hook District, New York.

"No, these drab, dirty brick walls with their bare, dingy windows and tottering framework are not the remnants of old, worn out buildings about to be torn down, these, and hundreds like them along these narrow streets and alleys are homes. Here, people with God-given souls, with a love for beauty and comforts of life, even as you and I, are born, live, and die. Forty thousand of them!

"I was told the other day of the various old ladies who have died recently of starvation and cold. Poor souls; no one seems to care! Another woman, using kerosene to build a fire with damp wood, spilled it and was burned to death."

Prayer Song, "God Bless Our Native Land"

Offering

Sentence Prayers (That all of us may do something to help these forgotten folks whether they are near or far.)

Onward, Christian Soldiers (Have the pianist play this Hymn as the Intermediates leave.)

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

The Beatitudes

Program for June 23, 1940

Matthew 5:9—"Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God."

Matthew 5:10—"Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

Setting—Place a large copy of the picture, "Christ of the Andes" upon an easel. Place a table or stand before this upon which should be laid a large Bible and a copy of Martyr's Mirror. A tall lighted candle should be so placed that its light falls upon both books.

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude, Pianist plays the melody of the song "Faith of Our Fathers."

2. Call to worship: Sing in unison "The Lord is in His Holy Temple. Let all the earth keep silence before Him" Habakkuk 2:20.

3. Reading of Scripture. John 15:1-14. By a Junior boy. John 16:33; John 14:27 By a Junior girl. Isaiah 52:6-7. By all Juniors in unison.

4. Leader's Prayer.

5. Song in unison, "Sweet Peace" Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 234.

6. Talk and story:

"We call ourselves Christians, which means 'Christ's men' or 'followers of Christ.' It was in the city of Antioch that Jesus' followers were first called Christians. Probably the term "Christian" was used in ridicule or scorn. I have a story to tell about those days in Antioch. It is an imaginery story, but it might well have happened.

In Antioch

Lucius walked slowly along the street of the colonnades in Antioch. His mind was filled with the stories Barnabas had been telling. He looked down the street paved with white marble and in imagination he could see Jesus riding there, just as he had ridden into Jerusalem, with crowds welcoming him with shouts and the waving of palm branches. How Lucius wished that he had been in that crowd! He would have shouted his welcome louder than anyone else, he thought.

Then his imaginative picture changed. It seemed as if he could see Christ walking along beneath the shelter of the colonnades, smiling as the children came running to meet him. How fortunate were those who had really seen Christ when he lived in Palsetine! Yet Lucius was glad that he had at least heard of him.

Lucius stood still for a moment as he looked up at the great mountain that could be seen from almost any part of the city. The highest peak of the mountain was carved into a huge statue of Jupiter. Once Lucius had believed in Jupiter and had been fearful of offending him. Now he knew that God was the only God and was loving as a father. What was the song that Barnabas and Saul had sung the other day? Lucius hummed,

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the mountains: . . .
My help cometh from the Lord."

Even as he was humming, a crowd of boys swooped down from a side street and stopped when they saw him.

"Here's Lucius," called one. "He has taken up that new religion."

"Christian!" cried another boy in tones of scorn.

"Follower of one who was crucified like any criminal!" shouted another.

"Christian!" they all began to call. "Christian!"

Lucius clenched his fists, then loosened them. Christ had not struck people who made fun of him. Yet Lucius did not like to be ridiculed. In spite of himself his head drooped.

"Well, son," came a welcome voice. "I did not expect to meet you here."

Lucius looked up at his father gladly. "Nor did I expect to meet you," he said. "I have been to a meeting near here, where we have been hearing stories of the Christ when he lived in Palestine."

The crowd of boys had grown silent when Lucius' father had come up. Now, depending on the well-known fact that Christians were kindly and forbearing, they began again to call: "Christians! Christians!"

Lucius' father looked down understandingly at his son. "Do you mind being called a follower of Christ?" he asked.

"I am proud to be a follower of Christ," said Lucius. "But that name—Christian—they use it only in ridicule. I do not like it."

The older man's hand rested encouragingly on the boy's shoulder. "Do not mind it," he said. "Now they use the word in scorn. Yet some day, I am sure, that word will be spoken with admiration wherever the sun shines upon the earth, and men will be proud to be known by it. Remember what it means—follower of Christ."

Lucius raised his head. "Yes," he called to the boys, "I am a Christian. If you will let me, I will tell you why. For I am proud to be a Christian."

Taken from "Junior Teacher's Quarterly"
Westminster Departmental Graded materials

7. Pianist plays melody of the hymn, "Faith of our Father's" very softly. While a good reader reads the song. All Juniors following the words from their hymnals.

8. Sing the above song in unison.

II. Study Period:

Aim: To help our Juniors to a better understanding of Christian peace, and to help them to appreciate the persecution that our forefathers endured for their faith.

1. Read in unison: Matthew 5:9.

2. Leader's introduction; We can not be peacemakers until we know peace, and have peace in our hearts. This peace comes to us only through our Lord Jesus Christ. He washes our sins by his precious shed blood and so make us children of God. Then He says to us in this beatitude "be peacemakers" and promises that we shall be called children of God.

Four Juniors discuss the following:

a. God's children seek peace Romans 12:18.
b. God's children love peace Hebrews 12:14.
c. God's children make peace Romans 14:19.
d. God's children keep peace Eph. 4:3.

4. Stories to illustrate "peace."
Genesis 13:1, 5-13 told by a Junior boy. Genesis 26: 6, 12-22 told by a Junior boy.

5. Song: Stand to sing "My Hope is built" Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 230 v. 1,3.

6. A Junior reads Matthew 5:10.

7. Discuss the following by question and answers.

a., What does "persecute" mean?
b. What does for "righteousness sake" mean?
c. How can we be persecuted for righteousness' sake?

8. The story of the first Christian martyr told by a Junior girl. Acts 7:54-60.

III. Mission Minutes

1. Many Christian in heathen lands suffer persecution from those who do not love Christ. Find and tell such an incident.

2. Pray for all Christians in heathen lands.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Repeat verse of the month from memory.

2. Stand and sing from memory the song of the month, "Blessed Assurance."

3. Pray together the Lord's Prayer.

4. Sing very sofltly, "Into My Heart."

ART AND ITS RELATIONS.—Art has manifold connections: (1) with science, which furnishes the intellectual basis; (2) with beauty, which furnishes the esthetic basis; (3) with culture, which furnishes the ideal basis; (4) with utility, which furnishes the material basis; (5) with ethics, which furnishes the moral basis; (6) with religion, which furnishes the genius and inspiration of the higher art. There is a special connection of art with utility. The common classification of the arts as "fine arts" and "useful arts" is misleading. Beauty is utility. The esthetic faculty is a part of true manhood. A true education will develop the whole man. Men's intellectual faculties may be classified as the cognitive, conservative, comparative, and constructive. While science develops them all, art has especially to do with the comparative and constructive faculties, which are the highest. Furthermore, art is utility, since it enables one to do his work in the best manner.

Kansas Mennonite Sunday School Convention

Time: Sunday, June 9; 2:30 P. M.
Place: Eden Church, Moundridge, Kansas
Theme: "Greater and Deeper Bible Knowledge."

Afternoon Session

1. Song Service—Rirector, Eden Cchurch
2. Opening—Pres. Rev. D. C. Wedel
3. Theme: "Greater Bible Knowledge through an Adequate Discussion of the Lesson by the teacher —J. J. Siemens
4. Theme: "Greater Bible Knowledge through an Adequate Discussion of the Lesson by the Pupil—Irvin Gering
5. Music—Pretty Prairie
6. Theme: "Greater Bible Knowledge through the Use of Understandable Material"—Mrs. Gerhard Friesen.
7. Theme: "What Contributions Can Adequate Quarters Make to Greater Bible Knowledge"—Ed Miller.
8. Music—Eden Church
9. Business Session—President
10. Closing Meditations—Local Pastor

Evening Session—7 P. M.

1. Song Service—Director, Eden Church
2. Opening—V. Pres. Waldo Flickinger
3. Resolutions—Com. Report
4. Dramatics Presentation—Lorraine Ave. Church, Wichita
5. Music—Mrs. Weldon Rupp
6. Address: "Deeper Bible Knowledge—Jesus Saviour and Lord"—Rev. C. H. Dirks
7. Song and Benediction

Sec. Mrs. D. P. Ewert, Hillsboro, Kansas

RELIEF NOTES

EUROPEAN WAR SUFFERS' RELIEF

Clothing gifts So far this year shipments have gone forward from Canada to England and from the United States to France. The Mennonite Central Committee plans further shipments to these countries, and also to Brother Lehman in Poland during this summer and fall.

Will all our congregations, sewing groups, or individuals interested in cooperating in the Committee's Clothing Relief program please note the following:

1. For the present only new clothing is solicited. Clothing is particularly needed for babies, small children, boys and girls, and women.

Babies — baby bundles, blankets, safety pins, soap.

Children 1 to 4 years — sweaters, stockings, underclothes, dresses, rompers.

Boys 4 to 14 years — suits, trousers, shirts, underclothes, sweaters.

Girls 4 to 14 years — print dresses, undergarments, skirts, blouses, coats, sweaters.

Women — dresses, undergarments, coats.

Blankets, sheeting, and bedding are constantly needed in refugee groups.

2. Clothing packed for ordinary United States shipments can be forwarded at any time, freight prepaid, to the Secretary, Orie O. Miller, Akron, Pennsylvania.

A. This clothing, as accumulated, will be repacked and listed for foreign transportation at Akron.

B. Centers equipped for baling or packing for ocean shipment should write to the Secretary for special packing and listing instructions.

C. All Canadian groups should write to S. F. Kaufman, Vineland, Ontario, Secretary of the Non-Resistant Relief Organization, for similar instructions.

3. The Committee is studying the advisibility of gathering used clothing for foreign shipment, and will advise on this through "Relief Notes" later.

4. Your dollars for refugee feeding should be forwarded through your local or group Relief Treasurer. Your clothing gifts can go through channels as before, or direct to the Mennonite Central Committee or Canadian secretaries as per foregoing. Both are now desperately needed.

A further recent cable appeal from Bennet in France for special funds for refugee feeding near Marseille, France, was passed on to three of our cooperating groups. Their response made possible our cable reply acceptance. Mennonite Central Committee monthly forwardings to the three areas with which our workers are now in touch total $2350.00.

The work as now organized enables as rapid expansion of this program as contributions warrant.

RELIEF NOTES

May 18th. Marseilles, France. Ted Claassen

"Have had a most delightful trip so far. Arrived here on train from Genoa the evening of the 16th. Bro. Ernest Bennet met me and we went out to the Colony yet that night. They are surely doing a nice piece of work there. It was a joy to see how happy and healthy the children are. Ernest has decided to remain here for the present, and in that way permitting me to spend most of my time in England.

Spent most of the day yesterday formulating our plans."

May 22nd. Paris, France. Night cable

"Claassen going London. All is well. Notify families." Bennet, Claassen.

On May 28th a shipment of new and good used clothing went forward via The French Relief Fund, New York, to our workers at Paris, France. This shipment totalled 48 bales, weighing 4269 lbs. and was valued at $3212.35.

The latest estimates mention five-million War Refugees on trek from the battle area to the South of France. We hope that continuing donations will enable early further clothing shipments. See last week's Notes for sending instructions.

April 30th. Berlin, Germany

"Bro. Lehman returned from a trip to Danzig last evening. He went there to consult with the Mennonites of that area (about ten-thousand) about help for the Mennonite Congregations at Kazun where fifteen members were murdered and the congregation generally plundered of belongings. Pastor Goettner arranged a committee meeting of seven bishops and representative laymen to discuss the problem of help to this congregation. We have secured a special permit for this from Berlin authorities. Food and clothing are urgently needed."

Lehman Unruh Letter

(Menn. Central Com. by O. O. M. and A. W.)

EMERGENCY RELIEF WORK

Dear Readers of the Mennonite:—

Since the war in Europe is constantly spreading to new territory, the need and suffering is also increasing in like manner. The greatest suffering is found to be among the refugees, of these the children should have our deepest sympathy.

The MCC has undertaken to care for a group of Spanish refugee children in France gathered in a temporary orphan home. They have sent brother Ted Claassen, Newton, Kansas, to supervise this and other relief work on the allied side.

Our Board has consented to contribute $200.00 per month for this particular relief project. With the many other obligations of relief work which this Board has taken upon themselves, greater sacrifices will be necessary on the part of the constituency to meet the needs.

Our willingness to do this kind of relief work in a war torn country, may prove our faithfulness in our Mennonite principle of Non-resistance. This act will speak louder than words

May God make each one of us willing to supply the means to meet the needs, in gratitude to our heavenly Father for the peace and blessings we still enjoy.

Send your contributions to the treasurer, Rev. P. H. Unruh, Goessel Kansas, and God will richly reward you.

John Lichti, chairman.
John E. Mueller, secretary

—Alexanderwohl Church, Goessel, Kansas.—A successful term of Bible school sponsored by this church has just been closed. Over 100 pupils were taught by six teachers, Rev. P. H. Unruh who taught the eighth grade and high school group, Aganetha Duerkson, Wanda Schmidt, Velda Richert, Katie Wedel and Menno Fast.

CORRESPONDENCE

MENNONITE CHURCH, BUHLER, KANSAS

On Mother's Day nine babies presented by their mothers were consecrated to the Lord by our pastor. In these times it is most important that the minds of little children are trained to think about God, as there are so many things that keep their minds busy and often tend to distract them from God. The habit of a prayer life must be started when a child is yet very young. We need Christian mothers.

May 26 was a day of rejoicing for our church, as seven young people openly confessed Christ as their Savior, were baptized and received into the membership of our church.

Most of our boys and girls are now attending Bible school. The teachers get their pay from the three churches in this community, so every child has the privilege to attend. We as parents certainly are grateful that our children have the opportunity to learn the beautiful stories of the Bible now, while they are young. It will be easier for them to find God if they know of him from his word. Scripture says, "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom."

Mrs. N. D. Esau, Corr.

WOODLAND MENN. CH. WARROAD, MINN.

It has been our blessed privilege to have the Rev. Edward Duerkson of Alsen, North Dakota, with us from the fourth to the tenth of May. The Lord has blessed us much through him, and the meetings were well attended. People came from as far away as twelve miles, even such that were not from our denomination, Why did they come? Because they were hungry for the gospel and wanted to enjoy the blessings of hearing the Word with us. One soul came to the Lord in house visitation work. Praise the Lord for him.

It might be interesting to the readers to know more about our church. We are a group of 90 Mennonites here, including children, about two-thirds of these are from Lostwood, North Dakota, and the rest moved here last fall from Alsen, and Munich, North Dakota. Our minister, the Rev. Arthur F. Ortman, and his family came here from South Dakota. This settlement started in the fall of 1934 with 19 Mennonites. A Sunday School was organized at once and has been going ever since. The Lord has a reason for bringing us up here and that reason is that we should win souls while yet it is day. There is a big field here in which to work for the Lord.

The 25th of May, in the evening, the quartet from Freeman College, South Dakota presented a musical program in our church which was much appreciated.

Jake G. Quiring, Corr.

MENNONITE CHURCH, LEHIGH, KANSAS

In March the Men's Chorus of the Alexanderwohl Church rendered a fine musical program in our church.—The illustrated talk by Missionary Will C. Voth was very uplifting and greatly appreciated.—The children's consecration and Mother's Day were observed Pentecost Sunday morning.

Early in spring the church board bought some shade trees. A certain date was set to plant them. A number of families each planted one tree in the church yard. Some of us feel like this is a sort of contest, to see who will have their tree grow and live the longest.

We are planning as usual to have our services at 10:00 on Decoration Day at our cemetery.

Mrs. F. G. Unruh, Corr.

GRACE MENNONITE CHURCH, PANDORA, OHIO

The Putnam County Youth Conference which convened in our church was largely attended. At the afternoon session Prof. Roberson of Ada, Ohio, spoke to the group on "I dare you." At the second session of the Youth Conference in the evening the Bluffton College Peace Group presented the play "Let My People Go."—On May 5, the Intermediates presented the pagent "The Unknown Soldier" in place of the regular evening service.

May 12, the church observed Mother's Day. Eight infants were consecrated at the morning service. In the evening the baccalaureate service for the Pandora High School graduates was held in our church. The speaker, Rev. Armin Steiner of the local Missimary Church, had as subject for his message to the graduating class, "Remember." At the Commencement held in the H. S. auditorium May 16, the address was given by Rev. S. A. Wittmer, M. A., Dean of the Ft. Wayne Bible Institute on the subject, "Character or Personality." Of the 32 graduates, 10 are members of our church.

May 26, Rev. P. E. Whitmer was in Chicago to attend the annual Commencement at Bethany Biblical Seminary. In his absence Rev. J. J. Thiessen brought the message in the morning on "Come unto me" and "Go ye Therefore." In the evening missionary Thiessen showed pictures of their work on the India field. He gave the audience an opportunity to ask questions thus making the evening's program doubly interesting.

Selma C. Sommer, Corr.

BETHANY CHURCH, FREEMAN, SOUTH DAK.

The Bethany Church Ladies Mission Society of Freeman, S. D. gave its second 'Guest Mission Program'.Sunday, May 26. All numbers of such programs are given by members of the surrounding churches or outside parties. Both 'Guest Mission Programs' were exceptionally good and worth while. A ladie's trio from the South or Salem Church, lead by Miss Hazel Senner, gave the intial number. This was followed by three short acceptable readings by Mrs. John P. Miller of the North or Salem-Zion Church. Dr. and Mrs. Richard Jantzen, who are on their way to Africa, each gave a short talk or testimonial. Dr. Jantzen is a kin of Rev. Albert Classen at whose home the Jantzen's were visiting. His father is Rev. Jantzen of San Marcos church at Paso Robles, California, and two brothers of his are in foreign mission, one at Kai Chow, China, and the other at Korba, India. Mrs. Jantzen is a former South Dakotan, having been born near Miltown in this county. The Jantzen's are going out under the auspices of the Sudan Interior Mission. The Men's Glee Club of the North or Salem-Zion Church, consisting of nineteen members under the able direction of Mr. Elias J. Schrag, rendered two ennobling numbers.—Rev. John S. Mendel of Menno, S. D. gave a short address on Home Missions. He stressed the fact that too often when we speak of mission work we think only of foreign missions, less of City Missions and almost forget that right in front of our own home doors great mission fields exist that ought not be neglected, but too often they are. Rev. Mendel's son Johhny sang a solo.—Just before the offertory played by Miss Mildred Waltner of the South or Salem Church, a ladies' trio from the Salem K. M. B. Church rendered the closing number.

« « JOTTINGS » »

—Minister Ordained.—Sunday, May 26, was a day of special note to the Zion Mennonite hurch at Elbing, Kansas, for one of its young men, Mr. Arnold J. Regier, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Regier, was ordained to the gospel ministry. The pastor of the church, Rev. W. J. Dyck, was assisted by the following ministers, Rev. A. E. Kreider of Bethel College, member of the foreign mission board, Rev. J. M. Regier, president of the West. Dist. Conference, and Rev. Walter H. Dyck of Beatrice, Nebraska, who preached the sermon. The new minister and his wife have been called to serve the Alberta ommunity Church at Portland, Oregon. Mr. Regier has just graduated from Bethel College and the couple will move to Portland on the 9th.

—First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho.—Baptism service was held May 26th. Ten were baptized and thus received into the church, also four others by the right htand of fellowship.—A vacation Bible school is in progress, with Florence Toevs, Elma Friesen, Mrs. Burgomeister as teachers, and 55 pupils.—The Pacific onference will convene at Los Angeles, June 6 to 9. The President, P. A. Wedel, Elma, Hege, Alice Lehman, Mr. and Mrs. George Bartel will attend.—Weather and crops are very favorable, but the war hysteria is a veritable curse in this country. —Corr.

—Bluffton College.—Items from "The Witmarsum" of May 24.—Completing a successful season the A Cappella choir under the direction of Prof. Russell Lantz will present its full length concert of secular music at the First Menn. Church on June 9th. As is traditional, all alumni of this organization present for this program will join the chorus in singing "Beautiful Savior" and "Send Forth Thy Spirit." "Rose Maiden", a cantata, is to be rendered by the choir on June 2nd.—James Griffith has been elected editor and Everett Hiestand, business manager of "The Wismarsum" for 1940-41.—Professor M' Della Moon, head of the department of Biology, has been made a fellow of the Ohio Academy of Science.

—Berne, Indiana.—In the Summer Bible School jointly sponsored by the churches of Berne community, 333 pupils are enrolled, 173 boys and 160 girls, ranging from the kindergarten through the grades, with 36 pupils, to the 9th grade, with 28 pupils. The school continues for 5 weeks which is commendable.—A good many schools of this kind have terms of only two or three weeks, which means a beginning and a close with too little time for valuable work in between. —At the Mennonite Church, Reedley, Calif. Miss Marie Regalsky became the bride of Mr. Jacob Kehler,, on April 14. And on May 4, Miss Tillie Warkentin, became the bride of Mr. Orval Ellis, Rev. Edgar Toevs officiating. Bro. Toevs, supply pastor of this church, has also conveyed the happy news that Dr. J. H. Langenwalter's health condition is improving, and asks that prayer to uphold him should be continued.

—Second Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebr. in its bulletin has this interesting information: "The Hymn Book Committee recommends that each family purchase at least one new hymn book, this book to belong to the family. By this means we should secure approximately 50 new books. If we get 100 books we shall be provided with four books for each bench . . . The price has not yet been set, but since it can hardly be less than $1.50, we suggest that each purchaser pay this with provision that he contribute the deficiency should the price be higher."

—First Church, Philadelphia, Penn..—Prof. Russell Lantz will again be east this summer to direct a chorus. First practice for Philadelphia will be Thursday, June 21.—The painting of the interior of the church is now completed. The work is very satisfactory, eliciting many favorable comments.—The budget of the Eastern District for this year is $2800 and for the Home for the Aged $2500.00. This means about $2.00 per member. "Let us be conference-minded and give to the Lord's cause." Church Bulletin

Rev. John Lichti of the Mennonite Church at Medford, Okla. writes: On the 29th we had our Memorial Service at the cemetery at 10:30 a. m. In the afternoon we had our S. S. Picnic at Jefferson Park.

BETHEL COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT

Closing activities began May 23 with the rendition of the senior play "Minick."—On Sunday May 26, at the Baccalaureate Service, President E. G. Kaufman preached a powerful sermon based on Psalm 137:1-5. As the children of Israel sat by the rivers of Babylon, weeping over the fate of Zion, so we have reason to lament the disheartening conditions of the Christian world, which present great opportunities for Christian young people to make their lives count in service for God and fellowmen.—On Thursday evening the senior class rendered a worthwhile program of considerable variety, under the leadership of Chester Unruh, their capable president.—Wednesday evening the college A Cappella choir, with Prof. W. H. Hohmann as director, gave its last program, before a good-sized appreciative audience.—Thursday was Alumni and Ex-Student Day, with a program consisting of a Memorial Service, a choir reunion concert, a business session, different class reunions, a band concert, and alumni banquet in the evening, in which close to three hundred participated. A good program followed the banquet.—On Friday, in the forenoon, occurred the Alma Mater meeting.—In the evening, at the Newton city auditorium, came the climax of activities, the commencement program, at which Dr. A. E. Hertzler, outstanding physician, surgeon, and director of Hertzler Clinic at Halstead, Kansas, gave a unique address on "The Philosophy of Mennonitism." Forty members of the senior class received their diplomas at this time, while twelve others are to get theirs August 1, upon completion of some back work in summer school. This body of Christian young men and women, as fine as can be found anywhere, fills one with hopes of truly successful lives for them.

Weddings

—On Friday May 24, at the Eden Church,Moundridge, Kansas, Miss Della Kaufman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Kaufman, was married to Mr. Walter Zerger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Zerger. Rev. Waltner Gering officiating.—On Monday evening, May 27, at her home on the Bethel College campus, Miss Norma Doell, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. J. H. Doell, became the bride of Mr. Thomas Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Walker. Prof. A. E. Kreider solemnized the ceremony. The bride has been a high school teacher. Her husband is employed by the Kansas highway department.

—Rev. J. N. Smucker of the Bethel College Church and family left for Indiana following the close of the public school. Mr. Smucker had been invited to deliver the address at the dedication of a new high school building at Southville, Ohio. On the way east Mrs. Smucker took suddenly sick and had to be taken to a hospital at Warsaw, Ind. They are now with her mother and cannot return until Mrs. Smucker's condition is sufficiently improved .—Later, the family has returned, leaving Mrs. Smucker with her mother.

Rev. G. A. Linscheid Ja 41 List
anton, Oklaho M

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LV NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, JUNE 11, 1940 NUMBER 23 24

Entered at the post-office at North Newton, Kansas as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing as special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919

* * * * *

EDITORIAL

* * * * *

AS HIS CUSTOM WAS.—As we follow the story of Jesus' life, we find here and there statements like these: "And he entered, as his custom was, into the synagogue on the Sabbath Day;" "as was his custom, he taught them;" "as his custom was, he went to the Mount of Olives (to pray)." Custom here means practically the same thing that we would call habit. Custom is usually applied more to group or national ways of doing things, habit is applied more to the individual's ways. Habits, customs are either good or bad. Jesus' life was one of sound fruitbearing habits, from which we may learn some valuable lessons for us to pattern after. Jesus was an habitual attendant of the synagogue or church goer, and active participant in its religious exercises. As early as the twelfth year he settled that matter for himself, when he was discussing the Way of Life with the doctors in the Temple and said to his anxious mother, "Wist ye not that I must be about my father's business?" Jesus habitually took time off to be alone with his Father, in prayer and meditation, in order to gain new strength for his strenuous labors. With Jesus work was a habit. He constantly went about doing good. There cannot have been a busier man in His time than He. The time of His sojurn on earth was very short and there were hundreds of duties awaiting him every day. As His heavenly Father keeps on working ceaselessly, He says, "I work." He made it a practice to help and give a lift wherever there was need. He would turn away no one who came to Him humbly and earnestly seeking his counsel and assistance. And, with the physical aid he tendered, he also tried to give nurture and solace to the soul. It was Jesus' habit to treat all people alike. He was no respector of person. He treated all with the same respect, justice and love. He was never found to evade the truth. He based all of his teachings and dealings with men on the truth. It was his habit and determination to do the will of God, the Father, a habit which is so sadly lacking among his followers. With Him God's will was supreme. In all that He did, he subordinated his own will to the divine law. As our Savior and teacher He set before us a life which is our duty to follow and to strive to make it a habitude. —T MAN DIRECTED UPWARD.—Man is surrounded with innumerable signs and reminders that direct him upward, to higher things. Man is the only creature that walks with body erect, head pointing to the sky or heaven, toward God, His maker and provider. The starlit night, the myriads of lamps hung out by the Divine architect, fills the soul with awe and admiration, as it views the display and contemplates the Power and the Wisdom that is behind the mysteries and immensities of the universe. "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handiwork." Tucked away somewhere in the human heart or mind is the urge to worship some being that is supposed to hold in its hand the destiny of man. Man is bound to worship esomething, sun, moon, stars, some animal, or gods made by his own hands. Our conscience tugs away at our heartstrings in the effort to make us walk the upward grade. Found among the best poetry of the peoples of the earth are many allusions to the fact that there is one greater and higher than we whom we should emulate. Nature, teeming with life in innumerable forms, the gorgeous beauty of flowers, the waving grain fields, the prayer inspiring dusk and calm of the forest, the grandeur of the billowing ocean, the majesty of the snow-capped mountain all remind man of Him who is infinitely greater and higher than he. Man's thoughts and meditations involuntarily take wings to higher realms. "If I ascend up into heaven thou art there—If I take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall thy hand lead me." Yes, God is present everywhere and in innumerable ways tries to make man conscious of the worth and dignity of his destiny, as an intended or prospective child of God. But, alas! "the striving (imagination) of man's heart is evil from his youth." His leanings are downward, away from God rather than upward, toward Him. Thus the tragedy of the human race continues. In Christ, in His salvation, many have found the way, the narrow way that bridges the chasm between sinful man and God. It is the only way that leads to genuine happiness. T.

* * * *

God gave man an upright countenance to survey the heavens, and to look upward to the stars. —Ovid

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

A RECORD DAY

(Basna, India)

When I went to the hospital one morning last December there were literally crowds of people about the building. It was a busy day at the close of which the records showed thirty-six visits or return calls, and one hundred dispensary patients most of which were children brought to be vaccinated for smallpox. Including hospital patients and their attendants, dispensary patients and those accompaning them, it is safe to estimate that 225 people came in contact with the hospital that day. There were two minor and one major operation.

We trust that the Lord could give His "Well done" approval on the day's work. It is always our prayer that the Lord might heal and relieve those whom humanly speaking we cannot help.

Your co-worker with Him, H. E. Dester

THE CONFERENCE OF THE CHURCHES OF G. C. M. M. IN INDIA

As far back as 1929 these churches gathered at some mission station for special meetings and discussions. After a few years a constitution was framed and a Home Mission enterprise was started. This work in which all the churches were represented proved to be the centre around which all the activities of this Conference have grown.

At present this Home Mission work is being carried on in two separate sections of our Mission Field. At the oldest location there is the nucleous of a Christian church although not organized. In addition to the Home Mission Committee of this Conference, Evangelistic and Educational committees were soon created. These latter two committees have worked jointly with the respective committees of the Missionary Conference. It was in the joint Evangelistic Committee that the Janjgir Bible School was conceived and through it promoted.

In recent years the old constitution proved inadequate and a new one has been made which has been in force just one year. The distinctive feature of this new constitution is that it provides for an Elders Committee whose duties shall be to supervise the churches. It shall ordain elders; it shall provide each church with a pastor, and shall pay their allowance out of a central fund to which all the churches shall contribute. This Elders Committee consists of the ordained pastors who are in charge of churches. It reports to its Conference, but does not take orders from it.

This years Conference session which was held at Champa was most inspirational and helpful. A new venture made at this time was the creation of a Widows' fund. Each congregation was required to contribute Rs. 30 as a foundation for the fund.

Four men were ordained to the ministry (not the Eldership) at this session after having been examined by the Elders Committee. They had been recommended to the Committee by congregations or pastors. Three of these men will labour in the Basna area and one in the Champa area.

The Bethesda Leper Home congregation was the host to this conference. Outside their premises they had erected a large tent of sack cloth (not to shed water, but quite sufficient to keep out the cold). They themselves had a carefully demarked section on one side. Everything was decorated fittingly with plants and coloured streamers. Their girls' choir rendered excellent music at each meeting.

The Conference was ably lead by an Indian Brother, Puran Banwar, who is the care-taker at the Leper Home. This was his second session as chairman and he has been re-elected for two years more.

Thus the churches of our Mission in India are now so organized that they not only work successfully as one unit, but they can if they so desire join a larger unit, for instance, United Church of North India without any radical change in their constitution.

F. J. Isaac

ANNOUNCEMENT AND INVITATION

We wish to announce herewith that the ordination of our mission candidates, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Friesen, has been set for Sunday June 16, 2:30 P. M. near Freeman, South Dakota, in the Salem Zion church (which is Mrs. Friesen's home church). The Lord willing, Missionary P. W. Penners of India and local ministers will participate in the ordination. We ask for the prayers of the mission friends.

The congregation invites all neighboring congregations, as also others, or their representatives, to participate in this festival.

In behalf of the F. M. Board and the Salem Zion church,

Alfred P. Waltner, member of the F. M. Board
H. Albert Claassen, Pastor of this church

Note:

The above invitation speaks for itself. It may be added that Bro. and Sister Friesen are to go to Oklahoma, where they will take the place of Bro. and Sister B. Toews, Canton, Okla.

P. H. Richert, Sec.

ORDINATION

Brother Noah Unruh, at present a student at Bethel College, will be ordained into the ministry of the Mennonite Conference on June 16, 1940, at 2:30 p. m., in the Friedenstal Church, Tampa, Kansas.

Sincerely, Harvey Jantz, Sec.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

POINTED PARAGRAPHS

From a report by Rev. John P. Bueckert, Gretna Manitoba, we take this paragraph:

"They took me by auto from Swan River to an 84 year old grandmother, several miles distant. Here it seemed that all her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren had gathered to be present at the birthday celebration. As a matter of fact we were all strangers as they had never seen me nor had I met them, but the warmth and joy that manifested itself in the one eye of the grandmother, brought us all together. Many songs were sung by different groups and also in quartet and duet numbers. Poems were recited by many and God's Word was reverently read and all hearts were lifted up to God in prayer, praise and thanksgiving. As a fitting close for the celebration, we all took part in a "love-feast." It was a real privilege to serve and participate in such a pleasant fellowship gathering.

Rev. J. J. Doerkson, Swift Current, Saskatchewan, writes of his work in the Bible School:

During the school term, 12 of the pupils came to the decision, they accepted Jesus Christ as personal Saviour and asked for baptism. Four others from Swift Current and vicinity came to the same decision, although they have not attended the Bible School. Nine more came from Wymark and vicinity, a distance of about 14 miles from Swift Current. Proper preparations were made by instruction, a worthy program was arranged for and the 25 souls were baptized on April 22nd, in the forenoon. And in the afternoon the entire Church observed Holy Communion, with Rev. David Toews and Elder in charge.

After the close of school I was invited to the villages southward to hold evangelistic meetings. At this writing, April 10th, I am in Schoenfeld, holding such meetings. We are hoping for a period of decisions as the Lord granted in other places.

During these weeks we also had a welcome visitor, Dr. H. A. Fast, Newton, Kansas. He showed us the large field of our labors. He succeded well in showing us, how small groups and even individuals can help in the great Work of the Lord. Many were inspired to try harder to cooperate in the future.

* * * *

"A new task was entrusted to me when they elected me as Secretary and Treasurer of the Relief Committee of British Columbia. May the Lord give grace that this phase of the work might bring glory to His Name and blessings to men." Thus writes Rev. Jacob B. Wiens, Vancouver, B. C.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

A. S. Rosenberger

THE GROWTH OF SECULARISM

Albert Schwartz, Freeman College

Change is no innovation; it is as old as time and as unlikely to disappear. It varies its tempo as well as the severity of its impact upon existing institutions. Each change leaves in its wake problems of widely varying difficulty. We are living in a period unparalleled in the rapidity and in the shattering effects of the changes which it is undergoing. Change is much more apparent in some fields than in others. What has happened in the world of commerce, industry, and finance has found its echo in the world of spiritual and moral forces.

The church is confronted by many new and critical problems. Not only has it been compelled to reckon with disconcerting scientific discoveries, it also has to face a greater menace in the increasing secularization of life. The disintegrating influence of these new secular interests on religion is especially effective because of its indirect nature. Because it is subtle and often unnoticed, it does not arouse the defensive reactions provoked by direct attacks on religion.

Not only have secular interests distracted man's mind from the spiritual, but secular institutions and practices have usurped services formerly supplied by the church. Other agencies tend to compete with the church in moral teaching and in the control of moral conduct. This has led to a relaxation of previously accepted cannons of morality. Lawlessness seems to be more widespread and more generally condoned. Recreation, once supervised by the church, is today largely in the control of medical experts, psychologists, and social workers. The church once exerted a tremendous hold over the masses through the emotional appeal of its ritual, liturgy, and pagantry. Today, secular institutions of various types compete extensively with affairs of the church. Substitutes for religion are increasingly meeting the spiritual yearnings of man.

The growth of secularism has also lessened the influence of the church upon education. As a rule, we are not seriously alarmed by governmental intrusion into affairs orginally reserved for the church. The church school is not unmindful of this encroachment; it sees the extension of secularism into a very important field. The church school must stand firm in the defence of religious education. The destruction of its influence would be a tragic loss.

O God! close my eyes to see thee. Separate me from the world to enjoy thy company. —Scriver

PUBLICATION

A WORD ABOUT THE NEW HYMN BOOK

After thorough investigation and study of the problem who should be entrusted with the task of manufacturing our new hymn book, the contract has been let to the METHODIST BOOK CONCERN, Dobbs Ferry, New York. Why? Their combined price for making the plates, printing and binding a first edition of 5,000 copies is better than that of any other firm or combination of firms. By letting them do the entire job the responsibility for a first class piece of work rests upon them alone and removes the possibility of one firm blaming another for any faults, where the job is divided. This firm is known for its first class workmanship and the use of good, durable material. They are extensive publishers of church hymn books.

In one of their letters we have these words of assurance: "The Methodist Hymn Book (latest edition) has sold over a million copies, and we do just as many for other hymn book publishers. We are the oldest publishing house in the United States and have a record behind us of many years of excellent work." This firm has also agreed to push the work on our book with all possible speed, even to the extent of putting in extra time, so that it now appears, if nothing unfortunate happens, that the book should begin to appear in September. The only objection that might be made against turning the job over to this firm is the distance and added cost of transportation; but, with a mailing rate of 1½ per pound on books, that is not serious.

The other plan of letting a reliable firm, like Anderson Brothers, lithographers of Chicago, outstanding makers of plates make these, and another reliable firm, even one among our Mennonite constituency, do the printing and binding, failed, because the plate makers could not meet our wishes as to the time to do the work, while charges for printing and binding were too high. By following the procedure indicated, we are assured of getting a hymn book, the mechanical make-up of which will be first class and the contents such that the heart of every loyal Mennonite should get a thrill.

The name of the book continues to be a problem, and even Wisdom herself would not be able to propose a name that would satisfy everybody. The name should be concise and suggestive. There are those who hold that the word Mennonite should not be used in the name, as that would hinder the possible sale of the book among non-Mennonite groups, as well as for general reasons. Others, and they are in the majority, say that a hymn book made principally for our use minus Mennonite as part of the name, is unthinkable. Worship Hymnal, Mennonite Hymnal, or the combination Mennonite Worship Hymnal are favorite appelations. Worship Hymnal we cannot use, as there is a book on the market by that name. In Mennonite Worship Hymnal the word "worship" seems to superflous, because we as Mennonites are worshipers. So the old name, that of the first English hymn book used by our Conference, namely MENNONITE HYMNAL, would appear to be about as satisfactory as any. Brethren of the Central Conference, which is also interested in this hymn book, with whom the editor talked recently also favor the use of the term Mennonite.

The price of the book which is now under serious consideration by the Board of Publication will be made known in due time. A few facts need to be kept in mind in this connection. As one of our Board members puts it: "Our new book will be superior to the general run of popular priced hymnals on the market, and will be apt to be considered in the class of better hymnals." That being the case, we can hardly afford to compete with the price at which those books meant for "everybody" are sold. Besides, it should not be forgotten, that our book, because of its distinctive Mennonite ear-marks, should be worth more to loyal Mennonites than other books, and it seems as though they should be willing to pay a little more for that reason. The published rates for the Mennonite Hymn Books have been: Single copies, postpaid, $1.50; 12 or more copies, $15.00 per dozen, not prepaid, 100 or more copies, $110.00, per hundred, not prepaid. This places the price per copy at $1.50, $1.25 and $1.00 respectively. The old book contains 412 hymns, the new book more than 600, hence should be worth more for that reason. The cost of the manufacture of 5,000 copies, plus other expenses, such as copyrights, advertising, etc, will rise to about $1.75 per copy. But, apparently, the price on this first edition will have to be placed below cost, with the hope that the book will sell so well that on subsequent editions this loss will be balanced.

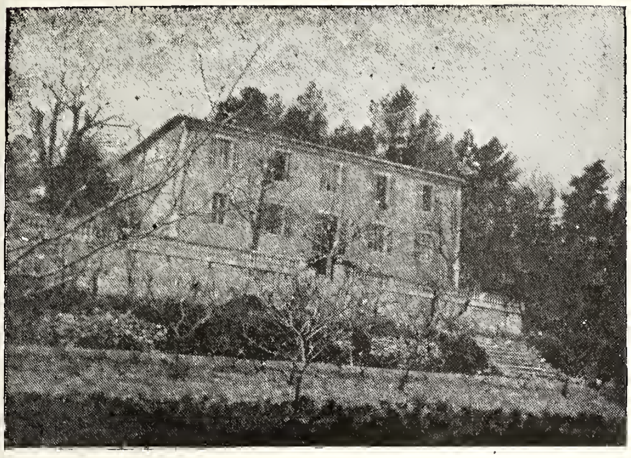
MAY WE MAKE ONE MORE APPEAL TO THOSE CONGREGATIONS THAT HAVE NOT YET MADE THEIR ANNUAL CONTRIBUTION FOR THE WORK OF PUBLICATION OR FOR THE HYMN BOOK, TO DO THEIR SHARE NOW IN HELPING OUR BOARD FINANCE THIS BOOK?

May God bless this book, conceived and prepared under the guidance of the Divine Spirit, to His glory and the advancement of the cause of Christ generally.

Sincerely, J. R. Thierstein, Chm. Bd. of Publication

"Sing unto the Lord a new song: sing unto the Lord all the earth, . . . Let the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad, let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof. Let the field be joyful, and all that is therein." Psalm 96: 1, 11-12.

Emergency Relief Work



The Children's Home in South France

The Children's Home in South France, is supported by the Mennonite Central Committee. At present there are around 35 children in the Home. They are being fed and taught. The Brethren Ted Claassen and Ernest Bennet are at work there. Besides the help to the children, they support the adult refugees, as far as funds permit. At present the Mennonite Central Committee spends $750.00 monthly for this purpose. Our Emergency Relief Board supplies $200.00 for this purpose every month.

The many refugees need our intercession, but they must also have bread to live. Let us remember the word of the Lord: "I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat", and then let us out of gratitude for our daily bread also help the hungering ones. Send your contribution to our treasurer, Rev. P. H. Unruh, Goessel, Kansas, specifying "For War Sufferers."

Emergency Relief Board,
John Lichti, Chairman

* * * *

WAR SUFFERERS' RELIEF IN FRANCE

On May 4, Ted Claassen, Newton, Kansas, left for Europe to organize and assist in the war sufferers' relief project of the Menonite Central Committee. All who are interested in this project will appreciate some information from him. On May 15 he wired from Genoa, Italy: "Arrived safely." From Genoa Brother Claassen went to Marseille, France. One of his letters to his family arrived safely, May 28. This is what he writes:

May 18th, 1940

"My dear Ones:

"This is a beautiful Saturday afternoon. Yesterday was a very windy day which is supposed to be very unusual for Marseille. Have just returned from our colony with Ernest Bennett. Wish you could have seen the litle children as they were eating their dinner. There are 37 of them from one baby only 12 days old to about 12 years. They are a happy healthy looking group. Here also they are receiving not only food and shelter but get their education as well. The older ones go to school not far away. They are nearly all Spanish with one or two French children.

"Edna Ramseyer, a Menonite girl, is in charge of the Colony with 3 Spanish helpers. The Colony is about eight miles out from Marseille in a beautiful, mountainous country. The children are so anxious to see one that it is difficult to get away.

"Night before last, we drove out there to put up three adult Spaniards for a day or two, until they can be transferred to another colony. One happened to be a barber, so today all the children got a haircut. Isabelle, the Friend's girl, and Edna had come to the city so we missed them, but will take them back at six with a load of supplies. Isabelle is in charge of another camp not far from ours. It's really a great help to have a car here, especially in distributing the clothing when it arrives . . . ."

"We are planning to leave here some time next week and drive to Paris from where I plan to fly to London . . . The French people are very polite and also very friendly . . . Keep praying for us and the work."

Happy in His wonderful Grace, Ted Claassen."

On May 22 came a new telegram from Paris, stating that Brother Claassen was leaving for England. He made this trip on an airplane and wires from London, May 28: "Arrived safely. Praise Him." Brother Claassen's work will be mainly to extend the relief work among refugee children which had been started by Brother Amos Swartzentruber last winter. The need among these children is extremely great. Send your contributions to our Emergency Relief treasurer, Rev. P. H. Unruh, Goessel, Kansas.

John Lichti, Chairman, Emergency Relief Board
Emergency Relief Board, John Lichti, Chairman

GOSPEL NUGGETS

The pulpit is the place to lift up Jesus, not to down the church members.

Some sermons have too much thunder and not enough lightening.

Some sermons have a double amount of powder, and no shot.

Should a sermon be all cut and dried? No it should be cut.

All churches need sleepers under the floor, not in the seats.

A fire out of control is much worse than no fire at all.

—W. G. Ketcheson, in "Gospel Banner"

SERMON SKETCH

TRIUMPH IN CHRIST

by H. N. Harder, Enid, Oklahoma

Text: 2 Cor. 2:14-16: "Now thanks be unto God, which always causeth us to triumph in Christ."

We must picture to ourselves the Roman procession after the victory in order to appreciate the above passage fully. There was the victorius general in his chariot drawn by white horses. Close behind him marched the laurelled soldiers and the sullen captives, the latter suppressing their hate. All along the way clouds of incense and shouts from spectators went up into the blue sky. That is the picture in Paul's mind here.

God the Conqueror: "Thanks be unto God which always leadeth us in triumph in Christ." Thus it has been with us. God has led us about from place to place in the train of His triumph to celebrate His victory over the enemies of Christ. All who know Jesus Christ to be their Lord and Savior share with Him in this procession. By us He has made known the reality of His might. In us has been seen the evidence of His conquest. Just as the prisoners who were paraded through the streets of Rome showed that they had been engaged in no sham battle, so Christians have been led from place to place as proofs of the saving power of the gospel of His grace.

In the person of Christ God had entered into the conflict with the enemies of man, and having spoiled principalities and powers has made a show of them openly. God's weapon is the cross of Jesus Christ.

The Conquered. In the truest sense all Christians are conquered captives bound to the chariot wheels of one who has overcome them. Paul, who at one time was an ardent enemy of Christ, was conquered and now is thankful to be so overcome. To him it was an honor to be overcome by God. On the way to Damascus God struck him and led him away a captive.

To be triumphed over by Christ is to triumph with Christ. He brings liberty. To be His slave is to be everybody's master. He sets man free from fear, and makes him dependent on God. Christ sets free from sin and guilt.

The Bearers of Incense. In the Roman procession the incense was not carried by the captives, but by specially chosen bearers. Christians are to carry incense. They are to spread the sweet savor of God wherever they go. As the captives were a testimony to the General and to reveal him as a man to be feared and dreaded, so the Christian bears testimony of God's abounding grace and power to save. "By the grace of God I am what I am." Paul.

Paul makes the claim that we are the incense. "To the one we are the savor of death unto death; and to the other the savor of life unto life." To some we are the perfume of life unto life and to others perfume of death unto death. "And who is sufficient for these things?" Paul.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

June 23, 1940

Malachi Demands Honesty Toward God

Malachi 3:7-18 Read entire Book

Introduction

The prophecy of Malachi was occasioned by the unfaithfulness of the people toward Jehovah. The Temple had been rebuilt, but the people's hearts were still largely unfaithful. Even the priests were quite careless in their religious life. They were often lazy men. Drought and locusts had caused much suffering in the more recent years. Malachi pictures the period as one of religious depression. Things were in a bad way. The people's courage was low. Malachi believed that God would help them if they fully trusted Him. He saw too that the priests and people needed most of all to return to God. They were blind to their unfaithfulness—people usually are—and repeatedly asked "wherein", when God reminded them of their unfaithfulness and negligence. Malachi, speaking for God, declared He would send a messenger to prepare the way for Himself, and would execute judgment upon sinners (vs 1-6).

Robbing God of Material Things vs 7-12

Israel had repeatedly gone away from God's ordinances and He had as constantly urged them to return to Him (v7). In blind self-righteousness they asked, "Wherein shall we return?" Serious abuses had arisen. Malachi directly accuses them of robbing God. "Will a man rob God"?, is a startling question, yet Israel was doing it, and many are doing it today. They failed to pay their tithes and offerings to God—God's portion (v8). They kept it for themselves. We today are under moral obligations higher than those of the Jews of the old covenant. When we fail to set a proper portion of our income apart for God's work, we rob Him. A decline in religious interest and withholding God's portion from His work, almost always go together.

God makes a wonderful promise to those who faithfully honor Him (v10). Any one who doubts the literal truth of this, should at least be honest enough toward God to try Him and see. God expects us to give to Him as He has prospered us, and to give cheerfully. Surely we should be honest toward God along financial lines.

Robbing God of Service vs 13-18

Israel had strongly criticised God's demands and dealings with them, yet did not realize it (v13). They said further, "It is vain to serve God", and without profit to be obedient (v14). Religion was so largely only external form. When people lose faith in the goodness and justice of God, they have little incentive left for service. They will neglect Him and His work. Many excuses are made today for not giving to God the service which should be given.

God faithfully rewards those who deal honestly with Him (vs 16-18). This is as true of financial honesty as of honesty in other respects. God is able to do great things for us and will if we but do our duty. The reward of satisfaction of soul and inward peace is beyond price. Our names shall be in His "book of remembrance", which is a guarantee of special favor (v17b).

God is the sovereign owner of all. He confers upon us the right of possession, but not of absolute ownership. On this is found the basis of our responsibility as stewards. Man robs himself in robbing God. He benefits himself in recognizing God's claims. Honesty toward God will be rewarded both temporally and spiritually.

A LETTER

Written by the daughter of the invalidated Rev. W. S. Gottshall, whose many friends will be glad to hear about him.

Dear Editor and Friend:

Please note the change of address to 1989 Nelawood, East Cleveland, Ohio. We moved on May 1. I wanted to write to you, also, to tell you that both father and I have enjoyed the Mennonite this past year. I read it to him from cover to cover and, although he doesn't remember it very long, he enjoys listening to the accounts of different communities with which he is well acquainted.

We moved into a larger house. We had been living in a small apartment (same place for 10 years), but we knew that father could never stand the warm weather in his weakened condition, unless we'd find a place more suitable for him. This is only a few blocks away from the locality where my music pupils live.

If anyone drives east to Penna. or N. Y. this summer and would like to stop here and see father, our place is only 3 blocks off the main highway which runs along Euclid Avenue.

Father is probably better physically than he was several months ago, but he is quite childish at times and very depressed and blue. He cannot understand why he must live on like this when he can do nothing but sit. He does sit with his head bowed most of the time. At times he may leaf through a magazine, but he can't read, and he can't always grasp what I'm reading to him.

By the way, he will be 75 years old on June 23. Would you let the readers of the Mennonite know, so that his old friends can remember him at that time.

Most sincerely,
Flora Geiger

The First Quarterly Conference

East Swamp Mennonite Church, Quakertown, Pa.
Rev. Harold D. Burkholder, Pastor

Monday June 24th, 1940
Afternoon Session 2:30 o'clock

Song Service led by Rev. Burkholder, Conference Chorister
Devotions in charge of local Minister
Conference Business
Hymn by the Conference
Bible Lecture—"Studies from I Corinthians"—Rev. A. E. Kreider
Discussion opened by Rev. Freeman H. Swartz
Closing Hymn and Prayer

Evening Session 7:30 o'clock

Song Service led by the Conference Chorister
Scripture Lesson and Prayer—Rev. Ernest J. Bohn
Special Music by the local Church
Message—"Why I want to return to China as an Evangelist!"—Rev. P. J. Boehr
Special Music by the local Church
Message—"Why I want to return to China as a Nurse!"—Mrs. P. J. Boehr
Special Music by the local Church
Bible Lecture—"An Epistle of Love"—Rev. A. E. Kreider
Closing Hymn—Prayer—Benediction

* * * *

The Ladies of the Church will serve lunch.
The Home Mission Committee will meet before the evening session.
Suggestion—Read I Corinthians before the Conference.

The Kansas Institute of International Relations

This institute begins its fifth ten-day session this June 11th. With its program emphasizing "America's Opportunity to Built a Durable Peace" and with its corps of outstanding speakers it should attract large audiences. A list of these includes: The widely known Muriel Lester from England who knows as much of the people and conditions of the world as anybody; Clarence Streit, author, journalist, traveler; Samuel Guy Inman, outstanding authority on South America; Anna Seesholtz, just returned from Japan and China; Benjamin Gerig, member of the League of Nations Secretariat; Warren Mullin, of the National Council for the Prevention of War in Washington, D. C.; Arthur Holt, professor at Chicago Theol. Seminary, lecturer on the underlying principles of American Democracy. Dr. Heinrich Bruening, former chancellor of Germany, whom so many were eager to hear, cannot fill his engagement owing to ill-health.

CORRESPONDENCE

WEST SWAMP CHURCH, QUAKERTOWN, PA.

Greetings to the Readers: On May 12, Pentecost Day, 19 young people were received into the Church by baptism, and two by the right hand of fellowship. We trust that these young people will continue to grow in wisdom and strength and be an asset to the Church.

We are in the midst of a Daily Vacation Bible School, which closes on June 7, with a program in the evening. The daily attendance is around 100 pupils.

The Young Women's Missionary Society had a joint meeting with the East Swamp Young Women's Missionary Society on Saturday afternoon June 1. A fine program was presented and a pleasant fellowship was had by all.

Short Memorial Services were held on June 2, following the morning worship.

Anna Bauman, Corr.

* * * *

SALEM ZION CHURCH, MARION, S. DAK.

This church enjoyed distinguished guests in the past few weeks. Among them was the Bethel College Mens' Quartet and a Ladies' Trio from the A Cappella Choir of the same school. They pleased everyone with their fine harmonizing voices.—Rev. H. A. Fast and Missionary John Thiessen presented illustrated lectures of great interest and help in appreciating their work as it is carried on.—Our Young Peoples' C. E. Society had invited neighboring churches to exchange C. E. Programs. Three different societies have been here and the talent of these various groups proved very interesting and left with us subjects to meditate over.

Last Sunday Dr. and Mrs. Richard Jantzen, missionaries on their way to Africa, were in aur midst. Their leave has been postponed three times, due to the dangerous travel caused by the war.—On May 12 seven young people were received into this congregation by baptism, on confession of faith. Two Sundays following Communion services were held.

Earlier this spring the ordination of Felix Schrag took place, and on the 16th of June Arthur Friesen will be ordained minister and missionary, with his wife as helper. These worthy young people will go to serve among the Indians in Oklahoma.

The Ladies Misionary Society presented a pageant Sunday evening entitled, "Life's Crossroads." It portrayed a truth of the way of Life which could be appreciated by young and old.—A four week period of Vacation Bible School is in progress. Four teachers were appointed to take charge and classes are held in the forenon.—A special business meeting was called last Monday evening when it was decided to install a new heating system in our church building.

This community is again in ned of rain. Our early spring moisture is disappearing fast and some crops are suffering. We still feel, however, that God has dealt kindly with us as a people here when we compare our lot with others. Mrs. J. J. Saner, Corr.

ZION MENN. CHURCH, ELBING, KANSAS

On Sunday, May 19, we were privileged to witness the ordination of one of our members. Brother Arnold Regier had accepted a call from the Home Mission Board of the General Conference to be pastor of the Alberta Community Church of Portland, Oregon. This young brother has spent the last four years at Bethel College to prepare himself for the ministry to which the Lord has called him.

The services in the forenoon were very impressive as well as the program in the afternoon. The Rev. W. H. Dyck, who was formerly a member of our church, but is now at Beatrice, Nebr. and at whose ordination almost four years ago Bro. Arnold first felt the urge to prepare for the ministry, made the introduction. As told in last week's paper, Rev. J. M. Regier, Rev. A. E. Kreider from Bethel College and our local pastor, Rev. H. J. Dyck, who performed the ordination, took part in the services.

In the course of the sermons it was asked, what it was that made Jeremiah great? Was it the book he had written? Was it the length of the book or was it his social standing? The answer to all these questions was, no! It was Jeremiah's faithfulness to God and his character. And so also the minister of the Gospel must be faithful and of good character. The fivefold purpose and responsibility of the minister was also mentioned. He must be shepherd, teacher, preacher, pastor and priest.

Everybody was invited to remain for the noonday lunch which was served cafeteria style in the church basement by the Women's Sewing Society. The afternoon service was more in the form of a fellowship meeting and was under the leadership of Rev. Walter Dyck. Most of those participating in the program were fellow-Students of the young minister. Besides one local number, a quartette of four men, of which the new minister and Rev. W. H. Dyck had been members, sang two numbers. This leaves only Bro. J. P. Jantzen and Bro. W. H. Regier of the quartet here. But we still hope to hear them again. Rev. J. E. Kaufman gave the address in the afternoon and a message was given by Rev. W. H. Dyck.

On the following Sunday, May 26, four young people were received into the church through Holy baptism. The young people who decided to live for the Lord are; Ronald Andres, Ruth Wedel, Elizabeth Dunn and Martha Loeffler. May God's richest blessings abide with these young converts, as alco with Rev. and Mrs. Arnold Regier, is our wish.

Oswald Klassen, Corr.

R. Weinbrenner
Editor

Senior Department
Mrs. Gerh. Friesen

Intermediate
Department
Huldah E. Myers

Junior Department
Mrs. J. E. Entz

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the
General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.

William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

(Andrew R. Shelly, son of Rev. Elwood S. Shelly, Pennsburg, Penn., is the author of the following theme, the first installment of wihch here appears. Mr. Shelly was graduated from Bible Institute of Penn., Phila., Penn., in 1936 and from Bluffton College in 1939. He is now a student at Hartford Theological Seminary. This summer he will be on the faculty of the Eastern Young People's Retreat.)

"To the Regions Beyond"

Text, John 4:35

> "Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? behold, I say unto you, lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest."

In every Christian's experience there are certain mountain peaks in the growth of his or her convictions. For me, one of these experiences was a quarterly conference of the Eastern District Ministers and Deacons in June, 1937, held in the historic Flatland Meeting house.

It was at this meeting that Miss Goertz, our missionary to China, spoke of the great needs, possibilities, and results of our work in that great land. In the course of the meeting a quartet composed of four representatives of our China field sang that stirring hymn To the Regions Beyond...

To the regions beyond I must go, I must go
Where the story has never been told
To the millions who never have heard of his name
I must tell the sweet story of old.

That evening, and in the months and years that have intervened, I couldn't help but ask myself what regions this hymn referred to. My conclusion was that the regions beyond are those regions which are often neglected by organized Christianity. In Jesus' day the synagogues and temple reached many people, but there was a great region beyond. In our text He says, "Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest." The corners of the great harvest field of humanity were being neglected.

Jesus went to at least four regions beyond. We need to turn our attention increasingly to those four regions.

Jesus went to the social outcast. In fact the charge which was frequently lodged against the Master was that He "ate with sinners." Those whom humanity neglected were Jesus' friends. In Matt. 9:10-13 we read, "And it came to pass, as Jesus sat at meat in the house, behold, many publicans and sinners came and sat down with him and his disciples. And when the Pharasees saw it, they said unto his disciples, Why eateth your Master with publicans and sinners? But when Jesus heard that, He said unto them, They that be whole need not a physican, but they that are sick."

Andrew R. Shelly

What is it in the spirit of Jesus which attracted sinners? The sinners "came" to Him. He certainly did not compromise with sin: He was the eternal, Son of God manifested in human flesh. Toward this group Jesus never manifested a condemning, bigoted spirit, but manifested a loving, inviting spirit. How Chrstians need to learn this lesson! Instead of condemnation it was "go and sin no more." Instead of a verdict of Judgment, it was "make haste come down." If we would follow in the steps of the Master, we too must with Him say "make haste, come down," instead of an enumeration of their sins "which are many." Instead of placing the emphasis on the painting of a hideous picture of sin, we must present the ineffible picture of Jesus who said, "if I be lifted up, I will draw all men unto myself."

The application of this region beyond is the group outside the pale of decent society owing to open sin or manner of living. This represents a large area; a large portion of which is almost totally neglected. It has been coservatively estimated that there are 200,000 men who are riding our freight trains from city to city. In addition to these, there are thousands of migrant families who maintain no local loyalties. Then there is that great slum population of our cities. A large proportion of these groups are outside of the natural function of organized Christianity.

In 1872 the rescue mission movement began as an effort of Jerry McAuley to reclaim a portion of this outcast group. Since that time thousands of these missions have sprung up throughout the country. Many people would discount the work of these missions as ineffective because of the personnel of the mission and the character of the men they reach. Naturally in many cases there is evidence of ineffective work—the same is true of many churches—and it is obvious that many men merely use these missions as places of temporary material relief. But in spite of these facts it remains true that men have been reached in this way and have lived consecrated, Christian lives. Two years experience with hundreds of drunks and downtrodden men and families has convinced me that the primary need is a living, vital, personal contact with Jesus Christ. While mere social efforts keep the social infection in partial check, it is this experience with the Christ which produces permanent results.

Perhaps the outstandng example of what can be done is a man who lived the life of a drunkard and criminal for more than 20 years. The light of the gospel dawned upon him in a Philadelphia "tenderloin mission.' He has been a consistent Christian ever since that time. When one notes the many who have thus been transformed one becomes convinced as to the power of the gospel and the worthwhileness of the work.

Jesus went to the regions beyond—the social outcast. He did not send some untrained person who could not do effective work in a so-called more important place, but He Himself went. The Christian Church must send some of its best trained, spiritually minded men in to this needy field.

Jesus went to the racial outcast. In John 4:9 we have the words of the Samaritan woman after Jesus had started to speak to her, "How is it, that thou, being a Jew, asketh drink of me, which am a woman of Samaria? for the Jews have no dealings with the Samaritans." It was an unusual thing for Jesus to show this concern for a woman of another race. Jesus knew no lines of race—He spoke of the human race who were all in equal need of His redemptive message.

The problem here arises out of our natural tendency to assume that we are just a bit more intelligent and in general better than other races. Prejudice exists among all groups. Considering the problem of the negro, it is not enough to assume that the white must change his attitude to the negro, but the negro must also cleanse his mind of the dross of prejudice and hatred. (This is not my conclusion, but was given by a negro Christian recently).

The problem is much the same regardless of the groups under consideration. We are so prone to select the worse in the other group and compare him with the best in our group and form our conclusion upon that inadequate and unfair comparison. Jesus saw what a man might become when filled with His love regardless of race. Why not have one standard of comparison for all—Jesus Christ?

A few months ago the Hampton Quartet (colored) sang several selections in our chapel service. One of these was "Lord, I want to be a Christian." Regardless of the color, the nationality, or cultural group this is the great longing of the heart—it is the longing for a contented spirit which comes through Christ.

Jesus went to the regions beyond—the radical outcast. The Christian Church must delegate some of its best-trained, spiritually-minded men specifically to work of this kind. In addition we should pray for that spirit of Jesus which knows no lines of demarcation but is ever willing to answer the cry of need as the Good Samaritan.

(To be continued)

Senior Department

Senior C. E. Topic for June 30, 1940

Missionary Program

Main Topic: The Challenge to Mission Work

???28: 19-20

I. Worship Service

1. "I need Thee everywhere", "Jesus calls us, o'er the tumult", "Send the light, the blessed gospel light."
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer.
3. Missionary hymns, as group singing.
4. Offering for missions.

II. Instead of the usual program suggesions in line with the international programs, we wish to bring a letter from Miss Aganetha Fast, who is doing faithful service in war torn China, and suggest that each society work out a good missionary program of their own. (This letter may be part of your program).

"SATAN TREMBLES WHEN HE SEES THE WEAKEST SAINT UPON HIS KNEES?"

The Cottage Bible Class went to the home of Mrs. Kang today. Early in the morning Mrs. Kang came to tell us about the incense urn and ancestral tablets in the middle room of her home which she shared with her younger brother-in-law and family. Would we mind and be prejudiced against her? We assured her we understood her situation and she was comforted.

At 1:00 promptly we entered the home. We had to enter through the pewter shop of her brother-in-law. He and his son were very cordial and courteous and directed us to their common yard. The sister-in-law seemed either strange or cold, I couldn't quite make out what. On addressing her she would not look up.

In fifteen minutes we had all gathered, a group of about 12 Christians and neighbors. We had just made room for all to be seated, when with quick excited strides, trembling with rage from head to foot, in stalks the brother-in-law with a fist full of burning incense. He was trembling so with rage he found it almost impossible to stick the incense into the pot with ashes. Raging with madness he could hardly thrust forth intelligible words: "I am going to worship my god, he is the only true god, yours is false, you are committing a sin etc. etc. accusing his sister-in-law and us. Mrs. Kang was speechless and the rest of us were dumbfounded. At first none moved but were spellbound. Finally I said, 'let us all move into the yard, we cannot worship in a room anyway where incense is burned to false gods.'

Comforting the humiliated hostess, she finally recovered sufficiently to open the meeting. But she was rudely interrupted by the son of the former walking back and forth through the yard, whom she knew better than we and whom she evidently feared more than the former. Poor Mrs. Kang's mind went absolutely blank so that she was unable to say the so familiar song "There is only one True God." It was such a difficult situation for her as well as for us to know how to proceed, for the two men stalked back and forth through the group raging and threatening. Should we all leave here or should we go on? We started to sing, the son then almost went beside himself thundering and driving out his wife and daughter, just foaming away. To leave, would it mean that we were defeated? Some suggested to leave, others sat quiet and undisturbed. Mrs. Kang tried to speak up, "This is my home as well, and I can worship as I feel led." We quieted her down, lest a worse situation arise. At this point the nephew threatened to beat up the aunt. Mrs. Kang was grief stricken. We picked up another song, the situation got impossible. I suggested that we all bow our heads in quiet prayer, which we did, and then the miracle happened — the man inside the house grew quieter and quieter until his voice was completely subdued, just off and on he would mutter a word, and that too ceased altogether. God now had him under control. Mr. Kang, whose mind is a bit disturbed (mentally sick) had in the meantime come home, he stepped into the group and offered a most touching prayer in clear distinct language. We proceeded with the meeting, one of the women giving the message to give Mrs. Kang a chance to recover, who then taught the non-Christians the golden text, which again was followed by silent prayer. The son had run out of the house and yard quietly and the father had come in but it was evident that he too had been completely disarmed. He must have spent in that one hour at least $2.00 for idol worship which he could ill afford at this time.

But O, what a peace was ours, we had been in a hurricane, and had seen God and His wonderful power. This is the worst opposition to Christ's message I have experienced during my twenty-two years of work here in China.

"No aeroplane has yet been perfected that can rise safely into a huricane and above its powers. But faith does this in the spiritual world. It can leave any storm behind and reach the peace of God above all the wreckage of things below." Thanks be to God, our Father!

Sincerely
Aganetha Fast

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

Push Outside Your Circle

June 30, 1940

For Daily Reading:

June 24. Peter's vision. Acts 10:9-20
June 25. The mission to Cyprus. Acts 13:16
June 26. Turning to the Gentiles. Acts 13:45-51
June 27. Paul's principle. Rom. 15:20-21
June 28. Evangelizing Asia. Acts 19:1-10
June 29. Paul seeking to go to Rome. Rom. 1:8-15
June 30. Topic Acts. 11:19-26

Call to Worship: For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: For it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. Rom. 1:16.
Song, "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations"
Scripture Reading. Acts 11:19-26
Prayer by Superintendent
Leader's Talk

Naturally when we consider this topic we must also think of the meaning of the word"neighbor." Jesus in the story of the Good Samaritan showed that our neighbor may be one who is entirely out of our circle of associates. A neighbor is anyone who needs our help and sympathy. Neighbors include all men everywhere, yes, those whom we reach when we push outside of our circle. There are groups of people within our nation who are especially in need of neighborliness. First, let us strive to understand our own community and then push outside of it.

Talk by a Social Service or Red Cross Worker. (Ask them to give you a picture of the need of neighborliness in your community).

Question. What attitude does your society have toward the negro race? Is there anything we can do to improve the status of the negro?

Question. What are the working conditions of the laboring classes in our community? Is there anything the church might do to establish a better relation between employers and employees?

Question. What is there that our society might do to establish a more friendly relation between all races in the community?
Song "Brightly Beams our Father's Mercy"
Leader—"All over the country there are conferences and institutions in which race and nationality are forgotten in the work for a common cause. From Alaska comes the report of a local conference in which half of the delegates were white and half Indian. From California, a most enthusiastic report of an institute, where Negroes, Japanese, and white delegates lived for one whole week in fellowship. Never any animosity, never any hatred; but those young people have come to the realization that, after all, our modifications of skin and color and texture of hair doesn't matter."
Song "Fling Out the Banner"
Offering
Mizpah Benediction

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Program Suggestions for June 30, 1940

"Ye are the salt of the earth"—Matthew 5:13a
"Ye are the light of the world"—Matthew 5:14a

I. Worship Period.—

1. Prelude Piano and violin, melody of "Living for Jesus."
2. In unison sing the above song.
3. Leader's Prayer
4. Scripture reading by a Junior boy. Matthew 7: 24-29.
5. Duet "I Would be True."
6. In unison repeat by memory all of the beatitudes, the girls giving the first half of the verses and the boys completing it.
7. Girls' Chorus "Be a Ray of Sunshine." Service Hymnal No. 355.
8. Ashort talk, by a Junior:

"Every true Christian is a candle shining in this dark world. The Bible speaks of the spirit of man as the candle of the Lord. In the natural state, before regeneration we are unlighted candles. We are candles, however, capable of being lighted; for God made us in His own image though sin has put out the flame or left it only a smoking, smoldering spark. But a thousand unlighted candles in a dark room would not make the room light; so when we receive Christ into our hearts the Holy Spirit touches these candles with the Divine flame, and they begin to shine. Thus every believer becomes really a candle of the Lord. We must remember that we can never shine of ourselves; that we are light only as we are lighted by the life of Christ in us. Then, each one in his own place, we must give light to other lives, and make the one little spot in this world that is close about us brighter and happier with love and grace. —From "Come Ye Apart" by J. R. Miller

9. Silent Prayer All heads bowed.

II. Study Period

Aim: To help our Juniors to realize that as Christians their lives should be an influence for good, and that they should glorify God by their lives.

1. Read in unison Matthew 5:13
2. Discussion of the nature and value of salt, by a Junior girl.
3. Talk, "Why did Jesus say that Christians are the salt of the earth?" by a Junior boy.
4. Examples of men and women who have been a "salt", by four Juniors each naming someone and telling in what their influence for good consisted. —(Frances E. Willard, the temperance cause).
5. All stand and sing, "Lord Jesus, I Long to be Perfectly Whole" Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 205
6. A Junior should repeat from memory Matthew 5:14-16. All others following in their Bibles.
7. Discuss the following questions:
   a. "Can a true Christian hide the light of his life?
   b. "What does it mean to let one's light shine before men?"
   c. "Does Jesus mean everyone of His followers should give light?"
   d. What is the difference between seeing "you" and seeing "your good works"?
   e. What does it mean "to glorify your Father which is in heaven"?
8. Solo (with violin obligato): "Brightly Beams Our Father's Mercy" Mennonite Hymn Book No. 277
9. Bible Drill, Mark 9:50; Col. 4:6; Eph. 5:8; I. Thess. 5:5; Luke 12:35; Matt. 5:13; Matt. 5:14.

III. Mission Minutes

Name six missionaries in Inlia, six in China and two in Africa.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Repeat in unison verse of the month.
2. Sing in unison the Song of the month.
3. Pray in unison the prayer of the month.
4. Sing, "Into My Heart", very softly as the children leave.

A PRESSING TASK.—The crime wave in America can be lessened only if we seriously undertake the task to "Train up the child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it," as the Bible teaches. One effective way to assist in this task has recently been suggested by General Pershing when he said, "The Unted States does not need more air planes or weapons of warfare, but the greatest need today is an unbroken chain of Sunday Schools across the continent, equal in number to our public schools. T.

IN MEMORIAM

MARIA UNRUH DECKERT, DAUGHTER OF PETER AND MARY SIEBERT UNRUH, was born Sept. 30, 1877, at Marion, S. Dak. She was baptized May 16, 1892, in the Bethesda Church, received into its membership and has remained true and faithful unto her church the rest of her life. She was much interested in the work and the activities of the church and constantly sought its welfare. She was married Oct. 28, 1897 to Benjamin L. Deckert, by Rev. Derk. Tieszen. This union was blessed with ten children, 7 sons, and 3 daughters. One son, William, died March 19, 1939, at the age of 28 years. Last October, she felt a tumor or ulcer in her abdomen which the doctors diagnosed as cancer. She spent most of the time in Feb., March and April in bed but was spared great pain. She died Saturday, May 4, 1940, at the age of 62 years, 7 months and 4 days. She is mourned by her grief-stricken husband, 6 sons, 3 daughters, 3 sons and 3 daughters-in-law, 9 grandchildren, 6 brothers and 3 sisters and a host of relatives and friends. The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon, May 7, with the Rev. J. J. Adrian, J. A. Tieszen and A. P. Waltner giving messages of comfort.

* * * *

PETER SCHROCK, 91, born near Peoria, Illinois, died in Upland, California, May 27, 1940, at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Al Stutzman. Before coming to Upland in 1923, he lived near Aurora, Nebraska. His life companion passed away ten years ago. Surviving are one sister, Mrs. Mary Hoffman, 94, living at Bruce Lake, Indiana; and four children: Frank Schrock, Sam Diego; John Schrock, Mrs. Al Stutzman, and Mrs. John Jantz, Upland; and Mrs. John Troyer, Aurora, Illinois. Funeral service was held May 29, 1:30 P. M., at the First Mennonite Church of Upland, the pastor, Rev. Lester Hostetler, officiating. Interment was made at Bellevue cemetery.

—Missionary G. A. Lincheid writes: "You will notice this comes from Oklahoma, our former field of activity. Some weeks ago we assisted in Arizona. So, now within a year, we have been privileged to visit and help out in all three of our mission fields in America. The Indians seem to rejoice greatly at seeing us back; yet not all of them, for some have drifted away and do not feel very comfortable in our presence. Others have accepted the Lord and show a new sparkle in their eyes.—A goodly number have expressed their desire to be instructed for baptism. We solicit the intercession of all children of God for these and all others who have become Christians.

SPEAK GENTLY

During the depression there appeared for many Sundays on the calendar of one of our local churches these words: "Speak gently—everyone you meet is carrying a heavy burden!"

